FORMER CAPTAINS NIGHT--This Saturday night at the UMass-Maine basketball game at Curry-Hicks Cage 21 former UMass basketball captains will be on hand for half time festivities honoring them on their contributions to UMass basketball. Some of the captains who will be present are Em Grayson '17, Bill Tindall '68, Joe DeSarro '69 and last years leading captain Ray Eller denim bells

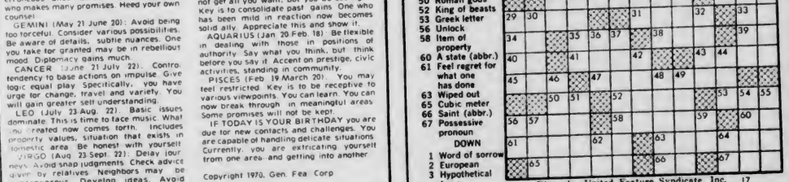
$5
superficial smile
103 N. Pleasant St. open 10-5

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle-Campers Int'nal, Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Fuss
4 District Attorney (abbr.)
6 Rants
11 Climbing device
13 Kite
15 Indefinite article
16 Musical drama
18 Roman road
19 Ocean
21 Pertaining to the ear
22 Compass point
23 Discovers
26 Take unlawfully
29 Broad
31 Cure
33 Proceed
34 Paid notice
35 Falsehood
38 Change color of
39 Sun god
40 Prefix: not
41 Indefinite amount
43 Dillseed
45 Afternoon party
47 Cancel
50 Roman gods
52 King of beasts
53 Greek letter
56 Unlock
58 Item of property
60 A state (abbr.)
61 Feel regret for what one has done
63 Wiped out
65 Cubic meter
66 Saint (abbr.)
67 Possessive pronoun

DOWN
1 Word of sorrow
2 European
3 Hypothetical force
4 Railroad station
5 Nerve network
6 Responded to
7 Man's nickname
8 Profit
9 Go in 10 Observe
12 Note of scale
14 Initials of 26th President
17 Opulent
20 Sum up
24 Lampreys
25 Declare
27 Monster
28 Vessel
29 Linger
30 Unemployed
32 Page of book
36 Electrified particle
37 Strive to equal
42 Ancient Greek district
44 Brood of pheasants
46 Clever
48 Is defeated
49 Lifeless
51 Arrow poison
54 Allowance for waste
55 Helps
56 Conjunction 57 Footlike part
59 Symbol for tantalum
62 Near (abbr.)
64 Spanish for "yes"

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

TRASH TAMPA
RELIED FRIARS
OP PROBLEM AT
TAN AERIE ATE
STET SEE EVER
ETON DRIVES
TING STIR
ALLEGE ALTO
ARES OIL SEPT
GOD MIRES DEB
RU RESENTS AD
ENLIST SETTEE
EDEMA PADRE

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Springfield Stuns UM, 63-62

By DAN KAMAL
MDC Staff

SPRINGFIELD-In what has to be the upset of the year in New England basketball, Springfield College edged UMass, 63-62, before a capacity crowd of just under 3000 at Memorial Field House.

It was a combination of things. The Redmen were cold from the free throw line, they were not getting the second shots for the most part as the Chiefs did a good job on the defensive boards and they were not getting the good shots that they normally do. But in the end, Springfield must be given all the credit in the world.

They employed a deliberate offense and a scrappy defense to near perfection as they continually prevented the visitors from mounting their normal style of play.

The game was close all the way, and it was 31-30 UMass at the half. The Redmen committed some costly turnovers in the first stanza, and this combined with almost no offensive rebounding, hampered them from pulling ahead. The fact that they outshot the Chiefs 53% to 38% in the half clearly shows the was Springfield dominated the defensive boards. In fact this and poor free throw shooting were UMass' main problems throughout the game as they outshot the home team 46% to 36% from the floor for the contest.

John Betancourt, Mike Pagliara and Tom McLaughlin each had eight points to lead UMass in scoring at the end of the half, as the Redmen took most of their shots from the outside. Julius Erving had only four points on two field goals in the entire first stanza.

Springfield built up a seven point lead midway through the opening half and this turned out to be its largest lead of the period as the Redmen began creeping back and threatened to pull away but never did.

Led by the outside shooting of Pagliara, Betancourt and McLaughlin, the Redmen entered the locker room with a tenuous one point lead.

Everyone in the house expected the visitors to play the basketball they are capable of and subsequently blow the game open. It never happened.

Although UMass started the second half with six straight points on buckets by Erving, Pagliara and Betancourt that made the score 37-30, they were frustratingly unable to foul any period.

A layup by Steve Waterman, who definitely was the top star of this game, made the score 37-32 and indicated that the Chiefs were not going to fold.

Another UMass spurt with 8:19 left in the game gave the visitors their biggest lead of the night--11 points, 55-44. McLaughlin, who finished the game with 16 points, led this minor surge with three hoops.

This is when Springfield began the comeback that was to end in the incredible upset.

Brad Macomber scored on a layup. This was followed by two free throws, a layup and pop from the corner by Waterman and suddenly the Redmen were only up by three, 55-52.

An Erving layup was followed by another Waterman bucket, and Redman coach Jack Leaman called timeout at this point.

Nothing, however, was to stop the Chiefs' momentum, and with 16 seconds left, although the Redmen had the ball and a one point lead, 62-61, the lead did not hold up.

Macomber made the play of the night for Springfield up to that point as he stole the pass in from Pagliara and passed to Waterman. The Springfield captain then dribbled around for about 12 seconds before calmly swishing a 25 foot jumper that gave his team the ballgame.

UMass had two seconds in which to attempt to tie the game. A full court pass from McLaughlin to Erving was tipped out of bounds by Waterman, and the Redmen had the ball at their end of the court with one second left. But a Pagliara pass into Erving near the hoop was battered around, and it was all over.

HOOP NOTES-The Redmen were atrocious from the charity line shooting 22% on two for nine...Erving started scoring in the second half and ended the game with 18 points and 23 rebounds...Waterman was the whole story for Springfield as he scored 30 points; Dana Anderson was the only other Chief in double figures with 11 and Macomber, Fran Stupakevich and Jud Hunt combined for only 21...For UMass Pagliara, Betancourt, McLaughlin and Erving all finished with double figures, but Ken Mathias was the only other Redman scorer with five points.

Box Score

UMass	FG	FT	T	Spfld	FG	FT	T
Betancourt	5	3	13	Anderson	4	3	11
Cotter	0	0	0	Grassi	0	1	1
Erving	9	0	18	Hunt	1	5	7
Mathias	2	1	5	Macomber	3	2	8
McLain	6	0	16	Stupkvich	3	0	6
Pagliara	6	0	12	Waterman	13	4	30
Total	30	2	62	Total	24	15	63

Pucksters Top NU In OT After Bowing To Friars

The UMass hockey team won a breathtaking game Saturday night at the Boston Arena, beating Northeastern University 6-5 in overtime.

Al Nickerson was the hero for the Redmen as he scored the winning goal after just 2:31 of overtime. Nickerson picked up the puck at his own blue line and skated to the red line. Then he took a slap shot that continued to rise until it hit NU's goalie, John Burke, on his right arm and deflected into the net. Nickerson's 80 foot goal ended a game that had it's share of fluky plays and just plain excitement.

UMass was coming off a rather disappointing 8-1 loss to Providence the night before. The Friars, one of the most physical teams in the East, just mauhandled the smaller Redmen in their easy win. UMass just didn't play very well.

UMass dominated the game for the first two periods, building up a 5-1 lead. And then N.U. staged a frantic comeback in the final period to tie the game.

The Redmen scored the game's first goal on a fluke. Dan Reidy tried to center a pass to one of his teammates, but the puck hit Tom Thayer in the leg and deflected into the net past Dan Eberly, who played goal for N.U. until he was injured in the second period. This goal came at 5:33 with Don Lowe and Brian Sullivan getting assists.

At 9:01, Jack Edwards was quick in the spot as he banged in a loose puck that had bounced off the backboards. Reidy had set up Bob Bartholomew for a twenty foot shot, but Bartholomew's attempt was wide and Edwards happened to be in the right place at the right time. The Redmen had a 2-0 lead, and the small crowd (everyone left after the B.U. win) seemed destined to watch quite an upset.

Steve Furnald got Northeastern back in the game with a wicked slap shot from the left wing into the right corner of the net. Kevin Delany and John Boyce got assists on this goal that drew N.U. within one at 10:48.

UMass was ahead 3-1 by the end of the first period. The Redmen got this goal at 14:29, just nine seconds after Nickerson came back to the ice from a two-minute interference penalty. UMass took the face-off in Northeastern's end and really put the pressure on. Pat Keenan really made this goal as he picked up the puck behind the net and circled around trying to stuff it in the net. Eberly stopped this first try, but was out of position when Jack Edwards picked up the loose puck and scored his second goal of the game. Bob Shilalie also assisted on this goal.

In the first period, UMass outshot the Huskies 14-6.

The second period was all UMass. Reidy, Edwards and Keenan figured in the first goal at 8:28. N.U. had John Boyce in the penalty box serving an interference call. Edwards took a thirty foot shot that Eberly stopped. But Keenan picked up the rebound and passed across the crease to Reidy who lifted the puck into the left corner of the net.

About three minutes later, Eberly and Edwards collided at the goal mouth. Eberly injured his leg and Burke replaced him in goal.

UMass greeted Burke with a powerful onslaught that resulted in the prettiest goal of the game. This fifth Redman goal was also a power play goal. The Redmen had a 3 on 2 breakaway going. Reidy passed left to Nickerson who batted the puck in mid-air back to Keenan who deflected the puck into the net.

UMass also had the shots on net advantage in the second period, 11-8.

The Huskies first goal came on a powerplay. Crawford Bell scored from Paul Scherer and Les Chaison at 4:56 on a shot that broke through P.J. Flaherty's pads.

Less than two minutes later it was 5-3. Gene Archambault scored a pretty goal at 6:20 as Paul Scherer gave him a good pass in front of the UMass net. Tom Thayer also got an assist. Then it was 5-4. At 9:16 Kevin Delany rapped in a loose puck after Flaherty had stopped Furnald's shot.

THE MAD HATTER-Sophomore sensation Pat Keenan is foiled in his valiant bid to tie up Monday night's game at UVM by all-American Dave Reece. Keenan scored a hat trick in this game and played a big roll in the NU win. (MDC photo by Ned Diffendale)

Fr. Cagers Hold On, 74-71, Over Chiefs

By FRED ROSENTHAL
MDC Staff

SPRINGFIELD-After throwing away a 22 point half-time lead the UMass freshman basketball team had to come from behind to take a 74-71 decision over the Springfield College frosh here last night. UMass boosted its record to 14-1 while Springfield dropped to 7-4.

With 14 seconds left in the game and Springfield leading 71-70, Al Skinner grabbed an offensive rebound, put in a beautiful move and drew a foul in the process. The 6'3 forward converted the three point play and UMass led 73-71. But it wasn't over yet.

With less than 10 seconds to go Jim Ziogan drove past Pete Trow for what might have been the game-tying lay-up, but John Olsen blocked the shot and Skinner grabbed the loose ball and was fouled. Skinner made the free throw making the final score 74-71.

In the first half it was all UMass as Olsen and Skinner cleared the boards while Trow was hitting from all over the place.

Defensively the Little Redmen forced Springfiled into taking all outside shots and didn't let them get any offensive rebounds. During the first stanza UMass was called for only two personal fouls.

With about a minute to go in the half and UMass leading by 16, 41-25, Art Levine scored six straight points, the last on a tap from Pitino, who had six assists.

The second half was as lopsided as the first only in the other direction. UMass came out on the sloppy side and Springfield capitalized on every mistake.

Springfield's backcourt man, Chris Goldson, had a lot to do with the Little Chief's comeback. The 5'11 guard hit 20 foot shots, 25 foot shots, 30 foot shots and in fact every shot imaginable.

Goldson had 22 points in the second half as Springfield closed the gap. With 2:50 to go in the game the sharp shooting Little Chief hit a 25-footer to tie the score at 68. A minute later he hit another one to give Springfield a two point edge, 70-68.

Skinner led the little Redmen with 30 points, 11 for 17 from the floor.

The Huskies tied the game at 12:50. Bill Cotter scored this goal from Archambault and Scherer. With seven minutes to play it seemed inevitable that Northeastern would score again and win the game. But somehow UMass managed to regroup its forces and stay in the game.

When Archambault missed an open net with just four minutes left, the Redmen came alive again and just missed winning the game on two separate situations. Pat Keenan was robbed twice by Burke. The first time Burke stuck out his glove hand to deflect Keenan's shot from five feet out of the net. Then Burke had to face a UMass power play during the last minute and 17 seconds of the game. Tom Thayer was in the box for tripping and the Redmen made a last ditch attempt to pull the game out of the fire. And Burke managed to rob Keenan near the end and send the game into overtime.

In the third period, N.U. outshot UMass 13-9.

Starting the overtime period, the Redman could look back on three other overtime games. UMass had beaten Vermont, Norwich, and had tied Merrimack. This time the past did indicate the future when Nickerson struck the fatal blow, the Redmen had a 3-0-1 overtime period.

The win was also the second win of the year for UMass over a division one team. Northeastern's 5-17 record is not very good, but they play all the good teams in the East and are usually good for a close game against any opposition. They had previously beaten UNH this year which shows they can be really good when they have to be.

UMass is now 9-3-1 and one more win for the year will tie their best ever for total wins in a season. The win could come against Vermont, but at any rate the Redmen have two "easy" teams in Amherst and Holy Cross to face.

Skaters Host Jeffs

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

Two teams play on their home ice tonight, as a much improved Amherst College hockey team faces the UMass Redmen at 8:00 at Orr Rink.

Riding on the best year they've had in a long time, the Lord Jeffs stand fired and ready to oppose the Redmen after a very impressive victory over Williams College, 8-7, last Saturday. From this side, UMass must recover from the one-and-two record of the past weekend, and on only one full day's rest, as the season's end schedules a bunch-up of six close games.

Canadian-born captain Ted Toombs, Amherst's high scorer for the past couple of years, will pose an imminent threat on UMass starting goalie P.J. Flaherty. His momentum has helped the Lord Jeffs become more than the slight competition against UMass for the "city of Amherst championship".

Adding hustle to Toombs' hot squad are John McKay, a forward from Montreal, and Rocky Shepard, considered by some to be the best all-around skater.

With their backs against the wall in this last stretch of matches, Redman starters Dennis Grabowski, Lonnie Avery, Mike Waldron on the front line, and Don Lowe and Brian Sullivan on defense must pick up for a much needed win.

"We've got to get some goals. We've got to start scoring," sums up the game plan by coach Jack Canniff.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Continued cold, chance of snow. Highs in low 20's.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 89 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1971

A Working Class Hero

'Workers Don't Want Money-Just Power'

By DON GLICKSTEIN
MDC Staff

"We're not engaged in some medieval fight", Bernadette Devlin explained to more than 2500 people at the Curry Hicks Cage yesterday. "We're involved in a world-wide struggle."

In a lecture sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program, Miss Devlin, a member of Parliament from Northern Ireland, related the history of recent conflicts in that country and clarified alleged untruths that "the democratic press" has reported.

A major misconception that Americans have, Miss Devlin said, was that the issues causing the disturbances in Northern Ireland were basically religious ones between the Protestants and Catholics. She said that the underlying problems concerned themselves with the working class, and with the "the kind of houses they have to live in, the kinds of lives they have to live", with high numbers of unemployed, a housing shortage, poverty, a welfare system, and low wages. The MP reiterated her position by citing examples of poor, working class Protestants and rich, middle class Catholics.

"Never once has a stick been thrown", she said, for Catholicism; the Movement in Northern Ireland was a socialist one, of, by and for the "working class".

Violence was another area that Miss Devlin delved into. "I've never heard so much about it until I came to America", she stated.

"Because I live in the working class", the twenty-three year old Devlin wittily, yet bitterly explained, "I've never seen anything else but violence, but it's not an undemocratic type of violence."

She then gave an example of the traditional, "democratic" type: "All the taxpayers of California buy guns, because President Nixon buys guns...You can rest assured that President Nixon will never be tried before a court for conspiracy...Who's going to stand trial for the deaths of working class children who die in the condition they die in?" She added, "What I'm trying to do is substitute peace."

The youngest member of Parliament, interrupted sporadically by applause, cheers of "right on", and clenched fists, described poverty in her country. Five percent of the British population controls eighty-five percent of all private wealth," according to Miss Devlin.

"We do all the work, and you own all the wealth," she said, but added, "We don't hate the five percent..We want our wealth back."

The third child in a family of six, Miss Devlin told of the working class' poverty. She said that the average worker labors 40 hours per week at the equivalent of one dollar an hour. In order to feed his household, the worker must put in 50 to 60 hours per week, British, American, and European industries contribute to the situation because of their low wages.

"There is no minimum wage law in Northern Ireland, according to Miss Devlin. Simplifying and understating, Bernadette Devlin wryly summarized, "We have this peculiar situation: they have it all, we want it all."

Arriving late from Bradley International Airport, Miss Devlin was unable to attend a coffee hour which had been moved from the small-sized Colonial Lounge to the Student Union Ballroom, in order to accomodate more than 200 people. She did hold a ten minute press conference, where she reemphasized her goals of economic, political, and social equality for all women and men.

"What we want", she said, "is an equal share."

At the press conference, Miss Devlin also explained that the money she earns from her current tour of American colleges and universities would be used to establish a "socialist research center" in Northern Ireland.

Before traveling to the University of Hartford for an evening speaking engagement, Miss Devlin predicted to the Cage audience that there would be no peace in Northern Ireland until the working class asserted its rights to self-defense, survival, and ownership. Speaking in the round, she concluded, "It's not money we want--it's the power that money produces".

SPEAKING AT THE CAGE yesterday afternoon, Bernadette Devlin said she never heard so much about violence until she visited America. She told her audience about the "undemocratic violence" she grew up with in her working class situation and how she has never seen anything else. (MDC photo by Ed Fenwick)

Candidate's Query: Regal Or Legal?

See page two

HE'S IN THE RUNNING-Jim LaMacchia is off and running; running up against opposition from the Winter Carni Committee on his write-in candidacy for Queen. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

On The Inside:

- Senate Pay On Referendum — See page three
- Plight Of The Freshman...II — See page three
- Trustees Ponder Coed Dorms — See page eight

DEL Speaker Suggests Better Energy Use

By STANLEY OLSON
MDC Staff

"Our economy is based on waste of energy rather than thrift." DEL speaker James Mackenzie told an audience of 50 at the Campus Center last night. MacKenzie suggested ways to make our use of energy more efficient, including solar heat in homes, recycling of metals, changes in the cost of electricity and the abolition of the Atomic Energy Commission.

JAMES MACKENZIE

The noted physicist, a former MIT professor and currently research associate with the Massachusetts Aubudon Society, said that the current goal of our society is unlimited, cheap electrical power - the result of both a rising GNP and an inevitable scarcity of fuels found in nature, like coal and gas.

But some source of power must be used to generate electricity - coal miners pay for cheap electricity with their lives, he said.

Explaining that the direction we are now taking is toward massive parks of nuclear power plants, he listed the drawbacks to this policy.

The problem of a nuclear accident at a power plant he called "a major issue" and said that the dumping of large amounts of nuclear wastes would also be required.

"But the limiting factor may be climatic changes due to the enormous heat we will be wasting," he continued. Even though means of producing nuclear and electrical power might be made more efficient, the great increase in the total amount of power needed will far outweigh this, the scientist said.

MacKenzie proposed changes in the cost-rates of electricity which would induce people to be more thrifty with the power they use - the new rates would be higher for most consumers but still insure that the poor are not denied the energy they require.

He cited the present low efficiency of many of our products, for example uninsulated homes, internal combustion engines and electric lamps.

Also he advocated solar power for heating houses, which is the one method of creating heat which does not increase the overall temperature of the atmosphere.

The recycling of metals would have two advantages, he said - first, these are scarce resources which we may be unable to replace and second, there is less waste of energy involved in re-using products than in making them over and over.

Finally, called for the abolition of the AEC, on the grounds that this exists only to promote the use of nuclear power. Instead he added, a National Energy Commission could be formed to plan for long-range energy needs and consider all sources of power and their consequences.

Carni Queen On Ice

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

An injunction to halt the Winter Carnival Queen Coronation is being sought this morning from the UMass General Court by an angry unofficial member of the Junior Class Executive Council. Rich Dinken is seeking this injunction for he feels the rights of write-in candidate Jim LaMacchia are being violated.

Russell Vierra of the Queen's Selection Committee has been quoted as saying that LaMacchia's write-in ballots would be declared invalid. According to Vierra, the race is a selection not an election and write-ins can be declared invalid. An off-the-record decision stating that no write-ins will be accepted was made by the Junior Class Executive Council according to Vierra and Junior Class President Julie Ierardi.

Write-in candidate LaMacchia said "I feel I was discriminated against on the basis of my sex in the interviews. I was considered interesting but not a serious candidate by the judges."

Junior Class President Julie Ierardi acknowledged the Executive Council ruling on write-ins but said the Council will be meeting sometime today to make a final decision on the validity of votes.

She also felt that LaMacchia "went through the same procedure as the other nominees" and had been given a fair shake by the judges.

The Queens Committee handled somewhere around fifty nominees according to Miss Ierardi from which the five nominees were picked. LaMacchia's score sheet contained average to better-than-average scores in all categories but "Beauty" where LaMacchia received two zeros, one abstention, and scores of eight and five.

Ierardi agreed in principle with the reasoning behind the abolishment of Winter Carnival Queen, but felt "there are people who do think it's relevant" and their voice should be represented.

The voting continues through tomorrow in the lobby of the Student Union. Voting procedures concerning write-ins, which are apparently in effect now, are that for the vote to be considered valid it must have an "X" beside the name.

Votes will be tabulated sometime between the close of voting tomorrow and the coronation planned for Saturday night at the UMass-URI Basketball game. A decision by the General Court concerning the injunction and by the Junior Class Executive Council concerning the validity of write-ins will be forthcoming.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. zip code 01002. Phones are 545 2550 (news), 545 0344 (sports), and 549 1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Heating, Ventilation Controlled By 'SDS'

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

Have you ever wondered how or who controls the temperature in your room or the buildings where you have classes? Or how the maintenance men know where to look when a heating or ventilation system breaks down? The Physical Plant's own version of the SDS is the key to it all.

The Supervisory Data System located in the main lobby of the Physical Plant serves as the control center for all environmental systems on campus. By merely pushing a couple of buttons, a controller can save thousands of dollars, many man-hours and unnecessary inconvenience and discomfort to countless people.

The present installation which has been six years in design and development has a potential of handling 250 buildings at 100,000 points. A point can be anything from a single chilled water temperature reading in an air conditioning system to a critical fire alarm pull station, intrusion alarm, or an elevator in distress.

The system works by means of a cable which originates with the central control panel and then enters the Power Plant. From then it loops its way from Thompson Hall to ROTC on to the new library and then to Bartlett. From there it proceeds to the Cage and will eventually jump to the Police Station and then Southwest. A similar loop covers the rest of campus including the new Northeast dorms on East Pleasant St.

Manned by a staff of two supervisors and eight operators who man the board in eight hour shifts, 24 hours a day - seven days a week, the Honeywell console was purchased at an original cost of $100,000. At the time of its installation the system was tied into Goodell library, Boyden Morrill Science IV and ROTC. Other buildings which have been added include Herter, the Campus Center, the Grad Research Center, Tobin Hall and the new library. Buildings which will be added include Whitmore, Fine Arts, Hasbrouck Labs and Cold Storage.

According to Peter Paradis, Chief Design Engineer the system is designed so that a scan may be made of the system in a building to determine the nature of the problem. It may be even further determined by use of a television screen which didsplays the layout of the building in question. From that point it is easy to determine the machine which is in need of service.

He went on to add that SDS attempts to have a say in the planning of new buildings so that the types of control included will be the types which will fit most easily into the system. He stated that in this function their recommendations often are dismissed by the Building Authority or Building Commission who have the final say over plans.

The system also includes a fire monitor with a direct line to the Amherst fire department and will upon completion of the new library contain a meteorological recording unit capable of recording outside temperature, relative humidity, barometric pressure, wind velocity, and direction and rainfall. Also slated for future additions to the system are a hot-line to the campus police station and civil defense radio frequencies.

Stoneham Agrees To Label Non-UFW Lettuce

By STANLEY OLSEN
MDC STAFF

Food Services Director Joel Stoneham said yesterday, "it shouldn't be a problem" for UMass to boycott lettuce produced by the two largest growers opposed by Cesar Chevez's United Farm Workers.

Stoneham was responding to Jack Clark of the Lettuce Boycott Committee, a student group, at a meeting of the Student Senate Food Services Subcommittee. Clark told the meeting that a thousand signatures have been gathered on a petition asking University Food Services to support the nationwide boycott.

Although many non-UFW lettuce growers have signed contracts with the Teamsters' Union, the boycott is directed not against the Teamsters but against Bud Antle and Bruce Church, two large California lettuce growers who are actively fighting the UFW, Clark emphasized. "Bud Antle had Chavez thrown in jail," he added. The boycott applies only to the two growers and their brands, which include BUD, RICK, ANCO, RED COACH and LUCKY.

Stoneham explained that the lettuce served in the UMass dining commons is bought weekly through a system of open bids-the buyers choose the best offer of price and quality. UFW lettuce is often unavailable in this area, he added, but it will be selected whenever prices permit.

He said he did not know of any Bud Antle or Bruce Church lettuce served in recent months and that these products could most likely be avoided without prohibitive cost. He assured the Committee that if these brands were bought, they would be labelled on the serving line as lettuce opposed by the boycott.

Comparing the campus response to the petition with the support of last year's UFW grape strike, Clark said student response so far has been "very good."

A meeting of the Lettuce Boycott Committee has been announced for tonight in CC 164 at 7 p.m., open to all students.

In new screen splendor...
The most magnificent picture ever!
DAVID O. SELZNICK'S PRODUCTION OF MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"

WINTER CARNI '71
WINTER CARNI '71
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
STARRING
CLARK GABLE
VIVIEN LEIGH
LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
A SELZNICK INTERNATIONAL PICTURE · VICTOR FLEMING · SIDNEY HOWARD
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER INC. · STEREOPHONIC SOUND · METROCOLOR
FEB. 18 — 5 & 9 p.m.
FEB. 19 — 11 a.m., 3 & 8 p.m.
FEB. 20 — 2 p.m.
FEB. 21 — 2 p.m.
S. U. BALLROOM
75¢

Trustees Shaler, Elters, Chandler, and Troy (right to left) listen to discussion of the Freshmen living in Co-ed dorm issue. They finally decided to defer the question to the March Trustee Meeting. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Student Life Subcommittee Defers Co-Ed Dorm Decision

By ANN GURNEII
MDC Staff

At a meeting of the Trustees' Student life Subcommittee held yesterday at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Chairwoman Caroline Roland urged the Board to form "a general policy of student life, instead of becoming mired in specifics, as we have been in the past."

Most of the discussion centered around the question of allowing freshmen to reside in coed dorms. Also discussed were the definitive "personalities" established in men's dorms, the improvements in Security since the commencement of the Student Security program, and the overall improvements in life styles made available to students of the University over the past ten years.

Committee Chairwoman Roland opened the meeting with the remark,

"I feel responsible for pointing the Trustees in the wrong direction on the coed dorm issue." "Instead of looking at them as a new life style for students, we looked at them from the narrow perspective of their simply being coed."

At this point Mrs. Roland turned the floor over to Dr. Wood for comment.

"There are two ways to view the issue of coed living," said Wood. "First, as a campus matter, one of clear interest to University policy and the expression of University outlooks as a whole; and secondly, as a procedure of the Administration, which is sensitive to the desire of the Trustees to be informed of University policies."

At this point, Chairwoman Roland announced that she would not be present for the Trustees' meeting next week and added, "We should all look to the March meeting of the Board, rather than the February meeting, for policies to be formed on student life. There should be less pressure on the Board for quick decisions."

The meeting then passed to reports by Vice Chancellor Bromery and Dean Field on living styles of the University as far as ten years back, and on how conditions and attitudes had changed since then.

Dick Polumba gave a report on coed dorms as a part of the life style of this University. This report raised quite a furor of debate among the Trustees and the other interested parties present.

At one point, Dean of Off-Campus Women, Helen Curtis, presented to the Board a memorandum compiled by herself from conversations and interviews which stated fifteen different reasons for keeping freshmen out of coed dorms. The resourcefulness of this bit of research provided fuel for the flames of debate and kept the discussion going strong for a good twenty minutes.

It was decided that no action would be taken on the coed dorm issue till the March meeting of the full Board of Trustees. At this junction in the discussion, the meeting was adjourned.

Senate Salary Issue On Referendum

By PAT KING
MDC Staff

The bill concerning the payment of Student Senate officers occupied much of the business of the Senate at last night's meeting.

Enough signatures have been gathered on petitions to put the question up on a referendum to the student body. There was also a debate as to whether two other questions should be put on the ballot. The questions are:

1. Do you favor some form of monetary compensation for Senate officers?

2. Do you favor some other form of compensation, such as academic credit?

Senator Ladd then tried to strike the word "Senate" from the questions and add after the word "officers" the phrase "of student-funded full-time organizations." This was defeated and the referendum question was committed to SGA for a week.

In other Senate action a motion to reconsider the allotment of $576 for the publication of the Conciliatory and Judicial Act in the Collegian was defeated. This act is the basis for the new judiciary system. Budgets were also discussed, and most were committed to be considered with the entire budget.

SITTING BACK--This one senator, at least seems to be fairly relaxed as he listens to a point being made at last night's Student Senate meeting. (MDC Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU in the Spring
EUROPE in the Summer
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m.-5p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family —

At Northampton Volkswagen

70 Pontiac, Yellow	2995.00
68 Pontiac Lemans, White	1595.00
68 Opel Wagon, Blue	1695.00
68 Ford Mustang, Blue	1395.00
68 Austin Healey, Yellow	1695.00
68 Buick Skylark, Blue	1595.00
68 Renault, White	1095.00
68 Chevy Belaire, Blue	1295.00
68 Ford T-Bird, White	2695.00
67 Fiat 850, Red	995.00
67 Ford Wagon, White	1495.00
66 Ford T-Bird, Blue	895.00
66 Rambler American, Green	695.00
66 Chrysler, Green	995.00
65 Pontiac Grand Prix, Green	795.00
65 Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65 Ford LTD, White	795.00
61 Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
61 Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63 Mercury Comet, Maroon	395.00
67 Ford Wagon, Blue	1295.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From
Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
534-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5)
Northampton
Open Eves till 9

FEMME FETALE
if the five finalists don't have it, then no one does.
VOTE TODAY
Winter Carni Queen
Student Union Lobby
winter carni 1971

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Minutes from you via new RT.91 Expressway CHARGE TICKETS
master charge
Showcase Cinema I•II•III
RT.5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.
PARK FREE
ROCKER LOUNGE COMFORT
SCHOOL GROUP RATES call 733-5131
3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS' THE WILD COUNTRY TECHNICOLOR G
Wed. - Sun 2 - 4:30 7:00 - 9:30 Mon. & Tues 2 - 7 - 9:00
PLUS Bongo
2 THE PICTURE EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT
LOVE STORY by ERICH SEGAL
Cont. Daily at 2:00, 3:45, 5:30 7:30, 9:40 GP
ALI MacGRAW-RYAN O'NEAL
1 DOCTORS' WIVES R
Wed. - Sun 1:30 - 3:25 - 5:20 7:20 - 9:15 Mon. & Tues 2 - 7:00 - 9:00
GIFT CERTIFICATE FOR YOUR VALENTINE

In The Nation And The World

N. Vietnamese Attack Near Khe Sanh

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese troops attacked an American position in rocky hills northeast of Khe Sanh and rain and low clouds today prevented U.S. helicopters from flying in reinforcements.

At last report at dusk, the American troops were still holding out after calling in artillery close to their own positions to keep back a North Vietnamese force of 200 or more surrounding the U.S. position.

There was no indication whether the main North Vietnamese force was still surrounding the position or whether it had faded in the face of artillery and air strikes into rocky hillsides and thick jungle undergrowth in terrain broken by many ravines, streams and rapids.

An Army spokesman at Quang Tri said contact had broken off at midnight, but Air Force spokesmen said sporadic contact continued after that. The Air Force spokesmen said bombing missions were flown throughout the day in support of the position.

First reports said more than a half dozen U.S. troops had been wounded.

The position under attack is located near the Rockpile, half a mile southeast of an artillery base named Scotch and 10 miles northeast of the Khe Sanh combat base. The American troops are part of 9,000 U.S. force acting as a blocking force for the South Vietnamese operation in neighboring Laos.

Two earlier attacks on U.S. positions around Scotch killed six Americans and wounded seven.

An Army UH1 helicopter on a supply mission a mile southwest of the Rockpile was shot down and crash-landed, but the crew escaped.

Military sources said the United States has stepped up reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam slightly but no significant enemy supply movement southward has been detected.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command announced attacks on antiaircraft missile - SAM - sites inside North Vietnam for the third successive day with unknown results.

Two U.S. Navy fighter-bombers fired four strike missiles Tuesday at two North Vietnamese positions 119 miles north of the demilitarized zone after they threatened an unarmed reconnaissance plane, the command said.

Other sources said one additional reconnaissance flight per day is being flown over North Vietnam. While this is a small number, it was pointed out that reconnaissance jets can cover huge areas on one photo-taking run.

The sources said U.S. reconnaissance planes have been flying 25 to 40 missions per day over South and North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. But they would not say how many are flying over the north daily.

The additional flight over North Vietnam was added about the time U.S. and South Vietnamese troops started massing in the northwest corner of South Vietnam for the South Vietnamese push into Laos on Feb. 8.

"We just wanted to take a good hard look and see if there was any increase in their logistics effort or whether they were moving any MIGs southward," said one source. "We wanted to make sure our information was more up to date all the time. We wanted to reduce the time between the flights.

"On their logistics, we don't see any big significant change. They haven't moved any MIGs southward. They're still in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas."

The attack on the SAM site near the coastal city of Vinh was the 14th so-called protective reaction strike this year on North Vietnamese missile sites, but only the second occasioned by a threat to a reconnaissance plane. The other 12 have been against sites on the other side of North Vietnam, along the Laotian border, and those sites were attacked to protect B52s bombing the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Fighting increased in the 10-day-old operation in Laos. South Vietnamese forces fought three battles before dawn Wednesday and withstood a 100-round mortar barrage and ground assault on one of their fire bases.

Headquarters said 43 North Vietnamese troops were killed in the three clashes and that 30 South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded, but none was killed.

North Vietnamese forces also shelled two positions of American troops acting as a blocking force northeast of Khe Sanh on the Vietnamese side of the border. Thirteen Americans were wounded, the U.S. Command said.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the spearhead of its 11,000-man force in Laos had advanced another mile westward and is now 15 miles from the Vietnamese border. Some reconnaissance elements have been reported 25 miles inside Laos, around Sepone.

The U.S. Command says there are no American ground combat troops or advisers in Laos, but 11 Americans have been killed, three are missing and eight have been wounded in air support operations across the border.

The U.S. Command announced that a big Army CH47 Chinook helicopter crashed and was destroyed Monday night.

U.S. CHOPPER DOWNED-South Vietnamese troops look inside U.S. Army Medivac helicopter that was shot down Monday near Snuol, Cambodia, while coming in to pickup South Vietnamese wounded. Pilot was killed and co-pilot was wounded.

Egypt Agrees To UN Plan If Israel Does Likewise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt has informed U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring that it will pledge compliance with the Security Council's 1967 resolution on the Middle East if Israel does likewise, Cairo's authoritative newspaper Al Ahram reported today.

The reply to last week's peace initiative by Jarring urged him to obtain from Israel a pledge to "discharge the obligations contained in the resolution," Al Ahram said. It listed them as Israeli withdrawal from all territory occupied in the 1967 war, "a just solution to the Palestinian problem" and a formal declaration renouncing the use of force, territorial occupation and expansionism.

The note agreed to provide Jarring a declaration of Egypt's intentions and promised a pledge "to uphold responsibilities stemming from the execution of the resolution" if the promise were obtained from Israel, according to the semiofficial newspaper.

Jarring's proposals asked for declarations of intent from Israel, Egypt and Jordan, holding indirect peace talks via him at the United Nations in New York, and asked their views on how to bring peace to the region. It also gave the Swedish diplomat's ideas on a satisfactory settlement, which is understood to include Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal and the Sinai peninsula and stationing of U.N. soldiers at Sharm el Sheikh, at the foot of the Sinai, to safeguard Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba and the Strait of Tiran.

Passed on Nov. 22, 1967, five months after the six-day war, the Security Council resolution provides for Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist within "secure and recognized boundaries;" an end to Arab belligerence; Israeli navigation rights in the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez canal.

Commuters
JACK SCHMELZER
for Student Senate.
He's concerned.

Industrial Production Up

Economy Slowly Moves Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy inched ahead sluggishly last month, still not responding to President Nixon's ambitious expansion policies, a new government report shows.

Industrial production, one of the first significant economic indicators reported this year advanced by seven-tenths of 1 per cent in January, the Federal Reserve Board said Tuesday.

At any other time, the gain might have been significant. But, the board said, factory output is still catching up from the knockout blow of last fall's General Motors' strike.

Excluding the unseasonably high 18 per cent increase in auto production, output of the nation's factories showed continuing slack, with declines in production of television sets and other applicances, industrial, commercial and defense equipment and commercial aircraft.

A spokesman for Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said the production index for January "is a good figure. It doesn't set the world on fire, but it's a good steady figure."

He said the most encouraging signs are the auto production snapback and stepup in steel output, reflecting industry stockpiling in anticipation of a strike later this year.

"Hopefully, these will spread into other areas," he said.

The administration is looking for a dramatic jump in output in March and April to realize its prediction of an upturn in the economy.

After pursuing tight fiscal and monetary policies in fighting inflation last year, Nixon has ordered heavier federal spending combined with easier money policies from the Federal Reserve, to expand the economy this year.

His primary goal now is to tackle unemployment, currently at 6 per cent. Nixon has predicted a 9 percent leap in economic activity this year as measured by the Gross National Product.

The expansionary fiscal policy calls for back-to-back deficits totaling more than $30 billion this fiscal year and next. The administration is asking Congress to approve a near-record increase of about $40 billion in the national debt limit to make the heavier spending possible.

The January industrial production index indicated the administration has a long way to go before reaching the super-fast pace Nixon has laid out for 1971.

The index climbed to 165.1 per cent of the 1957-59 average, 2 per cent below the level prior to the auto strike and still 5.4 per cent under the peak reached in July 1969, when the economy was in high gear.

The Federal Reserve System supplied evidence Tuesday it is ready to assist the President in his goal of expansion.

The system's Open Market Committee, managers of the government's $60-billion-plus portfolio of securities, said it will encourage money growth exceeding 5 per cent in the weeks ahead.

The exact figure was not disclosed. The committee said analysis by its staff indicates the money supply and bank credit will show "somewhat faster growth" in the first quarter of the year. Money stock grew by 5 per cent and bank credit by 9 per cent in the last three months of 1970.

Nixon's economic advisers say a 6 per cent growth in the money supply will be needed to reach the administration's goal of an $88-billion increase in out-put of goods and services in 1971.

Hampden Jail Grievances To Be Reviewed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass (AP) - Hampden County commissioners, handed a list of complaints ranging from poor food to drafty cells, have agreed to meet again with a committee of county jail inmates but set no date.

More meetings with the commissioners were one of the points in the list of grievances submitted Tuesday in the wake of a jail disturbance Sunday morning in which damage estimated at $20,000 was done during a three-hour period.

Inmates destroyed toilets, burned bedclothing and broke windows, officials said.

Chairman William Stapleton of the county commissioner said the jail was insured against damage.

Humphrey ● Gregory ● Devlin ● Gofman ● Blanco
DuBois ● Russel ● Hauston ● Packwood ● Reischauer
Bolling ● Cameja ● Cox ● Wolff ● Houghton Wiley. and many, many more have been a part of the Distinguished Visitors Program
You can be a part of all this
Join DVP
Applications available in the RSO Office

NEW YORK-HOLDUP ENDS IN DEATH FOR SUSPECT-The body of a man identified as Michael Barnes is sprawled on floor of a New York City supermarket as police question clerk in background. Police said that Barnes was one of two bandits who attempted to rob the store. He was shot to death, police said, by an off duty New Rochelle policeman who came to the supermarket to see his father, the store's manager.

Hospital Charges Rise, Expect $110 Per Day By 73

NEW YORK (AP)—The national average cost of maintaining a hospital patient for one day rose from $9.50 in 1946 to more than $81 last year, is expected to reach $93 this year and to top $105 in 1972 and $110 in 1973.

Those are averages. Costs in excess of $100 a day already are reported in some hospitals, pricing medical care beyond the reach of millions. And some of the factors responsible for past increases seem to defy correction.

Making the picture more grim, there is not only a shortage of doctors but a maldistribution as well, and the same may be said of medical care. Some facilities and services are duplicated while others are unavailable.

Moreover, diabolical ingredients in the present formula for medical services seem to frustrate the efforts of cost cutters.

Unlike industry, for example, hospitals very infrequently obtain lower costs by employing new machinery. The machine might improve health, but it generally will require the services of new, highly trained personnel.

Another example: Health insurance plans often encourage unnecessary hospital stays by specifying that work paid for must be done while the individual is a bed patient rather than an outpatient.

And consider how wasteful it is that the entire emphasis is on illness rather than health, on correction rather then prevention, on remedies for ailments that might have been avoided through recipes for health.

So bleak is the picture that one is impelled to believe that the future can only be brighter. Perhaps so. At least one man who believes the corner has been turned is Dr. Edwin Crosby, head of the American Hospital Association.

"I'm an optimist," said Crosby as he described "Ameriplan," a proposal by the association for restructuring the "delivery" and financing of health services, mainly through establishment of health care corporations.

Such units would take responsibility for the health of individuals living in specified areas, providing them with five essentials: health maintenance, primary care, specialty care, restorative care and custodial care.

Although the functions of such corporations are still related in broad terms they would, in general, be able to control duplication of services in an area, route patients to correct facilities, coordinate purchasing, and install cost-cutting incentives.

Work would be contracted out to doctors and institutions with an eye not only for the best care but the greatest efficiency. The patient's needs and the area's facilities would be coordinated.

No such corporations now exist, and in fact a federal law would be required before they ever became a reality. As invisioned, medical schools, hospitals, insurance companies or others involved in medical care would develop the corporations, with financing coming as before from fees, insurance programs and government aid.

Congress Returns To Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress returned to work today after a five-day recess, short on business and long on talk.

For the Senate, the agenda read filibuster, as it has since the 92nd Congress convened.

Neither Senate nor House has any significant legislation ready for action. The House Ways and Means Committee scheduled a hearing today on increasing the national debt ceiling from $395 billion to $435 billion. That may be the first major measure to reach the floor.

The Senate remains snarled in the dispute over efforts to make ending filibusters easier.

Foes of the rules change used the filibuster itself to block a change endorsed by a Senate majority, and as a result there has been marathon talk for nearly three weeks.

The first test of voting strength in the rules battle comes Thursday, with a roll call on a petition to cut off the filibuster led by Southern conservatives.

Nobody, including the 38 sponsors of that petition, expects it to succeed. But Sen. Mike Mansfield, the majority leader and a proponent of the rules change, said there will be continued attempts to limit the debate, and one of them may gain the two-thirds vote necessary to stop the talk.

According To New Yorker

Panther Genocide Charges Unfounded

NEW YORK (AP)—Widely reported charges that police have murdered 28 Black Panthers in a national scheme to "commit genocide" are not supported by the ascertainable facts, according to a New Yorker magazine article.

Edward J. Epstein, the author who investigated the charges, says the news media generally failed to check the "genocide" allegations made by Charles R. Garry, chief counsel and spokesman for the Black Panther party.

"Even one victim of deliberate police murder would be too many, but if twenty-eight Panthers had been murdered by the police in two years, as Garry claimed and many publications reported, it might indeed represent a pattern of systematic destruction," Epstein wrote.

He concluded from his own investigation that "there are two cases in which Black Panthers were killed by policemen whose lives were not being directly threatened by those men." The two victims were Bobby Hutton in Oakland, Calif., and Fred Hampton in Chicago, he said.

Garry made his charges in commenting to newsmen on the deaths of Hampton and Mark Clark who were killed when Chicago police raided the Black Panther headquarters in that city on Dec. 4, 1969. Garry was quoted as saying Hampton and Clark were "in fact the 27th and 28th Panthers murdered by the police" and that the deaths and raids were "part and package of a national scheme by various agencies of the government to destroy and commit genocide upon members of the Black Panther Party."

Epstein said that Garry explained to him in September 1970 that he chose the figure 28 "because that 'seemed to be a safe number;' he added that he believed 'the actual number of Panthers murdered by the police is many times that figure'."

But when asked for a list of the victims, Epstein wrote, Garry could supply only 20 names including 19 Panthers. Of these, he reported, only 10 cases involved police officers.

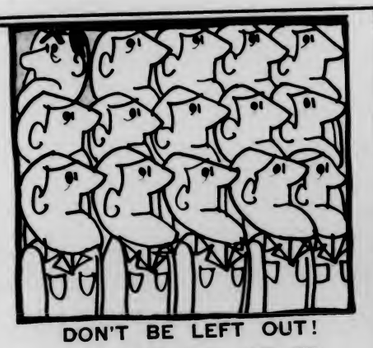
In New Haven, where he is defending Panther leader Bobby Seale on murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges, Garry said Tuesday that using an inflated figure was justified if it called attention to "even one death" of a Panther slain by police without good cause.

Epstein, reached at his Cambridge, Mass., home, commented: "I think a lawyer has some license to exaggerate. In a sense it's the press that should be suspect of Garry. I don't think it's his place to be historically accurate."

In his article, Epstein discounted Clark's death in Chicago as evidence of genocide because the Panther confronted policemen with a shotgun, which Clark had previously fired, according to federal grand jury testimony.

Ear Piercing Dangerous

BOSTON (SP) - Two Boston doctors say a study of the practice of piercing ears shows it can be dangerous, even fatal.



Dr. Frederick H. Lovejoy, chief resident at Children's Hospital, and Dr. David H. Smith, chief of the facility's division of infectious diseases, studied ear piercing under a federal grant.

They said girls and women who pierce their ears at home could cause infections that affect the blood, liver and bones.

Both recommended consultation with a family physician whenever ear piercing is being done and a two week close watch on the ear piercing after it occurs.

Ivory Billiard Room
23 Pleasant St.
Northampton
11 - 4½x9 TABLES
Est. 50 years
2nd floor over Fabric World

winter carni '71
Yes, Rosebud, there is a CARNIVAL on the concourse of the campus center
winter carni
carni
feb. 19 3—12 p.m.
feb. 20 11 a.m.—12 p.m.
• with Pink Cotton Candy!

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
APPOINTMENTS STILL LEFT FOR
SENIOR PORTRAITS, INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

ATTENTION:
Former N.E.F.T.Y. and U.S.Y. Members and all interested persons
EXODUS
S.U. BALLROOM — 7:00, 10:00 P.M.
SUNDAY, FEB. 21
8:30 P.M. - 12:30 A.M. Israeli Dancing & Singing
Cape Cod Lounge Refreshments
Sponsored by R.A.F.I.

CHICAGO—FRIDGID FAIRYLAND—A stroller ambles through a forest of ice-covered trees and shrubs in Lincoln Park along Chicago's Lake Michigan shoreline Monday. Ice formations are result of high waves meeting the shore and tossing fine spray high into the air to coat the vegetation.

Off-Track Betting New Revenue To Bring

BOSTON (AP) - Estimates of what off track betting could mean to Massachusetts in terms of additional state revenue ranged from $100 million to $20 million Tuesday at a hearing before the legislature's joint Committee on Government Regulations.

"Off track betting is a realistic means of obtaining needed revenue," Mayor Kevin H. White said in testimony before the committee.

He said his estimate of $100 million is a conservative estimate, based on studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

A bill sponsored by White would create a three-member off track wagering agency, which would set up betting parlors in communities which adopt the act.

White's plan was opposed by Reps. Robert J. McGinn, D-Westfield, and James A. Adams, R-Westfield, who have jointly sponsored a bill which would authorize race tracks to establish betting parlors.

Tote boards at the parlors would be tied in with those at the race tracks to facilitate the computation of odds and payments.

"My bill provides that off track betting would be an extension of wagering at the tracks," McGinn said. "The bettor would place his bet under the same conditions as exist at the track, the wagers being recorded on the track totalizator."

McGinn predicted that his bill would "double the revenue we now get from racing revenues," estimating that the state's take presently is around $20 million.

Further opposition to White's bill was expressed by Clarence F. king, legislative counsel for the Wonderland dog track in Revere, who noted that the bill is based on the off-track betting law in New York.

"Time and again, the New York off-track betting agency has announced it would open for business," King said, "but it hasn't gotten ott the ground and is $15 million in the hole already."

King joined Rep. Steve T Chmura, D-Ludlow, Peter Norton of the Massasoit Racing Association and Robert Silca of the Bay State Harness and Horse Breeding Association in support of the McGinn-Adams bill.

Opposition to all bills on the subject was voiced by John Bassett, representing the Massachusetts Council of Churches, who suggested that the committee favor a resolve for a study of the subject.

Every extension of legalized gambling, he said, has meant an increase in illegal gambling.

A bill, meanwhile, which would authorize the state to take over the financially plagued Suffolk Downs race track was favored by Rep. Williams Q. MacLean Jr., D-Fairhaven, House chairman of the committee.

"When private industry fails, public agencies must step in," said MacLean, noting that Suffolk Downs netted some $11 million last year yet is still in the hole.

Draft Counselor's Corner

If You Choose Resistance

By GILBERT J. SALK
MDC Staff

There are a lot of people into draft resistance these days. It's generally a heavy trip, but I have nothing but admiration for those who make an informed, well thought-out decision to resist. But I feel that it is essential that those considering resistance understand all of the ramifications of such a choice.

The first reason for caution is the legal penalties. Failure to comply with Selective Service regulations carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. Although fines are rarely levied and the average sentence is about 3 1/2 years, you should probably make your decision based on the maximum possible penalty.

If you are considering resistance, it is probably a good idea to talk to some people who have already gone the resistance route so you can get some first-hand information about what goes down. If your trip is to go underground, some advice on what can get you busted or otherwise blow you, before you commit yourself, can help immeasurably.

Jail remains a very real possibility for resisters, and there are sources of information about what that trip is like. Jail is never a comfortable place to be, but if your head is really together about why you're there, it might be a little easier to take. (That's conjecture, by the way. So far, I've managed to avoid it). Two good books on the jail experience for draft resisters are available. One is We Won't Go by Alice Lynd. It's a compilation of writings by resisters in jail who feel they made the right choice in acting on their consciences and refusing to cooperate with a system they view as being immoral, coercive, and dehumanizing. The other is In The Service of Their Country. Written by a psychoanalyst who interviewed resisters in prison, the book shows more of what a bummer jail can be. The resisters seem less sure that they did the right thing, and considerably more uncomfortable with their jail experience. The difference seems to be in the reasons for resistance, the depth of thought that went into the decision, and the expected results of the action.

I would strongly urge that those considering some form of non-cooperation read both books.

My own feeling is that resistance as a way of avoiding the draft, with no other rationale, is a poor method to use. In the first place, the risks and discomfort are too high. Being underground places strong restrictions on your lifestyle for a period longer than the restrictions placed by the Army or the less real restrictions placed by alternative service. A jail sentence can keep you from ever getting some kind of jobs. Close friends and family may be watched by the Feds. All in all, it's a hassle.

Resistance as an expression of individual conscience is a different matter, however, because the penalties assume a less important role. It is the making of the statement of conscience which is the vital factor. Put simply, get your head together first, then resist if that's your thing.

Peace.

Questions to this column should be addressed to Gilbert J. Salk, c/o Draft Counseling Services RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002

Free personal draft counseling available. Draft Counseling Services, 418E Student Union 2nd floor

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES

events

BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

THURS. - SAT., FEB. 18 - 20 — 8 P.M.

OPEN THEATRE ENSEMBLE

Joseph Chaikin & Roberta Sklar, Directors

2 performances of acclaimed "TERMINAL"
1 performance of New Work in Progress
Daily Workshops, Seminars, Lecture Demonstration and Master Classes

FRI. - SAT., FEB. 26 - 27 — 8 P.M.

GARY BURTON QUARTET

2 evening performances plus Seminar and Jazz Workshop

For complete ticket information:
Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall,
Telephone 545-0202
(or Bowker one hour before event)

Follow Monday Schedule Friday

PLANNING ON GRADUATING?

Don't leave without having your INDEX PORTRAIT taken . . . Sign up now in the Index Office.

GUNS and BUTTER Winter Carni

FEATHERBED ORT 71

ballons
light show
Saturday night till Sunday morn
if you can make it
8½ P.M. - 4 A.M.
CC Auditorium

and don't forget
WINTER OLYMPICS
Saturday,
12:30,
pond area

Winter Carni 71

You are working on your snow sculptures this weekend, aren't you?

Snow Sculpture judging
Saturday morning at 10

Prizes for: 1) Best all around
2) Unusuality
3) Best theme
4) Best design
5) Largest

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO EMERGENCY REPAIRS
CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS
MATCHLESS SELECTION OF FASHION RIGHT FRAMES
WIRE FRAMES LOTS!

Amherst Optical Shoppe
105 North Pleasant St., Amherst
Tel. 256-6191

MOBE Leader Answers Questions On Present Anti-War Movement

Don Gurewitz, national executive secretary of the Student Mobilization Committee, was on campus Tuesday night to speak to the local SMC. (While the Collegian was unable for lack of staff to cover the speech the following interview was obtained from Bob Northshield)

How would you describe the state of the Anti-War Movement?

The developing escalation is clearly beginning to end the illusion that the Nixon administration has been trying to create that the War is winding down. There is a deep suspicion among people generally that there is no end to the War in sight. We think this means that there is another explosion of Anti-War sentiment developing and there are explosive factors this time which go beyond the student movement. Specifically these additional explosive factors are the G.I.s, Third World people, and working people generally.

Already GI.s are withdrawing themselves from the War in South East Asia. There has been the growth of what the G.I.s call "fragging" of officers. The explosiveness of the G. I. Anti-War sentiment will mean massive resistence by G.I.s the next time Nixon tries to use them against the Vietnamese people.

Anti-War feeling is very high among Third World people--Blacks, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, and Native Americans. We think this Anti-War feeling can be mobilized as demonstrated by the Chican Moratorium which brought 40,000 Chicanos into the streets demonstrating against the racist nature of the War. Last month there was a Black Moratorium demonstration in California which mobilized hundreds of Blacks students at Riverside College. Also the April 24th March on Washington and San Francisco has more Third World support from groups like the Cairo Black United Front than any similar demonstration in the past.

The May Student strike showed the powerful mass anti-War mobilizations are not simply the product of what anti-War activity is taking place on the surface but are the product of deep going moods in the general population which explode onto the surface in the face of developments in the War itself. To judge the Anti-War Movement solely from the surface activity is to make the mistake the National Moratorium Committee made in going out of business three weeks before the May strike which was of course the largest outburst of Anti-War activity in the nation's history.

We think there is a deep going mood against the War which will indeed explode into the surface as the War escalates.

You mentioned April 24th, Could you tell us more about it?

The demonstrations on April 24th in Washington and Sass. Institute will be a massive answer to Nixon's escalations. We think the major effort of the Student Movement is to win other sectors of society--G.I.s, Blacks, workers--to the Anti-War Movement. All these projects will culminate on April 24.

There is a national student anti-War conference in Washington this weekend. Could you tell us something about that?

The conference will try to pull the Movement back together and pull the Moratorium spirit back into the Movement and make plans to extend that spirit into the barracks, the factories, and the communities of the country.

Can Anyone attend the conference?

Absolutely. We encourage and want every anti-War activists to come to the conference. It will be at Catholic University starting on Friday February 29 and going through to Sunday. I'm sure the local SMC will be happy to supply anyone with more details and information and transportation. Housing will be free and food cheap.

WESTLAND, Mich.-WHEELS TO KNOWLEDGE--Educator Burt Bradley of Westland, Mich., and his three daughters prepare to hit the road in their quest for knowledge. Bradley, who has a doctorate in higher education, is dissatisfied with traditional classroom teaching and has planned a seven-month odyssey throughout North America for his children as a kind of experimental school. Bradley, who is divorced, is holding his daughter Sandra, 7, and is resting his hand on Sheryl, 9. The third daughter, Susanne, 11, is holding the family pooch.

Logs License Hearing

Selectmen have been notified that a public hearing on their denial of a beer and wine license to Roy Rosenblatt, doing business as The Logs in North Pleasant St., will be held March 1 at 3 in the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission office in Boston.

Selectmen have set Feb. 16 at 9:30 for a public hearing on the application to transfer the common victualer license of Rosenblatt to Alfred M. Boyajian and Thomas C. Currier, who plan to change the name to The Quicksilver denim bells

$5
superficial smile
103 N. Pleasant St. open 10-5

THURSDAY NITE

AT THE

CHEQUERS

SEE

JACK VERONESI

and friends

9:30 til close

COME IN AND DANCE!!!

WINTER CARNI

Fri., Feb. 19
10 p.m. - 2 a.m.

Featuring:
LITTLE LATIN LARRY and his LOOPIE LOVIES
JACK VERONESI & FRIENDS

75c Straight — or — 50c with White Socks

We guarantee a little something for everyone.

WINTER CARNI SALE
at the
UNIVERSITY STORE

Friday Night - 6–9 p.m. ONLY
All pre-recorded 8 track tapes and cassettes
50% off list prices
Friday Store Hours – 8:45 a.m. – 9:00 p.m.
Sale – 6:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m. ONLY

All day Saturday –- 10:00 a.m.–9:00 p.m.
All records 33% off list prices

All day Friday and Saturday – Red Tag Sale Items
20–50% off
Jackets, glassware, and ceramics
Reversible T-Shirts
Novelties

Watch for our booth on the main concourse of the Campus Center!

MDC Close-up

The Plight Of The Freshman...II

Freshmen In Co-ed Dorms?

To a freshman, the prospects of living in a residence hall are at once exciting and frightening. For to him the residence hall with its many types of people and lifestyles, its noise and its interpersonal conflicts and relationships, while seemingly inviting as a place to call home can and often is a source of problems and concern for a major portion of the freshman year.

In many cases a freshman's entrance into a residence hall is the first real experience of living away from home amongst complete strangers. It is for some the first time they have been faced with the prospect of living in and sharing the same small room with one or sometimes even two people who are not of the same family and who therefore pose different and sometimes difficult problems of coexistence. They are also beset with the problems of adjusting to rules governing open house and security as well as learning to become considerate of and concerned for the rights of others.

Many of these problems however can be eliminated or at least alleviated by the presence of upper classmen in the dorm particularly those who serve as counselors. Unfortunately with the trend toward off campus and Greek living dorms are becoming mereasingly composed by as much as 65 per cent freshman while the normal satisfactory level i. about 35 per cent.

In the absence of upperclassmen who according to Dean of Students William Field serve as examples, guides and influences upon the freshman, the freshman are faced with the added problem of governing their own residence hall. Because of the lack of the stabalizing force which the upperclassmen provide there is often widespread distruction ruin and inadequate security.

It is generally felt by all concerned that the upperclass dorm counselors do exert a certain amount of influence over the freshman. Often the counselor is the first person whom a freshman can and will turn to if he has a problem. The freshman's success in solving his problem is therefore often dependent upon the counselor's availability as well as interest and ability.

Besides this there is also the obvious need for freshman to have the aid and insight which upperclassmen can provide in the areas of social activities and extra-curricular affairs.

Widespread recognition of these problems by students, administration and faculty alike has therefore resulted in the current attempt to gain Board of Trustees approval for freshman to coed dorms as these dorms such as Greenough and Butterfield are seen as having attracted some of the on-campus upperclassmen who would otherwise have remained in what are now the predominantly freshman dorms.

Much of the controversy surrounding this issue centers upon the desirability of having freshman in coed dorms and upon the effect which a coed living situation would have upon the freshmen.

In commenting upon this, Dean Field noted that when Greenough filed its petition to become coeducational in April 1969, freshman residency was not included in the proposal not because they (the residents of Greenough) did not feel it was desirable to have freshman in the dorm. Rather it was their feeling that they might gain quicker approval from parents administration and the Board of Trustees if the stipulation was made that those under 21 would require parental permission and that freshman were not to be allowed to live in the dorm.

This special MDC close-up on Freshman represents the efforts of MDC Staffers Pat King, Kerry Kelley with Linda Balicki acting as special editor. See tomorrow's Collegian for Part III.

In the published rationale backing the unanimously Student Senate endorsed proposal by the then Student Senator Rich Verrochi residents of Greenough put forth the claim that a coed dorm would be beneficial socially and academically.

According to an article appearing in the April 29, 1969 edition of the Daily Collegian the students maintained that "psychological benefits will result from the interaction of the sexes in one dorm...in the present state individuals act out the dual role of psuedo-personalities because of the difference in dorm life and integrated situations. By eliminating the necessity of the dual role individuals would be more certain of themselves and more comfortable with members of the opposite sex."

Furthermore, the students then maintained that "academically

Waterfights in Coed dorms such as the one above supposedly would hurt the adjustment of Freshmen to college life. Or would it help?

more viewpoints will be available for residents and coed living would ease the study problems which present open house regulations cause."

In addition the students also felt that "socially a friendly platonic atmosphere is likely to evolve." The article pointed out students citing of Prince House on Campus and a residence hall at Trinity College where a coed program had then been recently established with sixteen girls from Vassar College as examples of the atmosphere which could evolve in a coed dorm.

The ultimate goal of the proposal at that time was to create an "ultimate community" one which is clearly representative of the outside world. The rationale further stated that the University within housing policy did not provide for that kind of community.

On campus today there seems to be some consensus of opinion that freshman should be allowed to live in coed dorms. Dean Field commented that coed living was a desirable thing because it was the most natural and felt it unsatisfactory that even those freshman over 21 who may have served in Vietnam are not allowed to live in a coed dorm.

Some indication of residence hall directors response to the question was seen in the comment by Mrs. Schuster head of residence of Dwight House "I'm a great believer in freshman in coed dorms." She feels that adjusting is easier in a coed dorm with its "homier atmosphere". It is her feeling that students have more of a feeling that it is really their home.

She also stated that she felt it was ridiculous that the administration would not even let those freshman over 21 into coed dorms.

In addition she indicated that she was very upset that area coordinators and housing officers don't have a part in the decision to allow freshman in coed dorms. It is her feeling that they (The coordinators and directors) know and understand the life style of the dorms and the students in them better than the administrators in Whitmore because they are in constant day to day contact with the students and their activities and problems.

Students contacted who had originally lived in traditional dorms described coed dorms as having "more sense of community with an atmosphere in which the individual student can relate to others members of the dorm like brothers and sisters in a family or home type atmosphere". One student commented that living in a coed dorm was the best part of his University experience more so even than classes.

They also indicated that they felt the administration attitude was wrong in its belief that a coed dorm would be too difficult for a freshman to adjust to. They felt it would be easier to adjust in the homelike atmosphere of a coed dorm because it provides a real and natural situation. One also stated that it might be more difficult to adjust to an all-male or all-female situation.

Most indicated that freshman should have the right to choose between a coed and a traditional dorm. They felt that this would be better than having a life style forced upon them.

In addition they also felt that freshman could adjust to the more natural situation because it is easier to meet people of the opposite sex in a situation in which they wouldn't normally meet them in an all-male or all-female dorm.

At the time of the Greenough proposal, a study of major college across the country with coed dorms already in existence by the then Provost Tippo indicated that studies at those colleges indicated improved grades, less off campus living and better social development of students involved in the program.

When Greenough gained approval from the Board of Trustees on September 22, 1969 it was with the understanding that steps including parental permission for those under 21, permission of the then all-male resident body and a meeting with the parents of all the students involved.

As the time approaches for the Board of Trustees to vote again on the question of freshman in coed dorms it appears to be a consensus that the Board should greet the proposal as the then Student Senate Secretary Pat Beharry described as "an experiment in the communication of living", a natural step for a progressive university.

Or as one student put it to consider the fact that "it is unfair to differentiate just because of age or grade level. Freshman are as mature as upperclassmen in many respects and that is what really counts."

HOME SWEET HOME--These corridors and others like them are expected to become the homes for Freshman new to the University. Freshman are often now crowded into dorms that are mostly Freshmen. Therefore they may not have upperclassmen around to turn to for guidance.

Myrna Lamb, Author of Women's Lib plays will appear tonight at the Campus Center to talk about her plays.

Myrna Lamb, Author, To Speak On Wom. Lib.

Myrna Lamb, author the recently published The Mod Donna and Scyklon Z, will speak on her book of women's liberation plays at the Campus Center, tonight at 8 PM. Her major work, The Mod Donna, was produced by Joseph Papp and performed by the New York Shakespeare Festival in 1970. As the first feminist play inspired by the current women's movement, this play became a center of critical controversy. Her play "What Have You Done For Me Lately" was recently produced at Mt. Holyoke College in South Hadley.

Pathfinder Press has just released The Mod Donna and Scyklon Z, Feminist plays by Myrna Lamb. This collection of six one-acts, and the full length "musical soap opera," The Mod Donna, does not simply echo the themes of the women's liberation movement, but dramatizes its very rage. The plays attack the romantic myths of women as mother, wife housekeeper and playbunny that form the foundation-stone of American culture.

When the New York Shakespeare Festival produced The Mod Donna in May 1970, it became the first musical of the women's liberation movement, and the center of controversy. Time reported, "Playwright Lamb (is) a deft lyricist with barbed wit and a nonsense lucidity about contemporary man-woman relationships." Natalie Gittelson, of Harper's Bazaar, wrote, "The whitest-hot indictment of modern marriage, wives and husbands to blister the stage of 1970...it dared to pull back the rug, exposing in bittersweet, somewhat Brechtian style, the corruption and mutual exploitation that rots marriage..." While Clive Barnes of the New York Times found the play a "pertinent and stimulating offering," John H. O'Connor claimed, in the Wall Street Journal, that it was "merely anti-sex."

Scyklon Z is a cycle of six plays, including But What Have You Done for Me Lately:, which has been performed as street theatre by women's liberation groups around the country. The publication of The Mod Donna and Scyklon Z will make Myrna Lamb's work more widely available. Not only will the seven plays be an excellent source for "consciousness raising" in its most dramatic form, but the playwright's introduction is a soliloquy in its own right. An essay on marriage, it is one of the most scathing indictments of that institution to come out of the women's liberation movement.

Lamb is a native of Newark, New Jersey, and a mother of two daughters. After her marriage, she attended the New School for Social Research and Rutgers University College and studied drama with the Actors Mobile Theatre. She has worked as an actress, proofreader, and journalist before beginning her career as a playwright. At present she is working on a "revolutionary opera" with the tentative title Apple Pie.

The Der Hied is coming
Armenians Gather
Tonight Mach West 22
7:30

Hill Offers Marxism Course

A one credit course on "Introduction to Marxism" will be offered by the Orchard Hill residential College beginning on Monday evening Feb. 22 at 8:30 in the sixth floor lounge of Webster Dormitory. The course will relate some basic readings in the Marxian revolutionary tradition to contemporary national international problems. Registration will take place at the first meeting of the class. For more information call the Master's office in the Orchard Hill or 549-1089. The following is the syllabus for the course.

I. The Individual and History.
 A. Do individuals make history?
 B. Does economics determine history?
 C. What is the role of class on the historical process?
II. The Political Economy of Alienation.
 A. What does it mean to be an "appendage of a machine"?
 B. Is alienation irradicable?
III The Political Economy of Social Change.
 A. What makes social change possible?
 B. The Russian Revolution, A Model for Social Change?
  1. What made the Russian Revolution possible?
  2. What was the Bolshevik Party?
  3. Why did the Soviet Union degenerate?
IV The Political Economy of Nationalism vs. Imperialism.
V. The Political Economy of Women.
 A. Are women oppressed?
 B. What is the function of the family in the oppression of women?
VI. The Political Economy of Youth.
 A. The world-wide radicalization of youth.
 B. What happened in France, 1968?
 C. The Political Economy of the May Strike, 1970: A Marxist Analysis.
 D. Youth as a detonator.

African Dance Troupe Performs Tonight

The Arthur Hall Dance Troupe will perform tonight in the Campus Center Ballroom as part of the W.E.B. Dubois Department of Afro-American Studies' recognition of Afro-American History Week.

Originating in Philadelphia in 1958, the Troupe was organized specifically for the purpose of acquainting Americans with African cultural roots. They have since travelled internationally, recently completing a tour in Miami.

The full company has a membership of forty, twenty of whom will perform here at 8:00 p.m. Thursday evening. Specializing in West African dance, they are accompanied by their own musicians and singers.

They have appeared frequently on college campuses, Smith College being one of their local stops last year.

The group has been acclaimed internationally, and should not be missed.

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

Cyclebreaker To Air Speeches

Tonight on "Cyclebreaker" on WMUA at 6:30 PM the full lecture given by Bernadette Devlin will be broadcast.. plus remarks given by her in the Colonial Lounge before the scheduled lecture in Curry-Hicks Cage.

At 7:30 PM, just after "Cyclebreaker" the lecture given by Ernesto Blanco Tuesday night in the Student Union Ballroom will be broadcast.

FREE UNIVERSITY
presents
SQUARE ROOT OF ZERO
a fantasy film of two beatniks
Tonite & Friday
Thompson 104 8 p.m.
only 25¢

Student Senate Bi Elections Today

Cape Cod Lounge

Commuters — Fraternities — Sororities

9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Winter Carni brings to you
Kevin MacIsaac and Cricket Hill
at the
COFFEE HOUSE
11th floor Campus Center
TONIGHT at 9

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF — Jim Gold

ISSUE EDITOR — Ethel Harris, Bob Nesti, Jim Mitchell
NEWS STAFF — Fred Rosenthal
SPORTS — Gary Alpaugh
DARKROOM — Barry Rubenstein
EDITORIAL — Margie & John Mullen
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Digging A Ditch

The Student Life Sub-committee of the Board of Trustees stirred a welcome breath of fresh thinking yesterday in Boston when Chairman Rowland started the meeting off with a plea for the Trustees to start thinking along general policy lines concerning the affairs of the Amherst campus instead of the totally inadequate present system of tackling each campus issue alone.

In the past, the Trustees have spent weeks arguing about whether dormitories should have open-house hours or whether one dormitory or another should become Coed. The major emphasis of yesterday's meeting signaled the beginning of what we hope will become autonomy for our campus in matters of student life.

Many of the Trustees present at the Statler-Hiltor seemed convinced that the Trustees should establish "general guidelines" and then let Vice-Chancellor Bromery's office work out a realistic plan for the campus. This line of thinking gives hope for a welcome relief from the cumbersome and un-realistic position of the Board in the past of being, what Trustee Gordon once called, "a working board" syndrome, we feel, has hindered the Board's real effectiveness in the past and has totally disregarded the presence and ability of people here on campus. Certainly the Board should not have hired a man of Vice-Chancellor Bromery's ability only to dictate to him what is best for the area in which he works intimately.

The past policy of the Board reminds us of a man who hires a ditch digger and in the process of showing him what should be done, actually digs the ditch. Literally, the Board has, at sometimes, dug itself into a hole.

The Collegian has already expressed its views on the Freshmen in Coed dorm issues as did the Student Life committee last December. It seems that the Board will make a decision on this specific point, during the March meeting. We feel that the arguments presented at yesterday's meeting and at previous gatherings of the Board are more than sufficient to convince any reasonable man or woman of its desirability. Even Chancellor Tippo supports the idea wholeheartedly and without reservation.

We hope that the Board will approve the Freshmen Coed proposal. Moreover, we ask the Board to seriously follow the lead of Chairman Rowland in freeing themselves of the unnecessary burden of "ditch digger" for the individual campuses.

"We're Against Crime, But We Don't Want To Interfere With Private Enterprise"

Art Buchwald

Hanoi On The Ropes

WASHINGTON -- Whenever something new happens in the war in Indochina, I always seek out my dear friend Joseph Wallstop, the dean of the Hawk columnists.

Late last fall as the war was winding down Joe had become more and more depressed, so I didn't know what mood I'd find him in. Happily, when I went down to his war room located in the basement of his house, I found him dancing a jig.

"Joe," I said, "you're your old self again."

"They've finally listened to me," Joe said gleefully. "I've wanted to invade Laos for four years."

"That's wonderful, Joe," I said. "It must be great to see a dream come true."

"I didn't think President Nixon had the guts," Joe said. "But, thank God, he has finally bought my plan. Hanoi will be on the ropes in a matter of weeks."

"I thought you told everyone Hanoi was on the ropes after the Tet offensive."

"They were on the ropes," Joe said. "But they didn't know it. I still maintain the Tet offensive was the biggest allied victory of the war."

"Bigger than the invasion of Cambodia?" I said.

"Cambodia was different. In Cambodia, I wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries that were supplying the Reds in South Vietnam."

"But if you wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries, why did you have to go into Laos?"

"Because, you idiot, Hanoi is hurting, so they're sending everything down the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Once I interdict the Ho Chi Minh Trail, I'll have the Commies on the ropes again."

"Unless they think of something else," I said.

"Come over here," Joe said. He took me over to a very large table which had a relief map of Southeast Asia on it. He had flags all over it: green for allied troops, red for Communist troops and blue for American aircraft. He even had a miniature Sixth Fleet which he could push around the table.

He put on his campaign hat and said: "This is what I want to do: I want to bomb everything in Cambodia and Laos. That may force Hanoi to send their stuff through Thailand."

"Why, it's the old interdiction play," I said.

"Exactly. This will give me an excuse to invade Thailand. Once I'm in Thailand, I'll give Gen. Abrams time to shape up the South Vietnamese army so they can invade North Vietnam."

Joe moved the green flags across the DMZ.

"You mean you're going to invade North Vietnam?"

"What choice do I have?" Joe replied. "Once I clean out the sanctuaries in North Vietnam, Hanoi will be on the ropes."

"So they'll sue for peace?" I said excitedly.

"No, they won't," he said disgustedly. "They'll ask the Chinese to intervene."

"Joe," I said nervously, "You're moving the green flags up to the Chinese border. You're not thinking of sending the South Vietnamese into China?"

"Why not?" said Joe. "That's where all the supplies are coming from."

A red phone in the corner rang urgently and Joe picked it up. "Yes, Mr. President. You're doing fine. June fine. Once you secure the Ho Chi Minh Trail, call me back and I'll tell you what to do next."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times.

Gus Szlosek

Senate Salary Syndrome

TODAY'S DISEASE: The Senate Salary Syndrome.
BACKGROUND: This is a variety of the "Pay Raise Syndrome which annually affects the Massachusetts State Legislature. Other local varieties of this dreaded disease have claimed as victims the officers of the COLLEGIAN, and some of the staff of WMUA. The latest variety (the Senate Salary Syndrome) involves complications such as the cerebral hernia. Its victims are the officers of the Student Senate.
SYMPTOMS: Incoherent speech, characterized by repetition of certain key words, such as "hard work". Also fuzzy vision, lapses in ability to reason properly, possibility of brain damage. In extreme cases, may lead to loss of authority.
SECONDARY EFFECTS: May attack the Apathy Center of the student body, leading to a condition known as "Situational Psychosis" The Apathy Center is generally very well immunized from infection, but has proved vulnerable to the secondary infection which necessarily accompanies every outbreak of the Syndrome--Money. This causes swelling of the Student Tax, a very painful condition for the average UMass student. The natural defenses of the student body have already been activated in this case, in a condition known as "Referendum Petitions" (Petition of Referendum).
REMEDIES: New techniques available include the use of the Graft. In this method, the more dangerous "Money" infection is allowed to bypass the Legal Channel, and procede directly to the hands of the Senate Officers. And of course, graft is less likely to affect the Apathy Center.

In more serious cases, amputation has been recommended, that is, dissolving the infected members. Specific recommendations include:

1. Dissolve UMass.
2. Dissolve the Student Senate.
3. Dissolve the Student Senators.

The latest recommendation is to dissolve the offices of the Senate, so there will be no officers to be infected by the Senate Salary Syndrome.
COMING NEXT WEEK: Case histories in oral diarrhea, foot-in-mouth disease, and the dread Student Senate Speech.

Let Me Die In Peace

In his book, Man's Concern with Death, Arnold Toynbee has a lot of wisdom to share with his readers concerning the subject of death, and, among other things, he has a few pertinent words to say about war and death. As a plea and also as a wish to relate some thoughts of a great thinker I am writing this. The words of Toynbee express my own thoughts much better than I can myself, hence the quotations.

> The practice of human sacrifice has been abandoned almost universally today -- except in the institution of war, in which millions of young men have been condemned to be killed and to kill in our lifetime, as a human sacrifice to the deified collective human power of a belligerent nation.
>
> War is not a spontaneous vent for human nature's pugnacity. This pugnacity is real, and war would be impossible without it.

But it is important to realize that war is an institution. The conditions necessary for war, as Toynbee says, are (1) "the surplus of time, energy and productivity" above what is needed to stay alive, and (2) "mass discipline and docility" (also needed, he points out, for large-scale productive public works). One might wonder if I advocate an all-time consuming agrarian community in which one does without large-scale public projects. To that I can only say that it is too late for the majority of people in the world. What must be done, if we must live with these conditions of progress and discipline, is constant thinking about our moral condition. From there we must each decide for ourselves what sort of life we are to live. "War is only one of many symptoms and consequences of man's moral failure..."

Nationalism has reached a fanatic height and with it goes an increasing number of military human sacrifices through these games of power- politics.

> The rulers of a state murder (by proxy) the soldiers of another state with whose rulers they are at war; and they do this at the risk of exposing [illegible] pulse.

> volunteered, to be wounded, maimed, or killed by the soldiers of the opposing army, whom their own soldiers have been commanded to wound, maim, and kill to the utmost of their ability.

But "murder committed under orders by public authorities in the collective interests of a community has been regarded as a virtuous and noble activity..." I cannot accept this rationalization.

Toynbee touches on a main point:

> Today a majority of middle-aged American citizens appear to be as willing as any Canaanites or Aztecs ever were to sacrifice their sons on Moloch's altar. The question is whether the rising generation of male American citizens is going to submit to being sacrificed by coersion.

Are you going to submit? I am not. I first need to live in Peace [illegible] I can die in Peace. And that [illegible] most.

Mark D'Angelo

Letters To The Editor

In Defense Of Professor Best

To The Editor:

It has been often pointed out by diverse observers that the number of students seriously concerned with our social and world problems, though larger than in the past, still involves a smallish percentage of the campuses.

At a time when many good men have voiced their concern over the spiritual and moral crisis in which our society is enveloped, Prof. Best has succeeded in sparking new concerns and enthusiasm among large numbers of students.

He has shown us, his former students, that mankind can, should, and indeed must reorder its priorities if our claim to a civilized existence not remain hollow. He has further shown us that such reordering can be based on a sound economic theory.

I hope that the committee, whoever they are, will not take the bureaucratic approach of a routinized decision based on the controversial publish-or-perish approach, but will instead consider the more important quality of professor Best as a teacher.

Books are necessary, they are the plans and road-maps in our lives; but as life has become complicated, so have many of the road-maps. Even more important are the teachers. Teachers are the interpreters of books, they are our guides among them. There is no dearth of good books readily available. But we need good teachers, good guides. We need especially those who, like Prof. Best, are understanding, who are available. New understanding (call it awareness or consciousness if you will), sincerity and that ability to spark an interest in a student are more important than old sophistication and glibness. I think UMass would be poorer without Prof. Best. I think it would be a moral crime to let go such a teacher simply because a bureaucratic rule says so.

Stanley J. Krauz

"Where Did I Go Wrong?"

To The Editor:

This is a letter of pure rage (no, there is a little reservation on that rage). Outside the Campus Center Store today, I saw a group of people selling posters, prints, etc. Question: were they selling for a so-called "good" cause or for a certain percentage which goes to the C.C. or were they selling for pure profit? (Who is to say they cannot make a living?) Not me. They were invited to sell posters. I am pissed off because I sold posters that I had made in the "tunnel" between the C.C. and the Hatch and was told to leave. There is no anger on my part at the print-dealers because I was attempting to do the very same thing, i.e., rip off the students, the "People", for a dollar per poster. Examine and compare quality/price/effort/psychic energy/worth between what I had to offer and what they had to offer. I am not guilty of false modesty at any rate. There is, however, expressed rage on my part, not at the man who told me to leave, but at the students-protected-against-themselves-red tape-insane-hassle-nymphomia that one just doesn't seem to want to face or admit until it has crushed and muddied your nose with its shiny black emotionless boot. Where did I go wrong? What do I have to do, get permission to sell posters where it should be designated free space for such carrying on to begin with. I don't mean to insult with this letter, only to condemn. I will try to get permission as suggested to me and bewail the fact that I was too stupid to realize that I in my limited awareness, would presume that I was doing something that was intrinsically wrong. I am only in the wrong era. This all makes no sense to me and perhaps it seems blown all out of proportion to you, but that is O.K. I am just plain angry, you know. Yes, you understand.

Donald Lorenson

Burkian Logic

To The Editor:

The elected official's predicament is like that which the artist must face in his everyday creative processes. The artist often must make the choice between universal concepts of beauty and his own, individual sense of artistic beauty. So must the politician often make the difficult choice between his constituents' (public) opinion and his own, private, professional opinion of what is best for the constituency he must represent.

The Student Senate has just recently had to make such a decision. We are acquainted with and have studied all the facts, arguments, and biasses for and against the payment of senate officers. The decision made is well known to you all.

It is our hope that all of you who are bothered by this legislation, bothered enough to suggest referendum, will first speak to your elected senator before you decide to oppose what we feel is basically sound, rational, and thorough judgement.

Daniel Stearns, Senator
Nick Apostola, Senator

Liz Borden Returns

To The Editor:

Had a good course lately? Too bad. There will be even fewer good courses next semester! Why? Good teachers are hard to keep. The good ones we have are all too often let go. Why? Because the administration and Department Heads consider the worth of a teacher by what he publishes, how much research is he doing, does he have any grants, how much publicity is he getting? All these things help to give a school a name and thus bring fame to the people who pull the strings.

The teachers who teach, whose primary concern is you and I, who make themselves available at all times to the students are the ones who are suffering. They don't get the raises, if they happen to be on tenure, if they aren't lucky enough to hold that status you can be sure they never will. So in the end we go to class and listen to another teacher who could give a shit about you or I. They care nothing about teaching as such, they are never available when we have a question. All they live for is seeing their name in some periodical.

There are good teachers and bad ones, and I wonder who is best qualified to judge? Seen any Department Heads sitting in on a class? We the students do occasionally attend, even the boring ones. The good classes we make a mighty effort to get to. But have no fear, energy will be conserved more and more in the future. The teachers are getting the ax. Were receiving the wounds.

Paul X. Joy

Heart Transplant

To The Editor:

I hate to "massacre" Messrs. Blake and Zelman's image of St. Valentine, but according to The Penguin Dictionary of Saints by Donald Attwater, one of the world's leading hagiographers, St. Valentine's "supposed" 'acts' seem to derive from those of Saints Marius and Martha, who with their sons...were martyred in Rome but were said to be Persians;..."

Attwater further comments that there is nothing in the legend of St. Valentine which accounts for the sending of Valentines on February 14.

If one were to check in Butler's Lives of the Saints, one would find similar information.

I'd be interested to know where Blake and Zelman got their information.

Lloyd Adalist

Heroic Decisions

To The Editor:

The latest American venture into a neutral Laos exemplifies the disheartening fact that the President has no understanding of what Americans feel and no commitment as to what they want. Within the cloistered atmosphere of the White House, his advisors tell us that the war is being scaled down, thanks to their heroic decisions. In addition, the invasions into Communist-held areas will save lives. Can Mr. Nixon convince the parents of those who have lost sons that the war started by "the last administration" will spare lives? Does the President concern himself with the fate of the Cambodian and Laotian citizens, and the threat he has imposed on them? His overwhelming paranoia of world Communism will logically lead to a strong and foreboding warning to China - that any actions taken by them will be met by U.S. force.

Mark Popovsky

Letters To The Editor Or In 25 Words Or Less...

Letters to the Editor must be typed, double spaced, at sixty spaces and must carry the writer's signature, address, and telephone number (all of which will be withheld upon request). The limit is one page and the deadline is 5 p.m. the day prior to intended publication. The editors reserve the right to edit all letters.

The same rules apply to Editorial Points except that the limit on these is 25 words. No prizes will be awarded or gifts given out. This is not a contest. It's simply a forum for those of you who don't feel like writing a whole letter or who don't know more than 25 words.

Editorial Points

Senator Gaylord Nelson suggested that part of the nation's 700 million acres of public land be set aside to train people how to treat and protect the environment. The University has picked up on the idea and next semester is offering a three-credit course entitled Ecology 101. Smokey the Bear is the instructor.

*****

Jane Fonda is entertaining the idea of beginning a series of stage shows for U.S. servicemen in an effort to combat Bob Hope's "corner on the market". If you had to compete with the world's biggest entertainer, what would you do?

*****

Britons have recently been warned about decimal sharks in the nation's stores since that country decimalized. If a fin is $5, how much is a whole shark worth?

*****

No matter what you think about Campus Crusade for Christ, they serve terrible cookies.

*****

When Springfield College can beat UMass in basketball, it makes one wonder if there is any sanity at all in sports.

*****

Labor Secretary James Hodgson is rumored to be planning to present President Nixon with a proposal for a short-term freeze in wage and price increases to be imposed on the construction industry. Doesn't it seem that enough people are freezing as it is?

*****

When two-year old kids start displaying peace signs, you may have won the battle but you've lost the war.

*****

When was the last time the Board of Trustees met here on campus? Perhaps they think its too crowded.

Overt Discrimination

To the editor:

For the benefit of the segments of the University community who have not as yet considered the campaign of Jim LaMacchia for Winter Carni Queen in a serious frame of mind, we would like to report a case of overt discrimination by the sexist who is in charge of the voting at the Student Union.

When friends and supporters of Jim's campaign came to vote yesterday they were not informed of the correct voting procedures for a write-in candidate. When we approached the voting table after these people had left so that we were not automatically associated with Jim's campaign, one of the attendants unwittingly explained the correct procedure. As he did this, the "gentleman" who was in charge of the booth and who on the occasion of Jim's interview was extremely sarcastic of the entire campaign, kicked the chair of the assistant and told him to "shut up". This is only one example of what is happening to those people who find their own comfortable chauvinist sex identity affronted by the liberation of other individuals and how they retaliate with their petty games.

Liberation Now!

Claire Bowes
Pamela Dowd

A Devastating Blow

To The Editor:

It appears as if the possibilities of the anti-war movement have been severely limited on this campus. The Budget Committee of the Student Senate dealt a devastating blow to the Student Mobilization Committee by cutting their budget for next year in half.

There is a pressing need to have an organization that can perform the daily functions of keeping open communication lines between the UMass students and national antiwar groups. To do this requires the maintenance of an office which serves as an information center for this campus. It takes money to operate an antiwar group. Phone calls to other campuses and cities as well as to people who could come here to speak run up a bill of hundreds of dollars. But, the most expensive task that the Mobe undertakes is to reach the students themselves. Using thousands of leaflets plus the overpriced advertisements in the Collegian, the SMC uses all possible means available to inform the students.

The strike last spring showed that most students at UMass were in favor of immediate withdrawal from Southeast Asia. A number of people are giving up their time that others can't afford to give up, serving the college community by fighting for an ideal that the majority believes in. Within the next few days the Student Senate votes on the recommendations of the Budget Committee. I urge all students to contact their senators and request that the SMC funds be reinstated.

Kevin R. O'Toole
Co-Chairman, SMC

A Little Dirt Never Hurt

To the editor:

We've been hearing a lot of crap in the Collegian concerning the Economics Dept. and the latest campus head hunt. I think it is about time we got it from the people involved in this episode. Since the student body will be affected in the short and long run by whatever happens, the individuals who will make the decisions should explain their position and role in the matter.

They are the following:

Chancellor Tippo
Provost Gluckstern
Dean Jerry Allen
Dept. Head James Kindahl

All of the above have veto power in the matter.

Also:

Norman Aitken, Solomon Barkin, Mike Best, Jim Cox, Marshall Howard, Vernon Smith, and High Sorrenschein (chairman) of the personnel committee of the Economics Dept.

These men decide the fate of those five who are alleged to be ready for dismissal. Students get your hands dirty, assert your adolescent right to rebel against authority and help determine who is going to have you three hours a week. Make the above men responsible to you.

Ernie Reis

New BU President Raps With Students, Hits Dorms, Tenure; Calls Admin. Open

Boston University President John R. Silber in his first meeting with the students yesterday described dormitory life at the institution as a "pretty good substitute for decadence."

He said rooms and hallways were littered with garbage; linen on beds was dirty; and acts of voyeurism and exhibitionism are committed in the dormitories.

Dr. Silber said he felt the students were "competing with one another to see who could keep the dirtiest" room.

He also told the students about 500 of them who gathered in Hayden Hall that $62,000 in materials was stolen from the university bookstore last year and projected the thefts would reach $70,000 this year.

Saying that his administration "will be remarkably open and remarkably candid," Dr. Silber wasted little time in getting the point across to the students.

Unsmiling and firm, Dr. Silber at one point spoke of the $274,000 the university spent on campus security last year and student demands that the security force be eliminated.

The president also said yesterday he would be in favor of doing away with faculty tenure if an adequate pension system were introduced to protect those professors who might lose their jobs.

Silber responded to a student's question on tenure with an answer that he said was "not going to make the faculty happy." Tenure in effect, gives those who have lifetime job guarantee.

Silber said that the function of tenure in protecting academic freedom "ceased to be important years ago" and that freedom is now adequately safeguarded by the "normal due process procedure" in faculty hiring and firing.

But Silber went on to say that "every decent social system has to concern itself with people who make a contribution and then dry up." Without the protection of either tenure or a substantial pension a man who went to sleep academically after 20 years" could be, might be fired and could "starve to death," he said.

Silber suggested that the only way to get rid of tenure would be to institute a pension system like that to the military services in which men may retire after a certain number of years at a specified percentage of their salaries.

Without such a system, he said, "you'll never get the faculty to vote to remove a man for incompetence."

In his two-hour question and answer session with some 700 students, Silber dealt with a variety of issues ranging from the university's budget to dispensing birth control information.

Although student questions were frequently pointed and the president's answers were sometimes blunt, there was none of the angry rhetoric that has characterized meetings on many campuses in recent years.

THE SUN IS A COMIN'
so
SEE US FOR SUNGLASSES
(PRESCRIPTION OR PLAIN)
BEFORE YOU START SQUINTIN' !! also
TRY OUR SELECTION OF WIRE RIMS (EYE WIRES)
at don call
GUILD OPTICIAN
56 Main St. 253-7002 Amherst

Tonight
is the night.
Meet you
at the Metawampe
Lawn.
Bring a friend
Bring a marshmallow
Bring yourself
7:30 P.M.
Bonfire
Fireworks
Queens
Warm Bodies
WINTER CARNI 71

ARE YOU PLANNING
MARRIAGE?
CATHOLIC MARRIAGE COURSE
NEWMAN CENTER
U. MASS
Beginning
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18th
7:30 - 8:30 P.M.

Make Your Winter Carni
Weekend Complete
Visit
Hampden Restaurant
Saturday Lunch 11:30 - 2:30
Saturday Dinner 5:00 - 8:00
Sunday Lunch 12:00 - 3:00
Sunday Dinner 5:00 - 8:00

You've reached the point of decision and maybe things look a little confusing. Have you ever stopped to consider a career in government?
GO
We build Federal buildings maintain the National Archives provide the Government's transportation and communications network supply its needs and dispose of what it doesn't need. We are the business arm of the Federal Government.
We're progressive we're diversified and we care. We're doing our part to combat air pollution to help minority businessmen to rebuild cities.
We're on the move!
Stop the confusion and go talk to the GSA recruiter. Ask about the opportunities at the General Services Administration.
Campus Interviews
February 19, 1971
See your placement office
gsa
Equal Opportunity Employer

Nigerian Prof. At Amherst Tonight

A Nigerian professor will speak on the recent Biafran conflict in a free public lecture tonight at 8 in the Converse Assembly Hall, Amherst College. He is J.F.A. Ajayi, Professor of African History at the University of Ibadan.

The occasion is the inauguration of a series of Black Study Lectures for the Five Colleges. Prof. Ajayi's topic is "The Historical Dimensions of the Nigerian War."

The visitor's pioneering books and articles on African history have been published in England and France. Prof. Ajayi is currently a member of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University and is internationally regarded as a leading figure in African academic and political affairs. During his visit to the Five Colleges he will also visit classes in international relations and government.

Prof. Asa Davis, chairman of the department of black studies at Amherst College and acting chairman of the Five College Afro-American Executive Committee, once taught at the University of Ibadan. He says that Prof. Ajayi, together with perhaps two or three others, is chiefly responsible for the emergence of African History as a full-fledged discipline. Prof. Davis has expressed the hope that this campus visitor will be able to contribute to the community's awareness of Africa as an essential part of Black Studies, as well as the wealth of courses that will be offered in African and Afro-American Studies in the Five Colleges next year.

Domestic Exchange Application Available

Applications are now available in the Admissions Office, Whitmore Hall, for undergraduate students interested in going on exchange either semester or next year. The participating institutions are:

Illinois State University, Montana State University, Paterson State College, Portland State University, University of Alabama, University of Hawaii, University of Massachusetts, University of Montana, University of Oregon, University of Idaho, University of New Mexico, University of Wisconsin-at Green Bay, and the Grambling College.

The student applying for an exchange should be a sophomore. The exchange would be for his junior year. The student must have at least a 2.5 cumulative grade point average. Students who are interested in participating in the program for next year must complete an application and return it to Mr. Loder, Office of the Registrar no later than March 15, 1971. Final selections, including a list of alternates, are expected to be completed by April 30, 1971.

Notices

ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB
Revival meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in E 17 Machmer

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
Dr Carol Warner of the Biology Dept. at Yale will speak on the "Conformation of the Antibody Molecule Upon Interaction with Hapten" today at 11:30 a.m. in Rm 252 of Goessman Lab. Coffee will be served at 11:15 a.m.

BUDDHIST MEDITATION
The venerable Chau Khun Dhammasudhi, Meditation master of the Budgnapadipa Temple, Surrey, England, will speak on "Wisdom & the Buddhist Way" this Mon., Feb. 22nd at 8 p.m. in Red Room of Converse Hall, Amherst College. This is a rare visit. Info call Paul 586-1497

FINNISH LANGUAGE GROUP
Organizational meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at Mrs. Korpela's Apt. in Cashin Basement (NE dorms). For info call Nancy 323-7507 Belcher town

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Meeting Friday "What was Urbana? What did it mean to those who went? Held in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m.

LETTUCE BOYCOTT GROUP
Meeting will be held for all those interested in organizing a boycott of all non UFW lettuce in this area tonight at 7 p.m. in 166 of the C.C. All welcome

MARKETING CLUB
Marketing club meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Room 100 SBA. Presentation "Best Foot Forward" 4 recruiters from Major industries all invited to attend.

MIRKWOOD
This Saturday at 8 p.m. in Grayson Lounge (Orchard Hill). Anyone who enjoys entertaining others (through music, drama, or whatever you like) call Kean @ 67124 or Val @ 66862

PSYCHOLOGY DEPT.
Dr. Jerome S. Bruner, Prof. & Dir. of the Center for Cognitive Studies at Harvard Univ. will hold a colloquium at 4:30 p.m. in Herter Hall.

SKI PATROL
Thursday night meeting will be held in Rm 170 of the C.C. at 6:30 p.m. Instruction

SOCIOLOGY
Soc. 104 first meeting at 2:30 Friday, Feb. 19th in Rm 227 of Herter (not 223 or 224). Important meeting urged everyone to attend

SPECTRUM
To all old staffers, elections will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Rm 175 of the C.C. It is important that all attend.

UMOC
Meeting Monday night. Sierra Club Snowshoeing Sunday. Mädnadnock party Saturday. Roger is in his usual plight and would appreicate trip reports.

WMUA
Tape of UMass-Vermont hockey game wanted by WMUA Sports Dept. Call 546-9725 or leave message with WMUA

LOST
Change purse was lost somewhere betw. S.U. & Thompson betw. 5-6 p.m. Feb. 16th. I made it myself & it has immense personal value. Please return to the Media Services office, upstairs in the S.U.
Brown & white wool hat outside John Adams. Please return to 1-16 JQA or call 546-8520 if found

ISRAEL
● Work in a Kibbutz
● Study at an Israeli University
● Work with New Immigrants
Summer, Semester, Year Programs
Contact:
ZE'EV REGEV
Joint Israel Programs
72 Franklin St.
Boston, Mass.
542-3973/4
or, on campus call
BRUCE GOLDMAN
549-3929
418 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
In cooperation with Associated Jewish Community Centers, A.Z.Y.F., and Regional Alliance for Israel (R.A.F.I.)

FREE 1971 STUDENT TRAVEL GUIDE
ISRAEL EUROPE

featuring Kibbutz Discovery Tours
Combine the excitement of international adventure with culturally rewarding experience: live and work in a Kib butz; enjoy extensive tours throughout Israel; lectures and seminars; sun and fun on the Mediterranean seashore; archaeological digs; evening entertainment; weekends with Israeli families; plus 2-3 weeks of European culture and art. Greece, Italy, Switzerland, France, England and Scandinavia.
CHOICE OF 11 OUTSTANDING PROGRAMS (22-60 DAYS) WITH DEPARTURES THROUGHOUT JUNE, JULY & AUGUST
SPECIAL CAMPING in ISRAEL $3 A DAY Plus airfare from $775 -- EL AL ALL INCLUSIVE
Request FREE Student Travel Guide from your Travel Agent or EASTOURS' SCHOLASTIC JOURNEYS
1140 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10036
(212) 490-2040

Warm Up Your Winter Carnival Weekend
at the
Top of the Campus
Thursday night beginning at 9:00
Cricket Hill featuring Helen
Wine, coffee, cheese and crackers
Dinner served from 5:30 - 8:00
Friday and Saturday nights beginning at 9:00
Hey Brooklyn featuring Lynn Holoway
Dinner served from 5:30 - 9:00

Drinking At 18 In Mass. Urged

Two college administrators and a state public health official spoke to a group of New England liquor administrators in support of lowering the drinking age in Massachusetts to eighteen.

They argued that 18-year olds, who may serve in the military and vote in national elections, are mature enough to have the right to drink.

They also charged that the present age restriction of 21 is uninforceable, hypocritical and fosters poor drinking habits because experimenting with alcohol cannot take place in a controlled atmosphere such as a licensed drinking establishment.

THE MEETING, held at the Parker House, was called by the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) to discuss the effects within the state and the region of a bill the commission filed which would make Massachusetts the second state in the nation to allow 18-year olds the right to drink, serve and sell alcoholic beverages.

The Rev. Victor P. Caliri, CSC, dean of student affairs at Stonehill College, read a statement by his college administration supporting the move to lower the drinking age.

"We're keeping kids in a state of immaturity when they are maturing earlier, physically and mentally," Father Caliri said.

Dr. William F. Field, dean of students at UMass said questionnaires given to incoming freshmen indicated that 10 years ago 40 per cent had some experience with alcoholic beverages before college while more than 60 per cent admit to drinking experiences today.

"Students aren't really making a big fuss over this (drinking age)," he said. "We've gone through our transition." Though there is probably "a great deal of drinking on campus," Dr. Field said college officials no longer consider themselves "enforcers" of the drinking age law and do not conduct searches of dormitories for alcoholic beverages as was once the custom.

He said it was hypocritical to try to deal with college students as adults and have a regulation that treats them as children.

"I'D LIKE TO GET it off the books so we can put drinking in a social context, so we can deal with abuse rather than use," Dr. Field said.

Allowing the 18-to-21-year-olds to drink in a bar "would take some of the mystique, some of the aura, out of drinking," and impose a certain amount of social control, said Milton J. Walk, coordinator of health education for the state Public Health Department's division of alcoholism.

Prof. Pichanick To Lecture At Colgate University

Professor Francis Pichanick of the Department of Physics and Astronomy at UMass will serve as a visiting lecturer at Colgate University, Hamilton, New York, Thursday and Friday, February 18 and 19.

He will visit under the auspices of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Institute of Physics as part of a broad, nationwide program to stimulate interest in physics.

Lectures, informal discussion, assistance to faculty members concerning curriculum and research problems in physics, and talks with students will feature Professor Pichanick's visit.

His present research efforts are experiments in low-energy high resolution scattering of electrons by atomic hydrogen and the atomic structure of helium.

Girls . . . . do you like
FUN
TRAVEL
FRIENDSHIP
SERVICE PROJECTS
?

Then you'll LOVE ANGEL FLIGHT

Come to Colonial Lounge, S.U. 7 - 9 tonite

STUDENT SENATE
BI-ELECTION
DORM ELECTIONS
TONIGHT
In your Dorm if needed.

Tonight!
WINTER CARNIVAL
KICK-OFF
7:00 p.m.
METAWAMPE LAWN
by the Student Union
BASKETBALL RALLY
Team & Coach Leaman
FIREWORKS!
Presentation of
Winter CARNI QUEEN
Finalists

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK
for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP
in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle-Campers Int'na'l,
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

trancendental meditation
as taught by
MAHARISHI
MAHESH
YOGI

Transcendental meditation is a natural spontaneous technique which allows each individual to expand his conscious mind and improve all aspects of life.
1st Introductory Lecture
Hampshire College — East Lecture Hall
Thurs., Feb. 18 at 8 p.m.
and
2nd Introductory Lecture
SBA 120 — Friday, Feb. 19, 8 p.m.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Complete set of Great Books of the Western World, book case included. Very reasonable. Phone Hadyoke 533-2672 after five. tf2-18

3 bedroom ranch, patio, breezeway, 1½ garage, kitchen with built-in refrigerator, oven and burners, pine cabinets, carpeted dining and living, 1½ bathe, cellar with new washer and dryer. Call 665-3531. tf2-22

Pioneer, Trac, Garrard, FE, Astey Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LPs, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Brand new 8-track stereo tapes, Chicago, Beatles, Harrison, others, complet list available $3.99 each, 3 for $11. Contact Paul 6-5130 anytime after 6. tf2-18

Skis Head G-S and Salomon Madimer. Also, set of full Miller bindings and Sauka boots, all in new or exc cond. Asking best offer around $80 for everything. 546-8718. tf2-19

Hart Javeline Skis 205 cm, Reiker Boots, Marker bindings, new poles, all good condition, $70. 546-7768 tf2-18

Skis — Northland Wds., w/out bindings, new. Will sell $22. Call Peter 6-8494, 418 Lewis, nights. tf2-18

Magnavox solid state stereo, record. Good sound, new $130. Ask $50. Call 549-1267. tf2-18

Water Beds — 7' x 6'. Workmanship guaranted. $65.00. Try one, out at R-8 Gorman House. Weekdays from 11:00 to 3:30 or call Richard at 546-9534. tf2-22

Wire wheels for Triumph MG. All cost new $135, sell $60. Side curtains $35. Call Jay after 8 p.m. 323-4042. 2-18

Must sell 810 Kerlach boots, tie, size 9, $5, best offer, brand new, never used; Maple Leaf hockey skates with case, size 9, $15 or best offer; unmatched poles for 56 skier $7.50. Brad 6-8954 tf2-19

Sierra AM/FM tuner, Kenwood, 100 watt, recently reconditioned, $100 or best offer. Call Tom 253-5001 mornings or after five tf2-19

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf5-13

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1970 Maverick, perfect condition, less than 3,000 miles. Must sell for former car $1600 or best offer. Call 545-2116 after 7 p.m. tf2-18

V.W. sedan, a very fine running car, body is in good shape, mechanical cond. of car is very good. New brakes, snow tires and clutch adjustment, $175 or best offer. 546-8748 tf2-19

'63 Ford Van, potbelly stove, bunk beds, cupboards, closet, carpet and more, asking $400.00. Call 256-6095 tf2-19

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate wanted immed to share new apt. with young married student living alone with baby. Ideal location with all accommodations, $68 a month. Call 549-0310 tf5-18

Roommate(s) wanted for own room in two bedroomt apt at Mt Sugarloaf. Call 665-3490 after 5. tf2-19

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6715 after 6 p.m. tf5-76

SERVICES

Film developing, 10 per cent off of list price. Discount on film, too. Call George 6-6978 tf2-18

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8157. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3140. tf3-18

We do maintenance and repairs on V.W.'s, very reasonable rates. Call Dick or Larry 586-0258. Better write it down. 2-18

TO SUBLET

To sublet: Eff. apt., $120 mo., all utilities. Available 15 March. Call 665-3614. tf5-19

WANTED

National fashion magazine wants freshman, sophomore or junior girl to serve as campus marketing representative. Hourly pay plus benefits. For information call Linda at 546-1271 after 7. tf2-18

House Parents or House Mother wanted for K.A.T. Sorority, starting Sept. '71. Contact Valla Andres or Mary Lou Dawson before March 12, 1971. 253-9215 or 545-2335. tf2-19

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered jet flights to NASSAU in spring from $99 and EUROPE in Summer from $195. For details call: Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-2963. tf2-19

Driver Trainees Wanted

The Student Senate Transit Service which operates the Campus Shuttle System is now accepting applications for its spring training program. Forms are available in Student Union Room 411. tf2-2

ROOM TO RENT

Immediately — 41 Phillips St. Serious student only, male or female. Phone 549-6178 after 6. 2-18

LOST

Our dog is lost — Satan, our 6 mo. old German Shepherd is lost. A female, she is black with brown markings and a red collar. Please call 581-6671 tf2-19

Crew Continues Workouts-Sights Get On Olympics

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

While many may think crew has stopped action since the colder weather set in and froze the river, the UMass Crew Club has kept on the move by continuing its year-round program indoors, in room 9 of the Women's Physical Education Building, a basement noche shared with numerous pipings and other cellar normalities. Using various weight-lifting techniques, the oarsmen have mainly been concerned with individual strength building for what seems to be a promising and adventurous season.

A summer club rowing program still in the formulizing stage, heads the innovations and ideals of coach Mike Flaherty and his oarsmen. The U.S. Nationals will take place this August (on to Copenhagen!), and the Pan American Games' trials will be in Syracuse, New York at the end of the summer (ditto to Cali, Colombia!). Without a doubt, though, the strongest force involved in the perserverence of crew members in their strenuous winter workouts is the 1972 Olympic Trials.

Participation in this summer's proposed program will depend on jobs and housing available in the Amherst area, as well as the useable rowing equipment. Tentatively, the training schedule will feature embarking onto the water twice a day in the smaller shells.

"Although we're playing everything by ear, hopefully 12 to 14 crew members will be able to stay up here to practice in the fours and pairs," prophesized Coach Faherty. "By rowing in these smaller boats, there's a better chance of developing individual oarsmen as well as the opportunity of interclub racing for the feel of competition. Also, we are hoping to send some crew to the Nationals, and, as far as competition goes, there's a better chance in a small boat."

Kids from the Amherst community will be given the opportunity to row this summer in another tentative program. Faherty and freshman coach Kurt Betchick will supervise as eight and 10 year olds try their skills at balancing and handling the oars of a single, that is, a one-man shell, on the shallow waters of the Campus Pond.

In the meantime, you will find 17 varsity and 21 freshman crew members working out three times a week, for two hours each time, in that strange room filled with strange contraptions. Four different types of weight lifting were conceived to increase strength in different muscle areas: the "clean" lift of a weight to chest level, the best exercise for overall strength; the "back machine" in which the exerciser sits in the rowing position and pulls a bar attached to weights; the leg press, where one is on his back and lifts a weight with his legs; and finally, an ironing board set-up used to lift poundage from a lying on the stomach position.

Coach Faherty emphasized that his training schedule is not part of a body building course, but, rather, a "power building" of his rowers. Each man is already capable of pressing his own weight, and in some cases, much more.

"Right now we're physically stronger than last year. This season we may even have an advantage of strength over our opponents," said the coach of last year's fourth place Dad Vail finishers.

A simulated shall whose oar pushes water around a large tank is the most peculiar part of room 9. Used only for practice of form, each man spends only 10 minutes a week rowing nowhere.

Faherty explained, "The feeling of rowing on this set-up is too artificial, and does not allow practice of balancing. The person rowing is stationery while the water moves. But it's very good for freshmen who have never been in a shell for the feel of the blade entering the water."

Any freshman 6'3" or over is invited to try out the apparatus. If interested, get in touch with Coaches Faherty or Betchick, either in WOPE Room 9 on Sunday, Tuesday, or Thursday nights, or in Boyden Room 211, phone number 545-2801.

Though crew is a team effort, and requires the one-ness of many, it is fitting to mention individuals, without whose individual strengths and cooperation there would be no crew program.

Newly elected co-captains, seniors Tom Mone and Dave Richard have five years of collegiate rowing experience between them. Juniors Bob Weimer, a one-year varsity veteran, Kevin O'Brien, the club's strong man, Rick Jones, last year's junior varsity stroke, and senior Steve Malone round out the upper classmen.

The bulk of the club is made up of 11 sophomores, Mel Streim, Steve Kinner, Tom Rurak, Doug Thompson, Jeff Allen, Clay Morin, Paul Winchell, Billy Moran, Joe Piela, Ted Fitzpatrick and Al Flanders, whose age and enthusiasm help make the crew's future promising.

Getting ready to return to the Connecticut River, hopefully in two weeks when the ice might be breaking in Sunderland, a council of crew members has declared alcohol and drugs off-limits for the utmost possibility of success this season.

When sophomores Piela and Moran were asked about the decision, they replied they thought everyone would take it upon himself to follow the rule. "Everybody's really psyched up for the '72 Olympics."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Astrology often is valuable in determining whether persons are compatible. Sokseys Dr. Lee Seechrest, professor of social psychology at Northwestern University. He made his findings reluctantly; he is not a friend of astrology. I recently debated with the good professor in Chicago.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can go far if you stop downgrading potential. Look ahead; refuse to be dismayed by petty persons. Forces are scattered. You need alternative methods, plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Check details which may appear minor. Key is to be observant. Money connected with estates, co operative projects is spotlighted. No one is likely to give anything to you for nothing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check tendency to act completely on impulse. You need additional information. Dig for it. Don't take too much for granted. One who really cares deserves special consideration.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be careful around animals. Pets could be frightened by quick, sudden moves. Remember resolutions concerning work, diet and health. Forgive cantankerous neighbor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Losing your temper could be costly. Know this and carefully survey situation. Accent on relations with members of opposite sex. There is change: travel, variety. You will be active.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Domestic area could be in somewhat of a turmoil. Be aware of property values. Business prospects need close observation. Take a chance on your won abilities. You'll be repaid.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives and in laws could pose problems. Key is to know when a situation has reached climax point. Don't attempt to hang on to what has passed. Delay short trips. Take care in writing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Caution is key in financial decisions, transactions. Care now could prevent expensive mistakes. What seems to be a bargain could be a scheme. Proceed accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Partnerships, long standing relationships are put to test. Give full play to intuition. Learn by teaching. Share knowledge. Cycle high, you will meet and overcome opposition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't neglect essentials. Avoid extremes. Get sufficient rest. Check loo requirements. One who insists on social whirl may be misguided. Pace yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friends may act in eccentric manner. Money could be involved. Protect possessions. Play cards close to chest. Means conservative course is advocated. Refuse to be extravagant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money, career these areas are accented. There are changes and a romantic interlude also may be in overall picture. Co-operate in project which could elevate prestige.

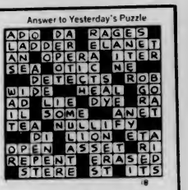
— TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: you have the ability to teach, nurse, to generally aid those in distress. You are a natural humanitarian. Your views usually are progressive. Your most significant month in 1971 is apt to be June.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea Corp.

Sports Notices

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL—Worcester State is the next opponent for the UMass women's basketball team. The game will be played at 6:00 tonight at the Women's P.E. Building. This coming Monday the team will meet Greenfield Community College in a 6:30 contest.

* * * * * * *



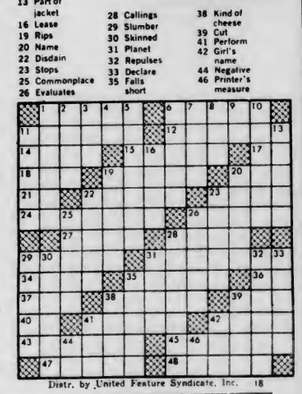
MSG BUS—The UMass student senate is sponsoring a bus to the UMass-George Washington basketball game at Madison Square Garden on the 27th of February. Tickets are now on sale for $7.40 at the Student Union ticket office. The price only includes the price of the bus trip. Tickets for the game can be purchased at the Boyden ticket office. The bus will be leaving from the Campus Center bus stop at 8:30 a.m. on the 27th.

BREAKING OUT FOR THE WEEKEND?
. . . make a getaway in a Peter Pan.

Peter Pan
The Ladies Shop, Student Union Bldg.
Univ. of Mass.
Tel. 545-2006 or 545-2328

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1 Persian fairies
6 Scorches
11 Dedicate
12 Original
14 Man's name
15 Seat
17 Symbol for tantalum
18 Nothing
19 Commonplace
20 Gratuity
21 Conjunction
22 Prophets
23 Rent
24 Instruct
26 Badgerlike mammal
27 Painful
28 Hail
29 Urges on 31 Things
34 Spare
35 Journeys forth
36 Latin conjunction
37 Lamprey
38 Reveals
39 Resort
40 Spanish article
41 Get up
42 Dillseed
43 Writing implement
45 Rail at
47 Lavishes fondness on
48 Breaks suddenly

DOWN

1 Punctuation mark
2 Bad
3 Fabulous bird
4 Pronoun
5 Conceal
6 Gaiters
7 Great Lake
8 Ventilate
9 Room (abbr.)
10 Sarcasm
11 Thick
13 Part of jacket
16 Lease
19 Rips
20 Name
22 Disdain
23 Stops
25 Commonplace
26 Evaluates
28 Callings
29 Slumber
30 Skinned
31 Planet
32 Beaulues
33 Declare
35 Falls short
38 Kind of cheese
39 Cut
41 Perform
42 Girl's name
44 Negative
46 Printer's measure

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 18

Skaters Crush Amherst, 10-2

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

Home games are beginning to look more and more alike for the UMass hockey team, as the Redmen overpowered Amherst Collage here last night, 10-2. A game characterized by superior Redman hustle and offensive power is reminiscent of last Wednesday's drowning of the visiting UConn Huskies, with tribute going to a much harrassed opposing goalie.

The major headline of the night, however, was the new seasonal scoring record set by sophomore Pat Keenan. Keenan's one goal and two assists bring his total points so far this year to 44, breaking former champion Jim Ellingwood's high 1961-62 quantity of 41.

On a scoring binge, Redman goals and assists were all well distributed among the players. Chico Shea, the man who had his stick in most every play, scored a hat trick; Eric Scrafield, his usual scrappy self, made his mark with two goals and two assists; Don Riley and Brian Sullivan both helped out on three conversions, as well as a Reilly beauty score.

In the first period, two early, shortly-spaced Amherst penalties made possible two separate UMass power play goals. Shea shoved one through Amherst goalie Paul Koulouris at 2:16 with help from Mssrs. Assist, Riley and Sullivan. At 5:59, Jack Edwards got a relay from Dan Reidy and Keenan, with four Lord Jeffs on the ice. Four minutes later, Amherst put on one of its best of its few consistant presses, to make the still newborn game close, 2-1, Redmen's lead. Team high scorer Ted Toombs got the puck past UMass goalie P.J. Flaherty at 9:41, assisted by Louis Sorgi.

When Scrafield scored the third UMass goal at 12:23 in a shorthanded situation, with teammate Al Nickerson in the penalty box for interference, the game's top billing turned its lights on the word Redmen. The next two periods had the spectators' heads all turned in the same direction - looking at the Amherst protectorate.

Goalie Koulouris turned away 23 UMass shots in the second period, to Flaherty's repulsion of two Amherst attempts.

Scrafield, Keenan, and Shea accounted for the three UMass goals of the period. It was not until 17:21 had passed that the Lord Jeffs' Russ Ives and Rocky Shepard put something together with scorer Jonathan Longley for their second and final goal.

Scrafield's was a dunker from a sweep-around-the-nets pass from Sullivan at 4:10, after Don Riley's shot hit the horizontal post for a near miss.

The backhanded unassisted Keenan Goal was the pointage that broke the record.

Amherst's main penalty sitter, Thomas Theye, was off when Shea connected on a beautifully executed three-on-two maneuver with Scrafield and Don Riley.

P.J. ON THE SAVE-UMass goalie P.J. Flaherty thwarts a bid by Vermont's high scoring Fred Hunt with a pad save. Coming into the action is Redman wing Eric Scrafield. Both UMass hockey stars were instrumental in last night's 10-2 win over Amherst College at Orr Rink. (MDC Photo by Ned Diffendale)

The beginning of the third period started Peter Erikson in the nets for UMass. His total number of saves was four, as again the Redmen dominated play by adding four more goals to the 6-2 score.

The pressure on Koulouris was tough. Most of the time the Lord Jeffs iced the puck to ward off a heart attack of their goalie. About every three minutes the Redmen would score: Don Riley, Shea, Mike Waldron, and Reidy were the last breadwinners.

Wrestlers Win

Using two forfeits and three pins, the UMass wrestlers showed good form in downing Dartmouth for their sixth consecutive win. Since the heartbreaking loss to Coast Guard by one point, the Redmen have shown dominating power against its last six foes scoring 203 team points to the opponents' 32.

Duncan Innes, 126 lbs., and George Zguris, 190 lbs., received forfeits to get the team off with ten points. Dave Amato, 118 lbs., stretched hiswon-lossrecord to 10-1 when he pinned R. Ryan in 2:28. Barry Godowsky, filling in for ailing Shelly Goldberg, followed with a 2:45 pin over R. Guv in the 134 lb. division. Barry weighed in at 126 bls.

Wrestling in the 142 lb. class, Clay Jester stretched his record to 9-4 with a hard 9-5 decision over Bob Elliott. Clay needed two takedowns and a near fall in the third period to break open the close bout. In the 150 lb. class Peter Rock never got started as he dropped a decisive 12-1 decision to S. Morelli. After no scoring in the first period, Morelli opened the bout up with an escape, take down, nearfall and predicament in the second period.

At 158 Jim Godkin took all the honors for the fastest pin by decking K. Loos in just 47 second. This also stands as the fastest pin of the season so far, and ranks as the fourth fastest pin in UMass history. The record for the fastest pin is held by Clay Jester in the 1970 New England Tournament, and it was accomplished in 31 seconds. Jim's record stands 3-1-3.

At 167 pounds Tom Young continued the pinning spree with a 1:0 1 job over R. Kimball. This too would rank in one of the ten fastest pins in UMass history. Young's record is only 2-1-1 as he is dropping into the 158 lb. division for the New England Tournament.

At 177 Ed Carlsson with a record of 8-3-2 ran into one of the strongest wrestlers in New England in Ted Thompson. Thompson is undefeated and seems to be in a class by himself in this division. He won the freshmen New Englands last year and is an Ohio State Champion.

In the unlimited clash Chris Hodson lost by riding time to Dick Pritchard. Both wrestlers escaped from their down position, however, Pritchard rode Hodson for a superior minute to pick up the deciding point.

The Redmen are home Saturday afternoon against a good 6-1 New Hampshire team. New Hampshire replaced UMass a couple of weeks ago in the number one position in New England but since have dropped in the ratings after a loss to Central Connecticut. Saturday's meet replaces a quadrangular originally scheduled for Amherst College. Amherst decided that they would benefit more from their dual meet with Tufts instead of a quad involving UMass and New Hampshire.

Hoop Featured At Varsity M Redmen To Be Ready For Last Six

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

The UMass Varsity M Club held its weekly luncheon at the Newman Center yesterday with the featured topic being Redman basketball with head coach Jack Leaman, assistant coach Peter Broaca and co-captains Ken Mathias and Julius Erving as guests.

The subject matter mainly centered on the Springfield game with Leaman, Mathias and Erving giving their impressions of the contest, the many questions surrounding the outcome and a look at what remains in the season after this defeat. Broaca gave his always indept scouting report of UMass' next three opponents with a film of the Boston College game and a question and answer period following to wrap up the luncheon.

Leaman stated plain as could be, "We weren't ready to play. We haven't played well in the past few games and we got caught. We want to win the next six games to be a team of tournament qualitv."

The coach went on to say, "Since the B.C. game both the players and the fans have been tired. When we got to Springfield I was told that 50 tickets had been returned from UMass."

He concluded, "Mentally it's hard to convince your players to be ready. It's also very hard to tell your team they can be beaten by an inferior product. But this happens in spots and this is why people go to the games."

Mathias was noticably concerned about the game and said of it, "It has thrown a scare into us. We know now that we can't scare anybody and we have to be ready for each game. Our front court was not in the game in the first half as we were not moving well on the court."

Looking ahead to the remaining games he added, "On the blackboard in the locker room is written 17 days until the end of the season. Most of the guys will be back next year, but for me these are the last 17 days of my career at UMass and I'm going to work my butt off in the next six games."

Erving called the end result of the game the saddest moment in his basketball career. He went on to day, "We got taken out of our game plan. Springfield is not in our class as a team, we just didn't execute our offense well. Now the game is all over and we have to put our heads forward for the next six games."

Broaca described the next three games for UMass as "three big games as far as a post season tournament is concerned. If we stumble we'll go to New York - as spectators."

In this stretch the Redmen play three opponents in four days; Friday against Rhode Island, Saturday against Maine and Monday against Syracuse with all the games at home.

Broaca's reports went like so: URI is a tough luck team. It's center Hazzard has flunked off the team which makes the Rams a small unit. Its record coming into the game will be 6-15. In the conference the record is 4-1. Thus the Rams have only one thing to salvage, that being the YanCon title and they'll be ready to give their all.

Maine's record is 7-10 with the toughest thing about playing the Bears being that UMass will have no time to get ready for them. Maine is lead by 6'5 Nick Susi, a junior, who's averaging 10 rebounds a game.

Syracuse has its eyes on a post season tournament. The Orangemen are 14-5 and have beaten LaSalle, currently ranked 11th in the nation, West Virginia, Army twice and took Penn, ranked fourth in the nation, to overtime before losing. They are lead by a 6'11 center, Bill Smith, who is one of the best senior centers in the east.

Next week the Varsity M Club luncheon will be meeting again on Wednesday at 12:15 at the Newman Center with hockey coach Jack Canniff as the featured guest.

Last Night's Intramurals

Volleyball
Terrors 2, Crushers 0
Monuments 2, Colts 1
Bruisers 2, Cougars 0
Seagrams WBF, Leopards
Panthers 2, Chipmunks 1
Beta Chi 2, Deacons 0
Stouts WBF, Eagles
Smitty's 2, Jocks 0
Team 2, Baggers 0
Browns 2, Jocks 0
Smokers 2, 18 1
Misfits 2, Volleys 1
Vikoms 2, Flats 0
Eleven 2, X 0
Cuff 2, EMF 0
3 M's 2, Dusters 0

Co Rec
banditos 2, Stouts 0
Kopeta 2, Jacks 1
Bouncers 2, Shorts 1
Lemons 2, Rigatonis 0
ACS 2, Deacons 0
B plus B 2, Limes 1

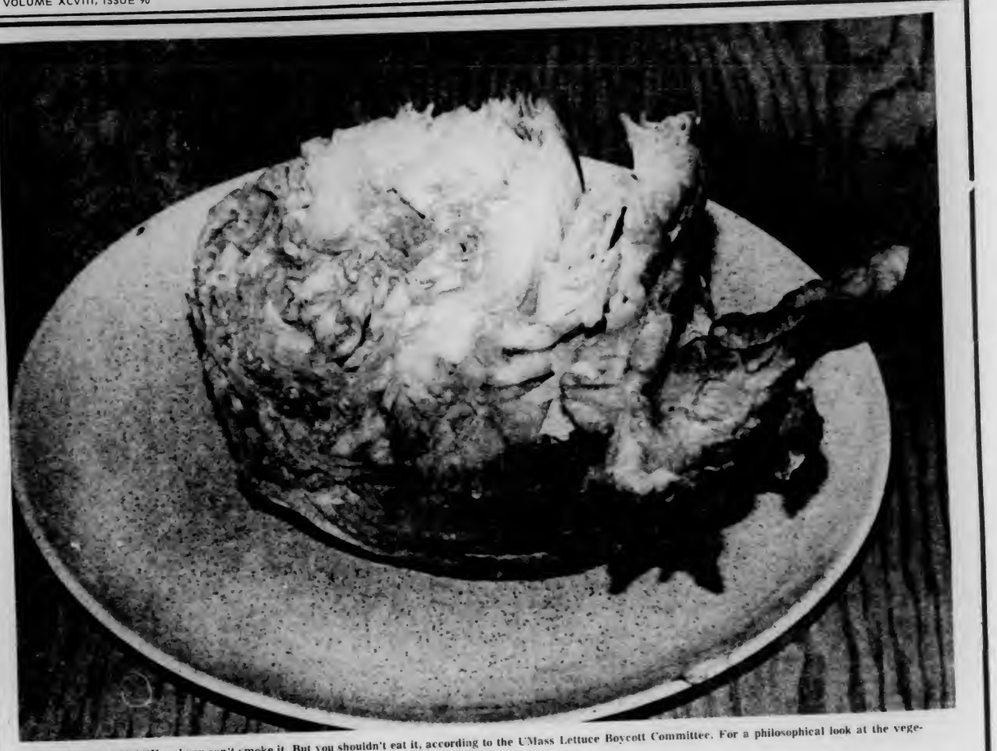
Girl Gymnasts Down Marblehead

University of Massachusetts girl gymnasts had a busy weekend. On Friday, Varsity was supposed to meet Newton-Marblehead Elite Team for a close competition. However, only Marblehead girls appeared on the scene, bringing the message that Newton had to back out of the commitment at the last minute. Since UMass mixed team (JV-s with some Varsity help) had already met Marblehead alone two weeks before, Friday's meet ended up being somewhat of a let-down. There was no spark in the presentation of either side. UMass Varsity won, scoring their lowest of the season, 87.85. Marblehead did not perform as well as the last time either, posting 79.15. Sue Matsu, from Marblehead, won vaulting with 8.8. Linda Seikunas and Margie Combs tied for first in Floor Exercise, scoring 7.75. Anne Burmeister came first on the beam with 7.95 and Margie Combs won bars with 7.85.

On Monday night, UMass JV team had a successful and spirited competition with Braintree High School. Judy Cardozo, competing all-around for the first time, took first on the balance beam (7.0) and second places in the remaining events. Chris Kopf won the floor exercise, scoring 7.3. Vaulting was won by Linda Nelligan from Braintree and uneven bar honors went to Marina Rodrigues, who competed for JV in two events on Monday. The final score was UMass JV-s 68.40, Braintree High School, 64.75.

Tonight's Intramurals

VOLLEYBALL



COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:30	PMD vs. LCA
2		ASP vs. PSK
3		ZN vs. SAM
4		SPE vs. PSD
5		APO vs. ATG
6		SAE vs. PLP
7		KS vs. TEP
8		DC vs. TC
9		Cans vs. Flaming A's
10		Eagles vs. Maroons
1	7:30	Burners vs. Bombers
2		Education vs. Gunners
3		Inter. Ed. vs. Conglos
4		PP vs. TKB
5		SAE vs. Crushers
6		Princes vs. Fleas
7		LT vs. TT
8		Cans vs. Sextet
9		Lovers vs. Ids
1	8:30	Erudites vs. Heads
2		Jacks vs. Boys
3		Dilloughs vs. Sigmas
4		Hockers vs. Tubes
5		Oxford vs. Hurts
6		Sutts vs. Canaille
1	9:30	Hi-Lo's vs. Lemons
2		Redwoods vs. Pipers
3		Hemlocks vs. Brigade

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Warm and sunny, intermittent earthquakes

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 90 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1971

IT AIN'T CABBAGE-and you can't smoke it. But you shouldn't eat it, according to the UMass Lettuce Boycott Committee. For a philosophical look at the vegetable we all know and love, see the story below. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

Heads May Roll As Boycott Gathers Steam

By RENE COMPTOIS
MDC Staff

Lettuce is the stuffing of life. It is the stuffing of sandwiches. It is the stuffing of salads. It is also the stuffing of people's wallets.

Lettuce, poor innocent lettuce, has gotten itself into a controversy not unlike the one grapes found themselves in last year.

Migrant workers in California worked for years without any kind of contract from their management. A Mexican- American named Cesar Chavez organzed his people and was successful in forming a grape pickers union, the United Farm Workers. Now he is fighting for the same kind of deal for the lettuce pickers.

Lettuce growers secretly signed union contracts with the Teamsters Union this summer, allowing growers to continue exploiting the migrant workers. The lettuce pickers went out on a strike and will continue to strike until the growers sign contracts with them. As in the case with the grape pickers, boycotts have been planned and people have been asked not to eat non-union lettuce.

The UMass Lettuce Boycott Committee has designated Wednesday, Feb. 24, as "a day of support" for Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers.

At their meeting last night, the committee planned a series of activities in support of the boycott, "highlighted by a protest at one of the large supermarkets in town."

Planned for Wednesday, February 24th, are a movie and guest speaker.

The C.B.S. documentary Harvest of Shame will be shown in the Student Union Ballroom on the hour from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. This 1960 film depicts the plight of the migrant worker, a fate which has hardly improved since the film's production.

In addition, Marcos Munos, the New England Coordinator of the boycott, will be on campus most of the day to address students and answer any questions on the boycott.

The L.B.C. "stressed it's need for student support and involvement" to make the day a success.

Until the lettuce growers sign contracts with Chavez's United Farm Workers, the L.B.C. urges everyone to go lettuce-less.

The Inside:

Senate Bi-Election Results Page three

Free Concert Proposals Considered Page two

Fac-Sen Approves Picketing Report Page two

Conclusion of "Freshman Plight" Page eight

Faculty Senate OK's Picketing Code Report

By JAMES H. MITCHELL
MDC Staff

In a 37-35 vote, the faculty senate voted last night to recommend the report outlined by the Ad Hoc Picketing Code Committee.

Among other things, the proposals in the report would prohibit students from demonstrating within hallways that lead to either classrooms or faculty offices.

In the discussion that preceeded the vote, it was pointed out that this may be in violation of the Constitution. This was countered by the argument that a university is primarily an institution for learning and research. Picketing in these areas would be distractional to those engaged in educational persuits, it was said.

In the Health Council's report, chairman Robert W. Gage noted that electrical appliances continue to be a great fire hazard in the dorms. Most of the recent fires in the dorms have been caused by electric hot plates, he said.

His comments led to the recommendation that these appliances be banned from the rooms. Since the report made no provision for enforcement of this code, the discussion was tabled until means of enforcement are worked out.

In other business it was resolved that classes in Hebrew, and possibly Arabic and Greek be incorporated into the Classics department rather than the Hispanic language department as previously recommended.

Campus Security Problems Reviewed

By JIM GOLD
MDC Staff

Money for additional personnel, a new director of security, and all around cooperation are the problems facing the University police as they administer protection of property, person, and handling complaints, according to several administrators interviewed by the MDC.

The search for a new director of safety security is also underway, said Douglas Forsyth of the Chancellor's staff, to replace Col. Marchant who retired recently. "The police, students, faculty, and administration must work together...we need closer relations. The support from students has been good" he said.

-According to James Fitzgerald, security office, dormitories on this campus at present are protected by eight roving security guards, six resident hall assistants, cruising officers, and thirty-eight students on work study programs. These are augmented by students hired from special funds to act as receptionists in some dorms.

He said, the green uniformed security guards roam the campus but have no police power. The security guards are assigned as follows: Southwest, one; Central, two; Orchard Hill, one; and Northeast two, with one extra for Cashin. On weekend nights, more are used, said Fitzgerald. The resident hall assistants are each stationed on shifts in the four largest girls dorms, Coolidge, J.Q. Adams, and Patterson in Southwest, and Van Meader in Central, said Fitzgerald. The work study students act in different positions in the dorms to which they are assigned.

According to Forsyth, a "deficiency budget" bill has been filed in the legislature which would add funds to security. If passed, student programs would be increased; professional security guards to be placed in dorms would be hired; and four additional roving police officers would be added, while revising the present set up to put more officers on beats, said Forsyth.

More police are needed on beats where they can be seen, he explained; this cuts the number of assaults. Praising the student security in the dorms, Forsyth said it has been most effective and is good for students. "It gets them involved and also gives them an income," he said.

Forsyth expressed the desire to see two or three security men in a tower. "With 41 buildings, seven days a week, that's a heck of a lot of people to protect, he said.

Parking security still presents a problem with several possible solutions, Forsyth pointed out. He expressed the use of lights, fencing, and additional surveillance as answers to the problem.

Pay increases for all security employees are needed, said Forsyth. If you want good service, "If we expect good service, we must remunerate it," he said; they are grade ten on the University pay scale..

Univ. Concert Committee Meets Plans Begun for Free Concert

An informal meeting of the "free concert weekend" and University Concert series met last night in the Campus Center.

Some of the topics brought up were: who has the right to vote, where the concert should be held, and the best time for having it. Proposals were made to hold the concert in the field near Bowditch Lodge (behind Southwest), the bowl or the stadium.

The best time for the concert as expressed by the committee would be sometime in the spring, perhaps in April. Due to the nature of the concert and the volume of students expected, it is anticipated that the concert would be held outdoors.

Money for this concert would come from all the classes funds ('71-'74) with perhaps the Greeks co-sponsoring this major event.

Forseeable problems of this event are the University authorities agreeing to such an event, and the administration's fear of a "small Woodstock on campus."

The general consensus was that the groups that would appear at the University should not be really major groups, but rather semi-famous ones. This idea was proposed in order to nullify the idea that the whole country would come to Amherst.

An idea for the type of talent to appear was expressed by several Black students. They felt that some Black talent would be appropriate and necessary, to the concert.

All students are urged to attend the concert series meeting in order to express their ideas and opinions of the type of talent to appear. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday at a time to be announced.

Queen Selection: 'Nothing to Say'

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

The case for an injunction to halt the Winter Carnival Queen Contest will be heard today at 5 by the UMass General Court. Julie Ierardi, Junior Class President, has been subpoenaed to appear before the General Court and give the Junior Class position concerning write-in ballots.

At present no decision has been made as for the validity of write-in ballots for Jim LaMacchia. When asked if a decision had been made, Ierardi had no comment.

She went on to say she felt the Collegian hasn't been impartial in reporting the Winter Carnival Queen issue. "The Collegian hasn't been very nice to us," she said at a meeting of the Junior Class Executive Council.

Russell Vieira of the Queen Selection Committee agreed, "The Collegian hasn't been impartial," he said. "It hasn't given the Junior Class a fair shake" in reporting the controversy.

When asked the time the voting booth will be open today, Ierardi reiterated time and again, "we have absolutely nothing to say at this time."

The voting booth is situated in the main lobby of the Student Union. Voting hours have been sporadic. The crowning of the Queen is scheduled for tomorrow night at the UMass-URI basketball game. A mock coronation by LaMacchia supporters is to take place in the Cage Saturday night along with the official ceremony.

Tonight!

Friday night at 6:30 P.M. "The Senate in Review" will be preempted for a special production of the Black Mass Communications Project, recapping the events of the past week, Black Liberation Week. The Black Mass Communications Project can be heard three times weekly on WMUA 91.1 FM, from 7 to 10 P.M. on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights.

Remember
Today is Monday

Is our image slipping?

Some people may have us wrong. It's possible.

For instance, we Paulists are known for the printed and the spoken word. Books, radio, and TV. The glamorous world.

But there is another, bigger world in which the Paulist moves:

A dusty corner in Utah where Paulists offer material and spiritual relief to migrant workers.

An area known as East Village and a Paulist who understands the meaning of "taking a trip."

A Newman Center on a troubled college campus and a priest who is not a judge but an understanding ear and a mediator.

Being a Paulist isn't easy.
Being a Paulist isn't glamorous.
It's better.

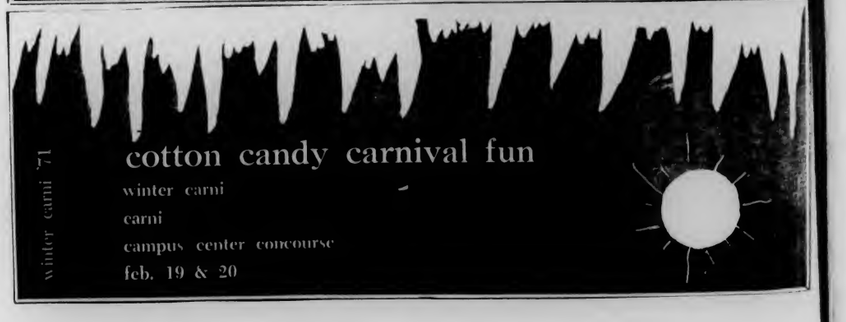
For more information on Paulist priestly spirit write to:

Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P.
Vocation Director

Paulist Fathers
Room 112
415 West 59th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019



FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES
events
BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

THURS. - SAT., FEB. 18 - 20 — 8 P.M.
OPEN THEATRE ENSEMBLE
Joseph Chaikin & Roberta Sklar, Directors
2 performances of acclaimed "TERMINAL"
1 performance of New Work in Progress
Daily Workshops, Seminars, Lecture Demonstration and Master Classes

FRI. - SAT., FEB. 26 - 27 — 8 P.M.
GARY BURTON QUARTET
2 evening performances plus Seminar and Jazz Workshop

For complete ticket information:
Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall,
Telephone 545-0202
(or Bowker one hour before event)

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU in the Spring
EUROPE in the Summer
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m.-5p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family —

Socialism Paired With Women's Lib In Playwright Myrna Lamb's Lecture

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

Playwright and spokeswoman for the Women's Liberation movement Myrna Lamb appeared before a small group of people last night in the Bristol Room of the SU and discussed woman's role in society, the myths of marriage and fulfillment through pregnancy, and the male chauvinist suppression of women as artists and intelligent humans in their own right.

According to Lamb, the "nuclear family is the cradle of evil in society. Women are like slaves on the plantation," she continued. "They brag about their masters because that's the only important thing in their lives. The woman is manipulated by man into becoming the tool of capitalism. She provides a cheap way to produce a labor source to augment capitalists. She also provides the husband with the ability to assert his masculinity and superiority by providing him through the marriage contract, with an identification of his heirs."

Lamb attacked the literary and social worth of Love Story and The Sensuous Woman, labeling them "criminal offenses against female society."

"When men are present," she continued, "women become passive, silent and hopeful. The female in our society is trained to be the family servicer, serving husband, children, and house, and to go no further. Every woman is afraid in her soul that someone will find out that she is not the "mystical female" that she is supposed to be."

Miss Lamb went on to flesh out her theories in light of her writings. Illustrating her talk with examples from some of her plays, notably Mod Donna, she spoke of the woman's task in society as being the rescue of the world - environmentaly, socially, and sexually. "Be willing to take risks," she asserted. "Women have to be citizens in every sense of the word. Disregard sex roles. Try to change government. Save the world for yourselves."

Lamb also opened the floor to anyone to present the political policies of socialism and how it ties in with the Women's Liberation movement. After lengthy debate upon the socialist connotations inherent in the movement, Miss Lamb departed for another speaking engagement at Hampshire College.

PLAYWRIGHT MYRNA LAMB

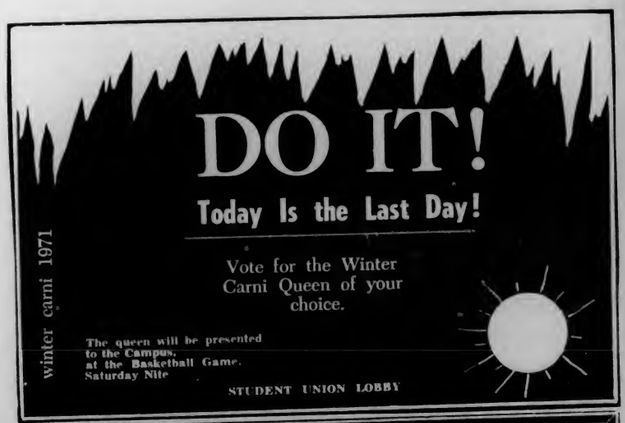
Senate Bi-Election Results

Commuters:

Richard H. Staples
Patty Asack
John Gauthier
Robert Abbott
Edward B. Fogarty
Richard A. Perlman
Chuck Halberg
Jack Lovely
Michael Chrobak

Dormitories:

Kennedy (U)-Harry Ray (write-in)
Thoreau - Maggie Houghton
Webster - Jim Concannon
John Adams (U)-Elliot Sherman
John Quincy Adams-Lisa Mandel
Cance-John Nagle, Jan R. Slickman
Cashin-unreported
Field-unreported
James-unreported



Fraternities:

Kenneth Marchurs
Rick Pine
Stephen Young

Sororities:

Coleen Roche

The SUG Board also held its elections last night. Its results were: Bob Nims elected President, Jill Klein elected Vice-President, and Rocky Hodgson elected Sec-Treasurer.

HOLDINGSQUEEZINGKISSINGHUGGINGARMSAROUNDYOU ANDJUSTPLAINLOVING
LOVE 'N MUSIC BY
HEY BROOKLYN
FRIDAY and SATURDAY
February 19th & 20th and 26th & 27th
Top of the Campus, 9 p.m.
BRING SOMEONE YOU LOVE TO BE WITH

WINTER CARNI 71
winter olympics
Tomorrow at 12:30 at the pond
speed skating, snoeshoe race, dogsled race, tobogan run, powder puff hockey game

In The Nation And The World

Deeper and Deeper Into Laos

SAIGON (AP)—South Vietnamese forces cut three major North Vietnamese supply routes through southern Laos and drove back two Communist attacks in eastern Cambodia, killing 116 of the enemy, military spokesmen announced today.

Heavy American air strikes along the South Vietnamese-Cambodian border, about midway between the two ground drives, hit at North Vietnamese buildups threatening South Vietnam's Central Highlands, and another 56 enemy were reported killed.

The strikes could presage a new South Vietnamese push into northeast Cambodia. About 2500 South Vietnamese troops are massed 12 miles from the border.

A spokesman for the South Vietnamese Command also announced that 16,000 Saigon troops are now operating in Laos, an increase of 5000, and 1600 fresh troops have been committed to the

The battle fronts shaped up this way:

—1600 South Vietnamese operating in Laos cut east-west Rte. 9 between the border and the trans-shipment point of Sepone, and Rtes. 92 and 921 going south from Rte. 9.

—2500 Saigon troops are in South Vietnam's Central Highlands, 12 miles from northeastern Cambodia and 200 miles south of the Rte. 9 operation.

—23,000 South Vietnamese troops are operating another 200 miles farther south on a 100-mile front, blocking Highways 1 and 7 leading from eastern Cambodia into the southern half of South Vietnam.

North Vietnamese forces continued to put up stiff resistance, both in Laos and Cambodia, with heavy antiaircraft fire thrown up at the hundreds of US helicopters supporting the drives.

Spokesmen announced that three more helicopters and an F4 Phantom fighterbomber were downed in Laos. Three of the helicopter crewmen were rescued, but there was no report on the fate of the others.

The two fliers aboard the F4 were missing.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said the forwardmost elements of the Saigon forces in Laos had advanced westward about two miles and were now about 17 1/2 miles from the Vietnamese border and about eight miles from Sepone. South Vietnamese reconnaissance units have been moving in and out of Sepone since the operation began Feb. 8.

Spokesmen in Saigon claimed the going was slow because the troops were stopping to search out enemy caches, and rain and low clouds were limiting US air support.

A spokesman for the US Command said American helicopters flew only 100 mission into Laos yesterday, compared to more than 100 a day earlier.

There were indications from the field, however, that stiffening enemy resistance was also slowing the drive, and that the South Vietnamese were issuing incomplete reports on their casualties.

Military sources said the South Vietnamese are up against at least four North Vietnamese infantry in Laos and possibly a fifth, some artillery regiments and a significant number of rear service units. They gave no estimate of the total number of troops. A North Vietnamese infantry regiment is supposed to number between 2500 and 2900 men, but often they are below strength.

The sources said the cutting of Rts. 9, 92 and 921 would seriously reduce North Vietnam's supply capacity.

In Laos, North Vietnamese forces slammed four 122mm rockets into the Long Cheng base, damaging the regional military headquarters of Gen. Vang Pao, a Defense Ministry spokesman in Vientiane said.

The spokesman, Gen. Thongpanh Knoky, would not deny reports that a Thai battalion had been flown in Long Cheng to bolster its defenses. Two batteries of Thai artillery are known to be stationed at the base, which is operated by the US Central Intelligence Agency. Other sources reported that as many as 2000 reinforcements have been moved into the area, bringing the total under Vang Pao's command to about 8000 men.

More than 6000 North Vietnamese are reported in the area.

A total of 19 US helicopters and two fighterbombers have been lost in the first 10 days of the L operation, with 24 Ame killed, 5 missing and 16 w official spokesmen said to

Pilots report a dozen o other helicopters have be down but have been recov

The losses included 12 h ters and two F4 Phantom bombers downed in Laos an helicopters brought down northwest corner of South nam.

Nixon Proposes Six-Point Medical Care Package

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon proposed today a six-point, low-budgeted package of health-care proposals to insure adequate medical care for all American families through a vast expansion of private insurance reorganization of the medical care system.

In a 17-page message to Congress, Nixon offered a comprehensive alternative to Democratic proposals for national health insurance by emphasizing federally stimulated reforms of the current medical care program.

His initiatives ranged from new legislation to require all businesses to furnish employes comprehensive private insurance to new federal backing for pre-paid group practice arrangements.

In addition, Nixon wants most of the present federal-state medicaid program for poor persons replaced with a new program of federally financed private health insurance; elimination of the $5.30 contribution by the elderly for supplemental medicare coverage; new arrangements for medical care in isolated rural and big ghetto areas; and major new financial support to increase the supply of doctors and other health personnel.

The President said his plan for a national health insurance partnership is designed to correct the inadequacies of the present system-"not by destroying our present insurance system but by improving it."

"Rather than giving up on a system which has been developing impressively," he said, "we should work to bring about further growth which will fill the gaps we have identified."

The President offered this reply to influential congressional Democrats who believe health care should be nationalized:

"I believe that our government and our people, business and labor, the insurance industry and the health profession can work together in a national partnership to achieve our health objectives. I do not believe that the achievement of these objectives requires the nationalization of our health insurance industry."

Nationalization, Nixon said, would mean "that federal personnel would inevitably be approving the budgets of local hospitals, setting free schedules for local doctors, and taking other steps which could easily lead to the complete federal domination of all of American medicine.

"That is an enormous risk-and there is no need for us to take it," he said. "There is a better way-a more practical, more effective, less expensive and less dan way-to reform and renew nation's health system.

Nixon included no over-a estimate with his message. cost of individual items men totaled $2.8 billion. This co to cost estimates for the sw Democratic nationalization that range upwards fro billion a year.

The President placed stress on requiring that a surance progrms, federal private, allow recipients to in so-called health mainte organization.

Such medical groups enrollees comprehensive ranging from prevention th hospitalization for a fixed a premium.

The President budgete million as planning and st money for a nationwide netw the maintenance organizatio handful of these now exist, ra from the health insurance pl New York City to the Permanent Foundation California.

Mitchell Denies Wiretap Charge

WASHINGTON — Attorney General John Mitchell today denied the use of any illegal wiretap evidence in the case against Rev. Philip Berrigan.

Supporters of Berrigan, indicted on a charge of conspiracy to kidnap presidential advisor Henry A. Kissenger, have charged that illegal wiretap evidence formed the basis of the federal grand jury indictment.

"I can assure you, with respect to the allegations that were made by some of these parties that appeared before the grand jury with respect to wiretapping that they are absolutely, completely untrue," Mitchell said Wednesday.

A tape interview with Mitchell was carried on a CBS-TV news program.

FIVE BEAUTIFUL GIRLS AWAIT YOU

Vote today for:
WINTER CARNI QUEEN

The queen and her court will appear at the UM - Maine game, Saturday night

Remember:
Today is the last day to vote.
So do it in the
Student Union Lobby

Winter Carni 1971

AVOID THE ROACH

INPORIUM

NEW AND USED CLOTHING
62 MAIN ST. AMHERST

Hillel Coming Attractions

Feb. 21° Sunday morning Brunch with Dr. Leonard Ehrlich 11 a.m., Hillel Center.

Feb. 21 - 22° Hillel Elections, Hillel Center.

Feb. 26° Friday evening "Soul" service and dinner. Reservations will be accepted until Feb. 22, $1.50 each.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second-class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Films, Movies The Cinema

By RUSSELL C. MUNDY
MDC Staff

1939 was a very good year. "Ninotchka," "The Wizard of Oz," "Stagecoach," "Wuthering Heights," and "Destry Rides Again," all of which continue to live in the art houses and film societies across the country, appeared for the first time that year. But with the release of "Gone With the Wind" on December 14, 1939 in Atlanta, a very good year became a very big year.

Blessed (or burdened) with

But no one, no movie, before or since, has stirred the public as did Gone With TheWind television, it is difficult for us to appreciate the relationship that the American public once experienced with the movies. The old movie fan had an abiding interest in the movie stars as they were in "real" life; the legends that grew up with Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Jean Harlow, and the last great movie star, Marilyn Monroe, were as important to the public as their films. In contrast today's television viewer is interested in Bronson, the role, rather than the actor who plays it. Joanne Woodward was asked the difference between being a movie star and a television actress. She answered, "When I was in the movies I heard people say, 'There goes Joanne Woodward' Now they say, 'There goes somebody I think I know.'"

The public was informed and concerned about its stars to an extent that seems only absurd today. In 1925 the newly married Gloria Swanson returned from Europe and trained from New York to Los Angeles while the American public lined the tracks stopping the train with shouts, "Glorious Gloria, the kid who made good." But no one, no movie, before or since, has stirred the public as did "Gone With the Wind."

Margaret Mitchell's sprawling novel was released in 1936 and became an immediate best seller. It was not simply a best seller, but became one of a handful of novels that was found on all America's bookshelves. Uncle Tom's Cabin was another. One expects that there are many, many copies of both on Amherst bookshelves today.

When the late David O. Selznick, first-class, show-biz producer, acquired the film rights to the novel speculation about who might play the role of Scarlet O'Hara began with a vengeance. Bette Davis and Katherine Hepburn were the front runners until one night (or so the story goes) during the shooting of the burning of Atlanta. A young British actress, Vivian Leigh, visited the set and Selznick saw her green eyes against a background of Atlanta aflame and Scarlet was cast that night. Selznick waited not less than two years to get Clark Gable away from MGM in order to cast him as the dashing, irresistible rascal, Rhett Butler.

The production was immense: $4,000,000., 220 minutes of playing time, three directors--George Cukor, Victor Fleming, Sam Wood, two screen writers--Sidney Howard and Ben Hecht, five cameramen, and countless awards. To this day the proper credits have not been untangled. Lee Garmes for instance did all of the camera work and lighting up to the railway scene and never received credit.

Speaking of technical production: My own eagerness to see the film again is salted with apprehension. It is an epic on the grandest scale and it requires a big screen and brilliant color in order to work its magic. The Student Union has leased 35mm projectors for the showings so the color, breath-taking in its day, will at least be given an even chance.

One hears a good deal about the student activities fee: What does it do? Where does it go? Whatever the current answers some of it should go to equip the Student Union with first-class film projector equipment. Comfortable seats (Wait until you shift your way through three hours and forty minutes of "Gone With the Wind". We may all be permanently impressed if not disfigured) and even more important, 35mm arc-light projectors.

If you saw the incredible drizzle that purported to be "Charge of the Light Brigade" at the Campus Center Thursday night, you saw a good example of an over-extended that if the Studen: Union choosed to produce big films, and I think they should because theirs is the only budget that can afford them, then they should do them up smartly..

16mm print. The pigment was lost and the sound-- the English accents, incomprehensible. It seems to me that if the Student Union chooses to produce the big films, and I think they should because theirs is the only budget that can afford them, then they should do them up smartly.

"Gone With the Wind" will of course be different for each of us this weekend. Where once it was a definite portrait of a war-ridden South, now it is recognized nostalgically, bitterly too., in its place among the heirlooms of American legend. As the Westerners rode into the sunset, so too does the ante-bellum South of "Gone With the Wind."

This weekend the most widely circulated, the most often seen, the most profitable film in history will begin with, "There was a land of cavaliers and cottonfields in the Old South" and end a civil war later with, "After all, tomorrow is another day."

Weekend: Not The Best

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Films

ADAM'S RIB (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith, 7:30 and 9:30)
One of the best of the Spencer Tracy - Katherine Hepburn comedies. It's a battle between the sexes with Hepburn playing a woman's lawyer defending a case in which Tracy is the judge.

BREWSTER MCCLOUD (Campus Cinema, Hadley)
A fantasy involving a young man who lives in the Astrodome and who wants to fly. Robert Altman assembled some of his MASH crew (including Sally "Hot Lips" Kellerman) in this irreverent black comedy which attacks nearly every aspect of American life.

CHARLY (Sunday, SU, 7 and 9)
Cliff Robertson won an Oscar for his performance as a mentally retarded man who was transformed into a genius through a scientific experiment. Based upon the novel "Flowers for Algernon".

DOCTOR'S WIVES (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
One should indulge in an insulin injection before seeing this maudlin bit of nonsense reminiscent of a Lana Turner - Sandra Dee drama.

DUCK SOUP and HORSEFEATHERS (Campus Cinemas, Friday and Saturday, 11)
Two of the finest Marx Brothers comedies. DUCK SOUP features Groucho as Prime Minister Firefly of Freedona, Harpo and Chico as peanut vendors who become secret agents, and Zeppo rounds out the quartet as Groucho's cohort and straight man. Considered by Groucho their craziest film.
In HORSEFEATHERS Groucho returns to college as a new president in this slapstick satire of education, college life,sports and love during the Depression.

EASY STREET, THE CURE, LITTLE RASCALS (Friday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College)
Charlie Chaplin stars in two silent comedy classics, also on the program are some great Little Rascal and Laurel and Hardy comedies.

GONE WITH THE WIND (Friday and Saturday, SU Ballroom)
Frankly I don't give a damn to spend four hours sitting in a miserably uncomfortable seat in the Union Ballroom watching probably a thirty year old print of this film while a girl nearby heaves and sobs in rare fashion.

THE GUIDE (Saturday, Mahar Auditorium, 7:15)
A sensitive film adaptation of R.K. Narayan's novel involving a romantic triangle.

I LOVE MY . . . WIFE (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Elliot Gould stars in this serious comedy about a husband bored with his wife and finds his interests on the side. Brenda Vacarro co-stars in a fine performance as his wife in a poorly-conceived role.

LOVE STORY (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
"I liked it!" Richard Nixon.

MY NIGHT AT MAUD'S (Talkie, Northampton)
A highly tauted French film. The official French entry for the 1970 Academy Awards.

PHANTOM OF THE OPERA (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)
The 1925 Lon Chaney original. You've seen the frightening scene at least a hundred times; its when Mary Philben slaps Chaney's mask onto the floor exposing a face which makes Quasimodo look like a Winter Carnival Queen finalist. Much of its hokum, excepting Chaney's masterful performance.

THE PRIVATE LIVES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Sun-Tues. Academy of Music, Northampton)
Billy Wilder's satire on Arthur Conan Doyle's detective. Its jokes are rather strained, such as references about his drug-taking and his relationship to Watson.

THE REVOLUTIONARY (Through Saturday, Academy of Music, Northampton)
Jon Voight gives one of the best and most neglected performances of the year in this Kafkaesque study of student revolution.

"THE SILENCE OF GOD" TRILOGY (Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday, Mahar)
Three films of Igmar Bergman. It has been called one of the most significant contributions to intellectual cinema. The first film THROUGH THE GLASS DARKLY explored a family which slowly is going mad. The second WINTER LIGHT is an ascetic study of a Lutheran pastor living a dead existence. The third and final film THE SILENCE explores this theme further.

THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY? (Thursday, SU, 7 and 9)
An emotionally-draining experience. Director Sidney Pollack has filmed Horace McCoy's novel making it, perhaps, the most existential film ever made. Both Jane Fonda and Gig Young won important acting awards in a large excellent cast featuring Susannah York and Red Buttons. Winner of the National Board of Review's Best Picture of 1969.

TORA! TORA! TORA! (Amherst Cinema, Amherst)
Pearl Harbor day, Hollywood style. The Japanese are crafty, the Americans buffoons, and the acting just plain terrible. The special effects seemed to have filmed in a War PinBall Machine with a Kodak Super-Eight home camera.

TRASH (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Joe Dallesandro and transvestite Holly Woodlawn play the people next door you enjoy over, now and then, for a few laughs. Andy Warhol produced his protegee Paul Morrisey's first film which is someone's idea of a television situation comedy set in the East Village. Joe's problems are quite explicit for, as hard as he tries, he can't in any way make it. Holly Woodlawn gives one of the most touching performances of the year in this the best Warhol-Factory film to date.

WHERE'S POPPA? (Through Saturday, Academy Music, Northampton)
Carl Riener's slapstick attempt at black comedy. George Segal as a man trying to cut the apron strings of his lunatic mother (Ruth Gordon).

Theater

THE HOMECOMING
Harold Pinter's brittle drama about the strange relationships between four males and a woman continues throughout this weekend at Theater 14, Smith College. ($)

THE OPEN THEATER
This acclaimed off-off Broadway troupe will give two more performances, tonight and Saturday, at Bowker Auditorium.
Tonight they will perform a production "in rehearsal" and yet titled. Tomorrow they will again repeat their acclaimed production of TERMINAL. ($)

Music

MARTHA AND THE VANDELLAS
The Motown Recording stars will give a concert of the 'Golden Oldie Sound' this Saturday night at 8 in Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College. ($)

PAUL PENA BLUES BAND
Tonight, Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. ($)

THE UNICORM, THE GORGON AND THE MANTICORE
American operatic composer Carl Mennotti wrote this magic fable for chorus, dance, and orchestra. Saturday evening at 8:15 at the Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

There are ..... m&m in the jar on the concourse of the Campus Center.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

N.B. If you want the jar & the m&m put this in the box at the jar.

The Dragon: Symbol Of China

Far Eastern Culture Shown On China Night

The UMass Chinese Club will hold China Night on Saturday February 20, at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

China Night will be a totally student-planned and student-run program which will feature Chinese folk dances, the Lion Dance, Chinese folk songs, a performance on the Chinese Vertical Flute, two short movies on Chinese art and a painting demonstration.

A performance on the violin will be given by Mr. Paul Chang, who has won a first prize in a high school violin contest and also is a member of All-State Orchestra. He will play Handel's sonata #3 in F for violin and piano, accompanied by Miss Anita Sorell.

There will also be a demonstration on Chinese Martial Art, Kung Fu. It contains not only the arts and techniques of bare hand fighting but also of various classical weapons such as sword, spear, chain and stick.

Originally an exercise designed to train one's mind and build one's soul in order to achieve self-discipline and live in harmony with the universe, the real beauty and strength of Kung Fu does not lie in them. The beauty lies in the humbleness and patience of the person who has learned Kung Fu, the strength lies in his belief of living together in peace and love.

The lion dance is a traditional festival activity. It is colorful, joyous and boisterous and it symbolizes bringing good luck and sharing happiness together.

There will be $1.00 admission charge to cover the cost of refreshments which will consist of such Chinese delicatessen and pastry as Egg roll, Shrimp Ravioli, Sao-Mai and Ma-La cake. Reservations can be made at the Student Union ticket office.

Sunday Lecture Planned

Mr. Robert Hohler of Putney, Vt., will be the guest speaker at the 11 o'clock Sunday services of the Unitarian Society, 121 North Pleasant Street. His topic will be "Jesus is a Co-Conspirator"--Notes and Reflections on the Berrigan Brothers, the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Human Lives--where we go from here.

Mr. Hohler is presently Director of Development for the Putney School. Long active in social and political affairs, he has headed a community organizing effort in Boston and has been director of a national social and educational agency for the Unitarian Universalist Association. He has been involved in civil rights programs in Selma, Memphis, Montgomery, Philadelphia, and Boston, and he was one of three representatives of the white community chosen by Black Unitarian Universalists to serve on the Black Affairs Council.

a speech by Senator Bob Packwood of Oregon

Monday, Feb. 22, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Aud.

plus a
Coffee hour, 2 - 4:30, Colonial Lounge

the Shoe-In
Opens Feb. 25th
1 Cook Place
In the Alley

"Back Home Bargains"
BOOTS AND FUN SHOES FOR GUYS & GALS

Showcase Cinemas 1 2 3
MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5
RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.

ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING

WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS

GROUP RATES AVAILABLE

3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY G
Wed. - Sun 5:45-7:00-9:00
Mon. & Tues 7-9:00

2 LOVE STORY IS SURELY ONE OF THE BEST FILMS IN YEARS DON'T MISS IT!
"A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." Sam Hoffman Sptfld Daily News
LOVE STORY GP
TODAY 3:00, 5:45, 8:30, 7:30, 9:40
Ali MacGraw
Ryan O'Neal

1 DOCTORS' WIVES R
DYAN CANNON
RICHARD CRENNA
Wed. - Sun 1:30-3:55, 5:20-7:20-9:20
Mon. & Tues 2-7:20-9:20

WE HONOR master charge
CALL 413-733-5131

winter carni '71

In new screen splendor...
The most magnificent picture ever!
DAVID O. SELZNICK'S PRODUCTION OF MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
STARRING
CLARK GABLE
VIVIEN LEIGH
LESLIE HOWARD
OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
A SELZNICK INTERNATIONAL PICTURE · VICTOR FLEMING · METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER INC.
STEREOPHONIC SOUND METROCOLOR
Winner of Ten Academy Awards

winter carni '71

S.U. BALLROOM
75c

Feb. 19 — 11 A.M., 3 & 8 P.M.
Feb. 20 & 21 — 2 P.M.

A "New Viewpoint"

Veterans Express Opposition To SE Asian War

The UMass chapter of Veterans Against the War in Southeast Asia will meet to decide the political platform of the group tonight at 7 p.m. in room 175 of the Campus Center.

Bill Staton, organizer of the group stated that the purpose of the group would be to show people how veterans, those who have seen action in Vietnam as well as those who have seen any prior service are against the war and that they favor the complete withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

Staton also stated that the group will attempt to go beyond that which has been accomplished by students by providing a new and experienced viewpoint on the war.

Bernie Lougee, another spokesman for the group, said the program and some of the practical activities of the group will be decided upon at the gathering.

Consensus so far points to a single issue platform calling for immediate withdrawal from Southeast Asia, he said. Since the group operates on the basis of non-exclusion, he further explained that anyone who identifies with this basic issue will be welcome.

"These are veterans who fought and are opposed to the war," Lougee said. "The job of the group is to have a united effect, to show the campus that there are more than students and Communists that oppose the war."

At least 80 members are expected for the meeting, Lougee said. The estimation is based on response and signatures taken at a table located in the Student Union this past week.

Correction

The interview conducted with Don Gurewitz, National Executive Secretary of the Student Mobilization Committee, which appeared in yesterday's Collegian mistated the date of the Student Anti-War Conference. The correct date is this weekend from Feb. 19-21 at Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

Flying Club Promotes Carni

A bi-plane will be situated in Haigis Mall today from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. as part of the Flying Club's publicity stunt to promote Winter Carni Weekend and the Flying Club Raffle.

Take off, if all has gone according to schedule, should have been at 5:30 a.m. from the Turners Falls Municipal Airport. The plane, courtesy of Pioneer Aviation, should have arrived by air on the UMass campus between 7 and 7:30 this morning with pilot Woody Hobbs, a graduate student in geology, and Bob Burdock, of Pioneer Aviation.

Two approaches were planned for the landing of the craft: one "runway" was the Massachusetts Avenue extension coming from the bridge on route 116 and the other was the turnoff access road behind the soccer field. If weather was bad Hobbs said the flight would be cancelled.

After landing the plane should have taxied down Mass Ave to Haigis Mall. Raffle tickets for a trip for two to Nassau over spring vacation will be available at the plane.

Students interested in flying or joining the flying club are invited to stop by the plane, Hobbs said. The club offers discount on renting planes and flight instruction, among its other benefits, he added.

Dues are $2. Lee Storesund, president of the club will be happy to discuss membership with interested persons at the next meeting on March 3, it was announced.

RAFI
invites all interested persons
EXODUS
S.U. BALLROOM — 7:00 & 10:00 P.M.
Israeli Dancing, Singing
Cape Cod Lounge — 8:30 P.M. - 12:30 A.M.
SUNDAY, FEB. 21
REFRESHMENTS

STOCKBRIDGE SENIORS
NEW OFFICIAL CLASS RING
Order your
New Stockbridge class ring from factory representatives
Monday Feb. 22 — Tuesday Feb. 23
Wednesday Feb.24 — Thursday Feb. 25
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
at the
University Store - Campus Center
$10 deposit required
All U of M Juniors and Seniors may place orders for UMass Class Rings

AMHERST Cinema
Eves. 6:30 - 8:55
Mat. Sat. - Sun at 1:30
Tora! Tora! Tora!
G
20th CENTURY-FOX
LATE "ADULT" SHOW FRI. AT 11:45 P.M.
"X" "THE HEAD MISTRESS" in color
Not part of reg. program — Seats $2.00

WINTER CARNI 71's
FESTIVAL of the BALLOONS with
BOSTON'S BEST GUNS and BUTTER,
ORT and FEATHERBED.
STARTING SATURDAY NIGHT AT 8:30
Ending Sunday morning in time for church.
one buck cheap
CC Auditorium — it'll be dynamite

MDC Close-up

The Plight of The Freshman...III

Involvement Helps Eliminate Anonymity

There is a well known and widely recognized adage which states the belief that the only true way to adjust to a new situation or environment is to become involved in it and to take advantage of the opportunities for involvement that it provides.

For a student enrolled in a school the size of UMass with its ever increasing student body, its highly impersonal classroom atmosphere and its large dormitories there is a significant need to become involved in an activity which will add to a sense of belonging and self-satisfaction. There is an even greater need to become known and recognized as an individual amidst the mass anonymity that pervades the campus.

For a freshman new to the campus, the variety of activities is widespread and diverse so as to allow him the greatest choice possible in determining the best activity which is best suited to him, his major and his interests.

Despite this freshman participation is relatively low during first semester. This is usually because freshman refrain from becoming involved in activities until after they have the "feel" of the University as a whole and become aware of the opportunities open to them.

This practice of waiting a semester before becoming involved is recommended to incoming students by the administration according to Shiela McRevey the Assistant Co-ordinator of Student Activities. This is done so that freshman will have the opportunity to see what the possibilities are actually open to them and to judge what they are actually capable.

Freshman do tend however to join or become involved during the first semester. If they do they are usually in organizations directly concerned with strong interests carried over from high school.

Membership however does tend to become more pronounced and widespread during second semester. According to Panhellenic Council estimates provided by Betty Richardson President of the Panhellenic Council interest in the Greek life increases at this time as freshman and transfers alike discover the pros and cons of dormitory life and begin to search for realistic and satisfactory alternatives.

This is the result of the freshman's need to broaden himself and his activities as well as to come in contact with new people. As he does so he attempts to correlate his choice of activities to his new interests which are in large part brought on by initial exposure to course material in his major and some idea however vague of what he intends to pursue after his college career has ended.

Estimates of freshman participation in activities for this year's first semester indicate however that this year's freshman are making a significant attempt to become involved in the activities which the various organizations on campus are attempting to provide them with.

Such participation varies as an exceedingly high membership of 150 freshmen out of 250 total members of the ski club.

Other organizations which currently count a substantial number of freshman among their members are the National Educational Service with approximately 100 members and 20 freshman serving as Student Senators out of a total of 80.

There is also significant freshman participation in APO and Gamma Gamma Sigma the service fraternity and sorority respectively. Dorm government and religious organizations such as Hillel, the Campus Crusade for Christ and the Newman Club.

One outlet for freshman participation will be the Freshman Class Executive Council which will eventually be composed of at least 50 people. Additionally there are various ad-hoc committees set up as branches of the Executive Council which have open membership. These committees could reasonably involve 30-40 more freshman.

As a comment upon the question of freshman participation, Dean of Students William Field noted that freshman should be encouraged to sample the possibilities of activities during the first semester in order to gain an idea of the areas open to them.

"There is no real reason why freshmen cannot get involved in a certain extent during their first semester, in that way they can often help their own progress towards adjustment to the University." Often too freshman can add new life to an organization by providing new ideas and initiative to the programs.

And so it goes that the freshman this year are becoming more and more in activities of an extra-curricular nature. As they do they become more and more involved in what the University is and also find a sense of purpose for themselves.

This involvement is what will help them to become more easily and rapidly adjusted to the climate of the University and will go far to eliminate some of the effects of the "freshman syndrome."

This special MDC close-up on Freshman represents the efforts of MDC Staffers Pat King, Kerry Kelley with Linda Balicki acting as special editor

"To become known and recognized as an individual amidst the mass anonymity that pervades the campus" is one of the goals a freshman can attain by becoming involved in campus activities. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

Grad Students Assist Student Affairs Depts.

"Mutually benefiting" is Associate Dean of Students Michael West's evaluation of the project in which six graduate students from Springfield College are assisting in the UMass student affairs department.

These students, majoring in Student Personnel, will be doing volunteer field work in the six residential areas of the campus for the remainder of the year.

Dean West commented that they are not here simply to do clerical work but that their assignment is to work under each of the Area Coordinators in areas such as program planning, role of counselors, to attend staff meetings, and to participate in other areas contributing to their practical experience.

Ken Burnham, the Assistant Hampshire Area Coordinator, noted that in the office of the Area Coordinator one tastes every imaginable problem of personal services. He said "These students all come from a small college and have little knowledge of the workings of a large university. This makes him well-rounded."

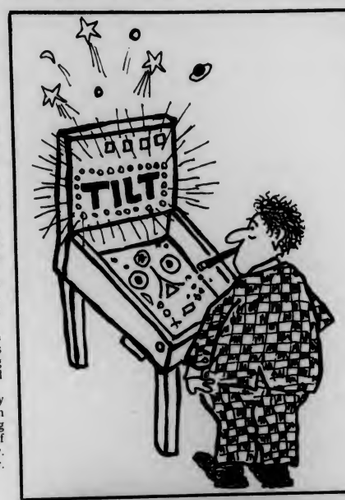
Burnham said that the benefits to UMass include a free person at the disposal of the Area Coordinator who can devote a great deal of time to a particular problem. The grad student can also give insight to the student perspective.

"He can relate the decisions of a small college to our areas which are like small colleges in themselves," said Burnham.

For the future, West mentioned, "The program could conceivably expand into the ther departments (in addition to Student Affairs) such as admission, financial aid, or counseling and other aspects of campus life."

Tutor Orientation Sessions Continue

The second of three tutor orientation sessions will be held this Sunday. It will start at 7:30 P.M. and will be held in Room 163 of the Campus Center. All tutors wishing to receive modular credit for the orientation must attend.



This Sunday's session will center around questions, answers and a general discussion of video taped tutoring that occurred this week. On hand to speak and add to this will be Center Coordinators and tutees from Springfield. The main speaker of the night will be Art Smith, who is the center coordinator of the N.E.S. Main Street Center.

One technical addition to the N.E.S. program as it affects the UMass campus is the opening of the N.E.S. Study Center in Winchester Square of Springfield. This is an educational program being funded by Springfield's Model Cities Program.

The Study Center deals with Junior and Senior High School students and needs approximately 100 volunteers to work as tutors with these kids. Tutoring will take place in the evening and a minimum of one session a week is required.

The Study Center is well equiped with audio and video equipment so a tutor and a tutee have unlimited educational alternatives. The center is large, has a relaxing atmosphere and shines like new. There is a young staff to compliment this new educational alternative to the structured red school house.

Anyone interested in working in the Study Center can do so without any red tape. The regular N.E.S. bus to Springfield which leaves from Bowker Auditorium at 6:15 p.m. Monday thru Thursday will be stopping by the Study Center upon the request of the person interested. However, if you need red tape you can attend the orientation session this Sunday. Nonetheless, the real question is your involvement as a committed tutor.

TILT!

winter carni

carni

feb. 19 & 20

Campus Center Concourse

Freeze The NEWS
MDC Hotline
5-2550

denim bells
$5
superficial smile
103 N. Pleasant St. open 10-5

At
Northampton
Volkswagen

70	Pontiac, Yellow	2995.00
68	Pontiac Lemans, White	1395.00
68	Opel Wagon, Blue	1695.00
68	Ford Mustang, Blue	1295.00
68	Austin Healey, Yellow	1695.00
68	Buick Skylark, Blue	1395.00
68	Renault, White	1695.00
68	Chevy Belaire, Blue	1295.00
68	Ford T-Bird, White	2995.00
67	Fiat 850, Red	995.00
67	Ford Wagon, White	1495.00
66	Ford T-Bird, Blue	895.00
66	Rambler American, Green	695.00
66	Chrysler, Green	995.00
65	Pontiac Grand Prix, Green	795.00
65	Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65	Ford LTD, White	795.00
61	Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
64	Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63	Mercury Comet, Maroon	395.00
62	Ford Wagon, Blue	1295.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From

Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.

534-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5)
Northampton
Open Eves till 9

Campus Cinemas 256-6411
Amherst Hadley Line - Rt. 9
Every Fri & Sat. Night 11 p.m. "Images"
The new thing at the Campus Cinemas. Every Fri. & Sat. night a late show fare of the Flicks . . . . 11 p.m.

Cinema 1 7:15 & 9:00
"Something else" from the director of M·A·S·H
BREWSTER McCLOUD

"I LOVE MY...WIFE"
"I LOVE MY...WIFE"
"I LOVE MY...WIFE"
Behind every "successful" man is an understanding woman... or two... or three!
ELLIOTT GOULD

TRASH
Cinema 2
A WARNING!
"Trash" is an X Rated film.
No one under the age of 18 yrs. will be admitted. Please have I.D.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barrott

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Denise Magnell
NEWS STAFF — Ann Gurnett, Emory Rounds
SPORTS — Earle Barrott
DARKROOM — Gib Fullerton
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
AD LAYOUT — John & Margie Mullen
AD LAYOUT — John & Margie Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Lost In The Shuffle

Freshmen are confronted with many problems in their initial days at a University which in no small manner relate to the future lives of these individuals. However, as freshmen, these students are in a poor position to solve these dilemmas effectively.

The major reason for this ineffectiveness is the freshman's ignorance and isolation. These University novices know little or nothing about existing, both academically and socially, in a University of 20,000 human beings and must individually discover means of survival.

However, freshmen really have no where to turn to get the answers that they are seeking. Placed in freshmen dorms and surrounded only by people who have the same problems, they neither benefit from the experience or the advice of upperclassmen nor learn how to function rationally at the University.

The areas of interest for these freshmen are not such metaphysical ideas as the place of the individual in the University community but instead such practical things as course changes, cutting classes, exams, etc. It is in these areas that upperclassmen are especially knowledgeable and may be of the greatest aid.

Yet, due to the prohibition of freshmen from coed dorms, this source of information is not available to a high percentage of the incoming freshmen. Thus, they must discover answers for themselves and many times find themselves bewildered and lost in the bureaucratic shuffle, a position not especially advantageous to top academic achievement.

Some may have moral reasons for opposing the placement of freshmen in coed dorms. These seem petty, however, when compared to the loss of time and knowledge that the underclassman suffers by his isolation.

Art Buchwald

The Computer Knows All

WASHINGTON–Somewhere in this great land of ours there is a computer stashed full of information on you. Whenever you want a bank loan, a credit card or a job, this computer will, in a matter of seconds, give some total stranger almost every detail of your life.

Unfortunately for most of us, the computer is unable to discriminate between fact and malicious gossip, and once the information is fed into it, it stays there forever.

The other day I was considering going into a car pool with three other men, Hicks, Kroll and Anderson. I have known these men casually for years, but when you join a car pool, you really want to know what they're like.

So I asked a friend of mine in the retail credit bureau if I could use his computer for a few hours.

He agreed and I went down there and typed out: WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT HICKS, AL, WHO LIVES AT 43 LOVER'S LEAP TERRACE?

The computer started chattering: HICKS, AL, BORN OCT. 23, 1925, BOTTLE—FED, BED—WETTER UNTIL 7 YEARS OLD.

I typed back: FORGET ABOUT CHILDHOOD AND GIVE ME SOME OTHER FACTS.

The computer replied: HICKS HAS A DOMINEERING WIFE WHOM THE WHOLE WORLD THINKS IS AS SWEET AS MAPLE SYRUP. WHENEVER SHE GETS MAD AT HIM, HE STARTS BITING HIS NAILS.

I typed back: I'M NOT INTERESTED IN THAT. WHAT'S THE CONDITION OF HIS CAR?

The computer paused for a few seconds and then tapped out: HICKS OWNS 1957 BUICK CONVERTIBLE FOR WHICH HE IS STILL PAYING $80 A MONTH. IT HAS BEEN IN THE GARAGE 33 TIMES AND HAS COST HIM $1,500 IN REPAIRS. TWO OF THE SPRINGS IN THE BACK SEAT ARE BROKEN AND HE NEEDS NEW SNOW TIRES. HE HAS THE CAR WASHED ONCE A MONTH.

It added: HICKS NEVER CHEATS ON HIS WIFE, THOUGH HE THINKS ABOUT IT A LOT.

THAT'S ENOUGH: I told the computer. NOW GIVE ME A RUNDOWN ON KROLL, H.G., WHO LIVES AT 1 LION'S DEN CIRCLE.

The tapes in the computer started turning furiously and finally stopped. The teletype began to chatter: KROLL, H.G., HAD STRONG MOTHER WHO DRESSED HIM IN SILK SAILOR SUITS UNTIL HE WAS 13 YEARS OLD.

GET ON WITH IT: I typed impatiently.

HE OWNS 1970 MERCURY FOUR-DOOR SEDAN WHICH HAS SPECIAL SILK SEAT COVERS. LIKES TO DRESS UP IN HIS WIFE'S CLOTHES WHEN CHILDREN ARE AT CAMP.

THAT'S ENOUGH: I typed engrily. WHAT ABOUT ANDERSON, E.L., 198 DOVER CLIFFS?

ANDERSON IS HAVING A BIG THING WITH A LADY COSMETICS BUYER FROM LORD & TAYLOR.

WHAT ABOUT HIS CAR? I demanded.

THEY DON'T USE HIS CAR. THEY USE HERS. I DIDN'T MEAN THAT. IS HIS AUTOMOBILE SAFE FOR OUR CAR POOL?

IT IS NOW, BUT IF MRS. ANDERSON EVER FINDS OUT ABOUT THE LADY BUYER...

THANK YOU VERY MUCH: I typed. YOU'VE BEEN MOST HELPFUL.

DON'T MENTION IT. OH, BY THE WAY. WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO STOP BEATING YOUR WIFE?

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

David Williams

Those Were The Days

Two dusty, gray old men sat hunched over crinkly-paged, musty old books in the basement of a 28 story building. They sat and slowly turned pages and picked their noses, reliving their lost moments of glory from youth.

"Well," said the older and grayer of the two, "1970 certainly wasn' t a very good year, was it? I mean, that's the year that everything we knew and loved began to disappear. I remember how proud I was when I became a member of the Homecoming Committee. But it didn't last. All my grand dreams turned to ashes."

"I know what you mean," said the other. He lifted his head from the book, rather she lifted her head from the book, and a small tear made a furrow in the dust on her face as it coursed down her hairy cheek.

"I put all my energy into that Carnival but people just didn't care. They tried to mock us and make fun of us. They made me so mad."

She began to blubber and weep disgustingly and her companion felt uncomfortable.

"Tell me," he said, "How did it happen to you?" Sniffling and sobbing, she told her story:

"I was always fond of being right. Even when I was little and playing in the sandbox with my little friends I was always right. If someone crossed me up, I would get up, and screech at them in my little girl voice, one of those whiny, obnoxious ones, and then go home in a huff to sit in my room and plot their demise. By the time I reached junior high I was very adept at the art of "getting-what-I-wanted-on-my-own-terms.

"I had a ball in high school. I did everything that I was told was worth doing. Class government, cheerleader, necking with the captain of the football team. I suppose I was Little-Miss-All-around. Teachers let me out of work, my parents let me stay out late, what a life.

"College was fun, too. Just like high school but everything was done on a bigger scale. The captain of the football team was bigger, the dances we put on were bigger, the classes were bigger, everything was bigger. But I met the challenge. In the swarming masses of humanity I managed, in my own inimitable style, to make myself heard. Loudly and clearly, of course.

"Of course," said her captive audience, shifting his weight from one elbow to another, "But do go on."

"Thank you," said the old lady, "I certainly shall."

"Everything went fine for a few years. That is, until you guys started having trouble. Then all the concerts were cancelled. In one fell stoke, our livelihood was threatened. I began to have nightmares. I began to dream of armies of people who were good and who loved and who sought justice and equality. My grades began to slip. I developed an ulcer worrying about developing an ulcer. But we had one last chance and we weren't going to blow it if we had to stoop to every low, nasty, back-stabbing trick we knew.

"A champion of justice came forth, challenging the five beauties we had selected to reign over the Carnival. We told him he couldn't do it, but he just laughed and said 'I'm doing it, aren't I?' The people of the university rallied around him and it began to look as if the people, the peons I should say, it began to look as if they were fed up with the ruling class. Let me tell you, I, was worried.

"So what finally happened?" asked her weary listener.

"Well, we were ignored. Everyone turned out to vote for this guy who was trying to make a mockery of us. And he did it, curse his bones. We were the biggest laughing stock on campus. Those peace freaks, those equality for everybody jerks, they crowned this guy at the basketball game. All kinds of queers and fags came in and crowned him! The crowd went wild cheering and the poor girl who got elected nearly died of shame. I don't blame her.

"Neither do I," said her now bored and tired listener. "I don't blame anybody, there's no sense to it, it must be part of growing up and being human, but I do wish you'd shut up."

In Defense Of The Landlord

Lately, there has been much talk of unfair landlord practices, and an undesireable housing situation in the Amherst area. The most frequent complaints appear to be unjustly high rents, and scarcity of apartments. Let us be fair with ourselves for a moment and see whether the landlord really is the fat cat he is often depicted as being.

The landlord, like any other reasonable businessman, seeks to derive the greatest return on his investment. Generally speaking, for a given area and type of construction, this return is relatively fixed by natural market forces. If rents are too high, vacancies will appear, and if set too low, expenses will approach the level of income and let's not overlook the fact that expenses such as taxes, utilities, and general maintanence spiral year after year.

One of the most influential market forces is of course the quantity of housing available. The lower the quantity, the higher the price for a given demand, and vice versa. If the real estate market operated like any other commodity market, the gap between supply and demand would quickly be filled. The real estate market is peculiar in this respect though, in that it is very sluggish to respond to an increased demand such as we have experienced in Amherst. There are several reasons for this sluggishness.

First of all the demand must be recognized by investors as real and persisting, a demand worthy of tying up money for a long period of time. If it is, plans must be drawn. Later comes the aquisition of land and arrangements for a loan. Only at this point does construction begin. [illegible] recognized, [illegible] this period rents may have risen to what seems to be an unfair level, which it is really not, considering the scarcity of this commodity.

It must be understood that it is exactly this high level of income, and return on investment that provides the incentive for more housing to be built, which will in time alleviate the shortage. If the market is tampered with by such devices as rent control, the situation will only grow worse. Expected income on apartments will be lower, which means a lower rate of return, and investment money will consequently flow to other sectors.

In conclusion, let us not be too hasty to indict the landlord for a problem created basically by the rapid growth of the University. [illegible] Rome can't be built

Jim Mitchell

"...off to the zoo"

The Swan Was Taken Inside For The Winter

At the school I go to at UMass in western Mass.
there is a pond in the middle of the campus with an island for the ducks and this one big swan,
and there's goldfish there too
besides.
September went and by the end of November
it grew very cold
and even started to snow.
Then one day I was walking by with my hands full of books and a girl's shoulder and looked at the island for that one big swan
but he was gone and nowhere on the pond
And I stood there but couldn't respond.

Just walked away till I bumped into a construction worker (they were putting up a new library). Asked him "Where the hell are the scenic fowl?")

He looked into my face and wryly
scowled:
"The swan was taken inside for the winter. Yesterday afternoon)

a crew of about four maintenance men went out with nets, scooped up the birds then into a van and off to the zoo."
I thought of the swan and knew that he'd survive
and be back in town.

Whitmore Building Is A Riot

Whitmore building is a riot
-I'd give a scale model of one to my grandmother on halloween
-I'd put it on a pedestal and think it's obscene
-I'd talk to it, walk with it,
make sure it's clean behind the ears...

But full scale it reeks
of a far loftier heritage,
It's science fiction what goes on in those walls
Even the drug addiction
in the bathroom stalls.

Whitmore building is a riot
It passes the fitness test.
The person in back of the large sharp silver desk
is Madame Defarge.
I lost my i.d. card
-now I'd better confess.

"...tallest in the world"

The New Library

Our campus has a real old bunch of knowledge in a quaint 3-story brick "villa" in the heart of the whole thing
Where dust instills me with a sense of having wandered through centuries of cancelled
weather.
Victorian writers are my favorite and they got lots of those packed in this close.
But what will I do when the new library opens--the tallest one in the world at UMass in Amherst when all the old books are just a drop in the bucket
in spacy well lit rooms?
The past evaporates, the books have become cold stoned artifacts and forever I remain an undergraduate
on an intellectual scavenger hunt.

"...clean behind the ears"

Poetry by Larry Trillo

Photos by Steve Schmidt

Students' Questions Solicited By Drug Center

In the last few weeks a lot of people on campus have been getting into PCP, but as yet we haven't been able to get much of a line on what it is or what it does. Much of what we've been able to find out about it is either not very useful or not very reliable.

Room To Move

Samples of grass and parsley which we have had analyzed have contained PCP. We've also heard that it comes in a small pink and clear capsule with white powder in it. The chemist who does our analysis calls it phencyclidine or sernyl.

As best we can tell it's used commercially as a horse tranquilizer. It seems to be very strong and very fast acting. One source tells us it has a paradoxical amphetimine-halucinogen action (when a down acts like an up). Another source says it slows people down almost to the point of coma.

We're going to keep checking on the pharmacology of PCP. If you have some experience with it and would like to help everybody become more knowledgeable about it, please get in touch with us. Write, call, or drop by and leave a note for Paul or Sandy, c/o Room to Move, Student Union.

Some questions we need more information on are: How much does it take to get off? What's the high like? IF you've had a bad time with it, what was that like? How long does it last? Are there any after effects? Anything else you know about it would also be appreciated. When we get some kind of picture about PCP we'll put it in this column.

We'd like to make this column as relevant to the needs of the people as possible. If you have any questions or comments about drugs or anything else you want to send us, please use the names listed above and send them in. We'll include anything that's sent in some way in this space if we can.

Also, George Peters (who started the nation's first LSD rescue service in Chicago) will be speaking in the SU Ballroom next Wednesday (February 24) night at 8 p.m.

Peters did the first esperiments with niacin in treating acid bummers and with monosodium glutimate in treating STP bummers. He has also been responsible for opening crisis centers in several cities.

The lecture will be open to the public. All interested are urged to attend.

A love story, that begins with an incredible experiment!

A less than ordinary man is turned into a genius. He awakens to an exquisite love experience, but at an impossible price for CHARLY

Sunday, Feb. 21 7 & 9:30
S.U. Ballroom AVR PICTURES in collaboration with ROBERTSON ASSOCIATES presents CLIFF ROBERTSON in CHARLY CLAIRE BLOOM 50c

WINTER CARNI SALE
at the
UNIVERSITY STORE

Friday Night - 6–9 p.m. ONLY
All pre-recorded 8 track tapes and cassettes
50% off list prices
Friday Store Hours – 8:45 a.m. – 9:00 p.m.
Sale – 6:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m. ONLY

All day Saturday –- 10:00 a.m.–9:00 p.m.
All records 33% off list prices

All day Friday and Saturday – Red Tag Sale Items
20–50% off
Jackets, glassware, and ceramics
Reversible T-Shirts
Novelties

Watch for our booth on the main concourse of the Campus Center!

WMUA
91.1 FM

SEE
CHARLIE!! from 4 to 6
at our HAPPY HOUR
from 3 to 6
at
The English Pub

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING EXCITING TO DO FRIDAY NIGHT?

LITTLE LATIN LARRY
and his LOOPIE LOVIES

Plus:
JACK VERONESI & FRIENDS

Campus Center Auditorium
Fri., Feb. 19 10 p.m. - 2 a.m.

75c straight
50c with white socks

WINTER CARNI

Notices

B.F.A. PAINTING MAJORS
There will be a meeting for all B.F.A. Painters and prospective Painters Mon., Feb. 22nd at 12:15 p.m. in Clark 202. All B.F.A. Painters are urged to attend.

B TOWN VOLUNTEERS
Do you have some extra time this weekend? How about sharing it with someone at the State School. Bus leaves from Whitmore at 12:45 on Saturday.

BUDDHIST MEDITATION
The venerable Chao Khun Dhammasudhi, Meditation master of the Buddhapadipa Temple, Surrey, England will speak on "Wisdom & the Buddhist Way" Mon., Feb. 22nd at 8 p.m. in the Red Room of Converse Hall, Amherst College. This is a rare visit into Paul 586-1497.

UMASS CHESS CLUB
The club will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the Hatch. Second round of the tournament will also resume. Come to play or watch.

CHINESE CLUB
Chinese club will hold China Night in the S.U. Ballroom at 8 p.m. Sat. night Feb. 20th.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY
Meeting of the Commuter Assembly Executive Committee will beheld Feb. 22nd at 10 p.m. at 33 Phillips St., Amherst Apt #2.

FOLK ENTHUSIASTS
Coffee house in Van Meter Study Lounge Saturday at 8:30.

FREE UNIVERSITY
Massage Workshop folks who signed up or are interested in this body massage workshop please come to Rm 169 in our beautiful campus center Sunday at 7 p.m. Bring towel and be prepared to remove your shirt. Rub your neighbor.

I.E.E.E.
I.E.E.E. STUDENT FACULTY night. Dr. Scott speaks, Topic Biomedical Engineering Time 7 p.m., Feb. 23rd at Murray D. Lincoln Room 174-176.

MENTAL HEALTH
Marriage Counseling Group meets weekly on Tuesdays from 4-5:30 p.m. If interested call Mental Health Office (545-2337).

MICRO TEACHING CLINIC
Clinic begins for this semester on Monday, Feb. 22nd. First meeting will be held in the Marks Meadow Cafeteria.

NORTHERN EDUCATIONAL SERVICE
A reminder to all N.E.S. Tutors. The second orientation session is this Sunday (Feb. 21st) at 7:30 p.m. in Room 163 of the C.C.

PEOPLE'S CHURCH SERVICE
There will be a worship service, Sunday at 6 7 p.m. in the C.C. 162-175. Focus will be on the New Testament Christian Church. What was it like? All interested are welcome, planning meeting for service to be Fri. at 4 in Hatch Back.

READING STUDY CENTER
Registration for Reading Study Improvement course Tues. Feb. 23rd in Rm 163-164 of the C.C. at 7 p.m. Course will meet for 5 weeks, Tues. & Thurs. evenings 7-8:15 p.m.

SIMS
All transcendental Meditators checking on Sunday 4-8 p.m. group meditation at 8 p.m. Tapes of Maharishi's lectures will be played Room 168 of the C.C.

SKI CLUB
Today is the last day to sign up for tomorrow's ski trip to Pico Pike. If you still want to go, notify Joe, at 1315 Kennedy, or call 6-7819.

UMOC
Meeting Mon. in Room 165 of the C.C. at 6:30 p.m. Greylock.

UNIVERSAL LIFE CHURCH
All humans and other life are invited to a low mass to become aware of their membership in the Universal Life Church bring your minds. Sunday at 2 p.m. in Rm 174 of the C.C.

USCC
There will be a meeting for all members and other interested individuals at 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21st in the Colonial Lounge.

WMUA
WMUA station meeting on Feb. 25th will be discussing constitution. This is a mandatory station for all WMUA people. Meeting starts at usual time.

LOST
Notebook Child Development lost very important. Dave Desiardins. Leave at Lost & Found. Thanks.
Wallet lost between S.U. & Hampshire House. Please call 256-6844 or 5-0082 and ask for Cari. Thanks.
One pair of gold rimmed glasses lost. Call Ralph collect 1-774-2575.
A white suitcase with clothes, and other personal items was lost on the road towards Route 202. Call 546-5930. Please.

FOUND
A sum of money was found outside of the Union Wed. night. Call 8-8069 & identify the amount & enclosed receipts.

PINNINGS
Colleen J. Andreoni, '72, of Melville, to Michel Dake, '71 of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.
Christina Chambers, '72, of Melville, to James Laverty, '73, of Westfield State College.
Anita Noah, '74, of JQA to Jay Sandler, '73, of TEO.

ENGAGEMENTS
Dotty Damon, '72, of JQA Upper to Andy Phillips, '70, of Cliffside Apts.
Georganne Cronin, '71, of Sunderland to David Waterman, '70, of E. Bridgewater.
Diane Perrine, '71, of Tenent, N.J. to Bob Cain, '70, of Texas A&M.
Susan J. Oremland, '71, of Patterson House, to Ralph Bornstein, '69, of Newton.
Christine Manlich, '73, of Emerson to George James, '71 of Pi Lambda Phi.
Wilma Barker, '71, of Boston Univ. to Brad Eagerman, Grad., Sunderland.

THETA CHI
8:00 – ?
BAND
OPEN HOUSE
Friday, Feb. 19

EAT FOOD CO-OP
Natural foods Co-operative
At/Near Whisle.
Sign up in Free U
Call Don 584-5155
Maureen 1-369-4632

Make Your Winter Carni Weekend Complete
Visit
Hampden Restaurant

Saturday Lunch	11:30 - 2:30
Saturday Dinner	5:00 - 8:00
Sunday Lunch	12:00 - 3:00
Sunday Dinner	5:00 - 8:00

SWIFT
COIN OPERATED
Dry Cleaning
6 lbs. for only $1.50
12 lbs. for only $2.50
In one 12 lb. load, for only 2.50, you can dry clean 10 skirts, or 15 sweaters, 2 blankets, or several small drapes.
Ready to wear in 25 minutes.
MINUTEMAN CLEANERS
(next to The Tower)
11 E PLEASANT STREET

the director of M*A*S*H IS BACK AGAIN CUTTING-UP PEOPLE!

SARRIS, ANDREW:
ONE OF THE TEN BEST FILMS OF THE YEAR—'Brewster McCloud' is the first American film to apply an appropriate tone and style to the absurdest follies of our times. Its humor is cool and modern but never silly.
— Village Voice

CRIST, JUDITH:
THE SECOND BEST FILM OF THE YEAR. We'd like to urge you to see, above all, BREWSTER McCLOUD, Robert Altman's dazzler that outdoes his M*A*S*H.
— New York Magazine

"The most liberating wild, comic critique of contemporary society since the marvelously mad comedies of the 1930's
—Newsweek

BREWSTER McCLOUD
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents "BREWSTER McCLOUD"
Starring BUD COHN · SALLY KELLERMAN · MICHAEL MURPHY

Now Playing!
Cinema I
7:15 & 9:15

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

Varsity "M" Club Beneficial To UMass Athletics

By MARK VOGLER
MDC Staff

Whether be it breaking bread with athletes and coaches at a weekly sports luncheon, sponsoring spectator buses for road games, distributing programs for the fans/ convenience, inducting UMass athletic greats into its very own hall of fame, or just plain publicizing UMass sports through a variety of channels, you can rest assure that the unheralded efforts of the Varsity "M" Club are at work.

A booster organization formed over 50 years ago for the support of UMass athletics, it was revitalized in 1965 and has since become an integral part of the rapidly progressing sports scene at the University.

Residing President Jim Mulcahy, a 1966 alumnus and a life insurance salesman, reports that the club has enjoyed a boom in membership since its awakening year with an increase from 70 to 400. He credits the huge expansion primarily to the lifting of the restriction on non-varsity UMass letter winners. Admission is now open to anyone who wishes to support the University's athletic programs, men or women, UMass alumni or not. The admission fee is ten dollars a year.

Sport luncheons occured four years ago for football. And the assistance of former head grid mentor Vic Fusia proved so successful last year that the affair was converted to an every week basis. Under the directorship of Harold Gatslick this past campaign's football luncheons averaged 150 people per week.

Bus arrangements for the away games have met the appeal of the die-hard Redman followers with a hardy demand. Having already made transportation available for the UConn, URI, Providence and Holy Cross encounters, the Varsity "M" is currently sponsoring a bus trip to Madison Square Garden for the UMass-George Washington contest to be held February 27.

Mulcahy, as an 8 1/2" x 11" sheet of paper too, and 16 page pamphlet, we wound up with this year's 24-page two-color booklet. And we hope to do 32 pages of the full 8 1/2" x 11" next season.

The basketball team is one of the greatest in the country and therefore deserves to have a program that is among the best.

The Hall of Fame, begun in May of 1969 to honor the greatest of UMass athletes, has certainly instilled a feeling of pride and tradition in those who have actively partaken UMass sporting events. The third annual Hall of Fame banquet will be held May 21st in the Worcester Dining Commons.

"The best thing we do is sending out the newsletter, declares Mulcahy, it's strictly 100 percent Dick Bresciani work."

Lauding the former Collegian Sports Editor and member of Kappa Sigma frat (class of '60), Mulcahy asserts: "Dick is the heart and sole of the Varsity "M" Club. He is the fellow that the various presidents and officers rely on. Without him the Varsity "M" would be a nice idea, not a reality. He's been interested in UMass athletics a long time and has been deeply devoted."

Bresciani is the assistant sports information director and holds the office of secretary in the Varsity "M" organization.

Other services performed by the booster club in the past have been giving recognition to deserving athletes in the form of awards, also pre-season alumni basketball games were held. Two Alumni vs. varsity grid matches took place before the pros forbade them.

The banners which hang proudly from the rafters of Curry-Hicks Cage were purchased by the club at $200 apiece and were formerly dedicated to the University on "Banner Night" last December 12th. Emblematic of the NIT and NCAA berths and last year's New England Crown, the Varsity "M" hopes that they are the first of many more memories to drape from atop.

The club has also gone out of its way to attire our student athletes in maroon blazers when they're on the road.

Tomorrow night has been set aside for one of the biggest upcoming events of the season. The Varsity "M" will initiate "Former Basketball Captains' Night" when all the Redman captains from Ray Ellerbrook '70 dating back to Frederick C. Peters '07 return to campus. The program for the evening will feature pictures of all these hard court men.

What does Mulcahy see and hope for the future of the Varsity "M" club? Well, here's how he puts it:

"Personally I'd like to see the VM Club absorb 10,000 members like IPTAY ("I Pay Ten A Year", Clemson University). I'd also like to see us raising $500,000 a year for the support of UMass athletics through the cooperation of Memorial Hall and the developement office at Whitmore.

We have 15 varsity sports and we would like to be able to do much for all of these sports. For the student athlete participating in any sport devotes as much effort, dedication and time as does any athlete in any other sport. We would like to give them all equal support, and this takes a great deal more money than what we presently have.

We certainly are not at a high point in growth. We've just begun and it's going to take many years and hard work from many people to do the things necessary for this program. Hopefully the coaches and athletes who have graduated will rally behind support groups for their individual sport--such as Friends of UMass football, Friends of UMass Basketball, Friends of UMass Baseball, etc..."

Head basketball coach Jack Leaman and Former Head Football mentor Vic Fusia offer nothing but praise for the Varsity "M" club and its countless contributions.

Leaman: "I think that it's a much needed organization that's starting to thrive under the dynamic leadership of Jim Mulcahy. And it should be an omen of good things to come in UMass athletics.

Because we're not in a position to have a big newspaper or radio network handy, a club of this type will aid in increasing the university's image throughout the state and New England area. This is probably the chief aim connected with the athletic department at the University of Massachusetts."

Fusia: "I'm quite fond of it because I was one of its founders. And anything you're fond of you hold in high esteem. But its growth has been spectacular and its deeds many. And I'm sure it will go on to greater heights. I suggest that everybody and all become a member of this worthwhile organization."

Naiads Prepare For UM Show

The 1970-71 Naiads Aquatic Art Club has participated in two regional conventions of Aquatic Art and Synchronized swimming. The weekend of October 30, 1970, a lecture-demonstration and a presentation of a selected composition was given to an annual convention of the Association of Synchronized Swimming for College Women at Genesco, New York. The club's advisor, Miss Ester Wallace, presented the lecture demonstration assisted by Lynn Schooley, Debbie Deitch, Barbara Quinn, Corrine Grunwald and Joyce Perry. The girls then participated in other workshops on various aspects of synchronized swimming.

* * * *

The International Academy of Aquatic Art held its Eastern Symposium at the State University of New York at Oneota, November 13-14, 1970. The Naiads participated in land and water workshops and presented their selected composition for evaluation. Attending the Symposium with Miss Wallace were Misses Schooley, Deitch, Grunwald, Quinn and Burrell. As well as participating in two international conventions, the club travelled to Adams, Mass. to present a lecture demonstration to high school students.

* * * *

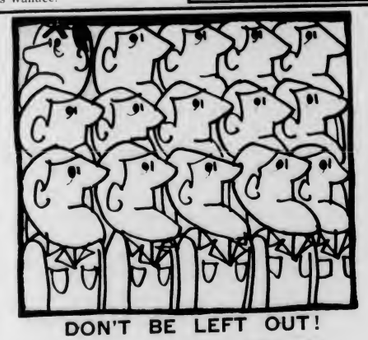
This semester the club will be preparing compositions to be performed for the University, free of charge, March 11, 12 and 13 in the Women's Physical Education pool. For the first time, the Naiads will give a special performance on Sunday, March 7, for high school students as well as the regular Monday night March 8, performance for the University children. The show promises to have a variety of themes ranging from the ever present encounter groups, to interpretations of poems and paintings. The Naiads choreograph and direct their own compositions with the assistance of Miss Wallace.

Jack Veronesi and Friends

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
FRI., FEB. 19 10 P.M. - 2 A.M.

75c straight
50c with white socks

Also Featuring:



LITTLE LATIN LARRY & CO.

WARNING! Q-TAGS are not guaranteed to prevent plague, pregnancy, distemper, or other common illnesses. They are handsome medallions. Each is individually handcrafted with your own ancient Zodiac Symbol. Get yours by sending three bucks (plus 3% tax) to QUEEQUEG, Box 695, Falmouth, Mass. 02541. (It helps if you also send your name, address, and birthdate.)

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle-Campers Int'nal.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
APPOINTMENTS STILL LEFT FOR
SENIOR PORTRAITS, INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

3 bedroom ranch, patio, breezeway, 1½ garage, kitchen with built-in refrigerator, oven and burners, pine cabinets, carpeted dining and living rm, 1½ baths, cellar with new washer and dryer. Call 665-2531. tf2-22

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Aziez, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Skis Head GS and Salamon bindings. Also, set of full Miller bindings and Nasha boots, all in new or exc cond. Asking best offer around $80 for everything. 546-8716. tf2-19

Water Beds — 7' x 6'. Workmanship guaranteed. $63.00. Try one out at R-1 Iorman House. Weekdays from 11:00 to 3:30 or call Richard at 546-9534. tf2-22

"I" Zenith TV, name your price. Call TU 772-6251 tf2-22

Mint still 810 Kolfach boots, tlr. size 9, $9, best offer, brand new, never used; Maple Leaf hockey skates with case, size 9, $15 or best offer; unmatched poles for 56 skier $5.56. Brad 6-8054. tf2-19

Scott 345C Receiver, 1 yr. old, $150. Call Mike 253-7311 tf2-21

Stereo AM/FM tuner, Kenwood, 180 watt, recently reconditioned, $100 or best offer. Call Tom 253-9608 mornings or after five. tf2-19

RCA Stereo in walnut cabinet with speakers, recently and completely adjusted. New needle. Asking $50 or best offer. Call Sheryl, 422 Knowlton 5-2540 or 5-2511. tf2-22

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf6-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1970 Maverick, perfect condition, less than 5,000 miles. Must sell for larger car $1600 or best offer. Call 545-2110 after 7 p.m. tf2-19

'67 VW sedan, a very fine running car, body is in good shape, mechanical cond. of car is very good. New brakes, snow tires and clutch adjustment, $175 or best offer. 546-8748 tf2-19

'63 Ford Van, pothelly stove, bunk beds, cupboards, closet, carpet and more, asking $100.00. Call 256-6096 tf2-19

1967 VW imported model, fastback style, exc. cond. Best offer. Call 584-3878. tf2-23

1969 Camaro 307 V8 auto., excellent cond. Call Leo after 6, 253-9951 tf2-23

1970 Baracuda 383, vinyl roof, power steering, power brakes, automatic trans., wide oval tires, radio, 12,000 miles, asking $2900.00, 6 mos. old. Call 546-9312. tf2-14

'61 VW in ex. cond., $600. Glenn 532-4341 after 5. 2-19

'61 VW $100 or best offer. Bob 256-6746 after 5. tf2-23

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate(s) wanted for own room in two bedroom apt. at Mt. Sugarloaf. Call 665-3490 after 6. tf6-19

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6715 after 6 p.m. tf2-20

Wanted — 2 male roommates, furnished apt. in Hadley $50 month, avail March 1. 584-7151. tf2-23

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for your car. 107 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-11

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic! You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt 116, So. Amherst, 253-3118 tf3-18

TO SUBLET

To sublet: Eff apt., $120 mo., all utilities. Available 15 March. Call 665-3611 tf2-19

WANTED

BUSINESS FINANCE BOOKS wanted — Weston and Brigham "Managerial Finance"; Van Horne "Financial Mgmt Policy"; Bierman and Semidt "Capital Budgeting Decision"; Mayer "Financial Anal of Invest Alternatives". Call Shepard, 549-1231. 2-19

House Parents or House Mother wanted for K.A.T. Sorority, starting Sept. '71. Contact Valla Endres or Mary Lou Dawson before March 12, 1971, 253-9215 or 546-2736. tf2-19

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered jet flights to NASSAU in Spring from $99 and EUROPE in Summer from $195. For details call: steve 549-1307 or Brian 546-3063. tf2-19

Driver Trainees Wanted

The Student Senate Transit Service which operates the Campus Shuttle System is now accepting applications for its spring training program. Forms are available in Student Union Room 434. tf223

LOST

Our dog is lost — Satan, our 6 mo. old German Shepard is lost. A female, she is black with brown markings and a red collar. Please call 584-6621. tf5-19

PERSONAL

Freon P. Sandos says to get your old lady over to the sock hop. 2-19

Amanda delivers. Friday, February 19, 10 - 2 a.m. C.C.A. 2-19

Watch Dirty Ed eat socks Friday, 11:30 p.m. C.C.A. 2-19

SPECIAL EVENTS

See Hey Brooklyn with Lynn Holgway perform at the Top of the Campus Fri. and Sat. nights at 9:00. Come early for dinner! 2-19-20

Freshman Hoopsters Face Busy Weekend

By STEVE FERBER
MDC Staff

For the first time this season the Little Redmen hoopsters will be hosting teams on consecutive nights. An undefeated Maine freshman team enters the Cage tonight at 6 p.m., while tomorrow night's 5:30 game will feature Northern Essex, a two year college.

Over the past three seasons the Maine frosh has put together a 24 game winning streak. In compiling this streak the Little Blackbears took 11 straight games in their 1968-9 season, after dropping their season opener. Last year's team was 14-0, while this year's 9-0 club will be facing the Little Redmen tonight.

In the past week Maine has beaten Bowdoin by a 76-65 margin, and bombed Maine Central Institute 95-39.

Unlike past years the Maine freshmen do not have any one stand-out performer, as their fine balance is one of the primary reasons for their continued success.

Northern Essex, Saturday's competition, comes to Amherst with a great lack of height. As of last week they held an 8-5 mark, but their problem tomorrow will be rebounding.

Northern Essex's tallest man is a mere 6'3, and it remains to be seen how well they will be able to counter this seemingly drastic height disadvantage.

After Tuesday night's scare at Springfield, the Little Redmen return home with a 14-1 record, and two wins over the weekend would enable them to maintain their undefeated string at home to 12.

Maine, who will be filling the vacancy created by Greenfield C.C. on the frosh schedule, lines up as the tougher of the two opponents this weekend. In their quest for better competition Maine, just recently, picked up UMass and B.C. for their freshman schedule. The "better competition" will be there for Maine, and it should be interesting to see which streak stays alive.

Sports Notices

MSG BUS-The UMass student senate has made arrangements for at least one Peter Pan bus to go to the UMass- George Washington basketball game at Madison Square Garden on Saturday, February 27. Tickets for the bus are now being sold at the Student Union ticket office at 7.40 each. This is for transportation only, game tickets are available at Boyden ticket office.

The bus or buses if there is a large interest will be leaving from the Campus Center bus stop at 8:0 a.m. on February 27.

Slightly reduced prices are available by calling 549-6184.

* * *

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL-The UMass woman's basketball team returns to action on Monday when it meets Greenfield Community College in a 6:30 contest.

* * *

UMASS-GEORGE WASHINGTON TICKETS - Tickets for the UMass-George Washington basketball game at Madison Square Garden on the 27th of

* * *

INTRAMURAL WRESTLING-Opening round matches for intramural wrestling will be published in Monday and Tuesday's Daily Collegian.

* * *

FORMER CAPTAINS NIGHT-Tomorrow night at half time of the UMass-Maine basketball game, 23 former captains of UMass basketball will be on hand to be honored at the festivities for their contributions to UMass basketball. Among those who will be present are Em Grayson '17, Bill Tindall '68, Joe Disarcina '69 and last years Redman captain Ray Ellerbrook.

MDC
SPORTS HOTLINE
5-0344

Study in Guadalajara, Mexico

The Guadalajara Summer School, a fully accredited University of Arizona program, will offer, July 5 to August 8, art, folklore, geography, history, political science, language and literature courses. Tuition, $160; board and room $155. Write Dr. Juan B. Rael, Office of Summer Session, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrology surpasses age, class and economic barriers. The young and the senior citizens are interested in the subject, just as are the rich and the poor, the high and the mighty and the low and the lonely. This is not so strange. Each and every one of us has at least one thing in common: we were all born under one of the 12 zodiacal signs. And all of us, rich or poor, are concerned with ourselves and those close to us. Astrology helps provide needed answers for all.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get push in right direction. There is added incentive. Goals which seemed far now come closer. You gain access to material which helps you to achieve objective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Investment potential is emphasized. Check with mate, business associate. Be flexible enough to listen to unusual point of view. Settlement obtained in legal, partnership affairs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A friend who needs your signature may be persistent. Be positive of your own security. Refuse to commit yourself to speculative scheme. Do more listening than talking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be alert where employers, those who serve you in various capacities enter picture. If you want assignment handled correctly, you may have to be on premises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Affections are stimulated. You find good outlet for creative urges. Accomplishment is keynoted. Study Taurus message. Accent on how you deal with children, opposite sex.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Past accomplishments come to fore. Have pride without being foolish. Means realize memories will not accomplish current task. Property matters require immediate attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New contacts are exciting, but may not prove too productive. Means evaluate needs. Taking short trips may be tiring and unnecessary. Be independent. Refuse to be coerced.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your intuition could provide solution to money dilemma. Key is to be meticulous about details, signatures. Study Gemini message. Avoid actions based on overanxiety.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Young person encourages you to be creative. Social activity is stressed. You meet people, go places. Romance is in picture. Excitement is highlighted. Relax and be friendly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you may feel is an immediate necessity may actually require time to ripen. Know this and permit negotiations to proceed. You will not have it all your way, but you do gain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Member of opposite sex plays prominent role. Socialize. Give and receive pleasure. Avoid being fixed in views. Permit full play for intellectual curiosity. Ask questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Invest time, money in program with helps you attain goals. Additional family responsibility could dictate new trend. Unusual relationship is featured with occupational superior.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, with wide range of interests and talents. You should not submit to limitations. For you, the sky can be the limit. Currently, you are stimulated by travel, new social contacts. However, you should avoid being drained of assets, financial or otherwise. Be willing to experiment in various areas. You will be traveling and, if single, could soon be married.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Trackmen Travel To UConn For YanCon Championships

By ROBERT MEDEIROS
MDC Staff

The UMass track team will be traveling this afternoon to the University of Connecticut's Basketball Field House for the Yankee Conference Championships, which will start at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning. The Redmen will be attempting to regain the title that they lost last year to UConn.

Coach O'Brien predicts another two way battle between UMass and UConn, in a meet that has always provided much excitement in the way of strong competition and new records. This year's competition should be no exception as at least six records will be in danger of being broken.

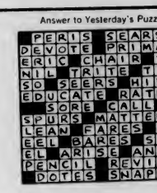
Last year's meet was decided by seven points and this year's competition might even be closer. The first events to go off will be the weight events, and the Redmen will be counting on Eddie Arcaro to pick up points in these events.

In the jumping events, the most crucial battle could be in the high jump where Cal Carpenter will attempt to defend his title against Ron Evans of UConn. Ed Shaughnessey, who jumped second in this event last year will also be jumping for UMass.

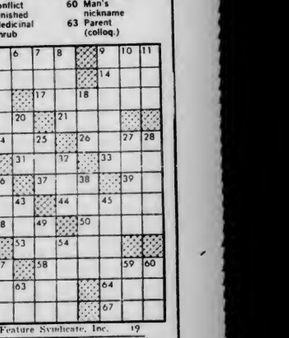
Rip Dyer will be UMass's favorite to unseat last year's champion Bob Glinton of Maine in the long jump. Shaughnessy and Mark Robinson are also capable of breaking into the top 5 for the Redmen in the long jump.

The dash, one of UMass's strongest events, will feature Walter Mayo, Ron Harris and Tony Pendleton, each with a chance of winning the title. Running for the Redmen in the hurdles, will be Jim Graves and Jerry Spellman who will try to defeat last year's winner Pete Wilkens of Rhode Island.

The 1000 will be a wide open race, with Dave Evans of UMass the favorite, and Arnie Morse and John Maloney both capable of finishing in the top 5. The Redmen will be counting on Al Mangan and Steve Levine to score in the 600.



Leading UMass in the distance events will be Ron Wayne, who will double in the mile and two mile, and should be the favorite in both races. Backing up Wayne in the mile will be Larry Paulson while the other Redman in the two mile will be Tom Jasmin. Paulson and Jasmin should place high in their respective events.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Mature
4 Sedate
9 Witty remark
12 Hostelry
13 Climbing plant
14 Macaw
15 Kill
17 More benevolent
19 Helped
21 Mountlul
22 Omen
24 Yellow ocher
26 Saucy
29 Mental images
31 Soft food
33 Greek letter
34 Compass point
35 Decay
37 The sun
39 Pronoun
40 Idle talk
42 Negative vote
44 Goddess of the hunt
46 Killed
48 Golf mound
50 Ship's bottom
51 Cheer
53 Scoff
55 Extras
58 Negated
61 Chapeau
62 Repulse
64 Guido's high note
65 Organ of sight
66 Trinkets
67 Transgress

DOWN
1 Goal
2 African antelope
3 Anger
4 Winter vehicle
5 Wearies
6 Cooled lava
7 Writing fluid
8 Platform
9 More insane
10 Native metal
11 Sailor (colloq.)
16 Unit of Yugoslavian currency
18 Short sleep
20 Plunge
22 Warbles
23 Standard of perfection
25 Spanish plural article
27 River in Germany
28 Sum
30 Offspring
32 Seed container
36 Make lace
38 Compare
41 Chastise
43 Affirmative
45 Eagles' nests
47 Armed conflict
49 Finished
52 Medicinal shrub
54 Lampreys
55 Pronoun
56 Remuneration
57 Bishopric
59 Man's name
60 Man's nickname
63 Parent (colloq.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 19

B. C.

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Johnny hart

by Johnny hart

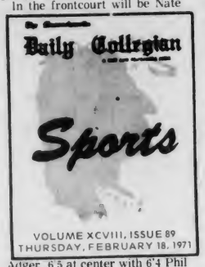
by Brant parker and Johnny hart

Redmen Face Tough Stretch

Rhody Tonight; Maine Tomorrow Syracuse On Monday

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

"If we're thinking about playing after March fourth, we better be ready." These were the words of head coach Jack Leaman yesterday as his Redman hoopsters readied to face their toughest stretch of the season in number of games in number of nights, a stretch that will probably decide the length of the UMass basketball season.



With the hoops of a post season tournament still in the balance the Redmen are at home for three games in four nights against two conference rivals. Rhode Island and Maine and one of the hottest teams in the east, Syracuse, which also has its eyes on a tournament.

Tonight the action begins at Curry Hicks Cage as the Rams from URI take the court for an 8 p.m. encounter with the Redmen. Going into this contest Rhody sports a record of 4-1 in the conferance and only 6-15 overall. With only the conference title left for the Rams to salvage they'll be ready to give it their all.

Down the stretch URI has played very tough opposition and coming to the Cage will not awe the Rams. One can expect them to press the Redmen all over the court as they're a very small, fast team having lost their regular center who flunked off the team.

In the backcourt will be the mini-guards, 5'9 Dwight Tolliver and 5'5 Ed "the flea" Molloy. The only word to describe these two is pesty. They're always moving, going for the ball.

In the frontcourt will be Nate

Adger, 6'5 at center with 6'4 Phil Hickson and 6'4 Steve Rowell at the forwards.

All five Rhody starters are hitting in double figures with Rowell leading the way with 17.4 points per game with Adger right behind at 16.7.

Although URI's record is poor and although it lacks the big man up front, just the idea of playing UMass is enough to psych the Rams up. UMass will have to be ready.

Tomorrow night Maine comes to town with one of the biggest teams UMass will see this season. With four starters 6'5 or better the Bears can be expected to crash the boards on both ends.

The toughest thing about playing Maine is the fact that there's no time for the Redmen to prepare. The Black Bears are not a disciplined team and like to play a wide-open type of basketball. The result is they throw many shots at the hoop and if they're hot they can be trouble.

Leading the Maine attack is 6'6 Nick Susi, a junior center, who is one of the top rebounders in New England and earlier in the season scored 26 points and pulled down 39 rebounds in one contest to be named Yan Con player of the week.

Susi will be joined up front by juniors Mark Johnson and John Sterling both 6'5 and both very strong off the boards.

In the backcourt will be Paul Bessey and Pete Gavett. Bessey, 5'11, is a junior and the field general of the Black Bears. Gavett is tall for a guard at 6'6 and is one of the finest sophomores in New England.

Reserves Bruce Stintson, 6'6, Bill Haynes, 6'6 and James Jones, 6'4 will probably all see action.

Maine will be coming into this game with a record of 7-10. A win over the Redmen would make its season a success. The Bears will be ready. The Redmen will have to be ready.

For UMass, coach Leaman has made one change for tonight's starting lineup. Tom McLaughlin will be starting in place of Chris Coffin up front. He will be joined by Julius Erving, Ken Mathias, John Betancourt and Mike Pagliara.

Rich Vogeley will also be seeing extra action behind McLaughlin in tonight's game. Coffin will play behind Mathias and Dempsey and or Greeley will see action if there needs to be more movement in the backcourt.

Two must games in two nights. Both opponents will be up. The Redmen will have to be ready.

HOOP NOTES—Monday's sports page will have the preview on Syracuse...Wednesday night the Orangemen defeated St. John's are now 1505...In the latest New England basketball poll Providence is still number one with UMass second, eight points back, followed by Holy Cross and Boston College...Erving is ranked third in the nation in rebounding (20.1) and 11th in scoring (27.7)... The Redmen rank sixth in team defense (63.7) ninth in field goal percentage and fourth in scoring margin (17.9) ...Half time of tomorrow night's game will feature 23 former UMass hoop captains who will be honored for their contributions to UMass basketball...UMass-George Washington tickets are still on sale at the Boyden ticket office...This season is still ahead for both the Redman hoopsters and the fans.

Skaters Host Boston State

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

Properly scheduled, allowing UMass sports fans to attend both the hockey and basketball games tomorrow, the Redmen skaters face Boston State College at 2 p.m. at Orr Rink.

Boston State and a sensational goaltender named Steve Wolfe will ride into town after their contest at Norwich tonight.

Sophomore Wolfe, a native of hockey town Melrose, has an incredible average of 1.66 goals per game scored against him this year. He will prove a tough opponent for the Redmen, who have never earned a victory over his school in all the years the teams have met. Boston State did not play UMass last season, but in the two previous years they beat this campus' squad very soundly.

Although Boston's record is nine wins, 10 losses overall, and eight and eight in Division II, it seems they have improved over the season, proof being their 9-5 upset win over Merrimack last Saturday. Merrimack had beaten Boston twice earlier this year, 2-0 and 6-2. With a main deficit of inconsistancy, their near .500 record gives the Hub City citizens a 50-50 chance in the games against Norwich and UMass this weekend.

Coach Jack Canniff expressed his hopes of more Redman showing like the Amherst game where scoring was well distributed among the players.

"Our problem is that we've been having only one line doing the majority of the scoring in this 'second season' - the Keenan line (Pat Keenan, Dan Reidy, Jack Edwards) Not counting the UConn or Amherst games, of the 23 UMass goals scored by forwards since intersession, 16 were by Keenan's line," tabulated Canniff. "Scoring has to spread throughout the whole team."

Boston State's high scorers this season, center Craig Cullen, wings Ray O'Malley, Jack Crowley, Bob Harris and John Ready are the competition to face starting goalie P.J. Flaherty, as the Redmen attempt to win their first against Boston.

ICE CORRECTION: Keenan's total point is 43.

Wildcat Grapplers At UM Tomorrow

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

The UMass wrestling team will be gunning for its seventh victory in a row tomorrow afternoon, when it hosts the tough grapplers from the University of New Hampshire.

UNH is currently in a mild slump after winning its first six meets and being ranked number one in New England. However, the Wildcats had a break for exams and haven't been the same since. Central Connecticut put the first blemish on their record with a 28-8 victory last week, and then the Coast Guard made it two in a row with a 22-12 win on Tuesday. Thus the Wildcats are 6-2 and will be out to knock off the Redmen and regain some of their lost prestige.

For the Redmen, it will be a case of trying to continue to jell as they have been in the last two weeks. The Redmen have upped their record from 5-3-1 to 11-3-1 during that period and none of the meets have been close at all. Coach Barr is expecting a very tough meet with the Wildcats and a win is important if the Redmen are going to make a strong bid in the New England tournament.

Barr will go with basically the same lineup which has been doing the bulk of the wrestling during the hot streak. Dave Amato, Dave Reynolds, Sheldon Goldberg, Clay Jester, Peter Rock, Jim Godkin, Kent Mignocci, Ed Carlsson, George Zguris and Carl Dambman will wrestle for the Redmen.

Both teams have beaten Dartmouth and both have lost to Coast Guard so the match should be pretty even. There will be no preliminary JV meet and the varsities will go at it at 2:00 in Boyden.

WMUA ON THE AIR-This Sunday night on Sports Talk Ken Horseman and Dave Melvin will have as their guest, freshman hockey coach Russ Kidd. Air time is at 10 p.m. Horseman and Melvin will also be broadcasting all three UMass basketball games this weekend on 91.1 fm. Air time for tonights game with Rhode Island is 7:50. Tomorrow night's game with Maine will be aired starting at 7:20 and Monday night's encounter with Syracuse will begin at 7:50. For all the action tune in to WMUA.

Gymnasts Travel To Navy

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

The UMass varsity gymnasts, coming off a tough loss to Springfield, seek to regain their winning ways tomorrow when they will be hosted by the U.S. Naval Academy. Coach Bill Savering's Midshipmen, currently 2-3 in Eastern League competition, have been improving steadily all season, and could prove to be a challenge for the Redmen.

The Navy squad, a powerful team last year, lost a number of outstanding gymnasts via graduation. This year, they have had some trouble filling the ranks, but can still present three good scores in each event.

Leading the Midshipmen are all-around men Ash and Getzlaff. Getzlaff is a strong performer on floor, while Ash will challenge the Redman vaulters in the longhorse event.

Navy's strongest events could prove to be sidehorse and rings. What was reputed to have been the top sidehorse team in the nation last year has been altered due to the loss of two seniors, but Navy certainly remains capable in this event. Sidehorse specialists Worthington and Swanson, score 9.0 or better.

With Klein and Schmor on rings, Navy could battle UMass for top honors in this event. Other notable specialists for the Midshipmen include Rightmire on floor, Lanzer and Oswald in vaulting, and Spalding on parallel bars.

Redman coach Erik Kjeldsen will go with some necessary changes in his lineup. Representing UMass in the all-around will be Norm Vexler, Tony Vacca, and Danny Spier. Due to injury, Tom Myslicki and Steve Cary will not see action this meet, but should be ready for the Temple meet. Doug Salisbury will compete on parallel bars and high bar, while Len Aubrey will go as a ring specialist.

Last Night's Intramurals

Volleyball

APO 2, ATG 0
SAE 2, PLP 0
PSD 2, SPE 0
KS 2, TEP 1
DC 2, TC 0
PSK 2, ASP 0
SAM 2, ZN 1
LCA 2, PMD 1
Maroons 2, Eagles 1
Cool Cans 2, Flaming A's 1
Int. Ed 2, Conglos 1
Gunners 2, Education 0
Bombers 2, Burners 0
TKB 2, PP 1
SAE 2, Crushers 0
Prince 2, Flies 0
Senfet 2, Cans 0
Lovers 2, Ids 1
TT 2, LT 0
Erodites 2, Heads 0
Jacks over Boys, wbf
Sigmas 2, Dildoughs 0
Hockers 2, Tubes 1
Hurts 2, Oxford 0
Canaille 2, Suits 0
Hemlocks 2, Brigade 0
Lemons 2, Hi Lo's 0
Pipers 2, Redwoods 1

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Cold and clammy. Highs in 30's. Chance of snow.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 91 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1971

MDC Review

Scratch A Freak, Find A Greaser

By DAVID WILLIAMS
MDC Staff

Oh, for the good old days, the fifties, when bobbysox-saddleshoes-redlipstick were a way of life; when more Crisco was sold to teenage boys than to bakeries.

Oh, to be back in the fifties, when Chubby Checker and Elvis Presley were the rage.

No chance, you say?

Well, you missed Winter Carni weekend, an epic of sorts presented to the students by the band of perpetual adolescents who will always be class officers at heart.

But how could they do it, you ask?

Listen, children, and you shall hear....

The absurdities began on Tuesday, first day of balloting for Winter Carni Queen. Jim LaMacchia of Pierpont decided that he wanted to be the Queen, not for the reasons that everyone else ran, but to fulfill some idealistic longing of his own.

Supported by the Gay Liberation Front and the Student Homophile League, he quickly became a front runner as students flocked to the ballot box to write his name in. However, this travesty of justice almost didn't materialize and indeed, hasn't yet.

When the polls closed on Wednesday, the ballot box was full to overflowing. The president of the Junior Class, Julie Ierardi, decided to transfer some of the ballots to a safe in the RSO offices in the Campus Center.

Unwillingly aided and abetted by Russell G. Viera, treasurer of the Class of '72, the two opened the box, after Russel "carried the box through every back door I could find in the Union", and counted the ballots. Not surprisingly, they found that LaMacchia had a substantial lead. This as Miss Ierardi testified at a General Court hearing Friday afternoon, "was something to sweat about."

Meanwhile, back at Pierpont, Richard Dinkin, a friend of LaMacchia's, was getting excited about reports that Winter Carni voting booth people were apparently confusing voters on purpose as to voting procedures. He decided to take the case to court on the grounds that LaMacchia was being denied a fair shake at the Queenship on account of his sex.

The General Court of the Unitersity of Massachusetts met Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the 9th floor of the Campus Center to consider a petition taken out by Dinkin. After two and a half hours of protracted, disjointed testimony often bordering on total absurdity, the Court announced it was ready to make a decision. About nine that night they had made up their minds.

Reading a decision that not only seemed to treat the squabble between LaMacchia and Winter Carni fairly, but also seemed to reflect the Court's view of the case, Robert Roschord intoned that elections for Winter Carni Queen will be held this week, write-ins will be counted, and the Queen will reign during the weekend of February 27-28, with her duties being dissolved as of Monday morning, March 1.

Moving on quickly with the weekend's festivities....

Friday night found Little Latin Larry and his Lupie Louies in the Campus Center Ballroom. This had to be the high point of the weekend, and Winter Carni Committee is to be commended for presenting a show that touched the hearts of many at UMass. Seriously, though, for the first time in a long, too long time, someone came up with a weekend for the masses, a weekend that brought out the best in all of us.

Saturday saw the freaks who had stepped out of character for Latin Larry, revert back to sitting mutely in front of a thundering, vibrating, cauterwauling rock band.

A light show, combined with Ort, Featherbed and Guns and Butter, will go down in history as the best cheap concert the campus has ever seen. Again, Winter Carni deserves a hand.

It's ridiculous to enumerate every event and say a kind word about it. Let it suffice to say that Winter Carni Committee did a bang-up job. If we never have a major concert again but, instead, a few of these well-planned cheap riots, we'll be better off for it.

Sociologically speaking, it's very doubtful that anything like Friday night's transformation of the general population into beer swilling, chain wielding, bobbing and throbbing greasers could happen as spontaneously without massive doses of mescaline or something added to dining commons milk. In a way that's really too bad.

Memories of Winter Carni will be treasured and held dear like those of Woodstock; a sort of bittersweet remembrance of an enjoyable but never to be repeated festival. If I linger too long on Friday night, forgive me, but I've long thought that today's freaks owe more of a debt to the greasers of yesteryear than they are willing to admit.

Jack Kerouac, Japhy Ryder, Dean Moriarty freaks are descended from these men. Moriarty was an actual person named Jack Cassady and he knew Ken Kesey and the Merry Pranksters who practically discovered acid. Cassady died a few years back, as did Kerouac, and the legacy they left was carried to its natural conclusion: the Beat Generation gave way to the Love Generation.

In case anybody is interested, Nancy Butler of 414 Coolidge guessed that there were 5,780 M&Ms in the jar. There were 5,779. Nancy gets to eat them now.

"A LITTLE DAB WILL DO YA—" Little Latin Larry entertains greasers and freaks alike Friday night in the Campus Center Auditorium. A splendid time was had by all as the Latinairres and Latinettes put Dick Clark to shame.

MADAM PRESIDENT-Julie Ierardi awaits the verdict at the UMass General Court proceedings last Friday night. The court voided last week's Winter Carni Queen election and ordered a new election this week. (MDC photo by David Williams)

IT FEELS SO GOOOOD-Everyone got into the swing of things, it seems. Even the mysterious Hatch Dancer sported a new coat for the festivities.

IT STINKS IN THERE-Two of UM's youngest get a whiff of the air (smoke) pouring out of the back of Roadarte's portable hall-blocker-opium den. (MDC photo by Demian)

Sen. Packwood On Population Sponsored Tonight By DVP

Senator Bob Packwood (R-Oregon) will speak Monday at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium on "Population Explosion." The lecture is being sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors' Program.

Great-grandson of William H. Packwood, Oregon Pioneer and member of the Oregon Constitutional Convention of 1857, Bob Packwood was himself elected to the U.S. Senate in 1968. At only age 36 he became the youngest U.S. Senator in the 91st Congress.

In 1970 Packwood was named to the Commission on Population and American Future by President Nixon.

He introduced legislation which would limit to two the number of children which could be declared as income tax deductions in March of 1970. The measure will become effective as of January 1, 1973.

In April of last year Packwood also introduced a National Abortion Act to legalize abortion nationwide.

The Senator was educated at the New York University School of Law, 1957, BA, and Willamette University, Salem, Oregon, 1954.

A coffee hour open to the public will be held Monday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge.

Sen. Bob Packwood

Board Of Higher Ed. Votes To Oppose Tuition Hike

The board of Higher Education voted in a long awaited decision Friday to oppose any increase in the $200 per year tuition now paid by the 74,000 students enrolled in Massachusetts' public colleges and universities.

Increased tuition, it said, would endanger its commitment to building a public higher-education system open to all students who can benefit from it.

The action of the board came as something of a surprise, since it had been expected to recommend a doubling of the tuition. Legislative pressures for even larger increases are reported by some observers to be stronger this year than in the past.

Although the board, a coordinating and planning body for the state's 27 colleges and universities, has no authority to set tuition itself, its recommendations carry considerable weight with the trustees of the institutions. Whether the board will be able to forestall legislative efforts to raise tuition is an open question.

Edward C. Moore, chancellor, said he did not regard the board's action as a change of mind but rather an outgrowth of careful study of enrollment figures and the possible effects of a tuition increase on future enrollment.

He pointed out that a recent board sponsored study had revealed that 44 percent of the public college students from the Boston metropolitan area come from the lowest 25 percent of the income bracket.

Board members realize, he said, that most of the expected future growth in public higher education in the state must come from the low-income groups, because the middle and upper classes now send almost all their children to college. Projections call for 142,000 more students in public colleges and universities by 1980.

A recent tuition study done for the board estimated that raising tuition to $400 would bar 3200 to 4700 students, or about 5 percent of the current enrollment, from college.

The motion adopted yesterday said that even the $200-current tuition, together with fees and room and board charges, "serves as an economic barrier preventing equal access to the public system for a great many students."

When the state provides enough scholarship aid to ensure that all qualified students will have access to college, the board said, it will reconsider its opposition to a tuition increase.

Moore pointed out that, while Massachusetts is the ninth-wealthiest state in the nation in terms of per capita income, it ranks 50th in per capita spending on public higher education.

"It is unrealistic to assume that one of the richest states in the nation cannot pay its education bill," he said.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo of UMass Amherst brought the Board's decision a little closer to home. Said Tippo," I don't want to speculate as to the effect the Board's decision will have on the decision made concerning tuition increases to be formulated by our own Board of Trustees. As of now, the matter isn't even on the Trustees' agenda, but it will probably be brought up sometime this spring."

Want A Summer Job? Start Looking Now

The Placement Office recommends that all students start to think of summer job possibilities now. Some are available through the office. Every week in Placement News, a weekly flyer distributed to all dormitories and groups on campus, these job openings will be listed. Interested students should ask in the office about the desired position. An appointment for them will be made with Mr. Emery.

The possibilities are nation-wide and diversified. For example, there are job openings for junior chemical engineers in Cleveland, jobs in "Hamilton Stores" in Yellowstone Park, resort help in Southampton, Long Island, and forest products research jobs in Madison, Wisconsin. Also in the office is a folder containing all camp employers requests for student workers that the Placement Office receives. Swimming instructors, counselors, art and crafts people are needed.

The Placement Office strongly urges each student to seek summer employment early. If the student is searching in his home area, they suggest the student start during the spring recess and explore every possibility.

Some resort people come recruiting in April. Students should keep in touch with the Placement News listings of all these opportunities.

Questions? Placement Office, Room 239, Whitmore

Janet Pearlman
MDC Staff

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. ZIP code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst. the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

UMass PhysEd Offers Specialized Activities

You don't have to be an athlete to enjoy physical education -- at least at UMass.

Offerings in physical education include the traditional calisthenics and basketball, squash, or lacrosse games; but they also include horseback riding, yoga, gliding and many such specialized activities.

Gone are the days of segregated classes. Most physical education classes at UMass are coed, and groups of sweat-suited young ladies and men jog around Alumni Stadium together or attempt pas de deux in ballet class.

After years of repetitive exercises in some high schools, many students are less then enthusiastic about taking physical education at the college level. So, UMass gives students the opportunity to experiment with different forms of physical activity, according to Dr. David C. Bischoff, associate dean of the School of Physical Education. At UMass, students are not made to feel that strength and endurance alone are basic requisites for success in physical education courses.

"We are trying to expose students to activities they can use for the rest of their lives," says Dr. Bischoff. "Everyone needs a creative way to use leisure time in later years," he adds.

"In offering students the broadest possible range of activities," said Dr. Bischoff, "the University can accommodate interests from traditional volleyball and badminton to scuba diving, archery, horsemanship, yoga, and fencing. Some people prefer being active, while others shy away from heavy physical exertion. Therefore, it would be unwise for us to say some activities are acceptable in physical education, and others are not." According to Dr. Bischoff, "Motor skills, such as those needed to land a glider, are very important in our daily living, and yet they don't require great strength."

More and more students are signing up for physical education courses not just as requirements, but as electives, according to Mrs. Ethel Purnell, coordinator of the general physical education program at UMass. Undergraduates and graduates find special interests in the program, and foreign students gain insights into sports and related activities of Western culture.

Several courses that typify the new look in physical education are being offered for the first time this year. One is Aikido, a Japanese form of martial art that requires little physical strength, but much mental concentration and a force called "ki" (breath of spirit). Throws and falls are used not to hurt the opponent, but to avoid his attacks. Once "ki" has been successfully developed, Aikido can be used as a form of self-defense.

The coed classes provide real-life situations for the boys who are at first apprehensive about throwing their female classmates. "The boys treat us as if we'll break," remarked one coed. "But by exerting our 'ki' we can be of equal strength."

A less strenuous way to fly through the air is to enroll in the UMass gliding program, offered in conjunction with Pilgrim Airport in Hatfield.

The dual-seat, motorless ship is simple to operate. Two rudder pedals and the stick are used to maneuver the ship, and once released from the Piper Super Cub at about 3000 feet, the student and his ship soar silently at 40 miles per hour for 20-25 minutes.

Beginners are apt to be nervous. As one student put it, "You have a tendency to overcontrol until you realize that you are flying the ship. Then suddenly the apprehension disappears."

Concentration, important in gliding, is also essential in yoga, a very popular course at UMass. Through breathing exercises, basic postures and relaxation, the student learns to increase the control of his body, muscle flexibility, endurance and strength.

With opportunities to participate in a wide variety of activities, students no longer enter UMass dreading the prospect of physical education.

TEACHERS NEEDED

Opportunities for beginning and experienced candidates, private schools, coast to coast. Also public schools in the northeast. Especially sciences, math, languages. Write today for particulars.

School Service Bureau

Post Office Box 2785
Windsor, Connecticut 06095
Tel. 203 - 688-6109

FREEPORT FLING
IN THE
BAHAMA ISLANDS
DURING COLLEGE WEEK
MARCH 21 - 29
ONLY $189* plus 6% tax incl. services

Includes:
- Round trip jet with champagne, meals.
- 8 days at the Freeport Inn.
- Spacious air conditioned room — some with kitchenettes.
- FREE "HAPPY HOUR" every night. FREE BOOZE 5:30 - 7:30, Band 6 - 8.
- Facilities far swimming, sailing, water skiing, golf.
- Many clubs, casinos, pubs, discoteques.

*Based on 4 per room.

JET ONLY FOR $99

Send $25 deposit to
JOE MALETZ
1513 JFK

or call 546-7819 for info.

Checks payable to Student Tours

Retiring Stockbridge Dean Feted

By BOB CALLAHAN
MDC Staff

Retiring Dean Fred P. Jeffrey was honored at a dinner Thursday night for 27 years of service to the University as an administrator, teacher and scholar.

Dean Jeffrey retired yesterday as associate dean of the UMass College of Agriculture and director of the Stockbridge School. The dinner was given by Stockbridge School seniors and attended by approximately 400 well wishers including students, faculty and friends who wished to express appreciation to the Dean.

The main speaker at the testimonial was former UMass President John W. Lederle. Other speakers were UMass Amherst Chancellor Oswald Tippo; Dale Sieling, first dean of the College of Agriculture and new director of the U.S. Army Laboratory in Natick; Luther Banta, UMass poultry husbandry professor emeritus; Richard Foley, animal science professor emeritus at UMass; Norman Lawton, Stockbridge School Alumni Association president; Andrew Pyenson, president of the Stockbridge senior class; and James Allen, director of UMass alumni affairs.

In their tribute to Dean Jeffrey, the Stockbridge School seniors said "By straightforward and sympathetic advising, you have directly influenced over 3000 of our lives...and have made time to teach and do research."

Dean Jeffrey was graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1932 and received his M.S. degree from UMass two years later when the school was still known as Mass Agricultural School. Shortly after he received his masters degree for his work in poultry genetics, the college underwent a shift in names to Mass. State College.

He then went to Rutgers University where for 9 years he was associated with the Poultry Department of that school.

During the war years Dean Jeffrey returned to UMass in 1944 and became head of the Poultry Department, a position which he held for 9 years. He was named to the post of Dean of Stockbridge and Associate Dean of the College of Agriculture after a reorganization of the school in 1953.

Dean Jeffrey has served on a wide variety of administrative, faculty and student committees. He is a member of the agricultural honorary Alpha Zeta, and of the scientific honoraries Phi Kappa Phi and Sigma Xi.

According to Dean Jeffrey, the enrollment of Stockbridge has increased since he came here in 1944. When he became Dean, Stockbridge had a little over 400 people enrolled, he said. Today the two year school has 625 students, he went on.

Dean Jeffrey said he had witnessed many changes in Stockbridge since he first came to UMass. Recalling his earlier years here, he stated that in 1945 there was only one program of any great size, Animal Science. Three other programs, Arbor and Park Management, Turf Management and Restaurant and Hotel Management, have since been added and have great popularity, he said.

"These courses offer proof to the fact that Stockbridge has moved from a school stressing productive agriculture to one that is involved in teaching the various related fields of agriculture," Dean Jeffrey declared.

The change in housing for Stockbridge students was also witnessed by the Dean. He said that previously Stockbridge students were required to live "in town". Three dorms were set aside for them later (Berkshire, Hampshire, and Hampden, now offices and classrooms) and today these students reside throughout the campus, which Dean Jeffrey saw as a good thing.

Male/female ratio has also changed in the last few years, according to the Dean. He said that for years a few girls were enrolled in the floriculture and animal science courses, but today many pursue careers in laboratory animal management. It was noted that the girls were not from farm areas but from large urban regions.

Many students in the University with non-agricultural majors are pursuing courses of interest that are offered by Stockbridge, Jeffrey said. He added that organic gardeners, and members of communes have attended fruit and vegetable courses at UMass.

Dean Jeffrey will still maintain an office in Stockbridge Hall, where he will work with J. Robert Smyth on poultry plumage genetics. Those at the dinner presented the retiring dean with a green house for his home, where he can continue working in his area of interest, breeding and hybridizing, he said.

Students of Stockbridge, when interviewed, had nothing but the highest respect and praise for the Dean.

Replacing Jeffrey as Dean of Stockbridge is John W. Dennison and filling the position of Associate Dean of the College of Agriculture is Dr. Ernest M. Buck.

A coffee hour sponsored by Dean A.A. Spielman and the administrators of the College of Agriculture was held in the Colonial Lounge yesterday afternoon to again honor the Dean.

Retiring Stockbridge Director Fred P. Jeffrey, left, is presented with appreciative plaque during a testimonial dinner Thursday night.

Allen Proposes Ed. School Shakeup

When Dwight Allen came to the University of Massachusetts four years ago as dean of the School of Education, he began a series of innovations which have attracted national attention.

Last week, Allen proposed the establishment of what some educators have called the ultimate direction for all progressive changes in higher education: the abolition of all traditional classroom courses, a change which would create a school of education based solely on independent study.

Allen predicts that the school council, the body responsible for approving all innovations in the School of Education, will approve the plan at the end of the month.

But, while most of Allen's innovations have been welcomed generally by most School of Education staff, his latest plan has met mixed reaction, both within the School of Education, and in the University community at large.

Under Allen's plan, students would take a series of independent study projects, for which they would receive a number of modular credits. Each 15 modular credits equal one traditional University graduation credit, and 120 graduation credits are needed for a bachelor's degree.

But there would be no traditional three hours a week classroom courses, which students in all other schools at UMass will still be required to take.

In other words, a School of Education student could take 15 modules of credit (the same graduation credit value as one traditional course) for, say, observing a high school class once a week.

Allen, who said that he is seeking a Carnegie Foundation grant of $62,000 to plan and implement the program, listed four major advantages of his program:

— Time flexibility for students who, under the present structure, don't have time for "reflection" because of their heavy traditional course load.

- Increased decision making responsibilities for students, who would now be able to "individualize" their education, taking only those educational experiences which they feel are relevant to their own lives and future plans.

- Reexamination of course material by faculty. Busy work would be eliminated, because when a subject is covered the credit module would end.

- Students could sample different kinds of courses more easily and therefore, would be exposed to more varied kinds of education.

Allen said that the plan does not rule out the possibility of classroom courses - a student and a faculty member could choose to meet three times a week in a classroom - but the program, he said, eliminated the "jail-like aspect" of learning experiences in higher education.

He explained, "One of the most glaring deficiencies of current education is its inflexibility - inflexible administration, inflexible staffing patterns, inflexible curriculum. This rigidity prevents education from responding to the needs of students and to the needs of society....and an alternative to all of this is the modular approach."

But one School of Education faculty member disagrees with Allen. Dr. Albert Anthony said in an open letter to Allen that he doubts the value of the modular program.

He said, "More time should be spent to improve what goes on during the various course blocks, rather than with the structure of the blocks themselves."

And several School of Education students have called the new program "confusing," and "impractical" for students in other University departments, wishing to take an elective course in the School of Education.

"Modular credit courses meet at various times and usually require more meeting time than normal classes....thus it would be difficult for a student taking other university courses to fit a modular course into his schedule."

But these same students said that the plan would allow students and teachers to spend more time in academic areas they were interested in, and said that this alone might outweigh any drawbacks the plan might have.

New England Center
for Personal and Organizational Development will offer

Wednesday, February 24, 8 p.m., Mark Meadows Gym, U.M.
COME TO YOUR SENSES
An evening of experiences in re-awaking our senses.
$1.50 for students — $3.00 for adults
Feb. 26 - 28 Fee $30.00
POSITIVE SELF-ACTUALIZATION WORKSHOP
Developing one's potential in an atmosphere of positive support.
Mar. 5 - 7 Fee: $35.00
EVOKING CREATIVE BEHAVIOR
Overcoming one's self-imposed barriers to creativity.
Mar. 5 - 7 Fee $50.00
HUMAN RELATIONS LAB FOR EDUCATORS
Increasing awareness of self and other in group situations.
Mar. 12 - 14
TORI WORKSHOP
A large group experience in Trust, Openess, Realization and Interdependence
Fee: $10.00 for students — $20.00 for adults
To register for one of the above workshops or to request a brochure of the spring schedule write or call --

NEW ENGLAND CENTER
Box 575, Amherst, Mass. 01002 413-253-9686

MDC Classifieds Pay

Thursday, Feb. 25
MANDATORY
STATION MEETING
For ALL W M U A People
(Anyone is welcome, all are invited.)

In The Nation And The World

THE ACTION IS HOT AND HEAVY-Helicopters of Charlie Troop, 2nd Battalion, 17th U.S. Air Cavalry, head for home base at Khe Sanh, Vietnam, after landing a small South Vietnamese reconnaissance unit at a helicopter crash site in Laos. The U.S. choppers have experienced hot and heavy fire during operations over Laos the past week and a half.

U.S. Air Power Diverted To Aid S. Viet Forces

SAIGON (AP)-The United States has assembled the biggest air armada of the Indochina war as a quick reaction force designed to keep South Vietnamese troops from bogging down in Laos and to deter North Vietnamese forces from pushing across the demilitarized zone.

As many as 2,000 combat aircraft have been committed.

If the South Vietnamese run into trouble in Laos, as they did over the weekend, American fighter-bombers and gunships are expected to bail them out with massive firepower.

U.S. military sources said the whole concept of the use of American air power had been changed in conjuction with the Laotian operation and with a parallel South Vietnamese drive in Cambodia.

"Air power is being employed as an artillery weapon in support of ground operations in Laos and Cambodia," explained one source. "Missions have been realigned and tactical airpower has been shifted. More airplanes have been put on quick reaction in support of ground forces. There is less of the standard interdiction missions hitting trails and sides of mountains, for example."

U.S. B52 heavy bombers, generally used to attack truck parks, storage areas and entry points to the Ho Chi Minh trail, are supporting the parallel ground operations.

"Now the B52 requirement is more urgent elsewhere, to support the ground operations, rather than on interdiction missions," the source said. "Air power is flexible."

Up to 1,500 U.S. combat planes and 500 helicopters of all types, including gunships, are available for the air campaign.

The magnitude of the U.S. air effort and the weakness of the South Vietnamese air force in the northern region is underscored by figures provided by the U.S. Command. During the first two weeks of the drive into Laos, U.S. helicopters flew more than 10,000 missions across the border. These included gunships, troop lift, supply, medical evacuation and command and control.

The campaign has cost the United States the heaviest helicopter losses in six months.

The U.S. Command has announced a loss of 24 helicopters in the past two weeks, 15 inside Laos and nine on the Vietnamese side of the border but in support of the operation. Total American casualties in the air losses are 29 killed, 11 missing and 24 wounded.

Field reports say scores of other helicopters have been shot down and recovered by larger helicopters, or damaged in the air but able to limp back to base.

U.S. tactical combat planes are flying up to 500 missions a day; B52 bombers another 30 missions a day.

Air Force, Navy, Marine and Army aircraft all are being diverted to Laos. Air Force planes are flying from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand. Two 7th Fleet carriers are on Yankee Station in the Gulf of Tonkin, with a third carrier in reserve.

The air armada also makes it possible to resume full-scale bombing of North Vietnam should enemy troops move across the demilitarized zone to attack American ground forces acting as a blocking force on the Vietnamese side of the border for the Saigon drive into Laos.

President Nixon indicated during a news conference last week that he would resume the bombing of North Vietnam if these U.S. forces are threatened, and he said, "I am not going to place any limitation upon the use of airpower."

Twisters Lash South As Snow Hits Midwest

Tornadoes slashed across Mississippi and Louisiana yesterday killing 17 persons and injuring many others. The town of Inverness, Miss., was reported "almost flattened."

Mississippi Civil Defense reported tornadoes killed eight persons at Cary and one at Rome. The Mississippi Highway Patrol said two persons were killed south of Bovina, a community between Vicksburg and Jackson.

Louisiana state police reported that a tornado killed six persons in a sharecropper's home near Delhi. Six others were missing and one injured.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol said that at Inverness "there is lots of damage and lots of injuries. Our unit there said they are still hunting for people. We don't know about fatalities."

The tornadoes struck northeast Louisiana communities and then moved into Mississippi, hopscotching from the southwest to the northeast along the Delta area.

Earlier, tornadoes touched down in central and eastern Texas, injuring five persons at Athens and damaging several homes. A twister caused property damage but no injuries in Waco.

The town of Transylvania, La., on the Mississippi River in East Carroll Parish, recorded a tornado. Twelve persons were reported injured. Four homes and several mobilehomes also were damaged, authorities said.

Tornadoes were reported by the Weather Bureau, civil defense and the highway patrol in Mississippi at Rolling Fork where 20 were injured, at Greenwood, where winds felled two radio station towers, damaged small homes and blew several cars off the road; at Mayersville, where several homes and house trailers were damaged, and at Beleoni, Delta City, Yazoo City and Sunflower.

Tornado watches were issued for parts of Tennessee, Alabama, Oklahoma and Arkansas in addition to Louisiana and Mississippi.

Strong winds, heavy snow, sleet, freezing rain and hail hit several parts of the country.

The Texas Panhandle was paralyzed by near-blizzard conditions with up to a foot of snow and 45-mile-an-hour winds.

Miami and Pampa, Tex., both had a foot-deep topping of snow on the ground, with more still falling.

$1-Million Demanded For Captive American

NEW YORK (AP) - A letter renewing a demand of $1-million ransom for Dr. Claude L. Fly, an American agriculture expert kidnaped in Uruguay last Aug. 7, has been received by the New York Times.

The letter contained a hand-written postscript, purportedly by Fly himself, the newspaper reported in its Sunday edition.

The authenticity of the letter was to be checked by the State Department, the Times said.

The letter was received Saturday by C. Raymond Hulsart, the Times' secretary, and was the second to the newspaper. The first, last month, made the original ransom demand, which subsequently was rejected by the government, the Times said.

Fly was one of the three foreign officials seized by Tupamaros-Marxist urban guerrillas-in a rash of kidnapings in Uruguay in the past year.

Hulsart said he did not know why the lastest communication was sent to him. The envelope, bearing three Uruguayan stamps, contained a typewritten original addressed to Mrs. Fly and a carbon copy for Hulsart that asked him to forward the original to the Fly residence in Fort Collins, Colo.

In Fort Collins, Claude Fly's son John said neither he nor his mother would comment until they received their copy of the letter.

The handwritten postscript said: Dear Miriam:-Please. I love you always. Claude."

The typed text said in part: "Dr. Claude Fly is in good health, he hopes in your action and sends tender regards to all the family."

It said the ransom demand remained the same and that "instructions for the exchange will follow in a next letter."

Soviet Weakness Seen By Former U.S.S.R. Citizen

NEW YORK (AP) - Leonid Rigerman, Soviet-born Jew who won American citizenship in December, said yesterday permission for some Jews to leave the Soviet Union showed "a weakening of the regime" in that Communist-ruled country.

"In Stalin's days even to think about it was incredible," said Rigerman, 30, who was a schoolboy when the dictator died in 1953.

Rigerman and his American-born mother, Esther, arrived here Saturday night. Mrs. Rigerman, who moved from Brooklyn to Moscow in 1937, had also had her claims to American citizenship recognized by both the Soviet and American governments at the same time.

The young computer programer claimed that the Soviet government tried to prevent Jews from leaving the country because they were "intellectual assets" and the country's leaders "want the slaves to work."

He told a news conference at the Lincoln Square Synagogue, that the Soviets had "sophisticated ways" to prevent Jews leaving, one of them being the refusal to grant character references without which emmigration papers were impossible.

Except in unusual circumstances, Soviet law forbids the country's citizens to emmigrate no matter what their race or religion. Rigerman confined his remarks at a new conference to the problems of those Jews who want to leave Russia.

This desire of the Jews to leave for Israel, he said, was the only "live movement" in Russia and could not be "extinguished."

"It is a people's movement, not an intellectual one," he added.

Rigerman, who got his first glimpse of the United States when he stepped from a Pan-Am jet at Kennedy Airport, waving an American flag in one hand and an Israeli one in the other, told newsmen: "I was brought up in an American spirit. I couldn't feel at home in the Soviet Union."

He said Jews wanted to leave Russia because "they can't be Jews there. They are deprived of all forms of Jewish culture."

To Sell Anything
MDC Classifieds

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

The Flying Club's contribution to Winter Carni weekend is shown taxiing down Massachusetts Avenue towards Haigis Mall early Friday morning. Piloted by Woody Hobbs, a graduate student in geology, the plane was situated at the Mall all day Friday, where the Flying Club sold tickets to its raffle. (MDC Photo by Ed Fenwick).

Wed. TOC Coffee House Proving Successful

By JUDY EPSTEIN
MDC Staff

Folk music, beer at non rip-off prices and bouncy chairs, are available at the Top of the Campus Wednesday nights at the TOC Coffee House.

It has proven quite successful so far. The waiting lines extend from the dining room to the bar and the people mingle and drink and gaze out at the campus below.

Perhaps the success of the Coffee House can be attributed to the serving of alcoholic beverages. Attendance in weeks to come shall be the test.

If attendance is such that the TOC dining room can no longer be accommodating, then the Coffee House will be held on the second level of the Campus Center in the cafeteria which can hold six hundred people.

The Coffee House benefits not only for the audience but for the performers and the management as well. Performers aren't auditioned or paid, their remuneration is a real stage, a good PA system, and more importantly extensive exposure.

The TOC is finally being utilized by students who could not afford the formerly extravagant prices. The Coffee House has proven to be a good showcase for all involved.

A feeling prevails among the audience and performers, however, that the plush refinery of the TOC is not conducive to the cozy atmosphere usually associated with folk music, found on the Mirkwood level, for instance. One player timidly asked the audience to be quiet so that he could hear himself tune his guitar.

This complaint was driven forth with considerably more vehemence by the MC, Ed Vardas, man in charge of the show. It was this man's robust innuendos that brought back any wandering ears.

Aspiring musicians and interested students are welcome at the TOC any Wednesday night.

UMass Med School Expands Class Size

Next year's entering class at the UMass Medical School in Worcester has been expanded from 16 to 24 students, it was announced by Dean Lamar Soutter.

The increase comes as the result of a recommendation by the medical school faculty, who have volunteered to teach extra classes to accommodate the students.

According to Dean Soutter, the proposal was made because the number of applications has jumped from 292 last year to 504 this year. "The high number of qualified applicants and the critical need for more doctors were instrumental in the decision," he said.

While many of the lectures will accommodate the increased number of students, some of the laboratory courses, such as physiology and biochemistry will have to add new sections, he said. Some adjustments will have to be made in the laboratories to add work benches for the increased number of students, but the Dean said this could be worked out.

The Dean added that 24 students have been invited to attend next year, but acceptances won't be completed for a month or two. He noted that all those invited to attend are Massachusetts residents and six are coeds.

When the first building is completed in the fall of 1974, the entering class will be expanded to 100 a year.

Fall Grades

Grade corrections for last semester (Fall, 1970) may be obtained by undergraduates in the Registrars Office (Room 213) of Whitmore.

School Of Ed. Ombudsman

Info, Referral: The Brunt Of His Work

By ROBERT SCHEIER
MDC Staff

"About all we can really do is pull a few people out from under the wheels of the machine as it goes rolling along." This is how David Flight, the Ombudsman of the School of Education, describes his work.

Flight, who shares his duties with Peter Sartwell, a graduate student in the school, has held his post for close to a year. In that year his office has handled problems ranging from a simple information and referral service, to "non-binding" "meditation" between individuals in the school.

"Although this isn't the way the case load breaks down, we spend around half our time in that sort of meditation," Mr. Flight says. Much of the time it is just necessary to clear up misunderstandings or mistaken assumptions. Of ten in such cases most of the Ombudsman's work is just getting the differing parties together to discuss their problems, and some of the time it moves on to a higher body in the school. And of course sometimes one party still leaves dissatisfied.

What Mr. Flight cites as two of the unique qualities of his post are its lack of power and its place as an integral part of the School of Education. In case the Ombudsman cannot settle an issue, it can go to any of several higher advisory boards and councils.

Also, the Ombudsman himself cannot really take any action on his own. More often, his role is to direct an individual to the office or official who can help him.

Mr. Flight describes the four main roles of the Ombudsman as a sounding board, where new ideas and suggestions can be brought before experienced people, a general information and referral surface, a grievance board for simple problems, and lastly a mediation board for interpersonal problems.

Along with these functions, the office has found itself doing much data gathering and investigation regarding teaching assistantships, and initiating solutions for problems.

Although problems seem to come to the office in spurts, at any one time the staff will be working on 2 or 3 big problems, often in the category of interpersonal conflicts, along with many smaller and easier to solve problems. Some of these long-term projects may take up to three months to resolve. The emphasis on the role of the Ombudsman in cases of interpersonal conflict is on the informal and emotional side of the argument, and on finding creative solutions to the conflict.

Mr. Sartwell, who first became interested in the program through an interest in maintaining the individual's civil liberties against the blundering and impersonality of a large bureaucracy. Both he and Mr. Flight feel that the office of Ombudsman is a useful one, although they and the campus-wide ombudsman are the only ones on campus. Their job is not working to eliminate any of the "machine" that is a large school, but helping people to live with it.

At Northampton Volkswagen

70	Pontiac, Yellow	2995.00
68	Pontiac Lemans, White	1395.00
68	Opel Wagon, Blue	1695.00
68	Ford Mustang, Blue	1295.00
68	Austin Healey, Yellow	1695.00
68	Buick Skylark, Blue	1395.00
68	Renault, White	1695.00
68	Chevy Belaire, Blue	1295.00
68	Ford T-Bird, White	2995.00
67	Fiat 850, Red	995.00
67	Ford Wagon, White	1495.00
66	Ford T-Bird, Blue	895.00
66	Rambler American, Green	695.00
66	Chrysler, Green	995.00
65	Pontiac Grand Prix, Green	795.00
65	Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65	Ford LTD, White	795.00
61	Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
64	Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63	Mercury Comet, Maroon	395.00
67	Ford Wagon, Blue	1295.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From
Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
584-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5) Northampton
Open Eves till 9

Homosexuality, Topic Of "Focus" Tonight

Tonight at 10 P.M., WMUA's "Focus" program will provide a forum for discussion of homosexuality in a heterosexual-oriented society.

The issue of homosexuality has been raised repeatedly on the UMass campus over the last several months. Letters written by members of two student groups, the UMass Student Homophile League and the Gay Liberation Front, have appeared with some frequency on the editorial page of the Daily Collegian.

Moderator Ken Mosakowski's guests for tonight's live, 60-minute program will be Arlen Brunson, Kay Raymond, and two other members of the Student Homophile League.

Interested listeners are invited to call in their questions tonight at 545-2425 or 545-2876.

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL
gives you
NASSAU IN THE SPRING FROM $99
EUROPE IN THE SUMMER FROM $195
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. (617) 536-7863
Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Scheier
NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Demian Dan Kamal
SPORTS — Steve Schmidt, Al Jagoda
DARKROOM — Don Glickstein
EDITORIAL — John Mullen
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Don Glickstein

Freedom For Sexists

The Queen is dead; Long live the Queen!

One can only admire Jim LaMacchia's courage and sincere intentions in running for Winter Carni Queen. Miss America-type contests do, in the words of Mr. LaMacchia, "dehumanizes women and perpetuates a system of competitiveness and goal-orientation for their own sake". The selection procedure of the Winter Carni Queen has been less than regular and did need to be challenged. Mr. LaMacchia has succeeded in making people question "sexism" and its manifestations on this campus.

But who speaks for the old, for tradition, for those who cling to their past and cannot change?

The General Court's decision to void last week's Winter Carni election and to hold new elections this week was a just one. Like so many Supreme Court opinions, however, the General Court neglected to resolve the basic issue in question--does a female Winter Carni Queen infringe upon the rights of men and liberated women? By failing to rule on this, other than by inference, the Court has disregarded the rights of a minority to practice a peculiar life style, that did not prevent another group from practicing its style of life.

The Winter Carni female Queen is a voluntary tradition. No one is forced to "degrade" themselves. No one is forced to vote. If the Court had wished to take a broader look at the basic question, it might have ruled that a Winter Carni king should be established, to insure the equality of opportunity for both sexes.

What happened Friday has been happening throughout the world with alarming frequency: Weathermen and pukes trash buildings, thinkers disregard facts in favor of feeling, all traditions are mocked without questioning their worth, Humphreys are not allowed to speak, the distinction between pigs and people is made. Rights are abrogated in the name of freedom, people are destroyed for the Peoples' Cause.

A great many students are going to be hurt by what amounts to the farsification of the Winter Carni farce. The next time a blow is about to be struck for equality and sex liberation, I hope that those revolutionaries of the New Society remember that one day, they too, will be old.

Freeing The C.C.

Since the Campus Center opened in September, there has been nothing but whining, moaning, complaining and just plain bitching about the building and its shortcomings.

Be that as it may, someone finally did something that approaches what should be done with the Campus Center all the time: turned it over to students to do what they pleased with it.

We're referring of course to the weekend's long-awaited liberation of the Halls of the Vast Morass. People have attempted, on a very small scale, to turn all that space on the Concourse level into an open marketplace. They've had little success. Either they've set up such rinky-dick little booths that no one wants to be embarrassed by being seen at them, or they come up with something that may be potentially profitable and they are told to leave.

In any case, it's too bad that the Campus Center has to remain primarily a show-place for the University to point to with pride and say "See our beautiful building" while students, not really knowing too much about the Center, sit in the Hatch and complain about it.

Nobody in his right mind would listen to any suggestion that the Campus Center Concourse to be turned into a full-time midway complete with Ferris wheel and merry-go-round. And we'll grant you that the child booth, Roadarte's portable opium den, and the cotton candy man may have no permanent place in the bowels of the Waffle. But does the Craftsmen Guild, the potter, the pen and ink sketchman, the candle maker, the fortune teller, do they have to be turned out into the cold cruel world? Why can't they stay inside, where traffic is heavy and where they might have a chance at selling something.

We're not proposing that the Center be turned into a full-time marketplace. Nor are we intimating that the Campus Center is some kind of elaborate rip-off. But it was nice to walk down the Concourse the other night and have something to look at, someone to laugh with instead of glaring at because they asked if you wanted a hit off the chili.

Camusian Politics

Listen, all you apathetic people out there, to whom the Strike is remembered, ever less clearly, yet ever more distinctly in relation to the rest of your life, (a neat little section of time where you acted out of accord with how you really are), Listen, as I tell you why you are apathetic: Results! There just weren't results, tangible, effective, hardly even remote, results. (Look at Indochina if you think otherwise). Ask yourself what relation your running around the S.U., with a potent feeling of importance, had to do with the war directly. The problem stems from our viewing history as a rapid tale of achievement, with something occuring here and there, and ending here and there. We should look at history as a torpid stream, flowing, and never ending, with us, the players, as mere, insignificant molecules in the sand of time (romantic, huh). We feel we can't stand around and wait for history to catch up to us, to our views, our visions, so we end up very depressed, filled with anguish and despair. Camus, do your thing. Accept the fact that you will probably not make any mark in history at all, that you will be one of Napolean's corporals, one of Washington's mules, or one of the thousands that died in the Great March. But so what? Make your mark, instead, in terms of your own existence. If capitalism is forcing the world to choke in its own garbage, and if it is inevitable, why not fight to your last breath, even if only to do something as the world dies? If right-wing repression is inevitable, can we not fight it, even hopelessly, if only to die saying "I never gave in." ? If Nixon and the Silent Mornity are inevitably the power in America's future, can we not, even in a futile attempt, try and elect someone, let's say McGovern, even if he is, perhaps, like the rest, even if it is all futile, can we not try, despairing all the while, filled with absurd anguish, yet fulfilling our own ideals of what we want ourselves to be? We must, for the time being, divorce ourselves from the present historical context, forget Chicago, McCarthy, Agnew and so on, and try and elect someone whom you feel at least approximates your general political beliefs. If the political system is futile, you still did not waste your time. Your time is never wasted in activity; all you need say is that you tried (and will try again), and that you did not passively wait the Repressive Age, the Polluted Age, sitting on you ass. Exist.

Al Alessi

Editorial Points

"'Dean Jeff's'" departure from the Stockbridge School of Agriculture will leave a gap in the hearts and minds of those who knew and respected him.

****

If the University of Delaware can have a chicken as a Homecoming Queen, why can't UMass have a man for Winter Carni Queen?

****

The Board of Higher Education's newly announced opposition to a tuition hike in State colleges and Universities signals the beginning of what will surely become a choosing of sides for the upcoming debate in the Legislature this March. The Board of Trustees, as of yet uncommitted on the issue, will probably take a stand very similar to the Board's at the prompting of President Wood, who acted as Chairman of the committee which studied the problem for the Board of Higher Education.

****

The Physical Plant set-up a thick red pole on the sidewalk between N. Pleasant St. and the Student Union. Somebody had an awful strong bumper, because it been demolished now.

****

People are beginning to speculate about what will happen on campus when Spring comes; the great debates which tore the nation a year ago still rage; the catharsis of last May has brought no peace to the individual in America today.

****

To Tony Granite-Joshephine Schlunk had a run in her stocking, Friday, February 19, 1971-11:53 a.m.

****

The Sunday New York Times launched a massive anti-war offensive yesterday; Reston, Wicker, two cartoons and a lead editorial must reflect at least some of the misgivings they have about Nixon's policies in Southeast Asia. The only enemy Nixon really wants to avoid antagonizing are those in the U.S. In the name of peace at home, he is willing to wipe out everybody in Asia using planes.

Letters To The Editor Or In 25 Words Or Less

Letters to the Editor must be typed, double spaced, at sixty spaces and must carry the writer's signature, address, and telephone number (all of which will be withheld upon request). The limit is one page and thedeadlineis 5 p.m. the day prior to intended publication. The editors reserve the right to edit all letters.

The same rules apply to Editorial Points except that the limit on these is 25 words. No prizes will be awarded or gifts given out. This not a contest. It's simply a forum for those of you who don't feel like writing a whole letter or who don't know more than 25 words.

Letters To The Editor

Safe, Secure Southwest

To the Editor:

We, the security committee of John Quincy Adams dormitory, insist that the administration take immediate steps to hire a full-time security receptionist for JQA. We also insist that the administration take steps to provide full security coverage for JQA in the interim.

Starting no later than Tuesday, JQA will no longer have a full time security receptionist. After our residence hall assistant Mr. Lovell passed away during Christmas vacation, the administration did not hire a replacement. Instead they transferred to JQA the full time security receptionist previously assigned to Field House. Since then the residents of Field House have insisted that Whitmore return their security receptionist to them.

Without consulting the area coordinator of Berkshire or the residents of JQA and without giving us the time or the finances to make the needed adjustments, the administration notified us (one day before the beginning of Winter Carni week-end) that effective immediately our security receptionist would be returned to Field House. Through last minute efforts however, we were able to delay the scheduled transfer until the end of Winter Carni. But by Tuesday at the latest, JQA will no longer have a full time residence hall assistant.

While we can appreciate the security needs of Field House and while we have no desire to take away a security receptionist who rightfully belongs to them, we must protest against the thoughtless way in which the administration has handled this matter and the impossible security dilemma the administration has forced upon us.

It is common knowledge that the security needs of southwest exceed those of any other residential area. Furthermore, JQA, having the special security problems unique to towers, houses approximately 600 women. Surely, then, if Field House rates a full-time security receptionist, JQA rates one even more, and we must insist that the administration discharge its responsibility to protect our lives and property.

Stephan Herman for
The Security Committee of JQA

Exploitation No More

To the Editor:

My disguist with the local financial exploitation of students has grown in proportion to the three years I have been at UMass. Walk into almost any store in the area and compare their prices to those in Boston. Recently I had to purchase an item from a drugstore in Amherst. The price was outrageous. I asked the pharmacist if he was aware of how much the same item sold for in Boston. His answer: "I haven't the slightest idea." I believe that the 5 College students should solicit only those stores that do "have an idea".

Here's a starter-- a sub and pizza shop adjacent to Southwest is under new ownership. I got into a conversation with the new owner, Ralph. We discussed the cost price of his food, the overhead of the store, and other such matters. He seems sincerely interested in running the best business at the best prices for the students. It would be financially impossible to lower all his prices, but he does plan to offer a weekly "special" on a popular item.Unlike a local hamburger stand that lowered its absurd prices because it was losing its customers, Ralph's sub and pizza shop isn't forced to do this. It is popularly solicited and could prosper very well without this weekly special. So if you're going out for lunch or a snack, solicit Ralph's pizza shop. If the volume of business more than compensated for the reduction of price, maybe Ralph would offer two or three "specials" in the same week.

But just so you won't regard this as an advertisement, I would encourage you to solicit this new business only as long as these "specials" remain consistant, and are not meant to drum up new customers, only to up the prices later. But for now, I would encourage students to give all merchants a break who are doing the same for us.

Name Withheld By Request

Repent!

To the Editor:

If this letter saves even one person from the traumatic experience I went through, it will be worth it. It's very much in style for certain people to rip-off the stores in the area...such was the case with me. I never considered getting caught, being 'sure' that I was much too careful. And was I careful...I always checked out every little detail, such as making sure that no one could notice bulging pockets. Well I finally was caught, and it was a terrible experience, one I'd never take a chance of going through again. Fortunately, the people who caught me at Zayres weren't as hard on me as they could have been, but to have something like that against you and always hanging over your head is a terrible feeling. When one thinks of the consequences as far as a future career is concerned, the risks are far too great. Don't find out through experience like I had to that it doesn't pay to shop-lift, from a practical as well as a moral point of view.

Name Withheld By Request

Perhaps it's not a democratic system at all.

Bernadette Devlin at the Cage last Wednesday.

Freezin'

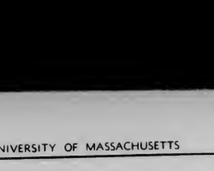
To the Editor:

WANT TO LISTEN!

It would be so great to have a few bus schedules on a bulletin board by the UMass waiting station on North Pleasant--campus bus schedules, 5-College schedules, and local schedules too. I'll never forget waiting for over an hour with 12 other frozen souls for the 5-College bus to Smith only to find out later that the buses weren't running because Smith was already out for the Christmas break. For anyone who is interested, the 5-College buses don't run from March 19 to April 5th. Some of us stay on campus and study at Smith. Bus schedules could sure save GRIEF!

Name Withheld By Request

Guilt



(Editor's Note: The following letter was received by the Dean of Student's Office last week.)

To whom it may concern,

Two years ago I was a student at your college, living in Northwest (sic), Pierpont dorm. I stole a few dishes from the Commons which serviced our dorm. I have felt badly about it, and I wish to return the cash value of the dishes. I include $5.00.

Sorry.
& Thank you

A Midwinter's Nite Nightmare

King Julius Ieradius

Dinkinus and Queen James

S:132, Or The Decline And Fall of Julius Ieradius, presented over the last two weeks in full color and living theatre, was probably the high point of the dramatic arts in my three years as a student here. Based loosely on Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard and Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, Decline and Fall had as its central theme the decay of the old order in the face of a revolution. Focusing on the last days of Executivus Counsilus, Decline And Fall brilliantly depicted the tragedy and pathos of the hero who is faced with his own extinction.

Taking a page from Shakespeare, the story begins as Julius is stabbed in the Senate. Unlike the earlier work, written four hundred years ago, about events two thousand years ago, Julius is not done in by a knife; it is bureaucratic paper which declares that class government is to abolished on the 22nd of February. Here we see the first strain of Chekhov's influence. February 22nd is the American holiday commemorative of the birth of George Washington, who once chopped down the cherry orchard. The Cherry Orchard will fall again on February 22nd. The author has obviously chosen the date with deliberate intention, borrowing Chekhov's symbol. In Chekhov's play, the felling of the Cherry Orchard represents the decline of the Old Order.

The stage, then is set from the beginning as a pageant of the last days of the Old Order. There is to be pageantry enough for all.

It almost seemed as though the departing rulers enjoyed the knowledge of their mortality. The film "Gone With The Wind", eerily appropriate to our scenario, was brought in as a backdrop to the acting. There was a masked ball, at which all partook with great enthusiasm in the traditions of the past. In a mood of eat, drink, be merry, and be nostalgic, all danced until early in the morning to the music of Little Latin Larry, the Latinaires, and the Luscious Latinettes. Dressed in the regalia of a now dead but fondly remembered era, there was great emotion in the breast of this viewer as he considered the impending doom of Class Government, the last bit of Joe College to be found anywhere.

As a climax to this Gothic vignette, King Julius planned to laugh in the face of reality. There was to be the Coronation of a new queen. It was no more than a dying gesture on the part of a fading ruler to a tradition to which he had been faithful to the end. The queen would be crowned, in a final, symbolic however weak, gesture of resistance to the Revolution.

But it was not to be. The era of monarchy was no longer. The same revolutionary forces which caused King Julius' political demise prevented the election and coronation of the Queen. The cultural revolution, a force more irresistable than the political revolution, cause King Julius' plans to go awry.

It is in this segment that the author demonstrates his true genius. The rest of the play stands as decent tragicomedy, but this sequence raises it to the level of absurdist theater par excellence.

The cultural revolutionaries decide to make a farce of the beauty pageant which in being conducted to choose a Queen. Queen James arose, claiming to be the rightful Queen of Carnival. King Julius said no, I must have a girl for my Queen. The masses arose, demanding recognition of Queen James. Then one right thinking citizen, Dinkinus of Phillipi, took the matter to the court of justice. Accordingly, a tribunal was set to determine exactly how the rightful Queen would be determined.

For King Julius, it was not on the grand scale he was used to from his old days as a Student Warrior. Still, it was a last challenge, a chance to go out in a spark of glory, if not a whole blaze.

Unlike the earlier days, when noble knights battled on the lists in a joust, this battle was to be fought among lawyers. Accordingly Julius and Dinkinus arrived withtheirsolicitors to conduct a battle of semantics. Julius brought with him Sir Russell, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Dinkinus brought along Queen James. All the student leaders were there. Ye Olde Dailee Collegiane,Newe Englande's Largeste Campuse Dailee, was on hande. Also the forces of cultural revolution, who engaged in bizarre sexual practices in the court of laws. They were not banished: clearly something had happened to motherhood, apple pie, and royal sovereignty, but to see sacrilege in the court of laws, one had the feeling that not only class government, but also student judiciary, was obsolete, waiting for someone to take notice.

Yet this is the beauty of the play. The cultural revolution challenges Established Tradition, and takes the matter through Established channels, the court. The author exaggerates to make his point; obviously this is too absurd to take place in real life. But the beauty of the living theater is that the lines between what is theatrical, and what is real, are obscured.

The outcome of the play is worth the price of admission. The Supreme Tribunal was declared to be in violation of such documents as the S.G.A. act of 1967, the 1964 Civil Rights Act, and the Constitution of the United States. It is typical of our troubled times that these silly legalistic documents were held to be more important than the traditions of Class Government, Winter Carnival, and Joe College.

For King Julius, the defeat was made even more pathetic. The court ordered a new election be held to choose a Queen. King Julius was named an Officer of the Court to conduct the election. Thus he was granted a reprieve, though all knew that the reprieve was only temporary, and that soon, King Julius would be mummified in red tape and thrown in the ravine behind the Campus Center. As for Queen Janes and Dinkinus of Phillipi, they took pity on the traditions they were attacking, and went back to Pierpont to get drunk, in the best Joe College tradition.

Jim LaMacchia was good in the role of Queen James. Only once, when he spoke of exploitation with a straight face, did he fail to interpret his character well. Rich Dinkin, whose credits include The Solid Gold Cadillac, Lewd and Lacivious Cohabitation, and Bust, as well as the film Harold, Turn Off the Mike, was perfect as Dinkinus of Phillipi. No one else could have played the role.

Among the minor characters Sam Goldman did a good job as Lawyer Silverman.

Casting a girl in the role of King Julius was a master stroke. Juli Ieradi was superb in her part. She conveyed well the impression of decline and pathos.

It was, all in all, the highpoint in this reviewer's weekend.

Eugene Barnett
(Editor's Note: Eugene Barnett is the psuedonym of a former MDC Staffer.)

Committee Formed Protesting Florida Campus Restrictions

By NICK SAAKVITNE
MDC Staff

The committee for Free Assembly and Political Expression on Campus, a group formed in Florida protesting the Florida Board of Regents policy of prohibiting certain groups from gaining recognition on that state's campuses, is asking that students send letters of protest of this action be sent to D. Burke Kibler, chairman of the Board, Box 1772, Lakeland, Florida, 33802 and copies to the Committee, Box 2303, Tampflorida, 33602.

On the basis of this policy the Young Socialist Alliance, recognized in every state in the union where they have applied, was banned from the Florida campuses. This proscription was accomplished by a simple letter by D. Burke Kibler, chairman of the Board, stating that the YSA comes fully within the previously enunciated policy of the regents. The YSA was never granted a hearing on its plea for recognition nor given a chance to answer the charges made by Kibler. A clearer violation of due process is difficult to imagine.

Members of the Committee stated that while they do not necessarily support the political ideas of the YSA, these are not what is on trial. What is, according to the Committee, is the right to have legitimate status on campus regardless of political persuasion.

The Committee, consisting of teachers, families, and groups in Florida, is trying "to mobilize legal and public pressure to secure the rights of the YSA to exist on campuses in the state of Florida," and to take up similar cases that directly relate to "free assembly and political expression."

The Board's action denies these groups the right to assemble publicly, organize activites, and have access to the facilities available at the state universities. The basis on which this policy was made is that certain groups, in the opinion of the Board, have as their goal the "destruction of the total educational process" of the Florida university school system.

This policy was initiated solely on the iniative of the Board of Regents without any consultation, discussion or hearing with any other section of the university community. This policy, granting the Board the right to decide who has acceptable beliefs and goals and who, therefore, has a right to presance on campus, is unconstitutional.

Five-College Fellowship Applications Available

Applications are available in the Placement Office for students who expect to graduate in June, 1971, from Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and UMass for the 1971-72 FIVE COLLEGE FELLOWSHIP.

Under the supervision of the Five College Coordinator, the Fellow will pursue a variety of practical tasks which will aid in furthering cooperation among the Valley institutions. His assignments will range from drafting correspondence to doing research and preparing recommendations for action.

The Fellow will have a full-time demanding job, but it should be interesting and afford an opportunity to learn about the administration of higher education in general and inter-institutional cooperation in particular.

The FIVE COLLEGE FELLOWSHIP should be of particular interest to a student who is considering a career in higher education, either as a teacher or an administrator, and who finds the idea of a year's practical experience before graduate school appealing. He must be able to write with precision, clarity, and brevity. This is not a secretarial job, but a candidate should be able to type at least well enough to produce legible drafts.

The FIVE COLLEGE FELLOW will be appointed for one year beginning July 1 or on another mutually agreeable date. The stipend for the year is $6000.

Completed applications should be sent by March 15 to the following address: Mr. North Burn,
The Five College Coordinator
Box 740
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002

Notices

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
Brotherhood meeting at Memorial Hall at 7 p.m. tonight

ALPHA SIGMA PHI
Important meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the Lodge

B.F.A.
There will be a meeting for all B.F.A. Painters and prospective Painters today at 12:15 p.m. in Clark 202. All B.F.A. Painters are urged to attend

BUDDHIST MEDITATION
The venerable Chao Khun Dhammasudhi, Meditation master of the Buddhapadipa Temple, Surrey, England will speak on "Wisdom & the Buddhist Way" tonight at 8 p.m. in the Red Room of Converse Hall, Amherst College. This is a rare visit. Info Paul 586-1497

ENGLISH DEPT
English Majors. The English Dept. Undergraduate Council is holding an organizational meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. in the main room of Memorial Hall. All interested majors are invited to attend

FREE UNIVERSITY
Classes starting in Dance movement and body awareness Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
This is the last week that new members can join and have fun square dancings Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the C.C. Aud.
The regular square dance will be held in the C.C. Aud. tonight at 7:30 p.m. Beginners lessons 7:30-9:30. Club level review 9:30-10:30

I.E.E.E.
I.E.E.E. STUDENT-FACULTY NIGHT. Dr. Scott speaks on Biomedical Engineering at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 23rd in Room 174-176 of the C.C.

MEHER BABA
Meeting Feb. 22nd in Room 178 of the C.C. at 7:30 p.m. for all those interested in discussing BaBa, religion and drugs

MICRO TEACHING CLINIC
Clinic begins for this semester today. The first meeting will be held in the Marks Meadow Cafeteria

OUTING CLUB
Meeting tonight featuring Casey (K.C.?) Stengle and his slides of the Yukon in Room 165 of the C.C. at 6:30

READING STUDY CENTER
Registration for Reading Study Improvement course Tuesday, Feb. 23rd at 7 p.m. in Room 163-164 of the C.C. Course will meet for 5 weeks, Tuesday & Thursday evenings from 7:8:15 p.m.

STUDENTS FOR McGOVERN
George will be speaking in Framingham this weekend and we'll be able to get in OK. All details will be known by 6 p.m. Tuesday so call 665-3901 if interested

UNDERGRADUATE DEUSTCHE STUDENTS
Important meeting today at 4:30 p.m. on the 5th Floor of Herter. All interested students urged to attend.

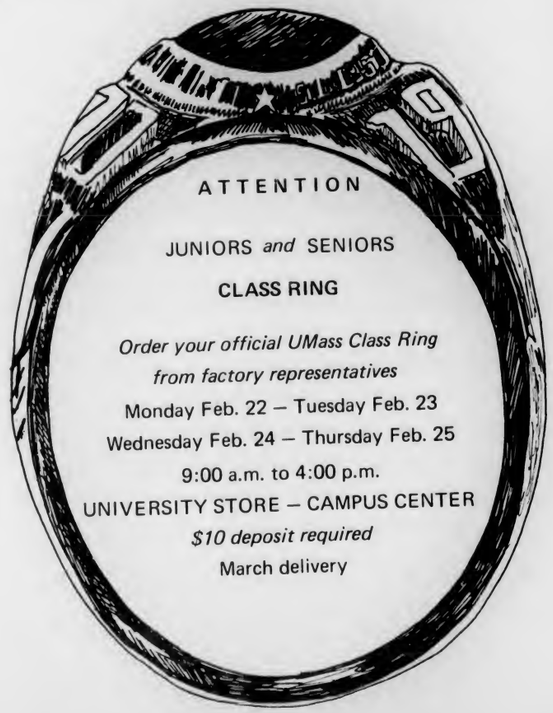
LOST
Kennedy's 15th floor Pebbles. If found please call 6-1513. Pebbles is very valuable to our well being.
Notebook Child Development lost. Very important please call Dave Desjardins. Leave at Lost & Found. Thanks.
A pair of glasses, black frames, in black case, in vicinity of Machmer. Call George S. 0845.
A silver pocket lighter was lost on the path between Bartlett & Memorial Hall on Wed., Feb. 17th around 2:30. Call 5-2642 ask for Marianne in 309 betw. 7-9 p.m. or leave in S.U. Lost & Found. It has great sentimental value.
1 Hampshire Nat'l Bank checkbook was lost. If found please call Lynn 6-9917.
1 pair of gold rimmed glasses were lost call Ralph collect 1-774-2575

Govt. Series

Professor David Kettler, formerly of Ohio State and currently at Franconia College (Franconia, New Hampshire) will speak on "Ideology and Ideologues" today at 4:00 p.m. Room 162-175, Campus Center. The lecture is being sponsored as part of the Dept. of Government's colloquium series.

Prof. Kettler was alleged to have been involved in the "incidents" at Ohio State last May and had to face court action.

Study in Guadalajara, Mexico



The Guadalajara Summer School, a fully accredited University of Arizona program, will offer, July 5 to August 8, art, folklore, geography, history, political science, language and literature courses. Tuition, $160; board and room $155. Write Dr. Juan B. Rael, Office of Summer Session, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721.

Think Spring!

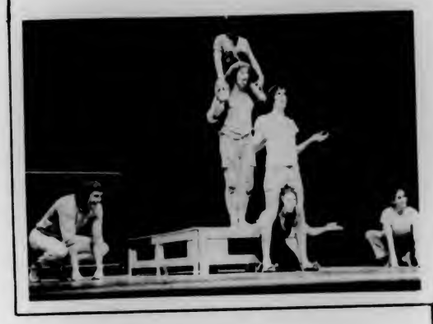
ADD NEW LIFE TO YOUR DORM ROOM with DEEP COLOR LATEX PAINT FROM

SHUMWAY'S

PAINT AND WALLPAPER STORE
320 COLLEGE ST.
Open 8 a.m. - 6 p.m.. Thurs. & Fri. till 8 p.m.

SWIFT COIN OPERATED Dry Cleaning

6 lbs. for only $1.50
12 lbs. for only $2.50



In one 12 lb. load, for only 2.50, you can dry clean 10 skirts, or 15 sweaters, 2 blankets, or several small drapes.
Ready to wear in 25 minutes.

MINUTEMAN CLEANERS
(next to The Tower)
11 E. PLEASANT STREET

We Come Upon The Living, To Call Upon The Dead

The Dead Come Through a play of fragments grew from improvisations

find a sound/action that feels to you like death imagination breathes
a play grows

By DEMIAN
MDC Staff

No curtain. Simple props House lights down. Harsh stage lights up. Six actors group on stage to musically announce, (with a trumpet, a tamborine, four ocarinas and voice,) Terminal.

The Open Theatre Ensemble performed Terminal on Feb. 18 & 20. On Feb. 19 they presented an open rehearsal of Mutations, a work in progress. Both productions where marked by great concentration and tremendous energy output by the performers.

Terminal reached into the actor's own encounters with the American way of death, the cosmetizing mortician's, fear of loosing eyes, voice, legs, and finally the accounting of ones life in the hereafter: "The judgement of your life is your life."

Mutations began with Joe Chaiken and Roberta Sklar, the co-directors of the Open Theatre, explaining the improvisational orgins of their plays, and asked the audience to participate in gathering more data for the continually forming play. The audience was let loose to interact with the actors who arranged themselves around the auditorium in the postures of various personalities such as, "the women who can't stop moving", "the stone man", "the savage", and "she thinks she knows what she knows she think she thinks".

Most remarkable is the companies ability to make fugees and rounds out of bits of sentences, sounds, and body actions to communicate deeply personnal emotions.

Joseph Chaikin and Roberta Sklar, co-directors of THE OPEN THEATER. Photo credit: Demian.

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'nat'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

WMUA 91.1 FM

Tryouts For "Major Barbara"

Tryouts for the University Theater's production of George Bernard Shaw's MAJOR BARBARA will be held on February 23, 24, 25 (Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday) at 7:30 P.M. in Bartlett 125. MAJOR BARBARA, a comedy under the direction of Doris Abramson, is a dramatized discussion or debate attacking the problem of organized crime. Scripts are available in Machmer 401. All students are invited and encouraged to try out.

Shaw described the types of actors he wanted for his play as follows:

Barbara "must be young and a gusher and capable of a top note of real religious emotion." She must have "great courage great pride, and a high temper at the back of her religious genius."

Andrew Undershaft, her father, "requires very much of a heavyweight indeed."

Cusins, another leading character, "must be a man of unmistakeable distinction. Cusins requies an actor of subtety and refinement, with plenty of ingenuity and some comedy, or else it requires an actor with great beauty of voice and engaging personality... Cusins is easy for any clever actor who has ever seen the original... The next best actor is perhaps Harold Lloyd."

Bill Walker "is a most repulsive ruffian, whose brutality should be almost too much for the audience to bear... If the slightest attempt is made to make him "jolly" or "harmless" or sympathetic in any way, you may as well ring down the curtain and give the audience back its money.

"He should be clean and good-looking enough to make the scene in which Barbara breaks down his brutality...look natural, which it will not do if Bill is disgusting physically and sanitarily."

Lady Britomart "has a most important part, and requires a first rate robust comedianne and grande dame to play it."

DRIVER TRAINEES WANTED

The Student Senate Transit Service is now accepting applications for its training program which will begin as soon as the service is off the ground. Information & application forms are available in Room 434, Student Union. Phone: 545-6184

Limit — Thirty Students

The Comparative Literature Film Series presents

INGMAR BERGMAN'S

"SILENCE OF GOD" TRILOGY

TONIGHT: THROUGH A GLASS DARKLY
Mahar, 8 and 10

TUESDAY: WINTER LIGHT
Mahar, 8 and 10

THURSDAY: THE SILENCE
Mahar, 8 and 10

Bergman's God hunt, one of the most significant contributions in intellectual cinema

Freshman Hoopsters On The Go...

'Streak' By Maine, 76-61

By STEVE FERBER
MDC Staff

The Maine freshman basketball team used to have a 34 game winning streak. It lost that streak on Friday night, as the Little Redmen upped their own streak to 8 straight in downing Maine 76-61. In handing the Little Blackbears their first loss in 10 games this year, the UMass freshmen played their consistently dominating game. But though the Cage crowd never saw their team trail, things were still up for grabs as the first half came to a close.

With all of their starters figuring prominently in the scoring, the Little Redmen like they've done so many times, shot over 50% from the floor, this time hitting on 29 of 52. The Maine frosh attempted 27 more shots than did their adversaries, but were only able to connect on 34% of their field goals. It was this lack of that ultimately led to the Black Bears defeat.

In extending their home undefeated streak to 11, the Little Redmen had trouble coming off the starting blocks, and their inability to bust things wide open were vivid evidence.

Things looked easy for the home club, and with a little more than three minutes gone, Al Skinner stood in the foul circle awaiting the jump ball. Skinner won the tap that tipped it over to John Olson. Olson spun around and winged the ball down to Rich Pitino, who collected two of his team high 19 points on the fast break.

But from then on the UMass frosh experienced only frustration. Often the opportunity presented itself, but three times early in the first half UMass would gain five point leads only to see Maine counter with two quick hoops.

With less than 2 1/2 minutes left in the first stanza, Maine tied the game at 28-28, but 30 seconds later Skinner drove the lane for two points, and the visiting Black Bears were never to draw even again.

Two quick foskets one by Olson, the other by Peter Trow, ended the half, and the 36-30 spread for the Redmen was surprisingly the largest lead that they owned up to that point.

From there it was really no contest. The final 20 minutes saw the scoreboard lights flash with great rapidity, but only on the UMass side.

Poor shooing suddenly became the crisis with which Maine had to deal, as three times down the court Maine missed three or more shots, many of them from close inside.

The score was 43-31 before Maine could manage their first field goal of stanza number two, but by 15:24 it was just too late.

With the Little Black Bears employing a semi-press the UMass frosh really began to move out. A string of five straight points by the Little Redmen was interrupted by a Maine basket. A six point spree immediately followed and at 56-33 Maine began to learn what the word defeat meant.

The final 10 minutes became a mere formality, as the 20-5 outburst by the 15-1 freshmen had put the game well out of the opposition's reach.

Drub N.Essex, 86-58

By FRED ROSENTHAL
MDC Staff

Taking advantage of a sizeable edge in height the UMass freshman basketball team outplayed Northern Essex Community College for an 86-58 victory in the Cage Saturday night. The win was UMass' ninth in a row and boosted its record to 16-1.

The Little Redmen broke out to an early 13-2 lead with Pete Trow scoring six points in the opening moments of play. Two of his early baskets came on assists by Rick Pitino.

Northern Essex fought to within five, 21-16, but UMass broke it open again and was in control for the rest of the game. At the half the Little Redmen led 37-24 as reserve guard Dennis McHugh hit a 20' jump shot at the buzzer.

The UMass frosh opened quickly again as they turned a 13 point edge into a commanding 26 point lead by outscoring Northern Essex 18-5 over the first five minutes of the second half.

The Little Redmen threw some fine passes during this outburst. Pitino fed Trow twice and Al Skinner led Pitino perfectly on one fast break. Then, capping the drive, John Olson grabbed a rebound off the defensive boards. He then wheeled around and tossed a beautiful full-court pass to Pitino who converted the layup.

UMass, paced by Skinner, outrebounded its shorter opponents by an amazing margin of 74-29. Skinner had 18, Levine had 16, his highest total of the season, and Olson chipped in with twelve.

Not to be overlooked in this victory though, are the performances of reserves Mike Brown and Craig Boyles. Boyles came in during the first half to spell Skinner and played well while he was in there.

Brown played the last eight minutes of the game and came up with 10 points and eight rebounds. The 6'4 forward hit on four of six from the floor and was credited with an assist when he fed Larry Heron for the final bucket of the game.

Host New Haven Tonight

By STEVE FERBER
MDC Staff

13-0 sounds rather impressive, and that's what the UMass freshman basketball team's record will be on their home court should they defeat the New Haven freshmen tonight. The 6 p.m. matchup will feature an impressive 10-3 New Haven ballclub, one that boasts a fine shooting percentage, much like the Little Redmen.

In taking the two weekend contests rather handily, The Little Redmen posted their 11th and 12th wins at home at home this past Friday and Saturday nights. Tonight's contest will see a visiting team with much the same credentials as the Maine freshmen, last Friday's opposition.

In the height department New Haven is well-equipped and the battle off the boards should be a good one. Shooting-wise the matchup evolves a close one, and the minimization of turnovers will be great importance this evening.

In playing their third game in four days, the Little Redmen will be seeking their 17th win of the season (with but one loss) in front of a packed Curry Hicks Cage.

The UMass frosh continue to sparkle in their consistency. With all five starters averaging in double figures, the Little Redmen continue to roll, and tonight's varsity game prelim might well see the Little Redmen make their home season a perfect one.

Brothers of

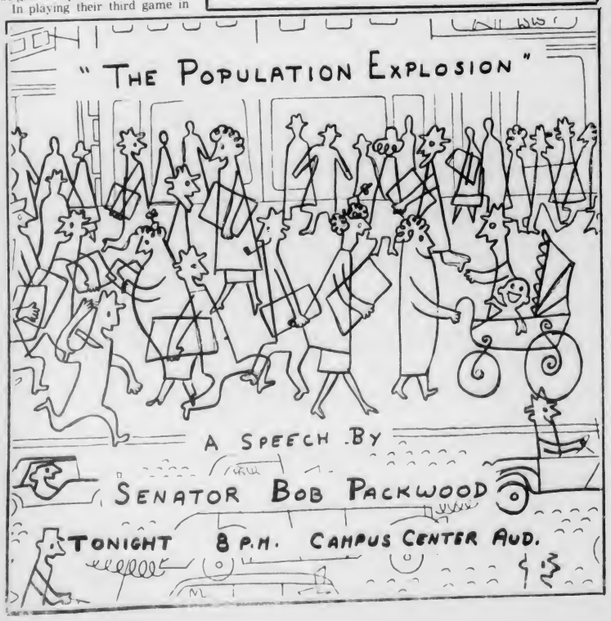
A Σ Φ

MEETING TONIGHT

at 7:00

Lodge E. Pleasant

SUMMER in EUROPE
from $195



sponsored by
STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL

— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns	Wks.	Price
Boston/London,Boston	6/22	8/29	10	$209
Boston/London,Boston	6/11	9/5	12	$200
N.Y./London/N.Y.	6/29	7/30	4	$219
Boston/Frankfurt/Boston	6/11	8/10	8	$200
Boston/London/Boston	6/3	7/3	4	$155

Also Available Eurail and Britrail passes, International Student I.D. Cards. Intra-Europe and Student Charter Flight Bookings, plus many more helpful services.

For Information call:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.Students International (617) 536-7863

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

3 bedroom ranch, patio, breezeway, 1½ garage, kitchen with built-in refrigerator, oven and burners, pine cabinets, carpeted dining and living 1½ baths, cellar with new washer and dryer. Call 665-3534. tf2-22

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Autog, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Audiotronics, Utah speakers. LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Water Beds — 7' x 6'. Workmanship guaranteed. $65.00. Try one out at Bed German House. Weekdays from 11:00 in 3:30 or call Richard at 546-9531. tf2-22

24" Zenith TV, name your price. Call TU 772-0551.

RCA Stereo in walnut cabinet with speakers, recently and completely adjusted. New needle. Asking $50 or best offer. Call Sheryl, 422 Knowlton 5-2310 or 5-2311. tf2-22

Voki fris skiis w/Tyrolia step-in bindings, $10; Rieker 5 buckle boots 10W $20; together $50. Call 5-2418 Dave in 129. tf2-23

Skis for sale — Spalding 210 cm Epoxy skiis, new, never used, originl cost $180. Will sell for best offer. Call 253-7260. 2-22

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf5-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1967 VW imported model, fastback style, exc. cond. Best offer. Call 584-3878 tf2-23

1969 Camaro 307 V8 auto., excellent cond. Call Leo after 6, 532-9934 tf2-23

1970 Baracuda 383, vinyl roof, power steering, power brakes, automatic trans., wide oval tires, radio, 12,000 miles, asking $2900.00, 6 mos. old Call 546-5312. tf2-14

'64 VW in ex. cond., $600. Glenn 549-4341 after 5. 2-fy

'68 VW, excell. cond., 36,000 mi., under coating, w/walls, AM-FM-SW radio, asking $1400, nex. Call Dave 256-8376. tf2-23

Must sell '62 Olds — can't afford to pay insurance. Good condition, 4 new tires, small dent in side. Sell for $100 or best offer. Call 549-3016 after 5 p.m. tf2-5

Firebird custom '67, air conditioning, automatic vinyl top, mags, very good condition. Call 549-3031 after 5 p.m. 2-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female Roommate Wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6715 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

Wanted — 2 male roommates, furnished apt. in Hadley $50 month, avail. March 1. 584-7718 tf2-23

Male roommate, own bedroom, approx. $75 a mo., Sunderland, just off Rt. 116. Call Brad 665-3255 tf2-25

Want grad student to share house with three other people in Florence (Northampton). Quiet, in country, but near UMass. $50 month, plus utilities. 584-9285. tf2-23

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8125. tf

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-9065. tf-mwf 5-11

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3148. tf3-18

SPECIAL EVENTS

See Hey Brooklyn with Lynn Holgway perform at the Top of the Campus Fri. and Sat. nights at 9:00. Come early for dinner! 2-19-26

PERSONAL

To Stash, my love: Happy Birthday! Love you always, Seed. 2-22

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded. Amen, Espanal, Saurus, Wigwam, Albany, Cellar, Ipanema, Fantastic Love. 2-22

My friend Judy, please forgive me for not recognizing you. 2-22

Try Helen for 56c. See what happens! 2-22

WANTED

free estimates on collections. Bob Muerin, 406 Chadbourne or P.O. Box 104, Amherst. tf2-26

Sitter wanted for one year old child, my house, 5 hrs. day. S. Amherst. Call 253-7157 tf2-23

TO SUBLET

To sublet: one bedroom apt., with separated kitchen and bathroom, $156 mo. (heat, utilities and air cond.,) available 1 March. Call 549-6811 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

LOST

One gold ring, small onyx and diamond stones in star-like formation, great personal value. Reward. Call 549-3597 nights tf2-24

ROOM TO RENT

One room available, living with four others in house in Belchertown. Rent $37.50/person plus utilities. Come see Hilda, Goodell Library between 1 and 2. Spring is going to be beautiful. tf2-23

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Fierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

STRIDE FOR STRIDE-UMass' Jim Graves (second from the right) battles Peter Wilkens of Rhode Island in the finals of the high hurdles at the Yankee Conference Championships. Both runners were clocked in the same time, but Wilkens was the winner by a hair. Also competing in the finals was Jerry Spellman (second from the left) who finished third. (MDC photo by Ed Mangiaratti)

Trackmen Second In YC Meet

By ROBERT MEDEIROS
MDC Staff

A powerful and well balanced UConn team swept to a strong win over second place UMass in the Yankee Conference Track and Field Championships. UConn finished with a total of 74 points, while the Redmen rallied for 48 points, with a surprisingly strong Rhode Island team finishing out the top three with 43 points.

UConn controlled the meet from the start as it was able to score in all events. The Redmen with only the 2 mile, 1000, and mile relay remaining found themselves in a surprising polition as they trailed second place Rhode Island by 11 points. UMass outscored Rhode Island by a 19 to 3 margin in these remaining events which enabled the Redmen to overtake Rhode Island for second place in the championships.

Even though it was a disappointment for Coach O'Brian and the team to lose to UConn, the team still managed to win four events, and had its share of fine individual performances. Eddie Arcaro enjoyed one of his finest days as a Redman as he continued to shine in the weights with a first place in the shot put, and a fifth place in the 35-pound weight.

Ron Wayne was the leading point scorer for UMass as he came from behind to win the mile, and came back later to finish second in the two mile. The 600 saw Steve Levine take fifth place off his best performance as a Redman. Cal Carpenter gave another fine performance as he finished third in the high jump.

In the dash, Walter Mayo captured third place as Ron Harris claimed fourth place. The high hurdles was a carbon copy of last year's race as second place Jim Graves and third place Jerry Spellman were again edged out of first by Peter Wilkens of Rhode Island.

With only three events remaining, it appeared that UMass's chances of finishing second in the meet would be doubtful. However the Redmen did begin to rally as Ron Wayne came back from the mile to finish second in the two mile. Wayne was followed to the line by Tom Jasmin who finished a strong third. With UMass still trailing Rhode Island, Dave Evans came through as usual with a first place in the 1000. John Maloney, a freshman, in a clutch situation turned in his best performance as he placed fourth in the 1000.

UMass managed to gain at this time a slim lead over Rhode Island with only the mile relay remaining. The relay team of Ron Harris, Jerry Spellman, Steve Levine, and Gene Costello was able to protect this slim lead with a second place finish in the relay.

THE PIZZA INN
is in town!

(At the old Amherst Creamery)

173 Sunset Ave.

Opening Week Special:

Try Our Famous

PIZZA

at 20¢ off

with coupon below.

STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.

PIZZA INN
SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
20¢ OFF
The price of any PIZZA
with this coupon

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Leo lives for love. This is the sign associatd with creativity, relationships with the opposite sex. Leo is the sun and natives of this sign often create happiness and a zest for living for persons whose lives are drab. Leo is harmonious with Libra, Gemini, Aries and Sagittarius. Leo is favorable in a financial sense for those born under Cancer. Leo inspires the Sagittarius born and is attractive physically to Aries persons. In turn, Aries often serves as an inspiration for those born under Leo.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Project which has been a challenge will bear dividends. You are doing right thing in striving to fulfill ambition. Look beyond surface indications. There is much to be discovered.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Solidify future plans, especially as they affect communication lines. One who can help you is only waiting to be asked. Act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Review budget. Be aware of intentions of business partner, mate. Complete projects. Spread influence. Take long range view. Solidify plans involving advertising, publishing.

CANCER (June 20-July 22) Do more listening than asserting. Legal affairs likely to dominate. Open communication lines. Stress is on how you relate to those with opposing views. Encourage questions, answers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Check medical, dental appointments. Realize necessity of taking care of yourself. Seek co-operation from one who performs special services. Share knowledge. You will learn by teaching.

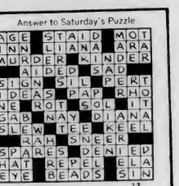
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is stimulation. One who appeared indifferent responds now with enthusiasm. Give full play to creative urge. Be prepared for change; travel opportunity, romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Some matters are concluded. This works out favorably for you. Attend to details, concentrate on applying finishing touches. Fine for home repairs, land improvement. Check real estate values.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Obtain hint from Virgo message. Develop ideas. Avoid temptation to be superficial. Short cut methods will not suffice. Relative in transit could make special request.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Money opportunities increase. Family member offers valuable suggestion. Heed it. Strive for greater harmony on domestic front. What had been blocking progress is removed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take initiative. Team up with Sagittarius in individual. Financial prospects are brighter than you might imagine. Be realistic. Stop jumping from shadows. You are on solid ground.



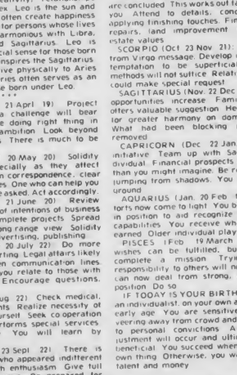
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Past efforts now come to light. You benefit. Those in position to aid recognize your unique capabilities. You receive what you have earned. Older individual plays key role.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Some wishes can be fulfilled, but you must complete a mission. Trying to give responsibility to others will not work. You can now deal from strong, authoritative position. Do so.

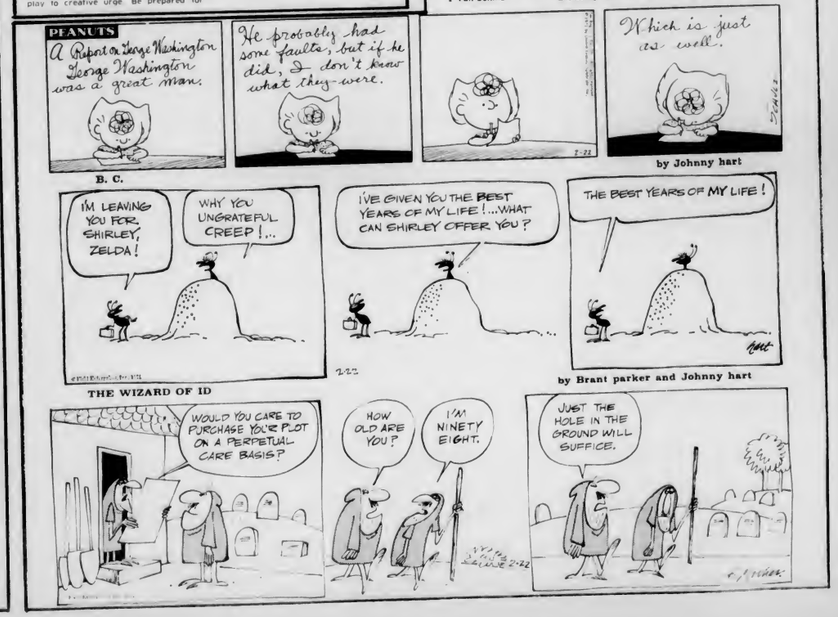
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an individualist on your own at a relatively early age. You are sensitive, capable of veering away from crowd and of being true to personal convictions. A family adjustment will occur and ultimately prove beneficial. You succeed when you do your own thing. Otherwise, you waste emotion, talent and money.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle



ACROSS



1 Ordinance
4 Afternoon (abbr.)
6 Gravestone
11 Thoroughfare
13 Angry outburst
15 Proceed
16 Studio
18 Prefix: not
19 Supposing that
21 Walk
22 Bristle
24 Norse god
26 Stalk
28 Permit
29 Chemical compound
31 Supercilious person
33 Prefix: down
34 Declared
36 Fate
38 Symbol for tellurium
40 Civil injury
42 Caudal appendages
45 Native metal
47 Ripped
49 Jog
50 Small children
52 Heap
54 Babylonian deity
55 Man's nickname
56 Chutes for delivering any material
59 Note of scale
60 Calm
63 Anchored
65 Took one's part
66 Exists
67 Sum up

DOWN

1 Fall behind
2 Shuns
3 Pronoun
4 Places
5 Encounters
6 Remuneration
7 Cravat
8 Is mistaken
9 Note of scale
10 Prepared for print
12 A continent (abbr.)
14 Puff up
17 Permits
20 Suits
23 Spanish article
24 Faroe Islands whirlwind
25 Tidy
27 Debatable
30 Disturbance
32 Vessel
35 Let fall
37 Mud
38 Carries
39 Wears away
41 Journey
43 Weighed down
44 Saint (abbr.)
46 Latin conjunction
48 Fragrant oleoresin
51 Lean-to
53 God of love
57 Number
58 Conjunction
60 Unusual
62 A state (abbr.)
64 Sun god

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 2-2

Pucksters, Hoopsters Set Marks

UMass Rolls Over Boston State, 8-2

By STEVE MOSHER
MDC Staff

The UMass hockey team used a solid and well balanced attack to bury Boston State 8-2 on Saturday afternoon in a jammed Orr Rink. Seven different Redmen scored goals with Jack Edwards the only one to score twice.

The win was very important for UMass in several ways. The Redmen now have a Division II record of 9-3-1 and the desired playoff spot seems well within their reach with four games left to play. UMass also has an overall record of 11-4-1 and those 11 victories mark the most any UMass team has ever marked up in a single season. Finally, the win means that the Redmen are assured of a winning season.

From the start of the game both teams seemed bent on physically manning each other. There were 18 penalties called in the game (there should have been more) and nine of them were whistled in the first period.

While the Hawks were concentrating on checking and roughing up their opponents, the Redmen scored three goals. The first was on a powerplay situation and came at 4:28. Danny Reidy took a face off to the left of the Boston State net into the corner and then behind the net. He managed to work the puck out front where Jack Edwards made a good fake on Boston State's goalie Mike Sullivan and nudged the puck into the open net.

The next two goals were two of the finest individual efforts seen at Orr Rink in this season or any other. And the came off the sticks of the two Canadian Redmen Pat Keenan and Eric Scrafield.

At 7:23 Brian Sullivan was caught for a tripping penalty and UMass sent on the panalty killing unit. But Pat Keenan had other ideas. Right off the face off Boston State got the puck back to its right point, but Keenan burst onto the scene, stole the puck and moved down the left boards. The Hawk defenseman was all over Pat, but Keenan managed to shake him at center ice and break in on Sullivan. Just as he crossed the blue line, Keenan wound up and rifled a screaming slap shot over Sullivan's shoulder into the right corner of the net. Sullivan never saw the puck and UMass was ahead 2-0 at 7:31 of the first period.

Just about three minutes later Scrafield scored the game winner on another brilliant individual effort. The Red Baron picked up a loose puck at mid ice, started slowly, pushed the puck deftly through the last defender and broke in on goal. Scrafield then threw a great deke on Sullivan and sent a backhander into the net at 10:43.

These two goals were enough for Sullivan and Steve Wolfe replaced him in the Boston State net. Wolfe managed to keep the Redmen from scoring again but just barely as Don Lowe just missed a goal when he hit the post on a shot from the left point.

The Redmen started quickly in the second period and build up a 5-0 lead before Boston State could score. At 2:43 Bob Shea scored from Don Riley on a quick backhand shot just after the face off. And at 5:46 Dan Reidy scored a powerplay goal. At 5:36 Rick Metell took a hooking penalty rather than let Reidy get a breakaway. It all went for naught for just ten seconds later Reidy got his own rebound and waited for Wolfe to commit himself and the rest was easy. Brian Sullivan and Pat Keenan got assists on the play.

At the eight minute mark UMass was killing a Keenan tripping penalty when the Hawks amanged one of their few serious scoring threats all game. In the confusion around the net P.J. Flaherty got trapped out of position and Ray O'Malley seemed certain to score, but Sullivan made a great defensive stop of the shot to kill that threat.

Boston State got its first goal at 15:05 when Marty Clapton made a line shot to beat Flaherty to the right corner of the net. The play was made even better because Lowe was hanging on to Clapton at the time.

UMass ran up the score again in the third period in a quick three minute burst. At 10:07 Don Riley scored from Shea. Shea made a good play to get the pass out in front of the net and Riley had little trouble lighting the lamp. Then at 12:30 Mike Waldron scored from Brian Sullivan. Sullivan made this play go as he roared around the back of the net from left to right before whistling a perfect past across the crease to Waldrom who was bursting through a maze of defenders.

UMass scored its final goal at 12:36. Keenan and Edwards combined for a two on two rush. Edwards drew both defenders over to him and Keenan had a good shot from the left side, but instead he passed back to Edwards who had eluded the defense and Jack sent the puck into the left corner.

The teams played out the rest of the period until 17:01 when Paul Riley got caught in the act of high sticking. Just as the penalty was running put, O'Malley took a shot from the left point that deflected off Erick Scrafield's stick and off Brian Sullivan's stick, and finally zigged into the net past a thoroughly confused Flaherty.

ICE CHIPS: With a record number of wins to spur them on, the Redmen face UNH in the Durham snake pit this Thursday night. The Wildcats are a division I team, and a Redman win would be just more icing on a well-frosted cake. UMass is 2- 1 against Division I teams this year, but UNH is definitely the superior team. The Redmen will have to play their best game of the year if they are to stay in the game.

Redmen Take Two In YanCon Action

By DAN KAMAL
and EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Setting the stage for tonight's showdown with Syracuse, the UMass hoopsters put together two solid performances over the weekend, defeating the University of Rhode Island, 83-71, on Friday night and coming back a night later to rout the University of Maine, 85-57, before a total of 8000 fans at Curry Hicks Cage. The double win set a new all-time UMass season win mark as the Redman record climbed to 19-3.

Both games went more or less as expected. In the contest against URI, the Rams played a spunky brand of basketball. They forced the play, played well underneath, and led by the shooting of Phil Hickson and Dwight Tolliver, prevented the Redmen from blowing the game wide open.

With only the Yankee Conference title to salvage from an otherwise dismal season, the visitors showed great desire but were simply unable to cope with UMass on a team basis.

With twelve minutes gone in the clash, the home team held a slim three point lead, but led by the shooting of Julius Erving, Rick Vogeley, and Mike Pagliara, the Redmen went on an 18-10 spurt that gave them an 11 point lead at the half.

Until the midway point of the second stanza, the game turned into a basket-swapping affair between UMass and Tolliver, who had 16 of his team- leading 20 points in this stretch.

Then fellows like Hickson and Steve Rowell took over, and although they could not put a dent into the Redman lead, they halted a UMass rout.

Ken Mathias, who was an inspired ballplayer in both games, was the stabilizing factor in this fray. He pumped in 15 points, but more important, he pulled down 13 rebounds which, along with Erving's 22 caroms allowed the Redmen to enjoy a decided rebounding advantage that made the difference in the final outcome.

UMass also got some fine outside shooting from Pagliara, Vogeley, and Tom McLaughlin to offset the sharpshooting display of Hickson and Tolliver.

The battle against Maine on Saturday was just what the doctor ordered. The Redmen broke into an early lead and were never headed the rest of the way, a rare occurrence for the most part this season.

With Mathias clearing the boards and leading the fast break and Pagliara and John Betancourt hot from the outside, UMass built up an 18 point lead at the half, and by this time it had already become an ho-hum contest. The fact that the Black Bears lost their center Nick Susi early in the first half with an ankle injury totally blacked out their already very dim hopes for an upset.

The best thing about this game was that the easy victory enabled Coach Jack Leaman to substitute freely. This served a dual purpose, first of all to give the starters a rest, and secondly to prepare for the big one with Syracuse tonight in which UMass will have to substitute freely in order to keep up with the Orangemen's immense frontcourt and overall fast style of play.

AROUND THE RIM...-Pagliara and Mathias put on a shooting performance over the weekend to the tune of 60% each from the floor...Former UMass captains were honored in special halftime ceremonies Saturday night; with sentimentalism apparently prevailing, Em Grayson, '17 and Ray Ellerbrook, '70, the oldest and youngest former captains present respectively, received the largest ovations...Coach Leaman has acquired an ardent following who sit directly behind the Redman bench each game and label themselves "Jack's Corner", complete with sign and all...

Season On The Line As Redmen Face Orange

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Tonight at Curry Hicks Cage two teams with hopes of being invited to a post season tournament collide head on as the Orangemen from Syracuse University come to UMass to do battle with the Redmen with tap-off set for 8 p.m.

Syracuse is currently one of the hottest teams in the east, coming into contest with a nine game win streak and an overall season mark of 16-5. So far this season the Orangemen have run up impressive victories over West Virginia, Army twice, St. John's, 11th ranked LaSalle and took fourth ranked Penn to overtime before losing.

The Orangemen will have a starting five of big 6'11 Bill Smith at center, Mike Lee, 6'3 and Mark Wadach, 6'3, at the forwards, with 6'1 Greg Kohls and 5'11 Tom Green at the guards.

Smith is the key to the Syracuse attack. He's an all-American candidate and is currently one of the top three field goal percentage shooters in the country. Going into tonight's tilt he is averaging around 25 points and 14 rebounds per game.

Lee and Wadach are good leapers and consistent scorers and give Smith a fine complement in the frontcourt.

Kohls is averaging 22 points a game and makes about 50% percent of his shots from the floor. The field general for the Orangemen is Green who leads the team in assists and also contributes nine points per game to the Syracuse offense.

As a team, the Orangemen are similar to Fordham as they are a zone team, using the zone press after every field goal and free throw. They use a 2-2-1 full court press and a 1-2-1 full court press to accomplish the zone defense.

On offense Syracuse uses a lot of reverse action plays and likes to set up two-man plays on the opposing defense. One can also look for things such as a back door out of the guards and the crossing of the forwards on the inside as part of the Orangeman offensive reporteire.

And with a big 6'11 center the Orangemen will also be going for Smith inside to set the pivot man up for his patented shot that he has made 63% of the time.

Coming off a 21 point victory over UConn on Saturday night at Storrs, the Orangemen well be hungry for victory when they enter the Cage tonight. This is a big one for them, a win meaning a giant step for the post season tournament they are striding for. They will be ready.

For the Redmen coach Jack Leaman will be going with the same starters who did the job over the weekend, that being Julius Erving, Ken Mathias and Tom McLaughlin up front, with John Betancourt and Mike Pagliara in the backcourt.

After the weekend games it can also be expected that Rich Vogeley, Chris Coffin and Bob Dempsey will see their share of the action.

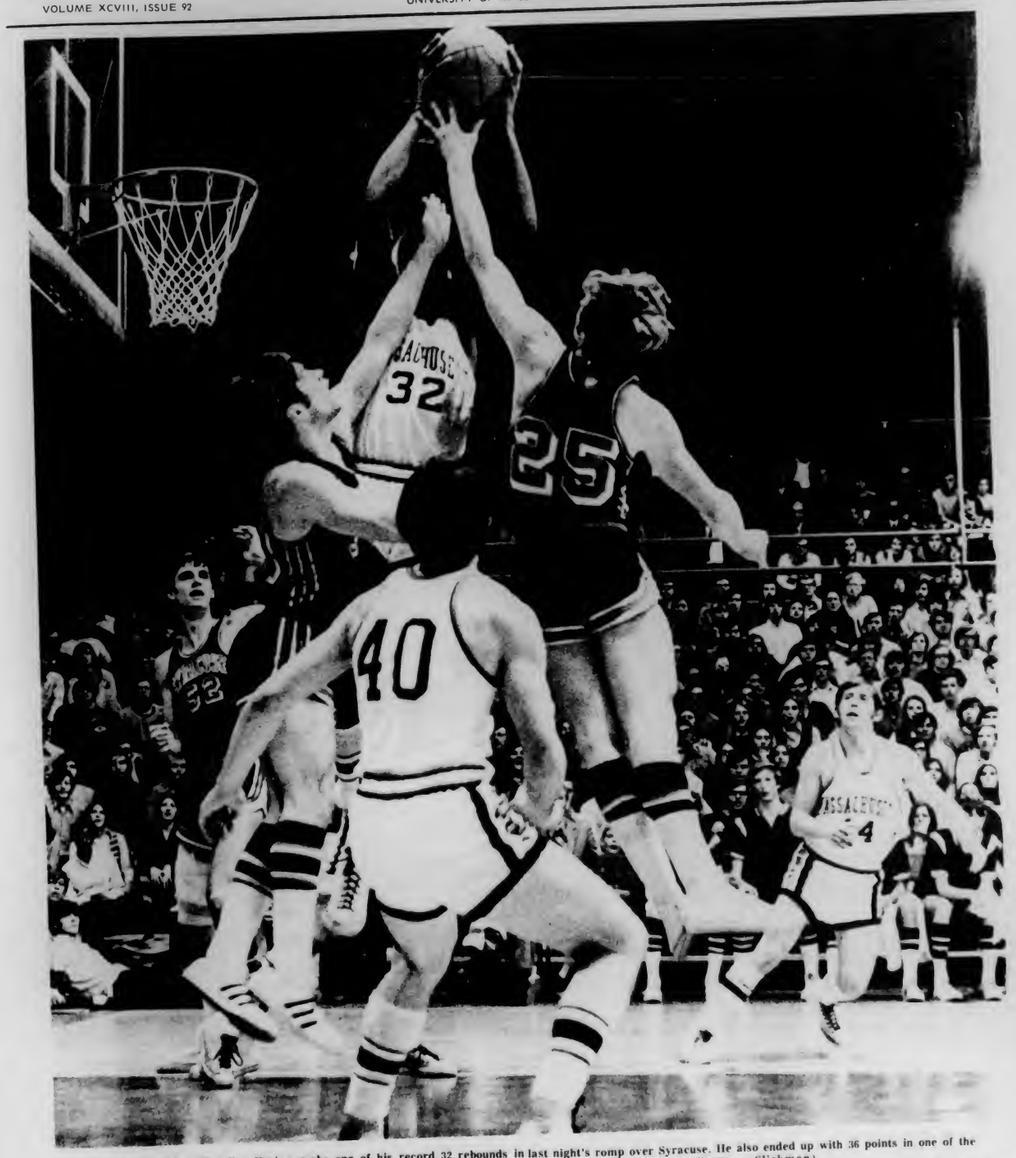
With a post season tournament also on the horizon for the Redmen, they will be ready no doubt for this encounter.

This is the big one, the stakes are high, the future looms bright for the winner. All the ingredients are here for a great ball game.

Intramurals Tonight

Volleyball

	TEAMS
	Baggers vs. 18		Smitty's vs. BX
	Mac Packs vs. Smokers		Stouts vs. J. Jacks
	Team vs. Jocks		Vroom's vs. Misfits
	Gangsters vs. Chipmunks		X plus 2 vs. Vollies
	Sophomores vs. Farmers		Flats vs. Levers
	Knickers vs. Squirrels		Cov. Eng. vs. Beadledoms
	Underdogs vs. Pi Tau Pis		Smith Hall vs. Bouins
	Hi Rise vs. Senators		Flexis vs. Zeros
	Misfits vs. Mac Packs		Shots vs. Kopeta
	Mac 1 vs. Mac 2		Jacks vs. Bandits
	Team 7 vs. Team 8		Smugtees vs. J.C.
	Flyers vs. Dragons



Gymnasts, Wrestlers Win Results In Tomorrow's MDC

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Chance of snow, highs in 30's.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 92 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1971

JULIUS GRABS ONE-Julius Erving grabs one of his record 32 rebounds in last night's romp over Syracuse. He also ended up with 36 points in one of the most memorable performances ever witnessed on a UMass basketball court. (MDC photo by Gary Slickman).

Erving & Company Down Syracuse, 86-71

By BARRY RUBENSTEIN
MDC Staff

Julius Erving played perhaps his finest game ever.

Proving himself once and for all as a solid All-America candidate, Erving scored 36 points and snatched 32 rebounds in a virtuoso performance to lead the UMass basketball team to its most important win of this season over Syracuse, 86-71, before 4200 howling Senior Night fans at the Cage last night. The Redmen are now 20-3 and the Orangemen are 16-6.

Erving simply did everything, and did it to perfection. His 32 rebounds broke his own record of 30 set earlier in the season against St. Michael's. His scoring output not only was his highest of the season but also made him the second leading scorer in UMass history with 1278 career points and he's still got a season to go.

The junior co-captain was by no means alone in his heroics last night though. Ken Mathias, playing his last game at the Cage after a brilliant career, went out in fine style with 13 points and most of the rebounds that Erving couldn't get too. But more than this, Mathias did a fantastic defensive job on Syracuse's 6'11 All-American Bill Smith. The giant center came into the contest averaging 23 points and 14 rebounds a game. He left with 14 points and ten rebounds and five fouls.

The backcourtmen were exceptional too. John Betancourt, who always seems to have a hot hand in the big games, had 17 points on seven of 13 field goal attempts and made a few nifty passes for Erving hoops in the late going. Mike Pagliara, though he only had seven points, contributed six assists and took control on the floor.

Continued on Page 12

campus Carousel

Around And About With Tony G.

By TONY GRANITE
MDC Staff

TAKE PHYSICS, GET GREEN STAMPS...that's what academe has come to. Bless S&H for that.

It happened at Michigan Central University, this month, during a "typically dull" registration, according to the student newspaper LIFE.

To compete with more lively registration at neighboring tables, a Physics prof put up a sign that read, "Special Today - Double Green Stamps" to anyone brave enough to enroll in 15 or more hours of Physics.

He had one taker, a graduate student (female) who needed 15 hours when no other courses were available. The tab of stamps was computed at 480, which set the instructor to wondering how he could pay off.

He wrote to the president of Sperry & Hutchinson (the S&H stamp people), "Would you believe that one of our coeds called my bluff?"

The immediate reply from S&H was: "I'm distressed to note that your offer drew only one student. The only reason that I can imagine is that you were somewhat penurious. Personally, 480 stamps wouldn't get me to take 15 hours of physics."

Enclosed was a certificate for 1,200 S&H Green Stamps.

• • •

"GREENING OF AMERICA" has found green pastures in the AMHERST STUDENT, which devoted it's entire front page for Feb. 15 to a review of this book by Charles Reich of Yale.

Reviewer Peter Scheer's conclusion: "The dream that Charles Reich sincerely bills as a panacea turns out to be little more than a palliative for confused parents, frustrated liberals, and, sadder still, Charles Reich himself."

• • •

LADLE LADY LAMBASTED. It happened at UBridgeport, when a junior English major was fired by the director of food services for her "supercilious attitude," according to a report in THE SCRIBE.

Identified as one of the dining hall's "beloved ladle ladies for four devoted semesters," the coed said she had been guilty of telling her friends (who must have been legion) which dishes to avoidon certain days.

Ombudsman, where are you?

• • •

SPEAKING OF WOMEN...the ladies of the Women's Liberation Front at Washington State would love to have such a cause to make celebre. According to the DAILY EVERGREEN there, WLF is searching out cases of discrimination against women on the campus.

But they're after small potatoes. "When a woman is expected to serve coffee to men of equal status in her department -- that's discrimination," according to a spokeswoman.

Or it might be sheer politeness, an overactive maternal instinct or even a manhunt?

• • •

MEANWHILE, back at Trinity College, comes the disquieting intelligence that "Nearly half the student organizations existing at the College during the past decade have not survived to 1971, and the rest may not be around much longer."

The report appeared as the first in a series of articles on student organizations and student interest to appear in THE TRINITY TRIPOD.

The most notable among the 30 vanishing groups is the Student Senate, which died last Spring. Among those that are moribund are the debating club, which has spent only 80 cents of its $100 budget, and fraternities which have resorted to going coed to stave off extinction.

The lowest attrition has been with social action groups which decline as causes disappear.

Ah, apathy, this is thy sting!

• • •

AND DOWN IN MAINE...Ralph Nader, the Crusader for highway safety, nearly didn't ride to a speaking engagement at the UMaine-Orono campus, last month.

The seat belts on a student host's 1968 Ford had been tucked away with a broken plastic buckle. When the consumer advocate made it clear that he wanted the protection of the belts, he was strapped into his seat with half the passenger's harness hooked to the right-hand section of the driver's seat belt.

The student driver drove beltless, as he has for the last two years. "Nader didn't seem as concerned about my safety as he did about his own," he told THE MAINE CAMPUS newspaper.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Gil Moves To The Hatch

By GILBERT J. SALK
MDC Staff

If you've always wanted to talk to a draft counselor, but never gotten up the energy to hike up to the second floor of the Student Union, today's your chance. Draft Counseling Services will have an info table set up outside the Hatch all day today. Stop by and rap about your problem, or pick up some literature to read.

That was a word from our sponsor. Now, on with the regular programming.

Whenever you receive a classification card from your friendly local, it includes a statement saying that you have thirty days in which to file an appeal of the classification. You should use this appeal right at any time you are not satisfied with the classification. All you have to do is write to the board, tell them that you do not want the classification they have assigned you, that you wish to appeal through a personal appearance, and that you would like an appointment with the Government Appeal Agent before the personal appearance. It helps, but is not required, to tell them what classification you would like.

For illustrative purposes, let's assume that I just graduated and have been reclassified I-A. The classification card arrived in today's mail. After a brief moment of panic, I realize that it's finally time to act. I hie me hither to my nearest draft counselor and sob on his shoulder. We decide that I have a fair chance for a III-A hardship deferment because my wife just had a baby and can't work, her father just got laid off from his job because of Nixon's latest move to stimulate the economy and can't support her, my folks are putting two more kids through school and are just barely making ends meet, and we have doctor bills up the proverbial.

With the counselor's assistance, I compose a letter outlining the situation, add a couple of tear-drops for effect, and mail it to my board. (Certified, return receipt requested, of course.) In the letter I ask for a III-A classification. They send back the appropriate form, and back I go to my counselor. We fill out the form and return it to them. (Certified, etc.) After due deliberation, they send me another I-A.

Aghast, I rush back to my draft counselor. He tells me to appeal it. Together we compose another letter:

"Dear Draft Board,

"My name is John Q. Public, SS #XYZ (note the dehumanizing use of numbers...just like the university). I recently received a I-A classification which I wish to appeal. I should be classified III-A on the basis of extreme hardship. Please schedule me for a personal appearance so that I may discuss my circumstances with you.

"In addition, I would like a appointment with the Gov. Appeal Agent prior to the personal appearance.

"Thank you, etc., etc., etc."

This letter is also sent Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested, as is all material sent to the board, and a copy is kept in my personal file at home.

Finally, I meet with the Appeal Agent. Like most, he is an attorney, and his loyalties are, at best, divided. He is supposed to advise me of the best way to proceed within the law in seeking the classification I desire, but if he thinks I don't deserve it, he will tell the board. So I don't tell him anything I don't want the board to know. But I dutifully note his advice and consider it in planning my future actions. I also write down, verbatim, a transcript of our discussion and send a copy to the board to be included in my file.

Supposedly, I would have brought all the available documentation of my financial situation with me, and he would have told me where my case was weak and what I could do to make it stronger. My next step, then is to seek out the strengthening material, so that I can bring it with me when I meet the board.

Finally, before I go to my personal appearance, I write a summary of my situation and prepare a list of all the documents which should be in the file. I run off enough copies of each of these to hand to each member of the board.

(This dramatization of the appeal proccess will be continued in Draft Counselor's Corner on Thursday. Please tune in at that time. The information could save your life.)

Peace.

Questions to this column should be addressed to: Gilbert J. Salk, c/g Draft Counseling Services RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002

Free personal draft counseling available. Draft Counseling Services, 418E Student Union 2nd. floor.

Kennedy Recall of Senator Sets New Legal Precedent

By CYNTHIA SWINDELL
AND LEE THIBODEAU

A precedent has been set concerning Student Senate representation at Kennedy Upper.

On February 8, the students of Kennedy Upper circulated a petition to order a referendum on the recall of Senator John Stevens. The students took this course of action after John Stevens moved from that dorm. This is the first occasion that a student senator has been recalled due to the fact that he moved from his representative area.

At the end of the fall semester John Stevens, the senator of Kennedy Upper moved to the newly opened Cashin dorm. Upon moving, Stevens retained his position as Kennedy Upper senator. Tim Brennan, the Head of Residence at Kennedy Upper, therefore initiated a petition in accordance with Student Senate Constitution, Section #7 which states that "a petition signed by at least one-third of a constuency, shall be necessary and sufficient to order a referendum on the recall of a Senator."

With the necessary one-third, a referendum was held at which the students of Kennedy Upper voted to have Stevens recalled. Subsequently a new election was held on February 18, at which Harry Rea won on a write-in vote.

MDC
Classifieds
Are Worth
It

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION EMERGENCY REPAIRS
CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS
MATCHLESS SELECTION FASHION-RIGHT FRAMES
WIRE FRAMES LOTS!
Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 North Pleasant St., Amherst
Tel. 256-6193

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU in the Spring
EUROPE in the Summer
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m.-5p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family —

Polish Boat Allowed Into Narragansett Bay

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) - A Polish fishing vessel was given permission Monday to steam up Narragansett Bay to Providence to replenish her fuel and water tanks.

The vessel, the 240-foot Prezemsza, was en route from the fishing grounds off the Virginia Capes to Halifax, N.S., for engine repairs when she put in to Narragansett Bay at Newport and reported to the Coast Guard Station at Castle Hill she was low on fuel and water.

MDC Hotline 5-2550

Winter Carni 1971
VOTE TODAY
for
WINTER CARNIVAL
QUEEN
Student Union Lobby

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Packwood Speaks on Quality of Life

At The Cage

By ROBERT SCHEIER
MDC Staff

"The quality of life is inversely proportional to the number of people, times the square of the area of land they live on." Summarizing his view on population increase in this way, Senator Robert Packwood, speaking in the Campus Center Auditorium last night, advocated policies of family planning, legalized abortion, and a change in tax, welfare, and housing laws to achieve population stability in the United States.

Sen. Robert Packwood

Speaking before an audience of 250 in the DVP-sponsored lecture, Senator Packwood said that family planning-contraception education and information should be made available to every man and woman in the nation, regardless of education or financial status. On the subject of abortion, he said that he felt it was the right of every woman to discontinue an unwanted pregnancy.

In the third area of action, the changing of laws which encourage large families, Senator Packwood introduced legislation in his home state of Oregon which would limit to two the number of children which could be claimed as a tax exemption. However, since this law went into effect, he has become convinced on the basis of tax results that this puts an undue financial burden on people in the $5-10,000 dollar income range.

Despite this, he feels it was a significant psychological victory, in that it is among the least controversial population control measures and might spur future efforts.

Senator Packwood stressed that the Congress is wary of taking strong or controversial action, and "often says that something can't be done when what they really mean is that they don't want to." He said that the public should "start shouting at Congress about population control, and then they will do something."

Senator Packwood predicted in his speech that within one or two years the Supreme Court would probably strike down many anti-abortion statutes in the United States, and that this action would pave the way for eventual Congressional action within another ten or twelve years making abortion legal nationwide. He introduced a bill calling for that in April, 1970.

The Senator, who comes from Oregon, says that he became interested in population control "out of selfishness. I have been to most of the big cities in this country, and I am not sold on bigness. I do not want what has happened to the East to happen to my part of the country."

He adds that although this country could conceivably feed and house over 300 million people, he feels that that number is the limit for a decent life-style. He says that he is concentrating on action in this country because of a lack of U.S. influence abroad.

In response to questions, the Senator said that he felt that up until the fourth month of pregnancy, the mother's right not to have an unwanted child overruled the child's "natural rights." He felt that although there was a need for legislation in the field, "if it came down to between a population explosion and the coercion of people not to have more children, I couldn't come down for coercion."

Although against efforts to force people not to have children, he said that he was optimistic that legislation and education could bring the birthrate down. He said that what is now needed is a 1.2 birth rate per family, as opposed to an ideal 2.11.

At The Coffee Hour

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Population control advocate Senator Packwood (R.Oregon) told a group of thirty students yesterday afternoon at a DVP sponsored coffee hour he felt that Congress would not act on population control in the near future.

"Congress is generally responsible to the bulk of the public concerns," Senator Packwood explained, and "population is reasonably far down on the list" of public priorities as to demand major congressional action.

Last March, Packwood introduced legislation which would have limited to two the number of children which could be declared as income tax deductions, effective January 1, 1973. It was defeated overwhelmingly and the Senator felt it would be at least ten years before effective population control legislation would become law.

Packwood stated his new, altered version of a bill to legalize abortion nationwide will become law within the next five years. Despite the fact "Congress doesn't want to make any tough decisions", he said, the issue of abortion cannot be ignored.

On Southeast Asia the Senator felt the "public at large accepts the President's de-escalation" policies and sees a Korea-like solution to the end of the war. Packwood said the conflict has become "an anethema to the U.S. public" who want out "with at least not a military defeat."

He is a supporter of the all-volunteer army yet feels it won't pass in the next session of Congress. Packwood said the Draft will be extended two more years with the elimination of college deferments and the lowering of draft calls to "0" by June, 1973.

Packwood favored wage and price controls over an 8% inflation when questioned on the economy issue. Also he is opposed to the SST on "economic priorities rather than environmental."

Packwood, a member of the President's Commission on Population and American Future, concluded the hour by saying a report will be forthcoming stating methods in which the nation must use to achieve a stationary population level by the year 2000.

Tuition Hike Sparks Student Response

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

The University Communications Council, chaired by Judy Gill, has begun urging students to write to their legislators in response to the bill submitted by Senate president Kevin Harrington advocating an increase in state school tuition from the present amount of $200 to $2,400 per year. This increase does not include room and board.

The council, an ad hoc advisory group to the Student Senate, has done quite a bit of work with the State Legislature.

According to Miss Gill, "It must be emphasized that the students write to their legislators protesting the bill or any other attempt at raising the tuition. Most of us here simply can't afford an increase. Furthermore, she continued, "most students now have a vote. Constituents are most important to legislators - we should make our position felt."

The Student Senate has appropriated $2,000 for the mass mailing of a letter, composed by Bob Harrington and others to be sent to the parents of all students attending UMass. The letter is designed to prompt parents to write to legislators in an effort to nullify the tuition increase bill.

Students are urged to write not only to their legislators but also to their parents to assure some definite action. As Gill said, "This should be a University wide effort. If just a few write in, we'll look pretty ridiculous. It's got to be a joint effort-we're the ones who will have to pay if we're apathetic."

Tables will be set up outside the Hatch Thursday and Friday for informative purposes. Available will be fact sheets delineating the bill filed by Harrington and the names of all legislators to aid students in writing to the representatives.

The USCC is also planning a conference to be held here Friday and Saturday of this weekend. Students representtives will be present from all state schools, community college and University alike. The aim of the conference is to prepare a coordinated front of student opinion which will then be presented to the State Legislature on March 16, the date of an open hearing in Gardner Auditorium before the Education Committee, a joint operation of the House and Senate.

Miss Gill explained the Conference as an "attempt to form a policy viable for both community colleges and universities." She mentioned that at present and in the past, there had been matters of contention between the colleges and universities and that it would be disadvantageous for all concerned if these disagreements extended themselves into the campaign against a tuition hike.

Black Law Students Sponsor Conference

The Black American Law Students Association (BALSA) at Georgetown University Law Center is sponsoring a Pre-Law Conference for black students interested in pursuing an education in law. It will be held all day Saturday, February 27, 1971, on the main campus of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

Speakers who have consented to be at the conference include Rep. Ronald Dellums, Freshman congressman from California; Judge George Crockett of Detroit known for his unprecedented but legal action in the New Bethel Incident; Rev. Walter Fauntroy, D.C. Democratic Party nominee for the House of Representatives; and Mr. Otis Cochran, National Chairman of BALSA.

In addition, BALSA has invited the major law schools in the country to participate in the conference. They will send their admissions office representatives who will provide interested persons with first hand information.

We, the members of BALSA request that you place an article or announcement concerning the conference in your next issue (s) of your publication so that all persons who might be interested will become aware of it.

IT IS VERY IMPORTANT THAT students wishing to attend the conference return a completed registration form. (No fee required) Forms were mailed to the pre-law advisor at your school and should be obtainable there.

This conference is organized by black students for the benefit of other black students.

MOBE To Discuss Spring Schedule

The National Student Anti-War Conference which was held in Washington last weekend decided on April 24 as the date for massive anti-war demonstrations in the capital. The Student Mobe is conducting a general meeting tonite at 8:30 in the Campus Center to explain what took place and what is scheduled for the spring. More than 30 members of Mobe from the five college area attended the conference.

Reading - Study Course
Register for Reading - Study Course TONIGHT at 7 P.M.
Room 163 - 164
Campus Center
No Fee

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'nal.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Thursday, Feb. 25
MANDATORY
STATION MEETING
For ALL W M U A People
(Anyone is welcome, all are invited.)

In The Nation And The World

South Viets Stalled

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnamese troops were stalled Tuesday in Laos under heavy enemy pressure while in Cambodia Saigon's top field commander was killed in a helicopter crash.

Informed sources said one reason for the halt isn Laos was heavy concentration of enemy mines along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The dead commander, Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri, was directing the parallel thrust by 20,000 Saigon troops against enemy bases and supply points in eastern Cambodia. He also led the major incursions into Cambodia last May.

Field reports said the general's helicopter crashed after developing mechanical trouble shortly after takeoff from his forward headquarters at Tay Ninh, on the Vietnamese side of the border.

Tri, 42, was the highest-ranking general, American or South Vietnamese, killed in the Indochina war.

One source monitoring the Laos operation said the forward-most South Vietnamese elements were bogged down for the sixth straight day 16 air miles inside Laos. "I never measure the winding road," he said.

South Vietnamese spokesmen alternately have reported their most advanced position as 17 1/2 miles west of the border.

One of the announced objectives of the drive is Sepone, a key North Vietnamese trans-shipment point on east-west Highway 9, several miles beyond the farthest South Vietnamese advance.

In Washington Defense Department officials acknowledged the South Vietnamese suffered a setback in Laos over the weekend, but said that was "no reason to write off the whole operation." The State Department said the objective of disrupting the flow of enemy supplies "is being carried out."

To The Rescue...

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—A towboat was dispatched Monday night to tow a Polish fishing vessel to Providence for refueling and replenishment of her water supply.

Nixon Attacks Rising Costs In Construction Industry

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson said after an hour-long meeting with President Nixon Monday the administration definitely will announce some positive action early this week to counter rising wages and prices in the construction industry. Hodgson, testifying before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, would not say just what the action might be.

The White House affirmed that an announcement will be made later in the week but was equally reticent about the administra'.on's plans.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Hodgson reported to Nixon to his discussions with AFL-CIO building trades union executives in Miami Beach last week but declined to say whether Hodgson made any specific recommendations.

In his appearance before the congressional group, Hodgson left open the possibility, widely reported to be under consideration, of a mandatory wage-price freeze in the industry.

"We will be definitely going to do something about this problem," Hodgson said.

He did rule out any across-the-board wage-price freeze for the nation as a whole. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the committee chairman, asked Hodgson if he thought it would be fair to freeze prices for one industry but not all.

"There is no such thing in the wage-price field, I suppose, as equity," Hodgson said. "The construction industry is the one that's under consideration at the present time."

Calley Taught Obedience, Not Rules of Warfare

FT BENNING, Ga (AP) - Lt. William L. Calley Jr. took the witness stand at his My Lai massacre trial Monday, and testified that his Army training was short on the rules of warfare, but long on unquestioning obedience to orders.

"Was it a training of: Do first and ask later," the 27-year old defendant was asked as he testified on charges of the premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968.

Yes, sir," replied Calley, 5-feet 3, whose only decoration on his tunic was a Combat Infantryman's badge. He also holds the Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster, a Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal, among others.

Calley was asked about the nature and extent of his instructions about the Geneva Convention which outlines the rules of warfare and the treatment of civilians and captured enemy soldiers.

"I know there were classes," Calley replied. "I can't remember any of the classes. Nothing stands out in my mind that I was taught in these classes."

As to his indoctrination in obedience to orders, Calley testified:

"All orders were to be assumed legal. It was a soldier's job to carry out any order given to the best of his ability. You could be court-martialed for refusing an order and in the face of the enemy you could get the death penalty."

As for weighing the legality or illegality of an order before executing it, Calley said: "I was never told that I had a choice."

One of the most important facets of Calley's defense is the contention that when he went into My Lai he was acting under orders of superiors to kill everything that moved in the village. There has been defense testimony that he lacked the mental capacity to judge the order on the basis of its legality.

Calley's court martial began Nov. 12. After frequent interruptions in the trial, he finally made his long awaited witness stand appearance, taking the oath in a low voice at 2:12 p.m. He was his usual neat self in his olive drab uniform.

He appeared relaxed in the witness stand, answering questions in a crisp and rapid voice.

Calley's testimony started off in a low key, as he recited events in his childhood, schooldays and young manhood.

The defendant testified he never took drugs, had no police record, excepting minor traffic citations.

Tornadoes Rip Through South Nixon Declares Disaster Area

Tornadoes which tore through dozens of towns in the Mississippi and Louisiana Deltas killed 84 persons, left hundreds homeless and virtually destroyed the Mississippi community of Inverness, officials reported Monday.

The twisters-weathermen said there were between 50 and 100 of them-moved through the area late Sunday night, and late Monday volunteers were uncovering victims beneath the widespread rubble.

In Washington, President Nixon declared a major disaster for the state of Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams, Nixon's move releases federal funds for use in hard-hit sections.

Hardest hit was the small town of Inverness, where 90 per cent of the business area was blown apart. About 75 per cent of the residential area was destroyed. Thirteen persons died in Inverness, in Sunflower Country.

Civil Defense officials said 22 died in Leflore County, 24 in Sharkey County, 17 in Sunflower County, seven in Yazoo County, five in Humphreys, two in Warren.

In addition five died in Delhi, La., in one of the first funnels to drop out of the band of violent weather which whistled through the area just before dark.

The American Insurance Association said insured property damage in the two states would exceed $7.5 million.

The homeless were being fed and clothed in a dozen aid centers set up by the Red Cross and Civil Defense.

Officials said food supplies were adequate and that shipments of medicine were enroute. Hospitals were overflowing and first-aid centers were set up in schools and civic centers.

One observer compared the destruction to the Mississippi Gulf Coast where several hundred persons died in Hurricane Camille 1 1/2 years ago.

Civil Defense officials, hampered by downed communications lines, said they were having trouble calculating the full extent of the damage and the total number of deaths.

National Guardsmen, inmates from the state prison at Parchman and numerous volunteers were enlisted for the cleanup operation.

Estimates were that winds exceeded 100 miles per hour as the funnels skipped across the countryside.

Observers said splintered lumber lay scattered along the main highways through the Delta where frame houses had exploded under the force of the whirling winds.

At the University of Mississippi at Oxford, 40 students were hospitalized after a tornado hit a trailer park on the edge of the campus. He said 50 trailers were destroyed and 50 others damaged - some wrapped around pine trees like pieces of wire.

The violent cold front, which left rescue workers shivering in brisk 40-degree temperatures, also spawned tornadoes in Texas and Tennessee.

Study in Guadalajara, Mexico

The Guadalajara Summer School, a fully accredited University of Arizona program, will offer, July 5 to August 8, art, folklore, geography, history, political science, language and literature courses. Tuition, $160; board and room $155. Write Dr. Juan B. Rael, Office of Summer Session, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721.

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES

events

BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

FRIDAY, FEB. 26 & SAT., FEB. 27 — 8 P.M.

THE GARY BURTON QUARTET

A night of good vibes by one of the top jazz ensembles!

Extra! Feb. 26th Informal Seminar
Feb. 27th Jazz Workshop

2:30 p.m./Old Chapel Auditorium
Open without charge to ticket-holders.

FRIDAY, MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 — 8 P.M.

GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE

Presents Mozart's "Don Giovanni"

Company of fifty in fully staged production in English!

MARCH 16 - 18

ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE

Brilliant contemporary dance ensemble in two different evening programs plus Master Class and Lecture Demonstration.

For complete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall (Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.) Tel. 545-0202

FREEPORT FLING
IN THE
BAHAMA ISLANDS
DURING COLLEGE WEEK
MARCH 21 - 29
ONLY $189* plus 6% tax incl. services

Includes:
- Round trip jet with champagne, meals.
- 8 days at the Freeport Inn.
- Spacious air conditioned room — some with kitchenettes.
- FREE "HAPPY HOUR" every night. FREE BOOZE 5:30 - 7:30, Band 6 - 8.
- Facilities for swimming, sailing, water skiing, golf.
- Many clubs, casinos, pubs, discoteques.

*Based on 4 per room.

JET ONLY FOR $99

Send $25 deposit to
JOE MALETZ
1513 JFK

or call 546-7819 for info.

Checks payable to Student Tours

Dick and Pat Buy
MDC Classifieds
Why Don't You?

Films, Movies, The Cinema

Husbands

By RUSSELL MUNDY
MDC Staff

Husbands playing at Loews in West Springfield this week raises many more questions than it might ever hope to answer. John Cassavetes (Faces) writes and directs as well as acts one of three husbands along with Peter Falk and Ben Gazzara. Husbands is so remotely related (or unrelated) to films such as Gone With The Wind or Tora, Tora, Tora that it is important to examine its method and purpose.

Less a story and more a study of husbands, what happens finally is much less important than the process by which it happened. The story as such is quite slender. Three friends in their late thirties, stimulated by the death of a fourth friend, band together for two days of relief from their work and wives and end up in London with wine, women, and song. One decides to stay while the other two return home. No, the story as such is not the preoccupation of the film.

From Shadows (1960) through Faces (1968) Cassavetes has refined his cinema verite. This is not to say that Faces was refined -- the camera lurches from one character to another looking for the action. Takes are held long after the action has subsided and moved elsewhere. The television-based cinema verite was intended to bring a heightened sense of realism to film much like the use of course grained black and white film stock. (Why we accept black and white rather than color as more "real" defies logic. We do see in color. It suffices to say that we accept the convention of black and white reality).

Perhaps more crucial to "cinema verite" than the hand-held camera and the "realistic" black and white film stock is the heavy dependance upon actors and spontaneous action. (Cassavetes background was primarily in television and until Faces in 1968 he was first and foremost an actor). Just as continuous takes and minimal editing is the rule in cinema verite, so too is little scripting and less rehearsing. The results at best are moments of extraordinary immediacy along many more moments of ordinary emptiness. At best it is the ultimate theatre for actors. Faces was all of this with added intensity provided by the consistent use of close-up.

Husbands picks up where Faces left off. Lynn Carlin and John Marley were left separated on the stairs in the last shot of Faces. The film had explored in some depth the particular needs and limitations of both. Their separation is described in heavily sexual terms. To do so, to describe the barrier between people in sexual terms is the easy way out. Husbands never allows that out.

With one exception the wives are never really seen in the film. Still shots are shown at the very beginning with the men and women and their children shown grouped by the edges of a suburban pool, the women with their children and the men among themselves. I think it important that the women shown are young, slender, bikini-clad -- conventionally attractive.

Only Ben Gazzara's wife is seen during the remainder of the film and she is a mixture of strength and weakness, compassion and destruction. Gazzara chooses not to return to her and remains in London, choosing instead an independent life among several singularly unremarkable women. The implication is clear: Gazzars is not so much leaving his wife as he is leaving something else. Ben lacks neither sex nor love nor understanding -- the conventionally missing pieces of endless broken homes.

Husbands tries to explain what it is that is missing, but usually tells us only what is not. D.H. Lawrence tried to define the missing ingredient between men and women and decided that words cannot by their very rational nature ever apprehend it.

Husbands in scenes of men playing basketball, swimming, drinking, gambling, attempts to offer visual correlatives of the missing ingredient. All filmmakers understand the difficulty of creating visual correlatives for attitudinal values. The cinematic equivalence of love or hate or chagrin is indeed difficult if not impossible to create.

Cassavetes understood this when he set about making his film. He could no more hope for a definitive statement of the essence of relationships between men than he could define the essential tension between men and women. By placing the viewer in the immediate present through the techniques of "cinema verite", Cassavetes keeps raising the questions even if the answers aren't forthcoming.

My Night At Maud's

By PETER L. CAMERON
MDC Staff

Hey you! Anyone out there! Let's take a film of you in your most intense love-throbs and see how much money we can lose trying to sell it to the public. Let's face it, then, real life on film cannot deliver the kicks we want for our entertainment. What then is this Cinema Verite or True Film that the French have come up with? You'll see in My Night At Maud's (at The Talkie in Northampton) that actors are used, camera techniques are used, and a theme definitely runs through the movie; and yet, there is a naturalness and flexibility which could only come from shucking off much phony theatrics.

The movie begins with long atmosphere shots to introduce the sterile circumstances of a thirty-four year old bachelor-engineer in a medium- sized French city. Narrow streets, stifling conversation with colleagues, a bare apartment, - everything, in fact, but a nervous mother nagging.

The camera bumps and sways in the car as it goes along. In the solemnity of the cathedral there are long studies of the priest delivering his ritualized call to prayer. To this point the black and white picture is not our friend. I mean if this is all there is to life, who needs it?

But the scene is set. For what? Finally something happens. Something minute; my senses were keen for some involvement, some bit of fire in the ashcan. Our man, who had all the while been staring straight ahead, looks over to the side, and sees.... He meets in a chance encounter, (one of those freaks of probability), an old school friend. They discuss philosophy, mathematics, and religion. Here is where the cleverness of the production comes forth. The engineer, it turns out, has one eye always cocked for what he is certain the laws of probability will cast his way. The talk flows to the (lat of his friend's girlfriend, Maud, a very sexy and sophisticated devorcee. Then, as the friend gets drunk and awkward, Maud turns her lascivious charms to the engineer while he explains that his God demands of him a readiness and purity. A bit frigid, - a cop-out, almost.

Finally, despite his shyness and humorous attempts to leave, he ends by spending the night alone with Maud. What Maud knows with that wise glint in her eye, she ain't tellin'. She does seem to want the nervous engineer to seduce her, - if he can rise to the deed. When he finally moves from the chair to the bed, to under the dovers with the nude body of Maud, somehow the inevitable embrace is too hesitant for her, (and for him too immoral? too contrived to be accidental?).

What happens after this is the unweaving of the plot, which I don't want to spoil. The beliefs this engineer-bachelor thinks he has chosen lead him to find his simple romance. And so there we have a taut little message, - the laws of probability (with God's little dole of human energy) operate to pull the right people together. I didn't like it, but then....

And so the film is a very good one. What it lacks in color, gimic, and immediate sensation it makes up for in sophistication. I find it much more satisfying, anyway, just for an evening, to see unraveled some of my own confusion about what I want from people, what I then say to them, the effect it has, and, behind all this human sweat, the actual forces at work pressing inevitably to give us all some enjoyment in life.

FREEDOM to choose the
WINTER CARNI QUEEN
of your choice
FEBRUARY 23 - 26
STUDENT UNION LOBBY
Winter Carni 1971

Apparently someone has "looked at CLOUDS from both sides now" as the UT production of CLOUDS has been selected as the New England Region entree to the American College Theatre Festival. The competition, sponsored by American Airlines, will be held later this semester at the John F. Kennedy Center of the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

The updated adaptation of Aristophanes' satire was seen on campus last December to generally mixed critical and audience reaction.

TONIGHT

BERGMAN'S
Winter Light

Part II

Silence of God Trilogy

MAHAR 8 & 10

SAN FRANCISCO
MIME TROUPE
Presents:
"SEIZE THE TIME"
followed by a speech
by
TOM HAYDEN
Tues. 8 p.m. C.C. Auditorium

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PAPER

Student Union University of Massachusetts Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — David Williams
NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti
SPORTS — Marty Kelly
DARKROOM — Sam Stewart
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
AD LAYOUT — John & Margie Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Art Buchwald

Defending Agnew's Golf

WASHINGTON--When Vice President Spiro Agnew criticized the news media a few years ago for playing up bad news instead of good news, he knew what he was talking about.

A perfect example of the way the press and TV media showed total irresponsibility took place at the Bob Hope Golf Classic a week ago Saturday when the Vice President drove two golf balls into the crowd in succession, bopping three fans in the process.

NBC television, covering the golf classic, trained its cameras on this ignominious event and later put it on its news shows.

The eastern establishment press lords, particularly the Washington Post and the New York Times, published front page photos of the Vice President's anguished look after his second drive.

The implication given by both television and the newspapers was the Vice President Agnew was not a very good golf player.

Now it's interesting to note that the NBC-TV cameras reported that incident rather than show all the balls that Agnew drove that did not hit anybody.

A small elite band of men in New York decided among themselves that Agnew hitting a spectator was news, when everyone knows that Agnew not hitting a spectator with a golf ball is news.

The impression the average person got from watching the golf classic on TV was that the Vice President was a very dangerous man with a driver. The self-opinionated commentators not only discussed the drives that Vice President Agnew had just made, but also reminded viewers that this was not the first time he had bopped someone with a golf ball. They cited the incident with Doug Sanders, the golf pro whom Agnew had managed to hit in the head a few years back.

Now it is a known fact that on the same Saturday, 897,562 people played golf somewhere in the United States. Not one of them hit a spectator with a golf ball. Did the networks show these people playing golf? Did the newspaper stories concentrate on all the duffers in America that were playing safe and sane golf that day?

The answer is obviously NO! They chose instead to report on Agnew's golf game. Why? Because it was bad news. The fact that no one else that Saturday had hit anyone with a golf ball was good news, and therefore in the eyes of these self-styled editors it was not news.

These editors, who talk only to each other and watch the same golf matches on television, decided the Agnew story was more important.

How can the American people get an objective view of golf when all they see on their news programs and in their papers is the violence committed on the course by the Vice President?

What about the children who were watching that day?

Did anyone point out to them that for every spectator Vice President Agnew hit there were 100,000 that had never been struck by one of his golf balls?

Nothing could better dramatize the point Spiro Agnew tried to make a few years ago about the irresponsibility of the media which choose to show only those parts of the Vice President's golf game that are hopeless.

It behooves the networks to give the Vice President a full hour on a driving range to prove that every ball he hits doesn't necessarily go into the crowd.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Air Cover

Richard C. Hanson

The Great Take-Over

There is no reason to believe that the students of the UMass, Amherst College and Hampshire College could not effectively shape the town government of Amherst, literally take over the town.

Circling the Common in downtown Amherst are 20,000 potential voters.

The Holyoke Transcript ran an editorial at the beginning of this month, which raised a few eyebrows around town by commenting that "should the young men and women (at the local colleges and University) decide to register in Amherst rather than their own home localities, and under current law it seems they can do so legally, we would have the first youth-run, organized community in the nation."

The Transcript adds that what students might do with the power "boggles the imagination."

And its true. Students could actually run the town; have their own political organization; control the additional legislative seats which would be created by the increase in voting population. More important to student needs, adequate solutions to local rent problems and other matters could be sought. Amherst might have another Logs.

The immediate potential of a local student voter registration drive can be viewed in their perspective of the election held last week for the position of Town Moderator. William Field, of Dean of Student fame, stomped Gerry Grady, UMass business manager, by a grand total of 29 votes. There were less than 2500 votes cast in the whole town. In other words, if all the students who took Gerry Grady's course here at the University were registered and voted, they could have swung an entire election.

If one of the younger members of the University community were to have sought the position of moderator, and he had found a mere 2500 students to register and vote, we would have had a different town moderator, not that Dean Field doesn't hold student problems close to heart.

In order to cope with the student threat, the local election officials have been discouraging students from registering in Amherst. Esther Dimock, the Town Clerk, told one reporter that the Town "considers college students dependents of their parents" and that "if they (the students) wish to vote they should register in their parent's place of residence."

The town has already registered some of the students who have trekked down to the Town Hall, though. One of the students who did register told this reporter that the clerk registered her after spending about 45 minutes in polite discussion. One fact seems to be obvious, the town is on shaky constitutional grounds if it decides not to register anyone else.

Whether or not the student take-over ever gets off the ground will depend upon the desire of local students to try the whole crazy scheme. There is always the chance that the town will get some rules passed, which would set up strict voting requirements. But, any restrictions the town places on its now tame students population will surely be met with court cases to maintain and define, once and for all, the legal rights and status of a "student."

What could happen in the little and growing town of Amherst would be the greatest student revolution the nation has ever seen. If students from Amherst can responsibly pull-off a coup in town government, who knows, it might inspire people all over the country to take a new look at their policies.

And as George Frazier, of the Boston Globe, said "Who needs Nixon anyways?"

Afro-Am History Week

In the interest of confirming Black solidarity, the Department of Afro-American Studies set aside last week in accord with national efforts to commemorate Afro-American History Week. All efforts of presentation evolved around the intense and crisis situation of the Black man in America, and in behalf of a quest for the true cultural preservation of an exploited and oppressed people.

On last Tuesday evening in Mahar Auditorium, the opening address was delivered by the scholarly historian of the Department of Afro-American Studies, Mr. Playthell Benjamin. All who know anything about what the character of this great man epitomizes can attest to the fact that he is one who recognizes an imperative and dire need to disclose to his people their true historical behavior. Brother Benjamin spoke on the "Relevance of Black History to the Contemporary American Crisis."

In addition to his capacity as a brilliant professor of Black History at the university, Playthell Benjamin is presently involved in a profound and dedicated research of Black movements.

In line with the harmony of Black cultural awareness, the Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble of Philadelphia enriched the lives of all who attended the Campus Center Auditorium on last Thursday evening by an inspirational concept of black dance at it's finest. This dance ensemble was presented under the auspices of the Virginia Museum Theatre Arts System and the Virginia Dance Society. The Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble was organized not only in an endeavor to capture on stage the rythematic and truly expressionate personification of Black people, but in the interest of enlightening the minds of the unknowledgeable with respect to the true meaning of motion in Black heritage. Among other things their presentation demonstrated the current dances and rituals which are performed in West Africa. The Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble took the audience along with their graceful and explosive dancers through many endeavors of fantastic presentation. As their closing act, they observed the "Harvest and Fertility Rites", a ritual which acknowledges a season of harvest. Perhaps it is a well-planned phenonomea on the part of the Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble to end their presentation with apparent regard to an inevitable change; for without a doubt, the last act for Black people will be one of "overturning the earth, and giving birth to the new."

Gloria Montgomery

Flashback Of A Saint

She was beautiful--she was a star, and the crowd of two thousand clapped its hands in wondering approval. Haughtily she stood, with hands on hips, her clear Irish voice resounding through the microphones like a trumpet. Her lavender tunic and Robin-Hood - green bell bottoms gave a scent of the British Isles. I said to myself, how could this young, fairly attractive female college drop-out be so powerful? I listened with awe to her resonant rhetoric. I sympathized with her statement that she has seen only violence in her life of twenty-three years. So this was Bernadette Devlin, that little devil of socialism who has become the celebrated voice of the Irish working class. Her celebrated voice denounced capitalism, taxes, and ethnic groups. Oh, yes, beautiful, effective phrases that fostered such exhilirating, but subtle applause.

But something registered in my brain as I watched the faces of the young people listening to her. A picture of the 1930's flashed into my mind--a tableau of many young men standing at attention in nationalist Germany while one of the most emotional speakers of the Twentieth Century delivered his wares. How could whole audiences of young people who were just developing their values and ideals be so swayed by what this man--this horror from the past--had to say? And to relate this to Miss Devlin, how can a strong-speaking opportunist plant the seeds of revolution in the minds of American college students who are struggling for freedom of thought? Perhaps I should not queston how it can be done--the fact is, it has been done in the past, with serious consequences.

One brave soul challenged Miss Devlin during the question and answer period of her performance. Miss Devlin's treatment of this person helped me to form an opinion of her. What is YOUR opinion of this "patron saint", Bernadette of Ireland?

Paula J. Pavelczyk

All Letters To The Editor must be typed, double - spaced at sixty spaces per line. They should not exceed one page in length and must be submitted by 5 p.m. prior to the day of publication. The same rules apply for Editorial Points.

The editors reserve the right to edit all letters. Also, all letters must contain the name and address of the writer which will be withheld upon request.

Letters To The Editor

A Kind of "Crackpot Realism"

To the Editor:

As a candidate for Winter Carnival Queen, I wish to respond to the editorial by Don Glickstein in yesterday's Collegian. There is a revolution taking place in our society that is more significant than a political or cultural revolution; it is a revolution of hope. This revolution involves a reaffirmation of the beauty of the human person and all he can be, despite the cultural death-dance which surrounds us.

The university should play a major role in this revolution. It should be more than a vocational institution where one gains practical acumen in a particular field, but a place where the student can become aware of critical or analytical thought. Any discussion of the nature of freedom requies a recognition of the value and uses of critical thought.

Apparently, Mr. Glickstein has not recognized the subtle, yet important distinction between freedom and license. His article seems to indicate that if people wish to become involved in sexist exploitation, they should be allowed to do so, even if they themselves are hurting other people. An essential aspect of freedom is responsibility, which can only be arrived at after careful application of critical thought. If we are to extrapolate and apply Mr. Glickstein's logic to another contemporary problem, Mr. Nixon should be allowed to continue his genocidal and imperialistic war in Southeast Asia?

In running for Winter Carnival Queen, my intention is not to deliberately hurt any individual or group of people. I only want people to apply critical thought to a routine social institution on campus which exploits people and helps perpetuate a mentality which itself hurts people. In a society where the "Happy Consciousness" blinds people to their unfreedom, and where the real is rational, Mr. Glickstein represents the kind of "crackpot realism" so prevalent in our one-dimensional society. I do recognize that one day I shall be old, but I hope my age will not interfere with my growth and humanity. Toward peace and freedom.

Jim LaMacchia

Thanx For The Memory

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Armenian students organization I would like to thank the Winter Carnival Committee for coordinating the fire works display with the observance of the 50th Anniversary of the Armenian Revolution against the Soviets in 1921. February 18 also marked the first day of the new Armenian course. The Armenian "February Revolution" was the only successful, if short-lived revolt against the Soviet superpower. We sincerely appreciate the Winter Carnival Committee's assistance in our observation. When we watched the fire works display we saw it as a symbol of the coming liberty for all peoples on the day when the super powers crumble.

Tom Derderian

Father Goose

To the Editor:

I was lying in bed the other night reading Shakespeare when a frightening thought got hold of me. Looking at the list of characters in the front of the play, it struck me as being quaint that all of the dukes and earls were mentioned first, then the pages and men serving as trees and stumps, then the women, and finally, the murderers. Wow, I thought, wait until class next week. As it is every third sentence the lecturer utters seems to contain some new outrage to the NEW WAY OF LOOKING AT THINGS. Just the other night I happened to mention in class that the men wouldn't have massacred all the Indians in Massachusetts if the women had not been afraid of losing them to the squaws. Hell, I'd read this in the ASSIGNED READING. Some sweet dewdrop snarled, "That's sexist and I don't care who wrote it." The women are getting vicious. My question is, of course, how far will it go? To bottomless male waiters with pinched-rosy cheeks reading Father Goose to the Day-Care children? Alas, the world I knew and loved, crumbling at my feet.

Peter L. Cameron

Something To Read

To the Editor:

I've been reading your newspaper for more than one semester and find that your new format is a refreshing change from last summer. I especially enjoy having something to read in the morning. Keep up the good work.

Kenneth Fonda

Editorial Points

The new feasibility study for dorms to be ready in 1972 has just formally got under way. The study will take just about a week and a half. Already decided is the location (Fraternity--Sorority park) and the occupancy levels (5,600 students).

*****

The snow around UMud is sure melting!

*****

It would seem that the most logical step after the Student Senate's bill to abolish class government would be for the University to abolish class designation.

*****

A year ago last Fall, the Collegian printed a "controversial" editorial column which metaphorically described President Nixon as an anus. He hasn't proved the Collegian wrong yet. Speaking of major oil interests in the nation, The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, under Sen. Fulbright, along with other Congressmen is investigating the discovery by American and foreign oil companies of huge oil deposits in Southeast Asia; Southeast Asia is where the United States first started to fight for democracy and then to protect American lives, as an old wive's tale goes.

*****

Class officers are not necessarily "perpetual adolescents" although a great many of them turn out that way.

*****

At night, when the moon is glimmering and a breeze is rustling through whatever trees are left, the Campus Center looks as bad as it does during the day.

*****

When you get to be President of the Senate, it must seem like everyone can afford $2400 tuition to go to college.

*****

What would you do with 5,779 M&M's?

*****

Reverse Rip-Off

To the editor:

I have been a foreign graduate student for the last four years. I wish to bring to your notice through this paper the ill treatment that was meted out to us. My younger brother and I, on January 2 at about 7:30 p.m., went to Zayre in Hadley to buy a sweater for my brother.

He was wearing an old sweater and a coat. He took off his coat and sweater to try on a sweater in the store. As we could not find a sweater of his size and choice, we dropped the idea of buying a sweater. Instead we bought a pair of socks, paid for it, and left Zayre. We walked away from the store without my brother putting on his sweater which he was carrying under his arm.

As we were walking towards our car in the parking lot, two men suddenly stopped us, one of whom was discovered to be Mr. Griffin, the security officer, and took the old sweater from my brother's arm and accused us of carrying a sweater from the store without paying for it. Quite rudely he asked us to follow them, took us through all the customers standing all over the place, into a small office.

After examining the sweater (which was quite old) it was found that the make and the style of the sweater were not carried by Zayres. Mr. Griffin then changed the subject and accused us of taking something in our pockets. When he could not find anything, after examining our pockets, he let us go without even apologizing for having put us through so much harrrassment and humiliation.

As foreign students, we did not know what power a store employee had but it is presumed that he has no right to harrass a customer without any reason. It is clear that as Zayre is the only big department store near our campus, they do not care for public opinion.

I would like to draw the attention of the whole student community of UMass through this letter so that no one goes through the same kind of harrassment.

M.D.

The Great University In The Sky

(Editor's note - The COLLEGIAN is presently soliciting articles of the following type to be presented in the editorial section of the paper. These articles should be written on subjects with which the author has some amount of particular knowledge, experience or expertise and should be no longer than three typewritten pages, double-spaced and at sixty spaces. The editors reserve the right to edit as well as to select or reject articles for publication)

It is apparent that there are two bodies of opinion as to how and for whom the University of Massachusetts ought to be operated. One body of opinion says that it should be run on at least a break-even basis financially if not for an outright profit. The other body says that the University ought to be run for the production and impartation of knowledge, no matter what the cost.

However, both groups ought to argue that further expansion of the Amherst campus is disadvantageous. Financially, the towns of Amherst and Hadley are going to have more and more difficulty in remaining solvent as more taxable land is taken off the rolls while the University expands. Further, unless a great number of new housing units are built in the immediate area which are available at reasonable rent, some students will find it difficult to come to or continue at this campus. Cluster colleges spread throughout the Pioneer Valley will not ease the situation, for great amounts of money would then have to be spent on some sort of regional transportation system to serve the various campuses.

It also seems that most educators are agreed that a large university has a number of disadvantages educationally. We have all heard much of the alienation most undergraduates feel at Berkeley, Wisconsin, Illinois, and yes, even the University of Massachusetts: thousands of students slogging through a sea of mud, crowding into a dining hall, and worst of all, standing up in an overcrowded classroom. The fact that there were hundreds more applicants than could be accepted to such institutions as Hampshire College, the University of California campuses at San Diego and Santa Cruz seems to testify that a large number of students about to enter college are not interested in attending a large "multiversity."

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has the opportunity to offer the best of both worlds. Admittedly the Amherst campus must expand a bit more, but why not set an absolute maximum of 25,000 to be reached no earlier than 1980. Put the Law School at Boston (where it belongs) so that its students can have the availability of the several fine law libraries in the area as well as the many governmental offices. And there is much more opportunity for such work as legal services for the poor in Boston than in Amherst.

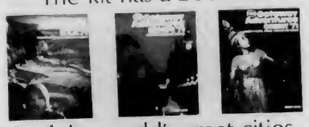
What to do, then, with the thousands of undergraduates that the State of Massachusetts must serve in the coming decades? Here we could learn from our neighbors. Expansion and improvement of the state colleges so that they are of an equal caliber academically with those in New York or California is certainly a start. But care must be taken that these colleges do not exceed about 7500 enrollment. Improvement of the Community Colleges is also a necessity.

Some will continue to argue that the University itself be expanded. Should this be deemed necessary, another new campus could be created. Combining Lowell State College and Lowell Technological Institute is a possibility. Here work could be offered in the three areas most popular for undergraduates; Arts and Sciences, Education, and Engineering. Obviously many facilities would have to be improved, such as the libraries, and a system of transportation would have to be set up between the two campuses. The city of Lowell is in an economic slump, but the addition of new facilities at the two campuses would spur the economy as would the new students in the area. Students, as we in Amherst well know, do have an effect on the economy of an area. UMass Lowell would alleviate the necessity of expanding the Amherst campus to 30,000 or more, would allow for a new primarily undergradua e campus in the greater Boston area, and would help an area which is currently economically depressed. This would be advantageous both to those interested in dollars and in education.

Expansion?

Massachusetts has little choice but to reassess the role the state is going to play in education. As time goes on, the question potential college students are going to ask is not "Where will I be accepted?" but "Which of those colleges that accepts me is going to offer the best education, both within and without the classroom?" If the state institutions want to attract students, those institutions, from the "Great University in the Sky" at Amherst to the lowliest Community College must offer a greater variety of educational experiences than they currently offer. And this means that the General Court must begin to look on education not as a money-making business, but as an investment in the future of the Commonwealth.

Lloyd Adalist



TWA Introduces Getaway.

Sometimes the best part of going to school is getting away.

Getaway is not just going home, it's going somewhere new and doing something different, so send in the coupon and let us send you our free Getaway Vacation Kit.

The kit has a book covering

19 of the world's great cities.

It has three brochures, one on America, one on Europe, and one on Africa, Asia, the Orient and Pacific.

It has the independent Getaway Brochure. For people who want to travel by themselves.

If you're between 12 and 21, we can give you our Youth Passport card.* It gets you 33⅓% off domestic flights, on a standby basis, plus reduced rates at most places where you'll be staying.

And then there's TWA's free Getaway Card. With it, you can charge airfare, hotels, cars, meals, just about everything. And then take up to two years to pay.

Mail in the coupon for TWA's free Getaway Vacation Kit.

And find out how easy getting away really is.

TWA's Getaway Program
U.S.A./Europe/Asia/Pacific/Africa

TWA, P.O. Box 465, Farmingdale, N.Y. 11735
Please send me TWA's free Getaway Vacation Kit.

Name

Address

City State Zip

MOC0221

*Application fee $5.00.

UMass Vets Organize To Fight Viet War

Friday evening, February 19, a new organization against the war in Indochina met in a room at the Campus Center to discuss a fresh viewpoint in accomplishing the goals of many present and past anti-war organizations. This new organization is made up entirely of Veterans that have decided that now is the time to act and the best procedure would be together.

The meeting was led by Bernie Lougee and Bill Staton, co-organizers of "Vets for Peace" at UMass. It was decided that there were three issues of primary interest to come to an agreement on at this first meeting. A name for the group, a political platform, and the formation of a committee to promote the active support of the other veterans on campus.

Discussion concerning the name brought out the fact that there are two large anti-war veterans groups already in existence: "Veterans for Peace" in Chicago and "Vietnam Veterans Against the War" in New York City. After a few suggestions were made, they were voted on and it was decided that the group would be called "Veterans for Peace", so as not to exclude those veterans who did not serve in Vietnam.

When the topic of a political platform came up it was soon quite obvious that sentiments were varied. This is a problem that is found to be prevalent in most of the anti-war groups today and to be the corrosive factor in those of the past. Veterans aren't getting involved in dissention to be "cool," they feel that a gross mistake is being made and that they can be a significant factor in its rectification.

This is not to say that all veterans are against the war, this is merely ascertaining that those who are sincere and have just and thought-out reasons for their uncompromising stand against the foolishness existant in Indochina today. So in order to get the assistance and support of these individuals it is necessary to establish a stable and respectable organization that will not crumble under varied interests and the occasional inevitable disappointments that are associated with all aspects of improving life. For this reason, the group decided that it was necessary to have a singular goal to assure unification in purpose. Granted, there are still mixed feelings as to the best way to accomplish this goal, but, having already found unity in purpose, the group can fall into various "committees" designed to follow through with ideas expressed to accomplish the singular goal.

After serious discussion as to the wording, a platform was arrived at and voted on: "To end U.S. involvement in Indochina." It was passed unanimously.

The final question was presented, discussed, voted on and passed. The proposal was that a committee should be established for the purpose of motivating the other 1,600 veterans on campus. There are many that are either apathetic, afraid, or just plain tired of being dumped on.

Newspaper Recycling In Full Swing

Students at UMass will find boxes labeled "Newspaper Recycling" located in the Campus Center, the Student Union, give main dining commons, and some of the dorms. These boxes serve as receptacles for used newspapers, which will be collected and sent back to local paper mills to be reprocessed. This will not only cut down on the number of trees required to make paper products, but also will help the University's waste problem.

This project was initiated in October by C.O.R.E.S. (Committee On Recycling Excess Stuff), a group which sprang up from a C.E.Q. workshop. The money received for the newspapers is used to pay for transporting the paper. The rest is put into a fund to help finance future projects to recycle or reuse aluminum cans and glass bottles.

For more information, call Lynne Edwards at 253-9878 or Mark Segal at 253-2662.

Pending the realization of a more comprehensive community action (now being studied), residents of Amherst and vicinity may take papers for recycling to P. Allen and Son, Rte. 10, Easthampton Rd., just south of Northampton near the railroad tracks, or to the Salvation Army receptacles in the near Amherst or call for pickup in Holyoke.

Current prices paid: For unmixed computer products: printouts $20/ton, computer cards, boxed $26/ton, computer cards, boxed (all white) $30/ton and up; $8/ton or 40¢/100 lbs. for newspapers only. A stack of newspapers about 3 ft. high is about 100 lbs. $7/ton or 35¢/100 lbs. for mixed paper (such as cardboard cartons, paper bags, junk mail, magazines, office paper, memos, envelopes, soiled tissues, napkins, picutre postcards, old exams, catalogs, telephone books, and food packaging, if not waxed.)

Not recyclable: carbon paper, waxed paper products, scotch tape, plastics, photographs, styrofoan, cellophane, aluminum, and cigarette butts. If in doubt about what is recyclable, call Mr. Allen at 584-3040 or discard. Before discarding substantial amounts of paper for lack of transportation, call Mark Segal at 253-2663.

For more information call either Segal or Eva Schiffer at 545-0324 or 256-6057.

WMUA Folk Festival

The blues of Frank Clark will be featured on tonight's folk program along with any other type of folk music he or the disc jockey feel like playing at the time. The Folk Festival is on the air every other Tuesday from 7:30 'til 9 and airs all types of traditional and comtemporary, recorded and live folk music. Interested listeners should tune in to 91.1FM and potential performers should write to the Folk Festival.

St. Francis had a dream...

He dreamed that

He could be an instrument of God's peace
Where there was hatred he could sow love
Where there was injury, pardon
Where there was doubt, faith
Where there was despair, hope
Where there was darkness, light
Where there was sadness, joy.

The Franciscans still follow his simple, challenging way.

If you are interested in learning more about the Franciscan brothers and priests write to:

Fr. John M. Felice, O.F.M.
The Franciscans
135 W. 31st Street
New York, N.Y. 10001

AMERICAN SKIER DISCOVERS CANADA.

He just didn't know that Canada has over fifty major ski areas. With some of the most spectacular runs in North America. Great facilities. Fabulous accommodation.

He also learned there's only one thing better than skiing in Canada. Après ski.

Want a new scene? New challenges? New pleasures? Bring your boards to Canada. For a weekend. A week. Or longer.

It's just up the road.

Want more info? We'll get it to you fast.

Canadian Government Travel Bureau, 150 Kent Street, Ottawa 4, Ontario, Canada

VACATION NATION canada

17 0218-03-1

Please send the free "Ski Canada" kit to:

Mr./Mrs./Miss

Address Apt. No.

City

State Zip Code

Group Forms To Deal With America's Hunger Crises

Seven students at UMass have formed a group whose purpose is "to create awareness of the present hunger crisis in America."

The group, called the Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, is headed by Ann Nichols, a junior Spanish major living in Emerson House.

In a letter sent out on Monday to some 800 undergraduates in the biological and social sciences, the Committee declared that "an estimated 6 million children go to bed hungry each night" in the United States, and that "perhaps 1 million hungry children suffer from infestation by round worms and whip worms." Such discoveries, the letter continued, "are startling and shameful in the world's richest nation, which boasts a gross nationa product greater than one trillion dollars."

The letter urged students to "share your individual expertise" in working with the Committee on hunger-related research, whose findings will be mass-distributed on the 19,000-student campus. Since early December, the Committee has been raising funds on behalf of a severely-impoverished community of Blacks and Indians in Dorchester County, South Carolina.

In future months, the Committee will sponsor films, radio programs, and lectures on such diverse subjects as welfare, protein deficiency, and birth control. One major aim of the Committee is to accumulate a qualitative collection of reference materials on hunger and related problems of the poor. These library resources will be made available to any interested persons who want to use them.

According to Ken Mosakowski, a graduate student in education who is serving as the group's publicity director, the Committee takes its name from the U.S. Senate Select Committee, headed by Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, has been conducting extensive hearings on hunger in America.

Other membes of the student group are Arlen Brunson, '73 (treasurer); Janice Herlihy, '73; Paul A Pavelcsyk, '72; Sally Schmidt, '71 (secretary); and Judith Tripp, '72.

The UMass Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs is presently operating out of the Community Action Foundation office, Room 104, in the Campus Center. Further information may be obtained by calling 545-0575 between 10 A.M. and 12 Noon any weekday.

Notices

[illegible] meeting at Dickenson by 7 p.m. [illegible] party will be held. Let's give a [illegible]

[illegible] meeting at 7:30pm in Room 162 of [illegible] will be showing slides on [illegible] and New Zealand

[illegible] NES
Coordinating Committee meeting tonight at 5:15 p.m. in Rm 177 C.C. All interested people should attend

SENATE ACADEMIC AFFAIRS
Academic Affairs Committee tonight at 6 p.m. in Rm 172 of the C.C. Topic: Grading - please attend

SKI CLUB
Okemo trip Sat. Feb. 27th the Ski Club will run a trip to Okemo, Vermont. For members free bus transportation. Contact Chris Graham 101 Hamlin, 5-0792 or bring yourself to RSO Office Wed. betw. 11:30-4 p.m.

The free bus for members to Mt. Tom tonight will leave Hasbrouck by 6 p.m. & will leave Prince House by 8:15 p.m. Bring I.D.'s and membership cards to get benefits.

TAU BETA SIGMA
Meeting Wed. Feb. 24th at 7 p.m. in the Old Chapel. Please be there on time-short meeting.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN
Are you interested in serving your campus and community? It's not too late to join the Mortar Board Senior Co-ed Honorary at Gamma Sigma Sigma. Any interested girls please call Jean at 546-[illegible]

LOST
Lost a pair of brown rimmed glasses near Library. Contact Greg 546-7587

[illegible] cameo earring was lost anywhere betw. Bowker Aud. & the C.C. Sat. night Feb. 20th. Please contact Bette 6-7447.

Lost my watch, silver oval-shaped and bracelet band. Somewhere near the Hill and Quad. Call Carey at 6-7151.

FOUND
Set of VW keys were found at Sat.'s Sock Hop. Also found was a pair of prescription glasses, various gloves & hats. Claim at S.U. Lobby Desk.

A pair of brown rimmed glasses and keys were found at Hills North Party Saturday night. Call 546-9316 ask for Mike or Paul.

[illegible] meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in the [illegible] Room 911, 915 of the [illegible]

[illegible] CLUB
[illegible] at 8:15 in the C.C. Complete [illegible] old and new people

[illegible] CLUB
[illegible] Feb. 24th at 6:45 p.m. [illegible] uniforms

[illegible] DEVELOPMENT & HUMAN [illegible]
[illegible] follow up groups [illegible] & Avid at van Meter are [illegible] tonight at 9 p.m. Please come

[illegible] Hockey vs. OWL
[illegible] be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the [illegible] tickets from the Psych Office.

[illegible] meeting & suggestions to the [illegible] All undergrads are [illegible] attend to discuss new goals & other [illegible] tonight at 7:30 p.m. 1st floor [illegible] Office. It's your [illegible] don't, quit, wait, or read the Acord.

[illegible] Lost
[illegible] Lost a pair of brown rimmed glasses between [illegible] Monday. If found please call [illegible] Reward.

[illegible] Found
[illegible] pocketbook found in the [illegible] Monday. Identify contents. Call [illegible] 253-2511 CC

[illegible] SQUARE DANCE CLUB
[illegible] dance will be held in the [illegible] tonight at 7:30 p.m. for beginners [illegible] 7:30 p.m. and Club level [illegible] 8 p.m.

[illegible]
[illegible] taking reservations for this [illegible] dinner. Sign up in the Hotel [illegible] today or tomorrow 11-4

MATHEMATICS MAJORS
This week's talk is CALCULUS WITHOUT ARCHIMEDES. THE CALCULUS STUDENT'S DREAM COME TRUE! by Prof. Edward Connors. Feb. 23rd at 4 p.m. in the Colloquium Rm. Arnold House. Coffee at 3:30 p.m.

Do Your Own Thing Now!

We're seeking graduates with majors in: Business Administration / Economics / Psychology / Mathematics / Liberal Arts / Marketing / Architectural Design / Mechanical Engineering / Personnel Administration / Accounting / Computer Sciences / Food and Hotel Management / Traffic and Transportation Management / Management Engineering / and Industrial Engineering

We want idea-people to turn us on in the following fields:

- RETAILING
- BUYING
- ACCOUNTING
- AUDITING
- ARCHITECTURE
- MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
- MERCHANDISING
- PERSONNEL
- FOOD MANAGEMENT
- VENDING
- SYSTEMS ANALYSIS
- COMPUTER PROGRAMMING
- PERSONAL SERVICES
- MANAGEMENT ENGINEERING
- WAREHOUSING & TRANSPORTATION

Ideas and people make our business. We're in the retailing, food and personal services business. And YOUR IDEAS can help us do a better job.

Here's where YOU come in. We're changing. And growing. And we're looking for bright young people who can help us make our changes work. YOU are one of the new-idea people we're looking for.

HERE'S OUR OFFER: You can start out in management right now. You make good money. You put your own ideas to work and evaluate the results. You move up fast. You work almost anywhere in the world, with opportunity to travel. You're a big part of our operation. And you accomplish whatever your talents lead you to work toward. That's it.

YOU have the opportunity. We have openings. Let's get together and see if our ideas are in the same bag.

Our representatives will be on campus soon. See your placement director and sign up for an interview NOW!

WE'LL BE INTERVIEWING:
MARCH 5, 1971

If you can't make our scheduled interview date, don't sweat it. Write us direct and find out if our ideas are in the same bag. Write to:

COLLEGE RELATIONS MANAGER
DEPT. NP

ARMY & AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE

THE PX-BX SYSTEM
3911 WALTON WALKER BLVD DALLAS, TEXAS 75222
Equal Opportunity Employer

Rt. 9 Hadley

THE JOLLY BULL RESTAURANT

LUNCHEON
COCKTAILS - DINNER
LUNCH
Mon. - Fri. 11:30 - 2:30
DINNER
Mon. - Sat. 5 - 10 Sun. 12 - 8
NEVER ON TUESDAYS
Reservations Recommended
584-2769

LIVE MUSIC & SONG
IN THE OYSTER BAR
WED. & THURS.
Bob Ackermann
singing ragtime
FRI. & SAT.
Norrine Jacobus &
Cliff Simons
singing variety & requests

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, FE, Astog, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Voki falo skis w/Tyrolia step-in bindings, $40; Ricker 5 buckle boots 10W $20; together $50. Call 5-7418 Dave In 129. tf2-23

Skis for sale — Spaldinx 210 cm Epoxy skis, new, never used, original cost $180. Will sell for best offer. Call 253-7700. 2-22

Double breasted Edwardian Jacket, navy blue, size 37, ex. cond., $-0832 tf2-21

Guitars: Acoustic, Electric, Classical. Below retail. $50 and up, most son New and used. Also: 2 new stud snow tires, sonzil $60, orig. $90; 16 ml only. On campus call: 546-7052 or 546-6714 2-23

1970 Boss Mustang, yellow with black stripes, 11,000 miles, excellent cond. $1200 New, best offer Call 586-2563 tf2-20

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitehall Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf5-18

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1967 VW Imported model, fastback style, exc. cond. Best offer. Call 584-3878 tf2-23

1969 Camaro 307 V8 auto., excellent cond. Call Leo after 6, 253-9954 tf2-23

'68 VW, excell. cond., 36,000 mi. under coating, w/walls, AM-FM-SW radio, asking $1400, nee. Call Dave 256-8779 tf2-23

Must sell '62 Olds — can't afford to pay insurance. Good condition, 4 new tires, small dent in side. Sell for $100 or best offer. Call 549-3916 after 5 p.m. tf2-23

Firebird custom '67 air conditioning, automatic, vinyl top, mags, very good condition. Call 549-3931 after 5 p.m. 2-23

61 VW $400 or best offer. Bob 586-0746 after 5. tf2-23

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6718 after 6 p.m. tf2-23

Wanted — 2 male roommates, furnished apt. in Hadley $50 month, avail. March 1. 584-7718. tf2-23

Male roommate, own bedroom, approx. $75 a mo. Sunderland, just off Rt. 116. Call Brad 665-3755. tf2-23

Want grad student to share house with three other people in Florence (Northampton). Quiet, in country, but near UMass. $50 month, plus utilities. 584-9285. tf2-23

Female roommate wanted to clean apt. for 5 senior men. Rent minimal for cleaning function. Call 549-6613 tf2-23

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst. 253-3148. tf3-18

WANTED

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded, free estimates on collections. Bob Murrin, 406 Chadbourne or P.O. Box 104, Amherst. tf2-26

Sitter wanted for one year old child, my house, 5 hrs. day, $. Amherst. Call 253-7187. tf2-23

TO SUBLET

To sublet: one bedroom apt., with separated kitchen and bathroom, $156 mo. (heat, utilities and air cond.) available 1 March. Call 549-6844 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

LOST

One gold ring, small onyx and diamond stones in star-like formation, great personal value. Reward. Call 549-3507 nights. tf2-24

ROOM TO RENT

One room available, living with four others in house in Belchertown. Rent $37.50/person plus utilities. Come see Hilda, Goodell Library, between 1 and 2. Spring is going to be beautiful. tf2-23

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

HELP WANTED

Student or student couple to help with care of 2 girls, 7 and 4, room and board. Call 5-6148 days, 665-9867 eves. tf2-23

Wanted immed.: 1 woman livein, infant care, sewing, etc., 15 hours per week, apartment-like accommodations, 2 miles from campus. Call 549-1112. tf3-1

BUS TICKETS GW-UM

Tickets on the Student Senate charter bus to the George Washington game at Madison Sq. Garden are available at Student Union Ticket Office. Deadline noon Thursday. tf2-25

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

Girl in dorm single want to move out? Univ refund ripoff traps you? I'll take them and pay you for rest of semester. You don't lose anything. Call 581-8350. tf2-20

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NORSAIR in spring from $99 and EUROPE in summer from $195. For details call: Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963. tf2-20

PERSONAL

Helen for 50c is the best peace on campus! 2-23

ROOM WANTED

Student desires own room in apartment. Will pay $75 or so per mo. Phone 323-5939 after 5:30 p.m. tf3-21

Redman Gymnasts Sink Navy

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

By downing Navy, 153.25-148.00, on Saturday, the UMass varsity gymnasts upped their record to 5-2. The Redmen, who travelled to the Naval Academy without several of their top performers, were encouraged by the win as they prepare to meet Temple University in a big meet this Saturday night.

The Redmen found themselves on top of a 25.90-23.85 score after the first event, floor exercise, and maintained their lead throughout the meet. UMass' Jack Berner, enjoying his finest score of the season, topped all performers with a score of 8.95 to take first place. John Calabria, despite a heavy cold, scored an 8.55, which netted him third place. Navy's high scorer, Hess, took second place with an 8.8.

Sophomore Eric Dawson of Navy won top honors on sidehorse with a 9.3, high score of the meet. UMass' top sidehorse man, Rick Riley, turned in another fine performance as his 9.15 took second place. While Navy's Lanzer took third with an 8.45, UMass was able to win the event total on the strength of two solid routines by Norm Vexler and John Walsh, both of whom had 8.25 scores.

Vexler turned in his usual outstanding ring routine to win the event with a 9.0. Oswald of Navy placed second with an 8.8, while Danny Spier of UMass was third with an 8.4. The Redmen outscored the Midshipmen in the event, 25.75-25.40, to take a strong halftime lead, 77.30-73.85.

The Redmen opened up the second half by winning the vaulting event by .2 of a point. Freshman Jay Thomsen, who has been an outstanding competitor for the varsity, took another first with a vault of 9.15. Walsh, in his first appearance as a Redman vaulter, turned in an 8.8, to tie Navy's Heller for third. Second place went to Oswald of Navy, who had an 8.9.

Navy took the top two spots in parallel bars competition as they won the event total, 25.65-25.40. Harding and Oswald were first and second with respective scores of 9.2 and 9.0. Vexler was high scorer for the Redmen as his 8.8 effort netted him third place. Doug Salisbury, in his second appearance for the Redmen this season, turned in one of his two eight-plus routines of the afternoon, as he scored an 8.3 on parallel bars.

UMass easily won the high bar event, as Vacca took first with an 8.4, and Salisbury places second with an 8.1. Salisbury became the first Redmen gymnast to use a double flyaway for a dismount, while Vacca used a double twisting flyaway. The Redmen won the event, 23.95-22.10, to bring the final score of the meet to 153.25-148.00, making another win for UMass.

Vacca of UMass won the all-around total with a score of 48.65, edging out second place teammate Vexler by .25 of a point. Spier of UMass was third with a 43.25 total.

The Redmen close out their dual meet season this Saturday, when they host Temple University. Temple, last year's league representative to the National Championships, started a bit slowly this year, but have been improving very steadily. The Redmen will have to be at their best in order to topple Temple. The meet, which will begin at 7:30, will be held in the Cage.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aquarians often have elongated faces, they usually are considered "far out" and almost always have ideas which run contrary to opinions of the majority. These persons harmonize with Gemini, Libra and Sagittarius. Despite popular belief, Aquarius and Aries do not make the best match. Some famous Aquarians include Joey Bishop, Norman Mailer and Lana Turner.

• • •

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Accent on creativity, romance, ability to earn confidence of friends in general and public in particular. Means this is day when popularity rating could soar. Take advantage of it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You love a challenge. Now you receive one. Accent on ambitions, career, the way you handle opposition. Friction works to your advantage. Maintain sense of humor and fitness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good lunar aspect coincides with journeys, higher education, ability to learn from experience. Don't be ashamed of concern with abstract. You have a right to experience your own thing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) What may appear a setback could boomerang in your favor. Money is involved. Estates, taxes, debts, payments are featured. Your intuition is valuable. Recognize and use it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lie low. Play waiting game. Do more listening than talking. Get expert legal advice and heed it. Be aware of public reactions. Avoid trying to do too much at once. Take your time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Practical issues dominate. Stop making excuses. Keep appointments, get down to basic issues. Attend to details. Build springboard for leap into progress. You can do it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Creative approach will work. Means don't follow mob concepts. Be yourself. Take a chance on your own abilities, uniqueness. Some pressure is relieved. There is greater freedom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) One within family circle may have answer to dilemma. Admit it. Don't permit pride to mar progress. Build on solid structure. Avoid being overly sophisticated. Message will be clear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) More activity than usual that is featured. You also tend to skip essentials. Stop trying to wish things into realities. Strive now to nail down basic concepts, needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You get money from unexpected sources. Means surprise element is very much in picture. Know that you have product of worth. Key to success now is ability to exude confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You gain through independence, originality, appeals to styles, willingness to be daring in pursuits. Heed your own counsel. Lead rather than follow. Set pace, take initiative.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Study. Aquarius message. Have confidence in ability to make important judgment. Refuse to be discouraged by associate who broods, is tearful. Keep a secret. You are being tested.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, intuitive, dynamic in sense that you draw to you people who wish to feed spark of life. Many use you. Some envy you. Not a few love you. Your own emotions, during some of this year, are confused. A relationship may be ending. Be strong. What happens now happens for your best interests.

THE PIZZA INN is in town!

(At the old Amherst Creamery)

173 Sunset Ave.

Opening Week Special:

Try Our Famous

PIZZA

at 20¢ off

with coupon below.

STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.

PIZZA INN
SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
20¢ OFF
The price of any PIZZA
with this coupon

Girls Track Club

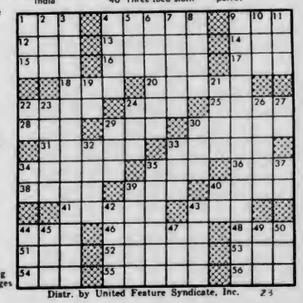
The fog engulfed our valley this morning. I ran through it and by 11 had blown it away. Mornings are good times to run. Any time is a good time to run be it alone or with a friend. Latching on to the peacefulness of the Connecticut Valley, pounding one foot in front of the other to the rhythm of your own heartbeat. The valley becomes your prison or paradise with mountains as walls to scale. Warner, Sugarloaf, Toby, the Holyoke Range. Almost begging to be conquered, trampled on, run over and then left undamaged to re-echo your footsteps.

I started running a few years ago, off and on because it felt good and because it hurt or because it felt good. Since that time the first girls' track club in Massachusetts has been organized, the Liberty A.C. in Boston which is presently holding five American Athletic Union Awards.

I see the possibilities of a similar program here at UMass where girls can get together and run. A club minus bureaucracy, minus the usual coach-team athletic situation pattern that bogs down so many people who can train and discipline themselves. In a while we will be seeing throughout New England an active cross country schedule, year round open road racing for women, indoor and outdoor programs, weekly competition and training programs.

Whether you are a card-carrying member of the A.A.U., a serious athlete, a run for fun and enlightened person, coach, organizer or prosetylizer, whatever, running offers its rewards to all. Do it.

For more talk and information call me at 6-7415. Lynn Derderian.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Vehicle
4 Bravery
9 Take unlawfully
12 Poem
13 Puff up
14 Before
15 Moccasin
16 Rages
17 Golf mound
18 Man's name
20 Hinder
22 Mix
24 Weight of India
25 Bushy clumps
28 Goal
29 Brick-carrying device
30 Reasoning
31 Nips
33 Style of painting
34 Singing voice
35 Small lump
36 Et cetera (abbr.)
38 Sea in Asia
39 Obtain
40 The caama
41 Article of furniture
43 Pronoun
44 Siamese native
46 Cowboy competition
48 Writing fluid
51 The self
52 Declares
53 Contend
54 Lair
55 Brief
56 Greek letter

DOWN
1 Po. eman (slang)
2 Girl's name
3 Act of making countercharges
4 Extremely
5 A state (abbr.)
6 Alit
7 Aquatic mammal
8 Remainder
9 Moving backward
10 Native metal
11 Insect
19 Conjunction
21 Short jacket
22 A continent (abbr.)
23 River in Italy
24 Distress signal
26 Eats to get thin or fat
27 A state (abbr.)
29 Pronoun
30 Conducted
32 Weight of India
33 Ship channel
34 Symbol for tantalum
35 Garden tool
37 Symbol for cerium
39 Hand warmer
40 Three toed sloth
42 Unruly child
43 Stockings
44 Spread for drying
45 Mature
47 Bitter vetch
49 Insect egg
50 New Zealand parrot

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

LAW PM STELE
AVENUE TIRADE
GO ATE LEER OIL
IF STEP SETA
ODIN STEM LET ESTER SNOB DE
SAID DOOM
TE TORT TAILS
ORE FOKE TROT
TOTS PILE EA
ED HOPPERS DO
SERENE MOORED
SIDED IS ADD

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Erving Leads Rout Of Orangemen

Continued from Page 1

To complete the all-star supporting cast, Tom McLaughlin had six points and six rebounds in only 23 minutes of action. Rick Vogeley and Chris Coffin also helped up front with Vogeley getting a key tap in the late going and Coffin making some spectacular defensive plays.

UMass was unable to open up any breathing room for the first 32 minutes of play. In the first half neither team was able to open up a margin of more than six points, with the Redmen leading twice by that count, 26-20 and 28-22. The Orangemen came storming back, though, and actually went ahead by three, 33-30, on a Smith layup at 2:34 f the period.

The Redmen then scored three straight hoops on an Erving tap, a Mathias layup, and a Betancourt jumper from Pagliara to open up a three point margin, 36-33, with seconds left in the stanza. Smith, however, snuck in for a layup and UMass took a precarious one point edge into the dressing room.

The second half was more of the same. UMass would open up leads of six or seven points only to see the determined Orangemen come storming back.

Daily Collegian
Sports
VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 92
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1971

The Redmen finally took the lead to stay at 17:15 on a fifteen footer by Mathias which was the beginning of an eight point Redman streak. Mathias followed with a bank shot, Erving hit three free throws and Betancourt one to put UMass on top, 50-43, with 15:12 left.

Syracuse began to charge once again, nipping the lead to one, 53-52, but the Redmen responded with six straight points, the highlight of which was Vogeley's tap. From then on, the Orangemen could get no closer than four and when Smith fouled out with 5:08 to go, it was 75-62 and UMass was just about home free. It was all in all a great night for the three seniors Bob Dempsey, Bill Greeley, and Mathias to go out at the Cage. But hopefully, these three still have a lot of Redmen basketball to play before their careers end.

LAYUP LINES-UMass hit 49% of its field goal attempts while the Orangemen only scored on 38%...The win had to boast UMass post-season tournament stock immensely as the Orangemen own wins over Lafayette, LaSalle and St. John's...Mathias, Greeley and Dempsey all received standing ovations when they left the game...The crowd chanted, "NIT, NIT, NIT" for the final minutes of the game.

BOX SCORE

UMass	G	F	T	Syracuse	G	F	T
Erving	12	12	36	Lee	3	4	10
McLaughlin	3	0	6	Wadach	2	1	5
Mathias	4	5	13	Smith	6	2	14
Betancourt	7	3	17	Green	4	0	8
Pagliara	3	1	47	Kohls	5	8	18
Vogeley	2	0	4	Piotrski	4	1	9
Dempsey	0	1	1	Barnetomew	0	0	0
Coffin	0	1	1	Wichman	2	3	7
Greeley	0	1	1		26	19	71
Peters	0	0	0
Austin	0	0	0
Nichols	0	0	0
Provo	0	0	0
	31	24	86

ONE WILSONBURGER-Playing in his last game at Curry Hicks Cage, Ken Mathias turned in a brilliant two-way performance including this blocking of a shot taken by Syracuse's Mark Wadach. (MDC photo by Gary Slickman.)

Fr. Hoopmen Top New Haven, 80-70

By STEVE FERBER
MDC Staff

In what was one of their more blase victories, the UMass freshmen basketball team gained a perfect record at home of 13-0 in defeating the New Haven frosh last night 80-70.

Last night's Cage finale saw Al Skinner and Peter Trow lead the Little Redmen with 28 and 23 points respectively, as Rich Pitino showed more of his pin-point passing as he chipped in with 14 assists.

Minutes into the contest UMass pulled out to an 11-3 lead, and it looked like another Little Redman romp was about to evolve. But New Haven came right back, and as fast as the Redmen had built their lead, it evaporated, and the 11-11 tie at 14:06 was more than typical of the tightness of the game.

Despite their height advantage of nearly two inches per man, the Little Redmen's cold shooting kept them from breaking out. New Haven was doing an exceptional job boxing out under its boards, and for the first 15 minutes of the first half, the home club got only 2 offensive rebounds.

With the score knotted mid-way in the first half, Skinner put one of his crowd-pleasing moves on a New Haven forward and broke an 18-18 tie. The Little Redmen showed more signs of opening the game up, but New Haven hung close, and at the half the UMass freshmen were up by four 39-35.

Half number two began much like the first, with Trow and Skinner scoring quickly. Five minutes into the half the Little Redman lead peaked as a result of three consecutive Pitino passes, off of fast breaks. First to Trow in the corner, then to Skinner, and the lead was 53-42. A pass underneath to Art Levine upped it to 57-42, but that was as wide a margin that UMass was to enjoy, as New Haven came back, but too late, with too little.

Foul trouble, a missing element in the freshmen's latest contests, became a problem. With 5:52 to go the lead was a mere 66-59, when Levine put the game on ice. First he tipped one it, and seconds later duplicated his feat for a quick four points. Levine was hot and gathering in a Pitino scoop pass he drove hoopward and laid it in. The 74-61 lead was too much for New Haven to overcome, and the Little Redmen stretched their stretched their win streak out to nine.

ONE AND ONE....For the first time in a long time the Little Redmen shot under 50% from the field, shooting 34 for 74....Skinner shot 12 for 18 for the night, and Trow chipped in with 11 for 22.... The Little Redmen stand at 17-1 and have one game left at Amherst....The game did not exhibit the consistent high quality of play that has made the Little Redmen the top freshmen team in New England. But as always they had it when they needed it.

Grapplers Pin UNH For Seventh Straight

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

The UMass wrestling team, after seeing a fourteen point lead dwindle to one, finished strongly to defeat a tough UNH team on Saturday by a score of 25-13. The win was the seventh in a row for the surging Redmen and brought their seasonal dual meet record to 12-3-1. For the Wildcats it was their third straight defeat after opening the season with six straight victories.

The meet could actually have been divided into three sub meets as it turned out. The Redmen lightweights won the first four matches to take a 14-0 lead and it looked like a rout. But UNH's middleweights came right back and won the next three bouts, two by pins, to narrow the margin to 14-13. But UMass's heavyweights ended any doubts that coach Homer Barr had as they won the last three matches convincingly and made the final score a little more one-sided than the meet really was.

UNH didn't score a point in the first three bouts as Dave Amato, Dave Reynolds and Shelly Goldberg completely whitewashed the opposition. Amato won 9-0 with four minutes riding time, Reynolds was leading 2-0 when he pinned his man after only 49 seconds, and Goldberg amassed a phenomenal seven minutes and twenty seconds riding time in an 11-0 rout. The win was Goldberg's thirteenth lead to 14-0 with a come from behind win in the 142 lb. match. Jester trailed 3-2 after two periods but rallied with a five point third period for a 7-3 win.

At this point UNH began its comeback. Charlie Bauer won the 150 lb. bout, 9-5, to put UNH on the board. This was followed by consecutive pins by Don Stahlman and Larry Woods and the Wildcats picked up ten quick points. Stahlman is one of the best in New England at 158 and will probably be seeded highly in the New England tourney.

With the prospect of having to win to get the Redmen out of trouble, sophomore Ed Carlsson took the mats and did just that. He won a tough 9-3 decision in his 177 lb. bout to put the Redmen ahead the meet with a 12-4 win at 190. Zguris is now 10-0 for the season year. Carl Dambman wrapped things up with a pin in the heavyweight match and sent the Wildcats back to Durham with their third straight setback.

The Redmen have four dual meets left and have a chance to top their record 16-4 season of a year ago. Boston College and MIT shouldn't pose much of a problem, but WPI and Central Conn. have good teams and should provide the Redmen with some still competition.

Coed Hoopsters 2nd In Tourney

By SHARON MILES
MDC Staff

The Women's Varsity basketball team took second place in the President's Tournament last weekend at Southern Conn. State College.

In the first game, UMass defeated Bridgewater State 53-43 to avenge a 27 point drubbing earlier in the season. The first quarter ended with BS on top 15-6, but in the second period UMass surged back into the game behind the sharp shooting of Nancy Lindberg who eventually scored 21 points, and at the half it was UMass 22, BS 19.

The second half saw UMass substantially increase its score. The lead never changed hands and UMass finished up by ten.

Miss Lindberg was the game's high scorer. Timely rebounding by Pat Bash and Leslie Barselaar deserves special mention. The shooting percentage for UMass was 41% while BS was held to 31%.

The championship game pitted UMass against Southern Conn. State. In the first quarter Both teams played on a par, with Southern taking a one point lead into the second period. In the second, Southern broke the game wide open hitting at 55% from the floor while UMass was stumbling along at a lowly 20%. The game was all over by Orange Break, Southern on top 27-15. Going into the fourth quarter SC had a 21 point spread over UMass, and at the final buzzer the score was 50-37.

Miss Lindberg again led her teammates in scoring with 16 points, and this time led in rebounds as well. She and Miss Barselaar were named to the All Tournament Team.

The JV team bowed to Mt. Holyoke varsity on Tuesday, 33-22. Holyoke jumped off to an early lead and held on all the way.

For UMass high scorer was Pat Harvey. Kathy Crowley and Sue Tyler shared rebounding honors.

The next varsity game is at home tonight vs. Greenfield. Tap off is at 6:30.

* * * * *

The UMass Women's Ski Team placed a solid second in competition with 9 teams at a WISC Conference Slalom Sat. Feb. 13 at Wildcat Mountain, N.H.

The combined top three times for the two run event were: Radcliffe, 3.52.6; UMass, 4.12.1; UNH, 4.27.5.

Top individual honors for UMass were earned by Heather MacConnel who placed second overall with a combined time of 75.1, and to Susan Arnold, sixth with a time of 85.0 despite an unfortunate spill.

Women's Intramurals

Basketball

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:00	Kangaroos vs. Patterson
2	6:30	Dickinson vs. Dwight
1	7:00	Foul Balls vs. Melville Troupe
2	7:00	Gummies vs. Lotta's Girls
1	7:30	Sleazebags vs. Gorman Pines
2	7:30	Pulfton vs. Mary's Lions
1	8:00	Patterson vs. Melville Troupe
2	8:00	Dwight vs. Lotta's Girls

Tonight's Intramurals

VOLLEYBALL

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
		POSITION ATHENIAN	3		5 vs. 6
1	6:30	1 vs. 2	4		Gapos vs. Gwimps
2		2 vs. 4	5		Aries vs. Turkeys
3		5 vs. 6	6		Friends vs. Erudites
		POSITION SPARTAN	7		Strangers vs. 3 M's
		1 vs. 2	8		DCD vs. Bekap
4		3 vs. 4	9		C.O. & Boys vs. JO ATG
5		5 vs. 6	1	8:30	Sigmas vs. Jacks
6		POSITION TROJAN	2		Boys vs. Erudites
		2 vs. 3	3		Heads vs. Frankster
7		4 vs. 5	4		Canaille vs. Oxfords
8		Eagles vs. Flaming A's	5		Hurts vs. Hockers
9		Maroons vs. Cans	6		Tubes vs. Bucks
10		POSITION PIONEER	1	9:30	Brigade vs. Redwoods
		1 vs. 2	2		Pipers vs. Hi-Lo's
1	7:30	3 vs. 4	3		Lemons vs. Oaks
2

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: It might snow. Then again, it may rain.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 93 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1971

THE JUDGE WON'T LISTEN - The San Francisco Mime Troupe portrays the trial of the Chicago 7, showing the problems of the Black Panther Party last night in the Campus Center. (MDC photo by Al Jagoda)

Hayden: Why Doesn't UMass Care?

By LEE THIBODEAU and CYNTHIA SWINDELL
MDC Staff

Raising support for Black Panther Party Members Bobby Steele and Ericka Huggins was the focus of the program presented by the Student Mobe last night at the Campus Center Auditorium.

The San Francisco Mime Troupe, with music, slow motion, and masks presented a play depicting the contemporary problems of the Black Panther Party. The presentation was followed by a mass discussion led by Tom Hayden, co-defendant of Bobby Seale in the Chicago Conspiracy Trial.

The Troupe, consisting of nine players, presented the play Seize the Time. The sources used in writing the play were entirely from historical documents, principally from Bobby Seale's book of the same name, the actual transcript of the Chicago Conspiracy Trial, and the story of Ericka Huggins.

The actual drama consisted of a re-enactment of several incidents involving members of the Black Panther Party, including the arrest of Huey P. Newton and the trial of Bobby Seale.

Emphasized by the troupe in an introduction to the play was the statement "the right of black men to defend themselves is a federal law.... If anybody attacks us, we defend ourselves - that is the principal of our Party."

The play ended with a silent request, conveyed on a printed scroll, in which the players asked for the aid of students in the struggle of the Black Panther Party.

Immediately following, the troupe circulated through the audience collecting money for the support of the Bobby Seale trial.

Following the play, Tom Hayden began his discussion by citing last spring's strike at UMass and asked the students to explain "the present disinterest and coolness at this school." Students responded with their opinions of the ineffectiveness of the strike and the inability of the anti-war movement to interest broader groups of people. One student announced that there is planned an April 24 demonstration in Washington at which it is hoped that a wide variety of people will participate.

At this point Hayden pointed out that while his purpose is to help and organize people against the war, his main objective is to "raise support for Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins. He further stated that due to "a broader base for ending war rather than ending rascism, it's much harder to get support for this issue. Hayden feels that "public pressure" is the element that produces "concrete results."

In order to build public pressure, Hayden announced that on March 13 in New Haven, a large rally will be held to enlist support for Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins, "this will be a good starting point to always make sure that there is someone at that trial every day from this school." Later Hayden stated that it was necessary that someone be present at the trial every day so that Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins know that they have the support.

Hayden emphasized the fact that it is imperative that the unknown people of the trial be made public. Such as George Edwards, Ralph Smith and Peggy Hutchinson.

TOM HAYDEN - Tom Hayden of the Chicago 7 asked why UMass is so disinterested and cool towards the anti-war movement. He was told that students thought the strike was ineffectual. (MDC photo by Al Jagoda)

2000 At D.C. Meeting

Anti-War Movement Grows

The Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Indochina held its annual national convention in Washington, D.C., this past weekend. It was attended by over two thousand antiwar activists from all over the United States, including thirty from the Five College area. Students from UMass, Mount Holyoke, and Amherst College were represented at the convention, which was held at Catholic University.

This conference of the national SMC was built as an emergency conference because of the recent escalation of the Indochina war by the Nixon administration in Laos and Cambodia. It was felt by nearly all participants that it is urgent that massive response to Nixon's war policy be organized, and that the work begin immediately. A determined optimism about the resurgence of the antiwar movement pervaded the gathering.

About twenty different resolutions were considered by the conference, the proposal written by Debbie Bustin and Dan Guerwitz (who spoke here at the University last week) received the overwhelming support of the participants. The Guerwitz-Bustin proposal reaffirms SMC's support for the April 24 March on Washington called by the National Peace Action Coalition last December. The April march is to be a peaceful, legal mass demonstration demanding the immediate, total, and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. military personnel and material from Indochina. Guerwitz and Bustin argued that the April demonstration was the kind of action in which people who had never before registered their opposition to the Indochina war could participate. It is around a mass demonstration, they said, that the antiwar movement could best organize the antiwar majority which now exists in the United States, especially those forces outside the campuses, such as trade unionists and GI's and veterans. In order to organize those forces against the war the SMC voted to continue its work in building local antiwar coalitions as well as the National Peace Action Coalition. In this way women's organizations, labor organizations, organizations of Third World People, students, Gay people, and antiwar GI's and veterans can be brought into unified action for the immediate withdrawal of American forces from Viet Nam and the rest of Indochina.

The conference voted to reaffirm its support for the work of the Chicano Moratorium Committee in the Southwest and to condemn the brutal police attacks against antiwar demonstrations called by the Chicano Moratorium. The Third World workshop at the conference projected a Black Moratorium against the war to take place April 2-4, days set aside by NPAC for commemoration of the assassination of the civil rights and antiwar leader Martin Luther King. The conference voted to give its support to the Third World workshop proposal.

In addition, the conference voted to organize contingents of women, Black people, Latinos, GI's and veterans, and Gay people to the March on Washington. It was felt by the conference that the explosive new Gay Liberation Movement was a source of strength to the antiwar movement and should be brought into unified action around the immediate withdrawal demand.

March 15 was set aside by the SMC as a national day of demonstrations around the demand for an immediate end to the draft. The Selective Service Act is due to expire in June, and it was felt that March 15 would be the best date to register opposition to the draft, since it would undoubtedly be before the renewal of the Selective Service came before Congress for a vote.

Debbie Bustin was elected to replace Don Gurewitz as National Executive Secretary of SMC. Gurewitz was elected to fill the new position of National Field Secretary.

The National Conference of SMC ended with the kind of unity and optimism which has been missing from the antiwar movement since the May strike. The participants returned to their local areas ready to take on the hard work of organizing a massive Spring Offensive against the Indochina War, and ready to recreate the antiwar unity of the 1969 Moratorium.

Feminist-Activist Lectures Here Tonight

Tonight, the Young Socialist Alliance will present in their Militant Forum a lecture discussion titled: Is Feminism Revolutionary? at 8 P.M. in Room 905 of the Campus Center.

Linda Jeness, a militant feminist and activist, will be the guest speaker. Jeness ran for mayor of Atlanta in 1969 on the SWP ticket, and ran in 1970 for governor of Georgia.

A member of the Socialist Workers Party, Linda Jeness appealed last year to the Supreme Court for a review of undemocratic election laws in Georgia. She has also written articles to compliment speeches of Fidel Castro, in the pamphlet "Women and the Cuban Revolution."

Linda Jenness

The Y.S.A. states that "the struggle for the Liberation of Women is by its very nature one of the foremost radical and revolutionary movements taking place today. The potential of the Women's Liberation movement is enormous: it attacks the fundamental roots of our class society, the nuclear family, the social role of women, restricted labor and employment practices, and the traditions of education".

Literature by Linda Jenness and other revolutionary reading will be available.

trancendental meditation

as taught by

MAHARISHI MAHESH YOGI

Transcendental meditation is a natural spontaneous technique which allows each individual to expand his conscious mind and improve all aspects of life.

1st Introductory Lecture

UMass — Feb. 24th and 25th

SBA 120

2nd Introductory Lecture

Smith College Library — Browsing Room

Friday, Feb. 26th — 8 P.M.

GIVE YOUR PAPER A PROFESSIONAL LOOK WITH A

THESIS BINDER

FROM

A. J. HASTING

Newsdealer & Stationer

45 South Pleasant St.

Amherst

OPEN RUSH

Lambda Chi Alpha

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24

8:00

Informal

TONIGHT

D. J.

IS AT

TEP

The Panhellenic Council invites the campus and community to

A NIGHT OF DRAMATIC PRESENTATIONS

Wednesday, Feb. 24th — 7 P.M.

Campus Center Auditorium — Free of charge

TONIGHT

Wednesday Night Coffee House

moved to

The Blue Wall Cafeteria

2nd floor, Campus Center

Same Menu and Prices

Same entertainment

MORE ROOM!

Ed is still looking for new talent

Contact him at 549-1418 between 4 and 7 pm

MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5

Showcase Cinemas, #213

RIVERDALE RD., W. SPFLD.

ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING

WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS

GROUP RATES AVAILABLE

3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS THE WILD COUNTRY G Wed. - Sun. 2-4:30-7:00-9:30 Mon. & Tues. 2-7-9:00

2 LOVE STORY IS SURELY ONE OF THE BEST FILMS IN YEARS DON'T MISS IT!- Joseph Gelmis Newsday "A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." -Sam Hoffman Sphd. Daily News LOVE STORY GP TODAY 2:00, 3:45 5:30, 7:30 9:40 Ali MacGraw Ryan O'Neal

1 DOCTORS' WIVES R DYAN CANNON RICHARD CRENNA Mon. - Fri. 2:00 - 7:00 - 9:30 Sat. & Sun. 1:30 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:30

WE HONOR master charge

CALL 413-733-5131

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports) and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst. the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods. three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Trustees Appoint Three Positions

By MARK SILVERMAN
MDC Staff

The Board of Trustees will give final approval to appointments for three top positions in the University's new administrative reorganization scheme at its meeting in Boston today, the Daily Collegian learned last night.

Jeremiah M. Allen, currently acting Dean of Arts and Sciences, will be named Dean of Humanities; Dean Alphange, now a professor of Government, will become Dean of Social Sciences; and Associate Provost Robert Gluckstern will be named Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs.

All three appointments were recommended by separate student-faculty-administration search committees, which have been in operation since last Spring.

Gluckstern, formerly head of the school's Chemistry department, has served as Provost since September, when he was promoted after a year's service as associate Provost.

His duties as Vice-Chancellor will correspond closely with those of his current position, but Gluckstern will now officially work on the highest administrative rung of the Amherst campus, responsible only and directly to Chancellor Tippo.

He will be the top administrator for all academic departments and personal on this campus, and his responsibilities in academics will resemble those of Vice-Chancellor Bromery's in Student Affairs.

Allen, formerly an associate Provost, has been acting Dean of Arts and Sciences for the past year. He took over when Dr. Seymour Shapiro left for a sabatical in the Netherlands.

His position was created last Spring when the Faculty Senate voted to split the Brobindingnagian College of Arts and Sciences into three smaller schools-Humanities, Social Sciences and Sciences. The Dean of each school will be on an administrative level with the other academic Deans, such as the Dean of the School of Education.

Alphange fills the second of these three Deanships. He is a Government professor, whose speciality is constitutional law, and has been involved in a number of student-faculty projects during the past several years.

The third position, Dean of Sciences, is still open and a committee of students, faculty and administrators are currently conducting a search for a person to fill it.

Sources close to several committee members said yesterday that Shapiro is a prime candidate for the job, providing that he does not wish to go back into the Botany department when he returns from his Sabatical this Spring. It is also known that Shapiro is the favorite candidate of Chancellor Tippo, as were the three men scheduled for Trustee approval today.

Copyright 1970, Northshield News, Inc.

Concert Committee Draws Guidelines

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Some thirty students attended an open meeting of people interested in working on the proposed free Spring concert, tentatively planned for April 24 and 25, last night in the RSO office of the Campus Center. It was decided a free concert committee will be formed to represent as much of the University as possible.

The free concert committee will consist of two members from the following campus groups: the Interim Coordinating Committee, consisting of the sixteen former class officers, the Fraternities and Sororities, each Residential College, the Community Assembly, and members of the Black Community.

This committee will oversee all funds and coordinate the entire weekend. It was expressed that they will pick musical groups who will best represent all members of the University community with this free concert.

The Interim Coordinating Committee, set up by the Student Senate, approved the Concert Committee plan. They voted Ed Dempsy and Dave Poisson as representative to the controlling group. Poisson felt the plan a good one for it represented every group's musical interests.

The ICC named Russell Vieira its chairman and set another meeting for next week. There it will be decided how much money the interim class government group will contribute to the weekend. They will also discuss definite reforms of class government.

A meeting was held later with various representatives of Fraternities and Sororities at which some ICC members explained the "pie proposal" for their approval. Hopefully all other campus groups concerned will be contacted and a meeting held before the week's end.

SWAP Follows Up Proposals

By JEFF THOMPSON
MDC Staff

Student Workshop on Activities Problems (SWAP) is in the process of making a follow up of the proposals made at the December SWAP Conference in South Lee, Dick Palomba, SWAP co-chairman, revealed yesterday.

The 170 purpose for an "in depth study of pertinent problems" will definitely be fulfilled as the expertise group leaders from the conference are now contacting the members of their committees in order to finalize the proposals.

These expertise groups are:

Freshmen summer counseling, teacher evaluation, academic calendars, and course loads, community education for the Puerto Rican ghetto in Springfield and Chicopee; also, the Belchertown State School, space for buses and cars, student affairs such as having students extra-curricular activities put on student's permanent records, role of trustees, security, and preserving an intellectual atmosphere.

These final proposals are submitted to the total university community for preliminary reaction. They will then go back to the expertise groups for further study. Finally they will go to the department being studied, to the Chancellor, and to both faculty and student senates.

"For example," explained Palomba, "in December two expertise groups drew up ten proposals for freshmen orientation. We will contact the counseling center for freshman orientation for their reactions. Later we will make a formal presentation to the center and the rest of the university."

The meetings for finalizing the formal proposals by including reactions and new ideas, will be held during the first week of March. Palomba stressed that these meetings "will be open to the entire University community so that everyone interested in any part of UMass will be able to contribute and become a member of these committees," said Palomba.

The reason for including the whole public was because at the SWAP conference there was only a small representation of the campus. This opening up will provide the opportunity for as many people as are interested to get involved.

After the committees make their final reports, Palomba said, "We want to bring a halt, put on the line, make reaction and solve age-old problems. By getting people interested we will force concrete action and changes."

Last year Project April 10, 11 was set up for the same purpose but of the many proposals, little resulted. SWAP's program is capitalizing on the experience by making definite committees and by including the whole university in an organized manner. It is the expressed purpose of SWAP "to exchange and promote ideas on all areas affecting UMass and to serve as a catalyst for future action and reform."

College Life Meets Again

Tonight at 8 p.m. there will be another "College Life" in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. Roe Brooks, director of the New England Area for Campus Crusade for Christ. "Will the Real Revolutionary Please Stand UP?" will be the challenge of Roe's talk.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742

10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Thursday, Feb. 25

MANDATORY

STATION MEETING

For ALL W M U A People

(Anyone is welcome, all are invited.)

SUMMER in EUROPE

From $195

sponsored by

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL

— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns	Wks.	Price
Boston/London/Boston	6/22	8/29	10	$209
Boston/London/Boston	6/11	9/5	12	$209
N.Y./London/N.Y.	6/29	7/30	4	$219
Boston/Frankfurt/Boston	6/11	8/10	8	$200
Boston/London/Boston	6/3	7/3	4	$195

Also Available: Eurail and Britrail passes, International Student I.D. Cards, Intra-Europe and Student Charter Flight Bookings, plus many more helpful services.

For Information call:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7863

SWIFT COIN OPERATED Dry Cleaning

6 lbs. for only $1.50
12 lbs. for only $2.50

In one 12 lb. load, for only 2.50, you can dry clean 10 skirts, or 15 sweaters, 2 blankets, or several small drapes.
Ready to wear in 25 minutes.

MINUTEMAN CLEANERS

(next to The Tower)

11 E PLEASANT STREET

In The Nation And The World

Ground War Slows in Laos

Heavier Air War in North

SAIGON (AP)-Fighting died down Tuesday in southern Laos as the U.S. Command announced it launched the heaviest air strikes in North Vietnam in three months.

The command said 50 U.S. fighter-bombers, accompanied by 20 support planes, attacked SAM missile sites and other antiaircraft positions in North Vietnam Saturday and Sunday. No planes were lost. Other sources said the planes also blasted at supply depots.

Word of the raids was withheld until Tuesday, a spokesman said, "mostly for security reasons." He gave no details on the results of the strikes. As for location, he said only that they were below the 19th Parallel, which is 120 mile south of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital. The raids were the heaviest over North Vietnam since 250 planes launched "protective reaction" strikes last Nov. 21.

The command said each day's strikes lasted about an hour.

"These protective reactions," a communique said, "were initiated after repeated hostile acts and recent SAM firings by antiaircraft positions against U.S. aircraft involved in interdiction of North Vietnamese supplies along the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos."

Radio Hanoi made no mention of a raid Saturday but said U.S. warplanes hit North Vietnam Wednesday and Sunday. It said the Foreign Ministry issued a statement "energetically condemning these acts of war."

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant repeated a statement he made Nov. 20 saying he found the "resumption of bombing in the North to be a disturbing development."

In Laos, no major new fighting was reported nor was there any report of progress by the 16,000 South Vietnamese troops who began the incursion Feb. 8.

A South Vietnamese spokesman insisted that the forces had no intension of moving farther into Laos than the 16 air miles he said they were now from the Vietnamese border. Other sources, however, said a drive farther west might be in the works.

In a rundown on the Laos operation, South Vietnamese headquarters listed 2,089 enemy troops killed, including about 500 by tactical air strikes and artillery. Government losses were put at 276 men. Some U.S. sources consider the command claims of enemy losses highly inflated.

For the first time, headquarters acknowledged severe losses among a ranger battalion whose hilltop position six miles inside Laos was overrun late last week. A communique said the battalion of perhaps 450 men lost 100 killed, 145 wounded and 78 missing.

The government summary of the operation to date said 1,259 individual and 209 crew served weapons have been captured in Laos. It said ground forces, artillery and air strikes also have destroyed 12 Russian-made PT76 tanks, 86 trucks, 400 bicycles, 550 houses, 139,000 gallons of fuel, 12,703 tons of munitions, 1,530 yards of pipeline and a "large quantity of food and other equipment."

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said in Washington that in addition to enemy resistance in Laos, he also expected "tough, difficult fighting" for the South Vietnamese in Cambodia in the next two weeks.

He mentioned the Chup Plantation, about 35 miles inside Cambodia, as a place where the North Vietnamese may make a stand. The South Vietnamese won control of the plantation but fighting has persisted around it for several weeks.

The fighting has picked up in eastern Cambodia recently, and the South Vietnamese headquarters reported 140 enemy troops killed in a battle Tuesday. South Vietnamese losses were given as four killed and 33 wounded.

Also lost Tuesday was one of South Vietnamese's best field commanders, Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri, 42. Tri and nine other men died when his helicopter crashed shortly after taking off from Tay Ninh, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. The other victims included a veteran correspondent for Newsweek magazine, Francois Sully, also 42.

Tri, a colorful combat commander, led the first South Vietnamese thrust into Cambodia last spring. He was setting out to inspect some of the 25,000 government troops taking part in operations in Cambodia when the helicopter crashed. Authorities said the helicopter apparently developed a fuel leak and burst into flames.

The Viet Cong claimed in a broadcast that they shot it down.

One of the sharpest attacks against U.S. forces in several months also took place early Tuesday in the Tay Ninh area.

U.S. Command splesmen said an estimated four companies

U.S. Command spokesmen said an estimated four companies of enemy troops, believed to number about 300 men, attacked an American artillery base.

After a mortar barrage, the enemy force launched a ground attack and some broke through the outer perimeter and blew up a fuel dump. Two Americans were killed and nine were wounded. Nine enemy bodies were found after the fight was over.

Other action reported by the Saigon command centered about 150 miles southwest of Saigon. Spokesmen said 58 enemies were killed there in two clashes, while government casualties were light.

Nixon Battles Wage Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon applied the leverage of billions of dollars in federal building contracts Tuesday rather than outright government controls in an emergency action against skyrocketing wages in the construction industry.

The President, acting after administration efforts failed to get the building trades unions to take voluntary measures, suspended provisions of the 40-year-old Davis-Bacon act that requires the government to pay prevailing wages on federal construction projects.

The act has had the effect of setting rates at the highest levels for both public and private building in the construction areas.

In a lengthy statement accompanied by an official proclamation of suspension, for an indefinite time, Nixon declared:

"The action I have taken today is based on the principle that government programs which contribute to excessive wage and price increases must be modified or rescinded in periods of inflation."

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson told reporters at the White House that about $25 billion worth of federal and federally assisted construction projects are affected.

Suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act is expected to result in shifting a large amount of federal construction to lower paid nonunion workers.

Although Nixon turned down the more drastic wage-price freeze he could have ordered, his action was the toughest so far in a newly adopted policy of intervening directly in the market to check inflationary wage and price movements.

Even so, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told Congress during the day that the administration would agree to extending the President's standby authority to impose temporary wage-price controls. This authority was set up almost a year ago by the Democratic-controlled Congress and never invoked by Nixon.

Connally, a Democrat himself, emphasized that no wage-price controls are needed now on industry generally.

Both Nixon and Hodgson emphasized that the building industry is afflicted by high and increasing wages, a high incidence of strikes and unemployment.

And under the Davis-Bacon law, Nixon said, employers are required to pass on to the government the cost of high local wage settlements with their inflationary effects.

"As construction costs go up, so does the price for buying or renting houses or apartments," Nixon said. "Because the entire economy is affected by rising construction costs, other prices are diven up also. The taxpayer bears a particularly heavy burden since the government spends to much for consturction."

Nixon's announcement drew predictably divided reaction from industry and labor leaders. Edward J. Carlough, head of the International Association of Sheetmetal Workers, said in Miami Beach that it is a "totally antilabor action" aimed at 3.5 million hard-hats.

Referring to the construction workers in the 17 unions that make up the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, Carlough said "There will be 3.5 million angry people when this news gets out."

Ex-UM Coed Sentenced

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP)-A former University of Massachusetts coed was convicted Tuesday on a charge of intimidating Maureen Piersall, 19-year-old daughter of former Boston Red Sox outfielder Jimmy Piersall.

Co-ed Judy Telfare, 19, of Boston was sentenced to an indefinite term at the state reformatory for Women in Framingham after pleading innocent to the charge. She was convicted by Special Justice Luke Ryan in district court.

Miss Telfare appealed the sentence and was ordered remanded to the county jail in $20,000 bail pending the appeal.

She was charged with threatening Miss Piersall with a screwdriver Feb. 12, two days after Miss Piersall had testified in a case involving Miss Telfare's brother, Edward.

Telfare and Scott Anthony, both of Boston, are accused of stealing from university dormitory rooms.

Miss Piersall, of Harwichport, a freshman at the university, testified Tuesday that Miss Telfare threatened her with a screwdriver at a university snack bar.

A charge of surety to keep the peace against Miss Telfare in connection with the same incident was dismissed.

Lettuce Boycott Occurs Today

Contrary to popular opinion, today is not simply Feb. 24. Today is Lettuce Day, brought to you by the Lettuce Boycott Committee.

Most important of the day's activities will be the picket lines at the 'Big Y' supermarket on North King St., Northampton, from 3-5 p.m. to protest the selling of non-UFW lettuce by the 'Big Y'. Also, Marcus Munos, UFW organizer from Boston, will address a mass meeting held at Grace Episcopal Parish Hall, across from the Lord Jeffrey in Amherst, at 8 p.m.

Information can be obtained during the day at the UFW table in the Student Union, located near the ballroom.

Democrats To Seek Total Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic senators voted 31 to 8 Tuesday to seek total withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam sometime during the 1971-72 session of Congress.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Democratic leader, said the caucus resolution was flexible, specifying no date for withdrawal, but calling for President Nixon to act "in a time certain."

The Montanan said no implementing legislation will be considered in the immediate future.

Sen. John Stennis, (D-Miss.) chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Henry Jackson, (D-Wash.), a senior committee member, reportedly spent much of the two-hour caucus debate arguing for deletion of the last four words of the resolution that read:

"To end the involvement in Indochina and to bring about the withdrawal of all U.S. forces and the release of all prisoners in a time certain."

"It's the Hatfield-McGovern amendment all over again," Jackson said afterward. "I don't think you can have a date certain and bring this war to an orderly conclusion."

The Senate last year rejected an amendment by Sens. Mark O. Hatfield, (R-Ore.) and George McGovern, (D-S.D.), requiring withdrawal by the end of 1971, but it has been reintroduced.

Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader, said the resolution is vague, but politically acceptable to the several possible Democratic presidential contenders. "To set a date would have fragmented the candidacies," he said.

However, Scott said, "One would have thought they would want the prisoners out before they get the troops out. It's a mistake to ask for the troops out and the prisoners returned without setting a priority."

YOU ARE INVITED TO DROP IN AND BROWSE

Town and Country Bldg.
2nd Floor-Over RAPPS Delicatessen

Culturnatives

Learn A Craft!

By GILBERT J. SALK
MDC Staff

In an earlier column, I stated that one of the most vital aspects of cultural alternatives is access to information. This is particularly true if you are attempting to cut down on your dependency on the present culture. One path out of the morass is to learn a craft--to make things which can be bartered or sold to provide for other life-support needs. Being a craftsman also has the added advantage of being psychologically rewarding. You create things of value to yourself with your own hands, using your own imagination. From start to finish, the product is yours-- to give away to people you love, to trade for things you need or want, or to sell.

The rudiments of most crafts are neither difficult to learn nor expensive. Quality work comes with experience and experimentation. There are two kinds of access to the information you need to start. One is to find someone already into your trip who will let you watch him work and teach you the basics. It's probably the best way. There are craftsmen-in-residence at the Leverett Craftsmen and Artists Shop in Leverett, and a few crafts outlets in Amherst and Northampton which can steer you to other crafts people. There are also many books available. I'd like to review a few of these today.

Tie-dyeing passed through a fad period last year, but it is still an area with a lot of room for imaginative experimentation. An excellent book, by Anne Maile, is Tie and Dye as a Present Day Craft ($6.50, Taplinger Publ. Co., Inc., N.Y.C.) Profusely illustrated, it makes the elementary and advanced processes look absurdly easy. Directions are clear and easy to follow, almost making the illustrations superfluous. I was surprised at some of the patterns it is possible to achieve. The book is top-quality, with only a few minor faults. Although there is a brief list of cloths which are suitable, there is no comprehensive discussion of how different materials take the dyes differently. The book also lacks an index, limiting its use as a quick reference source. The major drawback is that low price was sacrificed to aesthetics. There are several color plates--beautiful to look at, but pushing the cost of the book out of the range of many people. Write to the publisher suggesting a paperback edition without the photographic plates. They may take the hint.

An interesting companion book is Dye Plants and Dyeing - a Handbook ($1.25, Brooklyn Botanic Garden, 1000 Washington Ave., Brooklyn 11225.) The book presents the best of all possible alternatives for buying your dyes (whether for tye-dyeing or simply dyeing clothing)--making your own. It describes and illustrates (relatively) common plants from which dyes can be extracted, dyeing techniques, etc. Information on plants native to other countries is included for those of you with esoteric tastes. It looks like a good book for its price.

If you're into jewelry-making, I'd recommend a couple of books, depending on whether you're into just making a few pieces for yourself and some friends or mass-producing for sale and profit. For pleasure and friends, a good book is Step-by-Step Jewelry by Thomas Gentille ($2.50, Golden Press, NYC.) The descriptions of basic processes are easy to follow and use the simplest possible tools. Line drawings and illustrations amplify the instruction. The book seems particularly good for a beginner.

Jewelry Making and Design by Augustus F. Rose and Antonio Cirino ($2.75, Dover Publication, Inc., NYC) is more advanced book. It tends to emphasize information needed for more "professional" types of jewelry. Although the book would be most useful to experienced jewelers, I would still suggest it to beginners who have a real interest in jewelry work, as it seems to cover nearly every aspect of the craft. (Like most Dover books, it is top-quality.)

I'll be reviewing more crafts books in a special column in Friday's Collegian. If you're curious about macrame, weaving, quilt making, or perhaps a surprise or two, look for the column. Peace.

CULTURNATIVES will deal with many different aspects of cultural alternatives. If you're into it and want to rap, or if you want Mother Earth News, stop by the Draft Counseling Office in 418E SU 2nd floor. You'll have to take your chances because draft counseling comes first, but if we're free, we'd enjoy sharing ideas.

George Peters To Speak Tonight, Started First Drug Crisis Center

Tonight Wednesday the twenty-fourth, Room to Move has arranged for George Peters to speak. George is from Chicago where he started the country's first drug crisis center in the earlier day of psychedelic drug use. Since then his model for the LSD Rescue Groups and his Center Naturalism Inc. has been used to open many other drug centers throughout the nation.

It all began in September of 1965 when George Peters came to know a number of people who were taking brain influencing drugs. He became concerned on learning that some of them were having distressing experiences. One night George Peters received a phone call regarding a friend who had taken a 300 microgram dose of Lysergic Acid Diethylamide. Thinking that her heart had stopped she went to a hospital where she was asked to sign the standard admission form. She thought it was a death certificate and she bitterly complained that the hospital was trying to make her sign her own death certificate. Another friend realized that the emergency group in the hospital did not know what to do and called Peters. He arrived at the hospital to find three policemen and fifteen hospital employees listening to the girl's fantacies, but doing nothing to help her. He took over and within 10 minutes had the girl back to normal and able to function.

Since then George has helped more than, 7,641 people. He left his work as a TV repairman to devote his full energies to finding ways to work through distressing psychedelic experiences and unwanted after-effects.

George Peters is responsible for accepting Abram Hoffer and Humphrey Osmand's niacin treatment for schitzophrenia to a treatment for reducing toxin reactions from LSD. He has established a highly efficient qualitative and quantitative drug analyzation service also.

In his center George has created an unusual way of encouraging all who are interested in working. He has explored and reexamined the role of a counselor, coming to some rather revolutionary definitions.

So for all those interested in understanding better the psychedelic experience especially to learn how to deal with a bummer and in listening to an entertaining, free flowing speaker, George Peters will be in the Student Union Ballroom tonight.

Food Co-op Not Store, But Place To Buy Retail

"First I want to blast whoever wrote that last article about us." Arthur Cohen, one of the organizers of the Yellow Sun Natural Foods Co-op was speaking of an uninformed writer's reference to the new establishment as a "store."

The point of the co-op is to provide "natural foods at wholesale prices" and avoid the 30% to 40% retail increase on food prices in regular stores, he said.

According to Cohen, people are finally turning away from the "super-processed, de-vitalized crap being sold all over the country." For an idea of the many natural, beneficial foods which are becoming increasingly available, he suggested dropping into the Free University, temporary residence of the co-op. There is much literature on the subject, there and more to come, he added.

The co-op will be ready to take orders on Wednesday, Feb. 24, Cohen announced. Because of expenses, purchase is possible only with a membership. This system gives the consumer control over the way the co-op is run and eliminates the profit-grabbing middle man. All profit is turned back into the organization, Cohen explained.

So far the interest of people in this endeavor has been encouraging, according to Cohen. He, Maureen O'Donnell, and Don Lorenson, all of whom share in the planning expect at least 100 and possiblly as many as 1000 members in the first month. Money from these memberships will be used or such expenses as machinery, office equipment, and services provided to the members (food preparation classes, utensils, literature), they said.

Cohen and his associates hope to move the co-op to a more permanent and central location in Amherst sometime in the near future. The more response shown, the sooner this will be possible, they indicated.

MDC Classifieds

Study in Guadalajara, Mexico
The Guadalajara Summer School, a fully accredited University of Arizona program, will offer, July 5 to August 8, art, folklore, geography, history, political science, language and literature courses. Tuition, $160; board and room $155. Write Dr. Juan B. Rael, Office of Summer Session, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721.

IF YOU ARE A SENIOR
you should already have an appointment for your Index Portrait. Some appointments are still left. Sign up in the Index office, S.U.

Tonight! OnWMUA

This week on "Viewpoint" at 6:30 PM on WMUA, Wednesday night the subject will be "The Urban Crisis: Springfield, a Microcosm". Guest panelist will be Glenn Briere, Springfield Republican City Desk news reporter. That's tonight at 6:30 PM on WMUA 91.1 FM.

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'na'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

Five College Charter Flights

1. Boston-Paris-Milan
June 17-August 26 $250
2. Boston-London
June 15-August 25 $216.50
3. Boston-London
June 15-August 12 $248
4. Boston-N.Y.-Madrid
June 16-August 26 $250

Contact Director, International Progroms, 229 Whitmore for information. 545-2710.

THE ONLY OFFICIALLY AUTHORIZED FIVE COLLEGE FLIGHTS.

Flights #1-3 Pam Am, #4 Iberia.

PAT and DICK DO IT
(VOTE THAT IS)
SO VOTE TODAY
FOR
WINTER CARNI QUEEN
Student Union Labby
Winter Carni 1971

Double Feature
HITCHCOCK'S 39 STEPS
TONITE 8:00 THOMPSON 104 75c
Plus Hitchcock's BLACKMAIL 9:30

Do you want a cold stay in Bermuda, or a hot time in NASSAU?
Nassau, Bahamas $99
ROUND TRIP JET AIRFARE
Inexpensive, luxurious accommodations and meals at the Flaggler Inn, also available.
sponsored by
STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns
Boston/Nassau/Boston	3/19	3/26

FOR INFORMATION CALL:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve, 549-1357; or Brian, 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7863

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Ann Gurnett, Nancy Costa, Cindy Swindell, Lee Thibodeau, Earle Barroll, Barry Rubenstein
SPORTS — Gib Fullerton
EDITORIAL — Tony Moore, Marjie Mullen
PHOTO
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

The Tuition Hike

This weekend delegates of State institutions of higher education from all across Massachusetts will be meeting on campus to decide what can be done to halt the threatened tuition rate hike for state schools.

This meeting represents what we hope will become the beginning of a state-wide movement to preserve the principle of low-cost higher education for the residents of Massachusetts; a principle which could be tragically discarded in these times of dire economic need.

The conference, which will commence Friday evening and run into Saturday afternoon, is part of the University and State Communications Council (USCC) efforts to develop the political momentum which we hope will be able to counter-act those in the State Legislature, who have proposed increases up to about $1000.00 for state Universities. Never before has higher education in Massachusetts faced such a deadly combination of economic and political expendability.

The recent Board of Higher Education decision to oppose a tuition hike was based upon the real figures showing financial dilemna of most of the students in the State. Chancellor Edward Moore pointed to the fact that 44% of the students from metropolitan Boston, for example, come from families with incomes in the lower 25% bracket. As former UMass president John W. Lederle emphasized in a recent article, "many students...will be lost to higher education" if the tuition is increased.

The idea of higher education at low-cost is one which was established by the Morrill land-grant act back in 1863. It flourished in Massachusetts only after some innovative and far-sighted educators and legislators made the recent growth of UMass and the other state and community colleges possible. State support for higher education in Massachusetts is still a new and vulnerable target and only the most careful thought should be allowed to alter its course. At present, any tuition hike would hurt both the students and ultimately the State.

It should be noted that Massachusetts, 49th in percapita support for higher education in the nation, has nowhere to go but up, in both quality and support of its higher education system.

We urge all those concerned with the future of public higher education in Massachusetts to rally with those who are leading the fight against the tuition increase. Only a massive onslaught of letters and support for the low-cost principle of higher education to the members of the state legislature will stem the fearful tide which threatens to economically strangle students and their parents in Massachusetts.

Vietnam Withdrawals

Art Buchwald

The Big Poker Game

WASHINGTON -- The bullet-seared Indochina Bar and Grill was jammed when the dusty stranger walked up and ordered a straight whisky.

"You doing a big business," the stranger said.

"Yup," the bartender replied. "We've been expanding at a furious rate."

"What's the crowd doing over there?"

"They're playing poker. The game's been going on for eight years now, without a stop. It started as a little domino game but pretty soon it escalated into poker."

The stranger wandered over to the table. There were six men sitting around the table -- Black Jack Hanoy, Tiger Cy Gone, Charlie Cong, Big Sam, Little Louse and Kid Kamboadia."

"Who's winning?" the stranger asked a man named Frenchie.

"Beats me," he said. "I quit playing with these guys 16 years ago."

Big Sam had a giant stack of chips in front of him, and he kept giving chips to Tiger Cy Gone after each hand.

Frenchie whispered, "Big Sam says he wants out of the game, but he won't quit until Black Jack Hanoy admits defeat. Black Jack just sits there with a poker face and every time his stack gets low the Chinese guy and the fat guy they call 'The Bear' give him more chips to play with."

"What are the guns doing on the table?" the stranger asked.

"Each player says the other guy is cheating. We've had some big shoot-'em-ups around here. I've seen some mean poker games, but this beats all."

"How did it all start?" the stranger asked.

"Way, way back before anyone can remember, Charlie Cong and Tiger Cy Gone started a penny ante poker game amongst themselves. Pretty soon Tiger Cy Gone, who was one of the worst poker players around, began losing, and so Big Sam, who was considered one of the great card players of all time, started to give the Tiger advice. Big Sam also staked Cy Gone to a small stack of chips, which the Tiger lost immediately. So Big Sam gave him a larger stack and Tiger Cy Gone, who couldn't get the hang of the game, lost that stack.

"Finally Big Sam got so exasperated that he decided to get into the game himself. He put a large stack of chips in front of him hoping to scare Charlie Cong out.

"But instead, Charlie called on his friend, Black Jack Hanoy, who was anxious to get in the game because he had a grudge against Tiger.

"Before anyone knew it, the game escalated from penny ante poker to table stakes with one winner. Big Sam figured that with all his chips he could bluff and Black Jack Hanoy would have to fold.

"But Black Jack Hanoy was being backed by the Chinese guy and 'The Bear' because they had a grudge against Big Sam.

"So now the stakes are really high, and nobody is going to admit he lost."

"What are Little Louse and Kid Kamboadia doing in the game?" the stranger asked.

"They were just two spectators watching, but Black Jack Hanoy and Big Sam made them sit in. Little and the Kid don't even know how to play poker and they're both broke, but Big Sam says the more players there are in the game, the more chance Tiger Cy Gone will have of winning, and the sooner Big Sam will be able to go home."

As they were talking, Big Sam dealt the cards. "Okay," he said, "this is the big hand. If we win this one, we'll win all the marbles."

Frenchie whispered to the stranger, "He keeps saying that every time he gets the deal."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Jim Mitchell

Something Wrong Somewhere

The only thing one can conclude when a nation such as ours, operating during a peacetime economy, even considers wage and price controls, is that something is wrong, very wrong.

For many years I was under the impression that we operated under a capitalistic system, where wages and prices are set in the market, not in the President's office. This system has worked with some degree of success for many years. Why then, must we now allow a raving group of politicians and union leaders attempt to destroy in a few short weeks, a system that has taken hundreds to refine.

Simply stated, I think the problem is essentially that the unions just have too much protection granted to them by law.

If certain essential or important industries got together and worked in collusion to set artificially high prices, you can be sure that a lot of people would get quite upset over the matter. Yet, the government not only allows, but encourages members of labor groups to work in collusion to see that they get wages that are in many cases not commensurate with increased production or inflation.

Many times, people would line up to work for half the salary that is paid to union shops. For example, with all due respect to the common unskilled laborer, where do they come to the $6-8 hourly pay they often receive. Granted the unions are helping these people greatly to improve their income, but what about those who are being displaced and discriminated against because they can't joint a union, and who would be willing to work for much less?

In a way, I would like to see the notion of scab workers become a thing of reality again. If union members are so down on conditions to the point where they choose to strike, then why not allow those who are still willing to work do so. It's simple enough. Maybe at this point union members would appreciate the benefits they had, and not be so eager to upset the economy by striking large companies and/or industries.

Once we allow wage and price controls to become a reality, even to a limited degree, the door will have been opened, and who can tell what will be next.

Why not seek a solution to this problem that will be more than an inequitable, temporary stop-gap measure, and will ensure a better distribution of wealth for all.

A Question Of Answers

There have been many marches and crusades in the Central Area, because it seems that's what it takes for action when students are being stepped on.

The vibs of tolerance pacification, parternalism, and patronage that students get from administrators are very real. Some students will settle for these inept explanations and unjustified lies. The Central Area has never been known for its passivity in these situations. But the Area has never come up against such overwhelming mass confusion; where the issues and information relating to them has become blurred beyond recognition.

The frustration now coming out between the area staffs and Whitmore (and among administrators within Whitmore) stems from information given out that is designed to be deceiving. No one can tell who is lying to whom anymore, and the level of trust has reached zero.

If a staff member cannot learn what the truth is, how can any student be expected to trace a maze of lies and be able to point the finger and to deal with the people who are to blame.

The most outrageous example of administrative misinformation concerns the security budget. The Vice-Chancellor's office has been handling the security problem as was directed by the Trustees. The monies, supposedly 03 funds, were divided between area coordinators to handle by submitting Security Proposals. A supplementary budget request was to go before the first monies ran out.

Now within two weeks the security monies will be used up in every area except Central which began late, informed sources explained that the Proposal for the Supplementary Budget to go before the State Legislature had not left Chancellor Tippo's as of last week, and this will mean a delay of a least of month before the security budget will be passed. No measures have yet been suggested to avoid a campus without security.

In addition, the first security monies, supposedly 03 funds, have been instead Residence Hall Trust Funds (meaning there will probably be no new furniture for dorms and no new telephones for dorms without them). The students were not the only ones lied to, administrators passed on lies without knowledge of what really was happening, and the whole structure is so bureaucratic no one can find out who told the original lie.

There is no way we can deal honestly with each other when the situations and problems of the administration call for information to be withheld and for lies to cover the immediate measures being taken. Students might not behave distrusfully if they weren't lied to, and their efforts at communication on the lower levels would not seem futile.

If administrators cannot get themselves together enough to tell each other what is really happening, they and their staffs will never be able to effectively handle the problems which will arise.

Pam Pepper

Letters To The Editor

DC May Be Hazardous To Your Health

To the editor:

Caution: UMass Dining Commons May Be Hazardous to Your Health.

Many of the students here at UMass are required by age, residence or time to eat at one of the several dining commons on campus. Having just returned from Worcester Commons, I feel a need to make known some of the grievances that I and my friends have.

1. Plates often have the remains of the previous or even the day before's food on them. Small wonder nearly all of us at one time or another have been sick from this.
2. Glasses are cracked and scratched so badly that disease carrying bacteria and micro-organisms abound. Had the runs lately?
3. Dogs have no place in a place where people eat. The food is unappetizing enough without having dogs running around.
4. How many times have you had to go and get another piece of silverware because you'd rather not pick up trench mouth or hepatitis?
5. The courtesy of the ticket takers sometimes leaves a lot to be desired.
6. It often seems that the food served has never been tasted except by we, the student-guinea pigs. Either the food is heavily spiced or completely flat.
7. How often have you had to walk the length of the commons to bring up your tray? Why not open both windows?
8. On the meal tickets, the times that the commons are open are listed. Have you ever tried to get supper at 6:20 P.M.? No chance.
9. Using only one service line when there is a long line of students waiting to be served really shows incompetence.
10. Has your meal ticket fallen apart yet?
11. Has there been a day when you haven't had to pick a hair out of some food?
12. The milk dispensers are often empty or more often not set up to work.
13. It would be nice if the tables were wiped between meals.
14. Don't you just love to dig through the gravy into that delicious fat?

Have you heard enough? If you can't find your gripe here, write your state representative or senator or even the State Board of Health. They worry about not only your health but your vote.

Carl Beatty

Fist Of Justice

To the editor:

Aside from the obvious controversy of the Winter Carni Queens Selections, there is one point that seems to be forced into the background. While I can see the point of groups that are opposed to the whole contest, I would like to know how they have the right to prevent me from voicing and performing my freedom of choice.

The "sexist" policies of the Winter Carni Queens Committee came under tough and sometimes unfair scrutiny, not only from the people backing Jim LaMacchia, but also from the pages of the Free and Responsible Press, whose representative on campus is the editorial rag, popularly known as the Mass. Daily Collegian.

The major reasons for this letter are the repressive measures of the voters, who wished to prevent me from defining a Queen, as a woman. Am I to be a victim of a society that hides behind the fist of justice; to be forced into a way of life that I do not believe in? The present administration in Washington does the job of bullshitting fine enough. The shit that we hear from the establishment, concerning the war for freedom and justice in Southeast Asia, somehow seemed very much like the rhetoric from the persons opposed to the Queens Selection.

When and if the revolution succeeds, I would like to know if the little man and woman will be stepped on again. Will the liberation movement just replace the old aristocracy with a new one? Will all the old ideas also be discarded for a forced ideology? Will "Power to the People" mean "Freedom of Choice" or the final death of individualism?

John S. Cardile

Scare Tactic

To the editor:

Norman Mailer once said that if you're ever in a tight situation, merely, mention the name Hitler and your opponent will back off. How very susceptible we are to this scare tactic. But the fact remains that there is nothing very fascist about freedom from oppression. The system of capitalism, which this "Bernadette of Ireland" spoke of, simply and effectively, at the Cage, does oppress. Go into the ghetto and tell them that the Panthers are fascist. They will tell you about fascism. Hitler is no longer with us; he was stopped. Hunger is still here; it must also be stopped.

If you are worried about fascism inside the Movement, work with us to see that it does not take roots. But don't tell "American college students who are struggling for freedom of thought" (your words) that Socialism and its leaders are the offspring of fascism rather a growth away from oppression. Because I might think you have vested interest in the maintenance of Babylon. How about it sister?

Larry Carr

Letters To The Editor

Letters to the Editor must be typed, double spaced, at sixty spaces and must carry the writer's signature, address, and telephone number (all of which will be withheld upon request). The limit is one page and the deadline is 5 p.m. the day prior to intended publication. The editors reserve the right to edit all letters.

The same rules apply to Editorial Points except that the limit on these is 25 words. No prizes will be awarded or gifts given out. This is not a contest. It's simply a forum for those of you who don't feel like writing a whole letter or who don't know more than 25 words.

Man-Made Wonder

To the editor:

Have you seen the little Smuties
dirtying the ground?
Time will come when there won't be much room to trash around.
Have you seen the little Stinkers touting up the air?
Time will come when everyone will wish they'd given care.

Look at all the trash all over the ground all over this campus. There's quite a great bit around--my, my, my. Oh, I won't tell you statistics you've all heard before, about how many pounds of trash produced by so many people will bring a wonderful planet to its life-supporting end, because We Know All About It, don't we?

No, I've got a better angle. This may well be a sure shot as far as stopping littering goes. Everyone who litters should do this: Get up early one morning, around seven or so, and go outside. No matter what the weather is like, you'll find a crew of men walking all over campus, stooping over every few feet to pick up all the shit that you inconsiderate bastards threw around the day before. Watch them, observing their facial expressions, listening to their mutterings as they discover more goodies in the bushes and behind a car wheel. Now, if this doesn't affect you enough, talk to them. Ask if they really like cleaning up after you. The answer will be No. Then, wise up and quit littering, just like that.

And then, in the evening, as you walk around campus, pause to notice the thick gray cloud which appears over the physical plant. A man-made wonder! The school has become a microcosm in every respect, now equipped with simulated city living condition, factory smog. Can something be done about it? I'd like to know if the university plans to correct the situation, or if, as with the litter on the ground, the issue will pass unnoticed.

Chris Kilham

Security Shuffles

To The Editor:

In regards to the letter by Stephen Herman, "Safe, Secure Southwest", we would like to add that the residents of Field House are behind those of J.Q.A. in demanding a more effective, less haphazard security system. We can empathize with JQA's position having gone through the red tape run-around of trying to get our residence hall assistant back for the last two months.

The University administration must realize that the arbitrary reshuffling of Orchard Hill's residence hall assistant to JQA sacrificed the security of an area for that of a dorm. The only way that this situation can be rectified is through the incorporation of more money into the University budget so that more residence hall assistants may be stationed in dorms throughout the campus. However, we do not wish to place all the responsibility on the University administration. It is impossible to hire personnel if funds are not available. Therefore, it is imperative that the student body persuade the legislators to appropriate more money for the funding of University security - a vital force in creating stability for the entire University community. Now that most of us are of voting age, our elected representatives will listen.

Linda Kipper, President of Field
Susan Hanian

Why?

To The Editor:

I don't know why you pictured the incident involving a Black youth apprehended in Atlanta, Georgia in Wednesday's February 17th edition of the Daily Collegian without including why he was being apprehended. Maybe you blew the picture up because you tried to take up space or you blew it up to depict ill-treatment of Blacks by policemen. In any event you should have included the why's of it all. The Collegian's explanation (the little that there was) did not clarify the event but rather cast light on the traditional role of the police, a protector of some of the people in America.

I am sure that most if not all of us are aware of police brutality perpetrated on Blacks as well as on other minority groups and I personally cannot see why you did not give an adequate coverage explaining the picture.

Robert J. Padgett

"MR. PRESIDENT, YOURE SUPPOSED TO BE DIETING! HOW COME YOU'RE ORDERING MORE AND MORE?!"

Editorial Points

Lieutenant Calley doesn't use the word "kill" when referring to slaughter of Vietnamese at My Lai. Instead he always said "destroy" or "waste 'em." The Air Force in Vietnam has always referred to their bombing missions as "saturation." The U.S. is about to claim that over 700,000 Vietnamese (the enemy) have been either "destroyed" or "saturated" during the war.

****

What this University needs is a good subway system.

****

If anti-pollution and anti-war efforts got as much publicity as water beds, we'd all be in better shape.

****

INCONGRUOUS COMMENTS OF THE DAY:

"The objective is being met and the South Vietnamese Army is performing well."-Press aide Ziegler.

"The 500-man 39th Ranger Battalion (of the South Vietnamese Army) suffered heavy casualties and was virtually wiped out as an effective fighting unit in the first major confrontation between Saigon and Hanoi forces on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos."-Reuters

Don't question success.

Wake Up

Who is to define the nature of this environment and how do standards of conduct relate to a total Black educational program? I would say, first, that anything that affects the institutional climate for learning is the proper concern, directly or indirectly, of all who are a part of the institution. I am as concerned as anyone for student freedom to learn and for student rights in helping to determine the nature of the learning environment.

But these are not the rights of the student alone. The more permanent members of the academic community, the faculty and those legally responsible for institutional governance, the regents or trustees, have similar rights and more importantly, ultimate responsibility. I refuse, however, to become defensive about student rights infringing upon the rights of others, and I deplore the fearful advocacy of a legalistic and paternalistic status quo as much as I do the more extreme assertions of the student power movement. Surely it is better to work together as members of a single community than to retreat into seperate camps and attempt either to retain or to gain power at the expense of the community.

Student Survival

We must all begin to thing about our survival in the New World. In doing this we've got to find out where we stand. It's impossible for you and me to know where we stand until we look around on the entire earth. We don't know where we stand until we know where America stands. We don't know where we stand in America until we know where America stands in the world.

Our survival in the New World depends greatly on what we gain from this university and believe me the academic gain is not enough for survival in the New World.

One thing we must do as students is establish students power. This will help increase our mind politically, economically, socially, and can provide a start in survival.

Student Power means, not just ability to influence decisions, but the ability to make decisions. Student power involves the organizing of all the students, regardless of race. Student power is a medium through which people integrate their own experience with a slice of the past; with their own efforts to intensify the relationship between the community within the University. Let's say this, he who must obey the rule should make it. Student power brings change in the relationships and attitudes between groups within the University.

Student power can suggest a critique of education as it is now. Student power should not be argued on legal grounds; it is not a legal principle...it is an educational principle.

People who say that student power means anachy, imply really that students are rabble rouser who have no ability to form a community or to adhere to decisions made by the community.

The students who ignore student power ignore themselves, they are safe, respectable, but emasculated; ultimately, they wield power in the way in which it was wielded upon them.

Let's begin to exercise student power here at UMass in a well organized manner, and I am sure they many of our problems will be solved.

Ariel
"D"

Take Two: A Spirit Of Black Expression

TAKE TWO is a spirit of black expression. Its sense is to seek life at the exact point during a makebelieve rehearsal when the musicians have responded to the "Stop!" which the leader has begged loudly and suddenly. He questions, he debates, he singles out a sideman and laughs at the riff... then they settle down, they get together, he calls: TAKE TWO.

The UMass Collegian is a free press; it digs the phrasing within its community and it is into its harmony -- take one. It is valid. For TAKE TWO the score stays, the horns stay, the strings and drum stay...but the style shifts and a whole new set of ears begins to listen.

On 13 February, the New Yorker Magazine ran an article which could only prove a major embarrassment to every responsible black journal. E.L. Epstein ran down a myth, check it out. Read it yourself, and work up an appetite for TAKE TWO. We intend to run down a lot of myths -- information. Information can have the sweet smell of objectivity; if we run down for you just who is giving the money for CCEBS and approximately what Ford and H.E.W. expect for their dollar, we will also run down who gets the dollar and what it really buys. You know, it might be Fords, and maybe that's cool!

Now is perhaps a significant moment to answer the question Who is we? TAKE TWO is the effort of the graduate black students (and several white) on the campus who are primarily engaged in teaching and tutoring incoming black students. The roots of this enterprise are in that dialogue or discourse, and it is interesting that we graduate tutors begin it. If this is creative, then it follows hard upon a learning, an enlightment, and it is no trick of rhetoric to admit that the student taught this lesson, and this levelling experience must spread throughout this black community and pull everyone down into the deep grass.

Because the editorial effort of graduate students and sometime teachers is technically invalid in a free undergraduate press, we are taking cover behind two realities. If the lesson is black reality then the undergraduate black is going to have to move over and give us some seats, and, when he or she is ready to put his language on the free market then we will move and give him or her the press.

TAKE TWO is not in itself a personality -- it is an organ of the black personality of the give colleges. As I stated above, we are concerned about information: You can come down off the twenty-second floor and hitch out to Leverett and go fishing any Sunday morn you get the urge -- you didn't know that. And you can come down and meet the people you read about in our who's who. We are going to dig up all the brothers and sisters with m.a. and p.h.d. degrees and put them in a sunday -- go-to-meeting suit and photograph them and tell you something about them; not credentials but mostly telephone numbers and whether they play tennis or a long drum.

But mostly we're going to publish poetry and vignettes of the people -- lots of it, and letters. Not to-the-editor-letters, because we don't presume to answer too much, but open epistles to the community: creative stuff and together stuff. We're going to do reviews and interviews and a small bit of reporting. Sister Abernethy over at Smith wrote a play which should be performed within a couple of months; if you're too lazy (and that's cool, too) to go see it we'll print a review so you can go pay your respects to the sister when you get out of bed.

So, don't stop what you're doing, just add this to your agenda. Call the Collegian office at UMass, 545-2500 and give them some information about what you want to do or write and the good folks in there will tell us. Simply use the tag TAKE TWO - they'll know you're calling about a black press.

We are going to press once a week for now as an insert in the Collegian and we hope to publish more frequently, but, don't worry, nothing will stop us.

RICHARD HARDIE

The Children's Hour Of Junk

Mary Poppins is a junkie,
And Peter Pan puffs pot;
Cinderella boils peyote,
As Pinocchio begs for a shot.

Buster Brown is going cold turkey,
His dog pushes dexedrine;
And Mowgli has a silly smile,
As he pops an emphetamine.

Snotwhite is using cocaine,
Sniffing from a piece of lace;
And the Wizard of Oz is sinking fast
A bowl of glue on his face.

While somewhere in funky Harlem
Little Rufus can see no harm,
In shooting with a rusty needle --
A necktie on his arm.

But Jack and Jill are blasted,
Donald Duck's on LSD;
The Three Blind Mice shoot heroin,
(One cap's enough for three)

Tarzan smokes bananas,
Cheetah eats mescaline,
Jane is stoned on morphine,
Boy's goofing on codine.

Alice is wasted in Wonderland,
She copped for a five cent bag;
And the Cheshire Cat who pushes it
Thinks the whole scene is a drag.

And somewhere in funky Harlem
A child's book on his knee,
Little Rufus sits cold and lifeless --
A victim on an O.D.

John Taylor

It's Yours; Do It, Brother!

TAKE TWO of Through the Opaque Side of The Looking Glass

"The black man in America has long been the tuning fork of the national soul."

James Emanuel

Let Black People understand that they are the lovers and the sons of lovers and warriors and sons of warriors Are poems & poets & all the loveliness here in the world

We want a black poem. And a Black World
Let the world be a Black Poem
And Let All Black People Speak This Poem
Silently

Or LOUD

LeRoi Jones-from "Black Art"

"EX-PRESSSS YASELF!...AH DO IT! SOCK IT TO IT!"

(current song)

James Farber wrote that the college student today was NIGGER, the white college student, that is. In light of this profound statement, where can we place the typical CCEBS black student on the UMass campus? Could he be considered a TRIPLE NIGGER? First, by the definition of White America; Secondly, by the definition of Black program recruiters (though the rhetoric reads "Culturally Deprived Student," "High Risk Student," "Educationally Disadvantaged Student," etc.); and finally by the vague and often condescending treatment given the CCEBS student in the usual University classroom. He is not expected to stand out in the usual academic sense of the word, but to quietly "shuffle" his intellectual feet along, hopefully not causing any disruption of the status quo. He can "integrate" the UMass community by going ten steps in their direction-- the community makes no attempt at stepping his way.

There have been many attempted solutions to this seemingly impossible "culture gap". Some have been sensible and humane, like the setting up of Afro-American studies; others have been senseless and inhumane, like the forceful badgering by CCEBS administrators to coerce the CCEBS student to come up to the standards of the White Academic community. WE'VE COME A LONG WAY BABY! (Now we have black manhandling of black destinies where before Whites did it by themselves.) Black or White MANHANDLING IS MANHANDLING! We have reached some goal--the black student is now equally treated like the white student-he is now NIGGER on Farber's terms--nigger like the white student.

What happens to the student in the midst of all of this controversy? Some take to militant and violent reaction to these forms of treatment. Others take to the usual student reaction--APATHY. Apathy is the key word of today, for both white and black students. Apathy is sitting in your room blowing your mind--instead of being in class or in the administrator's office blowing their minds. Apathy is a very negative self-evaluation, brought on by 17 or more years of miseducation and the continuing process here. Apathy in black students is called laziness and ignorance by whites: apathy is the American way, taken on by blacks in an attempt to be American. Apathy is bullshit.

Yet apathy is a sickness, and like any other, has its cure. One of the treatments prescribed is better and more meaningful communications. This is one of the objects of TAKE TWO. Along with better communications, we hope to begin to foster a new self-evaluation for the black student here in the UMass community. A self-evaluation which throws off the shackles of the various niggers ascribed to him. A self-evaluation which bolsters and advertises all that is positive in black culture. If TAKE TWO is to succeed, it will become a direct voice of this black culture. It must become the student showcase as well as sounding board. In light of this, TAKE TWO extends a deep solicitation for creative and expository writings from the black community. Hopefully, this effort will be backed by teachers directly involved with the classroom efforts of black students, and that they will submit any and all student writings that they feel is worthy of publication to the community.

But we do not end here. Due to the lack of trained personnel here at the University--trained to be responsive to the positive elements of black culture--the student is asked to bypass the classroom teacher when he or she feels that his work is not being evaluated fairly. (Teachers have a lot to learn too) Any student at any time may send in works that he feels should be published. In fact, the existence of TAKE TWO, until the University is re-educated, depends upon this action.

so--Express Yourself. Do it! You have no one to blame but yourself if it is not done. The learning process is a two way street and it is time for the black community to get on the road--instead of being rail-roaded! As the black man had been the "tuning fork of the national soul," let us make the black student the "tuning fork" of the university soul. "We want black poems by black people, and black people writing about their own poems. We want to positively BLOW MINDS. SEIZE THE DAY--THE TIME IS NOW--DO IT!

John Taylor

ISRAEL

- Work in a Kibbutz
- Study at an Israeli University
- Work with New Immigrants

Summer, Semester, Year Programs

Contact:

ZE'EV REGEV
Joint Israel Programs
72 Franklin St.
Boston, Mass.
542-3973/4

or, on campus call
BRUCE GOLDMAN
549-3929
418 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.

In cooperation with Associated Jewish Community Centers, A.Z.Y.F., and Regional Alliance for Israel (R.A.F.I.)

FREEPORT FLING
IN THE
BAHAMA ISLANDS
DURING COLLEGE WEEK
MARCH 21 - 29
ONLY $189* plus 6% tax incl. services

Includes:
- Round trip jet with champagne, meals.
- 8 days at the Freeport Inn.
- Spacious air conditioned room — some with kitchenettes.
- FREE "HAPPY HOUR" every night. FREE BOOZE 5:30 - 7:30, Band 6 - 8.
- Facilities for swimming, sailing, water skiing, golf.
- Many clubs, casinos, pubs, discoteques.

Based on 4 per room.

JET ONLY FOR $99

Send $25 deposit to
JOE MALETZ
1513 JFK

or call 546-7819 for info.

Checks payable to Student Tours

Burton-Good Vibes

One of the most acclaimed of today's modern jazz musicians will appear on the UMass campus in Amherst, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 26 and 27. Gary Burton, 28 year-old vibraphonist, in two concerts at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, will debut under the auspices of the University's Fine Arts Council.

Burton, born in Indiana in 1943, began his musical studies at an early age and advanced quickly. At the age of eight, he played the marimba and the vibraharp, and at 15 he became interested in jazz. He appeared on RCA Victor and Columbia record albums, playing with Chet Atkins. He studied in Boston for two years at The Berklee School of Music and The Boston Conservatory of Music and has played as a sideman with George Shearing and Stan Getz. Recently he formed his own group, The Gary Burton Quartet, and in 1968 was named Jazzman of the Year by Downbeat Magazine.

Though chiefly a jazz musician, Burton has tried to develop his own style which attempts to integrate jazz and rock and country blues music, and has resulted in one of the most sophisticated combinations of these fields of music yet developed. The instrumentation of The Gary Burton Quartet includes guitar, bass, drums and vibraharp. A violin is also occasionally used for special effects.

Reserved tickets for both concerts are on sale at the Fine Arts Council ticket office, 125 Herter Hall. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Box Office one hour before each concert. Ticket prices for this engagement are $1.50 for University undergrads; $2 for other students; $2.50 for University faculty/staff and $3 for the general public.

"Methinks The Lady Doth Protest Too Much"

To The Editor:

Last week I attended the Collegian recruitment meeting, hoping to be of some help -- specifically as a reviewer. The Fine Arts editor never said he couldn't use me, in fact, he made it very plain. ("Mainly, what we need is people.") In fact, this seemed to be the theme of the entire meeting. In essence what he said to me was: Sure, you can review for us; you can cover those things that I cannot attend or am not interested in reviewing myself. (Or more specifically, you go to Mt. Holyoke, etc., and let me review major UMass productions.) Whether I was a capable reviewer was not even a consideration. Also, because my husband is involved in university theatre, he (the editor) assumed I would be too biased to review these productions.

I must take issue with the implications of the above. It is my opinion that: 1. it takes more than "bodies" to write a good newspaper; 2. it takes more than clever writers to do critical reviews of the arts; 3. a good critic must have an understanding of the creative processes involved in production, and if this understanding is real, objectivity is not a problem; and 4. if this is a "free university newspaper", being an editor should not entitle a person to a monopoly on the choicier articles.

If the Collegian editors are less interested in quality than in what "bodies" can accomplish, it is no wonder that they cannot interest the people who might have the special abilities which could improve the newspaper.

Dorina Hopcroft

The Editor Replies:

"The lady doth protest too much or so it seems, for in the letter she makes points which have only been vaguely explained and are generally misleading.

At the Recruitment meeting, the writer stated her interest in writing occasional theater reviews -- which was fine with this department. The catch came when she specifically asked to review the upcoming UT production of THE COUNTRY WIFE, in which her husband is involved. It is a question of ethics; a person directly involved in a production should not review it.

As for the alleged "monopoly on the choicier articles," quite simply, this just ain't so. For instance, the production in dispute will not be reviewed by this editor because I have the play's director as an instructor in a course.

The department welcomes new writers, as evidenced by new film and record columns. The Collegian though, is interested in quality and with it comes the keeping of certain journalistic standards, of which one of the most important is the attempt to insure objectivity.

Robert Nesti

If you would like to engage us in similar verbal jousting, here's how:
Letters must be typed and double spaced, with no more than sixty spaces on a line (this helps us set it up quickly). The limit is one page and please have it in by 5 P.M. for the next day's edition.
Bring it up here to the Fine Arts Department, in the Collegian Office (second floor of the Student Union).
If you are particularly garrulous and immune to trauma, present thyself forthwith to Bob Nesti, same place.

WMUA
91.1 FM

Stop Your Heart And Hope To Die

On Wednesday, February 24 in Thompson Room 104 the following Hitchcock films will be shown:

8:00 THE THIRTY-NINE STEPS Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Often cited as Hitchcock's best film, this exciting international spy melodrama is full of vignettes which have been imitated by everyone, including Hitchcock himself, ever since. Starring Robert Donat.

9:30 BLACKMAIL Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. While Hitchcock was shooting this film as a silent, he was informed that the last reel should be made with wound. He later found it possible to revise some of the earlier sections of the film in order to take advantage of sound and dialogue. In spite of its hybrid origin, the film is a brilliant success and features innovative use of contrapuntal and associative sound.

the Shoe-In
1 Cook Place
In the Alley

GRAND OPENING SPECIAL
THURSDAY FEB. 25TH

FAMOUS MAKER HARNESS BOOTS

$25 slightly irregular
($40 if perfect)
"BACK HOME BARGAINS"
BOOTS AND FUN SHOES FOR GUYS & GALS

Campus Cinemas
Amherst-Hadley Line - Rt. 9
An Esquire Theatre Of Course
256-6411
IMAGES — 11 P.M.
Friday and Saturday late show
This "THE SPY SMASHER" Week King of the Underground

Cinema 1
7:15 & 9:15
the director of M*A*S*H is back again cutting up people
"THE SECOND BEST FILM OF THE YEAR" N.Y. MAG
BREWSTER McCLOUD

groupies
Cinema 3
A WILD EXPERIENCE, AN EYE-AND-EAR BLOWING TRIP INTO WIERDSVILLE, U.S.A.!"
—Bob Salmaggi, Group W
Starring
and
7:00 & 9:00 — R

Cinema 2
A WARNING ABOUT "TRASH"
"Trash" is an X Rated film. No one under the age of 18 yrs. will be admitted.
Positive I.D. Required
7:00
9:00

Discussion On Draft And Alternatives To Be Held

The Valley Peace Center and Merrill House at Hampshire College are co-sponsoring an open meeting on the draft and various alternatives, such as an all-volunteer army. The meeting, which will be held on Wednesday, February 24th at 8:00 p.m. in the East Lecture Hall of the Academic Building at Hampshire College, is open to the public and all area residents are invited to attend.

Speaking in favor of an all volunteer army will be Katherine Knight, co-ordinator for the Massachusetts Council to Repeal the Draft. Mrs. Knight, a former resident of Amherst (1962-1965) is also a founding member of the Massachusetts Catholic Peace Committee and a staff member of the American Friends Service Committee in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Henry Irving Tragle, who retired as a Lieutenant Colonel after twnety-four years of service in the United States Army, will speak against the formation of an all-volunteer army. Mr. Tragle is Special Assistant to the Dean of the Graduate School at the University of Massachusetts, where he recently completed work on a doctoral degree in history.

John Fitzgerald will be moderator. Mr Fitzgerald served as an infantry captain in Vietnam and was awarded the Purple Heart. He is presently a graduate student in the Government Department of the University of Massachusetts and resides in Holyoke.

On June 30th of this year, the current draft law will expire. The issues involved are many and they concern every American family. Congress must decide whether to abolish, reform to continue the military draft system. There are four main factions among congressmen proposing solutions to the problem of military conscription.

The group led by Rep. Hebert, new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, will work for an extension of the present law without any fundamental changes. The administration plans to ask for either a two or four year extension of the present draft law with some inportant changes. These would be the elimination of student deferments; draft calls made on a national, rather than a state-wide, basis; and a substantial pay increase for first-term enlisted men and officers as a first step toward a volunteer army.

Senators Hatfield and Goldwater have combined forces to propose an end to the draft by using the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force which advised an expenditure of 3.2 billions for higher salaries and other benefits. A fourth bloc, headed by Senator Kennedy favors the President's efforts to reform the draft law but opposes any movement toward a volunteer army on the ground that only the poor could be induced by better pay to volunteer.

How successful would an all-volunteer army be in recruiting young men from different income brackets? Would an improved draft law make for a more impartial selection? Can an enlarged program of alternate national service be put into operation? What effect would a volunteer army, with its vastly higher cost of recruiting and maintaining, have on American society? Which of the alternative plans now being considered by congressman is most fair to the young men of this country who may be called on to implement it?

At the public meeting on February 24th, all the difficult problems concerning the draft will be explored. The program is being presented so that all interested residents of the Pioneer Valley may come and take part in the open discussion.

Students Needed On Senate Co-op Bookstore Committee

By DEBORAH I STERN
MDC Staff

Will UMass have a co-op book store? Right now that's a very big 'if' in the mind of M Karen Jacobson, who campaigned for the idea when she was elected to the Student Senate.

Miss Jacobson is the sub-committee chairman for the co-op. At the present time she is the only member of the committee. As Karen puts it, "My greatest problem is recruiting volunteers to help organize and form various surveys, and also to interview people who would know things about a co-op."

Many students are dissatisfied with the way the current book store is being run in the campus center. As Miss Jacobson said, "Some of the complaints range from high prices to books arriving too late to be of any use to the buyers." She also claims that there is probably something wrong with the ordering system in the campus store. Her committee would study all the possibilities and look into all the angles in order to form an effective and efficient co-op.

People who patronize the co-op would find lower prices at all times or "probably," as Karen said, "a yearly rebate system would be put into effect with the percentage around 5 or 6."

The co-op would break out even instead of making a profit as the current store does. "But," as Miss Jacobson pointed out, "the profit at the campus store goes toward the Program Council, RSO, and of course is re-invested back into the store."

If at the end of the committee's work, they find it feasible to form a co-op, they will write a bill which would have to be passed by the Senate. The Board of Trustees would then have to approve the bill for the campus.

Hopefully the co-op would be located in the old campus book store. Miss Jacobson mentioned that a student board might be established which would take an effective role in planning the policy of the store. "Personel would have to be hired on a full time basis or students would work on a part-time schedule," Karen stated.

"Again," Karen said, "I can not stress enough that I am in desperate need of volunteers. Without any help, I can't possibly do all the necessary work. Otherwise I'll have to stop betore anything was actually started." Miss Jacobson asks you to please contact her as soon as you can either at JQA or at the Student Senate office.

It Didn't Travel All That Far...

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)-The lunar golf shot of Apollo 14 astronaut Alan B. Shepard, Jr., which he said went "miles and miles and miles," may have only traveled feet and feet and feet.

Scientists examining photographs taken on the moon by Shepard and Edgar D Mitchell have found a golf ball in a crater only about 20 yards from the "tee" beside the lunar lander.

A staff that Separd hurled like a javelin was beside the ball.

T. O. LEAVITT

has already had his Senior Portrait taken. Don't forget to make an appointment for yours in the Index Office, S.U.

ROOT

is the name of this year's Index photographer. Be sure to make your appointment now. Deadline for appointments is Tuesday, March 2nd in the Index office.

Hotline 5-2550

Notices

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
Robert H Gonter Assoc. Director of UMass Computer Center will speak on "The Potential of Computers for Research" Thursday, Feb 25th at 11:30 a.m. in Room 252 Goessmann Lab. Coffee will be served at 11:15 a.m.

HILLEL
There will be a Hillel Board meeting in the Hillel Office, Middlesex Room, S.U. Feb. 25th 25th at 6:30 p.m.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA
Charlie Brown and his "Peanuts Pals" are coming Tonight at 7 p.m. at Bowker Aud. Find out what "Happiness is!

MARINE SCIENCES SEMINAR
Thursday, Feb 25th at 3:30 p.m. in Room 201 Holdsworth Hall. Dr. Richard Strathmann of the Hawaii Institute of Marine Biology will speak on Ciliary Suspension Feeding mechanisms of Marine Invertebrate larvae.

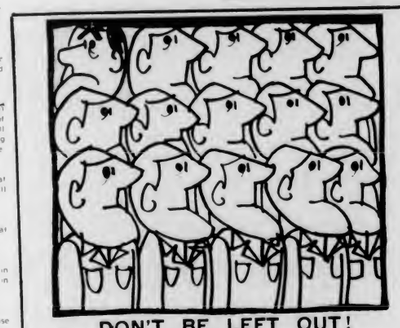
NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
Buses leave tonight & every Wed. night at 6:30. Hasbrouck and Patterson Dorm. All welcome, please come.

PSYCH 101 & Soc. 101
"Women on the March" & "The Game" at 4:40, 8, & 10 p.m. in Manar Aud.

VETERANS FOR PEACE
Meeting of ALL Veterans interested in ending U.S. involvement in Indochina in Room 165 C.C. tonight at 7 p.m.

LOST
Gold cross on chain was lost. If found please call Rose 546-8072.

I lost my glass ring either in F Lot or near JFK about 2 weeks ago. It is 71 and my name is inside. Call Phil 215 J Adams 6-8611.



A soils textbook & 2 notebooks on the walk btwn. Brooks & Orchard Hill. Please contact Jeff at 253-3689 I need them right away.

FOUND
A [illegible] ring was found near Morrill greenhouse. Call 546-7207 and ask for Chris.

MAKE A BUNDLE FOR YOUR BAG

If work doesn't turn you off contact us. You can earn $50 or more in a few hours working part-time — day or night — doing on campus selling girls and guys sell our decorative fashion accessories to other girls and guys. It's super stuff — easy to peddle — and neatly profitable for you.

Write or Call:
Today 'n Tomorrow Ltd.
55 Engineers Drive
Hicksville, New York 11801
(516) 822-1100 or (212) 538-0913

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
APPOINTMENTS STILL LEFT FOR
SENIOR PORTRAITS, INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

Winter Carni 1971
VOTE TODAY
Winter Carni Queen/Student Union Lobby

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Astg; Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers. LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Double breasted Edwardian jacket, navy blue, size 37, ex. cond.; 6-9432 tf2-24

1970 Boss Mustang, yellow with black stripes, 11,000 miles, excellent cond. $4700. New, best offer. Call 586-5583. tf2-26

Sofa bed, large desk, double bed, round coffee table, GE tape recorder, best offer on any item, gotta go quick. Call 253-3057. tf2-25

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf2-13

FOR SALE — AUTOS

Must sell '62 Olds — can't afford to pay insurance. Good condition, 4 new tires, small dent in side. Sell for $100 or best offer. Call 549-2916 after 5 p.m. tf2-3

'61 Dodge Dart, exxel cond. $300. 549-1824. tf2-25

1961 Ford Falcan, V8, 4 speed, good condition Call 253-9611. tf2-26

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6715 after 6 p.m. 12-26

Male roommate, own bedroom, approx $75 a mo. Sunderland, just off Rt. 116 Call Brad 665-3255. tf2-25

Female roommate wantrd to clean apt for 5 senior men. Rent minimal for cleaning function. Call 549-1943 tf2-25

1-room apt. in So. Deerfield $100 split, clean/quiet place to live and work (read, or vet preferred. Call 665-7717. Keep trying, hard to catch. tf2-26

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-6133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lanz's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3118 tf2-18

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-14

WANTED

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded, free estimates on collections. Bob Murrin, 186 Chadbourne or P.O. Box 161, Amherst tf5-1

TO SUBLET

To sublet: one bedroom apt., with separated kitchen and bathroom, $156 mo. (heat, utilities and air cond.,) available 1 March. Call 549-1444 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

LOST

One gold ring, small onyx and diamond stones in star-like formation, great personal value. Reward. Call 549-3597 nights. tf2-24

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

HELP WANTED

Student or student couple to help with care of 2 girls, 7 and 4, room and board. Call 5-0144 days, 665-3967 eves tf2-25

Wanted immed., 1 woman live-in, infant care, sewing, etc., 15 hours per week, apartment-like accommodations, 2 miles from campus. Call 549-1117. tf3-1

BUS TICKETS GW-UM

Tickets on the Student Senate charter bus to the Georgetown-Washington game at Madison Sq. Garden are available at Student Union Ticket Office. Deadline noon Thursday. tf2-25

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

Girl in dorm sinzle want to move out? Univ refund ripoff traps you? I'll take room and pay you for rest of semester. You don't lose anything. Call 584-8530. tf2-26

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NASSAU in Spring from $99 and EUROPE in summer from $195. For details call: Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3063. tf2-26

PERSONAL

To someone special - Happy birthday! Not our Patty? From the Sensuous Women of 22. 2-24

Find out why they call me Fetwoman. Call Susie at 586-8571. 2-24

See Helen perform for 50c. 2-24

Hey pal, get psyched for NYE! Derek. 2-24

ROOM WANTED

Student desires own room in apartment. Will pay $75 or so per mo. Phone 323-7619 after 5:30 p.m. tf2-24

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sunderland — modern, all electric, four rooms, unfurnished, Married couples. 665. Pioneer Valley Apts. Call 665-7365 evenings tf2-25

Redman Mermen Lack Depth

By ALAN K. WRIGHT
MDC Staff

Few people can deny the fact that apathy reigns supreme within many of the functions and activities of a university the size of ours, extracurricularly and otherwise. However, when this type of attitude reaches the realm of athletics, it's unfortunate consequences are most vividly realized. This season, coach Joe Rogers has had to work with a skeleton crew, as the UMass swim team now sports a record of one win and nine losses after dropping an away meet this past weekend to a strong UConn team at Storrs 72-28.

Swimming, like cross country and a number of other sports, requires a lot of dedication on the part of the athlete involved. "If you want to be good and expect to stay in shape, you have to swim seven days a week," says coach Rogers. "I've seen plenty of capable swimmers at Boyden's pool during Intramurals and afternoon free swim periods, but damn it, they just aren't willing to do some work and come out for the team."

Those who have had the determination to come out and swim regularly have been doing a commendable job. Senior captain Ed Jazab, who really runs the team well and participates in several of the events is probably UMass' best all around swimmer. Others include breast stroke artist Herbie Schuster and divers Paul Joy, Paul Leleto, both juniors. Joy ran into trouble against Worcester Polytechnic Institute back on February 11, when he broke his hand diving into a pool only eight feet deep from a one-meter board.

Sophomore Terry Carney sustained a broken wrist before the season even began and he had to practice with a special cast. The brightest aspect of this year's bleak swimming season has been the fact that the freshman class has provided several excellent swimmers. Peter Ouellette and Dick Blaisdell race in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events while Bruce Taylor swims the 1000 and George Kweichon does the back stroke. These young swimmers show a lot of promise for the future

UMass has never had a really good swim team, it's best season of recent years coming in 1968, when a 4-10 record was compiled. This year, the only win thus far was experienced against Holy Cross back on December 15. Every other meet has resulted in UMass being drubbed by an average score of 70-30. One has to take into account, though, the type of schedule that is faced. Amherst, Wesleyan, Bowdoin, Coast Guard, Connecticut, Tufts, and M.I.T. are a few of the top New England teams that serve as Redman opponents.

Most of these teams employ liberal recruiting procedures, particularly from out west; whereas UMass' athletic department doesn't give any money to the varsity swimming program. Also, since this is a state school, Coach Rogers is encouraged to restrict any recruiting he might do to within Massachusetts

MDC SPORTS HOTLINE 5-0344

A MIGHTY TOSS - UMass weightman Eddie Arcaro follows through after tossing the shot put 51 feet plus on his way to the Yankee Conference Championship. He will be one of the favorites in this Saturday's New Englands. (MDC photo by Ed Mangiaratti)

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Capricorn persons can attend to business but are not adverse to having fun. It is not easy to know a Capricorn, but once confidence is gained friendship usually is lasting. These persons harmonize with Scorpio, Pisces, Taurus and Virgo. They are fortunate in a financial sense for Sagittarius natives. Some famous persons born under capricorn include Hank Green Berg, Sal Mineo and Ruby Keeler.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hold off on money decisions. Purchase of luxury item could make unreasonable dent in budget. You can get what you really need-if patient. Refuse to be rushed, pushed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Avoid trying to duck responsibility. Tasks which have been delayed must now be completed. State position in frank, forthright manner. Then do what must be done. You can succeed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Envious associate could be spreading rumors, gossip. Realize this and protect yourself. Follow hunch. Information you need can be verified through long distance call.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Aries message. Caution is advised. Don't rationalize truth. Face music. You soon will have opportunity for greater freedom. Prepare now. Check details. Get house in order.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): One who offers a favor may demand too much in return. Obtain hint from Cancer message. Maintain steady pace. Don't be tempted by empty promises. Adhere to principles. Stand tall.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be prepared for meaningful changes. Affects area of work, special services. One in position of authority may now lack initiative. Offer suggestions. Present plan, format.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Dispute may arise over money connected with mate, partner. Diplomatic approach should be advocated. Ultimate gain is indicated. Make gesture toward reconciliation. You'll be happier.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Older individual may oppose your views. Obtain a valid hint from Libra message. Avoid self deception. Face facts as they exist. Make concession to family member.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold off on short journey. Take care with what you commit to writing. Some around you now are ultra sensitive. Don't get caught up in foolish dispute. Praise one who has been loyal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid tendency to be extravagant. Realize that any windfall may also have its drawbacks. Key is to utilize past experience, common sense. Fine for taking inventory.

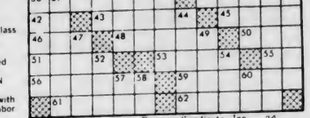
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone is working quietly in your behalf. Avoid jumping to conclusions. Hold off on accusations. Realize a delicate balance must be maintained. You are due for surprise benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What appeared solid may actually be flimsy. Know this and tread lightly. Follow example set by Cancer individual. Look beyond the obvious. Subtle approach will succeed.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you usually sympathize with those who are experiencing difficulties. Often, you are better at helping others than aiding your self. Your voice can be an asset. You appreciate music. You could have talent along artistic lines. You are due to make more money. To be happier through marriage or other responsibility.

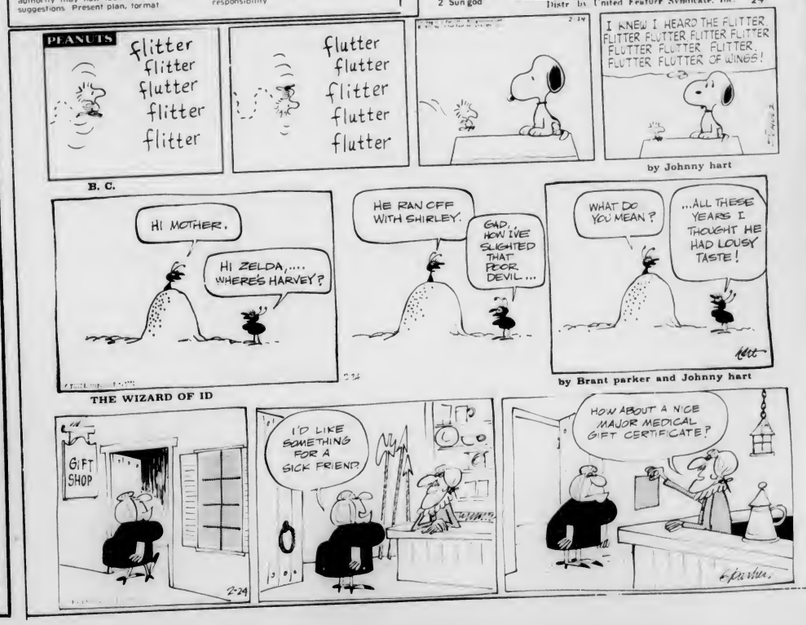
THE PIZZA INN is in town!
(At the old Amherst Creamery)
173 Sunset Ave.
Opening Week Special:
Try Our Famous PIZZA at 20¢ off with coupon below.
STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.

PIZZA INN
SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
20¢ OFF
The price of any PIZZA
with this coupon



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Solemn
6 Memento
11 Exalted in spirit
12 Snuffle
14 Note of scale
15 Caudal appendage
17 Hawaiian rootstock
18 Swiss river
20 South American animal
23 Born
24 Break suddenly
26 Pitchers
28 Conjunction
29 Chemical compound
31 Continued stories
33 Prepare for print
35 Carry
36 Distends
39 Heats
42 Preposition
43 Inclines
45 Disturbance
46 Poem
48 Facial expression
50 Greek letter
51 Small amount
53 Cougar
55 Two (Roman number)
56 Heating devices
59 Looking glass
61 Growing out of
62 Unadorned



DOWN
1 Collects with patient labor
2 Sun god
3 Unit of Siamese currency
4 Meat of calf
5 Roman official
6 Rupees (abbr.)
7 Printer's measure
8 Illuminated
9 Man's name
10 Breakfast food
11 Wipe out
13 Clayey earth
16 Ordinances
19 Badgerlike mammal
21 Encounter
22 Dart
25 Foot lever
27 Hindu guitar
30 Ceremonies
32 Eagle's nest
34 Athletic group
36 Destines
37 Write
38 Cut
40 Movement
41 Step
44 Decline
47 Short jacket
49 Man's name
52 Girl's name
54 Macaw
57 Latin conjunction
58 Compass point
60 A state (abbr.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

CAR VALOR ROB
ODE ELATE ERE
PAC RANTIES
ROY PETER
STIR SER TODS
AIM MOD LOGIC
BITES GENRE
TENOR WADETC
ARAL GET ASSE
TABS THIS
TAI RODEO INK
EGO AVERS VIE
DEN TERSE ETA

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 24

Hoop Season Lies Ahead

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

The toughest and most crucial stretch of this basketball season ended Monday night with the Redman hoopsters going three for three in four nights. Rhode Island, Maine and Syracuse found the Redmen not to be the same team that went down to defeat at Springfield and had the skeptics wondering if UMass was as good as many had said it was.

A week ago today co-captains Ken Mathias and Julius Erving told a large gathering at the UMass Varsity M Club luncheon of their dejection over the Springfield game and what they and their teammates would do in the remaining six games. Their theme was hard work, their theme was dedication, their theme was to win them all.

With half of these games completed the message expressed by these two has become the driving force behind the UMass drive to a post season tournament.

It began Friday night with an improved and more active Redman attack at the expense of the Rhode Island Rams. The next night Maine took it on the chin as the Redmen put together one of their finest efforts in a while. And then came Monday night and Jack Leaman's hoopsters played probably their best game of the year in routing highly touted Syracuse before a wild crowd at the Cage.

Coach Leaman has said during the past couple of weeks, "the season lies ahead for us." And after this display of basketball over the weekend the season ahead looms bright and rewarding for the Redmen.

* * * *

UMass' Mike Pagliara has been selected as the Yankee Conference's top backcourt player for his performance last week. The 5'10 junior guard made 21 of 37 field goals, scored 43 points and had 14 assists as UMass rebounded from a 63-62 loss at Springfield to beat Rhode Island, 83-71, and Maine, 85-57, to clinch at least a tie for the YanCon championship.

Named as the top frontcourt and sophomore players were Mike Gregory of New Hampshire and Jim Ducey of Vermont. Gregory, a 6'3 junior forward, hit 20 of 29 field goals and nine of 11 free throws for 49 points as UNH won two of three games.

Ducey, a 6' sophomore guard, sparked a win over Middlebury with 16 points, including eight of 11 free throws, and scored 19 with seven rebounds and three assists in a loss to UConn.

* * * *

The Redmen travel to Madison Square Garden on Saturday for a 1:30 encounter with George Washington University. The Colonels have a season record around the .500 mark against some pretty stiff competition, Walt Szczerbiak is the spark for the Colonels averaging 21.9 points per game and hitting on 60% of his field goal attempts which ranks him near the top in the nation in this catagory. Tickets for this game are still on sale in the Boyden ticket office.

* * * *

Monday night was a doubly big night for seniors Mathias, Bob Dempsey and Bill Greeley as they were honored before the game for their contributions to Redman basketball during their four years at UMass. This emotional occasion was very fitting for these three popular Redmen who have been part of the UMass rise to prominance in their three varsity seasons.

THREE BIG CONTRIBUTORS-Ken Mathias, Bob Dempsey and Bill Greeley (left to right) receive the applaudits from the large "Senior Night" crowd for their part in the UMass basketball success story. (MDC photo by Gary Slickman)

JV Gymnasts On Top Travel To UNH

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

The UMass junior varsity gymnasts upped their record to 4-0, as they remained undefeated by downing Dartmouth, 126.75-111.95, in a meet last Thursday. The Little Redmen have now won eighteen in a row over a period of three seasons.

The meet wasn't as close as anticipated, as Dartmouth had to compete without its two top all-around men. Though Dartmouth took three firsts, it was UMass' superior depth which was the deciding factor. The Little Redmen took fourteen out of the top eighteen places, swept the top three spots in the all-around event, and won the event totals for five events, as they proceeded to accumulate the highest score of the season.

Dartmouth's Cutright won floor exercise with a 7.85, but UMass' Seikunas took second with a score 7.7, while Henry of UMass was third with a 7.

Despite some shaky routines, the Little Redmen swept the top three spots on sidehorse Seikunas was first with a 7.5, Len Aubrey's 6.9 was second, while Hassig took third with a 6. High score for Dartmouth in this event was Cain's 6.45.

The Indians' Pancoe easily won the still rings event, bettering his nearest opponent by well over a full point. His 7.65 routing was high score of the meet. The brothers Aubrey, Len and Phil, tied for second for UMass with scores of 7.5. At intermission, Dartmouth was on the short end of a 63.95-57.55 score.

The Indians opened the second half by winning the event score for vaulting by .2 of a point. Cain of Dartmouth took first with a 7.85, while Seikunas and Henry of UMass took second and third for UMass with respective scores of 7.75 and 7.6.

The Little Redmen dominated parallel bars competition as they once again posted the top three scores. Seikunas and Schwartz tied for first with 7.5's, while Phil Aubrey was second with a 6.45.

Seikunas and Schwartz once again led UMass, this time on the high bar. Siekunas easily won the event with a 7.4, while Schwartz took second with a 6.2. High scorer for Dartmouth was Pulis, whose 6.0 netted him third place. The final score read: UMass 126.75, Dartmouth 111.95.

In the all-arounds in Gornell and Rettstadt, both of whom will battle the UMass all-arounds for top scoring honors. The Wildcats, like the Little Redmen, have soundly defeated Dartmouth earlier this year. The meet promises to be the most exciting of the year, as the Little Redmen seek to complete their third undefeated season in a row.

Frosh Hoopmen Complete Season

By FRED ROSENTHAL
MDC Staff

In its last game of the season the UMass freshman basketball team will battle the Amherst College frosh tonight at 8:00 p.m. Going into the game UMass is 17-1 while Amherst is 3-6. The game, which is at Amherst College, is a single game and will not be followed by any varsity competition.

This game will mark the second time these two teams will have met this year. Back in December UMass easily defeated the Amherst frosh 90-53. In that game Al Skinner led all scorers with 22 points and all rebounders with 17. Rick Pitino and Pete Trow pitched in with 21 and 17 points respectively with Pitino adding 12 assists.

UMass outrebounded Amherst in that contest 67-43 and should be able to do the same tonight. The Little Redmen have a solid height advantage as Amherst's starters are 6'4, 6'3 and 6'2 up front. These will most likely be Glen Farrell, Mike Cardwell, and Fred Scott. UMass will start the usual: John Olson (6'5), Art Levine (6'5), and Al Skinner (6'3).

In the backcourt the Little Redmen will again have the size advantage. Pitino and Trow are 6'6 and 6'3, whereas Amherst's guards, Jeff Mondshein and Mike Considine, are 5'9 and 6'.

The UMass frosh will be trying to stretch their current win streak to eleven games. Tonight will give UMass fans their last chance to see this year's frosh in action. The game is at 8:00 and there is no admission charge.

Girl Gymnasts Win Tri-Meet

The UMass girls gymnastics team continued its undefeated season with wins over West Chester State College and Salem State College in a tri-meet last Saturday.

Anne Burmeister, a last minute substitution for Linda Seikunas who hurt her back during warmups, won the floor exercise event scoring 8.15. Second, third and fourth places went to West Chester, with Margie Combs of UMass placing fifth.

At the end of the first event UMass was leading with West Chester second and Salem State third.

The same story seemed to repeat itself in vaulting. Miss Combs won the event with a well earned 9.1, while second, third and fourth places went to West Chester. At the end of the second event UMass was still holding on to a slim lead, totaling 46.07 against West Chester's 46.06.

On the balance beam event UMass girls finally pulled decisively ahead winning first, second, third and fifth places. Miss Burmeister came in first, posting 8.76, Marina Rodiquez was second with 8.33, Miss Combs was third, scoring 7.96 and Miss Seikunas was fifth with 7.13.

On the uneven bars, the UMass girls took some tough breaks. Miss Combs placed second with 7.53, Miss Burmeister and Heidi Armstrong came in fourth and fifth. Regardless of below average performances in this event, UMass was far enough ahead to win, scoring 91.35. West Chester was second with 86.88 and Salem State was third with 63.35.

Anne Burmeister

Tonight's Intramurals

VOLLEYBALL

COURT TIME 6:30

TEAMS
Jocks vs Munchkins
Smokers vs Baggers
18 vs Browns
Diagrams vs Academics
Panthers vs Cougars
Chipmonks vs Leopards
POSITION SOUTH TOWER
2 vs 3
4 vs 5
POSITION NATIONAL
2 vs 3
4 vs 5
POSITION ATLANTIC
1 vs 2
3 vs 4
5 vs 6

POSITION AMERICAN
1 vs 2
3 vs 4
5 vs 6
POSITION FRONTIER
1 vs 2
3 vs 4
5 vs 6
Superstars vs Funnies
KSCO vs LCO
Triaps vs K 9's
Deacons vs Rigolonis
Limes vs Lemons
ACS vs B&B
Kopeta vs J.G.
Bouncers vs Stoutees
Shots vs Jacks

8:30

MDC Sports Notices

RUGBY -There will be a meeting of the UMass Rugby Club tonight in Room 259 Goessman at 7:30 p.m. Attendance is important: discussion of the budget.

* * * * *

VARSITY M-The UMass Varsity M Club will hold its weekly luncheon today at the Newman Center at 12:15 sharp. Today's topic is UMass hockey with the featured guest being Redman hockey coach Jack Canniff. There will also be a door prize and a film. The public is welcomed.

* * * * *

SPORTS TALK-This Sunday night on Sports Talk head football coach Dick MacPherson will join Ken Horseman and Dave Melvin between 10:00 and 11:00 p.m. for an hour of conversation on WMUA, 91.1 fm. The phone numbers to call to ask the coach questions are 5-2425 and 5-2876.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Variable cloudiness Thursday, high temperatures 33 to 40. Cloudy Friday, chance of snow or rain late in the day. High near 40.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 94 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1971

The New Administrators

The following persons were appointed by the Board of Trustees at yesterday's meeting: Robert L. Gluckstern (left), Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs; Dr. Dean Alfange, Jr., Dean of the Faculty of Social and Behavioral Sciences; and Jeremiah M. Allen (right), Dean of the Faculty of Humanities and Fine Arts. (MDC Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Senators Sworn In, Budgets Presented

By BETH GOODELL
MDC Staff

The budgeting of Student Activity Tax Funds (SATF) to various student organizations was the main order of business at last evening's Student Senate meeting. Presented with the figures recommended by the Budgets Committee for the budgets of 7 groups, the Senate requested the committee to add major amounts of money to two of the organizations, SWAP and the University Mobilization Committee.

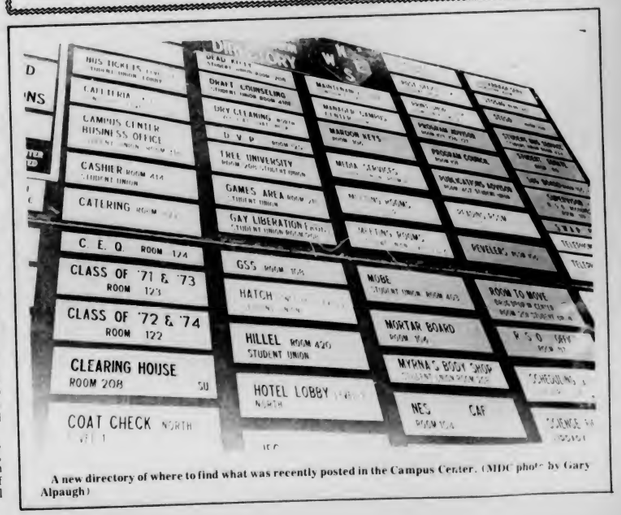
Twenty new Senators elected last week to fill vacancies in the Senate were formally sworn into the body at the beginning of the meeting. Along with the consideration of budgets, the meeting included several other items of business. Among these were the following: the drawing of dormitories to be responsible for the housing of students during vacations; the finalization of details concerning the holding of the referendum on Senate officers' salaries; the replacement of the Daily Collegian's car; the announcement that the University's dorm security system has enough funds to operate at present and the setting of the date of the next Senate bi-elections as Thursday, March 11, for approximately 15-20 Senate constituencies.

The budgets presented at last evening's meeting were the recommendations of the Budgets Committee reached after hearings with each of the groups involved: radio station WMUA; the SWAP committee; Room to Move drug drop-in center; University Mobilization Committee (Mobe); Spectrum magazine; the Rugby Club; and the Precisionnettes drill team.

The Senate as a whole was given the opportunity to strike the funding of any organization, request that the Budgets Committee consider particular changes in the budget, or enter the budget into the overall budget as presented. If amendments are requested of the committee, they are considered by the Budgets Committee at another hearing. The Senate can overrule a decision made at that hearing only by a two-thirds vote when the overall budget is presented early in March.

A Senator requested that a major change be made in the budget of SWAP. This would allow the reinstatement of two categories completely struck by the Budgets Committee: Means and Lodging for the off-campus conference previously held annually by SWAP. Elimination of these categories would put an end to holding the conference off-campus.

The Budgets Committee desired this because it felt that the ends of SWAP could be accomplished at a meeting on campus. Representatives of SWAP present at the Senate meeting presented arguments for the necessity of the affair being held off-campus. The meals and lodging request is for $6840 and will be considered at the next committee hearing, as will an amendment calling for the conference to be held over only two days next year instead of the three which this year's ran. Without the addition, SWAP's budget is over $6000 lower this year than last.



The other major change requested by individual Senators in a budget called for an addition of over $2600 to the budget of Mobe. In its hearing, Mobe requested of the Budgets Committee the same amount as it received last year, but redistributed in several categories. Roughly $2600 was cut by the committee, but a Senator last evening requested that the original amounts asked for by Mobe be reinstated. This will be considered at a hearing of the Budgets Committee.

One other budgetary change was requested at last evening's meeting, a minor addition of funds for Room to Move. This will be considered, along with the requests for changes in SWAP's and Mobe's budgets, at an open hearing this evening of the Budgets Committee. Representatives of the organizations, and the Senators requesting the specific changes, will

Continued on page 2

On The Inside:

- Trustees Appoint New Deans
- Linda Jeness Explains Women's Oppression
- S. Viets Attacked In Laos

A new directory of where to find what was recently posted in the Campus Center. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Peters Describes Drug Usages

Stating his theory towards mind-altering drugs as, "All very non-serious - it's more fun that way", George Peters, founder of the first Drug Crises Center, told a receptive audience about some of his lighter moments in dealing with drugs when the YSA sponsored his speech in the Student Union last night.

Peters stressed that one should have a definite knowledge of the drug he is to take, particularly the dosage.

He explained that most of the LSD that is sold on the street "is not of sufficient dosage to really drive one crazy".

The whole psychedelic experience was described by Peters as "sophisticated insanity". Bad trips can be blamed on unsophisticated use, he said.

Other explanations for bad trips are loneliness, unwanted pregnancies, divorces and intrapersonal relationships, in that order, Peters listed.

Peters professed belief in the powers of mind-altering drugs, providing that they are used with sufficient discretion and education.

Feminist Challenges Family System

By BARBARA ANN CLEARY
MDC Staff

Linda Jeness, a militant feminist and activist was guest lecturer at last night's Militant Forum presented by the Young Socialist Alliance.

A member of the Socialist Worker's Party, her topic was "Why is Feminism Revolutionary?"

According to Linda Jennis, "Women's oppression is a result of the class society in which we live today".

The decisions which involve the lives of women, those concerned with abortion, child care centers, and the resources of the government are not in the hands of the women themselves, she said. Instead, it was her explanation that they are made by the capitalists on the basis of profit.

In addition, Jeness said the capitalist society relies on the oppression of woman, and the woman's liberation movement is a serious threat to it. It cannot meet the demand for equal work and equal pay because it would be too costly to the system, she went on.

The demands for legal abortion and free day care centers are "beginning to explode the myth that motherhood and raising children are instinctual", Jeness explained. This is a very serious threat to the present social system because it threatens the institution of the family, she said.

According to Linda Jeness, the family is primarily a economic institution which forces dependence on a man. She said it is also a competitive force which cuts across social awareness and increases isolation. Most importantly, it "perpetuates the class system in this society", and reinforces the authoritarian structure, she went on.

The women's liberation movement is therefore revolutionary because it must necessarily challenge the basic social and economic unit, the family, Jeness concluded. It is revolutionary, she said, because it is demanding that the wealthiest nation on earth "should use its resources to provide for all its members equally", in effect socialism. It is revolutionary because it is opposed to a structure that requires "that groups be divided against each other", she added.

Women's liberation must be accomplished not only by personal liberation, but by a revolutionary change in the structure of the society, Jeness declared. Hoping that the change will be to democratic socialism, she said a mass movement must be built. This will happen when more women "see the discrepancy between what s possible for us and what is happening", she explained.

She also evisions an alliance between other movements such as Third World and anti-war, against a common enemy.

In the question and answer period following, ways of consciousness-raising, the difference between personal revolution and political revolution and ways of making decisions in a revolutionary group were debated.

Poisson Explains Abolition Of Class Government

By ANNE STADNICKI
MDC Staff

David Poisson, president of the sophomore class and co-sponsor of the Senate bill that abolished class government, explained the factors surrounding the bill's proposal without what he called "coloring of the issues with personalities" yesterday in an MDC interview.

"After class officers met to analyze class government, and so many idealist proposals were made, I came to the conclusion that spending forty to fifty thousand dollars in all the budgets to satisfy something that doesn't exist is illegal, "Poisson explained in regard to what prompted his action.

He said that in discussion it appeared to him that the last functions left to class government were to conduct concerts and "big weekends", and to plan in connection with graduation activities.

"The problem at UMass is that when someone has an idea he can get it funded through the Senate, therefore many organizations have been funded for one area of interest," Poisson continued. He said that the money allotted to the class government was therefore unemployed except for concerts.

Concerned with the legality of conducting class affairs and distributing funds, Poisson pointed out that most exec councils do not maintain full membership (50) nor is there equal distribution over the four residential areas.

"Quorums are attained only when the complimentary concert tickets are distributed," Poisson declared. He added that many times an exec councel is constituted of one close group, for example his exec council which is composed of residents of Melville House, mainly.

When faced with the fact that class government was for the most part non-existent, Poisson said he and Norm Patch, president of the class of '71, formulated a proposal to provide for a concert committee, a senior committee and a residential co-ordinating committee.

The residential issue was dropped because members of the Senate commented that they felt unprepared to vote this issue in yet, and therefore would have to vote against the measure, Poisson explained. He anticipates, however that the proposal will again come before the senate.

The difficulty in establishing class limits in a large university, and the student's identification with his dorm rather than his class could help to make the residential area proposal a reality, Poisson suggested.

The benefits from abolishing class government are already obvious, Poisson claimed. He said that at the first meeting of the concert series committee, a contingent of Black students expressed their ideas on the necessity and right to Black entertainment.

"Vocalization on the parts of the Blacks constitutes an important consideration usually left-out before," Poisson said. "I think class government, while claiming to fulfill a definite need for Afro American students, actually ignored their needs."

Countering the attacks made that Jim Bowin treasurer of the senior class, instigated the concert committee in order to chair the project, Poisson said that Bowin never publicly supported the bill before the Senate meeting.

Poisson wrote up the bill the night before the Senate convened because he was dissatisfied with the proposal from the Student Government Affairs subcommittee, he said. As treasurer, Bowin had no personal motive or "finger in the pie" in the decision to choose the chairmen of the concert committee from among the class treasurer, he added.

"We decided to choose from among the treasurers because they are considered the most knowledgeable officers that can make transfers and not overdraw accounts," Poisson said of his amendment.

What happened to class government is only the beginning, according to Poisson. He said that the many budgets being cut by the Senate would create a furor along with other issues.

Salary Referendum Set For March 9

Continued from page 1

be present at the hearing.

The budgets of Spectrum and WMUA will be entered into the overall budget as presented by the Budgets Committee, as there were no objections to them from the Senate. Spectrum is budgeted for $26,377, up $1,700 from this year, and WMUA for $55,063, up $1,400 from this year. The budgets for the Rugby Club and the Precisionnettes were struck completely by the Budgets Committee, an action accepted by the Senate. More budgets will be considered at next week's meeting.

In other action, the names were drawn of dormitories which will be responsible for the housing of students staying on campus during University recesses. These dorms must either remain open themselves or arrange housing somewhere else for the designated vacation. Any surplus funds received from the rent charged the students thus housed go to the dorms chosen.

The dormitories drawn, and the period for which each will be responsible, are as follows:

Coolidge Lower (Spring, 1971); Dwight (Thanksgiving, 1971); Emerson (Christmas, 1971); Field (Intersession, 1972); and Coolidge Middle (Spring, 1972). No dormitory will be drawn a second time until all others have served.

The date for the student referendum on the payment of salaries to Student Senate officers was set last evening as Tuesday, March 9. The single question on the ballot will ask the student body if it wants the legislation to stand as passed. A majority negative vote would officially remove the salaries measure from the books, effective the day of the referendum.

In one other item of business, the Senate authorized the replacement of a car used in the daily operations of the Collegian. This entails simply a category change within the current budget of the Collegian, in which $3000 are transferred from the printing category which currently has a $4000 surplus.

The old car belonging to this organization was recently involved in a collision for which over $900 of uninsured repairs are necessary, while the book price of the car is only $900. There was considerable debate as to whether a car could not be purchased for $2000, but a motion to this effect was defeated.

One clause was added to the transfer amendment which orders that the old vehicle be recycled when "junked".

LaMacchia Drops Queen Race

Jim LaMacchia, a Winter Carni Queen hopeful, has withdrawn from that race. Citing his reasons for the withdrawal, LaMacchia said that his two major goals for entering the contest had been achieved.

First, he wanted people to apply critical thought to routing social institutions. Secondly he said that the General Court's decision represented the kind of discrimination that takes place when social rules are broken.

Expressing his concern that students interpret his actions correctly, LaMacchia said, "I hope this won't affect my credibility because I have fulfilled my objectives. I feel to continue will only hurt the girls involved. If it does affect my credibility, it hasn't bothered me before, and won't now."

IF YOU ARE A SENIOR

you should already have an appointment for your Index Portrait. Some appointments are still left. Sign up in the Index office, S.U.

Do you want a cold stay in Bermuda, or a hot time in NASSAU?

Nassau, Bahamas $99

ROUND TRIP JET AIRFARE

Inexpensive, luxurious accommodations and meals at the Flaggler Inn, also available.

sponsored by

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL

— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns
Boston/Nassau/Boston	3/19	3/26

FOR INFORMATION CALL:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve, 549-1357; or Brian, 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7863

Fra-Sority?

There will be an open meeting for all UMass women who are interested in, or would like to discuss the possibility of coed fraternities on this campus. All undergraduate women are invited. (This meeting is in NO way associated with the one already established coed fraternity at UMass.)

Come and let us know what you think.

THURSDAY, FEB. 25, 1971

Room 805 - 809 Campus Center

8:00 P.M.

MDC Classifieds PAY

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Trustees Name Deans; Defer Tuition Stand

By ROBERT NESTI
MDC Staff

President Robert C. Wood yesterday announced that UMass will establish a system of job identification and referral for unemployed professionals, and others involved in career changes.

At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Trustees Dr. Wood pointed out "No University action can resolve the crisis of professional employment in Massachusetts and there can be no substitute for effective general national policy, but the University of Massachusetts will make every effort to consider, evaluate and counsel those now seeking new careers."

President Wood instructed each of the three UMass campuses to establish on-going job identification and to cooperate with other colleges and universities in this effort.

UMass is Amherst's largest single employer with some 3200 workers.

As expected, the Trustees approved the recommendations of the search committee for the two new academic deans and Vice Chancellor.

Dr. Jeremiah M. Allen, Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, was named Dean of the Faculty of Humanities and Fine Arts.

Dr. Dean Alfange, Jr., associate professor of government, was named dean of the Faculty of Social and Behavioral Sciences.

Associate Provost Robert L. Gluckstern was named Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs by the Board.

Student-faculty search committees have been working since the fall to fill these posts.

The Trustees also elected their officers for the coming year. Chairman Joseph P. Healy was tapped for another year in his position, as were all other officers of the Board.

At a post-meeting news conference with the Boston press, President Wood stated that the construction of the new Boston campus at Columbia Point was continuing at an "extraordinary rate".

"For construction unparalleled in its size," the President said, "the management has enabled the project to move forward at an unprecedented speed and rate."

The construction is progressing on schedule nine months after it began.

Wood emphasized this point despite reports from the press and by an "anonymous" State House official that the pilings at the South Boston site were disappearing into the ground. He said this was merely "speculation by the media."

Responding to a question on a supposed tuition hike Wood said that the Trustees "still wanted to examine the circumstances of the University" before making a final decision.

The Board of Higher Education recently suggested that there be no tuition hike.

Chairman Healy explained that the Board was "in the business of making quality education available to the people of the Commonwealth at a minimum cost and a tuition hike would price many families out of this."

When asked why there was so little campus reaction to the recent Laos invasion, Wood said, "Both the time, weather and the Nixon administration's method of handling the announcement were different."

He emphasized, "We still have yet to have the full run of campus reaction to this new action."

Faculty Senate Comm. Recommends School Of Education Limits

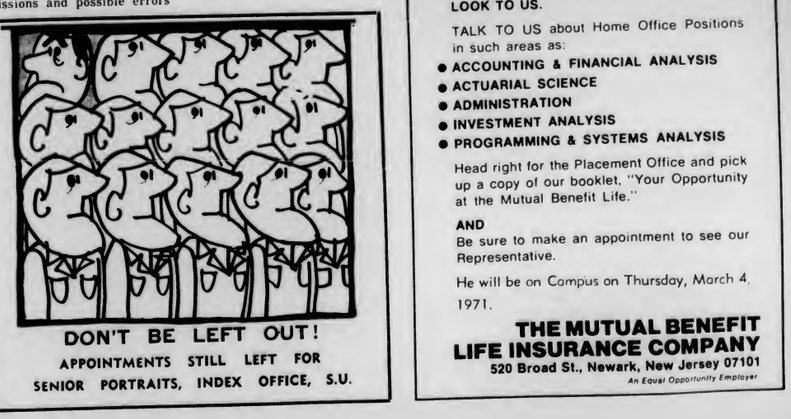
By DON GLICKSTEIN
MDC Staff

A Faculty Senate evaluation Committee has recommended that the UMass School of Education limit, restrict, and redefine many of its programs including Pass-Fail marking, modular credit, sensitivity groups, independent and off-campus study, and the number of its courses. At least one member of the Committee, Dr. Tom Clark of the School of Education, has officially disassociated himself from the Report, calling attention to a "breach of trust by the Committee chairman."

The Committee, chaired by Dr. Donald Fairbairn of the Zoology Department, admitted that in its evaluation of the Education School, "less attention is given to apparent strengths than to weaknesses." Among its recommendations are:

- greater faculty involvement with academic policy-making of the School ("the interests of the faculty....should be paramount in governance")
- the conditional abolishment of the School's Pass-Fail grading system in 1972
- a reevaluation of the modular credit program
- strict guidelines for sensitivity groups
- the limitation of independent study ("...a privilege granted only to the most worthy students...")
- a reduction in the number of courses in the School so that they operate "in the context of explicitly defined programs"
- the reduction of the number of graduate students teaching courses

The Report decried "attitudes towards and capacity for traditional scholarship" in certain Centers of the School and concluded that "there is a need, in some cases an urgent need, to revise and restructure the operation" of the School. It noted that it had neglected to review off-campus programs of the School.



Dr. Tom Clark, in a letter to the Secretary of the Faculty Senate, disassociated himself from the Committee. He said that a final draft of the report had not been sent to all Committee members, that the Administration of the Ed School hadn not been given the opportunity to correct factual errors in the document, and that many of the paper's statements were misleading and inaccurate. In response to Dr. Clark's statement, Dt. Otto Stein, head of the Botany Department and a member of the Committee, said that although the purpose of the study "wasn't to worry about good things" in the School, the review was, nevertheless, a "relatively positive report". He also stated that it was his understanding that the final draft was not reviewed by the Ed School's administration, and that a semantical misunderstanding had occurred concerning a final review by the Committee members of the Report's last draft.

Clark agreed that the Report would "cause the School to more carefully monitor and evaluate" its programs. This was echoed by Dr. David Schimel, Chairman of the Ed School's Executive Committee. "What we want to do," Schimmel said, "is really consider this, welcome it, and go beyond it."

Schimmel noted that the Executive Committee would recommend to the School Council, the governing body of the School composed of faculty, grad students and undergraduates, that a study be made "to seek more information about the procedures, evaluative criteria, evidence, omissions and possible errors involved in the Evaluation of the School of Education". A strong directive will also be made by the Executive Committee for "immediate, open, full and careful consideration" of the Faculty Senate's evaluation results.

One member of the Review Committee from the School of Education, Dr. Thomas Hutchinson, questioned the appropriateness of some of the evaluation procedures. Recognizing that the Committee "focused on areas of weakness", Hutchinson said that many of the Report's generalizations were based on casual observations. There was a "systematic bias", he added, "toward unusual examples of poor performance", and little note of those exemplary performances.

The School of Education Review Committee was established last year by the Faculty Senate to evaluate changes and innovations that had taken place in the Ed School since Dr. Dwight W. Allen became Dean in January, 1968. The Committee's recommendations are not binding unless appropriate Faculty Senate Committees study and make them into motions. On March 4, the Report will be presented to the Senate.

Marcos Munos, New England co-ordinator of the United Farm Workers (UFW) spoke last night in Amherst. He explained the situation which faces the lettuce growers and urged a boycott of non-UFW lettuce. (MDC photo by Dave Bernstein)

Growers Cloud Lettuce Issue

By JIM MITCHELL
MDC Staff

"We help them to understand there alone no more"

Speaking before a small group in Amherst last night, Marcos Munos New England Coordinator of the United Farm Workers lettuce boycott explained the plight of the lettuce pickers in California and tried to gain support from students to picket stores selling non-U.F.W. lettuce.

The main problem that is hindering the success of the boycott thus far seems to be consumer misunderstanding, Munos said. He claims there has been a deliberate attempt on the part of the larger lettuce growers to confuse the public into buying the lettuce they have been urged to boycott.

Munos said that some of the growers in a backhanded move, signed contracts with the Teamsters union which pickers for the most part did not support. This allowed the growers to use the union label on their produce, which in effect induced well intentioned consumers into buying the boycotted label, he said. Munos stressed that only lettuce bearing the U.F.W. label is acceptable.

Although progress in persuading growers to sign up with the U.F.W. has been slow, the workers are beginning to feel united, Munos said. They now have a feeling of guarded hope in their long battle against the growers, he added.

In an informal discussion before the meeting, Marylu Cronin, a UMass student reported on the fairly successful Big Y picket in Northampton yesterday afternoon. She said although the store manager denied carrying the boycotted lettuce on his shelves, there was evidence that it was being sold. She said he did give the group some assurance that the store would try to stock the U.F.W. lettuce in the future.

On campus, it appears that non-U.F.W. lettuce is still being served in the dining commons. Several students who spoke to Joel Stoneham, head of the food services department, reported that he would consider serving U.F.W. lettuce if it could be proven that there was student support on this matter.

SENIORS!

IF YOU'RE LOOKING TO YOUR FUTURE, LOOK TO US.

TALK TO US about Home Office Positions in such areas as:

- ACCOUNTING & FINANCIAL ANALYSIS
- ACTUARIAL SCIENCE
- ADMINISTRATION
- INVESTMENT ANALYSIS
- PROGRAMMING & SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

Head right for the Placement Office and pick up a copy of our booklet, "Your Opportunity at the Mutual Benefit Life."

AND

Be sure to make an appointment to see our Representative.

He will be on Campus on Thursday, March 4, 1971.

THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY
520 Broad St., Newark, New Jersey 07101
An Equal Opportunity Employer

In The Nation And The World

Key S. Viet Bases In Laos Attacked

SAIGON (AP)–The allied thrust against the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos pushed American casualties last week to their highest tell in 3 1/2 months, it was learned Thursday.

Informed sources said 59 Americans were killed in action and 42 more died of nonhostile causes, highest total since last Sept. 5. Sources attributed most of the casualties to the major support being provided by the United States for the South Vietnamese ground incursion into Laos.

On the battlefield, South Vietnamese headquarters said enemy gunners shelled three South Vietnamese bases inside Laos on Wednesday night in an area where the U.S. command said air strikes have knocked holes in the enemy supply line on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

South Vietnamese headquarters said North Vietnamese gunners attacked an artillery base and two ranger positions in the lower panhandle of Laos.

Field reports said six more U.S. helicopters were shot down or damaged in the fighting around the ranger positions.

South Vietnamese headquarters made no mention of ground fighting in the artillery attacks, but reported two small ground clashes at other points inside Laos.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird denied that the South Vietnamese drive begun Feb. 8 has bogged down.

"The operation is going according to plan," he said.

Field reports said four American helicopters were hit Tuesday and two more Wednesday at one of the ranger bases, a new installation that was being set up.

These reports, from helicopter pilots, said the six aircraft were shot down or damaged, but it was not clear how many were lost.

Since the South Vietnamese drive into Laos began, the U.S. Command has acknowledged the loss on both sides of the border of 29 helicopters, with 40 Americans killed, 15 missing and 26 wounded.

Spokesmen for the South Vietnamese command again rported no forward movement by the main body of the 16,000-man government force pushing into Laos. They said forward elements remained about 16 miles inside the country.

On the northern front, Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the 1st Infantry Division, told Associated Press correspondent William Barton that Highway 9 still is not open inside Laos for supply missions because of North Vietnamese ambushes.

The U.S. Command said American air strikes against the Ho Chi Minh trail network had resulted in major destruction to enemy supply facilities.

Spokesmen estimated that 800 tons of ammunition, more than 120 supply and weapons caches, 330 vehicles and four fuel pipelines had been destroyed.

The United States has been providing full air support to the South Vietnamese drive, and has mounted some of the major raids of the war in its strikes against the U.S. authorities have maintained that no American ground combat forces would enter Laos. About 9,000 American troops in support and blocking positions on the Vietnamese side of the border have come under increased, although so far small, enemy pressure.

The big U.S. Army combat base at Quang Tri was hit Wednesday night by an enemy rocket attack. Seventeen 122mm rockets crashed into the base, but damage and casualties were reported light with no fatilities. It was the first time Quang Tri had been shelled since last June.

While no major fighting was reported in South Vietnam or in a push by South Vietnamese troops into Cambodia, there were the usual sporadic engagements.

South Vietnamese headquarters said a government marine battalion killed 32 enemy in an area six miles southeast of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. Twelve more enemy were said to have been killed near the Cambodian town of Kampong Trach, and 15 near Kandel Chrum. Cambodian and South Vietnamese casualties were given as one killed and four wounded.

A report from Phnom Penh said Cambodian and South Vietnamese forces were taking part in the sweep along the Mekong River, Southeast of the capital in an operation aimed at improving security around Phnom Penh.

Laird Says Laos Drive Achieving Objectives

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and a top general emphatically denied Wednesday that the South Vietnamese drive against enemy supply routes in Laos has bogged down. "The operation is going according to plan," Laird said.

Air Force Lt. Gen. John W. Vogt, director of the Joint Military Staff, said reports that the drive is mired down are far from the truth.

Saying such reports are "usually attributable to a junior officer in the field," the general added somewhat testily:

"There seems to be an impatience on the part of a great many people to have an operation achieve total success in two weeks....

"Nobody in his fondest dreams ever hoped we would achieve all the objectives in the first two weeks."

Vogt, who heads a key staff under the Joint Chiefs said the "decision to pause at this particular point was made because of a desire to assess the enemy actions at this time, observe where he did intend to attack."

Laird and Vogt appeared at a news conference obviously designed to counter rising concern in Congress and elsewhere that the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail is running aground and possibly is in danger of failure.

Somewhat dramatically, Pentagon officials unveiled for newsmen a section of what they said was the enemy's motor fuel pipeline reported severed by South Vietnamese forces. They said this seriously impaired North Vietnamese ability to use trucks to carry war equipment and supplies down the trails to their troops in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Laird and Vogt claimed major objectives already have been achieved

Nixon Asks Fed. Authority To Expand Consumer Safety

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon sent Congress Wednesday a consumer message proposing federal authority to regulate the safety of a broad range of goods.

The presidential message which is to be followed late this week by specific bills, also expanded duties of his consumer adviser and proposed expanded powers for the Federal Trade Commission, federal standards for warranties, authority for aggrieved consumers to band together in court suits too small for prosecution separately and a review of the adequacy of small claims courts.

The major difference from the last consumer proposals spelled out by the President in October 1969 was a bill giving the Department of Health, Education and Welfare the power to ban virtually any consumer product which presents an "imminent hazard" to health or safety. Similar authority exists now only for drugs, toys and hazardous substances.

"This is by far the greatest, most important consumer message any president has yet released," said Virginia H. Knauer, presidential assistant for consumer affairs.

Democratic Congressmen who will deal with the proposed legislation, however said the President's proposals don't go far enough. They said they intend to push their own consumer proposals.

The few positive steps in the presidential message are outweighed by backsteps, sidesteps and backsteps to confuse and mislead the consumer, said Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal of New York, chairman of a House consumer subcommittee.

Rosenthal and 132 other Democrats as well as 25 House Republicans have introduced identical bills setting up an independent agency to act as the federal consumer advocate. A similar bill, opposed by the White House, passed the Senate and cleared committee in the House last year but died by a tie vote in the House Rules Committee.

Supreme Court Rules On Self-Incrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) – Prosecutors may use illegally obtained confessions to prove to a jury that a defendant who testifies is lying, the Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 Wednesday.

The decision, announced by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, significantly narrowed the Warren Court's controversial Miranda decision and some of the protection it gave defendants against self-incrimination.

At issue was trial use of statements made to police by suspects who had not been advised of their constitutional rights to remain silent.

Burger's five-man majority reached the conclusion that the 1966 ruling did not bar prosecutors from using such statements to impeach the credibility of a defendant.

That is, Burger said, when the defendant takes the stand and gives an account that conflicts with what he told police, the prosecutor may bring out the otherwise inadmissible statement during cross-examination.

The four-man minority led by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., hotly disputed this interpretation of the Miranda decision.

They said Miranda prohibited the use of illegally obtained confessions by prosecutors, either in making their case directly or during cross-examination.

"Moreover," Brennan said, "It is monstrous that courts should aid or abet the lawbreaking police officer."

The ruling went against Viven Harris of New Rochelle, N.Y., who was convicted in 1966 of selling heroin to an undercover police officer. Harris is serving a 6-8 year term.

During his trial, Harris testified he knew the agent and to defraud him had sold him a bag of baking powder for $12.

The prosecution then recalled a statement Harris gave to police immediately after his arrest. In it, the suspect said the officer had used him as a middleman to buy some heroin from a third person.

Burger noted that since police did not tell Harris he could remain silent his statement could not be used to convict him.

More Govt. Funds Needed To Curb Water Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP)—More federal money and legal assistance is needed if the states are to purify the nation's polluted rivers, lakes and streams, a delegation of governors told the Senate Wednesday.

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan said the government's failure to supply promised funds is seriously crippling the pollution abatement program.

Michigan has a $1.6 billion water pollution abatement program underway, he said with a quarter of the cost to be shared by the state, a quarter by the city and half by the federal government.

So far, he said, the government has contributed only 5 percent of the money, forcing the cities and states to absorb greater shares of the cost.

Milliken made his remarks during a talk with Sen. Edmund Muskie, D—Maine who is sponsoring legislation to combat water pollution.

Both Muskie's proposal and one by the Nixon administration would increase federal funds available to communities and states to construct abatement facilities.

Sen. John D. McClellan, D—Ark., told the governors he expected little opposition to an interstate pollution compact to permit states to enter into agreements to solve mutual pollution problems.

The compact was developed by the Southern Governor's Conference and introduced in the Senate this year. McClellan said he expected it to be passed by June.

The compact is basically an umbrella bill under which West Virginia and Ohio, for example, could work together to clean up the Ohio River without requiring special legislation.

Travel Plans for Europe?

Write SOFA, SOFA is the operator of over 5000 Student Charter Flights connecting more than 50 European cities (Also Tel Aviv, Bombay, Bangkok, Nairobi) Up to 70% savings over normal fares.

Dear SOFA, Please send me information on all travel bargains for individual students in Europe, including listings of Student Flights.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Mail to: SOFA, European Student Travel Center, 1563 Broadway, New York, NY 10036. (212) 586-2060. 39

For tours to Eastern Europe, student hotels, riding & sailing camps, contact NBBS, 576 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10036 (212) 765-7427

YOU ARE INVITED TO DROP IN AND BROWSE

Town and Country Bldg.
2nd Floor-Over RAPPS Delicatessen

Governors Seek Revenues; Mills Opposes Nixon Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - A dozen lobbyists from all over the country sat Wednesday morning huddled hopefully around the man some call the most powerful member of Congress.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the neat-as-a-pin, conservative Arkansas Democrat, had arrived early to give the highly placed lobbyists a chance to plead their case.

Yhe issue: President Nixon's plan to give $5 billion in federal revenues to state and local governments on a non-strings-attached basis.

The lobbyists: about a dozen of the nation's governors, headed by Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

The result: Mills, chairman of the taxwriting House Ways and Means Committee, appeared unwavering in his often-stated opposition to the Nixon proposal.

The meeting was officially closed to the press, although The Associated Press gained entrance.

"This is going to get rough, because our cities are going to go under," Rockefeller told Mills and Rep. John Byrnes of Wisconsin, top Republican on the committee and another revenue-sharing opponent. "And we aren't going to be able to do anything about it" without federal help.

"New York is going to a 17 per cent maximum graduated income tax with a 10 per cent surcharge," Rockefeller said. "We're killing ourselves just like Johnny Chafee killed himself in Rhode Island. Pennsylvania runs out of cash next week."

Rockefeller said Trenton,N.J. is a perfect example of a city that can't pay for the services its citizens demand, with "teachers on strike and policemen picketing.

"We're going to get to a point where we won't be able to pay these guys and you're going to have the Department of Interior collecting garbage in New York."

Byrnes countered that the U.S. government is in debt too. "Why don't we acknowledge to the American people," Byrnes said, "that dammit things are at a point where we can't give people all the services they want and still pay for it."

"And now," Mills put in, "since you can't raise your own money, you're coming here for the federal government's"

"It isn't the federal government's money," Rockefeller retorted in his gravel-like voice. "It's the taxpayers' money."

Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia argued the plan would make local and state governments more efficient and make those officials, rather than faceless federal bureaucrats, responsible to voters.

Mills, briefly, went on the defensive:

"If you think it's easier to raise taxes in Washington than in the states...."

"But you don't raise them here," three governors answered.

"You just cut 'em up," Rockefeller said.

Mills told the governors he agreed with many of their points, but said the federal government would have to go too far in debt to accommodate them.

He suggested changing to the states' advantage some of the current federal-state matching-fund formulas. And, Mills said, he would be willing for Social Security to absorb costs in welfare programs for the blind and retarded.

"But I couldn't agree ever to take over 100 per cent of the welfare mess," he said.

Defense Rests In Calley Trial

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)-Lt. William Calley's defense rested Wednesday after he testified at his court-martial that during the mass execution of My Lai villagers "the main thing was to go in, finish these people off as fast as possible and get my men out into position."

It wasn't any big deal," the 27-year-old Calley said, referring to unresisting Vietnamese men, women and small children who fell beneath the automatic rifles of American infantrymen at a drainage ditch in My Lai on March 16, 1968. Calley ended the equivalent of two full court days of testimony at 4:32 p.m.-EST-and the defense immediately rested.

The trial was recessed overnight with the prosecution scheduled to present rebuttal testimony Thursday from the first of three government psychiatrists. They examined Calley early this month and pronounced him "perfectly normal."

The trial began Nov. 12 and the government rested Dec. 8, reopening its case briefly for two supplementary witnesses.

Calley is being tried by a six-man jury of superior officers. He is accused of the premeditated murder of 102 civilians in My Lai while leading an infantry platoon of Charley Company on an assault mission near the South China Sea. The government said 70 or more of the victims died at the ditch. Calley admitted ordering the execution in the ditch, but said he did so under orders of superiors. However, the defendant denied the government's charge that he ordered killed, and helped kill, an additional 30 civilians along a trail in the village.

Capt. Aubrey Daniel, the prosecutor, completed his cross-examination in midafternoon, after interrogating Calley for the equivalent of a full court day.

In one of the final exchanges Calley was asked:

Q. Did you ever receive any instructions on how to treat prisoners?

A. Yes sir. To treat him with respect. Don't humiliate them. Keep them silent. Keep them separate. Keep them guarded.

The defense had stressed Calley's respect for his company commander, Capt. Ernest Medina, and his unquestionable obedience to the latter's orders, which were said to include the shooting of anything that moved at My Lai.

On redirect examination, chief defense attorney George Latimer asked Calley about adherence to Medina's orders. Calley said: "You had better carry them out now and as readily as possible."

Calley had admitted joining his men in firing into the My Lai ditch with his automatic rifle.

Palestinians Agree to Merge

In an effort to save the Palestinian guerrilla movement from collapse, commando leader Yasir Arafat and Brig. Abdelrazzak Yahya, commander of the Palestine Liberation Army, have agreed to merge the 11 main guerrilla groups.

Meeting over the weekend in Damascus, Syria, with the Central Committee of the guerrilla movement, the two chiefs also agreed to curb leftist commando groups urging the overthrow of Jordan's King Hussein.

Informants said the two reached agreement to try to avert an open rebellion against the guerrillas by the 7,000-man Palestine Liberation Army stationed in Syria.

PLA officers have been concerned over the inability of the guerrillas to challenge the growing momentum for a peaceful settlement between the Arab states and Israel, the sources said. The officers were reported to have authorized Yahya to make pulic demands for drastic reforms in the resistance movement. It marked the first challenge to Arafat's leadership since he became top man in the guerrilla movement.

The Palestinian guerrilla movement currently is grouped together under the Palestine Liberation Organization- the PLO- under the over-all leadership of Arafat. But the organization is loose and each guerrilla organization has been acting as it pleases.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-a Marxist organization-carried out the hijackings of Western airliners last September, for example. Other groups, such as Arafat's Al Fatah organization, had nothing to do with the seizures.

Yahya's demands also include an inquiry into the "disastrous errors" that led to the September civil war in Hordan and brought the guerrillas to their knees.

The sources said Arafat agreed to most of Yahya's demands.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said his government is conducting all diplomatic moves linked to the Middle East crisis "without regard" for the March 7 deadline Anwar Sadat has set expiration of the cease-fire.

Israel has complained that the 30-day cease-fire is an attempt to force it to negotiate under pressure. But Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has said expiration of the cease-fire would not necessarily mean a resumption of the shooting war.

Eban told the Knesset-Israel's parliament-that his government's formal reply to Egyptian peace proposals would be handed "soon to U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring.

Egypt said last week it was ready to make peace with Israel on condition that the Israelis pull back from all territory seized during the 1967 Middle East war.

The Israeli government has welcomed Cairo's reference to peace, but insisted that Israel would never withdraw to its prewar borders.

House Kills Pay Raise

BOSTON (AP)-The state House of Representatives Wednesday killed a bill already passed by the Senate, which would have raised the base salary of Massachusetts legislators $1,200 over the next two years.

The 280 state legislators now receive a base pay of $11,400.

The bill, killed on a 100 to 133 roll call vote following lengthy debate, also would have provided a one-third increment over the base pay for all chairmen for the legislature's 18 joint standing committees.

The chairmen of four joint committees now receive additional pay.

The measure was voted down by the House following two attempts by the Republican minority leadership to divide the bill into two issues-the pay raise and the extension of additional compensation to the committee chairmen.

Two substitute measures proposed by Rep. Francis W. Hatch Jr., minority leader, to separate the issues were defeated on roll call votes.

T. O. LEAVITT

has already had his Senior Portrait taken. Don't forget to make an appointment for yours in the Index Office, S.U.

Actresses Nominated For Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP)-The general public's reaction to the Academy Award nominations for best actress might well be: Who are they?

Jane Alexander, Glenda Jackson, Sarah Miles and Carrie Snodgrass aren't exactly household words.

Only Ali McGraw among the nominees was well-known, largely because of the immense publicity surrounding the hit "Love Story."

None of the five nominees had ever been up for an Oscar before. For Miss Alexander, "The Great White Hope" and Miss Snodgrass, "The Diary of a Mad Housewife" it was the first time they had been seen in a feature film. Miss McGraw had appeared in only one previous movie, "Goodbye Columbus." All three are Americans.

Miss Jackson was nominated for her third film, "Women in Love." She is English, as is Sarah Miles, the only nominee experienced in films. Nominated for "Ryan's Daughter," she previously appeared in "The Servant," "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines," "The Ceremony," "Blow-up," and other British movies.

Why did Academy voters nominate such newcomers?

For one thing, the woman's role in films has been declining ever since World War II.

In the 1930's, there poured forth hundreds of "women's pictures." Female audiences flocked to matinees to agonize the travails of Norma Shearer, Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo, Barbara Stanwyck and others.

The war brought a new toughness and realism to the screen. Movie scenes became bigger and more action- filled, requiring masculine stars. Television destroyed theater matinees.

"We were lucky in the '30's, said Bette Davis. "The studios created scripts for us. Nobody writes 'women's pictures' anymore."

For the last decade, women have been disappearing from the Motion Picture Herald's annual list of top box-office stars. This year's top 10 included only one actress, Barbra Streisand, who was No. 9.

SUNDANCE WATER BEDS

187 MAIN ST.
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

A truly sensual experience.
Come down and try it.
It's good for sleeping and other things too!

Open 11 a.m. - 8 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.

INCLUDES:
Elegant wooden frame
Safety liner
Liner supports
Guaranteed water mattress
all for $99.00

BECOME A N.Y.U. NURSE

Do you want the identity of a professional practitioner? Do you want to work with, not just among, professional colleagues in the health field?

As a N.Y.U. Nurse you have case assignments ... not just nursing routine. Planning and sharing with doctors, physical therapists, social workers and other ancillary personnel are all part of our unique staff utilization program that combines opportunity and advancement with direct patient care.

Join our staff and receive unparalleled growth opportunity, inservice training and free tuition toward graduate studies.

For full details about nursing at N.Y.U., see our campus recruiter on MARCH 5, 1971. Check details as to time and place with your placement office ... or write or call collect:

Miss M. Kerans, (212) OR 9-3200, Ext. 2647

N.Y.U. Medical Center

568 First Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10016

an equal opportunity employer

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Sigma Sigma won "A Night of Dramatics" presented by the Panhellenic Council for doing their skit form "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown". Judging was based on interpretation,selection, visual attributes, and auditory attributes. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

Debate Arises On WMUA's Move To Student Union

WMUA's proposed move to the Student Union underwent close analysis yesterday as the Space Allocation committee of the Student Union Governing Board met to discuss long range planning.

Station manager Ken Horseman was asked by Chairman Shawn Fitzgerald to state the needs of the station with respect to the physical space it would require in the Union. The allocation of space to the radio station was under discussion because of conflicts in the long range plans, Fitzgerald said.

Three levels of activity are in the process of being planned for the space the Student Union provides, Fitzgerald explained. He said that the first level of the building (where the Hatch is located) would be for heavy traffic, the second floor would be utilized for meetings and ongoing programs and the third level (balcony) would be a light traffic area locating campus communications all on that one floor.

Debate arose over the space for WMUA on the third floor. Horseman said that the square footage, security provision, area for layout, and facilities for conversion to air conditioning were not so adequate on the third floor of the Union as in the old bookstore on the first level.

It was stated that the bookstore was originally slated for radio station occupancy. Fitzgerald explained that Free University, which presently occupies the space, moved into the bookstore on the understanding that it was a tentative arrangement. WMUA contended that it should be allocated the space on the basis of the previous contract.

Another immediate concern on the communications level was the location of the new student television studio. Horseman said there was no way the two groups could share facilities.

Several proposals were offered to consider keeping WMUA on the third floor, and to divide the television studios between the second and third levels. No definite decision could be made at this time Fitzgerald said, but allocations would be made after the entire long range picture and all requests were considered.

Free U. Opens Co-op Food Store

By ANNE STADNICKI
MDC Staff

A co-operative food store opened yesterday at its temporary location in the Free University Center to take orders and payments for macro-biotic foods.

Don Lorenson, one of the organizers of the store, said that twenty-eight members had joined so far, at $2 per member. The fee will be returned when and if the member drops out of the co-op, he said.

Monthly dues of $1 have also been collected, according to Lorenson. This remuneration will go towards rent, purchase of a scale, license, shipping, packaging and making up the losses accrued in buying small quantities of products not at wholesale prices, he explained.

"What we most need now is a refrigerator, and preferably a vegetable cooler," Lorenson announced.

He said that in the near future, probably in one month, the store would be in complete operation. It will carry dry good items, for instance beans, nuts, dried fruits and seeds, dairy goods, and fresh fruits and vegetables, he went on. Honey, oil and salt will also be available, he said.

Lorenson suggested that customers bring in bags and marked measuring jars when they come to pick up their orders.

Deliveries will continue to be made to Free University until the operation expands and can provide better service from a location in Amherst, he said.

ROOT

is the name of this year's Index photographer. Be sure to make your appointment now. Deadline for appointments is Tuesday, March 2nd in the Index office.

McGovern Proposes Campaign Subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP)-Democratic Sen. George McGovern, the only announced candidate for the White House in 1972, proposed Wednesday that the federal government help pay for the coming presidential campaign. The South Dakota senator introduced a bill that would create a system of expenditure ceilings and subsidies, for presidential and congressional campaigns.

His formula would limit campaign expenditures by the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees in 1972 to $36.6 million apiece, with half that sum to come from the Treasury in the form of campaign drawing accounts.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott prepared to introduce a measure that would repeal all ceilings on candidate expenditures, but institute new limits on individual campaign contributions.

Scott promised to propose new campaign reform legislation after President Nixon vetoed a bill that would have limited campaign broadcast spending.

Scott said then he hoped to present an administration-endorsed bill, but aides said the Pennsylvanian's new proposal does not carry White House backing.

The GOP leader said he has conferred with the White House on its terms. "They have seen the bill and they know of its contents," he said.

MANY GOING?

. . . charter a Peter Pan Bus to wherever it is you're going.

Peter Pan
The Lobby Shop, Student Union Bldg.
Univ. of Mass.
Tel. 545-2006 or 545-2528

SPRING is just around the corner!!!

It's Time To Get Your SUN CHEATERS
FROM
don call
GUILD OPTICIAN
56 Main St. 253-7002 Amherst

HERE THIS WEEK-END!
GARY BURTON QUARTET
Friday & Saturday Feb. 26-27
BOWKER AUDITORIUM 8 p.m.
A NIGHT OF GOOD VIBES
SPECIAL! Gary and the Quartet will participate in Seminar on Friday, 2:30 p.m. and Jazz Workshop on Saturday, 2:30 p.m. Comp tickets to those buying tickets to either evening concert.
Evening concert tickets: $1.50 for UMass undergrads; $2 other students; $2.50 UMass faculty/staff; $3 others.
Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter
(Remaining tickets at Bowker, 7 P.M.)
Telephone 545-0202 for both offices.

FEMME FETALE
if the five finalists don't have it, then no one does.
VOTE TODAY
Winter Carni Queen
Student Union Lobby
winter carni 1971

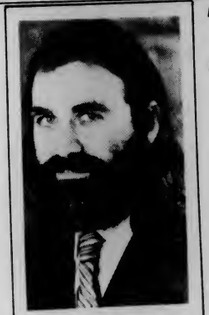
Sociologist Predicts New Moral Codes

New York, --A prominent sociologist today predicted the establishment of new moral codes in the "foreseeable future" which will permit "highly variegated" patterns of sex, marriage and family life in America.

Writing in the current issue of Redbook magazine, just released, Dr. John F. Cuber of Ohio State University reported that a study he conducted among college students showed they no longer accept legal, ecclesiastical or parental codes but instead adhere to "the moral and practical propriety of a variety of sexual life-styles."

Explaining the difference between today's "sexual revolution" and that of the 20's and 30's, Dr. Cuber said, "There is a profound difference between someone who breaks the rules and someone who does not accept the rules. and the members of this generation..simply do not accept the rules any longer." Their revolution is already affecting the lives of all of us, he declared.

Although many young people do not wish to engage in "forbidden acts," they strongly believe that every individual should be free to make his own choice. "They assert the moral right--indeed, the moral obligation--of each person to work out his own code, or lack of one, and they grant him the right to live by it as long as there is no harm to other people."



Dr. Cuber described our future society as one in which "the nuclear family--a father, a mother and children--will certainly persist. But some groups will live in communes where paternity is deliberately unrecognized and where unequal numbers of men, women and children remain more or less permanently attached to one another.

"The casual, hedonistic philosophy will continue to attract substantial numbers of younger men and women; some young married couples will engage in organized and unorganized mate-trading. Heterosexuality will flourish side by side with homosexuality.

"Shocking as it may seem to many, I think we will simply have to get used to neighbors and children, students and colleagues, patients and clients with ideologies and life-styles very, very different from our own," Dr. Cuber contended in his Redbook article.

"We have grown accustomed to such differences with respect to religious, political and social philosophies--though not without acrimony, bloodshed and even war. We may as well prepare with better grace to accept diversity where sex and marriage and family are concerned."

Dr. Cuber, a professor of sociology and anthropology at Ohio State, is the author of "The Significant Americans," an in-depth study of marriage in the United States which was first reported in Redbook five years ago.

Apparently upset by his long hair and activism, the congregation of Temple Shaaray Tefila in New York voted to dismiss Rabbi Philip Schechter, above. The rabbi said his hair was as long as it is now when he was recruited last June from a temple in Atlantic City, N.J.

Rabbi Kahane, JOL Leader, Expelled From Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, tried to get into a conference on Soviet Jewry Wednesday but was arrested and expelled from the country.

He was hustled aboard a London-bound plane by policemen who drove him in a car to the aircraft's leading ramp.

Rabbi Kahane was calm but unsmiling.

He had been in Brussels less than 12 hours.

The reason for his expulsion was that he was troubling public order, a Justice Ministry source said.

Rabbi Kahane, whose organization has been harassing Soviet diplomats in the United States, had just made an unsuccessful attempt to join an international congress of Jewish communities on the fate of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Two companions, who had been briefly detained, were freed. They are Sam Sheshan, his press relations man, and Dov Sperling, a 33-year-old Israeli who left the Soviet Union two years ago.

The Justice Ministry said "Rabbi Kahane arrived in Belgium with the intention to attend the congress, where he was not scheduled to participate. He was questioned and said he wanted to speak at the congress."

The Justice Ministry said the three had been picked up by police because congress leaders did not appreciate their presence. Organizers replied there was no reason for arrest but they would not let them in.

Sperling reported at a news conference that police let him go after he said he intended no demonstration against the conference and actually favored it.

Rabbi Kahane's detention and expulsion took the spotlight at the meeting itself.

Dr. Morris Brafman, of Far Rockaway, N.Y. a friend of Rabbi Kahane, rushed to the platform and grabbed a microphone to tell what had happened. There was an uproar in the hall, and Brafman was hustled back to his seat.

The arrest of Rabbi Kahane, who was convicted in New York on Tuesday as a result of an anti-Soviet demonstration, brought an angry response from the Jewish Defense League.

Veteran Benefits Tax Exempt

Veterans benefits are generally exempt from taxation and need not be reported as income on income tax returns, the Veterans Administration announced today.

The VA said the only reportable item is interest earned on GI insurance dividends left on deposit or credit with the VA since this is considered earned income and a veterans' benefit.

GI insurance dividends themselves are not taxable, VA said, nor are proceeds from GI insurance policies.

Other major tax exempt benefits are compensation and pension, GI Bill and other educational assistance, subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees, and grants for homes or autos to severely disabled veterans.

Nixon Aide Raps SST End

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's science adviser said Wednesday refusal to go ahead with the experimental supersonic transport program would be "timidity and lack of courage" on the part of Congress and the country.

Dr. Edwan E. David, Jr. said that only by building prototype SSTs can environmental questions about the airplane be answered. Depending on these answers, he said, a decision would then be made on whether to build a fleet of SSTs.

"Make no mistake," David said, "a limitation on experimentation in whatever cause is the beginning of a wider suppression. When we fail to experiment, we fail. In failing, we bring the best part of American society as we know it today to a halt."

The President's science adviser spoke at a seminar on science and public policy at the National Academy of Sciences. The seminar was held by the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing.

"There are many evidences," David said, "that society does not believe that technology can be controlled in a rational way. Because of that, society is losing its courage to experiment."

Trip Planned To Peace Talks

One hundred and seventy Americans from 41 states will leave from New York's Kennedy Airport on March 3 for a week-long conference with principals in the Paris talks and others. Their objective is finding out what the requisites for peace in Southeast Asia really are.

The Citizens Conference on Ending the War in Indochina, as the project is called, is sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), Clergy and Laymen Concerned (CALC) and the Fellowship of Reconciliation (FOR).

"The conference will afford a large number of American citizens access to and thoughtful discussion with many persons long familiar with the Indochina struggle," explained Stewart Meacham, peace education secretary of the AFSC. "We hope that upon their return to the United States, the participants will be new and creative interpreters, in their respective communities, of what they understand the requisites of peace to really be."

Participants expect to meet with representatives of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam (PRG, formerly the National Liberation Front), the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam), the Republic of Vietnam (Saigon) and the U.S. Delegation.

Meetings are also being arranged with representatives of the National United Front of Cambodia, the Laotian Student Union and various independent South Vietnamese groups opposed to the war (including Buddhists, Catholics, students and groups supporting dissident members of the Saigon Administration's National Assembly.)

Mr. Allan Brick, national program director of the FOR, said that in addition to meeting with official government representatives at the peace talks "we are anxious to learn a great deal more about the recent upsurge of civilian resistance to the war in the large cities of South Vietnam. We want to reach a better understanding of what the Vietnamese people themselves are struggling for."

Nomination Papers for
STUDENT SENATE
are available for the following Dorm vacancies

Butterfield	Washington Middle
Lewis	Brett
Hills North	Pierpont
Washington Lower	Leach

DUE MARCH 5
Elections March 11

For a Variety of Cute and Beautiful MUSIC BOXES visit
Winn Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant St. Amherst

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — James Gold
NEWS STAFF — Ethel Harris, Dick Desroches, Doug Dearborn, Jeanette Martineau, Jonathan Weiner, Sharman Anderson
SPORTS — Earle T. Barroll
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
AD LAYOUT — John & Margie Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Keep It Coming

Although on the whole a very uneventful happening, the Board of Trustees meeting held in Boston yesterday did come out with a few things which seem worthy of praise and discussion. In a totally expected action, the Board approved the recommendations of the search committee for the two new academic deans and Vice Chancellor.

The selections of Dr. Allen, Dr. Alfange and Associate Provost Glickstern to their respective posts must be hailed as a wise decision in view of the experience and backgrounds of all of them. Their service to the University already has been noteworthy and it is expected that these men will be as successful in their new roles. We congratulate them and wish them luck.

In another move, President Wood announced that the University will attempt to set up some type of system for the referral of unemployed professionals and other non-workers. This innovative step would mean that U Mass, in the words of President Wood, "will make every effort to consider, evaluate and counsel those now seeking new careers."

For those who feel that the university should serve not only as an academic institution but also as a social one, this action is a step in the right direction. By the setting up of this system, the University is assuming its responsibilities as the largest single employer in Amherst. By realizing its position, and determining for itself a useful and necessary function, President Wood and UMass as a whole are displaying a sense of social awareness rarely seen in the academic world.

The Board also did not take a position on the proposed tuition hike saying that they "wanted to examine the circumstances" before coming to any conclusion. However, it is only a matter of time before the Trustees must make some decision. If the actions of President Wood and the Board at the latest meeting are an indication of an increasing spirit of awareness and responsibility, then their tuition decision should be a welcome one on this campus.

Lance Reidy

Go To The Mirror, Boy...

I have, in recent years, come to loathe "liberals" as a group. Liberals, you know, the people who might, for example, support the idea of civil rights and yet support the Indochina police action, whilst safely nestled, scotch in hand, in the security (?) of their libraries and studies. This past Friday, a good friend of mine told me that he thought that I was "awfully liberal". Silently, I said "ouch".

I didn't come out with a defensive-aggressive comment (as I once would have), partially because I no longer have a psychological need to "one-up" anyone verbally, partially also because he was, still is, and (Lord willing) will continue to be a man with whom I can talk freely and to the point about nearly any thing and expect a sincere and licid perspective in return. Thirdly, the final reason that I remained silent was the most to the point, actually...that being that he was completely correct. We were speaking upon the subject of sexism, and Gay Liberation in particular. I plead liberalism, guilty as charged, good friend.

Sexism is the fundamental dynamic underlying the concept of competion. Competion is the mortar which unifies the capitalist pyramid. Capitalism is the world view, and the way in which exploitation, materialism, racism, colonialism imperialism, genocide, and sexism are fostered, nurtured, and inflicted upon the people of our entire world.

Today, the vast majority of human relationships in American life are unsatisfying, lacking in tangible interpersonal fulfillment. America has everyone running around (chasing the elusive dollar), competing with one another. Competition and it's rewards is the economic cornerstone of this society. Just how people get the necessities of life will, at length, determine the qulity of their respective lives, as well as the attitude, style, and tone they will have in relating to others.

Wilhelm Reich once wrote that sexual repression was the first step to economic enslavement. Reversing the flow of thought here, how, then, can people relate one to another, especially with any degree of love, if they are brainwashed into the viewing of every person as a potential competitive threat?

The nurturant medium for this sorry reality is the rigid enforcement of the doctrine which is male supremacy. Men are considered normal when they are strong and dominant, to the exclusion of gentleness, sensitivity, and compassion. (really?), i.e., metal men. Women are considered normal when they are weak and passive, to the exclusion of self-expression, dynamism, and decisiveness. (really, now?), i.e., eggshell women.

Why can't men cry?...or admit to women that they "just don't know"? Why is it "unfeminine" for a woman to state her opinion as an equal, or to get (...give?) it from topside when it's cool? I'll not bother you here with the economic realities of sexism, something that you all have already faced, or yet will.

The Gay Liberation Front (GLF) is the most recent expression of the collective "no" to all of this degrading and dehumanizing bullshit, the collective "no" which is alive and vital everywhere in the technocratic world, but especially here in Babylon.

Proud and dignified gay men and women threaten these Gothic icons at their most basic roots. But, because of the sad fact that most everyone is mentally dry-cleaned to a degree, (20-odd years of half-truths and complete lies can't be liberated in a single day), every person, when faced with these cultural alternatives, feels threatened. Threatened in self-definition, even identity. Homosexuality threatens men, because they feel to be homosexual is to be less than a man (less than a human?). Women are threatened in identically parallel ways. This is ridiculous. Men are men, and all men are individuals, unique in perspective and being. And every person is a psychological and spiritual composite of masculine and feminine personality traits. This is true.

These traits have been arbitrarily defined and categorized by the pig, of the pig, for the benefit of the pig and his system of swinery. But the Pig, you see, is no fool in the accepted sense. He's hip to the threat to him, represented to him and his system by the human liberation movement. And he's "doing his thing", as we all can cee. Yes?

Gay Lib, as is the case with Women's Lib, allows people to reject all the dehumanizing masculine/feminie roles our society imposes upon the whole world, and to hence build new and meaningful relationships as human beings, not metal men and eggshell women.

I have, since accepting the invitation to be educated to Gay Lib (and to write this column) come to a number of conclusions about human liberation in general, and Gay Lib in particular: The GLF unites gay people in the intensifying struggle for a free society, where love between people can be a real reality. The GLF embraces all oppressed peoples in the effort against this dehumanizing society. It is true that no one is free save when all are free. No one has dignity save when all have dignity. This is democracy What we have as the status quo is a meritocracy.

I do not feel that Gay Lib deserves all the saturation flak it has been receiving from people with access to campus media. I don't feel that these critical champions of "decency" indeed have themselves together and liberated enough to offer an objective opinion. I don't feel that these generally repressed and insecure people, building themselves and their self-confidences up by tearing others down, should blindly criticize what they don't understand and therefore fear.

If I sound a bit casutic here, it is indeed because I feel this way. Gay Lib is getting a raw deal from this campus, and as I said, mostly from people who are insecure in themselves, insecure to the point of blind hostility towards anything, or any minority group which challenges the pillars of the status quo which these critics, in fear, clutch at so blindly. Hey! Give them the same break that you would expect if you were espousing some minority position. Don't criticize what you don't understand.

After all, isn't that the star-spangled way? (...or maybe it isn't, hmmm?)

"Hey, Kid — Lemme Have One Of Those Signs"

Make Nixon Pay The Price

During the past year the position of U.S. imperialism in Asia has become more vulnerable and the Nixon policy is in the midst of a new explosive crisis.

The pressures for th e United States to retreat from Vietnam are very heavy. They come from all quarters both externally and internally. But how to retreat without giving up the objectives of the aggression is the U.S. dilemma. The Nixon objective is no different than was the Eisenhower objective with the reactionary Diem regime. What Eisenhower and Kennedy tried to do thru Diem, Nixon is trying to do thru Thieu. The Nixon plan envisions a cut-throat South Vietnamese armed force with a smaller U.S.armed force staying for a long time in fortified centers and in airfields with their bomber fleets. This is the essence of the so-called Vietnamization of the war. Nixon's troop withdrawals are based on the expectation of such an end.

THIS PLAN IS HEADED FOR A CRISIS. There will come a point when the U.S. troop withdrawals cannot continue without affecting the military balance. This will come at a time when the military, diplomatic and political strength of the Indo-Chinese liberation forces will be greater ; when the puppet forces will be weaker.

With the new escalation in Laos and the increased bombing from the air, it appears that the crisis-point is rapidly approaching. The millions of Americans who still believe that Nixon is ending the war will become disillusioned and angered.

The American people must both increase and intensify the pressure to get out. There is a people's peace treaty which needs circulation and publicity. Rallies, marches, demonstrations, strikes, and disruptions are needed to point out to Nixon and the ruling class that if they are going to continue to commit genocide and mass-murder they will have to pay intolerable consequences on the home front.

People, you can make a difference, but we must act.

Al Fisher

Perfectly Clear

The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, (D—LA.,) stated recently that "In our present situation, I think the only way to get an all-volunteer army is to draft it."

He went on to say that the fact President Nixon already has the authority to halt student deferments should be made "crystal clear" in a draft law extension. How comprehendable and intelligent our representatives in Washington are!

Lauri Tokoi

Letters To The Editor

Have Food Will Eat

To the editor:

Once again, I feel called upon to defend the University Food Services against the depraved rantings of what appears to be an overly-privileged, self-elected Christ-figure. This letter is intended in reply to Carl Beatty's assault on Worcester D.C.. I, too, eat at Worcester. Carl, if you have a legitimate gripe, why don't you say it rather than wasting our time with this trivia?

1. I have never seen any mentionable filth left over from the previous meal on any plate. If you have been sick, chances are it has nothing to do with the D.C. There was a time when food would fester a bit in storage, but improvements have been made in that during the last semester so it doesn't happen anymore.

2. No, I haven't had the runs lately. The scratches are on the outside of the glass. The liquid does not come in contact with these scratches unless you are an expecially sloppy drinker and like to lick the sides of the glass. Anyway, most if not all the disease-carrying bacteria is killed in the hot water in the dish-washer.

3. In the case of the dogs, it is the students themselves who let the dogs in. We have chosen to eat with the dogs. Efforts to get rid of the dogs have proved fruitless because we keep letting them in again.

4. The only time I have had to go back and get another piece of silverware was when I dropped my fork. My blind friend Don suggests that you close your eyes when you eat. All the silverware tastes the same.

5. What do you want the ticket takers to do? Kiss your feet? Eat on the east side and meet Liz. She will tell you about the courtesy of the students to the ticket takers.

6. Please take into consideration the number of people that have to be served. Each person has his own individual tastes. The best the D.C. can do is to make the food flat and let each person salt and pepper it to his own liking.

7. Opening both windows for trays requires paying more students or longer time when there may not be enough work to warrant it. This in turn requires money which means a raise in the price of meal tickets. Why don't you take exercises to trim up your leg muscles for that long hard walk to the window.

8. The amount of business in the D.C. towards the end of the meals does not warrant keeping both sides open. For that reason the east side closes 15 minutes before the west side. If you can't get dinner at 6:20 on the west side, then you have a legitimate gripe.

9. It is difficult to anticipate when the large mass of students is going to come pouring in. Occasionally, the large mass will start coming earlier than expected, or, for some reason, many people will decide to arrive at the same time producing a momentarily large line which will soon dwindle. The second line usually opens when the main mass comes in. Remember, it is just as stupid to open both lines when there aren't enough people to use them.

10. My meal ticket fell apart once. I returned it and they replaced it free. A minor hassle.

11. There have been many days I haven't found hair in my food. The one time I was picking hair out of my food, it was my own hair.

12. The only times any milk dispensers have not been set up that I have noticed are just before vacations when very few people are around to use them. That technique keeps the milk from going bad. If they aren't filled, its the fault of the student in charge of them. (Sorry John.) (Sorry, Jim.) (Sorry, Ron.) Just tell them and they will fill them, happily.

13. You've got to be kidding me. Even if they are wiped between meals, the first person to eat there will dirty it up again, so by the time you get to it, it will look the same. Poor, dainty Carl. You sound like a hypochondriac. Bring your own cloth. Eat off the tray instead of the table.

14. The meat I have been getting is quite good. Since the food services has to supply the food in bulk quantity, there may be an occasional fatty piece. You seem to be unusually prone to getting them.

Yes, Carl, I have heard enough--from you. But, go ahead. Think up some more complaints. We enjoy answering your letters.

Wayne Shepard
Don Wolfe

Knock On Wood

To the editor:

I am writing this letter while waiting for a job interview. I have been waiting for fifty minutes. I have waited through lunch, and I am waiting through one of my classes now. Why? The public school interviewer is behind schedule AGAIN. I have been here three times, and each time, I have had to wait.

I am luckier than most students, though. Some aren't even allowed to have this privilege. In many cases the appointment schedules are filled weeks in advance. So I try to make an appointment, and if I am lucky, I get to wait. While I wait I think about the stranger in there who has less than twenty minutes to decide my future. I also think about the eight other students who have been scheduled to see him before 12:00 p.m. I try not to think about how nervous I am getting or about the absurdity of this whole system.

Isn't there a way that everyone could have a chance? Isn't there a way to arrange a realistic interview schedule? Isn't it difficult enough to find a job without adding to the frustration?

I am still waiting.

Sharon Lufbery

I Apologize

To the Editor:

"For Christ's sake, why don't you people get organized," was the wrong thing for me to say (and I apologize) to math methods instructor Masalski Tuesday in front of his whole class. Because indeed, that particular methods course is somewhat organized. But for the second week in a row, a friend and I, and probably many more people, were denied admission to that class, "for lack of room." What I should have said was, "THANKS (ha! ha!) for even bothering to consider the students when you planned your course."

My entire curriculum this semester is based on modular credit; for each of my required methods courses I must complete a specified number of performance credits (PC's), which often require a good amount of independent research. I must admit that I appreciate and enjoy this academic freedom. But in order to fulfill many of the PC assignments, it is necessary to attend classes and lectures. Note: these classes are entirely optional, but if you want to pass, you must attend them. Of course, you can't get in because there is no room, but apparently, says tne School of Education, that's your problem. I had signed up a week in advance for that math class, yet I was informed at 9:05 Tuesday morning that the sign-up sheet became void at 9:00. This completely ignores the university class schedule times, (ie., 8:00, 9:05, 10:10, etc.), and is hardly considerate of the student who is coming across campus from an 8:00 class.

It is a problem of consideration: The four methods courses in the School of Education are a small-scale modular credit system. But the school places so much emphasis on the system itself that the needs and rights of the students are entirely neglected.

It is obvious that the instructors for the individual methods courses never got together to coordinate their assignments or class meeting times. Either that, or they deliberately planned conflicting class times and redundant assignments. God only knows what's going on in the social studies methods course. And the reading methods course alone requires completion of forty-eight PC's, yet the "simple, twenty-minute PC assignments" often take more than two hours. Try doing forty-eight of them for two lousy credits.

Yes, I am upset about Tuesday's "non-class." But that's not the point. The point is that it's going to be this way the whole semester. We the students have to put up with the utter chaos and simply amazing work loads of the elementary education methods courses. This modular credit system might do wonders for the School of Education's reputation as a highly progressive institution, but at this point, it has no regards for the needs of the students. Can't something be done for us this semester?

A Meneely

From The Heart

To Mr. Larry Carr:

I'll admit that my comparison was a little exaggerated. Don't get me wrong--I sincerely believe that Bernadette Devlin is a courageous, outstanding woman. I admire her person, but I feel that she is saying exactly what she wants to say. To give Miss Devlin a compliment, she is trying to speak from the heart.

But so also do I speak from the heart. I have tasted and eaten poverty, I am on a collection committee for the poor, and I plan to live and work in the ghetto. I have been and felt the working class. Perhaps I do have an interest in the maintenance of Babylon, whatever you meant by that.

Miss Devlin said herself that experience is the best teacher. Well, then perhaps after she works in an Irish potato field for a few weeks, she will be able to talk even more effectively. I think a clearer definition of establishment values and socialistic values is gravely needed. Thank you.

Paula J. Pavelcsyk

Editorial Points

Did you ever notice that insanity usually wins out in this world of ours? Witness CBS news last night with everything from Laird calling Laos a "success" to Calley saying that he didn't know whether he shot any of the people in a ditch which he fired into from five feet away. And what about the ex-army spy telling a Senate hearing that the officers in charge of spying on civilians didn't differentiate between "the Weatherman faction of SDS and the American Friends Committee when it came to protecting the nation?"

*****

Former astronaut Michael Collins of Apollo 11 recently resigned his post as assistant secretary of state for public affairs to take a position as the director of the National Aeronautics and Space Museum in Washington. The way public affairs are going, can you blame him?

*****

In a similar move, Julian Scheer resigned as public affairs chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Maybe the museum needs more help.

The Old Shell Game

(Editor's note-The following is a report by Rep. William B. Anderson (D-Tenn.) concerning the discovery of huge oil deposits in Southeast Asia. Anderson is conducting a personal investigation on the matter.)

"In 1967, some US oil companies did initial research; the project was followed up in 1969-70 by ten oil companies and the government of South Vietnam -- seismic surveys, geological probings, and other forms of research were conducted in offshore areas. As a result...it has been determined that the potential for mass liquid (oil) is high on the continental shelf off South Vietnam. Specifically, the area is off the southeastern part of the country between the Mekong River and Camau Point.

"Accordingly, the legislature of South Vietnam passed legislation Dec. 1970 dealing with the leasing of these oil reserves to international companies. Bids are expected to be opened in late February 1971. However, the Executive Branch of the SV government is now in the process of working out procedures and regulations, prices, et al, regarding the leasing of the oil lands. It is true that some large companies have contacted the government in Saigon but thus far n answers have been given to the interested companies.

The government is trying to decide how to allocate the spaces, how much to each company, and determine other procedural matters. American oil firms, Shell, and others from Great Britain and Japan are expected to bid. These bids will be for exploratory rights. There is the possibility of a consortium for bidding rights for the off-shore area.

"In Thailand six companies conducted exploratory work with concessions in the Gulf of Siam. Continental Oil and Sunoco conducted seismic work; oil was discovered. Ambassador Leonard Unger is reported to have testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Nov. 11, 1969 (in mostly closed session) that oil has been discovered in the Gulf of Siam and near the southern edge of Vietnam.

"Reports indicate that nine oil companies met in Dec. 1970 to discuss the oil reserves off Vietnam. At that time a bid was made for drilling rights and the companies received assurances in Washington. Another meeting is reported to be scheduled for Saigon, Feb. 1971."

Rep. Anderson's office was unable to explain what was meant by "assurances in Washington" but stuck by its statement. A Foreign Relations Committee staffer said the committee has received over 5000 letters demanding to know essentially if the American presence in SE Asia is being dictated by "assurances" to oil interests. He said that although no oil has been drilled for yet, the evidence suggests that off-shore deposits "could very well rival the Middle East in terms of future oil production."

Another Station Break

To the Editor:

Early last semester, after calling WMUA's station manager, I was advised that a program schedule would appear in the Collegian "within a week..." I'm still waiting.

After Tuesday night's much heralded Folk Program turned out to be a Blues Program, I would like to reiterate my request.

Finally, I feel that the station should again take requests, as they used to.

Jeff Kendall

Cycles

By JUDY EPSTEIN
MDC Staff

He looks like Birkin and he haunts the Hatch and me. Dark and stooped and hairy, his black eyebrows grown together in a perpetual furrow, he walks with an aura of anguish. I stepped into the elevator, turned, and he faced me for a moment.

The 3.5 billion people alive on earth today are 5% of all the human beings that have populated the earth in the past 1.5 million years. Perhaps one day Thanatopsis won't be true.

Last year when I waited for the bus an unknown neighbor drove past me every morning. We would wave and smile our greetings; once I didn't see him go by and I missed him.

Until the Industrial Revolution there was an average of two offspring per family. The survival rate was a flat curve. I am going to fulfill my biological obligation. I will have two children; one to replace my mate and one to replace me.

Ghost eyes float by mine and pause with recognition. His look expresses what I feel; a sense of forboding. We share the indignities of the day.

An animal lost or injured in the wilderness will wander aimlessly in circles.

All Letters To The Editor must be typed, double-spaced at sixty spaces per line. They should not exceed one page in length and must be submitted by 5 p.m. prior to the day of publication. The same rules apply for Editorial Points.

The editors reserve the right to edit all letters. Also, all leters must contain the name and address of the writer which will be withheld upon request.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Draft Appeal Cont'd.

By GILBERT J. SALK

When we left off Tuesday, we had written to my local board requesting a personal appearance and an appointment with the Government Appeal Agent as the initial steps in appealing for my hypothetical hardship deferment. I've met with the Agent and submitted to the board a verbatim transcript of our discussion. Now, with copies of the written summary of my financial situation and a list of all the documents which should be in my file, I keep my appointment with my board.

If possible, I bring a witness with me, preferably someone with whom the board members can identify (such as a clergyman, businessman, or some other fairly "reputable" person). It should be a male because most draft board members are male chauvinists and think that women know nothing about anything, particularly when it relates to the draft. I know that the board may not admit my witness, but it's worth the attempt.

When I enter the inner sanctum, I introduce myself and pass out copies of my statement, which I then read aloud. This ensures that they will at least be familiar with the summary, since I cannot be sure that they have examined any of the documents I have previously submitted. I also read my list of supporting documents. Then I ask them if they have any questions about the information, or any doubts about the validity of my claim.

As much as possible, I try to remain calm and reasonable, even in the face of their hostility, if there should be any. When they get tired of talking to me or when I have completed the presentation of my information (whichever comes first), they will tell me that they will let me know.

I immediately write up as exact a transcript of the discussion as I can, checking with my witness to make it as complete as possible. Then I send a copy of this to the board of inclusion in my file, sending it Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. My copy and the receipt, when it comes back, go into my own copy of my file.

Unfortunately, they were not convinced, and I get another I-A in the mail. My draft counselor advises me that I may submit a letter of appeal within thirty days of the date on the classification card, which I do. In the letter, I say again that I am not satisfied with my classification, and that I wish to appeal. I also request another meeting with the Govt. Appeal Agent. As usual, the letter is sent Certified, etc., and I keep a copy for my own records.

Again I meet with the Agent, fill him in on what's been going down and ask for advice. Then I write up the discussion and do the usual bit with it. On his advice, and the advice of my counselor, I add last-minute additional supporting material to my file.

Eventually, my board notifies me that my file has been forwarded to State Headquarters for action by the State Appeal Board. All is now out of my hands. The mysterious body meets and decides my fate. If they reach a unanimous decision to continue my I-A, that is the end of my formal appeals. The board may even send me an induction order with the notification of the Appeal Board's decision. If the decision is not unanimous, but is against me, I have the right to appeal to the Presidential Appeal Board.

In either case, at this point I should consult an attorney who is competent in Selective Service law. If the Appeal Board was unanimous against me, a lawyer will help prepare some steps to either halt the induction or build a defense if I decide to refuse induction. If the appeal is to go on to the Presidential Appeal level, he will help prepare a legal brief to add as additional supporting evidence or at least to advise me of my chances and options beyond that point.

In other words, there is a wide range of appeals available to any registrant who feels he has received an undesirable classification. Use them for your protection and see a draft counselor to help you use them in the most effective way. Peace.

Questions to this column should be addressed to Gilbert J. Salk, c/o Draft Counseling Services RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002

Free personal draft counseling available. Draft Counseling Services, 418E Student Union 2nd floor.

New T.V. Station Coming To Area

By CINDI PRICE
MDC Staff

By late next fall, the UMass and Amherst area should have a new television station. WGBY, or Channel 57, will be broadcasting primarily from Boston, according to Charles Keenan, general manager of WFCR, the five college radio station.

The station will be operated and run by WGBH in Boston, with the WFCR staff working in an advisory and counseling capacity, Keenan said. Most of the programs will originate in Boston and be sent to UMass. However, there maybe some local programming, he added.

The details concerning times and types of programs are now being worked out between WGBH and the schools to be serviced by the station, Keenan continued. It is assumed that an emphasis will be placed on educational programs, as WGBH is the only educational station in the Massachusetts area.

This spring should see the set up of a relay station that will beam the TV signal to Amherst, Keenan went on. During the summer a transmitter will be assembled and studio space secured. Channel 57 should be in operation by Christmas.

Robert J. McCartney, secretary of the University, explained that it is necessary to have a license procured from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and sufficient funds to run the station. Since 1965 the University has held a license to operate Channel 57. In addition he noted that $240,000 in operating funds had been granted from The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, McCartney said. The only thing required to begin production was a matching grant from the state.

In the past few years, the State Legislators have been increasingly unwilling to appropriate the money necessary, McCartney said. One of the primary reasons for this, according to Keenan, is that the cost of building the new medical school at Columbia Point has cut the amount of funds available.

When the University was notified last summer that the FCC would no longer hold the federal money, an agreement was worked out with WGBH under McCartney's leadership. The title to the license and attached federal funds was transferred to WGBH, which was able to secure additional funds from private sources, he said. Thus Amherst and UMass lost the opportunity to operate their own TV station, but will still benefit from the transfer, he went on.

In the agreement, however, it is stated that if funds are ever made available by the State, the license will be transferred back to UMass and restitutions made to WGBH, McCartney stated. In this way, he feels the future opportunities of the University are being safeguarded.

AIC Summer School To Last Three Semesters

SPRINGFIELD-American International College has announced plans to continue a sevice started four years ago.

Dean Clinton M. Bowen of the AIC Summer Division said that arrangements will be made for out-of-the-city residents to live in a dormitory again this summer.

"Several students from other colleges have taken advantage of the dormitory life at AIC during the past three summers," Dean Bowen commented. Arrangements should be made with the dean of students, he said.

AIC's 30th annual Summer Division will offer three separate semesters-two in the evening and the regular six-week day program. The evening semesters will be from June 14 through July 22 and from July 26 through Sept. 2. Evening classes meet twice a week from 6:30 to 10. The day semester will be from June 28 through Aug. 6.

"We found the evening programs exceptionally popular," Dean Bowen said, "especially for college students home for the summer. They are able to secure normal summer employment during the day and to continue their education in evening hours."

The registrar's office in Lee Hall at AIC is currently accepting applications for AIC's 30th annual summer division.

Tennis Star Refused Visa

Cape Town, South Africa (AP)—The government refused Wednesday an application by black American tennis star Arthur Ashe to visit South Africa, the third time Ashe has had a visa application refused.

Interior minister Theo Gerdener issued a statement Wednesday night saying Ashe's application was again considered, "and in view of the fact that he is still persona non grata, his application was not granted."

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

2nd Big Week
AMHERST Cinema
Ample Parking
Eves. 6:30, 8:55
Mat. Sat., Sun. at 1:30
DIRECT FROM ITS SENSATIONAL ROADSHOW ENGAGEMENT!
Now For The 1st Time At Popular Prices!

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'nal.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

"BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR!" –National Board of Review
"BEST ACTRESS– JANE FONDA!" –New York Film Critics
Thursday, Feb. 25
S.U. Ballroom
7 & 9:30
50c

UMass Roundup

Dr. Cecil H. Wadleigh

Dr. Wadleigh Named USDA Science Advisor

Dr. Cecil H. Wadleigh, widely recognized U.S. Department of Agriculture authority on soil and water resource development and former UMass graduate has been named Science Adviser to Dr. George W. Irving, Jr., Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

In his new position, Dr. Wadleigh will be concerned with reducing pollution and contamination of soil and water. He will maintain close contact with innovative research and developments in these areas to assess their impact on ARS programs.

Since 1955, Dr. Wadleigh has been Director of ARS' Soil and Water Conservation Research Division.

Dr. Wadleigh's work on soil salinity and moisture levels affecting plant growth has provided basic knowledge now used in soil and water research.

Some of the studies done under Dr. Wadleigh's direction on the relationship between rainfall and soil erosion have enabled the development of sound erosion prediction equations that take into account storm energy, kind of soil, soil cover, and land use practices. Research under his direction has also extended the application of atomic energy as a useful tool in soils research.

In 1967, Dr. Wadleigh received USDA's Distinguished Service Award for "exceptional foresight and administrative ability in the planning, development, and leadership of national programs of soil and water conservation research." He is past President of the American Society of Plant Physiologists, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the Soil Science Society of America, Fellow of American Society of Agronomy, Fellow of the Soil Conservation Society of America, and Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity. In 1961, he was appointed a member of the White House Panel on Waterlogging and Salinity Problems in Pakistan.

Dr. Wadleigh is a native of Gilbertsville, Mass.

BU Official Calls For Aid To Univ. Cities

The federal government should help pay the cost of local government in university cities such as Boston, a college official said today, to make up the loss of property tax income from traditionally tax-exempt institutions of higher learning.

Stephen J. Trachtenberg, Dean of University Affairs at Boston University, proposed the government make payments to college communities similar to the present "impact aid" to school districts that must absorb the children of employees at government installations.

Schools such as Boston University are national assets, Trachtenberg said in remarks prepared for delivery to a Boston City Council committee, and the national government should therefore assist the localities that host them.

The testimony was in response to a City Council proposal to levy a charge for police, fire and public works services against tax-exempt institutions in Boston. Such institutions already pay a user's fee for city water and sewer service.

IRS Advises Taxpayers On Labeling

Tax practitioners and other preparers of tax returns should ask their clients for the federal income tax forms package they received in the mail and use the pre-addressed label it carried to assure faster and more accurate processing, said Elmer H. Klinsman, Acting District Director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts.

The label, if peeled off the front of the tax package and placed in the box at the top of the 1040 Form, will prevent errors in name and Social Security numbers that held up refunds for numerous taxpayers in Massachusetts last year.

If there are errors on the label, they should be corrected in ink right on the label, Mr. Klinsman said.

Associate Prof. Donald C. Freeman, chairman of the program in linguistics at UMass edited and wrote portions of a recently published book titled "Linguistics and Literary Style." Publisher is Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Prof. Freeman also delivered a paper, "Linguistics and Metrics," Jan. 20 at the University of Lancaster in England under the sponsorship of the department of English studies of Bowland College of that university. Assistant Prof. Richard A. Demers of the program in linguistics recently presented a paper titled "Rule-Insertion in Alemannic," to the New England Linguistic Society.

* * *

An anthology published in January by Appleton-Century-Crofts contains an article written by Gerald M. Platt, associate professor of sociology at UMass. The article is "Alienation and the Problem of Social Action;" the anthology, "The Phenomenon of Sociology."

* * *

A book by an associate professor of English at UMass has been chosen by the Selection Committee of the Modern Language Association of America (MLA) for inclusion in the Scholar's Library, the MLA book club. The book is "A Commentary on the Complete Poems of Gerard Manly Hopkins" by Paul L. Mariani. Books included in the Scholar's Library are selected from new titles of university presses thought to have especial value for MLA members.

* * *

Peter J. Graham, associate director of intramural athletics at UMass has been named a district contributing editor for the National Intramural Association Newsletter. His district comprises the six New England states and New York.

* * *

A one-man show at the University of Connecticut by John Townsend, associate professor of art at the University of Massachusetts will run through Feb. 27.

The show includes four sand-blasted plexiglass pieces, 24 drawings and eight ink-wash cutouts on paper.

TONIGHT
BERGMAN'S
The Silence
Part III
Silence of God Trilogy
MAHAR 8 & 10

TONIGHT!
MANDATORY
WMUA Station Meeting
Everyone Is Welcome
Make Your Vote Count!
The Time Is 7:00 p.m.
THIS IS A MUST MEETING

At Northampton Volkswagen

70	Pontiac, Yellow	2595.00
69	Plymouth Watson, Blue	1695.00
68	Pontiac Lemans, White	1595.00
68	Opel Wagon, Blue	1095.00
68	Ford Mustang, Blue	1795.00
68	Austin Healey, Yellow	1695.00
68	Buick Skylark, Blue	1595.00
68	Renault, White	1095.00
68	Chevy Belaire, Blue	1795.00
68	Ford T-Bird, White	2995.00
67	Fiat 850, Red	995.00
67	Ford Wagon, White	1495.00
67	Ford Wagon, Blue	1295.00
66	Ford T-Bird, Blue	895.00
66	Chrysler, Green	995.00
65	Pontiac Grand Prix, Green	795.00
65	Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65	Ford LTD, White	795.00
64	Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
61	Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63	Mercury Comet, Maroon	395.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From
Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
534-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5) Northampton
Open Eves till 9

THE DEALER IS HERE
56½ Main Street, Amherst, Mass. 256-6716

UMass Team Gives Beavers Sex Test

For a long time, only a beaver could tell the sex of another beaver by sight at the beaver pond.

But now, according to an article in the current issue of Journal of Mammalology, a team from UMass has found a way to tell male from female beavers by blood tests. This means they can tag beavers to show their sex and by observation of the day-to-day routine around the beaver pond, tell what sex does what job.

The whole idea is to learn more about the social structure of beaver colonies. Dr. Joseph S. Larson, UMass associate professor of wildlife biology, and Stephen J. Knapp, graduate student from Framingham, are doing the research.

Larson and Knapp have found that a single drop of blood shows the difference between males and females. They trap the beavers in large suit-case-size traps which hold them alive and unharmed. A small cut is made on the hind foot, and a drop of blood is placed on a microscope slide. Colored ear tags are placed on each beaver and they are released back to their home pond.

Back in the University labs, the blood slides are prepairedtoshow the details of the white blood cells. In the female beavers, a special shape occurs in the nucleus of the cell which does not occur in the male. Since each beaver is released with different colored ear tags, the scientists then know which sex animal they are observing in their field studies. The blood technique works in many animals, including humans.

One reason for the studies of the social structure of beaver colonies is that the beaver is making a comeback. Beavers were once wiped out by trappers in many areas of North America but are now becoming more common in Massachusetts and elsewhere.

"Their ponds provide valuable habitat for other wildlife but in many cases they flood out roads and crete problems. State officials need more information on beavers so that trapping regulations can be set to maintain beaver at reasonable numbers while minimizing damage to man," Larson explained.

Student Job Applications Now Being Taken for '71-'72

By MIKE MCWILLIAMS
MDC Staff

Applications are now being taken for student personnel staff positions for the academic year 1971-72 Both part time and full time professional positions are open mainly to graduate students. There is a limited number of part time jobs available for undergraduates.

The full time professional openings are those of Area Coordinator, Assistant Area Coordinator, Community Development Human Relations Director and Head of Residence. These require that only a limited course load may be taken during the duration of the work period. Starting salaries range from $11,000 for the position of Area Coordinator to $5100 for Head of Residence.

Part time positions available are Residence Director (not to be confused with Head of Residence), Community Relations and Human Relations Assistant, and Undergraduate or Graduate Assistant. The Undergraduate and Graduate Assistant positions are all part time and limited in number. Some of the positions which fall under this category include Business Manager-Student Assistants and various other duties. The salaries vary greatly in relation to the specific positions. Full information on each position is included with the applications.

Individuals wishing to apply can pick up applications from Associate Dean of Students Daniel Fitzpatrick in Room 229 Whitmore. All applications must be submitted by March 15, 1971 to the Office of Student Affairs.

Any questions regarding the positions may be directed to Dean Fitzpatrick at his office in Whitmore or Dr. J. Alfred Southworth in the counseling center, to Dean Gerald F. Scanlon at the Student Activities Office in the Campus Center or Walter T. Grinnan, Manager of the Campus Center.

Low Income Allowances In Tax Tables

The Federal income tax tables for 1970 take into account the low income allowance added to the law by the Tax Reform Act of 1969. As a result, said Elmer H. Klinsman, IRS Acting District Director for Massachusetts, taxpayers do not have to figure the low-income allowance.

For 1970, the maximum low income allowance is $1100. The effect of the $1100 allowance and the $625 personal exemption on a single person with no dependents is to eliminate liability for tax until income reaches $1725, ($2350 for a single person 65 or over).

Summer School.

For those of you who don't want to give up one for the other.

Summer Sessions at the University of California offer college students and teachers a choice of courses for credit as wide as most colleges offer during the regular semester.

Each campus has the facilities and environment to which the most academic-minded student can relate.

There are 2 six-week sessions at Berkeley, U.C.L.A. and Davis. And sessions of various lengths at Irvine, Riverside, San Diego, Santa Barbara, and Santa Cruz.

All of them start in mid-June, fees for each ranging from $125 to $160.

For an application and a bulletin on one or more campuses, just fill out this coupon and mail it to:

570 University Hall, University of California, Berkeley, Calif. 94720

☐ Berkeley ☐ Davis ☐ Irvine ☐ Riverside ☐ San Diego
☐ Santa Barbara ☐ Santa Cruz ☐ U.C.L.A.

I am a ☐ student, ☐ teacher at: _____

I am interested in these courses: _____

Name _____

Address _____

City/State/Zip _____

FREEPORT FLING
IN THE
BAHAMA ISLANDS
DURING COLLEGE WEEK
MARCH 21 - 29

ONLY $189* plus 6% tax incl. services

Includes:
- Round trip jet with champogne, meals.
- 8 days at the Freeport Inn.
- Spacious air conditioned room — some with kitchenettes.
- FREE "HAPPY HOUR" every night. FREE BOOZE 5:30 - 7:30, Band 6 - 8.
- Facilities for swimming, sailing, water skiing, golf.
- Many clubs, casinos, pubs, discoteques.

*Based on 4 per room.

JET ONLY FOR $99

Send $25 deposit to
JOE MALETZ
1513 JFK

or call 546-7819 for info.

Checks payable to Student Tours

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES

events

BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

FRIDAY, FEB. 26 & SAT., FEB. 27 — 8 P.M.

THE GARY BURTON QUARTET

A night of good vibes by one of the top jazz ensembles!

Extra! Feb. 26th Informal Seminar
Feb. 27th Jazz Workshop

2:30 p.m./Old Chapel Auditorium
Open without charge to ticket-holders.

FRIDAY, MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 — 8 P.M.

GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE

Presents Mozart's "Don Giovonni"

Company of fifty in fully staged production in English!

MARCH 16 - 18

ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE

Brilliant contemporary dance ensembie in two different evening programs plus Master Class and Lecture Demonstration.

For comolete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall (Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.)

Inspector Edward A. Breor, safety education officer for the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, second from right, presents a certificate of appreciation to Kenneth L. Horseman, station manager of student-operated WMUA on the University of Massachusetts Amherst campus. The radio station was honored for its "sustained distinguished service rendered in the cause of highway safety in this Commonwealth." Witnessing the presentation were Campus Police Officers Lewis B. Anderson, left, and William B. Pendergast, right.

Dr. O'Donnell Gains More Recognition

Dr Walter G. O'Donnell, Professor of Management in the School of Business Administration at UMass since 1956, whose biographical-career sketch is already included in several "Who's Who" publications, has gained international recognition through inclusion in the 1971 edition of the Dictionary of International Biography, published in London, England.

This further recognition has resulted from services rendered in ten professional assignments to European and Latin-American countries during the past decade when he has presented research papers at international meetings of professional societies, conducted courses in the advanced sectors of management though and practice, and contributed to international management development programs. His overseas professional activities have extended to Belgium, Spain, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, Peru, Mexico, and Puerto Rico.

The Dictionary of International Biography is a reputable record of contemporary achievements of international significance in 124 countries and is widely circulated. Biographical inclusion in this publication is by selective invitation, and, according to the Daily Mail of England, "Biographical inclusion in D.I.B. has now become recognized throughout the world as a proclamation that the biographee has 'arrived' in his or her field of activity."

Commenting on the above quotation, Prof. O'Donnell remarked, "A wider recognition of this sort is gratifying, naturally, but in a world that is always becoming", 'arrival' has an implication of finality that is incomprehensible to me, for all of us 'arrive' at a series of destinations followed by new departures. In our times of rapid changes and the resulting complex problems of organization and management, our powers of adaptation and the wise direction of man-made evolution continually confront new problems - opportunities - on the changing horizon of human affairs.

—Correction—

The San Francisco Mime Troupe and speaker Tom Hayden were sponsored by the Student Senate Social Action Committee rather than the Student Mobilization Committee as reported in yesterday's Collegian.

•Cancels Speech•

The Speech to be given by Jane Fonda, Rennie Davis, and John Froines has been cancelled due to Miss Fonda's illness.

MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5

Showcase Cinemas #213
RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.

ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING

3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY G
Wed - Sun
7:45-9:30
Mon. & Tues
2-3:40

2 LOVE STORY IS SURELY ONE OF THE BEST FILMS IN YEARS DON'T MISS IT!
"A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." Sam Sheffson
LOVE STORY
TODAY
2:00 3:45
5:30 7:30
9:40
Ali MacGraw
Ryan O'Neal

1 DOCTORS' WIVES R
DYAN CANNON
RICHARD CRENNA
Mon - Fri.
2:00 - 7:20 - 9:20
Sat & Sun
1:30 - 3:25
5:20 - 7:20
9:20

WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS

GROUP RATES AVAILABLE

WE HONOR master charge

CALL 413-733-5131

MUSIC OF OUR TIME

JANIS JOPLIN PEARL
including
MY MAN BOBBY MCGEE • A WOMAN LEFT LONELY
HALF BREED • BUICK MACHINE • ME AND BOBBY MCGEE

The Byrds (Untitled)
including
Mr. Tambourine Man
Eight Miles High Just A Season
Lover Of The Bayou Without Money

BOB DYLAN "NEW MORNING"
including
SIGN ON THE WINDOW
IF NOT FOR YOU • THREE ANGELS
WENT TO SEE THE GYPSY • IF DOGS RUN FREE

DONOVAN DONOVAN'S GREATEST HITS
including
SUNSHINE SUPERMAN
MELLOW YELLOW
HURDY GURDY MAN

POCO DELIVERIN'

$3.47

MILES DAVIS AT FILLMORE
including
WONDERLAND
MILES BEYOND • MILES LIES BEYOND MILES

SLY & THE FAMILY STONE GREATEST HITS
including
THANK YOU (FALETTINME BE MICE ELF AGIN)
DANCE TO THE MUSIC • STAND! • EVERYDAY PEOPLE and more

Simon and Garfunkel Bridge Over Troubled Water
including
Cecilia
El Condor Pasa
Bye Bye Love
Keep The Customer Satisfied
Boxer

Christmas and the beads of sweat Laura Nyro
including
Beli Tree
Broken Rainbow
Stoney End
Map To The Treasure
Upstream
Mother Earth's Plantation

SANTANA/ABRAXAS
including
Black Magic Woman • Oye Como Va
Hope You're Feeling Better
Incident At Neshabur
Se A Cabo
Mother's Daughter

*SPECIALLY PRICED 2-RECORD SETS

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL DAY
including
A Hot Summer Day • Wasted Union Blues
White Bird • Girl With No Eyes • Bombay Calling
Bulgaria • Time Is

THE BEST OF THE ELECTRIC FLAG
including
TUNE UP

$2.87

The Firesign Theatre
Don't Crush That Dwarf, Hand Me The Pliers

Big Brother and the Holding Co.
including
Keep On Sunshine • Baby Home In • The Strange I • Change Your Flat Tire • Movie Runnin Jim BE A BROTHER

Source Point John Hammond
including
Mother Down • Country Pie • The Moans Me
As The Years Go Passing By • Yonder Comes The Blues

THE CHAMBERS BROTHERS NEW GENERATION
including
TUNE IT
WHEN THE EVENING COMES • REFLECTIONS
NEW GENERATION • GOING TO THE MILL

Not Available on Tape

A NEW 2-RECORD SET FROM CHICAGO: $5.74

Chicago III
including
Sing A Mean Tune Kid • What Else Can I Say
I Don't Want Your Money • Free Country
When All The Laughter Dies In Sorrow
Free, Mother

FROM THE MUSIC COMPANY COLUMBIA ® AND EPIC ® RECORDS AND TAPES

SUPER VALUE $.79

DIFFERENT STROKES
Your own Portable Pop Festival by 19 Contemporary Artists!

SALE TODAY THRU SATURDAY, FEB. 27

The LISTENING POST

25 So. Pleasant St. 253-8376

Smith Prof. Speaks In Springfield

Dwight W. Morrow Professor of History at Smith College, Northampton, Max Salvadori, will speak at a meeting of the Dante Alighieri Society of Springfield today.

His lecture, titled "The Aspects of the Italian Contemporary Scene," will be at 8 p.m. in the Helen Hills Hills Chapel lounge at Smith College. The event is open to the public, with no admission charge.

Professor Salvadori holds degrees from the Universities of Geneva, Switzerland and Rome. Since his youth he has contributed to the regeneration of Italy with his antifascist activities.

In World War II he was a British liasion officer between the allies and the partisans. At the end of the war he was awarded the Military Cross and the Distinguished Service Order by the British armed forces, resigning from active duty as a lieutenant colonel.

Among his many books is "The Rise of Modern Communism" which has been translated in 16 languages. A recognized authority of 20th century Italian politics, Salvadori is published widely in learned and political journals and newspapers in this country and Europe.

Notices

ACTION LAB
Tutoring tonight at Northampton Jail. Bus leaves from Whitmore at 6:30 p.m.

ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB
General Meeting at 7 p.m. All interested persons welcome. At 8 p.m. Ralph Faulkingham will give an illustrated talk on his field work in a Hausa Village in Niger. To be held in Room 174 of the C.C.

BETA CHI (VETERANS)
Wanted Veterans interested in participating in I.M. Sports. The sports remaining are swimming, badminton, soccer, horseshoes and softball. Call 253-7851

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
All night rap for the Five colleges, Sat. Feb. 27th in Bowditch Lodge. Starts at 9 p.m. Spaghetti Supper served at midnight. Bring guitars, games, records, etc. Everybody's welcome.

CHESS CLUB
Come tonight to the New Hatch to play chess or watch the UMass tournament. Round #3 begins at 7 p.m.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
Ground school at 7 p.m. in the C.C. Review with computers and maps and slides.

VIP APPLICATIONS
Any students who would like to join the distinguished Visitors Program should pick up applications in the S.O. Office in the C.C. Completed applications are due Friday, March 5th.

FINNISH LANGUAGE GROUP
Will meet for class tonight at 7 p.m. in Machmer W-32. Those interested in this 1 credit course are invited.

FREE UNIVERSITY
Wanted a people for work in a theatre on semble involves voice, body, and awareness training. If interested leave name & number at (266 (Free U).

HILLEL
Tomorrow night's the night. Sign up now for our dinner & soul service.

MEHER BABA BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION
All are invited free Barbazon Plaza 106 Central Park W. 59th St., E. 4th Ave., N.Y.C. at 7:45 p.m. Feb. 26th. Find out about Meher Baba.

NEWMAN CLUB
Wanted: Folk guitarish, banjo players, etc., to play at a Coffee House Sat., Feb. 27th. Show up then at 8 p.m.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
ATTENTION! ED. 282 Tutors tonight's meeting has been postponed until Thursday, March 4th at 7:30 p.m. in the lounge of Emily Dickinson House.

SIGMA ALPHA MU
Movie: Peter Seller in "I love you Alice B. Toklas." Feb. 26th Friday in the S.U. Ballroom. Showing in the evening.

SKI PATROL
Thursday night meet at 6:30 p.m. in Room 172 of the C.C. Section Chief Ev Green will speak.

SPANISH CLUB
Important meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in Room 224, Herter Hall. Plans for all Spring activities will be discussed.

SPECTRUM
An important meeting for all Spectrum editors & staff tonight in Room 802 of the C.C. at 7 p.m. Plans for the forthcoming issue will be discussed.

WMUA
WMUA station meeting on Feb. 25th will be discussing constitution. This is a mandatory station for all WMUA people. Meeting starts at usual time.

LOST
Brown pocketbook was lost in S.W. Hatch last Sunday night. If found call Jan 6-9923 or 343 Cramoton.
One cameo earring was lost. Please call Bette 8-7447.
A silver watch (Tissot Stylist) with a leather band was lost. If found please call Jim 665-4080.

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU IN THE SPRING FROM $99
EUROPE IN THE SUMMER FROM $195
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family —

Thursday Nights
Cricket Hill
The new group in the area
featuring
HELEN
2nd Floor Cafeteria
SHOW STARTS AT 9 p.m.
Everyone Welcome
(only club members and their guests over 21 may drink alcoholic beverages.)
50c cover charge

THE $210 EUROPE
Round-trip DC-8 JET from New York
For only $210* round trip, Icelandic Airlines flies you direct to Luxembourg in the heart of Europe for best connections to everywhere. Daily jets. No groups to join. Stay one day or up to 45. Fly Icelandic—for lowest fares to Iceland, Luxembourg, England, Scotland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Special fares for students and groups remaining overseas more than 45 days. Major credit cards—or Pay Later Plan. Mail coupon; then call your travel agent.
*Add $20 one way on Fri. and Sat.
To: Icelandic Airlines
630 Fifth Ave. N.Y. 10020
(212) PL 7-8585
Send folder CN on Lowest Jet Fares to Europe ☐ Student Fares ☐
Name
Street
City
State Zip
My travel agent is
ICELANDIC AIRLINES
LOWEST AIR FARES TO EUROPE
of any scheduled airline

MayOfferHebrew Course

According to a statement by Jeffrey Green,

"Through the complexities of the Faculty Senate may soon come a greatly desired Hebrew Language course. For many this will mean a better understanding of Near Eastern and Hispanic languages, literature and history. The course, to say the least, will broaden the relm of studies in all these areas.

"For a somewhat smaller cluster of students, this course will provide a means to fulfill a foreign language requirement and at the same time prepare for a year of foreign study in Israel (where Hebrew is officially the national language).

"The possibilities that can arise out of such a course are innumerable. The addition of Hebrew (to whatever department it finally falls upon) is one worthy of the effort and the money needed to see it through.

"If literature is the best testimony to history and so much history is tied up in Eurasia, then Hebrew can serve the varied interests of students studying linguistics, literature and history. Consequently, it is not one small interest group but rather a much larger assembly of students who will benefit from such a course.

"The stumbling blocks to the course are money and needed teachers. Money is not in abundance. This is rather obvious. And teachers of such a language do not travel in droves. Both are badly needed in order to see the course functioning in September of 1971.

"Even though there are many Israelis on campus, it is not enough to be able to speak Hebrew natively in order to teach it. In these respects the Hebrew course is in trouble for the next semester.

"If the course is not offered next fall on the first level then a substantial group of Freshmen are no going to be able to fulfill their language requirement with Hebrew before spending a semester or year in Israel as Juniors.

"This is one of the few chances a requirement in any department has the opportunity to make itself practical as well as obligatory. The desire for a Hebrew Language course is evident on the part of a good number of students and faculty. The final verdict and hopeful commitment will come on March 18,1971 when the Faculty Senate votes on the matter."

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, FR, Astar, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. tf
See Amherst Audio.

1970 Boss Mustang, yellow with black stripes, 11,000 miles, excellent cond., $4200. New, best offer. 549-2563. tf3-26

Sofa bed, large desk, double bed, round coffee table, GE tape recorder, best offer on any item, gotta go quick. Call 253-3057. tf3-25

3 wire wheels for sports car. Best offer. Call Mary Lyons. Ask for Mary in 249. 2-25

Motorcycle 1969 Royal Enfield Indian Chief 700 cc Resteration, asking $700 or best offer. Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. Runs like new. tf3-1

Water beds for $55 at Sundance Water Beds, 187 Main St., Northampton. tf3-3

Skis, Kniesal Red Stars 200 cm, Marker bindings, Rosemount ski boots, size 7-8½. Best offer around $120. Call 586-1365. tf2-26

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No textbs! tf3-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

Must sell '62 Olds — can't afford to pay insurance. Good condition, 4 new tires, small dent in side. Sell for $100 or best offer. Call 549-2046 after 5 p.m. tf3-5

63 Dodge Dart, excel. cond. $300. 549-1024. tf2-26

1964 Ford Falcon, V8, 4 speed, good condition. Call 253-9634. tf2-26

1970 Baracuda 383, vinyl roof, power steering, power brakes, automatic trans., wide oval tires, radio, 19,000 miles, asking $2900.00, 6 mos. old. Call 546-6312. tf2-26

'68 Rover TC-2000, excell. cond., snows, ski rack. Call 1-967-6970. tf2-26

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $395. Telephone 253-2946 tf3-2

1967 Ford Galaxie 500, 2 dr. sedan, new tires, radio, good heater, $400. Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. tf3-1

1969 Opel Kalley Kadet, 4 new tires, plus 2 new snow tires. 1.9 liter engine. Will sell for $1195. Call 549-1191 between 6-8 p.m. tf2-26

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6715 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

Male roommate, own bedroom, approx. $75 a mo. Sunderland, just off Rt. 116. Call Brad 665-3355. tf2-25

Female roommate wanted to clean apt for 5 senior men. Rent minimal for cleaning function. Call 549-6013. tf2-25

1-room apt. in So. Deerfield $140 split, clean/neat place to live and work. Grad. or vet. preferred. Call 665-2712. Keep trying, hard to catch. tf2-26

Male roommate wanted, Cliffside Apts., $53 a month, utilities included. Call 665-3688; ask for Lee, Jim or Greg. tf2-26

Male to share apt. with 5 senior men. Very close to Camp. Have own room for $54 a month. Call 549-6613. tf2-26

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-6133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3118. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy — Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-22

WANTED

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded, free estimates on collections. Bob Morrin, 400 Chelbourne or P.O. Box 104, Amherst. tf3-1

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

HELP WANTED

Student or student couple to help with care of 2 girls, 7 and 4, room and board. Call 5-0144 days, 665-3067 eves. tf2-26

Wanted immed., 2 women live-in, infant care, sewing, etc., 12 hours per week, apartment-like accommodations, 2 miles from campus. Call 549-1112. tf3-1

BUS TICKETS GW-UM

Tickets on the Student Senate charter bus to the George Washington game at Madison Sq. Garden are available at Student Union Ticket Office. Deadline noon Thursday. tf2-25

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

Girl in dorm single want to move out? Univ refund ripoff traps you? I'll take room and pay you for rest of semester. You don't lose anything. Call 584-8830. tf2-26

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NASSAU in Spring from $99 and EUROPE in summer from $195. For details call: Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963. tf2-26

PERSONAL

B.L.C. Happy 1st. It was beautiful. Love S.A.T. 2-25

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sunderland — modern, all electric, four rooms, unfurnished, Married couples. $145. Pioneer Valley Apts. Call 665-4565 evenings. tf2-25

TO SUBLET

One bedroom apt. available March 1st. Puffton Village. Please call 549-6771. 2-25

Summer sublet from June 1 - Aug 30, 100 Colonial Village, furnished 2 bedroom, swim. pool. Call 256-0632. tf fu-th

MISCELLANEOUS

Car rally Sunday noon. Open to everyone. For more info call Rick at 546-6590. 2-25

Swimmers Top Bridgewater State

By THE SWIM TEAM

It was calculated to be the toughest and closest meet the UMass Tigers would swim all season, but Tuesday night in the last home meet at Boyden Pool they defeated Bridgewater 64-49. It was the best individual performance by the Tigers. Swimming maybe a series of individual events, but in the end it is the team that wins and the Tigers displayed such a team spirit that it gave them a team victory.

The Tigers were first to score as George Kwiecien, Herb Schuster, Maurice Lynch and Dick Blaisdell won the 400 yd Medley Relay in 4:10.3, a full ten seconds faster than their previous outings. Bridgewater then scored as Johnston placed first in the 1000 yd freestyle but he was closely challenged by Ed Jazab who was touched out in the final lap. Bruce Taylor was the most improved swimmer as he lowered his time almost forty seconds from his last performance.

Pete Ouellette swam the 200 yd freestyle for the first time and won it in good time while Bridgewater got second and third. Jim Cinamon, a very hard swimmer and Ron Cleaves, who just retuned, gave it an excellent second effort but had to settle behind the Bridgewater swimmers. Dick Blaisdell won the 50 yd freestyle while Bridgewater took second. But Terry Carney almost denied him this as he swam his best fifty only to take third.

It was a tough race down to the last lap but Fountas of Bridgewater touched out Schuster in the 200 yd Individual Medley. For Schuster it was his best time as he took off three seconds from his previous best. Very close behind him was John McMahon who took third. Bridgewater took first in the required diving while Paul Lelito took second and Tom Myslicki took third. Lynch, swimming his last meet in Boyden Pool, swam his most powerful 200 yd Butterfly of the season and took first in 2:22.5. Probably the most important single point was won by Dick Vogel as he fought for third in this event.

Blaisdell got his second first of the meet in the 100 yd freestyle while Ouellette finished third. Bridgewater came back in the 200 yd backstroke by sweeping first and second while Kwiecien took third and McMahon finished close behind him. Jazab, swimming his last meet in Boyden, was again outtouched by Johnston of Bridgewater in the 500 yd freestyle but Jazab didn't let up an inch and put out right down to the finish. Pelotti of Bridgewater took first in the 200 yd Breaststroke while Schuster got second and Mark Cleaves third. The score of the meet at this point was Tigers 49 and Bridgewater 48.

However, in the best clutch performance of the season, Pelito took first and Myslicki second to win the meet for the Tigers. The final event was the 400 yd Freestyle Relay and the Tigers showed Bridgewater and the few supporters that they still had plenty left. The team of Terry Carney, Dennis Moulton, McMahon and Ouellette beat Bridgewater to the touch as Ouellette turned in his fastest 100 yd of the season.

After the victory, by traditional custom, the winning coach Joe Rodgers and the manager Patty Fay were given the victory dunk. The Tigers finish their season against MIT this Saturday in Cambridge. From this point only the Yankee Conference Championships in Vermont and the New England Championships in Springfield remain. Go get 'em TIGERS...

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Leo and Scorpio are considered the two most intense signs of the zodiac. Natives of those signs are extremely attractive to the opposite sex. Aries is very much drawn to both Leo and Scorpio. Cancer finds Scorpio almost irresistible in a physical sense. But Leo is very fortunate in financial matters for Cancer. Scorpio is lucky in money for Libra. Leo and Scorpio are the romanticists of the zodiac.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Encourage new methods, contacts. Be resourceful. What you need takes effort to acquire. New moon accents secrets, drama, clandestine meeting. Maintain philosophical view.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be cooperative in reaching financial understanding with close associate. If you insist or bluff you could spend more than anticipated. Follow reasonable course. Then you save.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What seems like drawback turns out to be asset. Know this and base actions on surprise element. You gain allies. More people are around and friendly. You get chance to shine. Do so.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New moon position coincides with journeys, publishing, spreading of influence. Caution advised with regard to health, dealings with those who are envious. Attend to details personally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar emphasis on getting what you want for efforts. Romance, emotions are in picture. What happens is apt to be unorthodox. Don't trap yourself. Allow for freedom of movement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Past commitments could affect present objectives. Respect age, but don't be dominated by it. Home, family, domestic area spotlighted. Be ready to handle dispute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work methods subject to change. What you took for granted needs re-evaluation. Guard health. Avoid extremes. Don't deceive yourself. Be realistic. Hold off on final decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Creative efforts gain you recognition. Time to express desires. Don't hold back. New moon accents love, special relationships with children. Protect valuables.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Trying to expand too quickly would be costly. Expect opposition from family, older associates. Key is to finish rather than to seek new starts. Meaning will be increasingly clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New moon position coincides with journey connected with confidential material. A visit from relative results in minor dispute. Be independent, but avoid any show of arrogance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Buying favors could be grievous error. Present yourself as you are; let others take you or leave you. This is not easy, but it is necessary for ultimate contentment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't permit pride to block progress. You need aid. You can obtain it, but you must ask for it. This takes determination and maturity. Check various possibilities. Emphasize versatility.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to brood. You are an idealist. You battle injustice. You worry about imperfections. You are introspective, sensitive and can be creative. You have natural inclination for acting. Self-expression. You will be finishing a cycle. Let go of situation, relationship which can be a torment.

THE PIZZA INN is in town!
(At the old Amherst Creamery)
173 Sunset Ave.
Opening Week Special:
Try Our Famous
PIZZA
at 20¢ off
with coupon below.
STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.
SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
20¢ OFF
The price of any PIZZA with this coupon
PIZZA INN

WMUA Covers Redman Hockey Tonight at UNH, 6:45 p.m.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Recompense
4 Emmets
8 Walk
12 Man's nickname
13 Classify
14 Center
15 Sick
16 Sermonizers
18 Erases (printing)
20 Exchange premium
21 Preposition
22 Devoured
23 Monster
27 Base
29 Pronoun
30 Slumber
31 Prefix: not
32 Preposition
33 Pronoun
34 Symbol for nickel
35 Sailboat
37 Encountered
38 Physician (colloq.)
39 Equal
40 Swiss river
41 Diphthong
42 Merit
44 Likeness
47 Recurred constantly
51 Meadow
52 Cry of owl
53 Butter substitute (colloq.)
54 Abstract being
55 Hostelries
56 Girl's nickname
57 Soak

DOWN
1 Remunerated
2 Competent
3 Color
4 Snakes
5 Conjunction
6 Handles
7 Platform
8 Institutions of learning
9 Pedal digit
10 Be mistaken
11 Foolike part
17 101 (Roman number)
19 Printer's measure
22 Ventilate
24 Earth goddess
25 City in Nevada
26 Heroic event
27 Speech impediment
28 Heraldic device
29 Jump
30 Pose for portrait
32 Woods
33 Pronoun
36 Faroe Islands whirlwind
37 Cloak
38 Trader
40 Malicious burning
41 Part of "to be"
43 Three-toed sloth
44 Sacred image
45 Man's nickname
46 Direction
47 Greek letter
48 Vast age
49 King Arthur's lance
50 Lamprey

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

GRAVE RELIC
ELATED SNIVEL
RE TAIL TARO
AAR LLAMA NEE
SNAP EWERS GAS
BSTEP SERIALS
EDIT TOTE
DILATES WARMS
ON LEANS RIOT
ODE SMILE ETA
MITE PUMA II
STOVES MIRROR
ENATE PLAIN

Puckmen At UNH; Fr. Hoopmen Win

Vs. Div. I Wildcats

By BILL BALLOU
MDC Staff

Coach Jack Canniff's varsity skaters journey to Durham, New Hampshire tonight for an inter-divisional game with the UNH Wildcats that should prove to be one of the toughest tests of the year for the Redmen.

This particular game pits UMass against the highest scoring club in Division I and the two highest individual scorers in the Division in the persons of Canadians Lou Frigon and John Gray. However, Gray has been injured and is listed as a doubtful starter, which could turn out to be a break for the Redmen. Even without having to defense Gray UMass will have its hands full in trying to find a way to stop the high-powered Wildcat offense which has registered a total of 163 goals in its first 23 games.

Not that holding the Wildcats is an impossible task, for in their most recent outing the New Hampshire skaters were dumped by Clarkson, the Number II team in the East, in a 3-2 battle. But if the UMass pucksters hope to hold UNH in check they must do just that-check-and check closely.

Compounding the problem is the fact that the game is being played at Snively Rink in Durham, which is not too fondly known as "The Snakepit." It seats 4,013 people and the vast majority of them will be screaming vociferously for a Wildcat victory. The location of the game, in "The Snakepit" is a definite plus for UNH and could have a decided effect on the outcome of the game.

Although the Redmen will do anything but play dead for the Wildcats, a loss in this one will do no harm to their Division II play-off hopes, as New Hampshire is a Division I team and as such the game does not count in determining playoff positions.

In regards to play-off hopes, UMass is currently involved in a five-way scramble for the four spots available, and appears to have a good shot at making it. Its chances were given a boost with the AIC victory over Merrimack by a 6-3 count. This gave Merrimack a divisional loss record of four games and a tie, and the Redmen a divisional loss record of three games and a tie.

The battle for a play-off spot will be decided over the last three games of the season starting with Hamilton in the game following the UNH contest. This will be the last regular season road game for the varsity skaters, and will be played in Clinton, New York. The two remaining games will both be at Orr Rink and feature Holy Cross and Merrimack respectively.

Little Redmen Finish 18-1

By FRED ROSENTHAL
MDC Staff

In a hard fought battle the UMass freshman basketball team won their season finals over the Amherst College frosh by a score of 76-61 at Amherst last night. The win gave UMass a final record of 18-1; Amherst dropped to 3-7.

In the first half it appeared that UMass would blow open the game right away. The Little Redmen opened up to an early 7-2 lead on three baskets by John Olson and foul shot by Rick Pitino. Two of Olson's baskets came off of nice passes by Pitino.

However, over the next eleven minutes the two teams played evenly with Amherst having a slight edge. And with about six minutes left in a half, 6'2 guard, Fred Scott, tied the game 23 all.

The score remained pretty even until the end of the half when a Skinner drive, a Trow foul shot and a basket off an offensive rebound by Art Levine put UMass up by seven, 36-29.

With about four minutes gone in the second half UMass started to pull away; and over the next four minutes UMass outscored Amherst 17-5 to take an 18 point lead. Levine had ten points down this stretch including two three point plays.

But the game wasn't over yet. With about eight minutes left in the game the Amherst frosh scored six straight points to cut the gap to nine, 61-52.

Down the stretch, though, the Little Redmen, had too much and were able to pull away for their final sixteen point victory.

HOOP NOTES-In summing up the season Coach Peter Broaca said he was pleased with his team's performance and its record. Guard, Rick Pitino, also had a few comments: "I've played in basketball camps for ten years and have been coached by some great college coaches and some pro coaches; but none of them come within a shade of Coach Broaca."...Pitino led UMass in scoring against Amherst with 24 points. Skinner and Levine followed with 18 and 15 respectively...Leading UMass rebounders were Skinner with 12 and Trow with 11...A review of the entire season will be in the Collegian next week.

AL SKINNER—Shown here in action against B.C. had 18 points and 12 rebounds as the Little Redmen defeated the Amherst frosh 76-61 last night. Skinner is one of several players who helped the frosh finish with a record of 18-1. (MDC Photo by Gary Slickman)

Intramurals

Results

Volleyball

Monuments 2, Senators 1
Colts over Crushers, wbf
Academics 2, Seagrams 0
Panthers 2, Cougars 0
Chipmonks over Leopards , wbf
BK?, Stouts 1
Smithies 2, Deacons 0
Jacks 2, Eagles 0
Munchkins 2, Jocks 0
Baggers 2, Smokers 1
Browns 2, "18" 1
Leven 2, Misfits 1
Vloams 2, Vollies 0
Flats over x plus 2, wbf
EM's 2, Second Team 1
Busters 2, Cult 0
Civil Eng. 2, Flies 1

Bodies 2, Zeroes 1
Slohssa over Beadledons, wbf
Co-Rec
Kopeta 2, JG 0
Bouncers 2, Stoutees 1
Shots 2, Jacks 0
Super Stars 2, Funnies 0
LCO 2, KSCO 0
Canines 2, Triaps 0
Rigatonies 2, Deacons 0
Lemons 2, Limes 0
ACS 2, B and B 0

Tonight's

VOLLEYBALL

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:30	LCA vs. ZN
2		SAM vs. PSK
3		PMD vs. ASP
4		PSD vs. SAE
5		PLP vs. ATG
6		SPE vs. APO
7		TC vs. KS
8		TEP vs. BKP
9		Cans vs. Eagles
10		Flaming A's vs. Maroons
1	7:30	Bombers vs. Inter. Ed
2		Conglos vs. Gunners
3		Burners vs. Education
4		SAE vs. TKE
5		Prince vs. PP
6		Crushers vs. Fleas
7		Cans vs. TT
8		Lovers vs. LT
9		Sextet vs. Ids
1	8:30	Jacks vs. Pranksters
2		Dildoughs vs. Heads
3		Sigmas vs. Boys
4		Oxfords vs. Bucks
5		Suffs vs. Tubes
6		Canaille vs. Hurts
7		DCD vs. 3 M's
8		C.O. & Boys vs. Strangers
9		Bekap vs. JO ATG
1	9:30	Redwoods vs. Oaks
2		Hemlocks vs. Lemons
3		Brigade vs. Pipers

Women's Intramurals

BASKETBALL

Court	Time	Teams
	6:00	Coolidge 10th Floor vs. Van Meter South
		Lambda Delta Phi vs. Chi Omega
	6:30	Johnson vs. Leach
		Dickinson Independents by Van Meter South vs. Chi Omega
	7:00	Coolidge 10th Floor vs. Leach
		Lambda Delta Phi vs. Dickinson Ind.
	7:30	Chi Omega vs. Leach
		Van Meter South vs. Dickinson Ind. Johnson bye
	8:00	Coolidge 10th Floor vs. Johnson
		Leach vs. Dickinson Ind.
		Mamboa Delta Phi bye
	8:30	Chi Omega vs. Johnson
		Van Meter South vs. Lambda Delta Phi

Results

Basketball

Patterson 32, Kangaroos 5
Dwight 30, Dickinson 4
Foul Balls 28, Melville Troupe 0
Lotta's Girls 6, Gammies 4
Gorman Pines 6, Sleazebags 4
Mary's Lions 10, Puffton 4
Patterson 41, Melville Troupe 0
Dwight 17, Lotta's Girls 5

Hockey Featured At Varsity M

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Hockey was the topic at the UMass Varsity M Club luncheon yesterday at the Newman Center with the featured gusts being head coach Jack Canniff, assistant coach Russ Kidd and Redman stars P.J. Flaherty, Dennis Grabowski, Bart Bartholemew, Pat Keenan and Eric Scrafield.

Flaherty, who has proved himself to be one of the top goalies in Division 11, led off the program by giving praise to coach Canniff for the job he has done in reviving the UMass hockey program since coming here four years ago. Canniff's first team had a record of 5-15. The next year the record improved to 9-10. Last years squad had a big year with a record of 10-8 and this year's squad has already bettered this with a record of 11-4-1 to date with four games to play.

Grabowski spoke on the UMass fans, centering on their support and their contrast to the more hockey orientated fans. Since UMass has risen to a hockey power in Division 11 it has picked up good opponents resulting in good hockey games at Orr Rink which have been well received by the fans.

However, he went on to point out that Redman fans do not view the game as do Vermont and Bowdoin fans who are naturally more hockey orientated. These later fans cheer for the good pass and the good check whereas the UMass fans only cheer for the goal. But as hockey has grown on Campus so will the knowledge and appreciation of the UMass fans.

Bartholemew commented that National Hockey League teams will be going more and more in the future into the college ranks for top notch prospects. Players today realize they need a college education. Buthe also pointed to the fact that the checking rules in U.S. college hockey have been changed to a more hitting game to give these college player more of a chance to make the pros.

Keenan and Scrafield are both Canadians. Keenan said that the main difference between Canadian and American hockey was as Bartholemew stressed the checking rules. In Canada there is checking all over the ice whereas in the U.S. checking is only limited to the offensive zone. Now the record point holder for one season, Keenan said he was very pleased with the way everything was going for him at UMass, both on the ice and in the classroom.

Scrafield said that college hockey in Canada is not as big as it is here. Both he and Keenan went to the same high school and passed up playing junior hockey for an education. A few years ago it was normal for the professional scouts to take boys right out of high school and sign them. Today it has changed and there's a hands off policy to let the boys choose as they see fit.

Coach Kidd reiterated a point that has been talked about many times recently, that being that UMass needs a hockey rink. He went on to say, "If we can get our own rink, we can be one of the best teams in the east."

Kidd said he has some very fine players on his freshman team who will give the varsity a run for their positions.

Coach Canniff noted of his players, "They are unselfish players and have sacrificed a lot of travelling around the area to find ice to practice on."

He went on to say, "We have played two schedules this season. We played six of our first seven games at home, won them all, won the lone game on the road and entered semester break 7-0.

Then we had 43 days of rest and this undid anything we had already done."

As for the keys to this season he said, "We haven't lost a home game this year and have won three and tied one in overtime. We have played probably the most overtime games of anyteam in the east and it's always good to pick up a win in OT."

On his team's chances of playoff position he felt his team was right now in the third position with the remaining games determining whether they finished higher and lower. It could go either way.

But he finished by saying, "We want to make it to the playoffs because we feel we can take it all in Division 11."

Next week basketball is the topic for the Varsity M Club luncheon with head coach Jack Leaman and a couple of his Redmen as the featured guests.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Good weather will prevail.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 95 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1971

THE OLD AND THE NEW—Recognize anyone? Yes, you guessed it. One of those black-caped religious who seemed to haunt the Campus Center and the Student Union during the week talks to a Roman Catholic nun on Boylston St. in Boston. (MDC photo by David Williams)

Senate Bus Line Expands To Puffton

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

The Student Senate Transit Service will begin a new service Monday, March 1, 1971. To be known as the V-lot-Puffton shuttle, it will begin operations at 7:40 a.m. and continue running to 2 p.m.

The route will begin in V-lot, next to the Stadium, and will proceed to Puffton Village via Southwest, Fearing Street, and North Pleasant Street. The return trip will bring the bus straight down Fearing Street to University Drive and the Stadium.

According to Bill Perkins, manager of the Service, the new run was created for several reasons.

"We have an awful lot of commuters who leave their cars in V-lot," he said. "It's a long walk to the center of campus,. Last year, Bob Ferriter, Parking Coordinator, asked us if we could plan a new run to make it easier on the commuters."

"It wasn't feasible last year because we didn't have enough buses," he added. "However, this September we purchased two new diesel buses of the type used for public transportation. This increased our fleet to four buses," he continued. "One of the diesels is still being repaired, but as soon as it comes out of the shop we'll be extending the time of the Puffton run from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., the same as the other runs."

Perkins added that he expected the spare diesel to be finished with repairs around Spring vacation, and that the full schedule would be assumed for the Puffton run when students returned from vacation.

He also said that if any of the buses were to break down, the spare diesel would be pressed into service and the V-lot-Puffton run would be temporarily suspended. He said that in this contingency, an announcement of the discontinuation of the Puffton run would be announced on WMUA.

Another reason for the conception of the new run, according to Perkins, is the continual crowding of the southwest bus.

"The Southwest bus has been mobbed lately. We're trying to make the times of the new run and the Southwest run coincide. We may have to alter times or change a few stops to do this," he added. "We expect to have signs and schedules in place soon. Until then, schedules can be found on the buses or in the Campus Center lobby. Also, he continued, "temporary signs will be placed at all new stops."

Perkins mentioned that the new line would serve the sororities and fraternities on North Pleasant Street.

The service, which has been in operation since November of 1969, carries over two thousand passengers daily. Perkins estimates that this number will jump by close to a thousand once the run becomes popular.

Senate Transit Service plans for the future include eventually replacing the entire fleet with all public transit type buses. They are also in the process of buying a large diesel bus for off-campus trips of student organizations.

On The Inside:

- SWAP Budget Determined
- TA Training Starts Soon
- South Viets Attacked In Laos

'Did The Germans Take Gaul?'

"Did the Germans Take Gaul?", an original production written by Marty Calabrese and directed by Gilda Garfinkle was presented yesterday at 4:30 in the South College Studio Theater. (MDC Photos by Demian)

Writer Marty Calabrese

Director Gilda Garfinkle

Graduate School To Start TA Training

By JEANETTE MARTINEAU
and SANDY MITCHNER
MDC Staff

Just a few short months may separate the undergraduate student from the TA facing his first class. The Graduate Research Center is hoping to minimize the transition through the Provost Committee on Teacher Evaluation.

Dean Mortimer H. Appley, Dean of the Graduate School, along with Associate Graduate Dean, Arthur C. Gentile felt that many of the graduate TA's had very little training in class room techniques. Last spring they started a program which would help TA's in their role of handling the class.

Dean Gentile's proposal provides for a ten day orientation program during the summer preceding the graduate students internship. This fall the orientation program was held for two days. It consisted of talks, discussions and an address by Chancellor Tippo, on the role of the TA in instructing and handling a class.

Four graduate TAs, Sandy Hartzog, Bill DeLamarter, Terry Krumm and Julie Bergwald, are working on an orientation and evaluation program to train the new TAs.

Sandy Hartzog a botany TA believes that with 20 percent of the teaching load at UMass being graduate student TAs, and a higher percentage of these TAs teaching freshman and sophomore introductory courses; that beginning college students need confident instructors in the early stages of their college career.

Mrs. Hartzog said, that many problems facing the new TA's are common to all. They may talk to fast for the students to take notes, speak over the students head, or their lecture plans may not be well organized.

A video-tape program has been initiated to help the TA. It will be used not only as an evaluation source but also as a research reference on file for the TA's.

Presently a display of books, journals, pamphlets and articles can be found on the sixth floor of Goodell Library. This display of material on teaching, learning or discussion is available for assistance to TA's.

Dean Appley believes that this program will be instrumental in assisting the TA's. Only five departments have training programs for their TA's, out of about thirty-five departments within the entire University. They are the Zoology, English, German, Sociology and Psychology departments.

Job Internships Open

By JANET PEARLMAN
MDC Staff

The Placement Office has recently been informed of many internship opportunities for this summer in Massachusetts State Agencies. These programs are open to all majors who are interested in governmental service.

The programs vary widely with the diversity of the agencies. Some want only juniors and seniors, like the Governor's Office Summer internship Program. Others are for only graduate and law students.

The Division of Water Pollution Control wants only engineering people.

Ten different agencies at both the state and local levels supply a variety of committees to choose from. Natural Resources, Insurance, Public Safety Transportation are a few of the specializations that students can particpate in at either of these levels.

The purpose of these programs is not only to give students an on-the-job experience, qualifying them for better positions later, but also to supply these agencies with the personnel that they badly need.

Most agencies have about twenty openings. The students selected from throughout the state will work a forty-hour week for about eleven weeks. Applications for the mostpart are due in before the end of March.

Interested students are urged to go to the Placement Office and ask to look at the "Handbook of Internship Programs Operating in Massachusetts State Agencies." From this booklet they can obtain the addresses to write away for the applications.

The Placement Office can get more specific information for an inquiring students. Want a well-paying government job this summer? Head to the Placement Office--Room 239 Whitmore.

New Leftist Activist Group Forms On Campus

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

"We hope to serve as an alternative for those students who wish to become involved in issues but are not inclined towards the type of activities by MOBE or any other radical group."

Such was the comment of Harold Kotlin in announcing the formation of the American Student Association, a new leftist activist group.

Kotlin stated that the idea for the group originated as a part of the aftermath of the Strike as well as the Realization during last year's election that there was an important need for students to be able to communicate not only among themselves but to the people of the community outside the boundaries of the colleges and universities of the country.

"There is a great need for the people of the nation not only to see what college students are doing but more importantly that they have an understanding of what students are trying to do and why they are doing it."

Although the ASA has branches at George Washington, Northeastern, Syracuse and Boston University and hopes to expand nation-wide, Kotlin emphasized that the group's activities would be locally oriented and would involve active though non-extremist participation in such issues as the Student Senate Officers Pay Referendum.

He went on to indicate the five major local goals which the association would attempt to achieve:

—To locally eliminate political apathy and stimulate interest in political affairs both on the national level as well as in intra-university affairs.

—To establish a home base for student activists so that activities and ideas may be coordinated and then communicated to the community.

—To create a unified organization for leftists who may have similar goals but have not found the exact means to accomplish them.

—To establish committees of high school students headed by residents of the community. These communities would be involved in gathering data and determining the needs and desires of the people of the area for political reform and then to communicate these needs to the proper political leaders for action. It would also serve as an outlet for student political action to work with these groups in their own home towns.

—To establish an expeditious channel of communications between the University and the surrounding community.

Kotlin also stated that while the group would hold back on the extremist actions which tend to turn people off it would still stick to principles and not be swayed from its major goals.

He added that unlike many of the other activists groups the association would concentrate its efforts on one particular area of action rather than spreading its efforts among a wide variety of issues which may or may not be coordinated or similar.

Open meetings will be held next week to determine student reaction to the new organization. The first will be on Tuesday March 2nd at 8 p.m. in the Hampden Commons and on Wednesday March 3rd at 8 p.m. in Crabtree basement. All are welcome to attend.

Summerhill, the film originally scheduled for showing as part of the School of Education's marathon Something Else '70 has finally arrived. It will be shown on Friday February 25 at 3:00 p.m. and again at 8 p.m. March 1st in the School of Education Auditorium. All are welcome.

IF YOU ARE A SENIOR

you should already have an appointment for your Index Portrait. Some appointments are still left. Sign up in the Index office, S.U.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst. the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

SWAP Money Switched

By BOB CALLAHAN
MDC Staff

The Budget Committee of the Student Senate decided to give Student Workshop on Activities Problems (SWAP) a $4,000 budget and to not reinstate subsidation of faculty members attending the conference, which is held once a year.

In an earlier action, the funds were cut by the Budget Committee. At the Senate Meeting Wednesday evening, some Senators asked that the Budget Committee reconsider their earlier actions and appropriate the $7,000 which SWAP needs to conduct their annual three day conference.

At the meeting conducted Thursday evening, which was attended by members of SWAP and several Senators, a proposal was made by the SWAP Committee that the money be returned. The major issue concerned the money appropriated for the off campus meeting place.

The proponents of SWAP stated that the off campus location was important for the atmosphere in which a three day gathering could be conducted. The atmosphere in which 3-4 factions met would not be the same if SWAP were held on campus. Held on campus SWAP would be just another meeting they said.

The proponents also stated that the interpersonal relationship developed in a looser atmosphere were felt to be of an immeasurable value. Also it was said that an off campus location would allow for meetings to be conducted late in the morning hours.

A question was raised by a member of the Budget Committee as to why the Campus Center wasn't utilized for the meetings. A member of SWAP said that using the facilities of the Campus Center would be too costly and that the lodge where SWAP has met in the past years has the best rate per person.

An objection was raised toward the membership of SWAP. It was said that SWAP was an elitist group and that there was too much socializing and not enough being done.

Proponents of the program stated that the concentrated weekend was a good thing because it enabled people to meet and discuss things which normally would not be discussed because of lack of time and organization. SWAP also said that open meetings will be held next week to inform the campus community what is going on in SWAP.

Several compromises were then introduced into the meeting. A member of the Senate proposed to make SWAP a 2 day-1 night program. Her reasoning was that a great deal gets accomplished on Friday night and Saturday night and Sunday she felt would conserve money. She also stated that the Student Activity Tax was an important issue in limiting SWAP to 2 days and 1 night.

A motion was then called to appropriate $6,000 for meals and lodging for the program. This motion was defeated. A new motion to give SWAP $4,000 was then introduced. The vote by the Budget Committee was in favor of this proposal.

A short discussion was then held to decide whether the fees given to the faculty members as a subsidy should be reinstated. After hearing arguments pro and con, they decided to vote against any reinstatement.

Shortly afterwards the meeting concerning SWAP ended and other business was brought before the committee.

SUG Board Seeks Definition Of Role

By ANNE STADNICKI
MDC Staff

"The business of the Student Union Governing Board, as I see it, is to formulate policy," Thomas Campion, Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Services, said in response to a query about the role of the SUG Board concerning its new constitution being drawn up by the task force.

Members of the task force include Vice-Chancellor Campion, Associate Dean of Students Daniel Fitzpatrick, Vice Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, Senate Attorney Richard Howland, and students Betty Pugh, Bob Nims, Thad Dabrowski and Larry Woods.

Bob Nims, new president of the SUG Board, said that the task force was appointed to "define the lines of authority" because the Board is "unsure of its own position."

When Campion expressed what he thought the position of the SUG Board was, he distinguished policy decisions from day to day operational matters.

"Focus on the larger issues is important, or else the Board will get bogged down with details," the Vice-Chancellor said. Professionals are very capable and can operate the Campus Center very efficiently on a day to day basis, he added.

The businessman may even question how efficiently a student can run an establishment. Nims suggested. He said that between students and management all aspects of the Student Union and Campus Center are covered, but explained that Warren T. Grinnan, manager of the Campus Center, would like to know specifically what the respective positions are.

Grinnan said he would like "the lines of authority defined." The areas of responsibility have been ill-defined in the past, he said.

"Basically the SUG Board and the entire management staff of the Campus Center are ultimately responsible to the Board of Trustees," Grinnan said. "The constitution should establish an inner-relationship between the groups."

He went on to say, "All management people who before only looked at one area of responsibility (for example the bookstore or food services) have an added dimension today in terms of programming. The areas are not so specialized now, they cut across all operational areas."

Grinnan said that he is completely satisfied that the interaction is expressing itself well in activities such as the Wednesday Coffee Hour at the Top of the Campus.

Rocky Hodgson, secretary-treasurer of the SUG Board, commented that all the different perspectives of the groups involved have to be considered when planning interaction and areas of authority.

He listed the administration, Student Activities, SUG Board and the management as the groups with different viewpoints.

As a student he said he must express his opinion that as much power as possible be placed in the hands of the students, but looking at it from the administration viewpoint he could see that they have as much money involved as the students. The administration pays for the operation of the Campus Center, while the students' investment is the taxes (Close to nine hundred thousand dollars a year) and they also put money in the revenue producing areas, for instance the garage, Hodgson explained.

Student Activities main concern is to set up programs, but the management must efficiently operate around these activities, sometimes causing conflicts, he went on.

Hodgson said compromise is the key and that is now the definitive statement on who has what power will come about in the SUG Board's new constitution.

Vice Chancellor Campion stressed that the proposed constitution is only a draft, and all provisions are subject to change. The membership make-up may constitute one change, he said.

If what is proposed for the constitution is accepted by the SUG Board, the Board will formulate the policy, subject only to the Chancellor's approval, Campion explained. The Chancellor will have to take positive action if he disapproves of a measure, he said.

Campion expects that the SUG Board and the professionals on the operational staff of the Campus Center will work together in many areas of concern where the student preference should be expressed, for example in food service, but where professional competence is necessary.

Free U. Offers Student Garage

By JIM GOLDMAN
MDC Staff

In response to the high cost of automotive repair, the Free University will be sponsoring a course in auto mechanics at the soon to be established Free Garage. Under the supervision of trained mechanics, students will learn repair techniques while repairing their own cars.

Rich Ricard, of the Free University, stated, "This will not be a consumer service, but an educational service." He also said that the course will prevent people from being "ripped off" at garages. Payment for the services of the Free Garage will be up to the students' discretion.

The location of the Free Garage is near settlement. Ricard hopes to have the shop operational by next week. More car manuals, catalogues, tools, old engines, and other automative equipment are still needed.

In the future, the Free Garage hopes to obtain space on the University grounds. A mobile garage is also planned.

Information concerning the Free Garage is available through Rich Ricard at the Free University.

MDC Staff Writers Meeting
Monday At 6:30 p.m.
Mr. Oickle's Office

School Of Education To Abolish Courses

By DON GLICKSTEIN
MDC Staff

The School of Education's Council voted yesterday to conditionally abolish all courses in that school beginning in the Fall, 1972, and institute a completely Modular Curriculum

The completely Modular Curriculum (CMC), according to its proponents, provides more flexible scheduling for both students and faculty, and greatly individualizes learning. Experiences may take place over varied periods of time under a CMC, unlike a traditional 3 50-minute courses per week system. Students are able to take only those experiences which they need, using a CMC, and do not sit through "irrelevant" or repetitious lectures. Negotiations are currently underway between the Education School and the University's Academic Matters Committee to coordinate the CMC with the requirements and guidelines of the University.

Philip Christianson, a coordinator of the Modular Credit Program at the School, announced that $53,000 was being sought from the Carnegie Foundation to plan the CMC transition, and $32,000 for its first year of operation.

The School Council emphasized that the CMC would not be implemented unless administration, evaluation, and counseling procedures of the Program had been developed by February 1 of next year. While planning is in progress, experimentation within courses of the Fall, 1971 semester will be encouraged. The experimentation will be evaluated by November 15, 1971.

A committee consisting of the School's Academic Matters and Modular Credit Committees, the Graduate Studies director, and the Deans will be responsible for the planning. Two undergraduates will also be named to the Committee after a sufficient recruitment campaign. Undergraduate education majors interested in being on the Committee should speak to Dr. David Yarington, chairman of the School's Academic Matters group.

State Colleges Confer On Tuition Hike

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

A conference of state and community colleges, including UMass, will be held here Feb. 26-27. The purpose of the meeting will be to plan and coordinate efforts to fight a tuition increase bill which was recently submitted to the Senate.

The bill, submitted by Senate president Kevin Harrington, stipulated an increase in all state school tuitions from the $200 presently paid by students to $2,400. The increase would not include room and board.

According to Judy Gill, the University and State Communication Council chairwoman of (USCC) the meeting was called mainly to form a unified student opposition to all tuition hike bills, which would then be presented to the Legislature at an open meeting to be held March 16.

"We've had our matters of contention with the small community colleges," she said. "As a large university, we get more state aid than the smaller schools do, although the tuition rates are uniform. As a result, the community colleges have been planning to go before the legislature and ask that their tuition remain constant.

The only thing that could come from this would be mutual damage," she continued. "We want to either unify our arguments or, if that proves impossible, decide on some way to present our arguments so as to counteract theirs and thereby protect our interest in the issue."

The closed session conference and co-oriented activities will begin Friday evening and extend into Saturday afternoon.

WANTED

CLEAN-UP MAN
5, 6 or 7 days a week.
Start at $2/hour.
See manager.
AMHERST TOWER RESTAURANT

the Shoe-In
1 Cook Place
In the Alley

GRAND OPENING SPECIAL
THURSDAY FEB. 25TH

FAMOUS MAKER HARNESS BOOTS

"BACK HOME BARGAINS"

BOOTS AND FUN SHOES FOR GUYS & GALS

In The Nation And The World

South Viet Paratroopers Beat Off Attacks

SAIGON (AP) –South Vietnamese paratroopers beat back a fierce North Vietnamese tank assault on Hill 31 in Laos, U.S. officers said but the outcome of the battle for the base was in doubt Friday.

The Saigon troops knocked out five of eight enemy tanks Thursday by lowering their artillery fire, the U.S. officers said. The three remaining tanks pulled back from the assault on the hill about 20 miles inside Laos, where the South Vietnamese have encountered tough enemy resistance in their 18-day-old drive against the Ho Chi Minh trail.

A South Vietnamese headquarters spokesman in Saigon aid said Friday he had no reports on the paratrooper action at Hill 31 which has been under attack since Monday. Asked if the Saigon troops were still in possession of the hill, he said he had no reports of any South Vietnamese position being lost or abandoned Thursday.

While there were no reports of further South Vietnamese advances into southern Laos to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, said the operation was going well despite heavy fighting and some setbacks.

The fighting in Laos was at Hill 31, about 10 miles inside Laos. The base has been under continuous attack for three days.

The North Vietnamese struck with tanks in their first use of armer since early in 1969. U.S. officers said the direct artillery fire, along with antitank weapons, helicopter gunships and jet fighter-bombers, beat off the attack.

Most of the tanks were bagged by the paratroopers, and the remaining three fled with U.S. fighter-bombers in pursuit, a U.S. officer in the north said.

He reported the paratroopers still held the hill and "were holding out and were doing a good job." A U.S. F4 Phantom jet was shot down while flying bombing missions in support of the base. The U.S. Command said both crew members were rescued.

There was no word on casualties at the base. Hill 31 is five miles southwest of the point where a government ranger base was overrun over the weekend with severe losses to the South Vietnamese defenders.

The action at Hill 31 was the latest in a series of bloody engagements that have erupted since the South Vietnamese drive into Laos began Feb. 8. The South Vietnamese said that three fire support bases and three field positions in Laos were hit by enemy rockets, mortar and recoilless rifle fire. Casualties were described as light.

The tanks reported used in the attack on Hill 31 were believed to be PT76s, a Soviet-made light amphibious type.

In an interview with Peter A. Jay of the Washington Post, Abrams described the campaign in Laos as critical to the U.S. troop withdrawal program but added that its success or failure will not be apparent before next fall.

Abrams said if there is no significant enemy military effort in South Vietnam after the rainy season ends in July and before the October presidential elections in South Vietnam then the operation can be counted a success.

Abrams insisted the operation had a limited objective, the destruction of enemy supply stockpiles to prevent a 1971 offensive in the northern provinces of South Vietnam. He said it never was intended to seal off the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Administration sources in Washington have said one main aim of the operation in Laos is to destroy stockpiles that might be used next year at a time when the withdrawal of U.S. forces is nearing its final stages.

The South Vietnamese have reported seizing or destroying huge stores of munitions and supplies.

In its evening communique, South Vietnamese headquarters reported that 2,171 enemy have been killed in the Laos operation up to 6 p.m. Wednesday. U.S. officers have expressed doubt about such high figures.

Government casualties for tha t period were listed at 270 killed, 882 wounded and 98 missing.

To the south, another government thrust was reported in Cambodia. About 1,500 troops moved across the border in an effort to ease enemy pressure on highway 1, the main Phnom Penh-Saigon road link. The new dirve raised to 24,500 the number of government forces now operating in Cambodia.

The government's news service, Vietnam Press, quoted President Nguyen Van Thieu as saying in a speech to a people's convention that a march on North Vietnam is only a matter of time. The speech was made Wednesday at Pleiku, in the central highlands.

A government spokesman said remarks on a march on North Vietnam were not in Thieu's prepared text and refused further comment.

U.S. headquarters reported that 59 Americans were killed in action and another 42 died of nonhostile causes in the seven-day reporting period that ended at midnight Saturday.

The toll was the highest for American forces in Indochina in 5 1/2 months and reflected the casualties in the Laotian support operation.

House Initiates Campaign Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the assertion that "never before has the time been so ripe," a bipartisan group of House members introduced Thursday a package of bills aimed at election campaign reform.

The drive to try to hold down spiralling campaign costs and force a more complete accounting of candidates' receipts and expenditures also picked up steam in the Senate with the introduction of a bill by Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Both the House and Senate bills include strict reporting and disclosure provisions for all campaign financing, provide tax credits for small campaign contributions, and give reduced mailing rates to candidates. In addition, the House package would put a ceiling on campaign spending and provide a limited amount of free television time,paid for by the government, to major party candidates for president and Congress.

A key factor in the outcome of the reform effort will be the attitudes of the White House President Nixon, in vetoing a bill last year limited to controlling television costs, hailed the goal of campaign reform but has not proposed any legislation.

Scott worked closely with the White House in drafting his bill but failed to win its endorsement. Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., chief sponsor of the House package, also talked with the White House during the drafting process but was unable to say whether he will get Nixon's support.

Besides being a more comprehensive measure, the House package of four bills has a broader bipartisan base of support, with 31 Republicans, including minority leader Gerald R. Ford, and 27 Democrats backing it.

In the Senate, in addition to the Scott bill, there are two other campaign reform bills pending. One, a bipartisan measure cosponsored by Sens. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., includes the federally subsidized television provision in the House package.

Soviet Union Labels Laos Incursion 'Criminal Act'

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union called the incursion into Laos "another criminal act by the United States" and warned Thursday against resumption of large-scale American bombing of North Vietnam.

"The Soviet Union cannot remain indifferent to the escalation of the American aggression," said an official statement published in the government newspaper Izvestia and distributed by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

In a separate dispatch, Tass said President Nixon's State of the World message Thursday shows the United States "remains on its old position of imposing imperialist terms on the people of Vietnam at the Paris peace talks."

It said the President's speech indicates future U.S. policy in Laos and Cambodia will continue on "the established course ...aimed at suppressing by force of arms the national liberation movement in Southeast Asia."

The Izvestia statement, headlined "Statement of the Soviet Government," was the harshest official reaction so far to the operations in Laos and to President Nixon's statement Feb. 17. Nixon said he would not limit the use of U.S. air power anywhere in Indochina except to bar employment of nuclear weapons.

"The Soviet people are prepared to continue giving all the necessary aid to the fraternal Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and to the patriots of Indochina defending their legitimate rights," the statement said.

Though it did not go as far as to say Russian security interests were involved - as Red China has said about Laos - the Soviet statement represented an escalation in the commitment of the Communist patron states to the outcome of the fighting.

The Kremlin "resolutely denounced" the Laotian incursion which U.S. officials say is receiving only air and artillery support from American forces.

Romney Asks Halt To High Building Costs

CHICAGO (AP) - Housing Secretary George Romney said Thursday that President Nixon may have to take further steps to halt escalating costs in the building industry if trade unions and industry cannot agree on wage stabilization.

Romney said at a news conference that he could not predict if the President would seek wage controls, but he blamed the cost of labor for rising home prices.

"We've reached the point where if you call an electrician or a plumber, it's a financial catastrophe," Romney said.

He supported President Nixon's action Tuesday in suspending provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act which required the federal government to pay prevailing wages on federal construction projects.

"The Davis-Bacon Act has operated to permit building trades unions to become a monopoly," he said. Romney added that the escalating wages have "caused excessive inflation as well as high unemployment."

Communists Charge Nixon Lied

PARIS (AP)—Communist delegates to the Vietnam peace talks charged President Nixon lied in contending Thursday that North Vietnam has broadened the war into an Indochina conflict.

Reacting sharply to Nixon's report to Congress, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong accused Nixon of preparing to attack North Vietnam. The drive into Laos and "threat" to North Vietnam constitute a menace to Communist China, Xuan Thuy, the North Vietnamese chief delegate repeated.

Nixon told Congress that "Hanoi has made the war an Indochina conflict" and estimated total North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos at 240,000.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said that despite the Nixon "aggression" against Cambodia last year and the "massive invasion" of Laos, Nixon "nonetheless pretends that it is the Vietnamese people and the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam who have extended the war to all of Indochina."

The spokesman said that was one of three Nixon "lies" the others being that he seeks a peaceful settlement of the war and that he is always prepared to negotiate.

Nixon, he charged, "is preparing senseless military adventures against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam"-North Vietnam.

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce attempted for the second time to get negotiations going on a timetable for mutual withdrawal of foreign forces from South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. As with last week's attempt, it failed.

Bruce noted that the North Vietnamese no longer deny they have forces in the other three countries of Indochina, and hoped that this might signal a desire to discuss mutual pullouts.

Cuban Fishing Boats Seized

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Four Cuban fishing boats were hauled into port on poaching charges Thursday after a bitter, high seas confrontation between the U.S. Coast Guard and Florida Marine Patrol officers.

One of the Cuban boats was brought in during the morning by the Coast Guard Cutter Cape May. The other three were escorted in later in the day by Marine Patrol officers.

The Cubans are charged with violating Florida and U.S. territorial waters. They were intercepted while fishing near the Dry Tortugas, about 80 miles southwest of Key West.

The dispute arose over whether all or one of the boats had violated the law.

Early in the day, Cmdr. Richard Clements, skipper of the Key West Coast Guard Station, announced he had decided to let three of the boats go back to Cuba. But Marine Patrol Lt. Ed Little had warrants sworn out for the arrest and confiscation of all four vessels and their crews and gave pursuit.

At that point, Little charged later, the Coast Guard Cutter Diligence bore down on one of two small Marine Patrol boats with its siren blowing as if to ram the state boat for attempting to intercept the Cubans.

"The Coast Guard didn't assist us in any way, shape or form," Little said. "In fact, they tried to prevent us from seizing the Cuban boats by verbal threats and their actions out there."

FREE 1971 STUDENT TRAVEL GUIDE

ISRAEL EUROPE

featuring Kibbutz Discovery Tours

Combine the excitement of international adventure with culturally rewarding experience: live and work in a Kibbutz; enjoy extensive tours throughout Israel; lectures and seminars; sun and fun on the Mediterranean; seashore archeological digs; evening entertainment; weekends with Israeli families, plus 2-3 weeks of European culture and art. Greece, Italy, Switzerland, France, England and Scandinavia.

CHOICE OF 11 OUTSTANDING PROGRAMS (22-60 DAYS) WITH DEPARTURES THROUGHOUT JUNE, JULY & AUGUST

SPECIAL CAMPING in ISRAEL $3 A DAY A new unique way to discover the beautiful land of Israel and to meet her beautiful people. Plus extras

from $775 - ALL INCLUSIVE

Request 1971 Student Travel Guide from your travel agent or EASTOURS' SCHOLASTIC JOURNEYS 1140 Avenue of the Americas New York, N.Y. 10036 (212) 490-2040

Nixon Urges Money Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nixon administration applied more oral pressure on the Federal Reverve Board Thursday to pump more money into the nation's sluggish economy.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally made it clear at a hearing of the House Appropriations Committee that the administration wants a more vigorous expansion of money to achieve its ambitious economic goals.

"The 1.1 per cent increase in the money supply in Janurary was not at all satisfactory," Connally told the congressmen.

"The average 3 per cent increase in the money supply since September also was not at all satisfactory."

With that sort of advance, he said, the administration will not ba able to reach its goal of an $88-billion jump in output of goods and services this year.

Goerge P. Shutz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said it will take a "real propellant" from the monetary side to expand the economy in the manner President Nixon wants this year.

It is the same theme Nixon administration economic officials have been sounding since Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns cast doubt on whether the independent Fed. will boost the money supply as fast as Nixon wants.

To achieve its economic goals, the administration says a 6 per cent ansual increase in the money supply may be necessary to spur new economic expansion.

Burns assured Congress the Federal Reserve will expand money and credit to guarantee a healthy economic expansion, but he differed on the degree of the expansion.

He said there is plenty of money available now and pointed to declining interest rates to bolster his point. What is lacking, Burns said, is not money but confidence in the economy.

A member of Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors, Herbert Stein, countered Burns' statement on confidence in a speech earlier in the week, saying in effect a boost in the money supply would also boost confidence.

Wholesale Prices Rise Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP)-The government estimated Thursday that wholesale prices rose sharply again this month for a two-month increase of 1.5 per cent, the biggest in 14 years.

The sharp increase puts new pressure on consumer prices, which have slackened their rise lately.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed the preliminary 0.8 per cent February increase in wholesale prices mainly on bad weather that kept hogs and cattle from getting to market, dribing up volatile wholesale farm prices 4.5 per cent.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson said the February increase was "more than we expected," but added, "The effect of rugged weather on hog prices is certainly a short-range phenomenon."

As consolation, he noted that despite the big recent jumps wholesale prices have risen by a comparatively modest 2.7 per cent in the last 12 months. He also pointed to a "tiny" 0.3 per cent increase in industrial goods for February.

However wholesale prices of manufactured goods rose 0.5 per cent and processed foods rose 1.4 per cent. Both these prices translate readily into store prices.

The February figures, which are subject to later revision up or down, mean it cost $112.70 to buy wholesale what $100 bought in 1967, the new base year the government now uses for its indexes.

Breaking down the February increases into some separate categories, the bureay noted big advances in wholesale lumber and wood prices, a factor likely to be reflected in home construction costs. Lumber and wood prices had been declining.

Motor vehicles and furniture rose moderately, as did clothing.

Fuel prices turned down after a seven-month climb.

February over-all increase was the highest for one month since an identical gain in May 1969. The last time wholesale prices rose 1.5 per cent in a two-month period was in April and May of 1956.

Only last Friday the BLS announced that prices paid by consumers-the cost-of-living index-rose only 0.1 per cent in January for the smallest gain in nearly four years.

MIT Battering Ram Case Overruled By Supreme Court

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)-The supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts ruled Thursday student protesters who used a battering ram to invade university offices were violating a felony statute with punishment up to 10 years in state prison, and not just the minor trespass law.

The ruling was made on an appeal in the case of Stephen F. Krasnow of Cambridge, a student who was indicted on a charge that he used a battering ram to break into the office of Massachusetts Institute of Technology president Howard W. Johnson during a student protest Jan. 15, 1970.

The court reversed a Superior Court decision by Judge Cornelius J. Moynihan who ordered dismissal of the indictment obtained by Middlesex Dist. Atty. John J. Droney. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court by Croney.

The decision was delivered by Justice R. Ammi Cutter, and was concurred in by four other members of the court. Justice John W. Spalding dissented.

The majority held that the wording of the burglary law, dating back to 1853 showed that the legislature intended that anyone using, or intending to use the tools of a burglar should know that "he may suffer the same consequences as those visited upon one who intends to be a burglar."

Justice Spalding, in his dissent, argued that the majority of the court was remodeling a law "previously used only as a shield for the protection of the public against burglars, into a sword to be used against trespassers."

In the indicent at MIT in January 1970, a student protest group used a steel pipe, with handles welded to its sides, to smash in the door to Johnson's offices as part of a protest against MIT's contracts for research on instrumentation and in other areas which could be war-related.

George McGovern Invades Senator Muskie Territory

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) - Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota began Thursday his year-in-advance campaign for New Hampshire's Democratic presidential primary, saying he asks only "a fair and careful hearing" in a state that is virtually home ground for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

"I'm a realist," McGovern said. "I know that Sen. Muskie lives next door in the state of Maine."

Nonetheless, he said he is not conceding New Hampshire to the Democratic presidential frontrunner. McGovern said there may be several other candidates in the March 14, 1972, presidential primary along with him and the still-undeclared Muskie.

McGovern told a news conference he anticipates Muskie "will be strong in this state," but declined to set any target for his own vote in the primary. He said ut is too early for that. McGovern strategists have been suggesting that a 15 per cent showing in the New Hampshire primary would be adequate for their man. The game plan, clearly, is to suggest that anything short of a virtual sweep by Muskie would be a setback to the Maine senator, who has not yet announced his own candidacy for the White House.

McGovern scheduled 2 1/2 days of public appearances and private meetings with Democratic politicians as the first installment of his New Hampshire campaign.

The Democratic State Committee invited the party's presidential candidates and prospects to come to the state, offering to help with arrangements for the initial visit. Harry Makris of Nashua, the party chairman, said Muskie's office indicated he would be making arrangements for a visit in the near future, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana said he wants to come to the state soon.

McGovern said Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, who has not yet answered the party's invitation, is another potential primary entry. He also listed New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, now a Republican, as a possible contestant: "I understand that he's looking at it."

BLASTING THE HO CHI MINH TRAIL—South Vietnamese artillerymen blast away from their mountain top fire base this week as they lay a curtain of shells on suspected enemy positions along the Ho Chi Minh trail below. Their fire base is located about 15 miles inside the Laos border.

Scott Nominated Despite Own Objections

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The movie academy says it can't oblige George C. Scott by withdrawing his nomination for best actor - like it or not, he's a finalist in the Oscar derby.

Scott was announced Monday as a nominee for the best-actor award for his portrayal of World War II Gen. George S. Patton in the movie Patton.

From a movie location in Spain, Scott wired the Academy: "Once again I respectfully request that you withdraw my name from the list of nominees. My position on this matter has been generally well-known for some 10 years."

Nominated as best supporting actor in Anatomy of a Murder in 1959 and The Hustler in 1961, Scott criticized Academy methods of nomination.

A spokesman for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences said: "The Academy can't withdraw Scott's name as a nominee. He has nothing to do with it. His nomination is a result of a vote of the actors' branch of the Academy. No request of his can change the fact that the actors' branch believes his achievement in Patton is worthy of an Academy Award."

The Academy's 2,986 members will pick Oscar winners in secret balloting between now and the 43rd presentation of awards April 15.

Army Gives Free Haircuts

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AP) - The Army has come up with a new enticement to encourage enlistments.

Beginning Friday, recruits here will be given their first Army haircut free, compliments of the Department of Defense.

The Defense Department has given Ft. Knox $122,600 for haircuts, which cost $1 each. An officer at Ft. Knox said the policy will be expanded to the six other reception stations in the country: Fort Dix, N.J.; Ford Ord, Calif.; Fort Jackson, S.C.; Fort Polk, La.; Fort Lewis, Wash; and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

White House Aids Campus Disrupters

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House is quietly seeking to eliminate legal restrictions which bar persons convicted of campus disruption from receiving federal student loans and loan guarantees.

BECOME A N.Y.U. NURSE

Do you want the identity of a professional practitioner? Do you want to work with, not just among, professional colleagues in the health field?

As a N.Y.U. Nurse you have case assignments . . . not just nursing routine. Planning and sharing with doctors, physical therapists, social workers and other ancillary personnel are all part of our unique staff utilization program that combines opportunity and advancement with direct patient care.

Join our staff and receive unparalleled growth opportunity, inservice training and free tuition toward graduate studies.

For full details about nursing at N.Y.U., see our campus recruiter on MARCH 5, 1971. Check details as to time and place with your placement office . . . or write or call collect:

Miss M. Kerans, (212) OR 9-3200, Ext. 2647

N.Y.U. Medical Center

568 First Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10016

an equal opportunity employer

ANTI-WAR GROUP-Bernie Loungee, temporary chairman of UMass Veterans For Peace, leading Wednesday's meeting of the antiwar group.

Vets Plan March To Westover AFB

The newly established UMass Veterans for Peace met for the second time Wednesday evening in the Campus Center.

The central portion of the meeting was devoted to planning anti-war activities the veterans will participate in this spring. The discussion centered around the National Peace Action Coalition's Student Mobilization Committee endorsed, plan for a national mass demonstration in Washington, D.C. on April 24th for immediate withdrawal of all troops from Southeast Asia and local demonstrations on March 15th to demand an end to the draft.

It was proposed and passed that the UMass Vets call for a Veteran march to Westover AFB, establish a vigil, and leaflet the area on March 15. The purpose of the demonstration will be to make public the Veterans opposition to the war in Indochina, and attempt to involve active-duty GI's in the antiwar movement. There is widespread "disapproval" of GI involvement in political dissent within the Armed Forces, and through their leafletting and presence the group will point out it is the civil right of all GIs to express their opposition to the war. An ad-hoc committee was formed to seek the support of the Connecticut Valley Anti-war Coalition and Student Mobe endorsement, and support for the event. An ad-hoc committee was established to publicize and build support, especially Veteran interest, in the demonstration.

In addition, the group chose to support and take part in the planned demonstrations in Washington on April 24th. A report was also given on the Veterans' workshop conducted at the SMC conference in Washington, D.C. which several vets from UMass attended. Bernie Lougee was elected temporary chairman of the group. There will be Veterans' tables located outside the Hatch on Friday, Feb. 26th and several days during the next week.

ASPIRE Initiates Program

A group of Commonwealth Scholars will study the process of mass communications by publicizing information on the topics of birth control and abortion.

The students, enrolled in Honors 192 at UMass, formed a group called ASPIRE -- Associated Students Promoting Individual Rights for Everyone. Birth control and abortion were selected because information is available, the topics are controversial and the chances for press attention seem good.

A student spokesman said, "We are not advocating birth control and abortion; we merely support the right of individuals to obtain information and to determine for themselves the use of birth control and abortion in the conduct of their lives."

The students believe that the decision of controlling birth and the right to have an abortion are relevant to them as young people in a state where birth control information dissemination is still illegal.

The idea of teaching mass communication by actually using it was proposed by Dr. Sidney Kraus, Professor of Speech. Instead of the usual classroom, students come to an office and complete assigned tasks. Tasks are "mapped out" according to a plan developed by the honor students. Creative groups develop and generate ideas which are translated into tasks for each student. Target audiences are researched and messages are created and distributed through media.

Ten graduate students handle scheduling, and work on their own special, projects related to the overall effort.

"You learn more about the process of communicating when you are forced to compete for time and space," said Dr. Kraus. He added, "It's one thing to write a release or a radio interview or suggest a feature story to your instructor; it's quite another thing to do it for a newspaper, a program director or an editor."

Calley: Conditioned To Kill

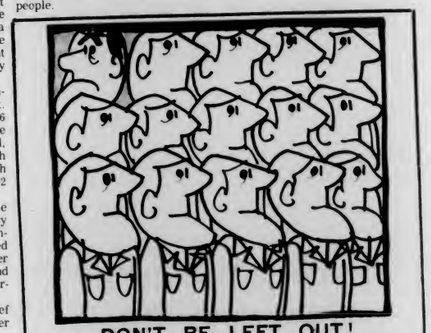
FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) - An Army psychiatrist described Lt. William L. Calley Jr. Thursday as free of any mental impairment at My Lai three years ago. But the defense tossed a new idea at a court-martial jury-that the defendant's combat training might have left him involuntarily "conditioned to kill."

"Did you find anything to indicate any impairment of Lt. Calley's thought processes on 16 March, 1968?" asked the prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey Daniel, referring to the date on which Calley is charged with premeditated murder of 102 unarmed Vietnamese civilians.

"No, I did not," replied the prosecution witness, Maj. Henry E. Edwards, one of three government psychiatrists who examined the 27-year-old defendant at Walter Reed Hospital a few weeks ago and pronounced him "perfectly normal."

On cross-examination, chief defense lawyer George Latimer said:

"I ask you, major, if you believe you can pathologically condition the mind along a certain channel - I'll say a channel to kill - and leave generally untouched other areas of thinking?"



Asked to rephrase the question, Latimer then based it on an individual and his specific training and experience.

"I would not say that," replied Edward, a slender, soft-spoken mental expert.

UMass Grad Merits Medal

Mr. Leon Holleb, a doctoral candidate in political science at UMass has received the George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedoms Foundation for his essay entitled "Freedom: Privilege or Obligation." Freedoms Foundation describes itself as an independent organization dedicated to the preservation and perpetuation of the American way of life, and the republic, drawing its strength from a fundamental belief in God and a constitutional government designed to serve the people.

Mr. Holleb was born in Oran, Algeria, in 1945 and immigrated with his parents to the U.S. in 1955. A 1967 graduate of Lake Forrest College in Illinois, majoring in government, he received his master's degree in 1970 at UMass and is presently a Ph.D. candidate associated with the department of government. Mr. Holleb, a member of Detachment 370, Air Force ROTC, also received the Distinguished Cadet Award and is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha honor society in political science.

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
APPOINTMENTS STILL LEFT FOR SENIOR PORTRAITS, INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

HERE THIS WEEK-END!
GARY BURTON QUARTET
Friday & Saturday Feb. 26-27
BOWKER AUDITORIUM 8 p.m.
A NIGHT OF GOOD VIBES
SPECIAL! Gary and the Quartet will participate in Seminar on Friday, 2:30 p.m. and Jazz Workshop on Saturday, 2:30 p.m. Comp tickets to those buying tickets to either evening concert.
Evening concert tickets: $1.50 for UMass undergrads; $2 other students; $2.50 UMass faculty/staff; $3 others.
Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter
(Remaining tickets at Bowker, 7 P.M.)
Telephone 545-0202 for both offices.

TOMORROW NIGHT!!!
GEORGE ANDERSON!!
PLAYIN THE GUITAR
SATURDAY NITE
AT
The English Pub
9:30 TIL CLOSE
BE THERE!!!

At Northampton Volkswagen

70	Pontiac, Yellow	2995 00
69	Plymouth Wagon, Blue	1695 00
68	Pontiac Lemans, White	1595 00
68	Opel Wagon, Blue	1695 00
68	Ford Mustang, Blue	1295 00
68	Austin Healey, Yellow	1695 00
68	Buick Skylark, Blue	1595 00
68	Renault, White	1095 00
68	Chevy Belaire, Blue	1295 00
68	Ford T-Bird, White	2995 00
67	Fiat 850, Red	995 00
67	Ford Wagon, White	1495 00
67	Ford Wagon, Blue	1295 00
66	Ford T-Bird, Blue	895 00
66	Chrysler, Green	995 00
65	Pontiac Grand Prix, Green	795 00
65	Ford Galaxie, Red	1095 00
65	Ford LTD, White	795 00
61	Dodge Dart, Black	595 00
61	Ford Falcon, Red	595 00
63	Mercury Comet, Maroon	395 00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From
Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
534-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5)
Northampton
Open Eves till 9

Culturnatives

Books Reviewed On Arts And Crafts

By GILBERT J. SALK
MDC Staff

I promised a special column reviewing more books on crafts, so here we go. One note first, though. It is not easy to make a living on crafts work. In American culture (if you can call it that) today, there is more of an emphasis on mass production than on original work. Because of that, outlets for creative work are limited, and usually attract a somewhat limited clientelle. Start as a hobby, try to sell a few pieces, and if you're lucky, your stars may give you the go-ahead from there. Now on to books.

The Standard Book of Quilt Making and Collecting - Marguerite Ickis ($3.00 Dover Publications, N.Y.C.) I know very little about quilting, but I'll recommend this book on the basis of my general experience with Dover books, its 482 illustrations, and the fact that it looks like it should sell for three times the price. The instructions are clear and simple, an obvious plus in any how-to book, and it is packed with design patterns which can be used either directly or as inspiration for other designs. It looks like fun, and your experiments will help you sleep warmly.

Successful Sewing: A Modern Guide - Nesta Hollis ($8.75, Taplinger Publ. Co., N.Y.C.) My knowledge of sewing only slightly exceeds my knowledge of quilting, and most of that comes from observing rather than doing, but this book seems to be amply illustrated and easily readable. There is an excellent chapter on material (fabrics) and their properties and uses, with laundering instructions. If you're like me, this could save you money spent replacing shrunken or stretched clothes. There is also a brief chapter on embroidery. The discussion of equipment seems good, and there are several helpful trouble-shooting hints.

The book contains what looks like a good short course for beginners and a directory of sewing processes for more advanced sewers (the word is better than seamstresses, which tends to make one think that this craft is only open to women.) I don't have the experience to evaluate how complete the directory really is, however. The index does seem good - I was able to use it to seek out things with which I am familiar. In general, the book looks good, but I would advise that you check out a copy in a bookstore before buying it.

Byways in Handweaving: An Illustrated Guide to Rare Weaving Techniques - Mary Meigs Atwater ($7.95, MacMillan, N.Y.C.) A book for the experienced serious weaver, Byways devotes little space to the basics. It is a good source of information on techniques native to other countries and will help you put a more esoteric flavor into your work. It is expensive, though, so I don't suggest it unless you're sure of your interest in weaving. It would be a good second book, perhaps.

Golden Press in NYC puts out three excellent beginners' books at $2.50 each.

Step-by-Step Weaving by Nell Znamierowski gives the detailed basic information needed to approach Byways knowledgeability. There are instructions for building hand looms and guides for purchasing more complicated -- and more efficient -- floor looms. Techniques of weaving and obtaining different weave patterns are clearly detailed. The book is profusely illustrated, as are all of the Step-by-Step books.

Step-by-Step Printmaking by Erwin Schachner gives a good general introduction to the art of printmaking. Instructions are clear, and a wide variety of possible applications of printmaking are presented.

Of the three books, the one I'm personally most enthusiastic about is Step-by-Step Macrame by Mary Walker Phillips. Macrame is perhaps the least expensive of all crafts. It is the art of creative knotting, and minimal equipment is string and common pins. Advanced equipment requires such outlandishly expensive tools as scissors, ruler, various embroidery and crochet needles, beads, and an assortment of strings, yarns, and other tieables. All you have to do is master a half-dozen simple basic knots and you're on your way. The knots and some ideas of what to do with them are excitingly displayed throughout the book. There are a number of projects of varying degrees of difficulty carefully explained. Can you dig making belts, tote-bags, sashes, wall hangings, pillow covers, bracelets, rugs, purses, and more by tying a few knots? It can give you something useful to do while you're filling a seat in a classroom, and if you're trying to quit smoking, this will give your hands something to busy themselves.

Whittling And Woodcarving by E.J. Tangerman ($2.00), Dover Publications, Inc., N.Y.C.) is a complete textbook on the meeting of knife and wood. It discusses everything from the types of knives needed to different woods and their qualities to simple figures and puzzles to very complex carvings and sculptures. It's a complete a text as you could find. Note: The fishing season is getting closer, and homemade lures can add to the excitement.

From Gunk to Glow or The Gentle Art of Refinishing Antiques and Other Furniture by George Grotz, alias The Furniture Doctor ($1.00,Pequot Press, Inc., Essex, Conn.) is a good homey handbook on what the title says it's about. This is a way to make some good money, if you have some junk to practice on. This book is far from a complete practice manual, but it's fun to read and really does cover most of what you'd need to know.

Pequot Press also publishes another valuable access book for craftsmen, the Handbook for Craftsmen by the Society of Connecticut Craftsmen ($1.00) The book says that it describes "professional standards and practices for handcrafts, including design, production, marketing and reference books for 27 crafts. Probably the most valuable part of this book is the listing of good books on the various crafts it covers.

PEACE.

CULTURNATIVES will deal with many different aspects of cultural alternatives. If you're into it and want to rap, or if you just want a copy (or copies) of Mother Earth News, stop by the Draft Counseling Office in 418E SU 2nd floor. You'll have to take your chances because draft counseling comes first, but if we're free, we'd enjoy sharing ideas.

SBA Course Leads to Student Involvement

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

A graduate business student's discovery that there was a relationship between the work he was going at Belchertown State School and the social sensitivity aspect of his course dealing with business and its environment has led to the involvement of some 83 other students in community action projects in the Pioneer Valley.

The source, Business and Its Environment, offered as part of the School of Business Administration's MBA program, seeks to give graduate students preparing to become executives an insight into the social problems which business may cause and the need for business to become socially responsible and work towards solutions for those problems.

Richard Hartzler, instructor of the course noted that the true originator of the program was a summer student who desired to do independent study in Belchertown because he felt that more than in the classroom, actual involvement in the problems of society was what was needed to actually gain a sense of business relationship to society.

As a result of the successful completion of that project, it was decided that students of the regular sessions should be encouraged to volunteer and participate in a community action project in the area as part of the requirements for the course. In this way the student is given the opportunity to develop a social conscience and see in real life what he is learning or hearing about in class.

Hartzler noted that since the inception of the project students have become involved in such activities as Headstart, Franklin-Hampden Rehabilitation Center, Northampton Welfare Department, the Urban Coalition of Springfield, JOBS, Western Massachusetts Water Pollution Control, and the Springfield Street Academy. He also noted that many of the students continue to work in the projects after their course has been completed because they find it so satisfying and rewarding.

He noted that students are also encouraged to become involved in programs and concern which they themselves originate. One such student single-handedly arranged for the admission to the University of six Puerto Ricans from Holyoke who had not received a full high school diploma but who were exceptionally bright, informed and creative. In addition he also arranged for full scholarships and payment of room and board. This student is currently involved in recruiting American Indians and Chicanos for the MBS program.

Hartzler also stated that undergraduates are being introduced to the program as part of the undergraduate course entitled Urban Law in which they work directly with the Northampton Welfare Department.

In pointing to the value of the program for the students Hartzler stated "I think that this is the way students want to behave. I think that this program gives the student the opportunity to engage in the type of activities which he now seems to have a deep concern and interest for."

Campus Workers Support Lettuce Boycott

Local #1776 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) has allied with the UMass Lettuce Boycott Committee in support of the United Farm Workers and the boycott of non-union lettuce.

In a statement issued by union president, Carol Drew, on Tuesday, AFSCME executive committee declared solidarity with its brother AFL-CIO union and informed Chancellor Tippo and all food services directors that AFSCME wanted all non-union lettuce removed from this campus.

Since Tuesday union officials have been conferring with Joel Stoneham of University Food Services and William Egan of Student Union Food Services to negotiate an end to the purchasing of non-union lettuce.

On Wednesday, some members of AFSCME conferred with Lettuce Boycott Committee and Marcos Munos, New England coordinator for the United Farm Workers. The local union reiterated support for the boycott, and later Wednesday night voted a sum of money to the United Farm Workers.

In commenting on this source of support, Alwin Schmidt described AFSCME's actions as "encouraging and highly significant."

FEMME FETALE
if the five finalists don't have it, then no one does.
winter carni 1971
VOTE TODAY
Winter Carni Queen
Student Union Lobby

KENT STATE
CAMPUS UNDER FIRE
The campus score: 4 students dead, 11 wounded. Now Pulitzer Prize winner James Michener reconstructs, hour by hour, the events that led to the bloody climax. He answers such questions as: Were outside agitators involved in the riot? Was it necessary to call in the Guard? Here is what truly happened – and why. Including portraits of key people who have remained obscure – until now. Condensed from Michener's forthcoming book. One of 41 articles & features in the March READER'S DIGEST

7 nites weekly

thru 2 a.m.
featuring (Wed., Thurs., Sat.)
Michael Vallent on Guitar
Shrimp Cocktail & Sandwiches
COLD DUCK, SUNDAY NITES FREE for Ladies

Free U: Alternative Education Plans

Tim Heyden relaxes on Free University's partially deflated tent. (MDC photo by Demian)

Hold that pole - students work together to construct geodesic domes under which classes, meetings and group functions of the Free University are held (MDC photo by Pat Lempart)

Geodesic domes spring up on the fields in back of Southwest. This was Free University - the growing child of students who seek to make their education part of the total ongoing process of their lives (MDC photo by Pat Lempart)

By TIM NEY
MDC Staff

The Free University grew two summers ago out of the frustrations of several orientation counselors and Project Ten members who were attempting living and learning in a state university. They were tired of the grey linear insensitivity of the university toward the outside community and the lives of its students.

Atomization. "Not only has the University continued to proudly increase numbers while being totally insensitive to the humanity which these numbers represent, but has continually disregarded all the necessary reforms that the University's growth demands."- from the FUC rationale statement.

The geodesic domes of Free University City in October 1969 helped us to discover that education is not putting up with dull classes, classes in which nothing is organically learned, classes which the professor controls. Education is not cookbook style science labs, programmed language labs, teachers hired on their research and publishing. Education is not life in an impersonal environment.

FUC was a short but valuable experience for those building, eating, learning, teaching, sharing. Learning is a flow of energies. It cannot be fragmented or separated from life. We must have open space in which to create our own life process/style-learning organizes spontaneously and organically around it.

On UMass: as the White Queen says in "Alice Through the Looking Glass," here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else you must run twice as fast.

"A child born in the United Kingdom today stands a ten-times-greater chance of being admitted to a mental hospital than to a university, and about one-fifth of mental admissions are diagnosed schisophrenic. This can be taken as an indication that we are driving our children mad more effectively than we are genuinely educating them. Perhaps it is our very way of educating them that is driving them mad."-R.D. Laing.

We learn from intense images. Television and psychedelics have shaped the vision of our counterculture. How do you see yourself reflected here? Strong images of the last ten years? Violent? PEOPLE & PROCESS count. Not property, goals, and concepts. MAN, WE ARE TALKING ABOUT SURVIVAL.

Still the University does not respond. The University is frozen. To attempt reform is to bite concrete. We cannot waste time tinkering with small parts of institutions. A community is based on multiple levels of association between people. You can see movies/get high/demonstrate/work with the same people. A community shares an image of itself and its relationship to the world. A community lives/learns/laughs/cries/fights together.

The evolution of the Free University has come a long way from the FUC domes. Capitalism has left the old student union bookstore, allowing it to take on the shape of a People's Place with community-building activities. The food cooperative, free garage, day care center, free store, New England student clearinghouse, women's liberation, gay liberation, massage workshops, a comnunity grapevine, theatre ensemble, organic gardening, and Silverbus nomodic unit are all ways of viewing ourselves and sharing information - seeds of intercommunalism.

The Free University is open space for free expression. Life, learning, art, economics, technology break out of their catagories and flow into one another. Free University is relevant to us because it is us.

MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5
Showcase Cinemas, 1243
RIVERDALE RD., W. SPFLD.
ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING
3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY G
Wed. - Sun 2-4:30-7:00-9:30
Mon. & Tues. 2-7-9:00
2 LOVE STORY IS SURELY ONE OF THE BEST FILMS IN YEARS DON'T MISS IT!.. "A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." -Sam Hoffman Spfld. Daily News
LOVE STORY GP
TODAY 2:00 3:45 5:30 7:30 9:40
Ali MacGraw Ryan O'Neal
WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS
GROUP RATES AVAILABLE
1 DOCTORS' WIVES R
DYAN CANNON RICHARD CRENNA
Mon. - Fri. 5:00 - 7:30
Sat. & Sun. 1:30 - 3:25 5:20 - 7:30 9:35
WE HONOR master charge
CALL 413-733-5131

Campus Cinemas
Amherst-Hadley Line - Rt. 9
An Esquire Theatre Of Course
256-6411
IMAGES — 11 P.M.
Friday and Saturday late show
This "THE SPY SMASHER" Week King of the Underground

Cinema 1
7:15 & 9:15
the director of M*A*S*H is back again cutting up people
"THE SECOND BEST FILM OF THE YEAR." N.Y. MAG.
BREWSTER McCLOUD

groupies
Cinema 3
A WILD EXPERIENCE, AN EYE-AND-EAR BLOWING TRIP INTO WIERDSVILLE, U.S.A.!" —Bob Salmaggi, Group W
Starring
and
Joe Cocker and The Grease Band
7:00 & 9:00 — R

Cinema 2
"Trash" is an X Rated film. No one under the age of 18 yrs. will be admitted. Positive I.D. Required
A WARNING ABOUT "TRASH"
7:00 9:00

Campus Center Holds Coffeehouses

Tom Derderian, Leo Duarte, and Flo Polansky (pictured left to right) provided some bluegrass flavor at a recent Campus Center coffeehouse. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt.)

Each Wednesday night for the past few weeks a free coffeehouse has been held in the Campus Center. To provide more space for the SRO crowds, the folkfest was recently moved to the Concourse Level cafeteria from the Top of the Campus restaurant where these photos were taken. Among the more popular performers pictured on this page have been Steve Brennan (above), Frank Clark (right), and Jerry Silber (below). Photos by Steve Schmidt.

Coffeehouse MC Ed Vardas, pictured at lower right, has provided a steady flow of talent on stage while managing to entertain the audience between sets. (Steve Schmidt photo.)

Cinemung presents — 2 Raunchy Flicks
BOGART in HIGH SIERRA
at 7:00
The Mask of Dimitrios
at 9:00
TONITE THOMPSON 104

SU FILMS
presents
BOYS IN THE BAND
SUNDAY, FEB. 28 SU BALLROOM
7 & 9 P.M. 50c

Because we believe it, watching the film is very much like taking part in some encounter group— there's no way to escape the image on the screen, nor to deny its truth. Michael Goodwin Rolling Stone
A WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS PREMIERE
The Rolling Stones
GIMME SHELTER
STARTS WED. MAR. 3rd
Campus Cinemas
Amherst-Hadley Line Route 9 256-6411

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jim Gold
NEWS STAFF — Emory Rounds, Ginny Killfoile, Doug Dearborn, Nathan Gorenstein, Lisa Chernic, Ken Littman
SPORTS — Gib Fullerton, Bruce MacConnell
DARKROOM — Jim Barrus, George MacDonald
EDITORIAL — John Mullen
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"I Think Somebody's Watching Us"

David Williams

My Friend The Funny Man

A funny thing happened on the way to the Hatch last night. I bumped into my old buddy, my old drinking buddy from high school days, my old crazy friend Mac.

Mac is probably one of the original funny men in this world. There are always people around who are quick with a joke or a comment or some crazy little trick to make you laugh, but this guy does it with a lot of style. Everyone else is just an impostor. And a cheap one at that.

He's been shaving since we were in the eighth grade. Daily. Now he's got a full beard and long hair and when he and another drinking buddy named Mike, who lives in JFK, walked up to me at the Hatch ice cream bar, he was wearing a pair of overalls that said "Hood Milk" on them.

He was one of the first among the Class of '68 to turn into a freak. I joined the ranks of the disillusioned shortly after he did, but we never saw each other too much after he went off to URochester and I started doing time in prep school. But when we got together, it was like the good old days.

The three of us, Mike, Mac and I, went to a parochial high school in Framingham. None of us was ever particularly religious and after a couple of years among the penguins it really began to show. It ended up with the principal, a mean old lady we called the "Bird," accusing me of being psychotic because I wore a button that said "Frodo Lives." So I left the school and began a new career at a school in Boston.

During some of our less crazy days we both worked at different stores of the same drugstore chain in Framingham. Every Tuesday a truck full of more drugstore crap would pull up and we'd have to unload it. He used to come over and help me and then we'd go over to his store to unload. He had a boss named Harold whom he hated and his co-worker was another crazy man named Tico. His real name was Walter Flynn but every one called him Tico. He was the starting defenseman on the school's hockey team and nobody fooled around with him.

After I left that stupid school, I became very lonely. So my biggest comfort in life was the bottle. I'd get this Jamaican named George Bonito Washington Philips to buy me a case of beer, and Mac and I and whoever else felt like coming along would get drunk. At first it bothered my parents but they got used to it. One night I got really drunk kind of early and Mac brought me in the house at about one in the morning. The whole damn family was still up watching TV. He took me upstairs and when he went back down, my mother asked him in this very tired voice who had bought the booze this time.

Then he began to turn into a freak. He always had the potential. Only certain types of people can become real freaks. At the beginning of his senior year he applied for an ROTC scholarship and told everyone he was going to get it. He seemed so confident about it that no one was really surprised when he did. But he almost flunked out of school before he settled down into a funny man. I ran away once to visit him at school. He was the first person I ever got drunk in a bar with.

Last night he walked up to me with these damn overalls on. Now, these overalls say a lot about him. Mac was always wearing crazy clothes. He used to wear black and white saddle shoes around school and before you knew it, everyone in the school was wearing them. He had that type of personality. He could make friends with anyone. Anyway, these overalls had a name on them: Leo Flynn, Tico's father. The Flynns live in Natick and Mac bought the overalls in Harry the Greek's in Boston. Mac is the type of guy who has things like that happen to him.

Art Buchwald

Saving Your Job

WASHINGTON - The trouble with most business administration schools is that they teach you everything about business except how to keep your job when a company starts to lay off people during an economy drive.

"The reason they don't teach you how to survive during an economy wave," said my friend Wholesworthy, who has lived through every pink slip crisis in his company for 20 years, "is that the only way to keep your job during a personnel reduction is to fight dirty. And schools don't want to admit you have to fight dirty to stay in business."

"Give me an example," I said.

"All right, suppose you are working as an executive for the Soft-Serve Tennis Ball Co. The word is out that there is going to be a 15% across-the-board cut in jobs. You don't sit back and wait to see if you're in the 15%. You act immediately.

"You go to see Croton, the vice president in charge of personnel, and you say 'If you have to fire someone in my department, Mr. Croton, I would prefer it be me rather than O'Toole. You see, O'Toole has had some serious problems and that is why he hasn't been able to function for the past six months.'

"Croton will reply 'Problems. What problems?'

"His drinking, sir. When O'Toole first came here he never touched a drop. Then he fell apart. But it wasn't his fault. You'd have taken to drink too if you had been under the pressure he's faced lately."

"Pressure? What kind of pressure?"

"Well, sir, O'Toole's a friend of mine and that's why I hope I'm not violating a confidence. The pressure came mainly from his gambling. O'Toole started losing heavily to the bookies and they threatened to tell his wife about the woman O'Toole was keeping if he didn't pay his debts."

"O'Toole was gambling and keeping a woman and he's got a drinking problem and you want me to keep him on the payroll?" Croton will say.

"We all make mistakes, Mr. Croton,' you protest. 'As soon as O'Toole straightens out his financial affairs and makes up his mind whether he's going to get rid of his wife or his mistress, he'll be a great addition to the company.'

"At this point Croton will get suspicious and say, 'How come you're begging for O'Toole to stay and you to go?'

"Because, you reply, 'the shape O'Toole's in, he'll never be able to get another job, while with my record and sales contacts, I can get a new position with another company tomorrow.'"

Wholeworthy said to me, "Now if you were Croton, which man's head would you put on the block?"

"Poor O'Toole," I said. "I knew him well."

"There are other methods of holding onto your job during a cutback period," Wholesworthy said. "One is to go to Croton and say, 'I don't envy the dirtywork the board of directors has assigned you, Mr. Croton. Before you're finished, you're going to be the most hated man in the company.'

"'Yes, it's true,' Croton will reply. 'They'll all hate me. What can I do?'

"'Why not form an employee's "Force Reduction Committee" and let the committee absorb all the blame for the cuts in personnel? We'll take all the flack.'

"'Who's we?' Croton will ask.

"'Me and my committee,' you say. 'Whenever someone screams, you can blame it on us.'

"'You're a good man, Wholesworthy. I don't know what the company would do without you.'"

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Jim Mitchell

Lost In The Forest

Poor Jim LaMacchia. Here is a person so devoted to a cause that it seems he can't see the forest for the trees.

Jim dropped by the other night to say that he had decided to drop out of the race for Carni Queen, whereupon we got into a short discussion over the whole business of sexism and the repressive rules society in general places on us.

His main gripe was that people, especially women are slowly undergoing a process of losing their individual freedoms. For example, LaMacchia claims, and probably rightly so, that from the moment a female baby opens her eyes, she is taught that becoming a mommy and rearing a family is the thing to do.

Now in my humble opinion, it seems that raising a family is not only a noble, but a very necessary task in any society. The family structure is so weak now that if women begin to abondon this role, the basic unit of our society will be in severe jeopardy.

Yes, naturally society exerts pressure for women to fulfill this role, but forcing them? Hardly. Note the number of women on this campus, or most others for that matter. Certainly many of them are just husband hunting, but I think that many of them are here for a real education.

If upon graduation they desire to use their newly acquired knowledge, no one prevents them from doing so. Yet it seems most enter the traditional institution of marriage. They are not being coerced into financial dependence on the male or caring for a family, but do it by individual choice.

Maybe I'm being too simplistic, but just compare a man and a woman standing side by side. First, they have different physical appearances, and aptitudes. If you could see into the minds of both, you would find that they had subtle intrinsic emotional differences. Clearly there is nothing right or wrong about this, that's just the way things are.

So then why Jim, do you claim that it does not follow that they take different roles in society which one may be able to handle better than the other?

Women, not only in modern society, but throughout history have usually been considered the less aggressive and more compassionate of the two sexes, while men generally have been attributed the opposite qualities, and there is nothing wrong with this either. Wouldn't life be dull if we all had the same predictable type of behavior, the appearances, and capabilities?

You said that competition plays a too important part in our lives. I say it is a very important part of life.

Competition provides for us with a perpetual incentive for achievement and bettering of our lives that we might not otherwise have. Some may argue exactly what better is, and at that point it becomes a matter of opinion. To me, a better life is anything that makes one happier than he or she was previously.

If you can learn to enjoy the process of competition, to see it not as an obstacle but as a stepping stone, then happiness is almost guaranteed.

I hope that I have cleared at least one tree for you.

To Senator Kennedy Concerning The Draft

Fear of conscription
Slithering in my brain
Dread of induction
Driving me insane
Terror of destruction
Of dying in the rain
Horror of amputation
Walking with a cane

Wary of execution
If I flee to Spain
Don't believe in self infliction
Its a death which I disdain
Up with formication
Don't die, just go get lain

Rick Dunkelberger

Letters To The Editor

Religious Issue In Secular Form

To The Editor:

The words and presence of Miss Devlin harken not so much to Adolf Hitlet, as to the founder of the ideology which she expounds - Karl Marx. In his not so famous, but more profitable comments on the Revolution of 1848 in Germany, Marx uses the same class struggle analysis that Miss Devlin used, and ran into a similar problem.

In his essay Mr. Marx gives an interesting description of the Revolution and the reasons for its failure. This is done along class lines and holds quite adequate until we reach the one great stumbling block of the Poles. They desire an independent country and do not quite fit into the class struggle version of events. Mr. Marx is constantly chastising them for possessing an antediluvian mentality, and dismisses them thus. The question of their social consciousness aside, they do open this other question: if the Poles cannot be fitted into the events, than perhaps the theory is too general to tell the entire picture.

This is much the case with Miss Devlin; she is correct in saying that the battle is not a religious one, but the religious issue is present in a secular form. The status quo has seized this issue as a means of social control. Although the concept of protestant ascendency has no religious meaning, it is used as a means whereby the establishment can get the protestant proletariat to identify with the system because it is run "by our kind." By introducing this "religious issue' the establishment induces the workers to think that an attack upon the status quo is an attack upon their religion. My point is that although Miss Devlin correctly analyses the situation by pointing out that the system does not benefit the working class, she overlooks the consciousness of the people and how they view the system, however incorrect that view may be.

Neil Coleman

Some People Will Swallow Anything

To The Editor:

This is concerning the letter written by the galloping gourmet, Wayne Shepard. This is directed towards him in hopes he will see that his encounter with dining commons "food" is very rare.

The contents of your defense letter of the University Food Service directs us to believe that you are both human disposals. You will eat anything, won't you? However, some of us are more discriminating in our choice of foods and we have tasted "acceptable" food in our lives, have you? What do you think of bread cutlets or of roast beef that lights up like a neon sign. Or maybe you find enjoyment in the many names that can be given to the same piece of "elusive mystery meat".

We haven't had much trouble with the runs lately. Of course, none of us eat more than 50% of our meals in the commons. But, there still is the ever present smell that fills up the bathrooms every morning after the "students" of the floor come back from breakfast. There are many times when most early classes are even missed because of the breakfasts. Sometimes, our stomachs retaliate against the food so quickly that we barely have time to get back to the dorm.

About letting the dogs in the commons, I'm getting a little worried because they're beginning to get scarcer. Remember that when you eat your next piece of mystery meat.

I guess I can understand why your friend likes the taste of the silverware. If he tried the food than he'd notice that all the food tastes the same too.

We must agree with you that the lines are really not so awful. But, this isn't what bothers most people. It's the thought of what we are waiting in line for. Do you really like to wait in line to get sick?

There have been days we haven't found hair in our food, either. Of course, somedays that we do, it seems that they have the most taste of the meal. Maybe it's a new kind of seasoning.

It might just be that the food in Worcester Dining Commons isn't too bad. If that's it then we invite you to come to Southwest where we will find out if it's you or if it's the food.

By the way, how do you expect us to eat Dining Commons "food" straight when it's barely eatable when we have the raving "munchies".

The Second Floor T-6
Mark Kalish

Full Spectrum

To The Editor:

Mr. Kendalls disappointment that my folk program on WMUA this week was only blues is a result of the popular distorted view most people have of American folk music. By far, the most significant contribution to our folk music has been by oppressed blacks and poor rural whites, although most people are familiar with only the current folk music "stars", who happen to be comfortable, middle class interpreters of this music. These performers rarely turn out creative music, and usually don't live up to the standards of America's true folk geniuses whose styles and songs they attempt to reproduce. Ironically, one album put out by these stars makes more money and wins them more fame than the artists who created the music could hope to achieve in a lifetime. Actually, if you had listened carefully to my "blues" show Tuesday night, you would have noticed that it included a good deal of ragtime and contemporary music, and on future shows I plan to live up to the name of Folk Festival by featuring the full spectrum of folk music. Because I plan my shows in advance I do not usually take requests, unless they are consistent with that particular program. I have tried to encourage written suggestions for future shows and welcome any local folk musicians who wish to perform on my show. Instead of trying to intellectualize and justify the show any further I am content to let the music I present every other Tuesday night speak for itself.

Ed Light

Helpless

To The Editor:

In response to Jeff Kendall's request for a printed program guide: We need the people to sit down, write it out, go to the Collegian Office, and put it in. Right now, we barely have enough people to keep us on the air. If you would like to perform this task - and we desperately need someone to do it -- come on down to the station and the Assistant Station Manager will put you to work.

Jeff Anton
Chief Announcer, WMUA

It's Greek To Me

To the editor:

It has recently come to my attention through A Survey of the Status of Theatre in United States High Schools (1970) by Joseph Peluso of Seton Hall University that high school theatre programs are really in said shape. In his survey Peluso used a random sampling of 1,352 (6.08%) of the total number of American high schools (22.214. His answered questionnaire revealed: 17.8% of the 1,352 theatre teachers had no undergraduate or graduate credit hours in theatre courses; 74% subscribed to no theatre publications; and 63.9% of the high schools involved had no theatre course (although 92.2% did have some sort of theatre activity).

Now, when one considers that these statistics refer to but 6% of American high schools, the importance of the problem becomes alarmingly significant. The solution obviously, is for high schools to hire theatre majors to direct theatre and teach drama. This is easier said than done. High schools tend to lure qualified teachers with a meagerly pittance to teach dramatics on the side. The result, then, is a meager introduction to the theatrical arts. The incoming college freshman (unless his high school was exceptional) cannot appreciate good theatre, since there are few rally qualified teachers to guide him. How, for example, can an unlearned person react to a production of Aristophanes' The Clouds, when he knows neither the concepts of Greek comedy nor the correct technical procedures? I guess I just cannot understand why English faculties can't incorporate theatre faculties. It seems so simple and would mean so much.

John Warchol

Food Comes Up Again

To the Editor:

Don and Wayne,

Sorry if I offended you fellows with my letter. It didn't seem to me like I was a "Christ-like figure" and that was far from my intention. My name was printed inadvertently by the Collegian against my wishes. I had requested that it be withheld for the same reasons that you rebuked me for.

Thank you, however, for sending in your rebuttal. Some of your points were well worth mentioning, but still I'm unconvinced. Perhaps it would have been more convincing if you had stuck to the point-the dining commons. I'll have to wait until some improvements are made there before I'll be convinced.

I am neither depraved, dainty, ranting, poor, overprivileged, self-elected, Christ-like, sloppy, hypochondriacal, nor glory-seeking. Besides what does that have to do with complaints about the services of the dining commons?

Carl Beatty

Editorial Points

Did you ever notice how easy it is for the system to buy us all off. O' material wealth and comfort be our guide.

* * * * *

There is a great debate going on about who should have control over the Campus Center. You know that building in the center of campus which students are paying through their nose for. Rumor has it that students aren't responsible enough to make decisions about the thing. Nobody really wants to talk about internal problems right now.

* * * * *

The rents will probably go up again this year, according to some reports. How much will have to be announced in the near future. Student fees will also take a hike.

* * * * *

According to the Associated Press, the White House is quietly seeking to eliminate legal restrictions which bar persons convicted of campus disruptions from receiving federal student loans and loan guarantees. Huh?

* * * * *

Winnie Ruth Judd, the convicted trunk murderess of the 1930's may be freed from prison soon if Arizona Governor John R. Williams follows the recommendation of the state Board of Pardons. Well, I guess that means another case is closed for Miss Judd.

The Tuition Mistake

By HENRY STEELE COMMAGER

The decision of the trustees of the State University of New York to nearly double tuition fees at state colleges and universities over the next three or four years is an aggravation of a policy that is basically unsound and should never have been adopted in the first place.

Tuition charges are unsound because they are based on an erroneous principle: that higher education is a luxury and a privilege, not a service and a necessity. If higher education were indeed a luxury in which the state indulged a few privileged young men and women then it would be quite logical to require them to pay for the privilege. But if it is preparation and training for services essential to the well-being of the community we are no more justified in charging for it than we would be in charging for elementary and high school education.

In 1920 approximately 20 per cent of youngsters between the ages of 14 and 18 attended high school; today almost 50 per cent of those between the ages of 18 and 22 attend some kind of college, and in states such as New York the percentage is substantially higher. Clearly college is today what high school was 50 years ago. Yet no one in 1920 proposed charging tuition for high school on the ground that the few who enjoyed high school education were privileged characters. Are we so much poorer now than we were in 1920? Or are we merely more muddled in our thinking?

What are the arguments for public support of education?

First is the principle - a principle invented in this country - that self-government cannot work without an educated citizenry. That principle was foreshadowed in the school laws of the Massachusetts Bay Colony as early as 1642 and 1647, and was given national endorsement in the Northwest Ordinance of 1787: "Knowledge being necessary to good government, and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." What was true in 1787 is surely even more true today, that knowledge is necessary to good government, for surely the responsibilities of citizenship are more arduous now than they were in the eighteenth century, or even in the almost pastoral days of Harding and Coolidge.

The second argument for public support of higher education is equally familiar: that as our society grows every year larger, more complex, and more importunate, it demands more and more expertise to run it. Those who train themselves for the technical jobs of medicine, law, teaching, architecture, engineering, forestry and so forth -- jobs that implacably require study beyond the high school -- are not a privileged few enjoying special benefits denied to other citizens; they are public servants acquiring the skills to perform services that society must have if it is to survive.

Every other country in the Western world recognizes this and acts accordingly. The United States - the richest of them - is also almost the only one which requires university students to pay tuition. Not only is university education free in almost every Western country, but most enlightened nations, such as Britain, Denmark, Norway, even Russia, customarily pay the total cost of living for university students and a few, such as Denmark and Russia, make modest payments to students as well. They do this on the same principle that they, and we, pay not only for the cost of training, but salaries to those in the armed services. Are we indeed prepared to say that those who serve society by saving lives, or teaching the young, or advancing justice or providing essential scientific services, are less worthy of support than those who serve in the military?

Proponents of tuition charges always fall back on the argument that the beneficiaries of higher education earn more money in the long run than those who are not, and should be prepared to pay for the privilege. True enough, they do, and they are. For their earnings pay taxes and, as we know, on a graduated scale. It is a safe assumption that university graduates more than pay back the full cost of their education in higher taxes on their higher earnings. From even a hard-headed business point of view, what better investment of public money is there? Vietnam?

(Reprinted from the New York Times, 2-25-71)

Weekend

Films, Movies, the Cinema

In Faye's Way

By RUSSELL C MUNDY
MDC Staff

Someday when I write a sequel to Sarris' Confessions of a Cultist, I'll begin with "The Mask of Dimitrios," which, coincidentally, can be seen tonight in Thompson at ten. "The Mask" has all the elements of the cultist movie–little critical acclaim, less public recognition, an obscure director, but a cast that includes Peter Lorre, Faye Emerson, Zachary Scott, and Sidney Greenstreet.

Jean Negulesco who made "The Mask" in 1944 is usually remembered as a director who showed early promise in the forties, but lost his identity in the fifties in the swirl and sweep of big-screen technicolor. It is difficult to imagine any director able to exercise the discipline and control of "The Mask" also able to accommodate himself to the flabby splender of "Three Coins in a Fountain." Negulesco was no exception. Chalk up another loss to the studio system.

Peter Lorre steps out of his usual sinister role to play a slightly quixotic writer of detective stories who is fascinated and drawn to a real-life Dimitrios, murderer, assassin, and traitor. Never in control, always slightly academic, Lorre is drawn deeper and deeper into a plot that might have been his own and finally is.

I'm prepared to admit to a personal weakness at the base of my affection for Faye Emerson. She was the mistress of television in the post-war years and Faye Emerson jokes were almost as popular then as Spiro Agnew jokes are today. Do you recall the one about the effects of Faye's startling cleavage on a seven-inch screen?

But most of all, more than Faye Emerson or Peter Lorre, is the great fat man, an actor of prodigious stature (so to speak), Sidney Greenstreet. We enjoyed the Bogart revival, but that is old hat. Now is the time for a first–a Sidney Greenstreet revival. He possessed an incredible unctuousness, the urbanity of a man of the world. There's never been another like him. The mincing little man and the great mammoth Greenstreet dance a pas de deux throughout the movie. The camera seldom treats them alike. One is up, the other down; the little man circles warily, the big man blusters and tiptoes. Finally they are drawn together in an improbable alliance.

The movie is well-made; that is, neat, structured, without loose ends. It is rich in detail and brings new rewards with each viewing. It is full of cinematic details unobtrusively handled. Lights and fires are recurrent as though to suggest that a little light need be shed on the story. Perhaps overly cute, but pardonable through the soft focus of hindsight are the gratuitous (almost afterthoughts) visual correlatives of a completed action-Dimitrios leading his luckless mark to the house manager while the camera pans to the fat in the fire. Earlier the two men are characterized by their hats–the mark by his straw and Dimitrios by rakish fedora.

Transition from sequence to sequence is always smooth because the composition contrives to guide the eye of the viewer into precisely the proper point for the succeeding frame. Nothing new or startling, just well done. "The Mask" is a detective story and the sense of unfolding or trying to penetrate is always there. The action is never across the screen, always into the screen. The light composition contrives to draw the eye into the frame. Dimitrios goes forward, never backward.

Probably the most attractive quality of the film is its willingness to make light of itself. Greenstreet says at one point, "This is not a detective story." The point of view in the film recalls Godard's "Breathless" and Truffaut's "Shoot the Piano Player." Lorre has a saving, innocuous quality. Greenstreet is always pulling out his gun and putting it back. No man who reads "Pearls of Everyday Wisdom" even in a low camera angle can be all bad. "The Mask of Dimitrios" is a dectective story and it's not. It's part dance, but mostly funny and it ends with "There's not enough kindness in the world."

Wycherley's Lechery

Judith Freedman and Michelle Faith in a scene from The Country Wife.

The Country Wife- a seventeenth century satire concerning the morals and mores of a social order corroded by deceit-will be presented by the University of Massachusetts Theatre on March 3, 4, 5, 6, in Bartlett Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The Country Wife, a Restoration comedy of manners by William Wycherley, dramatizes a society governed by middle aged figures who have replaced honor with self-interest, truth with hypocrisy and affectation; reality with illusion; and love with sexual appetite. In this flirtation game between the sexes, marriage appears as a civil facade lacking the interest of flirtation with its opportunity for change.

Wycherley, through the schemes of the character Horner, exposes all pretenders, hypocrites, jealous ones, and fools. Honor, with the aide of a Dr. Quack, persuades his friends that he has became impotence. He delights in making cuckolds of husbands, and through his declared impotance seeks the privileges of a eunuch with the "virtuous" ladies. Added to the humor of Horner's schemes are the efforts of a jealous husband to keep his country wife from the appealing temptations of London life.

The University Theatre's creative revival of this Restoration comedy has offered the actors an opportunity to explore period movment and role-playing in a world of snuff boxes and minuets.

It's A Beautiful Day

The ten national finalists in the third American College Theatre Festival, which will be presented in Washington next month, were announced today (Monday, February 22) by Roger L. Stevens, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. The Festival is presented by the Kennedy Center and the Smithsonian Institution.

UMass will be represented as a finalist with its production of Aristophanes' THE CLOUDS.

This adaptation, seen last semester, was directed by Gary Stewart with an original music score by Jay McAuliffe. The production will travel to Washington where it will be seen on Saturday and Sunday, April 3 and 4th.

A rock musical version of Aristophanes' "The Birds" performed by Cleveland State University will open the Festival on March 21 at the George Washington University Center Theatre.

Also selected to perform in the Festival, in order of appearance, are State University of New York at Albany, "Harry, Noon and Night;" University of Kansas, "Indians;" Southern Illinois University, "The Caretaker;" University of North Carolina, "Woyzeck;" Southwest Minnesota State University, "The Scarecrow;" University of Evansville, "The Imaginary Invalid;" and Occidental College, "The Ballad of Sanki Merser," Each production will be given three performances.

Theater

By BOB NESTI and ED VANUSZ

THE COUNTRY WIFE
UT's first production of the spring. For details see elsewhere on the page. ($)

JOE EGG
A dark comedy about a young British school teacher and his wife who plan to do away with their retarded daughter. A Seventy Players production, at the Stone Basement Theatre, Amherst College, through Monday.

SLOW DANCE ON THE KILLING GROUND
William Hanceey's fine play, which has been off-and-on Broadway in recent seasons to some high critical acclaim, will be seen evenings at 8 through Sunday at the Hallie Flannigan Theatre, Smith. ($)

Music

GARY BURTON QUARTET
Gary Burton, voted Jazzman of the year in 1968 by Downbeat Magazine will bring his Quartet to Bowker Auditorium this Friday and Saturday evenings at 8. Burton has appeared as a featured soleist or leader on over 25 albums. His music is inventive fusion of jazz, rock, and country blues perfect for a college audience. Tickets may be purchased at the Fine arts Council Box Office, Herter Hall, or at Bowker an hour before the performance.

Films

BOYS IN THE BAND (Sunday, Student Union, 7 and 9) Mart Crowley's acclaimed study of a homosexual milieu has been transformed into a brittle, funny yet brutal film. The members of the original off-Broadway production perform the finest example of ensemble acting to be seen in any recent films.

BREWSTER MCLOUD (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
A black fantasy in which most American values are leveled with a vehemence unequaled since Kubrick's DR. STANGELOVE. Directed by Robert Altman it features a good deal of his winning MASH crew.

COCOANUTS (Saturday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst, 8)
The Marx Brothers again, this time taking on jewel thieves.

DOCTOR'S WIVES (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfield)
A bit of novacaine and perhaps a lobotomy are in order to full appreciate this sex, blood and guts spectacular in the grand Lana Turner tradition.

GIMME SHELTER (Starts Wednesday, Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
The Maysles Brothers' documentary of last year's Rolling Stones national tour which ended with Mick Jagger, the Hell's Angel, and a cast of thousands at Altamont.

GROUPIES (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Another documentary, this one about the young ladies who entertain the

JULIET OF THE SPIRITS (Talkie, Northampton)
Fellini's own diary of a mad housewife. The story of a bored, lonely middle-aged woman who escapes into her own fantasy world. The director's first use of color is astounding in this feminist complement to his 8 1/2.

KAMERADSCHAFT (COMRADESHIP) (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)
Kameradschaft (Comradeship) a 1931 German sound film directed by G.W. Pabst, it film, concerning a disaster in a French mine and the rescue attempt by German miners reveals a theme of brotherhood and cooperation between bitter enemies. The setting is the Franco-German border after World War I and the realism of the grimy dangerous mines and the disaster heighten the drama and tension of the rescue operations. Kameradschaft was one of the last films of its kind to be produced in Germany during this time, as the Nazi reign was about to begin.

KINETICS: SERIES TWO (Tuesday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9)
The second program of experimental films from studios all over the world. Most are having their initial public showing with this series. Last year's KINETICS ONE was one of the best film series over presented on this campus.

LONG DAY'S JOURNEY INTO NIGHT (Saturday, Mt. Holyoke)
A compelling film. Sidney Lumet (THE PAWNBROKER) directed this adaptation of Eugene O'Neil's memory play. Katherine Hepburn gives a performance probably unequaled in her long career and she is ably supported equally well by Ralph Richardson, Dean Stockwell, and Jason Robards, Jr. The first film in history in which all four stars received the Best Acting awards at the Cannes Film Festival.

LOVE STORY (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Chances are if you think you'll like it, you will, if not, you won't. Love and death in the American novel as written and filmed for those who don't really care about love and death in the American novel.

PUTNEY SWOPE (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith, 7:30 and 9:30)
A black black-comedy. What happens when a group of blacks takes over a Madison Avenue advertising agency. Its targets are many and it shatters all of them. Contains perhaps the funniest television commercials since Choo-Choo fell into her can of paint.

THE SPY SMASHER and KING OF THE UNDERWORLD (Friday, Campus Cinemas, 11)
Two classic Bogart films.

THREE IN THE ATTIC (Academy of Music, Northampton)
A young man is kidnapped by three girls and put on a diet of pure, purile, teenage lust. Christopher Jones is the young man who learns the hard way that fakin' it he hardly makes it.

TORA! TORA! TORA! (Calvin Theater, Northampton, Amherst Cinema, Amherst)
A film which will live in infamy. What went on behind the seness in FROM HERE TO ETERNITY' somewhat boring account of Pearl Harbor day.

If you find a point no matter how obnoxious or seemingly mute, don't let it remain so. We are eager to hear your complaints, views, accolades, or charges, just follow this simple formula and you too will have your name in print: Letters must be typed and double spaced, with no more than sixty spaces on a line (this helps us set it up quickly). The limit is one page and please have it in by 5 P.M. for the next day's edition. Bring it up here to the Fine Arts Department, in the Collegian Office (second floor of the Student Union).

If you are particularly garrulous and immune to trauma, present thyself forthwith to Bob Nesti, same place.

Campus Construction Proceeds On Schedule

By JIM MITCHELL
MDC Staff

An inspection yesterday of the major campus construction sites revealed that with few exceptions, all work is on schedule and proceeding normally.

The Graduate Research Center shows the most advanced stage of completion. Leo Guglielmo, the job superintendent said that nearly all the exterior work on the buildings is done, and about 75% of the interior work has been completed.

The low rise buildings, which will house the library and computer center are expected to be redy for occupancy by May 1. The 17 story reinforced concrete tower which will house the labs and other research facilities has a tentative completion date of mid-November.

To the south, most of the major excavation work has been done on the site of the Fine Arts Center. Cold weather, and now the thaw, has caused more problems here than on the other buildings in a more advanced stage of completion.

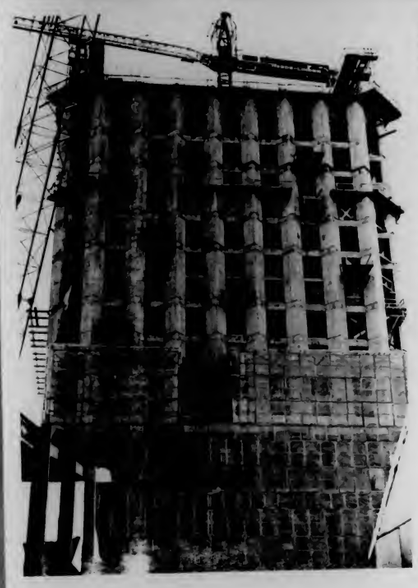
Dick Spat, the superintendent of that job said that although the adverse weather has made things more difficult, the work is nearly on schedule. Footings, the base of the foundation, of four buildings have already been poured. And the remaining three should be done some time next week.

Spat said that a few labor contracts would be expiring during the Spring, although he would not speculate as to the likelyhood of a strike.

The campus pond is scheduled to gross a bit; eventually, it will extend twenty or thirty feet more towards Whitmore and SBA. At the same time, an island will be created complete with trees, and the bridge that now extends across the pond will be removed.

The largestundertakingof all, the 29 story library, just topped the 17th floor yesterday. Actually the tallest library in the Nation, it will do much to break the monotony of the many poured concrete facades already here. The red brick skin, already at the 6th floor, will reach the top by December 1.

Job Superintendent, Paul St. Martin said that although the inclement weather hasn't slowed the work too much yet, there's a possibility of a strike some time this Spring, which might put him behind schedule a bit. If the construction does proceed uninterupted though, the roof will be done by October 15, and the entire project by May 1972, said St. Martin.



The future location of the Psychology department is now about 60% complete, he added.

Although there was a carpenters strike last summer that stopped all work, Gene Roux, general superintendent says that presently all work is proceeding on schedule at Tobin Hall.

Now working on the 6th floor, Roux gives an approximate date of completion as late Fall, 1971. There are about 100 men working on this particular job, two of whom are former UMass students.

When questioned on the possibility of student employment on the jobs this summer, most of the foremen felt that there would be few, if any, openings.

The deserted plains of Siberia? Actually this is the sloppy site of the new fine arts center (upper) which eventually will be comprised of seven buildings. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

From such small beginnings, how we have grown! Here (middle) the 17 story graduate research center towers over the old West Experimental Station. (MDC Photo by Bruce MacConnell)

Books, the key to learning. ..Well, there should certainly be enough of them to learn everyone after they figure out a way to fill 29 floors worth of library. (MDC Photo by Dave Bernstein)

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK
for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP
in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'na'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

PETER SELLERS
IN "I LOVE YOU
ALICE B. TOKLAS"
S.U. BALLROOM TONIGHT

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES

events

BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

FRIDAY, FEB. 26 & SAT., FEB. 27 — 8 P.M.

THE GARY BURTON QUARTET

A night of good vibes by one of the top jazz ensembles!

Extra! Feb. 26th Informal Seminar
Feb. 27th Jazz Workshop

2:30 p.m./Old Chapel Auditorium
Open without charge to ticket holders.

FRIDAY, MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 — 8 P.M.

GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE

Presents Mozart's "Don Giovanni"

Company of fifty in fully staged production in English!

MARCH 16 - 18

ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE

Brilliant contemporary dance ensemble in two different evening programs plus Master Class and Lecture Demonstration.

For complete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall
(Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.)
Tel. 545-0202

Room To Move: Angel's Dust Analyzed

A few months ago Rolling Stone, the famous rock music magazine, ran a short item warning readers against use of a drug known as "angel's dust". The article stated that "angel's dust" was an animal sedative, very powerful, and damaging to the human brain. Soon thereafter, "angel's dust" appeared on the Amherst scene, known also as PCP, and occasionally as Hog or Peace. Since our article last week asking for information about PCP we have done a good bit of checking and have talked to several people with experience with PCP.

PCP stands for phenyl-cyclohexyl-piperidine. It is sold legally to farmers and veterinarians (and others) under its generic name Sernyl. It is sold on the black market under any of the aforementioned names and may also be sold as THC, acid, mescaline or anything else. Grass and parsley can be treated with it; it can be snorted, swallowed or injected.

People using PCP have reported feeling heavy, slow, and dull. Others talk about heightened awareness of music and other sensory stimulations despite the feeling of physical ponderousness. Some people have gotten sick: nauseated and headachey.

It is not clear to us yet whether or not PCP is physically harmful to the human brain and/or body. Although Rolling Stone reported that even moderate usage of it would produce brain damage, George Peters of LSD Rescue in Chicago says that it doesn't. Since there is no scientific evidence available (to us, at least), we can only assume that there is a risk involved in the use of PCP.

As an afterthought, "Room to Move's question of the week" is this: Does anyone have information about or experience with a red capsule containing yellow powder, sold as mescaline?

Our information on it so far is that people drop the capsule and then get off nine hours later. Our initial guess is that it's STP. If you know about this, please come in or call the center and share your knowledge with Sandy or Paul.

Room to Move, besides offering general information and/or value clarification sessions to groups in the dormitories, now has ready a workshop on heroin. People interested should get in touch with Sandy or Saki at the center.

Student Mobe Calls Conference Seeks Unity Against War

President Nixon has again expanded the war in Southeast Asia with his latest reckless move into Laos. Nixon has acted against the clearly expressed desires of the American people and without the consent of Congress. It is now perfectly clear that Nixon's real policy is not to withdraw from Southeast Asia, but rather to "win" the illegal, immoral Indochina War.

The antiwar movement must provide a focus and a form for the expression of the broadest opposition to Nixon's course and for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from S.E. Asia. It is imperative that significant elements of such powerful social forces as organized labor be involved and integrated in the antiwar struggle. This is the time for those opponents of the war who understand the importance of immense masses in action, for those who understand the importance of giving form to the majority sentiment against the war, to unite for the task and launch a program of action on which such broad forces can agree.

For these reasons, we in the UMass Student Mobilization Committee have called for a REGIONAL EMERGENCY CONNECTICUT VALLEY ANTIWAR CONFERENCE, which will be held on Saturday, Feb. 27 at 1:00 PM in room 163 of the Campus Center.

The purpose of the emergency conference is to plan antiwar demonstrations and other antiwar activities of the most massive kind centering on the crucial issue of immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from S.E. Asia and conducted in a peaceful and legal fashion. This is the way to involve immense masses of ordinary people, trade unionists, GI's and veterans, women, Gay people, Blaek and Third World people, students, moderates, liberals, and radieals, young and old, and all those who oppose the war regardless of their differences on various other matters.

This is a conference to organize massive opposition to the war. All those who want to see such opposition organized are welcome to participate regardless of their political ideas or affiliation.

Ethelind Wright

Fight Against Cancer

New Method Found For Diagnosing Surgery

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., (AP)—A way of detecting the success of cancer surgery on humans within a month's time is being developed by researchers at the University of Tennessee.

The usual current method of determining the success of cancer surgery is the reappearance or non-reappearance of the disease within five years.

The university scientists, headed by mierobiologist Dr. Joseph H. Coggin, perfected an animal cancer test in five years of research and now are trying a test on humans.

"There is every reason to believe this test will be effective," said Coggin.

"We propose this as a diagnostic test for the persistence of malginant tumors. Before, physicians could only say after surgery, 'The operation went well and based on the type of cancer you have, I would guess your chances are good.'

"Now the physician can know almost immediately if he has achieved a surgery cure," Coggin said.

In applying the test to humans, the patients malignant cells are collected at the time of surgery and sent to the university's mierobiology laboratory where they are grown for study.

Three to four weeks later, some of the cancerous tissue is implanted in a hamster, which is then injected with a sample of the patient's blood.

If a patient has not developed an antibody in his blood against his own cancer, Coggin said, the cancer cells will increase in the hamster. If he had developed an antibody there will be no growth.

"Failure to develop this antibody in the animal is an index that he has a progressive tumor disease," Coggin said.

"If the patient has developed an antibody to his own cancer, there will be no growth, and this is the index that the patient has been freed of his cancer by surgery."

An antibody is a substance developed by the body to combat foreign material such as cancer cells and disease germs.

FCC Discontinues Wiretakeover

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission said Thursday that automatic take-over of the major news wires for national emergency announcements will be temporarily discontinued in the wake of last weekend's system failures.

The FCC assented to a recommendation from a communications advisory committee that such announcements be sent to the broadeast news desks of the Associated Press and United Press International starting this Saturday.

The news desks would then relay the alert messages to all radio and television stations on their wires, treating them as top-priority news stories.

The Emergency Broadcast System is tested each Saturday morning and Sunday evening with test messages transmitted from civil defense offices at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Last Saturday, a civilian employee of the Army grabbed the wrong tape and mistakenly transmitted, through an automatic link into the AP and UPI wires nationwide, a real alert message directing most stations to go off the air and others to clear the airwaves for a further message from the President or from Civil Defense.

Then, in Sunday night's test, the usual practice message did not get through to the AP wires, although the UPI wire was activated.

Nomination Papers for

STUDENT SENATE

are available for the following Dorm vacancies

Butterfield	Washington Middle
Lewis	Brett
Hills North	Pierpont
Washington Lower	Leach

DUE MARCH 5

Elections March 11

NOT TRUE!

QUEEQUEG has learned that, in typically chauvinistic fashion, certain male owners of Q–TAGS have been spreading a rumor that these lovely, handcrafted, unique, (pretty fair) medallions are fertility symbols. This is an obvious attempt to discourage female types from wearing Q–TAGS. Don't be misled, girls; medical authorities agree that Q–TAGS have no ovarian effect. (We heard of one Triddledy-dee who was successfully pinned to a Beta for two years without becoming post-partum.) Get your Q–TAG by sending your name, address, birthdate and three bucks (plus 3% tax) to: QUEEQUEG, Box 695, Falmouth, Mass. 02541.

Students International

GIVES YOU

NASSAU IN THE SPRING FROM $99

EUROPE IN THE SUMMER FROM $195

For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:

5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963

Students International

10 a.m. - 5 p.m. (617) 536-7863

— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate family —

SWIFT

COIN OPERATED Dry Cleaning

6 lbs. for only $1.50

12 lbs. for only $2.50

In one 12 lb. load, for only 2.50, you can dry clean 10 skirts, or 15 sweaters, 2 blankets, or several small drapes.

Ready to wear in 25 minutes.

MINUTEMAN CLEANERS

University Without Walls' Funds Granted

A plan for a "University Without Walls" is being developed by the School of Education at UMass.

UMass is one of 18 institutions participating in the program funded by grants from the Ford Foundation. The latest Ford grant of $400,000 to be divided among the institutions bring the total received to $815,000. UMass has received approximately $40,000. Money goes to the Union for Experimenting Colleges and Universities, of which UMass is a member.

University Without Walls programs will be designed to serve students from 16 to 60 and older with highly individualized and flexible approaches to learning. In addition to classroom work, the program will provide internships, field experience, research assistantships, independent study, and other features. Students will not have a fixed curriculum or uniform time schedule to complete work for receipt of a bachelor's degree.

Thomas F. Clark, assistant professor in the UMass School of Education, said the UMass program has a special feature. At the other 17 institutions, faculty members are planning for the students of University Without Walls. At UMass, 60 graduate and undergraduate students are involved in the planning which began Feb. 1 and is expected to be completed before the end of this semester. The plan will be submitted to faculty and administration of the University in late Spring, and if approved, will admit from 50 to 100 students to the UMass University Without Walls program next September.

Announcing the $400,000 grant, Harold Howe II, Foundation vice president, noted that the program "will allow students to plan an education to fit their needs and circumstances, and it should be of service to women and others who may find normal institutional programs difficult to attend."

Howe added, "The formal American education establishment, in its efforts to improve, expand, and be truly more democratic, is testing innovations and unconventional ideas. The exploration and evaluation of a program as widespread geographically and conceptually as the University Without Walls will be a significant step along this path."

Another key feature is a reduction in the cost of higher education. The University Without Walls Corporation will find ways for the affiliated colleges to reduce overhead and develop specialized services for students. Certain aspects of the student curriculum will also reduce education costs–aspects such as independent study, on the job internships, and field work.

Other participating institutions are: Shaw University, New College at Sarasota, University of Minnesota, Antioch College, Skidmore College, Loretto Heights College, Goddard College, Friends World College, Roger Williams College, Staten Island Community College, Bard College, Stephens College, University of South Carolina, Chicago State College, Northeastern Illinois State College, Morgan State College, and New York University.

MDC NEWS HOTLINE 5-2550

Bias In Hiring Female Grads

Having been a January graduate (English/Education) I wish to pass on observations and experiences accumulated from a variety of interviews, perhaps a preview to the June onslaught. Here are two classic examples of what I've encountered:

After a 45 min. discussion about a prospective job, one on-campus recruiter added, "Well, we've had poor experiences with women; they don't want to relocate and end up getting married anyway." Another interviewer admitted (after only 15 min.) "The only positions in which we employ women are secretarial."

The number of women in administrative positions are small, probably not due to conscious discrimination, but the entire image of the woman's role in society–"A woman should pursue the position of a nurse, secretary, or teacher" (Now teaching isn't such a secure spot either). Even in education, this concept is continued as exemplified by the Admissions Office at UMass which accepts more men than women because it is "The University's responsibility to educate the breadwinners of the Commonwealth" assuming falsely that women are not and will not be breadwinners.

It is difficult to believe that interviewers comprehend what they are really saying when, through generalizations about women, they prematurely formulate an impression of a woman before she can open her mouth (and I can understand just as well as employers what statistics have shown). When a recruiter starts elaborating on past "bad experiences", you realize that he hasn't been listening to you; he was prejudiced–his mind was "Off"–as soon as you walked into the room.

I understand that often in big businesses the individual means nothing (output over input etc.) but a woman doesn't even get the chance to be an individual due to the generalized concept of a woman's role. A particularly depressing fact is that employers look to the past and perpetuate the predieament by hiring token numbers of women, if any, when now, more than ever, women are attempting to move into careers and mix them with marriage. (horrors!)

On the other side of the coin is the situation in which one's physical appearance counts 100% (which is good or bad depending on what you are seeking in a job and/or any extra-curricular activity accompanying it). How attractive you are could be an asset but acquiring a job hinged on those requirements hardly could credit one with much mental ability–let alone the achievement of a college degree. Employers aren't too concerned with one's individuality here either.

In education, the market is for men, 2 years experience, and/or a Masters Degree. The last two conditions may vary with an area's ability to pay teachers since a Masters and experience also mean higher salaries. Men, though, symbolize stability and responsibility to an employer; therefore they are preferred.

With so many people trotting about with Bachelor Degrees, one female alternative is the Master's Degree, if only to present some qualifications to compensate for the negative attitude towards her sex (though her further education makes some men feel insecure, continuing the complications). If you think marriage would solve the problem of being labeled transient and instable, think again, because a married woman falls into the category marked "Pregnancy-Prone" (Which naturally must eliminate her from any serious career expectations). Any suggestions? A sex change perhaps?

Congress Told Of Domestic Spying

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was told Thursday that the military's domestic surveillance often is a case of spy vs. spy, like the time 53 agents watched one another among 66 civilian demonstrators.

Even the Navy was said to have sent two intelligence experts from "somewhere on the West Coast" to infiltrate the peaceful, mid-September 1969 antiwar gathering outside Ft. Carson, Colo., an Army installation.

That account and other such examples were advanced to the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights by Lawrence Lane, former intelligence coordinator at the post and now an aide to Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D—Conn.

Under questioning by Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D—N.C., Lane declared, "Rivalry between various military intelligence groups was so great the agents were watching each other to determine what the others were watching so we could see what was important."

Lane, who was assigned to the 5th Military Intelligence Detachment at Ft. Carson, said he once found himself named on another agent's report as a "dissident soldier" because he was spotted attending a civilian antiwar meeting. Lane said he was there on surveillance duty himself.

Lane, like several other former agents, testified that he and his colleagues maintained extensive files on civilian groups and individuals.

FREEPORT FLING IN THE BAHAMA ISLANDS

DURING COLLEGE WEEK

MARCH 21 - 29

ONLY $189* plus 6% tax incl. services

Includes:

- Round trip jet with champagne, meals.
- 8 days at the Freeport Inn.
- Spacious air conditioned room — some with kitchenettes.
- FREE "HAPPY HOUR" every night. FREE BOOZE 5:30 - 7:30, Band 6 - 8.
- Facilities for swimming, sailing, water skiing, golf.
- Many clubs, casinos, pubs, discoteques.

*Based on 4 per room.

JET ONLY FOR $99

Send $25 deposit to JOE MALETZ 1513 JFK

or call 546-7819 for info.

Checks payable to Student Tours

Will Tuition Increases Force You To Leave School?

If you can't afford tuition increases, do you have the ambition to write a measly letter?

Pick up a fact sheet in the Student Union Lobby and write to your State Rep.*

(Have your parents write too)

*We have a list of Reps and the districts (and towns) they represent.

ON SOVIET JEWRY...Luba Bershadskaja, who is now touring the United States after gaining exit from Moscow, will speak at Smith College Sunday.

Russian Emigrant To Speak Sunday On Soviet Jewry

NORTHAMPTON-Luba Bershadskaja, former Russian ballet dancer and one of the "Moscow Twenty-five" Soviet Jews who petitioned for legal exit visas to Israel, will describe their struggle in a lecture at Smith College Sunday, (Feb. 28) in Wright Hall auditorium.

After emigrating from Moscow to Israel last July, Madame Bershadskaja, is now touring the United States and Canada to bring to American audiences a plea, for justice for those Soviet Jews who wish to legally leave Russia to visit or stay in another country. She will speak at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall. The event is open to the public.

Madame Bershadskaja, for whom until "rather recently, even a meeting with Americans was an impossible dream," has been telling her story to large public gatherings of Americans in public meeting halls, in churches, in synagogues and in college student unions.

She is undertaking her "mission for justice" because she promised her friends to use her freedom to do everything she can. About her friends who have not yet been granted visas, she says, "Now my friends over there all seem to me like people who are sinking and I feel that I am responsible for them."

From 1941-1945, Madame Bershadskaja worked in the American Embassy in the U.S.S.R. with Averell Harriman, then U.S. ambassador to Russia. Later in 1946 she was arrested on suspicion of criminal connections with Americans. She was given ten years in a camp in Siberia and was "rehabilitated" in 1956.

From that day in 1956 when she was liberated from the camp, Madame Bershadskaja says that during three years she went every morning to emigration authorities "I told them-Israel or Siberia again..." She adds, "When I returned from the camp, I was without work, without lodging and without my children, because they were educated without me and were told their mother is a criminal person."

Archaeologist Iris Love Speaks Sunday at Amherst

AMHERST, Mass., Feb.--A Smith alumna who discovered the original head of Aphrodite by the Greek sculptor Praxiteles will speak of her adventures as an archaeologist Sunday, Feb. 28 at 4 p.m. in Mead Auditorium, Amherst College. The lecture is free to the public.

Iris Cornelia Love, who graduated from Smith in 1955, is currently on the sociology and anthropology faculty of Long Island University. Her name inspires puns, because Aphrodite was the goddess of love.

The archaeologist identified the original head in the basement of the British Museum. It was one of many artifacts collected by the 19th century archaeologist Sir Charles Newton, but had gone virtually unnoticed until Miss Love began to compare it with other work of the 4th Century B.C. Greek master and concluded that it was the original.

On the Greek isle of Knidos Miss Love has also found a round temple which she believes housed the nude statue whose head she has identified.

The archaeologist did graduate work at New York University, returned to teach at Smith in 1964-65, then taught at N.Y.U. and Hofstra University before taking her present position. She has served on the staff of the Samothrace expeditions for nine summers and has led expeditions to Knidos for the past three summers.

Notices

B.F.A. PAINTERS
B.F.A. PAINTING MAJORS & PROSPECTIVE MAJORS meeting Monday, March 1st at 12:15 p.m. in Clark 202.

B TOWN VOLUNTEERS
Be a friend to someone at the Belchertown State School. Bus leaves from Whitmore 12:45 p.m. on Saturday

CONNECTICUT VALLEY ANTI WAR CONFERENCE
The C.V.A.W.C. will be held this Saturday, Feb. 27th at 1 p.m. in Room 163 in the C.C. All SMCERS and interested students should attend.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Come see the Arabian Horse in The Proud Breed and find out what's happening this spring. Meeting and movie Tuesday, March 2nd at 7:30 p.m. in Room 174 176 of the C.C.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
All night rap, Sat. Feb. 27th in Bowditch Lodge. Spaghetti supper at midnight. Starts at 9 p.m. Bring guitars, records, games. All welcome.

INTRODUCTION TO MARXISM
Class will meet in Webster Dorm at 8:30 p.m. Monday, March 1st. Reading for discussion will be Mandel's Revolutionary Potential of the Working Class. Registration for the one credit class still open.

HILLEL
Special Soul service tonight at 8 p.m. All welcome. Music and singing. Dinner following by reservation only! Room 420 S.U.

MARINE SCIENCE SEMINAR
Monday, March 1st at 3:30 p.m. in Room 312 Holdsworth Hall. Dr. Andrew Carey, Dept. of Oceanography, Oregon State U. will speak on Ecology of the Sea Floor off Oregon. Coffee 3:15

MASSAGE WORKSHOP
Folks who signed up or are interested in a massage workshop please come to Room 169 of the C.C. Sunday at 7 p.m. Bring towels & be prepared to remove your shirt. Rub your neighbor. A Free University Production.

NEWMAN CLUB
Pick up a letter and send it to North Vietnam in support of our P.O.W.'s. They will be in the hallway and available from Feb. 27th to March 5.
Coffee House in the Newman Center Lounge Sat. at 8 p.m. Free refreshments and entertainment. Performers welcome.

ORGANIC FOOD LINE
March 2nd Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in Berkshire Dining Hall. Club room there's a final meeting to set up an organic food line in the dining commons. All interested please come.

PSYCHOLOGY COLLOQUIUM
Matthew Waynor, Brain Research Lab, Dept. of Psychology at Syracuse Univ. will speak on Motor Control Functions of the Lateral Hypothalamus Monday, March 1st at 4:30 p.m. in 231 Herter Hall. Coffee at 4 p.m. in Bartlett 35.

SKI CLUB
The Ski Club will hold a meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in Mahar Aud. Movie will be shown and plans for future trips will be discussed.

SOCIOLOGY
Sociology 104 exam today at 2:30 p.m. in 227 Herter.

STUDENT FOR MC GOVERN
Meeting to plan specific campus action this Tuesday, March 2nd at 9:30 p.m. in 804 C.C.

S.U. MOVIES
Sunday is Harold's Birthday, watch what Harold gets for his birthday. Sunday, Feb. 28th at 7, & 9:30 in S.U. Ballrm.

UNIVERSAL LIFE CHURCH
The Church will meet in 817 C.C. Sunday from 2-4 p.m. Bring food, clothes and anything to share. Your own poetry wanted.

LOST
Red wallet was lost in Boyden Gym or Hampden Dining Commons. I.D. and Driver's license. Please call 546-8347.
Small clear plastic box containing earrings and watch was lost in vicinity of Hatch. Call 6-5418.
Will whoever stole Frank Cough an's wallet please take what they want from it and return the Great sentimental value. Turn in to Campus Police or S.U. desk.

PINNINGS
Anne Marshall, '73, of Alpha Chi Omega to Peter Nowak, '72, of Putton Village.
Stephanie Kobos of Salem, N.H. to Tony Santagati, '72, of T.E.O.
Jane Freeman of Greenfield Community College to Gordon Parker, '72, of Rolling Green Apts.
Dianne Dougherty, '71, of Sigma Kappa to Jack Carroll, '71, of Kappa Sigma.

ENGAGEMENTS
Linda Hetterman, '72, of Emerson, to Peter Chapman, '70 of Wentworth.
Greta McBride of Kansas to James Mulligan, '68, of Alpha Sigma Phi.
Marianne Roose, '72, of Greenough to Larry Schiefer, of U.S.A.F.
Barbara Meier, '73, of Gorman to David Stark, '73, of Cance.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Aziz, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

1970 Ford Mustang, yellow with black stripes, 11,000 miles, excellent cond. $1200. New, best offer. Call 586-2383. tf2-26

Motorcycle 1969 Royal Enfield Indian Chief 700 cc Restoration, asking $700 or best offer. Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. Runs like new. tf3-1

Water beds for $55 at Sundance Water Beds, 187 Main St., North Hampton. tf3-3

Skis, Kniessl Red Stars 200 cm. Marker bindings, Rosemount ski boots, size 7-8½. Best offer around $170. Call 586-1365. tf2-26

35mm Canon Camera, Skis 190 cm. boot sz 8½, poles, light meter (Bewi), 100 pc. set of china, serving for 12. Call 253-5537. tf3-1

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf3-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Ford Falcon, V8, 4 speed, good condition. Call 253-9634. tf2-26

1970 Baracuda 383, vinyl roof, power steering, power brakes, automatic trans., wide oval tires, radio, 12,000 miles, asking $2900.00, 6 mos. old. Call 546-9315. tf2-26

'68 Rover TC-2000, excell. cond., snows, ski rack. Call 1-567-0979. tf2-26

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $365. Telephone 253-3946. tf3-9

1964 Ford Galaxie 500, 2 dr. sedan, new tires, radio, good heater, $400. Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. tf3-1

1960 Opel Ralley Kadet, 4 new tires, plus 2 new snow tires. 1.9 liter engine. Will sell for $1100. Call 549-1191 between 6-8 p.m. tf2-26

1962 Karmann Ghia, new engine in 1965. Colors in the style of Peter Max. Only $700. Call 253-5240. tf3-1

Have another car — must sell '63 Corvair conv., 4 speed, rebuilt engine, 3,000 miles, new battery, runs well but needs starter, $166, will haggle. Call 527-9956 after 6 p.m. tf3-1

Buy of the year: 1968 MG Midget, 15,000 miles, wire wheels and many extras, $12,000. Call 253-9084 and ask for Steve, after 6 p.m. 2-26

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female Roommate wanted now for Puffton Apt., furnished. Call 549-6718 after 6 p.m. tf2-26

1-room apt. in So. Deerfield $140/split, clean/neat place to live and work. Grad. or yet. preferred. Call 665-7712. Keep trying, hard to catch. tf2-26

Male roommate wanted, Cliffside Apts, $53 a month, utilities included. Call 665-3088; ask for Lee, Jim or Greg. tf2-26

Male to share apt. with 5 senior men. Very close to Camp. Have own room for $54 a month. Call 549-6613. tf2-26

Female roommate wanted to share 1 bedroom, Mt. Hanes Apt. townhouse, completely furnished with disposal, air cond., dishwasher. Available immed. Call Beth, days 545-0327, nights 253-3121. tf3-1

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8125. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lanz's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3148. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-22

Bass player looking for work. Prefer something that will go through summer. Call Vinny 6-9675. 2-26

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-14

WANTED

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded, free estimates on collections. Bob Murrin, 466 Chadbourne or P.O. Box 164, Amherst. tf3-1

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

HELP WANTED

Wanted immed., 2 women live in, infant care, sewing, etc., 12 hours per week, apartment/fee negotiations, 2 miles from campus. Call 549-1115. tf3-1

Help w exper. in pollution resl. Need abil. w stat. Call Steve 253-3192. tf3-2

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

Girl in dorm single want to move out? Univ refund ripoff traps you? I'll take room and pay you for rest of semester. You don't lose anything. Call 584-8539. tf2-26

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL of fers chartered flights to NASSAU in Spring from $99 and EUROPE in summer from $199. For details call: Steve 549-1367 or Brian 549-3863. tf2-26

TO SUBLET

One bedroom apt. available March 1st Puffton Village. Please call 549-6777. 2-26

PERSONAL

Happy Birthday Green, Wuv Dick 2-26

Dear David — Have a peachy 2nd anniversary. All my love, Bosie. 2-26

To the Sensuous Women of 371. Thanks. Love your 88. Patty. 2-26

Fred: I am sorry for phone calls. Kris took blame to protect me, but he'll deny it. Don. 2-26

HOCKEY SKATERS

WANTED GOALIES to skate Mondays free, nothing professional, just a semi-organized hack session. Call Joe at 665-3083 or Neal at 665-3656 after 5. 2-26

SPECIAL EVENTS

See Hey Brooklyn with Lynn Holgway perform at the Top of the Campus Fri. and Sat. nights at 9:00. Come early for dinner! 2-19-26

DO IT!

Today Is the Last Day!

Vote for the Winter Carni Queen of your choice.

The queen will be presented to the Campus, at the Basketball Game, Saturday Nite.

STUDENT UNION LOBBY

winter carni 1971

HRA Prof. Declares Jail Food Favorable

Food at Hampden County jail in Springfield is "favorable", a University of Massachusetts hotel and restaurant management instructor, who is conducting a study there, said today.

Philip Horowitz was requested by Hampden County commissioners to do the study after a riot last Sunday. One of the prisoners' complaints was the food.

Horowitz toured the jail's cafeteria and kitchen and observed one of the lunch hour shifts. He said that everything looked clean and neat.

Two of the jail's chefs were working together to serve the luncheon meal of baked fish, mashed potatoes, peas, bread and coffee.

Sheriff John G. Curley, who accompanied the UMass instructor on the tour, told him that the jail's budget did not allow chefs to buy haddock since it was too expensive.

Horowitz inspected the cooking facilities, which included ovens and steam kettles as well as heaters, and was taken to the upstairs kitchen storage area. Vegetables, fruits and various other food items were stored there. Horowitz also toured the cold storage area where meats and frozen foods are kept.

Sheriff Curley told Horowitz that the jail's farm raises turkeys, pigs and chickens. Eggs served for breakfast are from the jail's chickens.

Three chefs manage the kitchen crew and serve food similar to mess hall food. They told Horowitz that they use the Armed Forces Recipe Service in food preparation.

Two of the chefs had been associated with the Armed Forces. Richard Pajak worked in the Marine Corps as a chef for 12 years. Erwin P. Falkiewicz worked 22 years as a chef and commissary supervisor in the Navy.

A third chef, Ralph LaFleur, was self-employed for 12 years and supervised his own restaurant and catering service.

An additional disturbance during the week resulted in prisoners throwing food from their cells into the hallway of the jail. The meal which ended up on the floor consisted of veal and spaghetti.

THE PIZZA INN is in town!

173 Sunset Ave.

(across from Southwest)

Friday only:

THE HUNGRY STUDENT SPECIAL

All Day Friday

All the spaghetti with meat sauce you can eat for only $1.00

Now managing the Kara Mia

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Virgo women are shrewd, but they can also outsmart themselves. On the positive side, these women are perceptive, wonderful during emergency situations and knowledgeable about health. The Virgo woman abhors slovenly people, methods. This woman knows the value of money but finds it difficult to adjust to a budget. She is bright, loves to read, is a natural teacher and, very often, an authority on nutrition.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Co-operate with others in project, but don't diminish individuality. This is not as difficult as it might appear. State desires. Listen to others. But maintain flair of originality.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be aware of what happens behind the scenes. Take nothing for granted. Get answers to questions. You can make valuable contacts through social gathering. Laugh at your own foibles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on friendships, romance. Fulfillment of desires. Key is to be aware of line points. Read between the lines. Someone is trying to tell you something. Breakthrough is indicated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put ideas to work. One in position of authority will now accept suggestions. Prestige is on the line. Investigate various possibilities. But concentrate on ultimate goal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may feel drawn in two directions at once. Consult family member. Be in harmony with desires of loved one. Going too far afield could be mistake. Gain shown through written word.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tax estate matters are to be considered. Member of opposite sex is very much in picture. Don't fool yourself. You will pay for what is received. Interest in occult may be aroused.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on marriage, partnerships. What you do now should be done as team effort. Some who want to back you need reassurance. Be gentle. Display charm. Let others have spotlight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Slow pace. Finish task which has been delayed, postponed. Key is to maintain steady progress. Ignore work associate who complains, sings blues. Improve efficiency.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides with investment opportunities. Key is to have confidence in original concepts. Utilize your natural ability to perceive future trends, cycles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Progress could change direction. What you thought was objective may have only been temporary. Shake off tendency to be fixed in views. Look around. Experiment. Gain new ally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Capricorn message. Be flexible. Make concession to close relative. A journey, visit could be featured. Numerous ideas are available for more complete development.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Financial opportunities are present. Be thorough. Check details. Your earning capacity is due for review. Get money's worth. Accent quality. Build on solid foundation. Then you gain.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: nothing is too minor or small for practical use. What others might discard becomes material of value for you. You are resourceful, capable of being an executive. You are beginning a cycle which will lead to greater independence. A business of your own. Your drives are strong. You don't play games with emotions or in business affairs. You are capable of getting to the root of major issues. Duty should be a most significant month.

Copyright 1971, Gen Fea Corp.

Attention Black Community

Students and faculty are urged to participate in a series of interviews of candidates for faculty positions in the Black Studies Department. To date interviews are scheduled for:

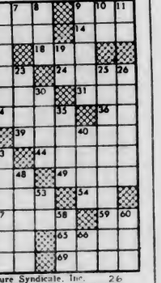
Saturday, Feb. 27 3 p.m. at the Black Cultural Center

Tuesday, March 9

Thursday, March 11

Please watch for further information and join us this Saturday.

Black Studies Dept.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Poems
5 Portico
9 Declare
12 College official
13 Temporary shelter
14 Man's nickname
15 Symbol for silver
16 Period of time
18 Hindu cymbals
20 Printer's measure
22 Allowance for waste
24 Mohammedan magistrate
27 Break suddenly
29 Short jacket
31 Noise
32 Greeting
34 Man's name
36 Saint (abbr.)
37 Mountain nymphs
39 Pass, as time
41 Sun god
42 Gratuities
44 Girl's name
45 Greek letter
47 Hard-shelled fruit (pl.)
49 Period of fasting
50 Trade for money
52 Bellow
54 Conjunction
55 Electrified particle
57 Disturbance
59 Preposition
61 Inquire
63 City in Russia
65 Century plant
67 Pedal digit
68 Girl's nickname
69 Gasp for breath

DOWN
1 Room in harem
2 Degraded
3 Babylonian deity
4 Vessel's curved planking
5 Look fixedly
6 Cylindrical
7 Preposition
8 Unit of Siamese currency
9 Dinner course
10 Hebrew month
11 Old pronoun
17 Latin conjunction
19 Alternating current (abbr.)
21 Masculine
23 Ripped
25 Discord
26 Purpose
27 Coasts
28 Real estate map
30 River in Africa
33 Norse god
35 Hail
38 Urge on
40 Entreaty
43 Retail establishments
46 Similar
48 Goes by water
51 Behold!
53 Artificial language
56 Negative
58 Hd lightly
60 Openwork fabric
61 Near
62 Conjunction
64 Note of scale
66 A state (abbr.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PAY ANTS STEP
ABE SORT CORE
ILL PREACHERS
DELES AGIO
ON ATE OGRE
LOW HIS SLEEP
IRE FOR HIS NI
SLOOP MET DOC
PEER AARAE
EARN IMAGE
PERSISTED LEA
HOOT OLEO ENS
INNS NELL RET

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 2-6

Ken Mathias—Underrated Redman

By MARK VOGLER
MDC Staff

Most university sports enthusiasts picture him strikingly as a collegian hoopster who bears slight resemblance to Cleveland's Hawk Harrelson. And at the same time these fans fail to equate his true image with the valuable role he has rendered the UMass basketball scheme this year and the two prior.

Such is the paradox which unknowingly confronts Ken Mathias, underrated co-captain of the defending New England Titlists. True, he's no full fledged star as players go. He doesn't possess exceptional shooting skill from corner to corner, nor does he have extraordinary speed and agility that set him apart from the rest.

But in a span that has produced such good ones as Ray Ellerbrook, Peter Gayeska, Joey DiSarcina, and now Julius Erving among others, Mathias has been a credit to the team in his own quiet and unselfish way. Through hard work and determination he has established a reputation which should stand him a good stead long after he's left the university.

Freshman Coach Peter Broaca, who had coached at Pascack High in New Jersey before his travels brought him to UMass, should perhaps take a pat on the back for having cited Mathias as college ball material. It was Broaca who scouted, recruited, and later coached the schoolboy sensation from nearby Lodi (N.J.).

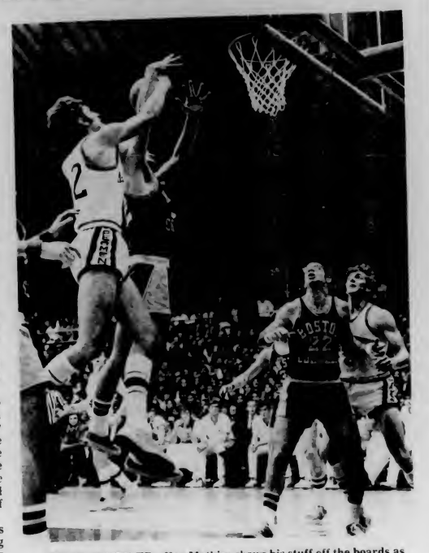
Having been introduced to the hardwood for the first time as a freshman in high school, it was two years before he developed into a starter. But as a senior, the high scoring center enveloped just about all the honors--all county, even a piece of the all-state within his own division. And it was Broaca's contention that Mathias was one of the top prospects in the area that year.

It seems that Broaca made a sound investment, for not only did Mathias help the UMass freshmen secure a 12-7 mark, but he also was the clubs number one scorer and leading rebounder, averaging 17.6 and 11 respectively. The following winter he immediately slipped into the starting five and performed masterfully--sophomore that is--caging 10.5 points per outing and lugging down an average of nearly nine rebounds. He had definitely been a key contributer to the Redmen's 17-7 record and No. 2 ranking in New England.

But in an otherwise prosperous career marked by its ups and downs, Ken experienced his share of disappointments last year. Only the NE crown, an NIT berth, and an 18-7 slate made the low point in his playing days a time to remember. Not only did he slack off in his overall play, but his amount of service was nearly slashed in half by strong competition from Dick Samuelson who has since graduated. A battle with the flu didn't help matters either.

After a slow start this season, Mathias came around gradually and was at his peak during the Hall of Fame Tournament where he averaged over 17 points through a three game spread, including 24 against Colgate. In recognition of his consistent efforts he was voted to the All-Tourney team, receiving second highest number of votes to guess who--Julius Erving.

But Mathias, who claims that he has always been quite susceptible to the flu, was hit by his nemesis again. Sidelined for the Northeastern encounter, he proved totally ineffective for the following three games.



Asked if he felt his starting job was jeopardized since Tom McLaughlin was doing a pretty respectable job at forward, the veteran center replied: "The thought did cross my mind because it was pretty much the same situation a year ago. But I felt if I just worked hard I could get myself back in form."

And that he did. Mathias rebounded back into a good playing groove with outstanding efforts against B.C. (16) and UConn (24), he shrugged off a poor showing in the Springfield shocker with a good night against Syracuse earlier this week. He gunned in 11 of his 13 points in the second half seige of the Orangemen. But there are still three more games on the calender. If Mathias and his mates can continue their headsup play, who knows what's next. NIT or NCAA maybe.

Coach Jack Leaman recalls that Ken played extremely well as a sophomore, probably took a big letdown last year, but the added responsibility of co-captain has really made a difference this season.

"I tell you he's just been a terrific kid all along. His being elected co-captain this year has really matured him. It has changed his whole outlook to the game and life in general. Ken has developed into a real leader. Recently he kept to himself, but now he's come to the forefront and is active in the total picture."

As far as the big changes in his playing style Leaman points out: "I think the big improvement is due to the fact that he has learned his limitations. He's adjusted to them and now tries to play his strength, he tries to do only the things he can do well."

BOUND BATTLER—Ken Mathias shows his stuff off the boards as he fights for a rebound with Boston College's Peter Schmid. The senior center has been a main cog in the UMass basketball machine. (MDC photo by Gary Slickman)

Coach Broaca brands Mathias as "one of the hardest working members of the squad."

"He probably gets more out of his natural ability than most any other player on the court. This is a kid who is no doubt in the shadow but has performed quite well. I think he might be one of the most underrated players in New England and I think he deserves a certain amount of credit." Everybody knows how great a basketball player Julius Erving is. But too often many people look at UMass as a one man team. This is certainly not true."

Broaca further expressed Mathias' pro possibilities:

"Quite frankly, I'll be a bit surprised and disappointed if some team doesn't draft or at least take a look at Ken. I think he's worthy of it. It would be a smart move for any team to draft him and take a look at him in rookie camp to see if they can fit him into their program."

In response to his plans upon graduation Mathias commented: "Some way or another I'm going to have to take care of my military obligation first. Probably after that's out of the way I'd like to pursue two goals.

First I'd like to go into the business world, then maybe later I'd try to enter teaching or coaching."

The notion of playing pro ball didn't even pop into his head. And when posed with the question his response was modest:

"I don't think that it's entirely up to me. I think I'd have to be super lucky to get drafted anyway. Since Julius draws scouts from all over, my chances would be favorable if I played well on a particular night. But, that in itself would be purely by accident. However, if the opportunity did knock I'd go wherever I could play. Again it would depend upon what situation arises. But my draft status (he's 53 in the lottery) would be my first priority to attend to."

STOP AND POP-When it comes to field goal shooting, Ken Mathias is one of the top marksmen around hitting on 57% of hit shots from the floor. (MDC photo by Bob Mangiaratti)

Intramural Highlights; Saracino Tops Bowlers

By MICHAEL FOX
MDC Staff

Seventeen bowlers fought it out in the alleys Wednesday for the end of the season all-star bowling championship. Jim Saracino, with a season average of 174, was the winner, bowling strings of 200-208-221, for a total of 269. The UMass record for three strings is 665.

The favorite, Marc Goldenfield, (season average of 180) was a distant second with a three string total of 562, 67 pins off the pace. But despite a first string score of 200, Saracino led by only one pin as Frank Johnston bowled a strong string of 199, while Mike Stack, who finished third, was four off with a string of 196. Neither Johnston, Stack nor Goldenfield (187 first string) could keep up the pace as Saracino got stronger with each string he bowled.

The final standings with the three string totals are as follows; (season average in parenthesis) Jim Saracino (174) 629, Marc Goldenfield (180) 562, Mike Stack (176) 535, John Walsh (171) 533, Mike Didonato (176) 529, Steve Piercy (162) 521, Bill Brainerd (161) 519, Stanley Baker (162) 517, Frank Johnston (161) 505, Ernie McLagrida (165) 492, Mike Nobrynski (169) 487, Eliot Hartstone (160) 477, Tom Danielchik (172) 462, H. Lepler (171) 456, Jeff Oppenheim (167) 451, Lawrence Rosencrantz (167) 429, and Ronald DeCoigne (171) 387.

INTRAMURAL INKLINGS: Wrestling semi-finals and finals will be held in the wrestling room next Wednesday and Thursday nights at 7:30. Registration forms for spring intramurals are being sent out next Monday. Watch your bulletin boards and this column for this spring's sports news.

Women Hoopsters Take Two

By SHARON MILES
MDC Staff

The UMass women's varsity basketball team romped over Worcester State College 47-25 last Thursday, wrecking vengeance for a loss in December.

UMass took command right from the start, holding an eight point lead after eight minutes of play which stood up throughout the second period.

In the third quarter a stingy UMass defense surrendered only four point, all on free throws, while blowing the game wide open, finishing on top by 22.

Worcester State was held to an atrocious 15% from the floor. Coach Jane Farr credits a zone defense with keeping the WSC offense outside the key, forcing the opposition into taking poor shots.

Nancy Lindberg continued to dominate in scoring, this time hitting for 19 points. Pat Bash and Joyce Knappe controlled the boards. Pat grabbed 13 rebounds, Joyce 7.

Monday the varsity proved an extremely ungracious hostess, walking all over visiting Greenfield Community College 63-23.

At the end of the first quarter UMass was far out in front, 17-1. Coach Farr substituted freely in the remaining periods.

In 2 periods of play Joyce Knappe and Nancy Lindberg each tossed in 11 points. Sue Chapman, Barb Hern, and Dolly Lambdin all scored 9 points in the 40 point rout of Greenfield.

On Tuesday UMass varsity and JVs will host UNH, tap off is at 4:15. Friday Southern Connecticut State College comes to WOPE. This is the team which defeated UMass in the Championship game at the President's Tournament earlier this month. The games begin at 4 p.m.

Girl Gymnasts Host Canadians

The UMass Gymnastics Team will host a young team of Canadian East Coast Champions tomorrow at 1:00 P.M. in the Boyden Building Auxiliary Gymnasium.

Vandrenil Silhouettes from Montreal, Canada, have been traveling to Amherst since 1968 and the dual competition has always been one of the best in UMass girls competitive schedule. The Young Canadians belong to a private club, coached by Miss Jackie St. Jean. Two members of the club belong to the Canadian National Team and one competed in the World Games in 1970, representing Canada. As a club, the Canadians have been undefeated this year.

The UMass girls have also an 5-0 record, with 3 meets still to go in the current season. The dual meet between these two undefeated teams should be an interesting and close competition. In 1969, UMass won over the Silhouettes by 1.5, but last year the Canadians were on top by two points, giving the UMass girls their first defeat of the season.

Trackmen Seek Improvement At N.E.'s

By ROBERT MEDEIROS
MDC Staff

The UMass track team travels to Storrs, Connecticut tomorrow for the New England Championships which start at 11:30 a.m. The Redmen move into the meet with the objective of improving upon last year's third place finish. Last year Northeastern was the winner with UConn finishing in second place.

It has long been a tradition in the New Englands that one of the favorite teams gets hot on the day of the meet, and is able to score enough points early in the day to secure the meet while four or five teams fight over second place. This year's competition should again be close with Northeastern and Connecticut the favorites while UMass and Boston College are given outside chances of taking the meet.

The Redmen will be led into the meet by Ron Wayne, Dave Evans, and Eddie Arcaro who are all coming off impressive victories in the recent Yankee Conference Championships. Eddie Arcaro, the Yankee Conference shotput champion, will again double in the shotput and 35-pound weight. Arcaro has long been considered one of the finest weight men in New England, and will be out to prove it tomorrow.

Wayne has been a perennial standout in the New England distance running scene. Last week he ran an impressive double as he won the mile and came in second in the Yankee Conference Championships. This week Wayne will be out to add the two mile title to his long list of accomplishments.

Evans, the Yankee Conference Champion, has dominated the 1000 throughout the season and will be out to continue his streak against one of the strongest fields to ever run in the New Englands.

The dash will feature Walter Mayo, Ron Harris, and Tony Pendleton. Mayo finished second in the event last year and should place high in the standings this year. Harris and Pendleton can also be expected to finish high in the dash.

The Redmen will be represented in the high hurdles by Gerry Spellman, Jim Graves, and Bob Landry. Coach O'Brien will be looking for a repeat performance from Spellman and Graves as both men were able to score valuable points last year toward the Redmen cause.

Cal Carpenter and Ed Shaughnessy both placed in the high jump last year and should do the same this year. Rip Dyer and Shaughnessy will participate in the long jump with both men given a good chance of finishing high in the standings.

Steve Levine, off a great performance in the Yankee Conference Championships, will be looking for a repeat performance in the 600. Larry Paulson will represent the Redmen in the mile, while Tom Jasmin will back up Wayne in the two mile.

The most unpredictable events for UMass will be the relays. If the Redmen are to overtake Northeastern and UConn in the final standings then they will have to do well in the two relay events. Harris, Spellman, and Levine will lead off the mile relay with the fourth man being either Gene Costello or Evans. The two mile relay will include Al Mangan, John Maloney, Arnie Morse, and Paulson.

TRACK TALK—With the high calibre of athlete at this meet there is a possibility for both Redman competitors to set new UMass records and for the entire field of athletes to set new New England records...On the subject of records, last weekend at San Diego Kerry O'Brien set a new world record in the two mile run with a time of 8:19.2...In the same meet Jim Ryun, tied the indoor record for the mile, 3:56.4.

SPEED AFOOT-Ron Harris, Walter Mayo (first two from left) and Tony Pendleton (far right) are shown in action at last Saturday's Yankee Conference Championships. These three as a unit are the fastest dash men in New England and will be counted upon by their coach to pick up points in the dash at tomorrow's New England Championships at UConn. (MDC photo by Bob Mangiaratti.)

MIT Matmen at UM

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

The UMass Wrestling team goes after its tenth straight victory tomorrow when it hosts MIT at 2:00 p.m. at Boyden. The Redmen, now 14-3-1, will win their ninth straight tonight when the Boston College Eagles fail to field a team.

This is the third straight year that the Eagles have caused scheduling problems, since last year they showed up two hours late and without a freshman team. Last year they changed an afternoon meet to a night meet, using the excuse that their gym was being used. However, not a soul was in Roberts Center that afternoon. These events greatly irritated Coach Homer Barr. BC said it could not field a team, but the fact that Tufts shut out the Eagles last week may have been a factor. The Redmen beat Tufts earlier in the year 42-0.

MIT comes to Amherst with a 6-5 record and a ninth place ranking in New England. The Engineers have beaten Tufts 41-3, WPI 24-10, and Amherst 26-14, while losing 21-16 to UNH, 24-20 to Dartmouth and 32-5 to Harvard. The Redmen have met five of the same opponents and have beaten all of them. The Engineers are strong at three weights, with Bacalund at 118, Mitchell at 167, and Davies, their best wrestler, at 190.

Coach Barr will go with a lineup of Duncan Innes at 118, Dave Reynolds at 126, Sheldon Goldberg at 134, Clay Jester at 142, Brian Urquhart at 150, Jim Godkin at 158, Kent Mignocchi at 167, Ed Carlsson at 177, George Zguris at 190 and Carl Dambman at heavyweight.

On Wednesday UMass won their eighth in a row, defeating WPI 32-6. The Redmen broke fast and gave up only one match point in the first five matches. Innes won by forfeit, Reynolds won 8-1, Goldberg won his fourteenth without a loss 6-0, Jester won 4-0, Urquhart won 6-0. This gave UMass a 17-0 and the Redmen were off and running.

Losses at 158 and 167 pound classes only slowed the rout until Coach Barr let his heavyweights lose. Ed Carlsson won by a pin in the second period, and George Zguris, not to be outdone, did the same at 190. For Zguris, it was his eighth victory against no losses and makes him a contender for the number one seed in the New England Wrestling Tourney. Heavyweight Dambman finished WPI off with a 3-0 win.

UMass closes its season on Wednesday when it travels to Central Conn., and then its on to the Tourneys.

J.V. Grapplers Enjoy Success

By ROB LUNDGREN
MDC Staff

Coach Maurice Brosky sat back in his chair to contemplate his ten year coaching career at UMass. "I've got the best job in the world," he contently stated, "and if I were ever to go elsewhere, I would have to simulate this job in order to be happy."

Statistics are backing coach Brosky's statements as his J.V. teams have won the New England championships two times in the past four years and are presently enjoying a 3-2-1 record. "The toughest part of the season is over," explained Brosky, "and I'm expecting three more victories before the New England's on March 5 and 6."

His confidence is based upon the performance of a talented group of freshmen. Tom Gartland, Lee Siwicki, and Joe Phillips are the best prospects and with considerable depth provided by Gary Woods, Chuck Mryglot, and Phil Snedeker the J.V. team looms as a threat to any New England contender. "Wrestling is one of the most demanding sports," commented Brosky, "The price is higher, but the physical returns are also higher."

As Coach Brosky explained, J.V. wrestling has little glamour. No crowds, no applause, merely hard training, tough physical contact, and perpetual weight watching a combination which leads to participation by only the most dedicated athletes.

So far this year the wins have been convincing and the defeats have been extremely close. The coach explained that his team would probably have remained undefeated except for the fact that instead of wrestling a more experienced upperclassman, he would lean towards a determined, yet untested freshman. Explaining his reasons Brosky stated, "My job is to give the young kids the experience they need to become effective varsity wrestlers. Therefore I wrestle freshmen whenever possible."

When asked the reasons for the team's continued success he replied, "It's really amazing. We hardly give any scholarships and yet every year we are seriously competing for the New England championship. The reason is simple. Homer Barr, the varsity coach, is the greatest wrestling teacher in the world. My job is simple. He recruits the talent and I just watch them progress."

So it's on to the New England's with a modest coach, a group of talented and determined freshmen, and a belief that UMass will long be a wrestling power.

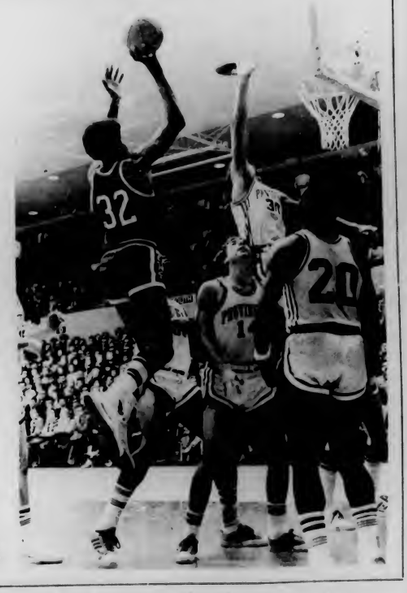
Gymnasts Host Temple

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

The UMass varsity gymnasts, currently sporting a 5-2 record, will seek to close their dual meet season with a winning effort when they host Temple University tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. The Temple team, despite a slower than usual start, is again considered to be one of the top teams in the Eastern League.

Over the past two years, coach Bill Coco's Owls have compiled an enviable 20-2 record, finishing twice as the second place team in the Eastern League. However, Temple ousted perennial power Penn State for the right to represent the League in the National Championships last year. After winning the Eastern Championship meet, the Owls went on to finish third nationally.

Temple lost some of their most outstanding competitors via graduation. All-around man Pete DeFurio, who placed second in the Nationals, Jay Long, who was seventh nationally in the longhorse event, and Rick Lund, former Eastern League floor exercise champ, are no longer competing for Temple. Nonetheless, the Owls still present a powerful lineup.



This year, Temple is led by senior captain Ron Clemmer, who is a member of the U.S. national Team. Last year, he finished third in the EIGL Championships in the all-around event, and is looking forward to this year's Nationals. All-around men Mel Hill and Richie Tobin add a great deal of power to the Owl lineup. As a freshman, Hill finished fifth in vaulting in last year's EIGL Championships, while Tobin is an excellent performer in the floor exercise event.

In their last outing, against Penn State, Temple scored 157.95 points, while UMass' high for the season is 156.80, against Springfield. The meet promises to be extremely close. Due to heavy spectator interest, the meet will be held in Curry Hicks Cage.

Next Saturday, the Redmen will travel to Boston State for the New England Championships. The following weekend, the Redmen will host the Eastern League Championships.

WMUA Covers Redman Basketball

UMass
VS.
G.Washington

Tomorrow afternoon at Madison Square Garden the UMass hoopsters continue their quest for a post season tourney bid as they do battle with the George Washington Colonials with the opening tap at 1:30 p.m. For all the action tune into WMUA, 91.1 on your dial. Calling all the play-by-play will be Ken Horseman with Dave Melvin supplying the color commentary. Air time is 1:20.

Voice
Of
The Redmen

Redmen Face G.W. At M.S.G.

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

UMass basketball returns to Madison Square Garden tomorrow as the Redmen take on George Washington University with tap off at 1:30. In chasing their 21st win of the season against only three losses the Redmen return to the court where they impressed so many basketball officials last season with their fine pay in the NIT against Marquette. Tomorrow these same hoop officials and many more will be out to view New England's top post season tournament candidate.

In George Washington the Redmen will be facing a big, physical team, which canges defenses from a man-to-man, to a zone press and likes to fast break.

Walt Szczerbiak

Going into this game the Colonials will have a record of 10-11 having played against some fine opposition including Richmond, Eastern Tennessee, VMI, Navy, Miami of Florida and Cincinnati.

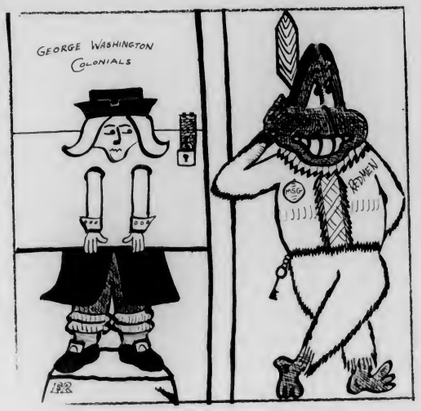
In the game against Cincinnati the Colonials knocked off a team that had earlier in the week defeated number 14 ranked Louisville. The record may not seem impressive but the calibre of ball that George Washington plays will make this a stiff test for the Redmen.

In the past few games, Redman opponents have looked at games with UMass as a victory making their season a success. Tomorrow will be the same as the Colonials will be looking to make the Redmen their prize possession.

They will be ready and they will have the shooting to be so as they have hit on 47% of their shots from the floor and 70% from the foul line. George Washington can put the ball through the hoop.

The starting lineup for the Colonials will have Mike Battle, 6'7, Lenny Baltimore, 6'6, and Walt Szczerbiak, 6'6 up front with Ronnie Nunn, 6'3, and Ralph Barnett, 6'22, in the backcourt.

Battle is one of the big men for the Colonials off the boards averaging ten rebounds per game along with his 15 point average.



Baltimore is hitting for ten points per game and should give his team some added muscle under the boards.

Szczerbiak is the spark of the George Washington attack averaging 21.3 points and 11.9 rebounds per game along with being one of the top field goal shooters in the nation hitting 63% from the floor. He is the guy the Redman defense will have to control.

Nunn is a great shooter averaging 17.1 points a game. He's a New York City boy and comes ready to play.

His partner, Barnett, is hitting on 50% from the field and runs the Colonials' offense.

For UMass, coach Jack Leaman has decided on four starters, Julius Erving, John Betancourt, Ken Mathias and Mike Pagliara. The fifth starter will be determined on how the coach figures he can best defense the Colonials.

Pucksters Skate Into Red Hotline; Iced by UNH, 10-3

By BILL BALLOU
MDC Staff

DURHAM, N.H.-Skating into one of the highest scoring front lines in Division I hockey the UMass pucksters came out on the short end of a 10-3 verdict here last night before 4100 screaming and howling Wilcat fans at the fame "UNH Pit."

Lou Frigon, the leding scorer in Division I, Dick Umili and Bill Monroe accounted for eight of the Wildcat's goals and between them broke the game open in the second period scoring three times in the first five minutes of that stanza to ice the victory.

If there was one big difference between the two clubs it was in the passing, as the Wildcats outpassed the Redmen resulting in many perfect steups for goals.

The first period saw the Wildcats open up a three-zip lead on the strength of goals by Umili, Frigon and Umili again.

Umili's first marker came at 4:22 when he pushed a backhander passed P.J. Flaherty in a scramble in front of the UMass goal.

At 12:21 Frigon scored the first of his four tor the night on a 20 foot wrist shot. Umili closed the scoring for the period at 19:07 converting a three on one break that Flaherty had no chance on.

During this first stanza Wildcat goalie Chad Ramsdel set the defensive pattern for the evening as he robbed the Redmen time after time including an effective job on the high scoring Redman front line of Pat Keenan, Jack Edwards and Paul Riley.

In the second period UNH blew the game wide open as it outscored the Redmen 5-2, giving the Wildcats an 8-2 bulge entering the last stanza.

Monroe got into the act first scoring a Wildcat goal at 1:17 on a clean shot by the screaned out Flaherty.

Eric Scrafield broke the UMass drought, scoring at 3:33 on a second effort shot after being foiled on his first shot by Ramsdel.

Eric Scrafield

Frigon then scored two in a row within four minutes, the first coming on a beautiful bit of puck maneuvering around Flaherty and the second on a 50 foot shot through a screen.

Chico Shea scored the second UMass goal at 12:22 with the assist going to Flaherty who started the pay by clearing the puck from the Umass zone right on the stick of Shea who rammed the puck home by Ramsdel.

Bill Deaney and Terry Blewett completed the Wildcat scoring for the period with Markers at 14:19 and 19:59.

With only 13 seconds gone in the third period Monroe scored his second goal of the night in a scramble in front of the UMass net.

Shea scored his second goal of the game also, with a backhander through a screen for his 11th of the season.

Frigon lit the red-light for his fourth time at 14:19 on a power play with Mike Waldron off the ice. This closed the scoring for the game.

For UMass Scrafield was the standout performer with his goal and his inspired play thoughout the contest. Of the ten goals that went by Flaherty there were really on a couple that he could be of fault. The rest were on screen shots and scrambles in the Redmen crease area.

ICE CHIPS-On the night UNH took a whopping 50 shots on the UMass net...The Redmen had only 25 on Ramsdel..."The Pit" was its usual self as the UNH fans were screaming for blood throughout the contest and enjoyed every goal the Wildcats scored..The next game for the Redmen is tomorrow afternoon when they travel all the way to Hamilton, New York to play Hamilton University at 3:00 p.m.

FORMER CAPTAIN'S NIGHT—Forgot in all the basketball commotion of last weekend were these former UMass basketball captains who were honored at half time of the UMass-Maine game for their contributions to UMass basketball. (MDC photo by Bob Mangiarattl)

Last Night's Intramurals

INTRAMURALS
VOLLEYBALL

LCA 2, ZN 0.
PSK 2, SAM 0
PMD 2, ASP 0
KS 2, TC 0
BKP 2, TEP 1
PSD 2, SAE 1
PLP WBF ATG
SPE 2, APO 1
Redwoods 2, Oaks 0
Lemons 2, Hemlocks 1.
Pipers 2, Brigade 0
Eagles 2, Cans 1
Maroons 2, Flaming A's 1.
Jacks 2, Pranksters 1.
Heads 2, Bildoes 0
Sigmas WBF Boys
Oxfords 2, Bucks 1.
Tubes 2, Suits 0
Canaille 2, Hurts 0
Bombers WBF International Ed.
Congtos 2, Gunners 1.
Education 2, Burners 0
D C D 2, C.O. Boys 1
Jo ATG 2, B Kap 1.
TT 2, Cans 0
Lovers 2, LT 1
Sextet 2, LT 1
Sextet 2, TDS 0
SAE 2, TKB 0
Prince 2, PP 0.
Fleas 2, Crushers 0.

Sports In Brief

Jack Nicklaus charged into the first round lead at the PGA Championship with a 69. He held a one stroke lead over Bob Goalby, Bob Charles and Bobby Mitchell. Arnold Palmer who has never won this championship got off to a rocky start with a 75.

*****

Ironman outfielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs signed his first 100,000 dollar baseball contract yesterday for the Chicago Cubs. He enjoyed one of his best seasons ever this past year.

*****

Willie Davenport and Bob Seagren, a pair of Olympic Gold medalists, head the list of defending champions on hand tonight for the AAU indoor track and field championships.

*****

Denny McLain is back in the news. Yesterday he said he was enjoying himself for the first time in a long time. He said the work in the Senator's training camp has enabled him to relax.

*****

The International Brotherhood of Hammer Throwes awarded the Harold B. Lambert Trophy to Osgood Conklin for unsurpassed excellence in the sport in the year 1970. Conklin is a pizza-pie maker in Avalon, N.J.

Sunday Night On WMUA Head Football Coach Dick MacPherson, 10-11

INTRAMURAL WRESTLING-All intramural wrestlers are requested to check the bulletin board outside the intramural office today at 10 a.m. to see where and when they will wrestle.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
Very little of anything. But you'll like it. Cooler tomorrow.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 96 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, MARCH 1, 1971

THE PRETZEL MAN-Inflation has hit the pretzel man. They used to cost a dime but now you get stuck for a quarter. This guy peddles his wares outside of Madison Square Garden.

THE OLD MAN-This dapper old gent is out for a stroll in the big city, enjoying the air pollution, speeding cars and the dog crap on the sidewalks.

THEY SAY HE'S CRAZY-The DT's or acid? No one was sure which when this one came rolling and reeling down the sidewalk. (MDC photos by Gib Fullerton)

Conferees Ponder Problem Of Impending Tuition Boost

By MIKE McWILLIAMS
MDC Staff

The public College Strategy Conference convened on campus this weekend with representatives from thirteen state and community colleges present to discuss plans to fight the proposed tuition increase for all state schools.

The conference was called to confirm the positions taken on the issue by the various student bodies and to discuss tactics to be employed in fighting the increase.

Each school presented its position and any action it was in the process of taking at an organizational meeting Friday night.

Bill Burke of the Massachusetts Intercollegiate Government spoke on the potential voting power of student in this state and how it could be utilized in this issue.

Burke stressed the importance of individual students registering to vote and announced plans for a statewide Youth voter registration drive to be held in the last two weeks of April.

The drive will cost about $15,000 with $10,000 coming from the federal government and labor unions and $5,000 from the schools and colleges throughout the state.

Representatives from both UMass campuses, Salem State, Lowell State, Boston State, Fitchburg State, Quinsigomond, Berkshire, Greenfield, North Shore, and Holyoke Community Colleges and Springfield Tech then discussed their individual positions on the increase and plans for action the school has made.

Judy Gill, chairwoman for the conference, spoke for UMass.

Saturday morning, a general meeting was held to discuss the lobbying tactics to be used in opposing the bill and to arrive at an official statement representing the stand taken by the involved schools. This statement include five basic points, that any tuition increase would prevent a large number of students from returning to their schools and would discourage an undetermined number of prospective students from applying.

(Continued on page 3)

Anti-War Group Meets In C-C., Plans Action

By IRWIN LEFMAN
MDC Staff

Five major proposals were presented at the Connecticut Valley Authority Anti-War Conference (CONVAC) held in the Campus Center Saturday.

Speakers included representatives from UMass and Mount Holyoke, workers from Springfield and an unidentified union leader.

The major groups involved in CONVAC were: the Students Mobilization Committee, the Crusade Against Hunger (and oppression of Blacks and other minorities), the People's Peace Treaty, Gay Liberation and a feminist movement group.

The five proposals were:

—To demonstrate on March 13th in the form of a veteran's march to the gates of Westover Air Force Base, sponsored by the UMass chapter of Veterans for Peace.

—To celebrate G.I. Solidarity Day March 16th.

—To support and build action on April 21st for anti-draft demonstration at the Springfield Induction center.

—To rally on April 22nd in a local city for work to gain sponsors from area communities and trade unions.

—To rally for 5 days beginning May 5th in Connecticut Valley colleges and schools to commemorate the dead at Kent and Jackson State.

It was also noted that on April 24th the National Peace Coalition has planned a national demonstration in Washington D.C. and San Francisco.

The Peoples' Peace Treaty pointed out that "Americans pledge to end imposition for Thieu-Ky-Khiem on the people of South Vietnam in order to insure their right to self determination and so that all political prisoners can be freed."

The Crusade to End Hunger and War demanded that the "U.S. provide adequate paying jobs or a guaranteed annual income of $6500.00 per year for a family of four.

Tom Bias of the YSA, speaking at the CONVAC held Saturday.

"Stopping political trials and ordering the release of all political prisoners," was another point brought up.

Other demands were to stop "white racist domination of public education," to approve home rule for the people of Washington D.C. and the right of the poor of the nation to organize themselves and bargain collectively for decent pay and working conditions.

"An immediate withdrawal from Southeast Asia, and an immediate end to all forms of repression against poor people" was also called for by the group.

A Puerto Rican speaker mentioned the fact that he thought it ironical that the Blacks, Puerto Ricans, and Indians are clearly the minority in this country, "but yet are the majority to die in Vietnam."

He mentioned that he tried to work within the system to try to get from the bottom up. He said that it was a fantasy to think that if you are a Puerto Rican or Black, "you can become mayor of Springfield."

This speaker, who represented the Peoples Peace Treaty, made an appeal to UMass. He said, "You are the future leaders, I'll need your help."

Several people from the audience, speaking at the microphone, said that UMass is the most uninvolved University as far as getting demonstrations going.

The audience's main objection seemed to arise from the fact that a major meeting was being held at Mt. Holyoke College. The audience felt that this meeting was not a true representation of the Connecticut Valley Anti-War Conference.

After the vote got underway, Gay Liberation and womens' contingency proposals were accepted as "friendly ammendments." It was felt that if Womens' Lib and the feminist movement partake in the anti-war activities, it would draw more people to Washington, and maybe even the oppressed working class.

The final tally revealed that the Student Mobilization committee proposal was carried as well as the Peoples Peace Treaty which included the "Seven Days in May," and endorsement to the Crusade against Hunger and War.

The group as a whole was reluctant to having militant action during the "Seven Days in May." Agreement was reached among all concerned over action related to workers and the unions.

Two Students Win In Town Elections

What could happen when Amherst and Cambridge, with their large student populations, began registering 19-year-old voters provided much opportunity to speculate by political commentators throughout the state. The results are in, and the answer is nothing much.

Two students were elected Town Meeting members, last week, out of a total of 264. For the most part, young voters greeted town elections on Feb. 16 with a relaxed yawn.

Precinct 7, which includes many young residents at 50 Meadow Street and Puffton Village, serves as an example of the excitement with which young voters greeted the election. At 50 Meadow Street, there are 71 registered voters. Five of them made it to the polls last week. Out of 107 registered voters at Puffton Village, 13 showed up. Townwide, slightly more than 40 percent of those eligible to vote did so.

In Precinct 5, which includes Colonial Village, Rolling Green and part of Main Street, 209 new voters have been registered since June. (This total includes a number of residents of one-family houses, as well as apartment dwellers) Of the 209, only 62 voted, slightly less than 25 percent.

Rumors to the contrary, local students who were eligible to register and vote under guidelines set down by the state Attorney General were repeatedly urged to do so by town officials. Reports before the election that prospective voters were being turned away by Town Clerk Ester Dimoch were not true.

The two students who gained election to Town Meeting are a study in contrasts. Michael Cowles, 20 years old, is a lifelong resident of Amherst.

In Precinct 5, new Town Meeting member Robert Weiner is twenty-three years old. He is finishing his master's thesis in American political history. Weiner moved to Amherst from Fair Lawn, N.J. two years ago, and plans to make his home here. He is an associate member of the Amherst Town Democratic Committee and chairman of the Hampshire County New Voters Committee.

Student Pleads Guilty On Bomb Threat Charge

A UMass student pleaded guilty to a charge of making a false bomb report on December 7th, 1970 in Hampshire County Superior Court Friday and received an eight day jail sentence.

Dennis Tiro, 21, is a junior at UMass.

Tiro appeared before Judge Henry H. Chmielinski Jr. who ordered that the sentence be served during his spring vacation in the Hampshire County House of Correction.

The defendant had been found probably guilty in a Northampton District Court on Jan. 13 in connection with making a bomb threat that resulted in scores of girls being forced from their residences in sub-freezing temperatures while university police searched the buildings.

Normally a conviction on this charge carries a one year jail sentence according to the statute but Tiro's excellent record was considered by the judge, who characterized the hoax as a hare brained idea.

Tiro, whose home is on Essex Street in Chelsea, told the court he had been in Ware and later to an on-campus fraternity party with friends where he had consumed a large quantity of beer.

Returning to John Adams Dormitory where he lives he drank some more and then made the telephone threat that there was a bomb set to go off.

During the fall semester there were over a 100 false bomb scares received by the telephone operators in Whitmore Hall, the campus administration building, a UMass police official said.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

The other odor
Even bathing every day can't stop it.

Feminine odor starts internally, and no amount of bathing can remove it. Soap and water simply can't reach the area where the odor starts.

That's the reason you need Norforms®... the second deodorant." These tiny internal suppositories kill germs—stop odor effectively yet safely. In fact, gentle, doctor-tested Norforms are so safe and easy to use, you can use them as often as necessary.

No bath or shower can give you Norforms' protection. Get Norforms, and you'll feel secure and odorfree for hours.

The second deodorant.

FREE NORFORMS MINI-PACK plus informative booklet! Write: Norwich-Eaton Pharmacal Co. (Dept. CN-B, Norwich, N.Y. 13815. (Enclose 25¢ for mailing, handling.)

Name_____
Street_____
City_____
State_____Zip_____
Don't forget your zip code.

21

Area Students Work Or "Que Tal, Amigos"

Every Tuesday a group of people from the Amherst area travel to Hartford under the auspices of the Media Center at the University of Massachusetts, School of Education. There, in the studios of Channel 24 of the Public Broadcasting Service, they present the weekly television program, "Que Tal, Amigos?" ("What's Happening, Friends?") which made its debut on February 9 at 7 p.m. As a counterpart of the popular Spanish radio program of the same name carried daily on WFCR-FM, the televised version aims to bring information and entertainment to the large Spanish-speaking communities of Central and Southern New England.

The weekly half-hour show offers a varied fare of news, comment, interviews, entertainment, and public service announcements of interest to the Spanish-speaking population. Its hosts, Julio Torres, Sonia Vivas[illegible] are familiar figures to the Spanish-speaking people in the Pioneer Valley, thanks to the success of the daily radio version of "Que Tal, Amigos?", which they have been hosting for the past year. Julio, a native Puerto Rican and a veteran in the field of broadcasting, has a first-hand knowledge of the critical need for communication with the large segment of our society whose mother tongue is Spanish.

"Audience reaction to our first two shows has been tremendous," Julio explains. "We knew the need was there, but the response has been even greater than we had expected." The response from Florencio O. Morales, the Special Project Coordinator of Hartford's Concentrated Employment Program, seems to sum up the feelings of many of the viewers: "There are very few words one can find to describe the quality of the program you presented recently in the Spanish Language. In that case, may I say that the program was excellent. The foresight shown in the selection of such talented personalities as Mr. Julio Torres and Miss Sonia Vivas to be in charge of the program is a great recognition to the values of the Puerto Rican people. The whole Spanish American populace rejoices with the arrival of a program in the Spanish language which not only has high quality, it also has prime time and quantity."

Juan Caban who directs the show and who is a Media Center faculty member, has worked closely with Julio in producing the television version. Juan points out that expanding "Que Tal, Amigos?" from radio to Television provides a greater cultural service to the Pioneer Valley Spanish speaking community which has been sorely neglected in the area of television.

For addition to its primary function as a vehicle of communication for those in the area who speak Spanish, the program serves a secondary, yet vital, purpose. In keeping with the aims of the Media Center an effort is being made to use the production aspect of the program as a teaching forum for developing skills and techniques in the media among students.

Thus, an undergraduate from Smith College is serving as the assistant to the producer, a task for which she is receiving credit under the aegis of an Independent Study program set up by the Media Center at the University of Massachusetts, School of Education. In additon, plans call for working with Spanish-speaking students from Springfield Prep, a street accdemy, on the possibility of forming a student film crew to gather footage in Springfield for use on the show. It is hoped that with the extension and proliferation of such arrangements, the Media Center will be able to capitalize on its technical capabilities in order to offer students first-hand experience in production techniques.

FREE STORE

— the idea is you bring stuff you don't want or need anymore, such as
CLOTHES, APPLIANCES, FOOD or RECORDS
Recycle stuff you don't need and take the stuff you do need.

Located in the FREE UNIVERSITY CENTER

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Oil-Vietnam Link Seen; Fulbright Investigating

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is finding it difficult to obtain from the State Department details of South Vietnamese plans to grant potentially lucrative offshore oil concessions to American firms.

As a result, committee sources reported yesterday, chairman J.W. Fulbright, D—Ark., has sent a second letter to the State Department after he found an initial reply unsatisfactory.

The committee's initial inquiry a month ago came after it received the first of what now totals about 8,600 letters, generated by a California-based Anti-war group called Another Mother for Peace.

They are asking Fulbright to hold hearings on alleged connections between the continuing U.S. presence in Vietnam and the plans for oil exploration.

In the past year, oil-drilling fever has swept through Southeast Asia, especially in the shallow waters such as the Straits of Malacca between Indonesia and Malaysia and Singapore. Discoveries have been made in Indonesia waters, including the Java Sea and near Sumatra, and some geologists believe the vast continental shelf of the area holds within it a potential as great as the oil-rich Middle East.

Although no oil has yet been found off Vietnam U.S. firms have expressed an interest in bidding on leases expected to be offered shortly by the Saigon government under a law promulgated by President Nguyen Van Thieu last Dec. 1.

Particular interest is reported in the areas of the Gulf of Siam and around the Con Son penalisle.

But the Foreign Relations Committee's effort to find out about U.S. leases, and the government's role, produced a highly technical State Department response.

When the committee asked State for details of the oil exploration areas established by the South Vietnamese government, it received a reply that what had been established were marine survey areas. The requested details were not supplied, committee aides said.

"Are the potentially rich oil leases off the coast of South Vietnam responsible for the Nixon administration's failure to get our sons out of Vietnam?" asked Another Mother for Peace, which claims to have 205,000 members and to be growing at 10,000 a month.

So far, its campaign has fallen far short of its announced goal of generating one million letters to Fulbright by March 1. No hearings are scheduled. And neither the committee nor the group has come up with any definite connection between the search for oil and U.S. Vietnam policy.

Spfld. Man To Meet With N. Viets In Paris

Mr. Rudolph Praetze, a Springfield businessman and head of the Springfield Bail Committee, is leaving for Paris on March 3 with a group of about 165 other Americans from all parts of the country for informal discussions with members of the Vietnam negotiating teams. The trip is being arranged by the American Friends Service Committee, Clergy and Layman Concerned about Vietnam, and the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Its purpose is to help stimulate renewed American interest and effort into negotiation of the Indochinese conflict by enabling an ordinary group of American citizens to talk at first hand with the negotiators, get a sense of their problems and the atmosphere within which they are working, and bring back their impressions to their own communities. Mr. Praetze, in particular, will be available for talks, conferences, and discussions in the Pioneer Valley area following his return from Paris on March 10.

As representative of this area in the group, Mr. Praetze has suggested that he would particularly like to try to get answers for questions which residents of the area may have. Those who do are urged to phone them immediately to the United Christian Foundation at the University of Massachusetts at this number: 545-2661. If you would like to have Mr. Paetze speak to your group about his experiences in Paris, the UCF will have his schedule available by March 12 and will be able to help you make a suitable date.

Boston Doves Withhold Taxes From Government

BOSTON-About 75 Bostonians demonstrated their opposition to the Indochina war this week by turning over their Federal telephone taxes to the farm workers union rather than the Government.

The group, which represents more than 300 people in the city who withheld excise or income taxes from the Government, is part of a growing national movement that is planning a series of tax demonstrations between now and the April 15 deadline for filing 1970 tax forms.

The War Tax Resistance, which coordinates the efforts of tax resistance groups in Boston with those of similar organizations in 174 other cities in the country, reports an increase in such activity.

According to its New York headquarters, tax resisters have decided "we don't have to wait for the national Government to change priorities, we're going to do it ourselves by turning over tax money to community-based organizations."

Plans are under way in at least seven major cities, including Boston and New York, to turn over 1970 income taxes withheld from the Government to community projects. Demonstrations are planned at regional Internal Revenue Service centers on April 15, at which completed income tax forms that list taxes owed as a deduction for "community development" will be turned in to the Federal officials.

I.R.S. officials at the regional office here dismiss the protesters as "an annoyance more than anything else," and say that the service does not keep records on such protestors but treats their activities as those of any other tax deliquent.

Without such figures, however, the spokesman was able to say that the number of tax resisters "is up slightly this year."

According to those who participated in this week's tax demonstration here, the two local tax resistance organizations have about 300 members-up from about 100 ayear ago.

One group, the Roxbury War Tax Scholarship Award Fund, turns its money over to a black-owned bank for community loans and ghetto education programs and now has over $25,000 in refused taxes on deposit. The organization was begun in 1967 to refuse the telephone excise tax, which was increased that year from 3 per cent to 10 per cent for the stated purpose of providing additional funds for Vietnam war. Most of its members now also withhold income taxes.

In the demonstration here, on Thursday, the protestors marched to the main telephone office where they paid their bills-minus the excise tax-and then turned over the equivalent of the taxes to representatives of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, the union headed by Cesar Chavez.

As in the case of most tax resisters, the taxes are eventually paid but, as one member put it, "only after we have forced the Government to make extra efforts to collect it and have made it clear that to collect the tax they will have to withdraw it from a bank account which being used to help the urban ghetto."

To date, according to both the resisters and the I.R.S., no one has been prosecuted for withholding either tax. Prosecutions have been limited to those who make what the Government calls fraudulent deductions.

"The reason we are gaining numbers," said Mrs. Susan Webster, who helped organize the Roxbury group here in 1967, "is that, in this kind of direct action, people can register their disapproval by withholding for a time the means the Government has to conduct this war."

A number of national organizations have endorsed the idea-most recently the Southern Christian Leadership Conference-and are supporting this year's withholding efforts.

The idea has attracted other support from opponents to the war. During the Harvard University teach-in last week, Tom Wicker, a columnist for The New York Times, suggested refusal to pay taxes this year as a tactic of those protesting the war.

Mr. Wicker's suggestion came as public figures began a national effort to direct antiwar sentiment into public political pressure that could effectively change the direction of the Federal Government in foreign and domestic affairs.

Tuition Pondered By Conference

—Tax Revenues derived from college graduates proportionately return more income to the state than non-graduates.

—Easy access to the public higher education provides the state with a larger pool of skilled and professional technicians.

—Higher education has traditionally been a means by which disadvantaged socio-economic groups have been able to improve their social mobility.

—Furthermore, education is a democratic society is a necessity. The ability to obtain this education should be guaranteed by any responsible democratic government.

The statement went on to say that the legislature would thus be acting irresponsibly if it approved a tuition increase which would in the end be detrimental to the commonwealth. The conclusion arrived at was that there should be no tuition increase at state schools. The statement also encouraged the legislature to investigate the possibility of the elimination of all tuition fees.

In addition to issuing the statement, the conference suggested that the student governments urge their respective student bodies and parents of the students to contact their representatives and senators and voice their opinions on the increase. A campaign with the mass media was also suggested to inform the general public about the issue.

There are two bills which will go before the legislature concerning a tuition raise at state schools. Senator David H. Locke's Senate Bill 454 would establish tuition at a minimum of $600 per year and Representative Charles Long's House Bill 2598 would establish tuition at the per student cost of the individual state institutions of higher education and would charge each student on ability to pay basis. If either of these bills were to be passed, the tuition raise would most likely go into effect for the fall semester of next year.

Such a tuition raise would have varied effects, according to the conference. Students would fall into an already tight job market in order to remain in school. Welfare rolls might also increase and the Federal government would be compelled to pick up the responsibility of higher education. In the opinion of the conference, this would be undesireable.

In the end, it was the general consensus of the participating members of the conference that the legislature has the responsibility of producing higher education at a minimum cost and, if at all possible, with no tuition.

MDC
Writers Meeting
6:30 Tonite
SU 407

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Exploration Team For Summer Forming

A student at the University of North Carolina is forming an exploration team composed of eight to twelve college men and women who will travel in North Africa during the 1971 summer. The team, to be called the University Experiment in Foreign Exploration will live and travel under relatively simple conditions using conventional means, such as camping, food making, etc.

The students will be concerned with discovering a new land, its people, and its customs and utilizing their knowledge to initiate creative and educational experiences. If you are seriously interested, write to Mr. John Resnick, University of North Carolina, Director Unefex Team, 102 Stacy, Chapel Hill, N.C.

At Northampton Volkswagen

70	Pontiac, Yellow	2695 00
69	Plymouth Wagon, Blue	1695 00
68	Pontiac Lemans, White	1595 00
68	Opel Wagon, Blue	1695 00
68	Ford Mustang, Blue	1795 00
68	Austin Healey, Yellow	1695 00
68	Buick Skylark, Blue	1595 00
68	Renault, White	1695 00
68	Chevy Belaire, Blue	1795 00
68	Ford T-Bird, White	2995 00
67	Fiat 850, Red	595 00
67	Ford Wagon, White	1895 00
67	Ford Wagon, Blue	1795 00
66	Ford T-Bird, Blue	895 00
66	Chrysler, Green	995 00
65	Pontiac Grand Priz, Green	795 00
65	Ford Galaxie, Red	1095 00
65	Ford LTD, White	795 00
64	Dodge Dart, Black	595 00
64	Ford Falcon, Red	595 00
63	Mercury Comet, Maroon	595 00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From

Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
534-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5) Northampton
Open Eves till 9

In The Nation And The World

Sadat Makes Statement On Mid-East Peace

(AP)—Israel's Cabinet met Sunday to discuss the latest Middle East peace moves, and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat claimed that his diplomatic moves to regain occupied Arab soil has placed the Israelis on the defensive for the first time.

Addressing the Palestine National Council of guerrilla leaders in Cairo, Sadat declared that his strategy was aimed at "pinning the enemy in a corner" and forcing Israel to expose its "aggressive and expansionist intentions."

Cairo's expressed willingness to reach a peaceful settlement would win universal sympathy for the Arabs should they be forced to resort to military measures to try to regain their lost lands, Sadat asserted.

Israeli officials are reported studying several proposed maps involving partial withdrawal from territory won from the Arabs in the 1967 war, but the leaders have said they would never return to the pre-war borders.

Sadat told the commando chiefs that even though Egypt hoped that it's diplomatic moves would prove successful, it was making military preparations, if diplomatic means failed.

"We want to be at the peak of military readiness, if the only alternative open to us is that of armed combat," the Egyptian president asserted.

"But first we must corner the enemy so that he has to make plain to the whole world that he rejects withdrawal from the occupied lands and consequently rejects peace."

Sadat said Egypt attached two conditions to a peaceful settlement: complete Israeli withdrawal from territory captured in 1967, and restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people as defined by U.N. resolutions.

He told the council Egypt had rejected a separate peace with Israel.

"There is no such thing as an Egyptian solution or a Palestinian, Jordanian or Syrian solution," he said. "There is only an Arab solution."

Sadat asserted that, even though Egypt had accepted the U.N. resolution of November 1967, which recognized Israel's right to exist, the Palestinians had every right to reject it since it did not satisfy their aspiration to "liberate" their homeland.

Palestinian Guerrillas Reject Political Peace

(AP)-Guerrilla leaders gathered to consider a plan by their chief, Yasir Arafat, which calls for rejection of any political settlement of the Middle East crisis.

The leadership of the Palestinian Liberation Organization rejected Saturday proposals for creation of a new state of Palestine. It said Palestinians must press for "complete liberation of their homeland," or what is now Israel.

Arafat's plan reportedly recommends that the Palestine Liberation organization be empowered to carry out the "armed struggle to liberate the entire Palestinian lands," including Israel.

The plan also calls for merging all guerrilla organizations under the PLO command.

Semi-official paper Al Ahram said Sadat had received a message from Jordan's King Hussein on the eve of the Palestine National Congress.

Al Ahram said the message was delivered in response to a note Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad sent to Jordan on Saturday. It apparently endorsed a chill in relations between Egypt and Jordan that had culminated in Hussein's canceling a visit to Cairo.

In London, the newspaper Observer quoted Hussein as saying he is ready to sign a peace treaty with Israel, provided the Israelis withdraw from all occupied Arab territories.

The King gave his terms in an interview with the Amman correspondent of the paper, Robert Stephens.

Hussein also told Stephens he was prepared to recognize Israel and would accept a completely independent Palestinian state on the West Bank of Jordan.

Hussein was quoted as saying his views on signing a treaty with Israel were "identical with that of the United Arab Republic," Egypt's official name.

"But," he added, "we are not interested in the form, we are interested in the substance."

Envoys from Syria and Sudan arrived in Cairo over the weekend for consultations with Egyptian officials over differences surrounding Middle East peacemaking efforts.

Their arrival came in the wake of a statement Libyan strongman Muammar Kadafi was quoted as making in an interview in Tripoli. Kadafi reportedly declared that the Arab-Israeli conflict was "past the stage of any peaceful solution."

Women Denied Vote In Liechtenstein

VADUZ, Liechtonstein (AP) The men of little Liechtenstein kept up the barriers against women's lib yesterday, deciding by a mere 80 ballots not to give women the vote.

In a nationwide referendum the male burghers of the world's smallest hereditary monarchy decided 1,897 to 1,817 against female suffrage.

Only four nations-Jordan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Yemen-still do not grant women the vote.

Groups of jeering young women demonstrated in the streets of Vaduz and elsewhere after the result. Banners bore the slogans: "We are ashamed of Liechtenstein," "What's happened to your manhood?" and "Do your own dirty work."

On Feb. 7 opposition to votes for women finally crumbled in neighboring Switzerland when men there voted by a substantial majority to give women a say in national affairs.

Liechtenstein-population 21,300-and sandwiched in a narrow valley between Austria and Switzerland, has recently been trying to get the world to take it more seriously.

It has always enjoyed a somewhat Puritan image as a pocket-sized duchy that prospers from such diverse activities as a large false tooth factory, endless series of colorful postage stamps and little brass name plates on dingy doors concealing the one-room tax havens of numerous worldwide enterprises.

"This has made us the top fools in Europe," said one official after the vote was announced. But a leading promoter of the country's thriving tourist industry took a longer-range view. "People expect us to be different," he said. "This vote might even improve business."

About 70 per cent of the eligible 5,000 male voters turned out for the balloting. Although both political parties recommended a vote in favor, the men were probably conscious of one important factor-they are outnumbered by women in Liechtenstein.

Enemy Massing Troops In Laos

KHE SANH, (AP)-Lt. Gen. James W. Sutherland said yesterday the North Vietnamese appear to be marshalling all their forces to thwart the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese incursion into Laos.

The commander of American troops supporting the South Vietnamese offensive also said the drive into Laos had proceeded slower than intended but had been successful in blocking movement of enemy supplies.

"This is it," Sutherland said "The enemy has chosen to react with everything he's got left so it appears we'll have to fight him right here."

Sutherland's assessment came at the end of the third week of the drive into Laos. He rated the operation "very successful" overall despite the heavy North Vietnamese resistance.

Speaking after one of his daily meetings with top allied generals, Sutherland commented on the stiffened North Vietnamese stand against South Vietnamese bases near the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

"It's a very tough area, but we're hanging in there and providing all the air support the Vietnamese require," said Clay, who lost two F4 Phantom fighter-bombers over Laos last Thursday.

"The jungle canopy is very heavy and the North Vietnamese are tough to find. You usually find them after you've shot at them not before."

Clay said the North Vietnamese downed one of the Phantoms by hitting the pilot with "a lucky shot" from a .50 calibre machine gun and damaged the other with 37mm antiaircraft fire.

Brig. Gen. James G. Hill, commander of the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, said the weather posed the biggest problem for the men, who comprise most of the U.S. support forces.

Another problem was the delay in opening Highway 9 inside Laos to provide an alternate to air supply of transporting supplies to the South Vietnamese invasion force, officials said.

So far, American helicopters have had to do all the resupplying, and U.S. sources said close to 100 have been hit and damaged-including 35 officially announced as totally destroyed. The others have been recovered and brought back to Vietnam, but even many of these cannot be repaired.

Kinetics II

Is Coming

Expedition To Assault S. West Face Of Everest

LAMOSANGHU, Nepal (AP)-A team of 30 mountaineers from 12 countries began Sunday a 200-mile march that they hope will take them to the top of Mt. Everest the world's highest peak-in 11 weeks.

The expedition easily completed the first leg of its long journey-a two-hour, 50-mile drive down the Communist Chinese-built Nepal-Tibetan Highway from Katmandu, the capital, to this small village whose name means long bridge.

Waving to well-wishers, including U.S. Ambassador Carol C. Laise, the mountaineers crossed the village's 90-foot suspension bridge and headed toward the summit of the 29,028-foot Everest.

"This is an experiment in human relations, understanding and cooperation," said Norman Dyhrenfurth, the 52-year-old Swiss-American leader of the expedition.

He expressed confidence the group would reach the summit from the previously unconquered southwest face route-a direct, virtually vertical path endangered by continuous avalanches and rock falls.

"We will come back after our work is finished," said Dyhrenfurth who led the successful 1963 American expedition that conquered Everest through the slightly less hazardous west ridge route. That route also will be attempted again by some members of the international expedition.

From Lamosanghu's altitude of 5,000 feet the expedition's members planned to hike in two weeks to the village of Pheriche, at 14,000 feet, where they will spend six days acclimatizing themselves to the heights of the Himalayas.

Then they will make a two-day trek to their base camp, which is being pitched near the Kumbhu Glacier, at an altitude of 17,500 feet.

The final assault up the slopes of Everest is to begin April 12 and end on or about May 21-when the British Broadcasting Corp. plans to film the actual conquest, making a 90-minute special documentary and a 12-minute news film.

Dyhrenfurth said there are "two old men in this year's expedition with no ambition to reach the top-myself and my deputy, Lt. Col. Jimmy Roberts."

Roberts is 54 and a resident of Katmandu. He is a retired British military officer who has worked closely with the Sherpas, the sturdy Himalayan guides without whom an expedition would be impossible.

The average age of members of the international expedition is 33. Japan's Reizo Ito is the youngest at 24 and Roberts is the eldest. There are 10 Britons and six Americans in the team. Austria, Switzerland, Norway, Nepal and Japan are represented by two members each, and India, Italy, France, Poland, Australia and West Germany one each. The Swiss are Michael and Yvette Vaucher, both 34, of Geneva. Mrs. Vaucher hopes to become the first of her sex to reach the summit. She already has conquered Switzerland's precipitous Matterhorn.

Incidents Cause UNH Suspension

DURHAM, N.H. (AP)-The University of New Hampshire has announced the suspension of two unidentified black students on campus.

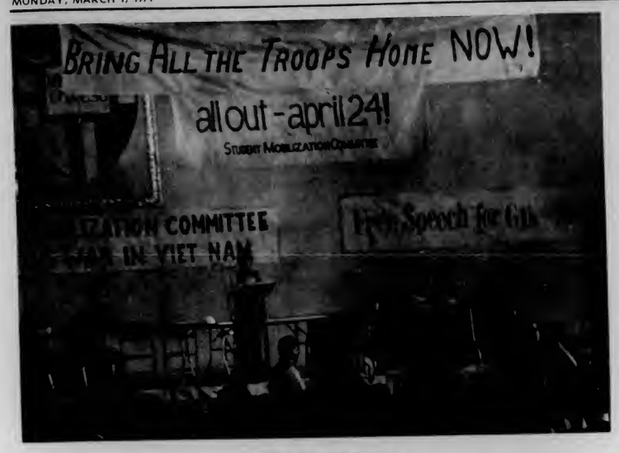
President John McConnell said the two students received written warnings as the result of separate incidents during last semester.

He said the suspensions were on the basis that the individuals' continued presence in class or on campus might endanger their own rights and well-being or that of others in the university community.

Three UNH black students were arrested in their Dover apartments Thursday following an incident Tuesday over an argument concerning a car stuck in a snowbank.

Charged with aggravated assault were John Trice, 25, of Chicago, Ill., Sterling Stuart, 23, of Houston, Tex., and Joseph Mitchell, 22, of Markham, Ill. They were released in $500 bail each to face a preliminary hearing in Durham District Court next Friday.

March 1 & 2
Southwest Cinema



Admission 50¢
Sponsored by
Southwest Patriots

Taming of the Shrew

with Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton

Hampden Commons

Showings 7:15 & 9:30

500 attend last week's Teach-In.

Anti-War Teach-In Held At Mt. Holoke

By NICK SAAKVITNE
MDC Staff

An anti-war teach-in was conducted by the End the War Now Committee last Thursday night at Mt. Holyoke College. More than Five hundred people came to hear speakers from different segments of the anti-war movement.

The teach-in started at nine and lasted until nearly three in the morning. It was Mt. Holyoke's first major reaction to the gradual escalation of the war that is reawakening the anti-war sentiment of the nation.

Three Mt. Holyoke faculty members opened up the evening by reading sections from Nixon's State of the Union Address, and contrasting the President's statements with quotes from the New York Times and other news sources.

Speakers from the Committee of Liason, the American Friend's Service Committee, and the UMass Student Mobilization Committee, and the Young Socialist Alliance reported on the situation in Laos and Vietnam, and on anti-war activities in the US. One of the most effective talks was given by Fred Bramfman, a reporter who was expelled from Laos because of his articles in the Boston Globe which described what is happening in Laos. He urged students to work actively to end the war.

Allard K. Lowensteen, the former congressman from Long Island, tried to convince students to use their large 18 year old vote to push for peace. As other speakers called for action, however, it became obvious that few people felt that the students should either wait until 1972, or put their faith in peace candidates as they have before.

April 24 was spoken for as a date for people to build and work around. The National Peace Action Coalition, uniting many student, labor, and third world groups working to end the war now, has set April 24 as the date for massive demonstrations in Washington and San Francisco.

Several films were planned for the evening, but because of the time factor only one was shown. This portrayed some of the effects of the murderous bombing of Vietnam on the people and countryside.

One of the most interesting aspects of the teach-in was the enormous faculty support and participation in it. The President of Mt. Holyoke, David B. Truman wrote a letter to the school paper, Choragos, apologizing for not attending.

Members of the SMC said that the fact that Mount Holyoke, with only about two thousand students could turn out over five hundred for a teach-in, while far fewer students at UMass come to anti-war meetings, only shows that students do not see the effects of their demonstrations and have allowed themselves to become demoralized.

The need for students to work to mobilize against the war was emphasized at the teach-in and at last week's National Student Anti-war Conference, it was noted.

Indochina War Tonight On WMUA Focus

Tonight at 10 p.m., WMUA's "Focus" shifts attention back toward the Indochina War, recently expanded by an invasion of South Vietnamese troops into Laos.

One part of the 60-minute program, taped this morning, will offer an interview by moderator Ken Mosakowski with members of UMass Veterans for Peace, a newly-formed group of veterans who are organizing action against the Indochina War.

Another segment of the program will feature excerpts from a speech delivered by Senator George McGovern (D-South Dakota) at North High School in Framingham, Mass., Saturday evening. Senator McGovern for many years opposed to American military involvement in Southeast Asia, is the only announced candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1972. In addition to the war, the senator's comments in Framingham covered a wide range of issues, both domestic and international.

Interested persons are invited to tune in on "Focus" tonight at 91.1 FM.

Financial Aid Applications Due Today

Symposium To Be At Northwestern

Thomas O. Wilkinson, Head of the Sociology Department at UMass will participate in a symposium at Northwestern University the week end of March 23-25. The meeting is sponsored by the Center for the Interdisciplinary Study of Science and Technology of the University.

The theme of the symposium will be the social effects of industrialization, and the participants will include men from different disciplines, in order to broaden the knowledge of specialists in different fields. The meeting will include the reading of papers, open discussions, and small informal seminar groups.

POETRY FICTION
ART spectrum
PHOTOGRAPHY

SPECTRUM is interested in your creative work. Drop by the SPECTRUM office and drop it off. We are now located in the old R.S.O. office in the Student Union, address is:

SPECTRUM
R.S.O. 102
Campus Center
UMass

Consumer Protection Urged By Committee

AP—Modern Americans may be too smart to buy the Brooklyn Bridge, but they still get bilked of $70 billion or more every year.

In thousands of cases, too, the fleecing of the American consumer is within the terms-if not the spirit-of existing law, a survey by the Lexington-based Council of State Governments claims.

Seventeen states have no consumer protection laws, the council said. Thirty-three others do have such laws, but only about half of them, according to the survey, are "modern and comprehensive" with sufficient enforcement powers to make them work. The survey was made by H. Clyde Reeves, a professor at the University of Alabama, for the council, which insists consumer protection must operate on a state and local level to be effective. The council, a joint agency of all state governments that does research on state programs and problems, concluded that too few states have adopted all provisions of the Federal Trade Commission's model state law.

There are hundreds of shadey deals that are protected, or at least not prohibited by law, Reeves found in his study. Perhaps the most common is the "bait and switch."

A Massachusetts couple visits a furniture store, eager to see the advertised "15-piece kitchen set for only $99.," but they are disappointed when it turns out to be a shoddy table, four chairs and 10 dinner plates.

The salesman on duty then offers the couple a kitchen set of better, though considerably higher priced, quality. He also offers a $20 discount for a quick sale.

The couple accepts, adding to the list of victims who have taken the advertised bait and then be switched to something else in their purchase.

Then there are the schools that sell courses in how to become an airline stewardess, without telling the applicant she may be too short or too tall to ever qualify for employment.

Or discounts on items where the price was first marked up, then cut in about the same amount so that the discount price is about the same as the original one.

The council concedes the federal government has made some progress in consumer protection.

"By one count," 413 units in 39 federal agencies administer 938 programs that protect or advance consumer interest, Reeves wrote.

However, the council contends, the most effective protection must come from state and local governments-at the level where the consumer lives, works and buys-in cooperation with the federal government.

In practice, the average consumer has little or no knowledge of where to seek help in the federal government's maze of bureaus.

However, Reeves found that as of last year only 33 states had adopted "specific statutes aimed at protecting the consumer from unethical and fraudulent practices or at assisting him through education."

What can be done to protect the consumer and still not jeopardize the ethical businessman and salesman. These are some of the council's suggestions:

Simplify the procedure for fraud suits by eliminating the need to prove intent to defraud. Legislation also would be enacted to deter fraud in give-aways.

Place upon local officials the duty of apprehending and prosecuting salesmen operating illegally, putting the cure where the ailment is.

Enable class actions; that is, allow consumers to join together to sue fraudulent businesses; combining their costs, rather than forcing them to sue individually. Only six states now allow class action suits.

The Word Is Kinetics II

AIR FORCE R.O.T.C.
2 Year Program
Apply Dickinson Hall
Phone 5-2437 5-2451
Do It NOW!

THE AMHERST COLLEGE MASQUERS

SHAKESPEARE'S RICHARD II

KIRBY THEATER, AMHERST COLLEGE
MARCH 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, 14, 15. 8:30 P.M.
All seats reserved $2.00. For reservations phone (Amherst) 542-2278 or visit box office 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Bob Scheier, Janet Hughes, Ann Gurnett
SPORTS — Dan Kamat
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
PHOTO — Gib Fullerton, Al Jagoda, Tom Derderian, Toni Teixeira
ART — Jim Gold
LAYOUT

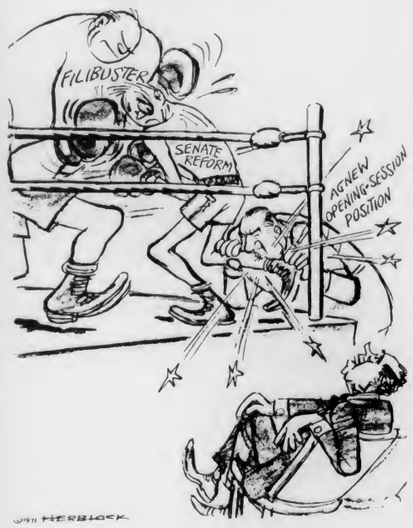
Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Floating Structures

The School of Education Council's decision to conditionally abolish all courses and institute a complete modular credit structure seems to be more an attempt to be innovative than better.

As reported in Friday's COLLEGIAN, the School of Ed is seeking thousands of dollars to institute a modular credit program in order to provide "flexible scheduling" individualized learning and eliminate irrelevant lectures so as to give a student only what he or she feels necessary.



It strikes us that Dwight Allen thinks that structures are what inhibit or spurn intellectual growth and optimum learning. The truth, however, would seem to lie somewhere closer to how an individual responds to his structured environment. What would appear to be necessary for non "irrelevant" course and lectures is better information and resources. What a $53,000 realignment of the School of Ed's course structure will add to the knowledge of how to train or provide good teachers is not immediately apparent.

Dwight Allen has long built the School's national reputation and for just as long has been attracting huge sums of money. All would seem to be well with the world of education, except that nobody seems to know where it will all end.

Already the innovative student in the School of Ed. can unstructure his whole semester through independent study and modular credits. If students can become better at what they want to become in this manner, fine. But, nobody has ever said that this is the best way to learn. There is no real measure of how successful one structuring is over another. There is some disagreement over whether the college student can benefit in an all modular system.

What glares through all the rhetoric of change at the School of Ed is that U Mass will receive money for doing something innovative. We hope that all those involved in shaping the School of Ed's future will show more interest in the content and worth of programs, rather than just building new unstructured structures in the sky.

"You Can See I'm In Your Corner"

© 1971 HERBLOCK

David Williams

Snips And Snarls

I must be some sort of outcast. But I enjoy it. In an age when it's fashionable to be cynical and to go walking around with a sour expression doesn't set one apart from the howling masses anymore, I've managed to keep intact almost all of my childhood fantasies.

This may sound a bit naive, but I assure you, I am not naive nor stupid, but rather, more of a skeptic than I have a right to be. A quick glance shows my logic to be faulty and one may think that serious doubts can be raised as to my sanity. But a deeper look shows what I mean.

My skepticism stems from two things: the state of the world today, which, as we all know, we can do nothing about but enjoy, and my more than likely snobbish belief that I don't belong in this age, but in a more advanturous one.

It's my own private curse to have been born in a year when people decided it was time to get serious about things. Trouble was brewing in China, the Berlin air-lift was still fresh in people's memories, Korea was beginning to draw attention, and I came tumbling along, destine to read of the nonsense that the world has wrapped itself in and fervently wishing I were someplace else.

There's a particularly obnoxious line in "Easy Rider" when the mindless one turns to the stupid one and wants to know if he (the stupid one) had ever wanted to be anyone else. The mindless one then piously states that he had never felt like being anyone but himself.

That's a lot of crap.

As content as I am with myself, because I know I can do whatever I want, there has never been a day in my life that I didn't wish, at least for a second, that I was off doing something other that what I'm used to doing.

A slim young man dressed in a beige travel-stained summer suit stepped onto the platform from a train and put his suitcase down. All up and down the platform glistening blacks dressed in colorful jellabas bustled about like ants. The young man mopped his brow, thrust the handkerchief into his breast pocket, picked up his suitcase and eased his way through the throng to the dusty street.

He walked quickly through the hot sun to a bar on the corner of the wide main street. The man behind the bar welcomed him as the young man pushed open the swinging door and stepped into the dark coolness of the place. The two shook hands, each one looking into the other's face and finding what he was looking for. The man came from out behind the bar and putting his arm about the young man's shoulder, led him through a doorway into a small room which reeked of the pungent smell of hashish.

"Sit down," said the bar-man, "You look tired."

"I am," said the other. "It's good to be back though. How have you been?"

"'Bout the same. Not much has happened. Business been good. We missed you."

"Hmpph," the young man grunted, "In a pig's ass you did. Give me a hit off that thing, will you?"

Gus Szlosek

The Games People Play

With-it games for the hip college set:

1.) "WAR AND PEACE":

"War" side gets one set of obsolete dominoes, three authentic World War II propaganda films (no choice of side), fifty marchers (complete with construction helmets), stock in a hard-hat manufacturing company, a defense contract, and a golf ball autographed by Spiro Agnew.

"Peace" side gets reversible Peace/Revolution buttons, a dictionary of marching chants, a set of form letters asking parents for money, assorted pills (no choice of types), and fifty marchers (complete with pre-faded and pre-torn shirts from expensive New York shops).

RULES: Players shake dice to determine moves on game board. Each side has twenty marchers to begin. More are won if player lands on "fair weather" square; some are lost if it is "cold" or "rain". Object is to get to "Nowhere" and begin filling game baloon with hot air. Number of marchers at this point determines number of chances to score each marcher gets one turn at speaking. Points (in amounts of hot air) are awarded on basis of catch words and phrases drawn from the coffin of a former player in the "Vietnam Game".

Winner gets a prize of "news coverage".

Also included in set: One observer, to get sick of the entire game.

2.) "ECOLOGY":

Players are not required to do anything but talk. Points are awarded according to words and phrases used. Extra-point terms include "environmental crisis", "ecocatastrophe", and "tetraethyl lead". Also points for name-dropping. Players lose points if they can only think of old names like "Rachel Carson", and gain extra points for lesser-known names like "Garret DeBell".

For exceptional players: points may be awarded for "attending pollution lectures", "wearing ecology buttons", and "signing up for ecology work without actually working".

Players automatically lose when they must "face real issues".

Prerequisite: players must know almost nothing about ecology and pollution.

Also included in the set: "pollution victims;;, who are ignored, and are not allowed to win.

Winning: no one wins.

3.) "WRITE YOUR OWN LOVE STORY":

Players draw slips of paper with words written on them--these are cut from old women's magazines. Words are arranged in the order drawn.

Points are awarded on this basis:

Add 5 points for each character who is "young"; 5 more if they are "college students".

Add 5 points for each milk obscenity up to three; thereafter, subtract 5 points for each.

Add 20 points if one lead character is "rich", and the other "almost poor". Subtract 100 points if either character is in a social position your parents are afraid you'll marry into. Subtract 20 points if their parents "approve of marriage", unless the characters "don't get married".

Add 100 points if the heroine dies young. Add 200 points if she's as sick as Ali McGraw.

Add 20 points for each old lady who cries while reading your story. Add 100 points for each college student who cries while reading the story. (Unless they are crying because they can't stand to see such a waste of good paper). Add 100 points for each reviewer who can't stand the story.

Any player automatically wins if his story makes a dog throw up.

Winner, unfortunately, makes a lot of money.

OTHER GAMES ON TAP:

"Insult the midi-skirt" (Points are awarded for references to "army tents", "the Inquisition", "portable fallout shelters", and etc.)

"Write your own Collegian article" (In which players write about "controversial issues" (which are not really that controversial on a college campus), without having to do anything meaningful about them.)

AND, COMING SOON:

"Beat Spiro Agnew's I.Q."

"Beat Spiro Agnew's golf score".

-end-

Gus Szlosek

Moon Mythology

Re and his sun shine little now
Cheops and his stone have fallen.
The world's eyes, once on Gizeh
now
Stare at starry heaven's deep
And keep a watch for men
Who hold hands with the Fates,
And float in space on their string.
And float on the surface of the sea
In a shell, more loved than a pyramid
With its stolen treasures.
A slab of Hecate's torn up temple floor
Taking the Prometheus path
Back to the lab.

Mark D'Angelo

Harbor

the blue boat from St. Thomas thrusts up three naked masts

a formal serenity gathers the sea
like a pleated skirt

an old-grey dog
whimpers in the muzzle of outer cove

but the blue boat
from St. Thomas squats by the pilings

where gulls bob in an oily lap

Elizabeth Gross

Letters To The Editor

Yowza! Yowza! Yowza!

To the Editor:

To know how to free oneself is nothing; the arduous task is to know what to do with one's freedom.
André Gide, The Immoralist

As most members of the University community know by now, I withdrew myself as a candidate for Winter Carnival Queen last Wednesday night, and I feel this action needs some clarification. I withdrew from the contest for two reasons. First, I feel that I had accomplished both of the goals I had aimed at, that is, I wanted people to apply critical thought to a routine campus institution which I believed to be sexist and dehumanizing. The amount of publicity my candidacy caused should have accomplished that goal after one and one-half weeks. Also, the decision of the General Court substantiated my claim that discrimination does take place when a well established set of social rules is threatened. Second, I determined after careful consideration that to pursue the election any further would only hurt and humiliate the other five contestents involved. My overt intention was never to actually win the election but only to achieve those objectives that have been stated many times before. I feel these objectives have been achieved.

Finally, I wish to thank all those individuals and groups who gave me their support. The entire ordeal was both tiring and oftentimes distressing, and your encouragment and help gave me the energy to continue when I was most in need of human warmth and support. Together, I feel we have brought about the demise of one overt instance of sex-role stereotyping and caused people to reflect on its wider social implications. For me, the entire experience has been tiring, exciting, educational, and thanks to you, never lonely. Peace and love.

Jim LaMacchia

P.S. I wish to respond briefly to the editorial by Mr. Mitchell which appeared in Friday's Collegian, particularly his suggestion that I should learn to enjoy competition. In the powerful sequence of the film THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY? the characters are running the dreaded derby in which people are dropping from pain and exhaustion. The commentator, Rocky, makes the following statement: "The Management cautions that no wagering is permitted. But you can always cheer on your favorite couple. And all these wonderful kids deserve your cheers, folks. Because each one of them is fighting down pain, exhaustion, weariness... struggling to keep going...battling to win. And isn't that the American Way, folks?" The camera then cuts to Gloria carrying the corpse of the dead sailor who has died in the race. All I can say to Mr. Mitchell is, "Yowza! Yowza! Yowza!"

Stuffing Kids

To the Editor:

Linda Jeness expresses some great ideas. Equal work and equal pay for women and most of all the right of legal abortion. But when she starts to talk about child care centers it sounds like a lot of crap to me. It is bad enough that kids are screwed-up today because their parents are too busy to be interested in them. But when you talk about stuffing kids into an institutionalized day care center - why have them at all. The world is over populated now. If women (or men) are too busy to raise their own children - then they shouldn't have children.

Vin Petitto

Where Credit Is Due

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to the editor in order to get credit for a class that I am taking at the University of Massachusetts, School of Education. One of the requirements for this particular course is for each student to have a letter published. Such a letter is supposed to cover an issue we feel very deeply about.

I protested this assignment in class because I was convinced that there should be alternative ways of expressing my concern over issues that I believe deeply in. However, the professor over-ruled my protest and restated that in order to get credit for the course it is mandatory that we get a letter published on some issue that we are deeply concerned about.

Well, in the process, I have become deeply concerned about the heavy-handedness of his requiring that we "publish or perish" in this course. Therefore, I would appreciate your publishing this protest.

Barbara Eve

WMUA Moves In The Way

To the Editor:

I am writing upon learning that the campus radio station, WMUA, is attempting to move to the space in the Student Union currently occupied by Free University. I wish to protest this. Just because WMUA is out of the way now does not mean that it should be in the way next year. I certainly see the need for WMUA on campus, but I don't understand why its broadcasting site need be in the center of things. I think that Free U. has far greater need of the space.

Nick Saakvitne

Editorial Points

Doesn't it seem like every time you want one of those soft ice cream cones that they sell in the Campus Center Coffee Shop, the machine is broken?

* * *

Nineteen buildings in Massachusetts were designated yesterday by the US Interior Department as national landmarks. It is interesting to note that none of these edifices is in the Amherst area. It seems like the Campus Center should qualify as some sort of a landmark.

* * *

The US government has cancelled a visit of the US nuclear carrier Enterprise to Chile despite the personal invitation of newly-elected President Salvador Allende. Maybe they figure its too close to Ecuador.

* * *

This is the time of year when Old Man Winter tries to lure you into believing that he's left for the year only to return with an arctic blast when you least expect it.

* * *

Only three more weeks until Spring vacation.

The National Pastime

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to explain the dangers of "Shoplifting". Stealing items and getting away with it is probably a national pasttime. I would like to make it clear "to the people" the legal possibilities of apprehension. The store can press charges within a two year period. If they decide to, you'll be summoned with a "Warrant of Arrest." With this on your record you will never have any chance for a Federal job or any well-paying employment. Next time you walk into a store I hope you'll realize that whatever you shoplift is valueless in the long run.

Name Withheld Upon Request

Emphatic Minority

To the editor:

Throughout this invigorating season at the cage, I have, as an enthusiastic attendant been distracted at every game by an upsetting exhibition by the black fans. I think that many have noticed the large group that stands only to applaud Erving or Skinner and makes quite a ceremony of remaining seated throughout the National Anthem.

It is my personal conviction that sports and arts are to be enjoyed as a deviation from studies. One of the most thrilling aspects of a close game has been the fact that everyone shares the contagious sensations derived from being a part, as it were, of the contest.

My point is merely that the "militants" as was one young man's means of describing himself to me, are defeating the purpose of athletics by exhibiting their ideology and politics at basketball games, and by attacking the sense of "belonging" which so many enjoy.

It is truely pathetic that our "integrated" student body must be so obnoxiously divided by this emphatic minority. I despair in thinking that society has become so close-minded that people feel that they must make such impressions at, of all things, basketball games.

Name Withheld Upon Request

Book Store Supports Open-Door Policy

In response to recent articles by students about the "used book" purchase and sale operation involving The University Store, the following statements and comments are offered.

To begin with, a few very basic assumptions regarding The University Store should be mentioned for the benefit of anyone who hasn't read their student handbook or our handout that is available at The University Store checkouts and information desk. The University Store is operated as a service to the students, faculty and the academic community with the express purpose of providing the tools of education and related items as economically and efficiently as possible. As in the operation of any large business, there is a necessary amount of money needed to operate the business. Equipment needs replacement, a certain amount of operating capital needs to be on hand at all times, and reserves must be set up to plan for future expansions. Any profits that are left after these items are covered goes toward the operation of the Student Union-Campus Center Complex. All Campus Center Budgets are, of course, approved by students, i.e. the Student Union-Campus Center Governing Board. This fund therefore helps cover the costs of many outstanding student activities and programs during the year. No one person or group of persons at the Store is getting rich on the store profit. We are university employees, the same as your faculty, dedicated to serving the university community as professionally as possible.

It has been proved, through time, that communication is a very important aspect of any operation. The same is definitely true in our business. At the onset of almost every semester, The University Store is either investigated or interviewed by Student Senate or Collegian staff and after giving all the information they may need, very little if anything is ever printed or released for the student body to read about (possibly it is not sensational enough). Nor do we ever receive copies of their studies or the suggestions and ideas that they may produce. The same is true for the vocal dissenters that offer opinions without thoroughly considering the facts or at least asking questions before voicing their sentiments.

Once a semester is over, students have an opportunity to sell their books back to the store. In order to understand our book-buying policy, let's classify the books you will have for sale. They will fall into three (3) classes:

Class I

-Current copyright books now in use on this campus and which professors have told us they will reuse and on which our existing stock is inadequate for supplying classes, we will pay 50% of the new price. Suppose, we take an example. Last fall you paid $6.00 for a new book. It's now worth $3.00 to us. We will then offer this book for resale at $4.50 or at a 25% saving from the new price for the prospective buyer. If a faculty member orders his books after our requested dealine date, and this is, of late, the rule rather than the exception, we may not get a chance to place his titles in our buying guide. This situation would render his title to Class II as would a title that we have adequate stock.

Speculating

Class II

Several titles of current copyright books have been dropped on our campus but at still being used on other campuses. Therefore, we allow a used book jobber to come to our store by buy these books. It is also during this period that we are the busiest and don't have the time or the personnel to devote to this operation. Obviously, these firms must buy books at a low enough figure to cover shipping charges, warehouse costs, salesmen's salaries, traveling expenses and the possibility of a title going "sour" on his hands. They are speculators and will pay a price based on current nationwide supply and demand, usually at least 25% of the new price.

Class III

This class consists of old editions, out-of-print books, and damaged books. These are of no value to us or to the used book jobber. He may however, offer a small sum for these books.

The above policy is the standard policy used in almost every college store in this country; it is not something that applies only to the University of Massachusetts. A student also has the option of dealing with the APO book exchange or with the Southwest Patriots. These are student run organizations that we help by providing booklists and cash registers at no cost.

We hope that these comments explain the used book phase of our multi-faceted operation. The University Store is a complex organization with many anomalies when compared with any other retail operation. To serve you the students and faculty better, we have always maintained an open-door policy; if there are ever any problems or gripes, please come in and talk to us. We are very human and sometimes make mistakes; if this is the case we will certainly make the proper correction. This is your store and it will serve you better if you bring your objections and ideas to us rather than register a frustrated voice in your favorite news media. If you don't understand a policy, if you have a problem with us or if you have an idea to make The University Store better, do not hesitate to come in and talk to us; or write us a note and we will make every effort to satisfy your requests. In addition Mr. Grinnan, to whom we report, is always ready to discuss with interested students problems concerned with the book store or any of the other Campus Center operations.

Bernard F. Wilkes, Jr.
Book Department
The University Store

Wood Opposes Tuition Hike

With signs pointing to an upcoming battle to raise state college tuitions on Beacon Hill, UMass Pres. Robert C. Wood said Saturday he would resist such a move.

Instead, Wood, a seasoned operator in the Washington and Boston political arenas, proposes to make UMass a national model for packaging major fund sources-federal, state, local and private-to save the American city, beginning with Boston.

Wood contends that even doubling the $200 tuition for the 24,000 students on the three campuses would yield only $4.8 million against a $75 million university budget and a $150 million state tax gap this year.

The 47-year-old president said universities must lead in developing the fiscal techniques to convert the country's economy from a war dependency to peace time tasks.

War and space research supported by giant single source government contracts enabled and encouraged the growth and expansion of universities through the 50's and 60's, he said.

"The thing we have never demonstrated-and I think we have to in the '70's-is to see whether those universities and research centers can be equally effective in undertaking peace time tasks and supporting some kind of peace time development.

When you try to do it in peace time, you are caught up with having to package your funds and your stregies from states, communities, the feds and from 15 to 20 other agencies. And it's a more difficult game.

"This is why a lot of universities have struck out," he said.

IN HIS FIRST month in office, Wood set up the Institute of Governmental Service and appointed as its head former Sen. Pres. Maurice A. Donahue to design the academic and financial packages to enable UMass' total resources to be used for the solution of the city's desperate problems in housing, education, employment, health and transportation and social services.

In order to fulfill the goals he has set, Wood belives that he must keep the doors of UMass open to Massachusetts students of low and middle income families.

For that reason he objects in principle to proposed increases in tuition. He said, "Seventy per cent of the UMass freshman class come from homes where the parents have not been to college and who make $10,000 or less a year.

"I don't want to impair the impact of this type of education, just as the state is beginning to get a first rate state university.

"BUT THE REAL point here is whatever you do with that tuition is not going to be a substantial relief in the overall fiscal posture."

Last week the board of higher education took a public position against any tuition rise and the board of trustees of UMass is still studying the matter. The state house hearing on the tuition rise bills will be March 16.

Wood stressed that his objection to the jump is personal and does not reflect at this time the official position of the trustees.

HE ALSO POINTS out that his students pay $160 in compulsory fees each year so that the tuition-plus-fees total of $360 equals the national tuition median for state universities.

Conceding there may be some "rich kids" at UMass, the president drove his main point home on the subject, saying: "I'm still dealing with, you know, 'up the tenement trail.' I'm still dealing with poor kids who need a good education cheaply."

Consistent with his determination to make UMass a pace setter in university involvement with urban problems, Wood does not want UMass Boston to be isolated on it 93 acre campus now under construction at Dorchester's Columbia Point.

Asked if he is having second thoughts about the original building plans for the somewhat remote Columbia Point location, the president answered, "I believe they will be reassessed, but I believe that the stage of physical design and the growth figures are such that we still have flexibility there."

THE BOARD of Higher Education projections, which Wood has reviewed and has accepted as definitive, predict that total UMass enrollment will hit 50,000 by 1980, with the greatest growth expected in Boston.

"I meant it when I said in December that I meant it that we are there to stay, at Columbia Point. I had a whole review when I came in of what Pellucci and Orr had done.

"But I am prepared to look at what the university does in addition to the Columbia Point location. We are going to be looking at two or three other items that don't necessarily restrict the university activities to that Point.

EVEN AS HE faces his own difficulties in building a major public university in an increasingly tight economy, Wood termed a major issue the need to support private universities "with little money and preserve conditions of their autonomy and still keep them responsible.

"My position, and I think that of the board of trustees, is that the Commonwealth has an enormous asset and advantage in our private institutes and somehow we have to figure out a plan in which they are sustained and strengthened."

On the other hand he justified the state's subsidy of low tuition at its university "because we have many poor kids in this Commonwealth who can't go to BU and Tufts and have the capacity to profit fron a first rate education."

President Wood does not really think that troubles on the campus are over.

"I think the kids came back chagrined after all their talk about how they were going to work with the new Congress and they went off on vacation and stuff. But I think there is an underlying feeling of contempt for our generation. They are still tinged with their morality.

"I do not subscribe to the point that they are the smartest, best educated in history, but on the other hand, they don't remember a depression, and they've got enough money and everything; they just might be capable of a more civilized standard of behavior than we are.

"And if they are, then it's all been worthwhile."

(Reprinted from the Sunday Herald Traveler)

Program Council Meets Concert Discussed

The Campus Center Program Council held it's second meeting of the semester Wednesday, February 24, but no decisive action was taken on a proposed spring weekend concert.

The concert, which was to have been held in May, will conflict in time with other planned activities, and as no firm date has yet been set, the concert may not materialize at all.

The C.C.E.B.S. program requested money for a speaker to appear at a conference it is holding at UMass in April. The Program Council is looking into the matter.

Dagmar Belitsky presented a new plan by which 35 MM projectors could be purchased to show recent films in the S.U. Ballroom which are not available in 16 MM. These would be payed for, under the new plan, by pinball machines to be placed in the Campus Center. The chairmen voted to pass the plan and present it to the appropriate authorities.

Howie Bresner was elected Chairman, John S. Cardile was elected Secretary and Russell G. Vierla was elected Treasurer.

Representatives of a Dada and Surrealistic Festival which will be held in the Five College Area came to the P.C. for funds to help present this event. Films, plays, artist, and poetry would be presented in the Area during the period from April 19 to May 8. No action on this was taken at the meeting.

IT'S MONDAY

and this is the last week to have your SENIOR PORTRAIT taken for the Index.

Make your appointment TODAY in the INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU IN THE SPRING FROM $99
EUROPE IN THE SUMMER FROM $195
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Notices

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
Brotherhood meeting of Memorial Hall at 7 p.m. tonight

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT & HUMAN RELATIONS
The film & discussion follow up groups will meet March 2nd, at the Head of Residence's apt. in Wheeler. All welcome.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Come see the American horse in The Proud Breed and find out what's happening this spring. Meeting being held Tuesday, March 2nd at 7:30 p.m. in the C.C.

WEE UNITED
Wanted: A [illegible] work in a theatre on [illegible] and awareness training. If [illegible] name and number at 5-0066 [illegible]

WRENCH ROOM CLOSED
La Chanson [illegible] Editions 10-18 for French 185 [illegible] needed desperately. 12 [illegible] copies. Please bring to Mrs. Lawall, Herter [illegible] WF mornings.

HEYMAKERS FOLK DANCE CLUB
There will be an important meeting of Club members concerning [illegible] coming movie and dance at 7:30 p.m. [illegible] day night in the C.C. Aud.
The refrigerator raffle drawing has been extended from March 2nd to March 9th.

HILLEL
Folksing date changed to March 9th. Place to be announced. Remember our Purim Carnival March 14th, noon to 4 at the Hillel Center.
Purim Carnival committee meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Rm. [illegible] the S.U. Anyone can attend. Help us plan.

I.Y.I.
What happens when you put Krishnamurti, Zen, Jesus, Buddism, Teilhard de Chardin, Urantia and others in the same room. We don't know, but are willing to find out. Come help us. Urantia C.C. Rm. 904 908 tonight at 7:30 p.m.

MATH MAJORS
Come & have a good laugh. See two animated Mathematics films at 4 p.m. March 2nd in the Colloquium Rm of Arnold. Coffee at 3:30 p.m. in the Lounge.

MILITANT BOOKSTORE
Book by MARX, MALCOLM, TROTSKY and other revolutionaries are available at the Y.S.A. office 3rd floor of the S.U. Thursday in front of the Hatch.

V. CLUB
[illegible] Club will hold a meeting tonight at 8 [illegible] in Mahar Aud. Movies will be shown and [illegible] No other trips will be discussed.

[illegible] CLUB
[illegible] table meets for dinner on Tuesdays [illegible] Hampshire Commons. Come Spaghetti!

TAU BETA SIGMA
Pledging tonight in Rm. 811 815 of the C.C. [illegible] 10 black dresses. Pledges 8 p.m. white blouses and dark skirts.

WORKSHOP THEATRE
First session workshop theatre at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Memorial Hall. Grows out of Open Theatre workshops. Build towards performance of politically oriented work. Call 1-367-9506, 545-0359.

LOST
Wallet with valuable papers. Call Gary 6-4076.
A miniature collie named "little dog" 5 mos. old, black with white chest & paws lost. She's wearing a red collar. If seen or found please call Howie or Gary in 416 Hamlin.
1 pair of gold rimmed glasses in hard brown case lost. Please call 1-534-7790.
1 N.I.T. Watch missing from Varsity Basketball Locker Room. Curry Hicks Cage is lost. Sentimental value. Any information call 665-4060.

Brown rimmed glasses in a black plastic case. 19th floor John Adams. Friday night. Call Tom 6-5392.

FOUND
Mostly black female german shepherd puppy was found in S.W. Chain collar but no tags. Call Kris 6-5261.
Found last week near Clark I right handed glove brown leather fur lined. Can be picked up at S.U. Lost & Found.
[illegible] nearly new near the Physical Plant lot [illegible] with paws [illegible] and gray on brown head. His face resembles a terrier's. Call [illegible] 9748.
Gold wedding band in mug in Central Area. Call Sue 253 Box for Marsh.

Watch Out For Kinetics II

Want To Work On The Cape Next Summer?

You can, if you know how to go about choosing a job, landing a job, and doing a job. Cape Cod employers need good Summer help, and thousands of college students need Summer jobs. We're not an employment agency, but our brochure, "HOW TO MAKE IT ON THE CAPE" provides the answers to all sorts of questions concerning Cape Cod Summer employment.

Act now, and you may be the early bird. Wait a month, and you may have to wait another year.

For our brochure, "HOW TO MAKE IT ON THE CAPE" send $1.00 to:

CAPE COD CENTRAL
WELLFLEET, MASS. 02667

Stop the Escalation—
Stop the War Now!

ALL OUT,

APRIL 24

The world now faces a deadly new peril as the Nixon adminstration presses ahead with its drive for military victory in all of Southeast Asia. This means a heavy new toll in blood and even greater risk of ultimate nuclear combat.

Only a broad and massive mobilization of the American people can keep President Nixon from further desperate escalations.

With the widespread rebellion of GIs in South Vietnam, with more and more American workers rejecting the idea that they should sacrifice their real wages for military and industrial interests in Southeast Asia, the opportunity exists to bring these constituencies into the antiwar movement in greater numbers than ever before. Massive mobilizations on the scale of October 15 and November 15, 1969 are possible.

The National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC) calendar of antiwar actions this spring must be translated into days of vital, unprecedented, massive, non-violent opposition to the war.

CALENDAR OF SPRING ANTIWAR EVENTS

All activities of the National Peace Action Coalition are planned as legal, peaceful and orderly manifestations of opposition to the war.

APRIL 2-4
—Local demonstrations to mark the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr., who among his many contributions to the cause of social justice, ardently opposed the Vietnam War.

APRIL 24
—Mass march on Washington, D.C. and San Francisco in support of the demand for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Southeast Asia and the abolition of the draft.

MAY 5
—Antiwar demonstrations on campuses and in communities around the country to commemorate the massacre of students at Kent State and Jackson State and the nationwide outcry against the invasion of Cambodia.

MAY 16
(ARMED FORCES DAY)—Civilians will make this Solidarity Day with antiwar GIs by joining them in peace activities at military bases.

ROBERT ABRAMS
Bronx Borough President

JAMES ARONSON
Author and Editor

ROBERT ALAN AURTHUR
Author & Film Director

FLORIAN BARTOSIC
House Counsel,
Int'l Brotherhood of Teamsters

HON. HERMAN BADILLO
Member of Congress,
21st Dist. (Tri-boro Dist.) N.Y.

ERIC BENTLEY
Writer

KERMIT BLOOMGARDEN
Producer

HON. SHIRLEY CHISHOLM
Member of Congress,
12th Dist., N.Y.

HON. JOHN CONYERS
Member of Congress,
1st Dist., Michigan

EDWARD CROSS
Secy-Treas., Local 147,
Tunnelworkers' Union

LEON DAVIS
President Local 1199
Drug & Hospital Union,
RWDSU/AFL-CIO

HON. RONALD V. DELLUMS
Member of Congress
7th Dist., California

HON. JOHN G. DOW
Member of Congress,
27th Dist., N.Y.

HON. DON EDWARDS
Member of Congress,
California

JULES FEIFFER
Cartoonist and Writer

HENRY FONER
Pres. Joint Board Fur, Leather & Machine Workers' Union

MOE FONER
Executive Secretary
Local 1199, Drug & Hospital Union
RWDSU/AFL-CIO

BETTY FRIEDAN
Writer, Women's Liberation Activist

STEPHEN H. FRITCHMAN
Unitarian Minister,
Los Angeles, Cal.

RUTH GAGE-COLBY
U.N. Representative of Women's Int'l League For Peace and Freedom; Co-Coordinator of NPAC

MARTIN GERBER
Director, Dist. 9
United Automobile Workers

JACK GILFORD
Actor

MADELINE LEE GILFORD
Producer

JERRY GORDON
Attorney
Co-Coordinator NPAC

PATRICK E. GORMAN
Secretary-Treasurer
Amalgamated Meatcutters & Butcher Workmen of N.A.

DICK GREGORY
Chicago

CAROL GREITZER
Councilwoman
New York City Council

DON GUREWITZ
Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam
Co-Coordinator of NPAC

VINCENT HALLINAN
Attorney, San Francisco

PETE HAMILL
Columnist

E. Y. HARBURG
Author & Lyricist

SHELDON HARNICK
Lyricist

MICHAEL HARRIS
President, Howard Univ.
Student Association

JOSEPH HELLER
Author

JULIUS W. HOBSON
Teacher, The American Univ.
Washington, D.C.

MURRAY KEMPTON
Journalist

STANLEY KUNITZ
Poet

JAMES T. LAFFERTY
Attorney
Co-Coordinator of NPAC

CORLISS LAMONT
Author & Educator

HELEN LAMB LAMONT
New York City

BURTON LANE
Composer

RING LARDNER, JR.
Writer

ASSEMBLYMAN F. S. LEICHTER
69th A.D., Manhattan

DAVID LIVINGSTON
President, Distrct 65, National Council Distributive Workers of America

SHIRLEY MACLAINE
Actress

NORMAN MAILER
Author

KATE MILLET
Author

ASHLEY MONTAGU
Anthropologist,
Princeton Univ.

RT. REV. J. BROOKE MOSLEY
President, Union Theological Seminary

PAUL O'DWYER

2ND LT. ROB OLSON
Concerned Officers Movement

LINUS PAULING

CHANNING E. PHILLIPS
Democratic National Committeeman for Washington, D.C.

VICTOR RABINOWITZ
Attorney

TONY RANDALL
Actor

HON. CHARLES RANGEL
Member of Congress,
18th Dist., N.Y.

MARVIN ROGOFF
Chairman, Washington, D.C. Labor for Peace

HON. BENJAMIN ROSENTHAL
Member of Congress,
8th Dist., N.Y.

MURIEL RUKEYSER
Poet

STANLEY SHEINBAUM
Writer, Economist

REV. FRED L. SHUTTLESWORTH
National Secretary, S.C.L.C.
President, S.C.E.F.

JOAN L. SIMON
Writer

GLORIA STEINEM
Writer

LEON SVERDLOVE
President, International Jewelry Workers' Union, AFL-CIO

LOUIS UNTERMEYER
Poet and Critic

GERALD WALKER
Novelist and Editor,
N. Y. Times Magazine

JOHN T. WILLIAMS
Teamster Trade Unionist
Co-Coordinator of NPAC

MELVIN L. WULF
Legal Director
American Civil Liberties Union

RT. REV. PAUL MOORE JR.
Bishop Coadjutor
Episcopal Diocese of N.Y.

Organizations listed for identification purposes only.

Sponsored by NATIONAL PEACE ACTION COALITION, 1029 Vermont Avenue, N. W., 8th Floor, Washington, D. C. 20005.

For more information come to the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Southeast Asia meeting at 8:30PM in Rm. 805 in the Campus Center on Tuesday March 2nd...that's tomorrow night!

MARCH ON WASHINGTON AND SAN FRANCISCO APRIL 24 TO END THE WAR NOW.

Nicklaus Takes PGA

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus sank a pressure-packed birdie putt on the 17th hole Sunday and completed his double sweep of all the world's major golf titles with a victory in the PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus, who almost squandered a four-stroke lead, had a final-round 73, one over par on the PGA National Golf Club course. He had a 72-hole total of 281, two strokes ahead of fast closing Billy Casper.

The victory was the first ever in Florida for the 31-year-old blond bomber and made him the only man ever to score at least to victories in the PGA, the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters.

Nicklaus has accumulated three green Masters jackets and also won two National Amateur titles before he began to dominate the professional ranks.

It was his 31st tourney victory. Nicklaus started in shaky fashion but pulled his awesome game together when he was challenged by Casper and 52-year-old Tommy Bell.

The long-hitting champion is one of the few men in the game capable of reaching the green in two, but he elected to play short of the bunkers guarding the green.

The Masters champion, Casper, playing well ahead of Nicklaus, made the biggest move, closing birdie-birdie for a 68 and 283. He went to five under par with a 25-foot putt on the difficult 18th, a shot that sent the usually placid Casper romping around the green in glee.

That cut Nicklaus' lead to one stroke and he was in trouble at the par three 16th at the time. "I had a little trouble settling down all day," he said later. "I couldn't get the feel of the clubs."

He had missed the green and then chipped about six feet past the hole. A bogey would drop him back into a tie. But Nicklaus, his face a mask of determination, studied the shot carefully and ran it in the hole.

He wrapped it up on the 17th, a 588-yard par-five.

He hit a perfect shot up short, then chipped to four feet.

Again, there was a long study before he got over the ball. He stood over it for 21 seconds before bringing the club back and knocked it in the hole for a birdie that gave him a two-stroke lead with one hole to play.

Nicklaus parred it and stood alone among the world's champions with the double sweep.

Belt, a jut-jawed champion from another era of golf, needed only 27 putts in shooting a 69 for 284. That put him alone in third.

South African Gary Player, who was in second place four strokes back starting play on this warm, sunny day, knocked himself out of contention when he hit it out of bounds on the 15th and took a double bogey six.

Player finished with a 73 for 285 and was tied with Miller Barber, who had a 70.

Dave Hill, 70, Jim Jamieson, 70, and Gibby Gilbert, 73, were next at 286.

And it was another tournament of frustration for Arnold Palmer, who has never won this championship.

Palmer, never really in contention, had a final 73 for 289.

"He's still the king," a voice from the gallery shouted when he finished.

"I'll keep on trying," the 41-year-old giant said. "Look at Belt. He's 52. That performance of his gives me determination to keep on trying."

U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin finished far back, shooting a final 73 for 292. Defending champion Dave Stockton took a 73 for 294.

Bruins Outlast Toronto

BOSTON AP—The Boston Bruins built a quick lead on goals by Eddie Westfall, Ken Hodge and Wayne Carleton in the first 8 1/2 minutes and held on Sunday for a 4-3 National Hockey League victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Phil Esposito's 52nd goal of the season, hiking the score to 4-0 early in the second period, proved decisive as the Leafs battled back in a game but vain bid.

The victory enabled the Bruins to extend their unbeaten streak at home to 23 games.

Boston failed to cash numerous scoring chances after taking a four-goal lead and Toronto threw a scare into the mighty Bruins before time ran out.

Jim Harrison scored on a breakaway in the second period for the initial Toronto goal.

The Leafs capitalized on a power play with Paul Henderson poking home his 28th goal and 13:34 tf the final period. Guy Trottier added another talley less than two minutes later.

Westfall skirted the defense and scored his 21st goal 37 seconds after the opening faceoff. Hodge converted a Esposito rebound for his 38th a 2:12, and Carleton boosted the second to 3-0 with Boston's 300th goal of the season at 8:32.

Esposito then raised his league-leading point total to 117 with his goal on a pass from Hodge at 2:07 of the second period.

Samborski Named Athletic Commissioner of YanCon

Adolph W. Samborski, former Harvard athletic director, was named Friday athletic commissioner of the Yankee Conference, effective July 1.

"I'm thrilled," said Samborski from his home at York, Me., to which he officially retired only two weeks ago. Although he had retired from Harvard a year ago, he stayed on while Robert B. Watson took a leave of absence.

The appointment was announced by Winthrop C. Libby, president of the University of Maine at Orono and chairman of the Yankee Conference presidents. Samborski succeeds J. Orlean Christian of Storrs, Conn., the Yankee Conference's first commissioner.

Samborski will maintain an office at the University of New Hampshire in Durham. "It's only about 20 miles from my house," he said. "This is not a full-time position." Asked about the size of his staff, "Sam" said, "I will be it. But as far as authority goes, the presidents committee will have the final say."

As athletic commissioner, Samborski, 65, will be responsible for enforcing and interpreting all conference rules and regulations, determining athletic eligibility, supervising conference meets and tournaments, administrating trophies and awards and handling financial affairs.

A native of Westfield, Mass., Samborski was associated with Harvard for 50 years. He enrolled as a student in 1921 and was named assistant director of athletics in 1961. He was promoted to athletic director in 1963.

"I feel close to the Yankee Conference," he said. "I've lived in this territory all my life and I've been friendly with its directors for many years."

Yankee Conference members include UMass, Maine, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont. It has been rumored that the conference would add two more teams, possibly Boston University and Holy Cross.

(Reprinted from the Boston Herald Traveler)

D. J.

IS BACK! TUES NITE!

Ladies' Night at

The English Pub

9:30 til close

The Distinguished Visitors Program is looking for new ideas . . . and new ideas means new people.

Applications available in the RSO OFFICE CAMPUS CENTER

Deadline for applications is March 5.

$3.50

Puts Your Mug In the Index

LAST WEEK – SIGN UP NOW

UP AND OVER: The UMass track team placed 5th in the New England meet at the University of Connecticut on Saturday. Hurdler Jim Graves (second from left) and Jerry Spellman (far right) finished second and fourth. For more details and pictures, see tomorrow's MDC. MDC photo by Bob Mangiaratti.

Writers Meeting 6:30 Tonight

WANTED

CLEAN-UP MAN
5, 6 or 7 days a week.
Start at $2/hour.
See manager.
AMHERST TOWER RESTAURANT

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Aztec, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LF's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Motorcycle 1000 Royal Enfield Indian Chief 700 cc Restoration, asking $700 or best offer. Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. Runs like new. tf3-1

Water beds for $55 at Sundance Water Beds, 187 Main St., Northampton. tf3-3

35mm Canon Camera, Skis 190 cm, boot sz 8½, poles, light meter (Bell), 100 pc. set of china, serving for 12. Call 253-5537. tf3-1

Camera Reflex Pentaflex, East German, purchased in Munich in 1970, interchangeable lens, excellent condition. $90, no less. Call 546-7175 at 12 p.m. 3-1

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Attic) No texts! tf6-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1961 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1961 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $395. Telephone 253-3946 tf3-9

1961 Ford Galaxie 500, 2 dr. sedan, new tires, radio, good heater, $100 Must sell. Call 527-9697 after 6 p.m. tf3-1

1967 Karmann Ghia, new engine in 1969. Colors in the style of Peter Max. Only $700. Call 253-5296. tf3-1

Have another car — must sell 63 Corvair conv., 4 speed, rebuilt engine, 2,000 miles, new battery, runs well but needs starter. $150, will barter. Call 527-9956 after 6 p.m. tf3-1

Buy of the year: 1968 MG Midget, 15,000 miles, wire wheels and many extras, $1,000. Call 253-9688 and ask for Steve, after 6 p.m. 2-28

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share 1 bedroom, Mt. Runge Apt. townhouse, completely furnished with disposal, air cond., dishwasher Available immed. Call Beth, Cass 545-0277, nights 253-3171 tf3-1

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3148. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass 01501 tf3-22

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-11

WANTED

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded, free estimates on collections. Bob Murrin, 106 Chadbourne or P.O. Box 101, Amherst. tf3-1

Black sincere male student near Amherst. Please write to white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible close summer relationship. Confidential Box 225, Amherst, Mass. tf3-15

Dance Movement Classes

Classes in dance movement and body awareness start Tuesday eve., 7 p.m. in Pierpont Lounge. Bring comfortable clothes and good vibes. tf3-1

HELP WANTED

Wanted: nurse, 2 women live in, infant care, sewing, etc., 12 hours per week, apartment-like accommodations, 2 miles from campus. Call 549-1112. tf3-1

Help w exper. in pollution eval. Need abil. w stat. Call Steve 253-3192. tf3-2

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Texas or any adjacent state anytime near spring vacation. Will pay. Call Nancy 546-1421 tf3-2

FOR RENT

Room for rent to sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo., Cliffside Apt., Sunderland. Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9211 anytime after 6:30 tf3-1

One bedroom, four room apt. for rent Cliffside Apts., 665-3648. $130 month with or without furniture Open in March tf3-1

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to ANY-WHERE in spring and EUROPE in summer. For details call Steve 549-4337 or Brian 549-3963 3 1,7,3,8,9,17,15,16

PERSONAL

Denise from Brockton, S.C. says hello 3-1

Ali McGraw is alive and well and is now living in 612 Coolidge. 3-1

Unattached NJH wants to meet interesting, nice Jewish girl. Call Carl 665-7969 3-1

Want to learn or view the most strenuous dance known to man. Call 6-8572. 3-1

Tracey's Lilypad has room for one lonesome squirrel and a few Eucalyptus Leaves. 3-1

TO SUBLET

New eff. apt. for rent. Ext. for 1 or 2 persons. Incl. all utilities, dishwasher, carpeting, wall to wall carp., only 1½ miles from Campus. Rent is $150 per mo. Call Ray at 253-7343. If no answer, try again. tf3-5

Best Season Effort Paces Gymnasts Over Temple

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

The UMass varsity gymnasts enjoyed their best meet of the season, as they decisively defeated Temple University, 158.75-152.10 on Saturday night. The point total was the highest for UMass this season, hopefully indicating that the Redmen will do well in the New Englands and the Eastern League Championships.

Temple's power was dealt a severe blow when captain Ron Clemmer, their top all-around man, and a member of the U.S. National Team, was injured, and couldn't compete in five events. However, even with Clemmer, the Owls would have had a tough time topping UMass. Coach Erik Kjeldsen's Redmen, after some initial pressure had been overcome, settled down and turned in their best meet of the season.

Despite entering only three men, Temple won the floor exercise event, 25.90-25.75. Temple's Mel Hill won the event with an 8.95, while Tony Vacca and Jack Berner of UMass tied for second with 8.7's. Both Vacca, an all-around, and Berner, a specialist, have been consistently top performers for the Redmen this season, and will both return next year.

UMass gained the lead by outscoring Temple on sidehorse, 25.90-23.80. Senior Rick Riley, in his last home dual meet, once again led all scores, as his 9.0 took first. Riley has been an outstanding competitor in all of his four years at UMass, and his presence will be sorely missed next year. Once again, Hill was high scorer for Temple, as his 8.65 score was good for second. Norm Vexler and John Walsh of UMass tied for third with 8.45's.

The Redmen increased their lead on rings, as they took the top two spots. Vexler, one of UMass' top ringmen all season, was first with 9.0, while Jay Aronstein was second with an 8.8. Jan Kitzen of Temple took third with an 8.75. At intermission, the score read: UMass 77.75, Temple 74.55.

Spectators were treated to an outstanding display of vaulting, as both teams had some excellent vaulters. Hill was again Temple's top man, as his vault of 9.2 won the event. Last year, as a freshman, Hill tied for fifth in vaulting at the EIGL Championships. Steve Cary was high scorer for the Redmen as he took second with a 9.1, while UMass' outstanding freshman vaulter, Jay Thompsen, was third with a 9.05.

UMass enjoyed their highest event total of the season as they accumulated 27.20 points on parallel bars. Cary led all scores with a 9.25, high score of the meet. Cary's distinctive style has made him one of the Redmen's top performers for the past several years. Dave Genest took second with a 9.15, as he astounded the audience by using an almost unheard of double back somersault for a dismount.

UMass closed out the meet with two outstanding routines on high bar. Senior co-captain Scott Stover was high scorer with a routine of 9.25. Vacca had a 9.1 routing, which featured a double twisting flyaway dismount. Coulson was high scorer for Temple, as his 8.95 netted him third. The Redmen picked up 26.75 points in this event to Temple's 25.50, bringing the final score of the meet to: UMass 158.75, Temple 152.10.

The Redmen dominated all-around competition as they took the top two places. Vacca won with a total of 51.95, while Vexler was second. Temple's Hill was third.

Last night's competition was the last home dual competition for the senior members of the 1971 gymnastic team. These men have given generously of their time and effort as they have added their names to the list of men who have contributed to the growing gymnastic tradition at the University. They are: Bob Nelligan, Bob Henry, John Walsh, Cary, Riley, Tom Mysicki, Stover, and Vexler.

The varsity gymnastic team has two remaining competitions on its regular season's schedule. On Sat., March 6, they will participate in the New England Championships at Boston State College, and on the weekend of March 11, 12, and 13, they will compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships. This meet will be held in Curry Hicks Cage, giving all who are interested a chance to see the best gymnastics in the East.

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND

30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'na'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrology is all around us. Our watches and calendars are "set" or regulated by the earth's movement around the sun. When you deal with time, you are dealing with an astrological process. Nine out of 10 persons can tell you under which sign of the zodiac they were born. A surprising number of persons are familiar with more sophisticated details of their horoscopes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Some favorable changes result in profits. Your earning potential is highlighted. There are problems, mixed with opportunities. Key is to open communication lines. Listen and learn.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): New outlook in connection with domestic affairs should be advocated. Remember birthdays, other anniversaries. Presentation of gift now could work wonders. No holding of grudges.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Refuse to accept situations, persons at face value. Means go after additional information. Appearances now are apt to be deceiving. Work in conjunction with special group.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on how to obtain what you need. Key is to accept added responsibility. There is more pressure but rewards will be greater. Aquarius individual will lend helping hand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Advancement indicated. Recent obstacle is overcome. Greater recognition is due on broader scale. Finish projects. Avoid premature starts. Aries individual figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Long-range view is a necessity. Avoid the petty. See projects as a whole. Obtain hint from Leo message. Stress quality. Many bargains now are merely illusions. Act accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Settle estates. Get answers. If persistent, you obtain what is required. Some factors are obscured. Be realistic. Emotions should not be permitted to push logic aside.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Legal contest could prove to be blessing in disguise. Stress versatility. Have alternatives at hand. Classify material. Don't be flustered by one who talks a big game.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid making promises you cannot keep. Be practical. Steer clear of excesses in all areas. Health may require special attention. Don't be upset by red tape. Confusion is temporary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Attections are stimulated. Element of speculation is present. Change, travel and variety are featured. Creative work is favored. Imprint your own style. Personal magnetism soars.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Older persons, parents come strongly into frame of reference. Domestic situation is subject to adjustment. Be co-operative with Cancer born individual. Mutual benefits will result.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Forces tend to be scattered. Check appointments. Don't attempt to be too many places at once. A talkative neighbor, relative may be relaying gossip not factual information.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, sensitive and can be forceful. You are now on more solid ground. You can accomplish what previously was an elusive goal. Stick to facts; be prepared for money making opportunity in April.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

The PIZZA INN
(At the old Amherst Creamery)
173 Sunset Ave.

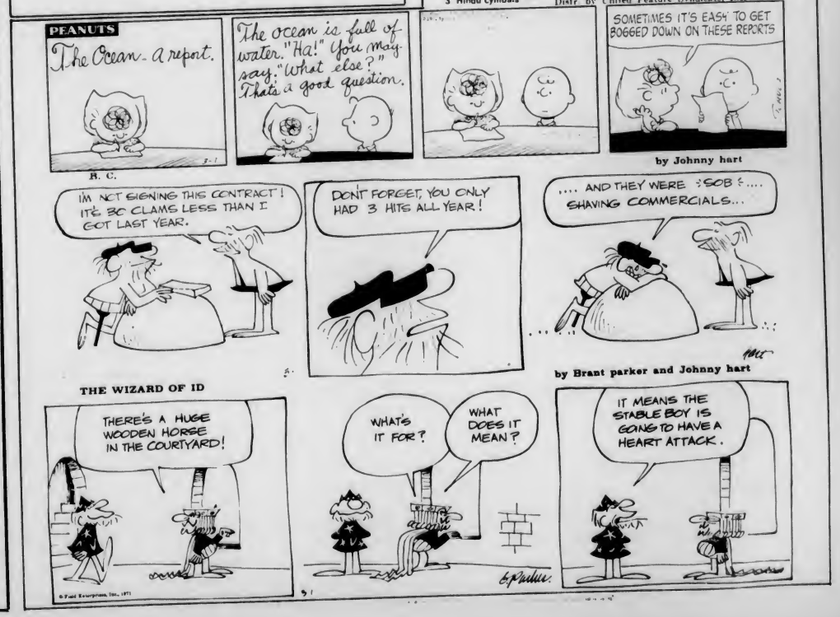
Second Week
SPECIAL
Our Fantastic Large
MEATBALL GRINDER
plus
Large PEPSI only 80c
with coupon below.

STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.

SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
Large Meatball Grinder & Large Pepsi 80c with this coupon
PIZZA INN

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Friday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1 Skill
4 Painful
8 Definite article
11 A continent
12 Ireland
13 Ventilate
14 Pronoun
15 Conducted
17 Acrimonious
19 Lair
21 Communist
23 Speck
24 Goddess of discord
26 Inlet
28 Departed
31 Flying mammal
33 Exist
35 Regret
36 Parent (colloq.)
38 Order
41 Symbol for lellurium
42 High mountain
44 Also
45 Seed
47 Narrow, flat board
49 Conjunction
51 Outdoor game
54 Willy remark
56 Plunge
58 Goddess of healing
59 Amend
62 Born
64 Brother of Odin
65 Anger
66 Learning
68 Woody plant
70 Deface
71 Pitcher
72 Swiss river

DOWN

1 Showy flower
2 A stale (abbr.)
3 Hindu cymbals
4 Hebrew festival
5 Conjunction
6 Bone of body
7 Wife of Geraint
8 Shred
9 Hasten
10 Be mistaken
11 Assistant
16 Teutonic deity
18 Haul
20 Penpoint
22 Precious stone
25 Algonquian Indian
27 Macaw
29 Hard-shelled fruit
30 Golf mound
32 Small child
34 Abstract being
36 Dance step
37 Everyone
39 Extinct flightless bird
40 Canine
43 Indulge
46 Sorrow
48 Pedal digit
50 Roadside restaurant
52 Organ of body
53 Liberate
55 Story
57 Hebrew letter
59 Edge
60 Period of time
61 Base
63 Greek letter
67 Note of scale
69 Sun god

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Redmen Tip G.W., 70-65

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Julius Erving did it again.

Playing before his home town fans and a large gathering of scouts and tournament officials the junior forward picked up right where he left off against Syracuse scoring 35 points, grabbing 17 rebounds and playing his usual immense game on defense in leading UMass to its 21st win of the season against only three losses over George Washington, 70-65, here at Madison Square Garden on Saturday.

In scoring half of his teams points, Erving was called upon throughout the contest to pick up the scoring slack that his teammates left as they were unable to hit consistently from the floor. The offense turned out to be give the ball to Erving and let him do his thing.

What appeared to be a runaway in the first ten minutes of play turned into a rough physical contest the remainder of the way in the Redmen's first appearance in the Gardens since their N.I.T. loss to Marquette almost a year ago.

Sloppy play on both sides marked the first few moments as it took UMass almost two minutes to break the scoring ice on a one-hander from the corner by Mike Pagliara. From here the Redmen blitzed George Washington up and down the court and led by Erving's hot hand opened up a quick 11-10 lead before the Colonials knew what had hit them.

After a time out the Redmen were at it again with Erving leading the fast break off the defensive boards resulting in Redman points in the offensive zone with Erving's shooting continuing to excel.

During these opening minutes George Washington seemed to be caught off balance by the UMass fast break and its stingy defense. This resulted in many Colonial turnovers and many UMass points.

With the score 22-7 and the Redmen apparently ready to run George Washington out of the Gardens, mistakes began to happen. This time they were UMass mistakes and the Colonials took advantage as they climbed right back into the battle closing to within 29-25 at one point towards the end of the first stanza.

Outscoring the Colonials, 9-4, for the remainder of the first half UMass went into the locker room on top, 38-29, but those present sensed that this would be tough ball game the rest of the way.

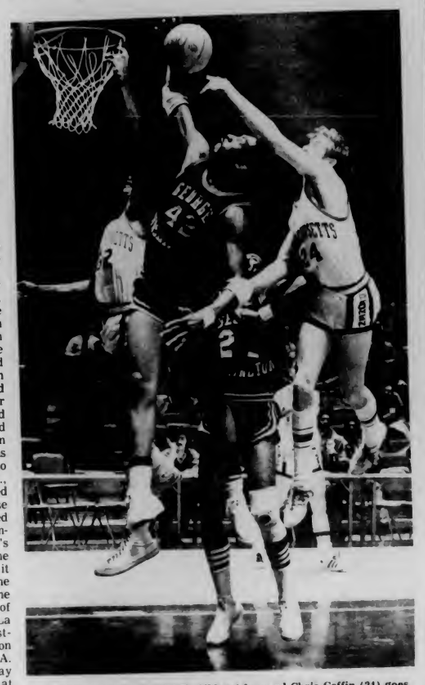
In this first half Erving scored 21 points and had 11 of his rebounds.

His play offset the offensive and defensive punch of George Washington's Walt Szczerbiak who had 11 points and 7 bounds in the first 20 minutes.

Szczerbiak, who has already been drafted in the secret A.B.A. draft showed why he was as he was second to Erving in scoring with 32 points and led all rebounders with 23. It was his play in the second half that brought the Colonials back into the fray.

The second half was a standoff as George Washington outscored the Redmen 36-32, with both teams commiting numerable turnovers in the heat of the action.

George Washington made its biggest threat of the game with about five minutes left as it closed to within five points and began to press all over the court.



After getting the ball successfully over the half court line the Redmen went into their four corner offense and it worked to perfection as John Betancourt was able to move into the pivot and control the show.

With a good pair of hands to control a basketball Betancourt kept the Colonial offenders at bay from the pivot as he moved the ball to Erving, Ken Mathias, Pagliara and Tom McLaughlin on the points.

In frustration George Washington had a foul and with the one-and-one in affect Mathias hit two from the line. McLaughlin did likewise and Betancourt hit one of two.

George Washington made a couple of token hoops as the game came to an end and the final score read 70-65.

HOOP NOTES—UMass hit only 42% from the floor with G. W. hitting even less 39%...From the charity line UMass was good on 73% of its tries and G.W. hit on 68%...The Redmen were outrebounded and out-turnovered by the Colonials which is a switch of rolls for those who have followed Redman hoop this season...As far as post tourney play is concerned the papers both in New York and Boston seem to have the Redmen as shoeins for the N.I.T....The fans thought so also as the 2500 who made the trip chanted "N.I.T., N.I.T." as the final seconds ticked away...A tip of the hat goes to these fans who once again impressed those present with their tremendous backing of their team's play...It was the consensus of the scouts present that Erving has it all to be a great pro...Wayne Embry said that he was in the same class with Sidney Witks of U.C.L.A. and Ken Durrett of La Salle both all-American first-stringers... N.I.T. bids come out on the 4th of March with the N.C.A.A. bids coming out the day before..Tonight the Redmen are at New Hampshire with the regular season coming to a close on Thursday night with the long haul to Maine to play the Black Bears...And then possibly another trip or two of the Big Apple.

BATTLE WITH BATTLE: UMass' forward Chris Coffin (24) goes high in an attempt to pull the rebound away from George Washington center Mike Battle (42). Also pictured are Julius Erving (32) and Lenny Baltimore of the Colonials (24). The Redmen took the game 70-65 to all but assure them of an NIT bid. (MDC photo by Gary Slickman)

Hoopsters At UNH Tonight

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Passing their test on Saturday at Madison Square Garden with a high mark the UMass hoopsters travel to Durham tonight for a game with the New Hampshire Wildcats with tap-off set for 8 p.m.

In chasing after their 22nd win in 25 outing the Redmen enter a game that appears to be a sure victory but that can turn into a nightmare if they are not ready to play.

UNH comes into this game with a dismal season in back of it and only the hopes of a miracle tonight over the Redmen to make its season worth suiting up for.

In their last two encounters the Wildcats took Rhode Island to overtime before losing and best Boston University. So they'll be ready on their home court to give their all.

What to expect from UNH is hard to determine as they don't play a set offense and defense throughout the game. The Wildcats improvise as the situation arises and this is what can be expected tonight.

A little razzle-dazzle here. Some funny stuff there. Anything to try to unnerve the Redmen. But teams who try this type of attack usually end up in the losers column and to be realistic this will probably be the case tonight.

Chasing the post season tournament bid they have looked for since the beginning of the season the Redmen will be raring to get at the Wildcats. The first meeting between these two teams at Amherst ended in a laugher with more of the same to be expected tonight.

For UNH, it will be starting 6'5 Dave Pemberton, 6'6 Frank Davis and 6'3 Mike Gregory up front with 6'2 Frank Davis and 6'3 Mike Gregory up front with 6'2 Dwight Peters and 6'2 Paul Cormier in the backcourt. These five have their toughest assignment of the season ahead for tonight. If they're ready then the game could be interesting for a while. If they choose to look ahead to next season as they are all juniors or sophomore then they could be in for toughest night of their hoop days.

For UMass, coach Jack Leaman will be going with his same staring five of recent games that being red-hot Julius Erving, Ken Mathias and Tom McLaughlin up front with John Betancourt and Mike Pagliara in the backcourt.

Knowing what can happen if they should look ahead and not be ready to play, these starters will be ready and hungry to add another victory to their win column tonight.

Pucksters Win, 3-2

By DAN KAMAL
MDC Staff

CLINTON, N.Y.—The UMass hockey team enhanced their postseason Division II tournament hopes considerably Saturday with a 3-2 win over Hamilton College before some 2000 fans.

The win gave the high-flying Redmen a 10-3-1 record in Division II and a 12-5-1 slate overall...

After a scoreless first period, Pat Keenan put the visitors on the board early in the second frame when he took a pass from Jack Edwards from behind the net and beat Hamilton goalie Greg Root to the far corner....

Hamilton knotted the score with a powerplay goal, but UMass again went ahead at 2:33 of the third period on a goal by Edwards. On a reversal of roles of the first Redmen score, Keenan fed the disc out to his linemate from the corner, and Edwards let go a 15 footer that beat Root.

Again the home team came back to tie the game with its second powerplay goal of the afternoon with UMass' Mike Waldron in the penalty box...

Then with some five minutes remaining, Waldron took a swipe at the puck as it bounced in front of the Hamilton cage, and it eluded Root in the scramble. As it turned out, this was the gamewinning goal and gave the Redmen a crucial Division II win, 3-2...

ICE CHIPS: The game was a goalies' dual for the most part with both P.J. Flaherty and Root turning in nothing short of spectacular performances. Flaherty had 29 saves on the night while his counterpart had 40 in the Hamilton cage...

Playing conditions bordered on the atrocious as there was no fence or glass partitions along the boards, and the wild Hamilton fans were hanging over the sides of the rink throughout the game...

As has happened so many times this season, UMass ran into a red hot goaltender in Hamilton's Root. The senior netminder had a particularly hot glove hand as he continually thwarted Redmen scoring efforts...

UMass' penalty-killing unit of Eric Scrafield, Dennis Grabowski, Don Lowe, and Brian Sullivan did a solid job, despite the fact that both Hamilton goals came on powerplays, since the Redmen were called for numerous penalties...

With about a minute remaining, Hamilton had the powerplay advantage and also pulled Root, giving them a two man edge, but the visitors set up a box-like defense in front of P.J. to preserve the win...

Thanks John Kiah...

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Rain or snow or something.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 97 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, MARCH 2, 1971

STUCK IN THE MUD—The MDC shares a mud puddle with the Boston Globe.

Kindahl Resigns As Econ Dept. Head

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

Dr. James K. Kindahl, Head of the Department of Economics, resigned Friday afternoon at a meeting of the Economics Dept. and its Liason Committee.

Kindahl's resignation will become effective sometime in August. He will, however, continue to teach in the Economics dept. at both the graduate and undergrad levels.

When contacted, Kindahl declined to comment. "These are very complex matters, difficult to summarize in a few sentences," he said.

According to Dr. Dean Alfange, Dean of the faculty of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Kindahl's resignation came as a complete surprise.

"I had no inkling of his decision," he said. "Neither, to the best of my knowledge, did anyone else in the department. Prof. Kindahl has a fine reputation as a teacher, both in the department and outside it. However," He continued, "I don't think I can speculate as to the reasons behind his resignation until I have discussed the matter with him."

Alfange also commented upon Kindahl's letter of resignation.

"The tone of the letter was very straightforward and honest," he said. "I respect the man greatly for his frank manner in this issue. Once again, though," he said, "I must decline to comment further until I have spoken with Prof. Kindahl on the matter."

Alfange went on to say that a search committee would be set up soon to contend with the task of appointing a new department head.

"No action has as yet been taken on the formation of a search committee, "said Alfange. "However, it will probably be comprised of faculty and administrators."

"It has been the practice in the past not to have students on search committees for new department heads," he said. "However, in this issue several students have demonstrated interest and concern in the proceedings of the department. We will not fail to contact them if it seems politic."

With respect to the upcoming final considerations of contracts of some of the Economic Dept.'s faculty, including those of Mike Best and Bob Hinckley, Alfange was of the opinion that Prof. Kindahl's resignation would have no effect upon the final decisions of the Personnel Committee. His comment was: "I don't think the recent developments within the department will have any bearing upon upcoming contract renewals."

Alfange's final comments centered about the problem which Mike Best had earlier defined as the "nature of headships."

"I suspect that the type of hierarchy established in the department will depend greatly upon the disposition of the new head," he said. "However, this, and other matters, will be resolved sometime before next fall, after the appointment of Kindahl's successor."

OUT IN THE ORCHARD—A thin snow cover still remains in some places, but the warm weather is making quick work of Jack Frost's handiwork. (MDC photos by Steve Schmidt)

JUST PLAIN MUD—The annual mudslide is just getting underway. Top running contestants in this year's contest are the field behind Boyden and the walk from SBA to the Union.

Music Room And Library Opens In C.C.

By IRWIN LEFMAN
MDC Staff

The Audio-Visual Media Service will soon open the Music Room and Library in the Campus Center for student use and enjoyment, according to Thaddeus Dobrowski, head of the department.

Workshop and projection rooms as well as the general offices are operating from the third floor of the Student Union, he said. All audio-visual equipment needed to put on movies, concerts, speeches and plays is supplied by the AVM service from this office, it was explained.

Dobrowski said that there will be a total of twenty-four listening stations scattered in groups of four around coffee tables in the Music Room. Each listener will have a choice of nine program options, he explained.

The nine stations will offer varied selections of cartridge tapes, classical and rock music and spoken word recordings, Dobrowski said. He added that in the evenings pa rons can bring in their own recordings and tapes to be played from the desk on one of the stations.

Volume control and channel selection will be at the disposal of the listener at his post, he said.

Headsets will be supplied at the desk in the Music Room, John Barbaro, of the staff, said. He noted that listeners will be welcome to bring in their own equipment to plug in at the stations if they felt the quality was superior to AVM's headsets.

Barbaro explained that AVM hopes to establish a library of tapes in the Campus Center. He said that already 200 tapes have been ordered.

When the Music Room officially opens (about April 1st) Barbaro hopes that color television, and a daylight projection screen for slide shows will be installed to allow the listeners at the stations to mix sounds and visual excitants.

Dobroski foresees only one problem in the operation of the Music Rooom and media service in general, that of theft. He said expensive equipment has been "ripped off" at many gatherings when the media facilities were utilized.

"Students don't realize that the media equipment is theirs," Dobrowski said. "The most admirable part of the service is that it is free to all students who have paid the Student Union tax, and to non-students who pay a small fee."

The department head said he doesn't understand why students would walk away with equipment that they are free to check out of the office at no cost.

All student movies except in Southwest area are run by AVM, Dobrowski said. DVP speakers and concerts also employ the media service at a cost of $3.00 per hour for labor, he added.

Limited use of the AVM's small supply of cassettes, tapes and recorders and projection equipment is available at no cost to the student he said. He noted that check out is simple, and contrary to popular opinion, no great skill is required to operate the machines.

The Campus Center Governing Board allotted $20,000. to the media service this year, Dobrowski said. Next year's budget has not yet been worked out, but there is no limit to what the service can provide if given the proper funds, he declared.

"Without media there could be no youth culture," Dubrowski stated.

He went on to say that light shows and telephones and music communicate electronically and that is what service is all about.

Dubrowski stressed that the difference between media programming and service is that the students plan the former and AVM helps them to carry out their plans in the latter stage.

If a student wishes to take advantage of this service, Dubrowski said to contact him or any of the staff members in the Student Union balcony office, or to go to the scheduling office in the Campus Center to obtain request forms.

ALL SYSTEMS GO—ready for blast-off. Pictured here is the control panel for the Campus Center's new audio-visual room. The room should be opened by April 1. MDC photo by Al Jagoda.

Student Mobe Charges:

Invasion Info Withheld

U.S. Troops are massing on the border of Laos. U.S. Troops are massing on the border of North Vietnam. U.S. Troops are giving "ground protection" in Cambodia. These are all separate facts which have been presented to us through the syndicated news media, but without specific reference to, or accusation of, a major escalation in the war or emphasis of U.S. Troops invading other countries. Why? A spokesman from the SMC explained it this way:

"Nixon is like a well trained lab rat; the rat, after just so many mistakes, learns to alter his behavior in a way that doesn't register as a mistake. Nixon has learned that in order to get through the maze, he has to make sure that his mistakes don't register as mistakes with the American Public. Last spring, he told the globe, by radio, satelite, and television, that the U.S. was staging a tremendous escalation/invasion into Cambodia. This resulted in the rapid, massive response of the antiwar movement. He won't try that this year with the Laos invasion; it seems to be now tell-them-a-small-step-at-a-time tactic."

Last year after the formal announcement of the Cambodian escalation, there was a response by hundreds of thousands of American and foreign protesters mostly among students. American students organized around an intolerance to the war expansion and the demand for "immediate withdrawal of all U.S. Troops from Southeast Asia." Several hundred schools, colleges, and universities were shut down to stop business as usual and opened up to study the U.S. economy and foreign policy. The antiwar movement hit a high-point.

What has happened to the antiwar movement now? First, there have been campaigns to repress the movement, beginning last spring.

California schools were closed to disperse the organized students. Indictments against students at Kent State were drawn, and information from Kent to the Media was consequently withheld. Even information concerning Southeast Asia presented to Congress is limited.

In light of these restrictions, there has been much demoralization in the antiwar movement. But review quickly the recent accomplishments of the antiwar movement. The Cambodian invasion was called to a halt by the designated June 30 deadline. Last October 31, the largest demonstrations ever held in an election season were held. More and more people (courtesy of the Harris poll) are claiming antiwar beliefs, in geographical areas which were previously designated "prowar bastions". The National Referendum on the war was taken in Detroit, San Francisco, and Massachusetts, further emphasizing antiwar sentiment among U.S. voters.

This brings us to the question of spring antiwar strategy. Major demonstrations have been called for April 24th in Washington D.C., and San Francisco. This day of mass action has drawn endorsement from significant new sections of the U.S. population. Contingents of Black and Third World activists, Women and Gay liberationists, Labor Unions, and GI's and Veterans against the war are among these. This promises to be the largest massive, peaceful, legal antiwar demonstration ever organized.

The point of all this is that organizing on the UMass campus and surrounding area must be done. Tonight, in room 803 in the Campus Center at 8:00 p.m. there will be a planning session for spring actions, local and national, to insure the spring antiwar calender. So join the Student Mobilization Committee tonight to help insure a not-so-silent-spring.

North Viet Tanks Gather In South Laos

SAIGON (AP)—Enemy tank reinforcements were reported closing in on a major South Vietnamese position in the Laos panhandle Monday and Saigon rushed fresh troops northward to bolster its units.

As the Laos campaign entered its fourth week, the situation still was fluid in the drive to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail. But more hard fighting was expected.

U.S. helicopter pilots told newsmen they had seen tanks moving around the Highway 9 town of Ban Dong and a concentration in the area of a South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division position known as Hotel 2. They gave no numbers of tanks spotted.

Hotel 2 is 22 miles southwest of Lang Vei, and last week was reported under strong enemy pressure.

Ban Dong is 15 miles inside Laos.

While U.S. authorities have declared that no American ground combat support will take part in the Laos operation. The U.S. Command has acknowledged the loss of 36 helicopters on both sides of the border since the Laos operation began Feb. 8. Other American aircraft, including jet fighter-bombers, also arrived.

Reports from Vientiane said that in other areas of Laos, North Vietnamese forces were putting pressure on military posts. These accounts said several battalions of enemy troops were reported massing near the secret Long Cheng base in northern Laos, while other Communist-led units knocked out a guerrilla base supported by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency just north of the Plain of Jars.

Although the South Vietnamese push into southern Laos dominated attention in the Indochina theater, more sharp fighting was reported to the south in Cambodia. South Vietnamese troops operating across the border less than 200 miles north of Saigon reported killing 47 of the enemy Sunday. South Vietnamese headquarters reported that government forces lost two men killed and three wounded.

The drive into Cambodia alsoaimed at destroying enemy supply systems and knocking out possible efforts to build up for action.

NEWS 5-2550

Tuition Hike Aired Tonite

Tonight at 10:00 P.M., the tuition hike will be the subject of conversation between members of the USCC, including Judy Gill and Bob Harrington, with Rick Verrochi, Treasurer of the Student Senate. They will be talking about the proposed tuition hike with Dick Poholek of WMUA. Telephone calls will be accepted. That's at 10:00 p.m. tonight on WMUA, 91.1 FM.

MDC Classifieds

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

March 1 & 2
Southwest Cinema
Admission 50¢
Sponsored by
Southwest Patriots

Taming of the Shrew

with Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton

Hampden Commons
Showings 7:15 & 9:30

State Ed. Committee To Hold Tuition Hearings

On March 16 the joint education committee of the state legislature will hold an open hearing to discuss the proposed tuition hike for all state funded schools. The hearing will be held in the state house in Gardner Auditorium.

Judy Gill, who is the UMass chairwoman for lobbying against the proposed hike, said "Each school which is involved in the hike will send one official delegate to represent its stand on the tuition hike. Also each school will hopefully send a carload of students to testify before the education committee."

The education committee would go into an executive hearing and make its proposed recommendations. Miss Gill stated "If there is no increase in tuition from the education committee then there is probably little chance of either chamber passing the bill. But if the committee decides in favor of a tuition hike, then my committee will take off in another lobbying campaign."

An advertising campaign will get underway after March 16, if the proposed hike is approved. "Each school will take out ads in their local town newspapers," Judy mentioned, "and a reprinting of the policy statements and support of the administration, faculty, and students will also appear." The money to pay for these ads will come from contributions from the faculty, students, etc.

Exactly three weeks after March 16 a full-page ad will be taken out in the Sunday issue of the Boston Globe. The layout of the ad would consist of all the previous ads in the local newspaper. "The payment for this ad," Judy stated, "would come from the total number of students enrolled at the schools." "For instance UMass would contribute 22 per cent of the cost whereas Greenfield Community would contribute 1.06 per cent," said Miss Gill.

Another lobbying factor would be to get in contact with various radio stations. "If their editorial policy is in favor of the hike then possibly some students could go on the program and discuss the hike," added Miss Gill.

Judy mentioned, "There is a point of contention between the tuition hike and no tuition increase at all." "Education is no longer for the rich," stated Judy, "it is necessary for everyone and it should be free for everyone. I'm realistic enough to see that this probably wouldn't go through, but I still believe that education is necessary and should be free."

"If the education committee does ask for a tuition hike then we are totally prepared," Judy stated firmly. "I ask every student and their parents to write to their senator and representative. While you're home on vacation write a letter, make a phone call, and go and see your senator or representative. This is the most effective way of lobbying for your cause."

A drive is underway on campus to register all eligible voters. This is your chance to vote on the proposed tuition hike. If you don't know the name of your senator or representative or if you have any further questions concerning the tuition hike and form of lobbying contact Judy Gill at the USCC office. The number is 50174. "Again," Judy added, "Help us lobby over Spring vacation. Write a letter, make a phone call, and see your senator or representative."

RSO To Be Examined

By BOB SCHEIER
MDC Staff

David Poisson, the former president of the Sophomore class, is working with Pat Beharry, the Vice President of the Student Senate, to form a committee to investigate the working of the RSO, which they feel is not working to the students' benefit.

Poisson feels that some members of the RSO are not working as hard as they should or are overstepping their roles as advisors to the student organizations on planning functions. He adds that Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Randolph Bromery has expressed to Miss Beharry his dissatisfaction with the RSO also.

While the two are now only working on a very simple level, Miss Beharry is exploring on the problem at the Whitmore level, "and she has complaints against some specific people."

As instances of RSO personnel "fluffing off" on their jobs, Mr. Poisson gave such examples as the recent Bernadette Devlin speech given in the cage. Although it was at 4:30 in the afternoon during regular office hours, members of the RSO staff were there, and they were not performing any necessary function. During this time, he says, they were not available for consultation to the rest of the student body.

He also feels that planning for the planned Spring free concert by the Interim Concert Committee, of which he is a member, is a good example of RSO members trying to unduly influence student decisions.

"The Greeks put forth a plan which would place the concert in the fields by Southwest; when it came out of RSO the location had been changed to the bowl in back of the Student Union. Of course, this was just their suggestion and it's since been overruled, but they gave us really ridiculous reasons for changing the location. It's been suggested by some people that the reason for this is to channel more money into the Student Union and Campus Center food concessions by the business such as a concert would bring."

He adds that further investigation will bring specific complaints, which will probably include a recommendation for the overhaul of the entire RSO structure.

The Recognized Students Organizations serves as an advisory group of full-time staffers, whose job is to help and advise students in the various campus activities.

Student Senate Bus; Win Some, Lose Some

By STEVE FELD
MDC Staff

The Student Senate Bus service, has apparently lost some ground in almost a year of legal action taken against them by the area's two commercial bus lines--Peter Pan and Western Massachusetts, according to its director, Bill Perkins.

The conflict arose this summer when the shuttle service started to transport various groups out-of town, such as the Belchertown and Northampton Volunteers. Since it didn't have the required license, an attorney of Peter Pan and Western Mass. claimed it was illegal and must be stopped. They complained that the shuttle was in direct competition with them and took away potential customers.

The bus lines said that if this was stopped immediately no action would be taken. They even proposed their own on-campus shuttle costing ten cents a ride, which Chancellor Tippo flatly rejected.

The shuttle continued to run, however, and subsequent legal action followed. The Department of Public Utilities investigated the matter, finding nothing objectionable, since it involved and serviced the students of UMass. Attorneys continued, though, and finally the off-campus shuttle was declared illegal and ordered to stop running last Sun.

The shuttle now runs on only the streets that it has permits for, and all special buses for various clubs, frats and other outside activities have ended.

William Perkins, head of the campus shuttle, is pleased with the decision. "It gives us the ability to serve almost anyone, with the exception of special groups. It could have been much more restrictive," he said.

Now, it is up to the Student Senate to take whatever action they feel necessary. Perkins said that the chances for having funds provided to them for off-campus busing is good. He also mentioned that the Senate might also seek legal means of broadening the ability of services available to the shuttle.

Perkins also mentioned the fact that if UMass makes either the NIT or the NCAA, charter service will be available.

Marriage-Alive And Changing

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Marriage is not a dying institution but is changing for the better because the old reasons for marrying are dying out, says Jean Stone, who has spent years studying marriages.

"The divorces which are raising the statistics are either of the very young, who married for the old trap of status symbol, or they end marriages of 20 years or longer which have been sour for a long time but were held together for the sake of children," Mrs. Stone said Monday.

She outlines the views in a series on "Marriage as a Deposed Hope" beginning this week at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"The reason for marriage, even in the last generation, were so different from those of today," she said. "A girl stayed in her family home until she wed - she was expected to get married. Not being married imposed some kind of onus on her as a human being.

"Now a young girl frequently takes an apartment as soon as she completes high school and begins her college or working years as an independent entity. She has a chance to discover exactly who she is all by herself."

Another reason for her optimism over the future of marriage as an institution is that now young people "have more candor and are more willing to talk things out in advance."

Mrs. Stone, wife of biographer Irving Stone, blames materialistic society and a happily-ever-after syndrome for many marriage problems.

"Having 834 symphony orchestras at the wedding doesn't say one thing about the real values we are transmitting to our young - about understanding our fellow human beings, about the cultured home, about congregations of many faiths who are more concerned about new buildings than the strength promulgated by their religions.

"The knowing, intelligent young are rebelling against these false standards. They are searching to know honestly who they are and, finding themselves, want honestly to know the person they choose for marriage."

Female Chosen Carni Queen

Sandy Clark of South Hadley has been named Winter Carnival Queen.

James LaMacchia, the only male who had been running with five women, withdrew his name on Friday. He said he felt he had demonstrated the nature of sexism on campus especially since his write-in votes had not been counted.

The Student Court had ruled that such write-in votes violated selection rules. He said that, once his point had been made to continue running would only have hurt the other girls.

Sandy Clark was crowned in a private ceremony Sunday evening.

Free Music Planned

By ROBERT SCHEIER
MDC Staff

The Interim Coordinating Committee met in the Campus Center last night, and proceeded with plans for a free Spring concert to be held on the UMass campus within the next two months.

The group, which is made up of representatives from Southwest, the Greeks, a Black group, the Program Council, and the Commuter Assembly, renamed itself the Concert Committee. It then formed a talent and an arrangements committee to secure a group and to handle sanitation and sound equipment.

It has been decided that with the amount of money available somewhere in the area of $30,000- that the best arrangement would be a one day concert to be held in the fields by Southwest. There is the possibility that the Southwest Patriots or a similar organization would be able to provide food, under an arrangement yet to be worked out.

Presently, the type of group to play, the date, and other exact arrangements are awaiting further workby the newly formed committees.

IT'S TUESDAY

and this is the last week to have your SENIOR PORTRAIT taken for the Index.

Make your appointment TODAY in the INDEX OFFICE, S.U.

Edgar Reitz's
MAHL ZEITEN
Winner of "Best Film for a New Director" Award at the Venice Film Festival 1966
March 2 Thompson 104 at 8:30
Admission 75c

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

Nomination Papers
for STUDENT SENATE
are available for the following Dorm vacancies

Butterfield
Lewis
Hills North
Washington Lower
Washington Middle Brett
Pierpont
Leach

DUE MARCH 5
Elections March 11

In The Nation And The World

Capitol Bombed; Linked to Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) - An early morning bomb blast, reportedly linked to a protest against the U.S.-supported invasion of Laos, ripped up an interior section of the Senate wing of the Capitol today causing extensive damage but no injuries.

"This is apparently a political bombing, said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. He said the Senate sergeant at arms, Robert G. Dunphy, told him a letter had been found linked to the bombing and referring to U.S. operations in Laos.

Scott said a male caller who contacted the Capitol switchboard to give advance warning of the blast also referred to the Laotian invasion.

Capitol police and FBI spokesmen, however, would neither confirm nor deny the link to antiwar protesters.

Meanwhile, President Nixon issued a statement through White House spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler calling the bombing "a shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans."

The blast pulverized a men's room and damaged other rooms, but did not touch the Senate chamber itself.

Perhaps coincidentally, it came 17 years to the day after Puerto Rican nationalists shot and wounded five congressmen from the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives. It also caused the most extensive damage to the building since the British set it afire in 1814.

Scott said the effect of the bombing will be unfortunate, both in this country and internationally.

"It's likely to be exaggerated," he said. "They won't realize that it's one bomb in one washroom."

Scott also took the occasion to criticize federal judges in the District of Columbia, accusing them of too much leniency.

He said even if the person who placed the bomb is arrested "my guess would be they'll never go to jail, not with the type of appellate court we have in the District of Columbia."

Police, Army and FBI investigators were seeking clues to the identity of the male caller who warned the Capitol switchboard: "The Capitol building will blow up in 30 minutes."

Half an hour later, at 1:32 a.m. EST, the bomb exploded. Capitol Police Chief James Powell said one of his officers was within 200 feet of the blast but escaped injury despite windows breaking "right over his head."

The blast gutted a men's room directly across from the Old Senate Chamber, blasted doors off their hinges in several surrounding rooms, and blew out windows all the way out to the Senate's front door - perhaps 125 feet.

Bricks, doors, lighting and other fixtures were piled high in a corridor when newsmen were allowed a brief inspection about six hours after the blast.

The men's room - open to the public but generally only known about by people working in the area - was a grey hulk filled with tiny pieces of plumbing fixtures and grey plaster rubble. It was almost impossible to tell it had been a rest room.

A red brick wall on one side of the men's room was badly cracked and bulging out into the corridor. Plaster molding on the corridor wall was blown away and littered the floor along with glass from broken windows.

Gold lace curtains were pushed out against and sometimes through broken windows all the way down to the ornately painted committee and reception rooms on the north end of the Senate Chamber. The front door, another 50 feet away, was broken.

The Senate barber shop, across a small hallway from the men's room, was badly littered and mirrors and windows were shattered but the barber chairs and other heavy equipment were not mangled or moved.

The outside of the historic Old Senate Chamber, which was used from 1800 to 1808 and was the scene of President John Adams inauguration, Nov. 22, 1800, was not damaged. The door was closed and newsmen did not look inside.

Capitol police said there had been six bomb threats since Christmas. Chief Powell said routine procedures were used between 1 a.m. and 1:32 a.m. when the blast occurred.

Sen. George Aiken, R—Vt., returned from viewing the damage and said he believes the warning phone call and its early-morning timing bear the "earmark of organization."

Engineers in the office of the architect of the Capitol looked for possible structural injury to the historic and ancient west front.

Thomas F. Clancy, supervising engineer of the Capitol, said through a spokesman that it was too early to determine the full extent of the damage.

Windows were blasted out directly above the huge wooden beams that were braced against the West front several years ago, but there were no visible cracks or any other damage in the wall itself.

There were cracks, however, in the interior section of another wall some distance from the west front close to the blast area.

The Senate Chamber itself, in a new section of the building, was not damaged.

Washington, D.C. police, FBI and Army bomb experts from nearby Ft. McNair searched the building. Washington police used German shepherd dogs, and combed other parts of the Capitol looking for any other bombs.

The Capitol had closed to the public at 5 p.m. EST Sunday. Officials said all custodial personnel had left the building some hours before the explosions. Only members of the Capitol police force were inside at the time.

Nixon In Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - President Nixon told the Iowa Legislature Monday that his six-point program will bring "a new American revolution, a peaceful revolution."

Nixon reinforced his bid for support from the farm belt by boosting by $100 million his original proposal to share in rural development. The original figure was $1 billion.

He said the $1.1 billion total for the coming fiscal year represents "24 per cent more for rural development programs than is being made available to the states under existing categorical grant programs."

The President announced the increase in a speech to a joint session of the Iowa House and Senate in the House chamber.

The six goals Nixon mentioned embrace federal revenue sharing with state, county and municipal governments, welfare reform, better health care, reorganization of the federal Cabinet level departments and improved environment, and an expansionary budget to fight inflation.

Nixon got repeated applause as he outlined his goals.

But the chief executive drew some boos and snowballs outside the statehouse from demonstrators protesting everything from pig prices to curbs on the construction industry and the Indochina war.

Nixon appeared unperturbed by any of this as he entered and left the building.

He motored downtown to the Fort Des Moines Hotel for a conference on rural development with four Midwest governors - host Robert D. Ray of Iowa, Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois, Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri and Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin.

The governors brought along key state officials. Nixon had with him four Cabinet members. Among others, Mrs. Nixon accompanied him on the trip.

Before entering the hotel, Nixon paused outside and told a newsman that bombings such as that in the Capitol in Washington Monday morning must not lead to the closing of great public buildings.

He said the violent demonstrators would like to keep him in Washington so he could not come out in the country, but that it would not work.

The Des Moines appearance was the first in a series - there will be another in Rochester, N.Y., Friday - in which Nixon will be pushing the domestic programs he outlined in his State of the Union message to Congress.

Nixon told the legislature: "If the lessons of the past decades mean anything, they mean that as power has been concentrated more and more in Washington, as decisions have been made by remote control, the special needs of our rural communities and of the great heartland of America more and more have either been neglected or even gone unrecognized."

So Vietnamese Plunge Into Eastern Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) - The North Vietnamese have set up new sanctuary base areas in eastern Cambodia, and Saigon forces are plunging across the border to try to smash them, a top American field commander said Monday.

Heavy fighting in Cambodia has been overshadowed by the South Vietnamese drive into Laos to cut North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh trail supply lines that feed the Cambodian sanctuaries.

"The South Vietnamese are tangled up with two North Vietnamese divisions in Cambodia, the 7th and the 9th," said Lt. Gen. Michale S. Davison, outgoing commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force.

Davison commanded American troops who took part in the first thrust into Cambodia last May. He is leaving soon for a new assignment as commander of the U.S. Army in Europe and the 7th Army.

"There's been some pretty heavy fighting," Davison said in an interview. "Thus far, it looks to us like the North Vietnamese have gotten the worst of it."

He said the new sanctuaries are located in an area called Dam Be halfway between Highway 7 and the town of Chhlong on the eastern banks of the Meking River. Chhlong is 115 miles northwest of Saigon. The allies did not drive this far north during the major incursions of last May and June.

Davison said that, when the allied drive across the border was launched last May, documentary evidence indicated that the Communist command moved at least 200 tons of war materials out of the sanctuary areas under fire.

The operation is getting the full range of U.S. air support including helicopter gunships from the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

One aim of the operation, other officers said, is to protect the few U.S. combat troops and the sizeable American logistics force that will remain in the Saigon region.

The U.S. Command has already begun phasing 20,000 American combat troops out of the Saigon area, and the move will be completed over the next two months.

Davison feels that by tying down two North Vietnamese divisions, they are kept from launching a dry season offensive either in South Vietnam or Cambodia.

English Workers Walk Out

LONDON (AP) - A walkout by more than two million workers, protesting the government's strike-control bill, halted vital sections of British industry Monday in defiance of the national trade union leadership.

Militants closed down newspapers, shut car plants and shipyards and disrupted hundreds of firms in engineering and allied trades.

An unofficial poll of industries affected by the walkout estimated total lost production for the day at nearly $24 million.

By far the biggest loser was the British Leyland Motor Co., Britain's biggest car manufacturer. The company estimated its loss at $9.6 million to $12 million.

But the 24-hour stoppage may have backfired against the union militants by touching off the strongest reaction within the trade union movement yet.

Moderate national union leaders countered with rival proposals for fighting the government bill without strikes.

One- Armed Bandits Shot Down By AF

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Air Force is phasing out slot machines at its overseas bases and will banish them entirely after July 1, 1972. The Air Force decision is the latest of a series of actions taken by the military against the gambling devices, once defended by the Pentagon as money-making morale builders.

In Senate hearings over the past two years slot machines have been denounced as sources of stealing, bribes, payoffs and kickbacks in the military services' off-duty clubs.

Pleasure !

A Neptune Water Bed can draw every tension and anxiety from your tired body. Close your eyes and in just moments you are heading back to the womb — floating in the embryonic fluid of inner space. A Neptune Water Bed can make the act of love almost unbearably intense — your senses will be awakened in hundreds of new ways. If you call me, Bob, at 527-3324 during the evening I will tell you how you can own this incredible bed at the lowest price in the area.

Barbwire Theatre presents

"THE CAGE"

A play about life in San Quentin Prison

BOWKER AUDITORIUM

March 7, 2 and 7 p.m.

Tickets will go on sale at the Student Union Ticket Office today

Price: Orchestra $1.50 — Balcony $1.00

Sponsored by Campus Center Program Council

Draft Counselor's Corner

Sole Survivor Little Known

By GILBERT SALK
MDC Staff

There is one automatic deferment which many people know nothing about, the deferment for a sole surviving son. Anyone who meets the legal definition for this classification is automatically entitled to it, and usually meets no resistance from his draft board.

Simply, a sole surviving son is a registrant who has no living brothers, and who has some relative (immediate family) who has either been killed in a war or who has died of some war-related injury or disease.

To ease any possible confusion here, let's consider a few examples.

You are an only child, or your other siblings are all sisters. Your father was killed in action in the Korean Conflict (really a war, but it's bad PR to call it that.) You qualify for this deferment. If you have a living brother, you don't.

Both your parents are living, but your only brother was killed in Vietnam--blood brother, that is--the army does not believe that all men are brothers. You qualify.

Your sister (or mother) was in the WACs and died as a result of a plane crash while transferring to a new unit. If you have no living brothers, you qualify.

Your father was injured in WW II, and the injuries left him in a weakened condition which eventually contributed to his death fifteen years later. Again, if you have no living brothers, you qualify.

Your brother died as the result of an automobile crash on base. He was on duty at the time. If you have no living brothers, you qualify.

Your only brother was killed in an accident while on leave. Your father is still living. You do not qualify.

Your father died of a heart attack which was unrelated to any military injuries. You do not qualify. Your father died of some war-related injuried. You do qualify.

The picture should be clear. The qualifying factors are: 1. You may have no living brothers, and 2. Either your father, your mother, or a brother or sister must have died as a result of military-related injuries. The death need not be as a direct result of war, nor need to be immediate. If the death-causing injuries can be directly related to the military, you qualify for this deferment.

The documentation for this deferment would consist of a copy of the Death Certificate, a statement from the Veteran's Administration (preferably) or from a doctor testifying that the cause of death was related to a military injury or disease, and a statement certifying that you are the only surviving son in the family.

As with all other correspondence with your draft board, copies of the documents should be sent to the board by Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested, and the receipt should be stapled to your copy when it comes back. If you have any questions about this classification, you should consult a qualified craft counselor.

Questions to this column should be addressed to: Gilbert J. Salk, c/o Draft Counseling Services RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002.
Free personal draft counseling available. Draft Counseling Services, 418E Student Union 2nd. floor.

Lettuce Controversy Continues, Food Services Buys It On Bids

There has been a great deal of controversy regarding boycotts at UMass. First there was the Grape Boycott, and now the Lettuce Boycott. The University Food Service Department's problem here, is where does its allegiance lie? To the welfare of the boycott, or to itself and the University, in choosing the least expensive bid from the company.

Mr. Joel Stoneham, Director of Food Services, says that the Food Service's policy will be to purchase the very best quality for the least amount of money possible, with competitive bids.

The Food Service Department is now taking weekly bids from four produce companies, three in the Springfield area, one in the Boston area, in purchasing fresh produce. The options are to buy from United Farm Workers, Teamsters, or Non-Union Lettuce.

"The Lettuce Boycott, isn't," stated Mr. Stoneham, "the same as the Grape Boycott was several years ago." That was for the ability of the grape pickers to be represented by a union. The Lettuce Boycott, however, is action between two unions, and "it is impossible for us to take sides in such a dispute," Mr. Stoneham concluded.

It is quite possible that a petition with eight thousand names may be submitted urging the purchasing of United Farm Workers Lettuce. When asked what the policy of the Department will be then, Mr. Stoneham asserted that he does want to take into consideration, the thoughts and wishes of all those at the University, and that "I am responsible for the proper administration procedure for this Department. There may be a conflict of desires, when and if a petition is submitted to me," he admitted.

There will be an Eyewitness Report from Israel tonight in the Hillel Center, room 420 SU at 8:15. Professors Martin Dosick of Springfield College and Myron Glazer of Smith College will speak on their reactions to a December tour of Israel which they took with more than 20 other professors from New England Universities. The purpose of the tour was to learn from Israeli colleagues, government officials, and other resource people about Israel's plans and prospects with regard to the current Middle East situation. The lecture - discussion is open to the public.

Food Service Seminar To Start Today

An eight-session seminar for food service people on "Improving Communication In Food Service Operations" will be presented by the Department of Hotel and Restaurant Administration at West Springfield starting today.

The two-hour evening sessions will be held in the auditorium of the Western Massachusetts Electric Company building on Brush Hill Rd., from 7 to 9 p.m., March 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and April 6, 13, and 20. The seminar is an offering of the Cooperation Extension Program of the UMass College of Agriculture's department of hotel and restaurant administration.

Topics include cost of ineffective communication, the communication process, blocks to good communication, the relationship of communication to merchandising, and the ways in which the efficiency of communication in food service operations can be improved.

The seminar is designed for people in all types of food service operations and is open to all interested. There is a registration fee of $25 and advance registration is necessary.

Applications and additional information are available from Charles E. Eshbach, Department of Hotel and Restaurant Administration, 215 Chenoweth Laboratory.

Beekman Publishes New Book

The first published novel by E.M. Beekman has been called an "elegant study in psychosis" by a New York Times reviewer.

Eric Montague Beekman, associate professor of English at UMass has written "Lame Duck," the story of a solitary man who lives in Amsterdam, Holland, where the author was born. Beekman's character, Hugo Lenz, is lame, orphaned, and plagued with "spooks" and fantasies from his loneliness. Publisher is Houghton Mifflin Company.

Thirty-two-year-old Prof. Beekman came to the University in 1968 after earning his doctorate degree in comparative literature from Harvard University. He has a bachelor's degree in English and comparative literature from the University of California at Berkeley. The author, who came to this country from Holland in 1957, was a Woodrow Wilson Fellow at Harvard in 1962-64. He studied under a Harvard Fellowship the following year, on a Fulbright Scholarship to Belgium the next year, and a Woodrow Wilson Dissertation Fellowship in 1966-67.

He has written fiction and poetry for a variety of magazines, and teaches languages and literature at UMass.

BECOME A N.Y.U. NURSE

Do you want the identity of a professional practitioner? Do you want to work with, not just among, professional colleagues in the health field?

As a N.Y.U. Nurse you have case assignments ... not just nursing routine. Planning and sharing with doctors, physical therapists, social workers and other ancillary personnel are all part of our unique staff utilization program that combines opportunity and advancement with direct patient care.

Join our staff and receive unparalleled growth opportunity, inservice training and free tuition toward graduate studies.

For full details about nursing at N.Y.U., see our campus recruiter on MARCH 5, 1971. Check details as to time and place with your placement office ... or write or call collect:

Miss M. Kerans, (212) OR 9-3200, Ext. 2647

N.Y.U. Medical Center
568 First Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10016

an equal opportunity employer

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'na'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

WATER BEDS dealers wanted

noah's waterbed co.

56 Arbor Street
Hartford, Conn. 06106
1 (203) 523-8360

Tues. March 2

A MUST meeting for station personnel constitutional amendments will be voted on we need your vote. The time is 7:30, so come and make YOUR vote count.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — David Williams
NEWS STAFF — Lisa Chernick, Jim Mitchell, Doug Dearborn
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Nance Smith
PHOTO — Al Jagoda, Ken Emery, Larry Goldberg
AD LAYOUT — Chris Domian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

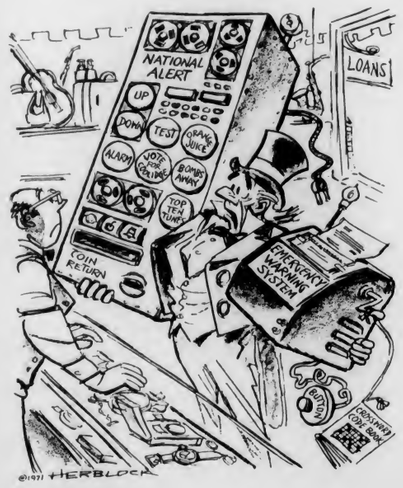
Man and Bombs

The bomb which ripped apart a small, infrequently used men's room in the Capitol building yesterday was the product of man. That perverted creature, who regularly drops, propels, throws, detonates, launches, and stockpiles trillions of tons of bombs.

Those who have condemned the bombing of the Capitol, because the domed edifice is a "symbol of freedom" and because it "Belongs to the American people", should stop and think that the American Armed Forces, with money approved of on Capitol Hill, both of which belong to the American people, are bombing just as senselessly everyday.

The bombing of the Capitol injured no one. We have "wasted" about 700,000 human beings in the Vietnam War.

What the American people have not yet realized is that the act of bombing isn't really that unusual for man. That the planting of a bomb is no more difficult than building it.



When an American G.I. throws a bomb at the enemy it is because his leaders have decided there is no other way to resolve the apparent conflict. When an individual citizen throws a bomb at a government building, in his own country, he probably can see no other means of resolving a conflict, he feels he has with the government.

In the case of the Vietnam War, the individual citizen seems to have no tangible effect on a country which might have gotten itself deeply committed to a war, for reasons as trivial as "huge deposits" of oil. When the disapproval of the country's conduct gains wide proportions in segments of the populace who normally have no effectiveness, the masses. Then one can expect some of the more frustrated individuals would find bomb planting a healthy release.

Certainly, when our own leaders have found themselves frustrated about how little control they have over the affairs of soveriegn nations they too have gotten frustrated and have started throwing bombs. That type of behavior in our nation has given us all our capabilities, including the one where we can destroy the world hundreds of times over.

We didn't mean to make propaganda over the act of one bomber, who was against "Nixon's Laotian involvement," but somehow, American's have to view the bombing, in the 8 year context of murder, death, filth and corruption of this nation's Southeast Asian activities.

"I'd Like To Trade In The Whole Thing For A Guy With A Horse And A Couple Of Lanterns In A Church Steeple"

Richard C. Hanson

A Poignant Reminder

Every now and then a University president will rise to the public forum and make a statement about tuition or the "future of education". Usually, the comments are geared to serve a strictly partisan cause.

For examples:

UMass President Bob Wood told a couple of reporters from the Herald-Traveler, that he was opposed to a tuition hike because it wouldn't really help the State's coffer. Then Wood went on to explore future roles for the University. He wants to make UMass-Boston a model for the nation.

Then about a mile away, in the studios of WKBG (channel 56), the new president of B.U. sat down with newsmen from the Globe and the station itself, to expound upon the necessity of raising the tuition for state colleges and universities to $2000, with an elaborate system of aid to those who need it. The result, evisioned by Dr. John Silber, will be to "save" private education by keeping the state from "giving away" higher education.

Both Dr. Silber and President Wood are new to their positions as leaders of huge institutions of education, and they probably haven't had time to sit down, maybe over a drink, and discuss their apparently conflicting ideas on higher education in Massachusetts.

If they had then each would probably recognize the other's goals and just as likely come up with some sort of new concept for Massachusetts Higher Education.

At the moment, Dr. Silber has to keep his University afloat financially and functionally. And President Wood has to convince a wary legislature that UMass can really become the "effective" prober into a better future, by dealing with the problems our society is facing. Wood must also convince everybody that there is a real need for the state to "give away higher education", as Dr. Silber would put it.

Perhaps if the two presidents did talk things over, there would be a recognition that the problems of public and private education are just about the same. Perhaps too, there would be a realization that both are in need of money and that it will be a collective effort, utilizing all of higher education's resources to wrestle with the problems of the next decade.

If one were to follow such a conversation to its logical conclusion, the two might decide that both private education and public education need state support. Perhaps, subsidizing of all higher education is the key to future betterment. UMass could have very low tuition as "public education", which will continue to expand, and the private sector will be able to maintain its standards of intellectual excellence and further cooperate with all of higher education to provide answers that our national and state dilemmas require.

The need for a general policy towards higher education in Massachusetts has long been recognized by some in the state. Some will go as far as advocating co-operation and pooling of resources on a massive scale amongst schools like B.U. and UMass.

The poignent reminder of how distant such solutions are, however, lies in watching University presidents telling the public that the solution in simplistic, and narrow avenues. Both Wood and Sibler, I am sure, are aware that each other exists. And just as assuredly, I bet that President Wood has dreamed in the early morning hours of having Sibler's resources. And Sibler probably looks towards Beacon Hill and wishes that his institution could be certain of remaining open.

With sound non-partisan (and hopefully non-political) reasoning, Massachusetts could tap and maintain one of the greatest concentrations of higher education expertise in the nation.

Art Buchwald

Civil Defense And Television

WASHINGTON—The recent fiasco at NORAD, when the wrong tape was inserted in a computer, warning the country that there was a national emergency and all TV and radio stations should go off the air, boggles the imagination.

The message containing code words "hatefulness, hatefulness" was only supposed to be used for a real nuclear attack. The fact that the message was ignored by most TV and radio stations shows how serious the credibility gap is in this country between the people and its government.

Civil Defense and military leaders are now investigating the foul-up and trying to find new fail-safe methods of alerting the public to a nuclear missile attack.

My friend Wafferman was explaining at dinner the other night what had happened at NORAD, when his 17-year-old son, Joel, raised some disturbing questions.

"Why would they want to turn off all the television programs and radio shows in case of a nuclear attack?"

"Because," Wafferman said, "it would give President Nixon an opportunity to go on the air and calm the people."

"I don't want to hear President Nixon just before I die," Joel said adamantly.

"You're not going to die," Wafferman said. "The reason for the alert is to allow everyone to prepare himself for a nuclear attack."

"I read somewhere that we will only have a half-hour before we get zonked."

"That's about right," Wafferman replied.

"Well, what are we supposed to do in that half-hour?"

"I don't know," Wafferman said, getting slightly irritated. "That's what President Nixon is supposed to tell us when all the TV stations go off the air."

"Maybe we're supposed to fill our bathtubs with water?" Joel said.

"I don't like you being sarcastic about nuclear war. It's very unpatriotic."

"Or maybe he'll tell us to run outside and put plastic over our heads."

"It's typical of your generation," Wafferman said, trying not to lose his temper, "that even when there is a nuclear attack you have no faith in the President of the United States."

"I do have faith in the President. He'll probably describe it as the greatest nuclear attack in the history of mankind. But if I have a half-hour to live I'd rather watch I Love Lucy."

"Now let me tell you something. This civilian warning system has been worked out by the best brains in this country," Wafferman said. "Millions and millions of dollars have been spent to give every man, woman and child in this country 30 minutes notice before the enemy strikes. Without the warning system, none of us would ever know what hit us."

"I'd even settle for a re-run of McHale's Navy," Joel said.

"I don't see any reason to continue this discussion," Wafferman said, "if you can't see the importance of Civil Defense in time of nuclear attack."

"I see the importance of it," Joel replied. "But what I don't understand is why we can't watch a good television show just before we go. Why can't a compromise be worked out? Nixon can be on one of the channels, and the other stations can continue their regular programming. Then people will at least have a choice of what they can watch in the last 30 minutes of their lives."

Joel started to laugh.

"What's so funny?" Wafferman asked.

"I'd like to be around, just to see the TV ratings the next day."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

I Know A Person Who...

I know a person who is what a person should be.

He is afraid of things that haven't been proven yet. He drives around rotaries twice to make sure that he has noticed all the available routes.

He walks around the long way so that he won't erode the sand buffs at Cape Cod. And then he makes love beneath those same gravelly cliffs.

Egocentric as one can be, he has to be; he is his own genius. Because he is still alive and swims in the ocean.

He sits outside at dusk awaiting the aurora because he has seen sunspots through his telescope that afternoon. Wouldn't you like to sit there with him? With a human and a phenomonon? To see him start with joy at the first flush of color and clutch at the camera bag so often a part of his shoulder.

There is a Viking in him; a lust for beauty, an aesthetic perfect beauty.

Marco Polo kneels in the golden court of Genghis Khan.

A blond head is thrown back; its mouth already melts the white powder.

A man without legs on a wheeled platform is shoveling sow at the side of the road.

Lean and craggy, a man in the raw: uncorrupted.

He chooses his questions carefully and does not answer. He just walks away.

Judy Epstein

All Letters To The Editor must be typed, double-spaced at sixty spaces per line. They should not exceed one page in length and must be submitted by 5 p.m. prior to the day of publication. The same rules apply for Editorial Points.

The editors reserve the right to edit all letters. Also, all leters must contain the name and address of the writer which will be withheld upon request.

Letters To The Editor

Mollycoddles, Fags And Doves

To the Editor:

I'm writing in response to Jim Mitchell's article in which he berates Jim LaMacchia, who recently competed for Winter Carni Queen. It seems that if anyone is lost in the forest, it is the writer of the article, who by his own admission is very simplistic in his argument, using some powerful half-truths.

Mitchell stated that "the family structure is so weak now, that if women abandon this role (raising children), the basic unit of society will be in jeopardy." I agree that the family unit is weak, the divorce rate is one in three, and we seem to be turning out an awful lot of neurotic children. But the reason is more likely that our women, better educated and more sophisticated than ever before, spend too much time at home, where their constricted lives cause considerable resentment and frustration, which must be vented somewhere. If the family structure is to be strengthened, and we may question that ideal, men should spend more time at home, where their children can see them. There should be good, inexpensive daycare centers available, so that women can be freed from an exclusively homebound existence, grow as individuals, and be better parents.

Another gross half truth in Mitchell's argument is that since women and men have different physical appearances, (so do Lew Alcindor and Buddy Hackett), "if we could see into the minds of both, you would find that they had subtle, intrinsic emotional differences." Certainly people have emotional differences, learned as well as inborn, and as Mitchell stated in his article, these emotional differences should govern the roles people play in society. But, there is no concrete evidence at all that inherited emotional predispositions are six linked, or that they are unalterable by learning.

Again, Mitchell provides us with another misleading half-truth, that "throughout history women have been considered more compassionate and less aggressive than men." Counterexamples to that thesis could fill a book, but more important is the crumb of truth in that argument: women are expected to act less agressively and more compassionately than men. And what happens when women act as aggressively as men? They were called sirens in Ancient Greece, witches in Colonial days, battleaxes, bitches, and castrating females in today's terminology. Men don't come off sounding much better if they adopt the role as the compassionate one; they've been labeled mollycoddles, fags, and doves.

Most important, if people like Jim Mitchell are sincerely concerned about the family structure and the issues of sex roles, they should spend more of their time re-evaluating these issues so that both men and women can find alternative roles which are more mutally satisfying.

Deborah Broshi

Through The Woods

To the Editor:

I am feeling badly for "poor Jim" Mitchell. He does not realize how lost he is? Before elaborating further on this point, I should like to say that even though I am a firm believer in Motherhood, I was offended by his editorial.

He stated that if a woman wants to use "her newly acquired knowledge, no one prevents her." Job discrimination does exist in this country. How many women doctors, lawyers, executives or chemists do you find and if so in all probability they are receiving a lesser salary than comparably qualified men. In 1968 Chemical and Engineering News did a study on chemist's salaries and found that holding seniority constant, men with B.A.'s made more than women with P.H.D.'s. This is quite common in other fields too. If you found yourself discriminated in such a manner due to sex, religion or color wouldn't you want to just give up? This is exactly what some women do and that's why they get married.

He also talked about other sexual differences such as physical appearance (which I naturally can accept) and aptitude? Is he implying here that women are inately inferior intellectually to men?!! He also mentioned certain roles that men can handle better than women. Which roles? Women historically and presently, he says, are less aggressive than men. Passivity is usually a characteristic of oppressed groups. Does he have evidence to prove that women are also more compassionate?

Jim, I grant you this world would be a dull place to live if everybody had the same behavior, appearances, and capabilities, but why stereo-type people sexually! What right do you have to label me less capable than yourself merely because I am a woman!!!

Open your eyes, Jim Mitchell, before you bump into a tree.

Adrienne Gross

Unartistic Chimps

To the Editor:

I should like to mention something of the aesthetics of this campus. It was no doubt designed by an unartistic chimpanzee. I am not endowed with the most critical eye, but I do know what's ugly, and to put it plainly what they (the designers or what have you) have done to this campus is ugly. The pond area, an area which I would have preserved, has been masterfully cut-up. Massive unemotional buildings are thrown throughout the campus, in what seems to have been a grown-up game of jacks. Seriously, though, I really am very sorry, and a little angry at the planning and aesthetics of the university. Perhaps this is the product of increasing numbers, and decreasing budgets, but as the representation of Massachusetts -higher education there should be something artistically better. Design in the philosophical sense is an argument for the existence of God, the curious adapting of means to ends. If this is the case, then, I think I can safely assume (after viewing the university's lack of design) that this is a Godless campus.

Robert Greenberg

Slipping Away

To the Editor:

You must be interested in this campus, if you are reading this newspaper. So I'd like to take this opportunity to remind you of a few things that we've been missing.

Remember the concerts we used to have on this campus in the Cage, when everyone just sat and became a part of it all, as B.B. ,King, Steve Miller, Buffy St. Marie, Three Dog Night and so many others moved on. They certainly have moved on, because this Winter Carni we didn't have the Fifth Dimension or anyone.

The Cage has been closed to us, because some people felt they should have the right to hear the sound as did those who were inside. Whether you agree with their tactics or not, you must admit that the Cage is a pretty tight place to jam a lot of people into when a concert or basketball game is going on.

That's another thing - basketball. Some say we have a good team, the record proves the fact, and the way people stand in line, sometimes only to be turned away because of lack of space, seems to say that it's interesting enough. We must enjoy it, otherwise why would we at the end of the line, only hope to gain admittance.

And you hockey nuts, Orr Rink is a bummer. They've limited occupancy to 2,000 seats, and if you get there on time to get in and get a seat the push and pull of that one hundred and sixty-four square inches that most of us take up doesn't leave much room to move.

This all makes me laugh a little, here we are, at a Big University, with a good hockey team, good basketball team and a great want of concerts yet we allowed a Convocation Center to slip through our hands last year. We are buying ice from a College, that in time may be forced to turn us away, missing the basketball and hockey that we have already paid for, and those few weekends in the year when we can let ourselves go to a concert are slipping away.

Let's get our heads together and see if we can right some of this; it won't be easy and may cost us twenty cents a day, but we can change it for the future. We need a Convocation Center.

Ray Steele

Silent Spring

To the Editor:

This is the spring to end the war. This is the spring to show that you're ready to end the war now..The great majority of students and faculty on this campus continuously claim to oppose the war--without ever doing anything about it. It's time to turn this semi-silent majority into a mass ready to show that they're not going to tolerate Nixon's escalations any more. It's time to realize that a silent Spring isn't going to bring all the troops home. There's no more time to put up with the government's step-by-step-lie-by-lie tactics of expansion, and show this community of quiet passivity that we are capable of organized massive antiwar action. I've been sitting in this SMC office all winter, that's not a gripe, that's just to say that I'd like to see all these would-be antiwar claimants brought in here too (2nd floor student union). It takes time, energy, and a lot of people to organize to make a spring antiwar calender successful. Tonight there's a planning meeting, to get the spring actions going, and if people on this campus honestly oppose the war they can damn well afford the time to show up and decide what they're going to do with the spring, the war, and the antiwar movement on campus. You've all heard the phrase "out now" before...well, OUT NOW...out of southwest, out of orchard hill, out of the quads, out of central, out of the offices in the departmental cubicles; and into the Student Mobilization Committee meeting tonight to get an active antiwar movement into the spring. (Room 805 Campus Center, 8 p.m.)

SuZanne Mitchell

"Let's Make It Clear — U.S. Infantrymen Would Be In Laos Only To Rescue Our Helicopter Crews, Who Are There Only To Protect Vietnamese Troops, Who Are There Only To Protect American Troops In Vietnam, Who..."

Editorial Points

A distinguished educator, Dr. Trumpler, told Yale University in a New York Times essay that what is keeping the institution's goal of "developing the intellect" are government contracts, big time college sports and Co-Ed dorms. Some people really have it together.

* * * *

Somebody contacted Chancellor Tippo and asked him to be the father-of-the-Bride at the next Bridal Fair here on campus. The Chancellor couldn't see himself as playing the part but suggested that somebody in the Faculty-Senate might be better suited.

* * * *

Imagine how boring a meeting of the proposed University Senate would be. Students would have to listen to faculty and administrators.

* * * *

Mud is funny. But why?

UMass Nose Complex

UMass has a nose complex. America, in fact, has the same problem, and I'm just sniffing out trouble. People who walk around with their small, fashionable noses carry them with such an air of confidence that my vanity screams out in pain. I guess I became conscious of some personal failing through my father. He came from the old country where a man's nose is his trust, his sundial, his auxiliary mouthpiece. One day he finally became aware of this conspirary of the small-nosers, because he came home and cast a very sad look upon that sausage I was wearing on my face. Then I knew that he knew. That was a sad moment. And yet, when you think of it, having a tiny nose is a limitation,-those who have them can only form one expression well, that is smug satisfaction. On the other hand your large nose moves like a halfback with each emotion, rearing up to smile, descending almost to the pit of the mouth of frown, and darting straight out at the last minute in perfect playmaking.

I have struggled with this form of persecution over many years and, now, finally I begin to derive strength from my nose. I'm not religious in the ordinary sense, but I've always needed something to pray to. Small, up-tilted noses seem to point to heaven like Gothic spires, yet that is an illusion. They are up-tilted because they are erect.....and you know what that means.

Cartoons show nothing but noses. I wonder what size nose Hitler had? I know what size Annette Funicello had. I trust only a large, expansive nose.

In L.A., where I just came from, someone told me a fascinating bit of folklore. It seemed like a tale out of the Old Testament, only completely reversed. Two years ago a sudden insecurity struck all the Jewish firstborn females and their noses twisted up almost overnight as though God's plague had struck them instead of the Egyptians. Doctors had a great artistic follwoing out there. "She's had a Parker" my girlfriend sniffed self-righteously. Lately the "natural" has become the op-art sex symbol and I fear God will have to reverse the plague to keep his children in good spirits.

I read last week an eighteenth century treatise by an American doctor saying that black noses became flat because of leprosy which, in turn, was caused by God. God was angry with the children of Ham moving from Canaan to Africa.

A childhood friend of mine could out-honk a gaggle of geese. Somehow his nasal membrane could vibrate at a terrific speed and the noise would convulse a whole movie theatre. A lovely, beautiful nose for the merriment it brought.

And so, I hope it is clear that the propaganda against us is widespread and certainly misplaced. The snub is obvious. Is the rub?

Peter L. Cameron

SWAP Continuation-Open For Involvement

On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights this week the S.W.A.P. (Student Workshop on Activities Problems) Committee will be holding meetings designed to expose the University community to the work done so far by the delegates of the S.W.A.P. conferennce (held in December, 1970) and to solicite new perspectives and participation from anyone within the University.

The basic format for discussion will center around the proposals which each group of delegates originated at the conference in December. These proposals are at different stages within each group. Some are still in the formulation period whereas others are in the process of implementation.

It is the hope of the S.W.A.P. representatives that these open meetings will bring a new insight into the numerous problem areas of discussion, and a reinforced interest through participation will be demonstrated by the entire University.

Group No. 1

Expertise Group #1 at S.W.A.P. dealt extensively with the inadequacies of the Freshman Counseling and Orientation Program. As a result of their deliberations many suggested changes were proposed.

These proposals are being worked on by a group of students (Adelphians and Mortarboards) as an independent study project in higher education. Bob Wuerthner from the School of Education and Jim Allen from the Alumni Office are working with this group.

This group of students has had two meetings with Sally Hamilton, the new director of the counseling program and her staff. As a result of these meetings many avenues of procedure have been opened up.

On Wednesday evening, March 3rd, an open hearing on Freshman Counseling and Orientation will be held at 8:00 p.m. on the 8th or 9th floor of the Campus Center. The members of this class, along with S.W.A.P. personnel and other interested parties, will be present to hear your points of view. We hope that everyone who has ideas and suggestions about these programs will come by and share their ideas with us.

ON FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

1) We would recommend that Freshmen be brought to campus one week before classes. If feasible, testing, counseling, academic programming, scheduling should be done at this time. Orientation would consist of academic and residential programs which would continue throughout the year. Information would be disseminated through a new student handbook, seminars and audio visual presentations.

2) We further recommend that Freshmen and transfer students have the option of a reduced course load and electing a series of "mini-courses" in the following areas:

a) Academic departments will be encouraged to offer brief courses, perhaps two to four weeks in length, and students will be given appropriate credit. These courses may be offered by each department a number of times per semester. This would allow a maximum degree of exposure in many fields of study with a minimum committment within the field. These courses should include an overall description of types of problems, areas of study that a student would encounter as a major in the field, the contribution of that discipline to other disciplines, and career opportunities in that field.

b) In addition, courses should be offered to provide information to the students regarding living situations, administrative structures (i.e. CASIAC, counselling and mental health centers, area coordinators, departmental advisors) which would be important to one's life as a student.

3) In addition, perhaps for credit, experiences should be available to the students that would facilitate the students' development of a sense of direction in terms of what they have to work with and where they want to go, how they relate to themselves and others. The basic assumption is that it is difficult for student to direct himself to a particular major or goal unless he has a relatively clear conception of where he is at.

Group No. 3

Group 3: The discussion of Group 3 examined the need of University sponsored programs of community involvement in nearby communities. It was the feeling of Group 3 that the University, as a concentrated source of knowledge, must assume some responsibilities of this part of the Commonwealth.

In this reference, a specific proposal was made to establish a pilot project of community service in the Puerto Rican neighborhoods of Springfield and Holyoke. It is hoped that such a program could be initiated under the auspices of the Spanish Department. Efforts are presently being made to obtain academic credit for such a program, if initiated.

Before such a project can be realized, however, contacts must be made with members of the Puerto Rican communities in the Springfield area so that such a program would be a maximal benefit to the Puerto Rican populations.

Members of Group 3 include Rep. John Oliver, Trustee Abrams, Dean Jeremiah Allen, Dean Joseph Marcus, Judy Gill, Tom Merrigan, and Prof. Irving Howards.

ON THE 10-SEMESTER RULE

When a student renrolls in University, he makes a contract to finish graduation requirements in seven years with the option to take off up to six semesters at any time he wishes with no penalty. He must give the University adequate (i.e. 3 to 6 months) notice of what semesters he plans to attend. If the student decides he needs more time than is allowed in this system, he must withdraw and then reapply for admission if he intends to continue his University education.

EXTENDING RESOURCES OF UNIVERSITY

1) In supporting the general notion of "extending resources" we must first recognize the difficulties that presently exist in the development, management, and distribution of these resources within the current University Structure.

2) Examine Departmental Structure with an eye toward possible diversification of faculty allocations and functions.

Group No. 4

As far as complete organization and formulization of a master plan, the Physical Planning Committee is a flop. However, ideas for Physical Plant changes and new approaches toward Physical Planning abound within the Committee.

During the weekend of the Conference, the Committee had two meetings as did the other Committees. The first meeting consisted of education of the group members. Most did not realize the full complexity of Long Range Planning and financing for an organization as large as the University.

Jack Littlefield, Head of Long Range Planning for UMass, took some time in answering questions from the group and giving the group general background on this field. This along with some discussion of new directions in planning already being explored by the University took most of the first meeting.

During the second meeting, pressure for written output from the group had its sway and the proposals in the S.W.A.P. booklet were decided to be at least somewhat beneficial for the University.

The Committee will hopefully be reconvened during the coming week and will reconsider some of the original proposals and explore avenues for continued input from students, staff, and faculty in future University planning.

Group No. 5

SWAP group #5 concerned itself with the area of Student Affairs. Proposals concerning transcripts, vending machine profits, credit for activities, faculty staff tax, have been formulated.

The group still has to consider proposals concerning SATF and RSO funds and policies.

Another area the group is concerned with is participation in group activities such as the Senate, Index, WMUA, etc. Funding of groups that spring up such as CEQ is also being worked on.

Anyone interested in participating is discussions of these topics and other problems and issues relevant to Student Affairs is invited to attend a meeting Wednesday evening March 3 in the Campus Center Room 176 at 7:00 P.M. The direction of this group is not definitely established. It will be according to the wishes of those in attendance - please be with us.

Group No. 6

SWAP group #6 is concerned with studying proposals relative to internal governance of the University and relations with the Legislature.

Major proposals being worked on are the following: a lobbying effort by USCC to increase student representation on the UMass Board of Trustees through membership on the subcommittees and an additional student trustee. A student group is organized to review legislative bills and a Collegian column has been initiated to publicize bills important to the University community. USCC also is used to facilitate a line of communications to individual legislators and bring the student point of view to Beacon Hill.

Further SWAP proposals being studied are: 1) student financial responsibility for only those matters in which they have commensurate authority, for example students should be responsible for only that furniture which they desire to have in their rooms and in their lounges. 2) a greater delineation of the power and functions of the Board of Trustees and administrative officials be resolved and publicized.

Members of Group #6 include Dick Howland, Glen Gordon, Guenther Lewy, Bill Connolly, Shirley Capecci, Glenn Elters, Pete Pascarelli, Larry Woods, Linda Henderson, Bob McDonnell, John Hogan, Pat Lempart, Leo Clark, Jerry Burke, Paul Collazzo and Bob Harrington - leaders.

Group No. 7

Group number seven is dealing with the dual concerns of freshman orientation and campus security. Thus far we have concentrated our efforts on the former category. There are basically three proposals we are pursuing.

The first deals with the establishment of a 1 or 2 credit course which would be taken by all first semester students; it would extend information about the University community and sources of academic and professional advice.

The second proposal deals with the restructuring of the summer orientation period itself allowing for increased faculty advising and a fall registration period only for freshmen where classes would be attended 2 days before upperclassmen, in order to allow new students to change courses and question faculty and advisors more closely before getting caught up in the semi-annual animal farm registration changes for the entire university.

The third proposal deals with the idea of extending modular credit to students who would visit local high schools in the spring to advise newly accepted students and guidance teachers on the facilities and atmosphere incoming freshmen will have to contend with.

ON SECURITY

1) Individual counseling experiences lead stable orientation.

2) That freshman should have testing period during early summer supplemented by arriving on campus a week prior to class for structured orientation. Enables great availability to faculty.

3) Enables newcomer to assimilate entire university experience and find his individuaul place in it. Encourage leadership responsibilities in upperclassmen.

4) More receptive to community experience and hence more receptive to the responsibilities involved leading to self sustaining measures.

5) Budget? Qualified counselors? Apathy of new-comers?

Group No. 8

SWAP expertise group #8 is concerned with teacher and course evaluation and the reward structure of the University's academic programs. It is felt that the University must strive to "make our academic procedures more responsive to change" and to "do better in giving institutional recognition to true excellence in both teaching and learning".

SWAP #8 will deal with the strategies for implementation of the following six proposals:

1. DIVERSITY IN THE COMPOSITION OF FACULTY PERSONNEL COMMITTEES.
Because of the increasing pluralistic fabric of the total academic experience, faculty personnel committees should be composed of a diversified membership of faculty (both tenured and non-tenured), students, and interdisciplinary faculty (where appropriate).

2. REPLACEMENT OF THE TENURE SYSTEM.
The University has the major responsibility for creating a desirable intellectual atmosphere - UMass must be a quality institution in the quality of the research of its faculty as well as the quality of the academic experience offered to its students. Tenure, a system which breeds stagnation in tenured faculty and stifles creativity of its non-tenured member, be replaced with a viable alternative system. One such proposed system uses 3-year appointments, with review at the end of each appointment. After review, the faculty member is either reappointed for another 3 years or given a terminal appointment (3 years).

3. ENCOURAGING EXPERIMENTAL TEACHING AND LEARNING.
A position of Associate Provost should be created to develop and implement multidisciplinary educational options such as independent study, travel/study, off-campus internships, and residential exchange programs. To help implement these programs, the present faculty reward structure should permit, encourage, and reward free participation.

4. STUDENT EVALUATION COMMITTEES.
All departments should establish student evaluation committees to prepare appropriate evaluation forms and to communicate the results to departmental faculty personnel committees.

5. EVALUATION OF FACULTY.
Faculty members should be evaluated on their individual merits, if a contribution to the University community is made. Hence, an individual's criteria might change from year to year.

6. REVITALIZING THE CURRICULUM.
Every course taught for three years must be defended and substantiated by a professor or department before a student/faculty committee in terms of need, content, and teaching approach. Research should be conducted to determine new or important areas of interest and relevance. If a course were not approved, it would be dropped.

The above proposals will be prioritized and implemented by SWAP #8, dependant upon the interest and participation exhibited by the University community. The success of the SWAP conference depends upon the involvement of the masses of the University.

SWAP #8 invites you to discuss threse proposals and strategies for implementation on Thursday at 7:00 P.M. in the Campus Center.

Group #1:	Human Elements of Education (advising, freshman orientation, student faculty contact) Group Leader: Jim Allen and Bob Wuerthner Open meeting: Wednesday, March 3, 8:00 p.m., Rm 170, C.C. Open meeting: Wednesday, March 3, 8:00 p.m., Rm 170, C.C.
Group #2:	Courses, Programs (changing, establishing and modifying) Group Leader: Don Trageser Open meeting: Thursday, March 4, 7:00 p.m., Rm. 809, C.C.
Group #3:	Service to the Commonwealth, Community Group Leader: Judy Gill Open meeting: Thursday, March 4, 7:00 p.m., Rm. 804, C.C.
Group #4:	Planning (physical) Group Leader: Jim Swartz Open meeting: Thursday, March 4, 8:05 p.m., Rm. 805, C.C.
Group #5:	Student Affairs Group Leader: Pam Pepper and Sheila McRevey Open meeting: Wednesday, March 3, 7:00 p.m., Rm. 176, C.C.
Group #6:	Governance and Relations with the Board of Trustees and State Legislature Group Leader: Bob Harrington Open meeting: Wednesday, March 3, 8:00 p.m., Rm. 172, C.C.
Group #7:	Security and Decentralization (alienation and disaffection) Group Leader: Mark Brenner Open Meeting: Tuesday, March 2, 7:00 p.m., Colonial Lounge
Group #8:	Reward Structures (grading, tenure, etc.) Group Leader: Ross Benjamin Open Meeting: Thursday, March 4, 7:00 p.m., Rm. 808, C.C.

Things To Do Around UM

Tonight, on WMUA 91.1 FM, at 7:30 PM Gary Burton's Quartet in its Saturday night performance at the University will be featured. Along with the recorded performance there will be an interview, also recorded on Saturday with Gary Burton. Preceeding Gary Burton will be the Young Socialist Alliance Forum beginning at 6:30 PM.

••••

The Jones Library Series this week presents Professors Harvey Swados and Kirby Farrell reading from their own prose.

The reading begins at 7 tonight at Jones Library in downtown Amherst, across from the Drake.

••••

An open meeting of the University Concert Series will be held tonight at 7:30 pm in the Student Activities Office (RSO) on the first floor of the Campus Center.

Because class governments have been formally abolished, the committee as a whole would like suggestions as to how to spend the approximately $40,000. allocated for concerts.

••••

There will be a meeting in the Berkshire Club Room this afternoon at 5:30 for all people interested in an Organic Food Line in the Dining Commons.

A petition drive last week netted over 800 signatures of people who are interested in an organic food line.

Mr. Arthur Warren, assistant director of Food Services, will be on hand to discuss the proposition and to answer questions.

Notices

ANGEL FLIGHT:
There will be a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in Dickenson 210. This meeting is very important. All Angels must attend.

BIRTH CONTROL LAWS REFERENDUM:
All those with petitions please call Elliott as soon as possible, 256-6907.

CEQ
CEQ Steering committee meeting will be held tonight at 6 PM in CC 162, 175.
All are invited to attend an Open Meeting of CEQ (Coalition for Environmental Quality) tonight in CC 162, 175.
Speakers Committee Meeting for CEQ will hold their meeting tonight at 6:45 PM in CC 162, 175.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
Gnd. schl. at 7 p.m. C.C. with practice exam.

COMMITTEE ON POVERTY:
Meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in Geo. Washington Tower, 5th floor lounge.

ECONOMICS DEPT:
Dr. Sylvia Ostrey, Director, Economic Council of Canada Ottawa, Canada will speak on "Canada Meets Problems of Inflation and Economic Growth", Wed., March 3rd at 2-4 p.m. in Room 904-908 of the C.C. All invited.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB:
Come see Arabian horses in "The Proud Breed" & find out what's happening this spring. Movie & meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 174-176 of the C.C. All welcome.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA:
Sisters & Pledges will meet in J.Q.A. lobby tonight at 5:15 p.m. for supper. A sisterhood meeting & pledging will follow the dinner. All are urged to attend.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB:
The regular square dance will be held in the C.C. Aud. Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. with beginners classes from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. & club level review from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m.

HILLEL:
Folk sing March 9, Purim Carnival March 24. Interested in Helping, call 5-2526 from 11-4 pm.
Tonight at 8:15 p.m. Prof. Martin Dosick & Myron Glazer of Springfield & Smith Colleges will speak on Israel.

MAROON KEYS:
There will be a meeting in Rm. 433 James at 6:45 p.m. Wed. evening. Punctual arrival will be appreciated. Please contact Richard Simmons if there is a conflict (6-7604).

N.E.S.:
Coordinating Committee meeting tonight at 5:45 p.m. in Rm 177 at the C.C. All interested attend.

ORCHARD HILL:
Mirkwood Sat., March 6th - Grayson Lounge - if interested in playing. Call Steve 6-7122 or Ken, 6-7124 Folk music & coffee - a good time.

SOCIOLOGY 101:
Rich Perkins' sections 23 (Wed. 1:25) & 53 (Thur. 1:25) will have a quiz this week. Section 9 (Mon. 4:40) will have one next week. Cumulative up to Goffman's Book & Lectures.

STUDENTS:
The Maroon Keys are sponsoring a table tennis tournament. Ask your head of residence for details & place entries in R.S.O. #403 mailbox in C.C.

STUDENTS FOR MC GOVERN:
Regular meeting Tonight at 9:30 p.m. in 804 C.C. New people welcome. For further info call 665-3901.

WMUA:
The March station meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Attendance by all is demanded. You will suffer if you don't attend.
Gary Burton Freaks - Heed this notice. Concert which was held last weekend will be broadcast tonight on WMUA at 7:30 p.m. Tune in to 91.1 F.M.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION:
Open to all women, a discussion on women & the war. Women's centre in Free University at 7 p.m. tonight.

LOST:
Red & blue beaded change purse lost from black handbag. On Sat. or Sun. Sentimental value. Please return to S.U. Lost & Found.
Change purse containing all my I.D.s Please call Lynn 546-8010.
Brown leather glove with gray fur lining. Possibly lost in Worcester Dining Commons. Call 6-7193 ask for Betsy.
Brown rimmed glasses lost in 19th floor John Adams. Friday night Feb. 26. Please call Tom at 546-5392.

South African Bishop To Speak On Racism

An Anglican bishop whose denunciation of South Africa's apartheid policies led to his deportation from that country will speak at Smith College today.

The Right Reverend C. Edward Crowther, former bishop of Kimberly and Kuruman, South Africa, will speak on "The Violence of Racism: Apartheid a Case in Point." The lecture, at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall, will be open to the public. It is being sponsored by the college's department of Afro-American studies.

His deportation followed his militant opposition in 1965 to South Africa's apartheid policies while he was serving as a bishop there, and his 1967 denunciation of separation of the races as a potential cause of war before the Pacem in Terris II Conference in Geneva.

Because of his militant opposition to the apartheid policies of South Africa, he incurred the wrath of its government and was visited many times by the Special Branch of the South African Police. TIME Magazine gave international publicity to one incident in which Bishop Crowther defied the ban placed on him and delivered truckloads of food to starving Africans who had been dispossessed of their homes.

Born and educated in England, he is now a naturalized citizen of this country. He earned three degrees in history and in law and taught criminal and constitutional law at Oxford University. The bishop studied for the ministry and was ordained in 1956.

In 1958 he came to America, first to Oregon, then to University of California at Los Angeles as senior Episcopal chaplain. While in Los Angeles, Bishop Crowther became president of a large fair housing group and was prominent in other civil rights activities.

In 1964 he went to South Africa as Dean of the Anglican Cathedral in Kimberly.

Since his return here, the bishop has appeared extensively on television and radio and has lectured in universities throughout the country. In February, 1968, he addressed the Apartheid Committee of the United Nations in a speech that was voted for United Nations distribution.

Bishop Crowther has served as visiting fellow at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Calif. In November, 1970, he was appointed assistant bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California. He was also director of church and campus relations in the Alliance for Labor Action. The first bishop to be hired by labor, he was entrusted by the late Walter Reuther to assist in reactivating the American labor movement and to help build new coalitions for social change.

Student Tours Presents
ACAPULCO ADVENTURE
during College Week
March 20 - 28 from $208 plus tax and service
includes:
● Round trip jet transportation to Acapulco, Mexico
● Meals and bar service aloft.
● Stay at Holiday Inn or Hotel Acapulco Imperial
● All taxes and tips for baggage and transportation.
● Discounts on many clubs, dicotheques, tours, skin diving, and water skiing.
Spring Skiing — Sugarbush, Vt.
during College Week
from $112 March 21 - 26
includes:
● Lodging at Alpen Inn
● Meals
● Lifts
● Lessons
For more information call Joan or Louise 546-9846

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES
events
BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.
FRI., MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 8 P.M.
GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE
Presents Mozart's "Don Giovanni" in fully-staged production sung in English.
TUES., MARCH 16 & WED., MARCH 17 8 P.M.
ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE
Direct from a triumphant tour of Africa, Soviet Union and Great Britain. Two different evening programs plus a master class and lecture/demonstration.
For complete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall
(Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.)
Tel. 545-0202

HEY GIRLS
HE'S BACK!!
YES
D. J. IS BACK!! on Tuesday Nite
(Ladies Nite)
at
The English Pub
9:30 til close most mixed drinks 50c

KINETICS II
PROGRAM A
SU BALLROOM
Admission $1.00 TONIGHT
7 and 9:00

"Foh, foh, sir. You may do your worst, but prithee don't tell my husband." Michelle Faith as Lady Fidget and Peter Ryan as Mr. Pinchwife, in THE COUNTRY WIFE by William Wycherley. THE COUNTRY WIFE will be presented by UMass Theater on March 3,4,5,6 at 8:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. Further information call the box office 545-2579.

Trash Rehashed

By DEMIAN
MDC Staff

In answer to Mr. Mundy's devastating review of a film called TRASH; I wonder if film critics are "conceived and created as a syndicated purgation throughout the home of the brave."

Hey Russ - a film that "rouses hell out of its audience" is more than just "an incompletely conceived but cleverly packaged theatrical piece that fails as a film."

Please look at it again.

1) TRASH was not made by Andy Warhol. His money, yes. But direction and probably the shooting itself was by Paul Morrisey (who filmed Chelsea Girls, Lonesome Cowboys and Flesh).

The source of TRASH'S reality perhaps comes not from soup cans, but from Joe Dallasandro's own background as an actor in west coast male posing silent flicks. He can't get it up because of junk, yes, but also because most of the time, Joe isn't interested in girls anyway.

Look at it again.

3) The girl Joe lives with is no lady. Played by Holly Woodlawn, he is the real star of the flick. Who else could make rubbish collection look so glamorous?

Also Jane Forth's performance, as one half of the liberal couple, provoked the audience to loud verbal response. That level of reaction could mean - involvement.

FILMS MUST MOVE YOU. Some brush your shoulder, your inner thigh or tickle your fancy - others hit your guts. How far a film works you up may depend a lot on your preconceptions. Different strokes for different folks, eh?

Gary Burton, A Review

Good Jams, Fine Rock

By ED JANUSZ
MDC Staff

The Gary Burton Quartet put on two concerts this weekend at Bowker Auditorium. While the music was less adventurous than that of many jazz figures, they played two eminently enjoyable evenings of music for two friendly and nearly full Bowker houses.

Burton's vibraharps produced a lot of interesting harmonies with the rest of the group. They have a unique sound, very light and capable of piling up series of ethereal tones to create a delicate, slightly churchly sound. Burton only used this pure sound rarely, though, as most of the program was a group effort. The more familiar sounds of guitar and bass transformed the lighter vibraharp sound into still more unique variations.

Guitarist Sam Brown was the most rock-oriented of the musicians. The quartet plays relatively structured music, most apparent in Brown's guitar work, which contained alot of R&B and straight rock sounds. When he did play more extensive efforts, he sometimes worked with Burton effectively enough to add another dimension of sound to both the guitar and the vibes.

Tony Levitt, the bass player, was perhaps the standout. His extended solo on Friday got the biggest response of the night; all through the set, he gave the group a sturdy jazz background which added a lot of drive to the playing of Burton and Brown. Bill Goodwin on drums was technically excellent, but on Friday he seemed to lack the enthusiasm of the other three, even on his solo; fortunately, the second concert found him in apparently better spirits.

The total sound was pleasant and involving. A lot of the music went along the lines of easy-listening rock' much of the interest was in listening to the vibes. One of the few players around, Burton is often considered the most accomplished. The bursts of excitement happened, it seemed, almost accidentally, and with a completely different effect than Burton's explorations into tone. But the group is capable of intricate jams that played upon the singular mixture of sounds produced by vibes and almost anything. The quieter moments amounted to unique mood music; and when the band felt like playing rock and roll, they played some really good rock and roll.

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO EMERGENCY REPAIRS
CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS
MATCHLESS SELECTION OF FASHION RIGHT FRAMES
WIRE FRAMES LOTS!
Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 North Pleasant St., Amherst
Tel. 256-6183

YOU'RE AN INDIVIDUAL, DAMN IT!

Everyone's needs, attitudes, and objectives are different. A good life insurance policy should reflect your individuality.

You'll always be an individual, but will you always be able to buy insurance? Not at this year's rates and maybe not at all.

If you want your financial plans to reflect your individuality, I would like to meet you. In order to discuss your goals at your convenience, please call for an appointment. Call 546-7366 on Wednesday, March 3rd, between 7:00 and 10:00 p.m. Ask for

Mike Duhamel Special Representative
Robert E. Evans & Associates
Office phone number 617 757-5675

Because we believe it, watching the film is very much like taking part in some encounter group— there's no way to escape the image on the screen, nor to deny its truth. Michael Goodwin, Rolling Stone

A WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS PREMIERE

The Rolling Stones
GIMME SHELTER
STARTS WED. MAR. 3rd
Campus Cinemas
Amherst-Hadley Line
Route 9
256-6411

Rt. 9 Hadley
THE JOLLY BULL RESTAURANT
LUNCHEON
COCKTAILS - DINNER
LUNCH
Mon. - Fri. 11:30 - 2:30
DINNER
Mon. - Sat. 5 - 10 Sun. 12 - 8
NEVER ON TUESDAYS
Reservations Recommended
584-2760
LIVE MUSIC & SONG
IN THE OYSTER BAR
WED. & THURS.
Bob Ackermann
singing ragtime
FRI. & SAT.
Norrine Jacobus &
Cliff Simons
singing variety & requests

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Astor, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Water beds for $55 at Sundance Water Beds, 187 Main St., Northampton. tf3-3

Need to sell 1 year old Delmonico refr. for $60 or best offer. It is in excel. condition. Call Carole 549-0415. tf3-3

Yellow kitchen table, 30 sq. in. Formica top, iraf and four chairs, $17.00. Call 549-6382. tf3-3

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No textie! tf5-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Paarl, good condition $395. Telephone 253-2046. tf3-9

1962 Karmann Ghia, new engine in 1969. Colors in the style of Peter Max. Only $200. Call 253-5240. tf3-4

Have another car — must sell 63 Corvair conv., 4 spwd, rebuilt engine, 2,000 miles, new battery, runs well but needs starter. $160, will haggle. Call 527-9956 after 6 p.m. tf3-4

Posche speedstrr, 1958, 1000 normal, new top and interior. Best offer. Call 739-4531 (Spfld) after 7 p.m. tf3-4

First 50 dollars takes away this gem of a VW which needs only brake work and new accelerator linkage. 3-2

'68 Cortina (Eng. Ford) automatic, disc brakes only 15,000 mi. Good mech. cond. Best offrr. Call 546-9788. tf3-5

'61 VW has rebuilt '64 engine, new clutch master cylinder, brakes, recent tune-up. Have all receipts. Body in decent condition, reliable transportation $375. Call 546-9501. 3-2

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3148. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-22

WANTED

Black sinrere male studrnt nrar Amherst. Pirase writr to white male (trmporarily in Ohio) interrstrd in possible rlose summer relationship. Confidential. Box 723, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

HELP WANTED

Help w exper. in pollution eccl. Need abil. w stat. Call Steve 253-3192. tf3-2

Girls needed immediately for full or part-time work. Free training 549-0016. tf3-5

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Texas or any adjacent state anytime arar spring vacation. Will pay. Call Nancy 546-1421. tf3-2

FOR RENT

Room for rent to sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo., Cliffside Apt., Sunderland. Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9212 anytime after 6:30. tf3-4

One bedroom, four room apt. for rent Cliffside Apts., 665-3616. $130 month with or without furniture. Open in March. tf3-4

Two bedroom apt. for rent $110 a month including utilities. Available April 1. Call 545-2500 days and 549-3887 evenings. tf3-5

Quiet, pleasant singlr room for female, ½ mile from Univ., nrar centrr of town. Kitchen privileges. Rate to be decided after personal interviw. Call Louisa Shrlden 253-9739. tf3-4

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers charrered flights to NASSAU in spring and EUROPE in summer. For details call Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963 3 1,2,5,8,9,12,15,16

OVERLAND EXPEDITION TO INDIA. Leaves London mid-June $290. Also return CHARTERS to London $190 approx. Encounter Overland, 1414 E. 59th St., Chicago, Ill. 60637. 3- 2 4 8 10 12 16 18 30 4- 6 8

PERSONAL

Happy Birthday Grenn, Wuy Wick. Sorry for Friday. 3-2

Doz in heat? Call Howie's Hot Feet, 416 Hamlin 5-0792. tf3-3

TO SUBLET

New off. apt. for rent. Exc. for 1 or 2 persons. Incl. all utilities, dishwasher, carbage disposal, wall to wall carp., only 1½ miles from Campus. Rent is $150 per mo. Call Ray at 253-7543. If no answer, try again. tf5-5

Summer sublet from June 1 - Aug. 30, 100 Colonial Village, furnished 2 bedroom, swim. pool. Call 256-6035. tf to-th

Efficiency apt., Quabbin Vig., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fre paid. Call 323-7639 after 7 p.m. tf3-4

Ruggers Start Today

The UMass Rugby Club enters into its eighth season this spring. After its first winning season in the fall of 1970, coach Bob Laurence has hopes for the best performance ever by the team this spring. With a stronger and swifter set of forwards, control of the ball during the game should prove much easier.

This is one of the major problems during the fall. The backs under the leadership of seven-season veteran John Long should also provide the necessary speed and agility required for effective offensive attack.

This spring the team will kickoff its season in Virginia during March vacations. Opponents will include Washington and Lee, Richmond and the University of Virginia. The team will then return from the tour to face eight teams from the greater New England area.

Practice has started on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage. All those interested welcome. No experience is necessary.

JV Gymnasts Undefeated Again

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

DURHAM, N.H.-By downing the UNH gymnastic team, 136.85-129.95, the UMass junior varsity gymnasts closed out their nineteenth victim in a row to fall to the powerful Little Redmen squad.

The meet, which was anticipated to be the closest of the season, was a decisive victory for UMass, as the Little Redmen competed as a team to accumulate their highest point total of the season.

By performing solidly in the first two events, floor exercise and sidehorse, UMass put a tremendous amount of pressure on the UNH squad to keep up with the pace. However, the previously undefeated Wildcats faltered, and broke in several major routines. The Little Redmen entered the still rings event with more than a five point lead, which they continued to increase throughout the meet.

Top performer for UMass was freshman standout Rich Seikunas, who won parallel bars, tied for first on high bar, and placed third on floor, in addition to winning the all-around total with 46.45 points. In his appearance with the junior varsity this season, Seikunas has proved to be a valuable asset.

Jay Thomsen won vaulting with a 9.05, high score of the meet. He also took second on floor and third on high bar, to pace UMass in these events. Thomsen, an all-around man, should prove to be a valuable member of future gymnastic teams at the University.

Steve Nelson was top man for UMass on sidehorse, as he placed second with a score of 7.25. Len Aubrey took third for UMass in this event with a 7.20 score. Aubrey, a former sidehorse and rings specialist, now competes in the all-around. A welcome addition to the team, his presence and scores have been of value for the UMass squad.

Co-capt. Phil Aubrey placed second on rings and third on parallel bars to lead the Little Redmen on these events.

Co-captains Bill Henry and Phil Aubrey deserve special commendation for their efforts in leading the team this year. Both are consistent performers and team leaders.

Coach Jerry Calkin's squad qualified to compete in the New England Championships at the University Division level. However, due to a difference of opinion, the squad has been denied entrance to the meet, making UNH their last competitionof the season.

Calkin has done an outstanding job with his team this season, a team which will undoubtedly produce future varsity standouts.

Redwomen Edged

By SHARON MILES
MDC Staff

UMass girls' varsity basketball team lost a heartbreaker to Springfield College, 43-40, on Thursday.

UMass jumped off to a quick 6 point lead before Springfield got on the scoreboard, but at the end of the quarter UMass was down by one. At the half Springfield was ahead 26-16.

Springfield's lead dwindled during the second half and with 2:50 left to play, UMass had edged back into things, down only by one.

At this point the play became sloppy. There were several turnovers and hurried shots. UMass did not score on any of them, which made the difference.

Nancy Lindbergh was again the high scorer for UMass. Miss Lindbergh had 12 points, Sue Chapman had 8. Leslie Barselaar grabbed 10 rebounds, Nancy Lindbergh snagged 9.

Team stats were unimpressive for both teams, Springfield had 33% from the floor, UMass only 25%.

The JVs also dropped their tilt to Springfield, 55-39. At the end of the first quarter the score was tied at 11., but Springfield took command of the game from then on. At half-time, they led 27-18 and continued to pull away when play resumed in the second half.

Three UMass players scored in double figures: Alice Cool (10), Kathy Crowley (12), and Beth Fay(13).

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Some astrologers, who specialize in weight-watching, claim that Pisces individuals are most prone to double chins when weight control is ignored.

• • • •

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Financial matters demand attention. Purchase of luxury items might put dent in budget. Obtain necessities. Do some comparison shopping. Insist on quality. Old debt could be repaid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Added responsibility is keynote. Don't try to evade it. A Pisces individual could play paramount role. Face issues as they exist. Brighten environment. Purchase apparel: highlight personality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Obtain hint from Aries message. Some money transactions are apt to be obscured. Wait until facts are in. Discard rumors. You need some privacy. Slow pace. Be aware of games people play.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent sociability. Some want to be friendly. You could make first gesture ... and profit by it. Pull out stops on open- mindedness. Accent hopes and basic desires.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Health and work could converge. Means better pacing, self-care is necessary. Avoid extremes. Heed advice from expert. You must help yourself before others will care enough to lend aid.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Travel associated with children is emphasized. Change is featured; so is education. You can add to knowledge and also reach more persons with special message.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Practical issues dominate, including inventories and sale-purchase prices. What you do now could have long-range effect. Realize this and plan actions accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Caution now is your ally. Avoid drawing conclusions based on wishful thinking. Practical approach is fruitful. Lag individual can be good example. Accent on partnership, legal matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Employment, special services these grab attention. One who made promises in past must now put up or remain quiet. Be gracious. But let others know you are not without allies.

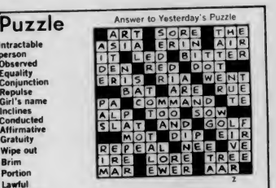
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some who are young, enthusiastic can also be jealous. Be diplomatic. Don't compound error. Avoid being upset by irresponsible persons. Maintain equilibrium. You will win.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was planned as surprise, could actually feature irony. Family member is involved. Avoid needless brooding. Setback is only temporary. You will gain valuable experience, insight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friendship and travel may combine. Short journey may be necessary. This is connected with special relationship. Whatever you do now, put forth best efforts. No halfway measures.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are somewhat of a mysterious individual. You are sensitive, poetic ... and your friends jokingly claim you are a walking lie detector. In effect, you are intuitive, capable of seeing through sham, pretense. This year you will do more traveling than usual, will make a basic change connected with opposite sex -- and, most important, will find constructive outlet for creative efforts.

(To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, Secret Hints for Men and Women. Send birthdate and 50 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, (name of your paper), Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)



Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

The PIZZA INN
(At the old Amherst Creamery)
173 Sunset Ave.
Second Week
SPECIAL
Our Fantastic Large
MEATBALL GRINDER
plus
Large PEPSI only 80c
with coupon below.
STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.
SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
Large Meatball Grinder & Large Pepsi 80c with this coupon
PIZZA INN

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Permit
4 Extra
9 Crafty
12 Mohammedan leader
13 Artist's stand
14 Confederate general
15 Baggage carrier
17 Begs
19 Metal
20 Become aware of 21 Strike
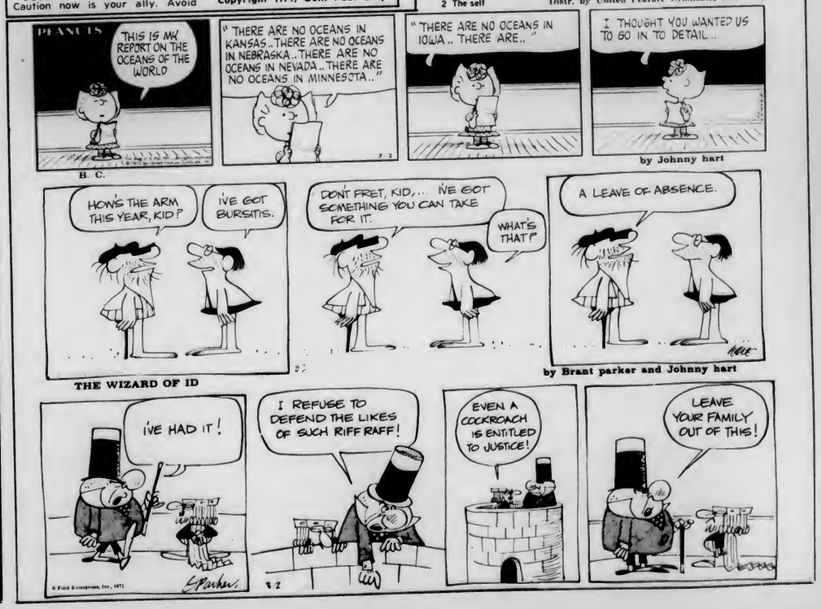
23 Nothing
24 The sweetsop
27 Pronoun
28 Hit lightly
29 Item of property
30 Symbol for silver
31 Dude
32 Before
33 Note of scale
34 Wireless
36 Chapeau
37 Inlet
38 Verve
39 Sailor (colloq.)
40 Irishman
41 Approaches
43 Label
44 Oar
46 Pursue
49 Poem
50 Claw
52 Macaw
53 Rocky hill
54 Aromas
55 Man's nickname



DOWN
1 Once around track
2 The self
3 Intractable person
4 Observed
5 Equality
6 Conjunction
7 Repulse
8 Girl's name
9 Inclines
10 Conducted
11 Affirmative
16 Gratuity
18 Wipe out
20 Brim
21 Portion
22 Lawful
23 Short sleep
25 Weird
26 Take unlawfully
28 Also
29 Skill
31 Imposed monetary penalty
32 Organ of hearing
35 Anger (colloq.)
36 Possesses
37 Style of coat
39 Walk on
40 Female (colloq.)
42 Singing voice
43 Measure of weight (pl.)
44 Vessel
45 Fuss
46 Preposition
47 Native metal
48 Small lump
51 Behold!

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ART SORE THE ASIA ERIN AIR
ITCH ED BITTER
DEN RED DOT
ERIS RIA WENT
BAT ARE RUE
PA COMMAND TE
ALP ROO SOW
SLAT AND GOLF
MOT DIP ELR
REPEAL NEE VE
IRE LORE TREE
MAR EWER AARP

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Redmen Squeeze By Wildcats

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

DURHAM, N.H.—With a Springfield finish looking them in the face, the UMass hoopsters had just enough to get by a spunky, determined, ready to play New Hampshire five, 63-60 before a wild, hungry throng of Wildcat fans here last night.

In winning its 22nd game of the season against only three defeats the Redmen clinched their fourth Yankee Conference championship in a row. The loss left UNH with a season's record of 11-12 and the admiration of all those present.

All the ingredients for a cinderella performance by the Wildcats were present. A wild, home-court crowd. Everything to gain. A possible UMass letdown. And hot shooting by Dave Pemberton, Paul Cormier and Brian Peters.

But in the end the Redmen won the game, and this is all that can be said--they just won the game.

From the outset UNH came ready to play. And from the outset, UMass was not ready to play. There is quite a difference from playing at Madison Square Garden and at UNH and it showed. This game took the trend that has occurred throughout the season against the lesser teams. UMass was just not up.

In the first stanza, UMass led most of the way, with as much as a six point lead, 28-22 with three minutes to go in the half. Peters was the chief architect of the UNH first-half success as he scored 13 points and controlled the Wildcat offense.

Julius Erving and the rest of the UMass frontcourt got off to a slow first-half, playing only as well as the opposition affronted them. The outside shooting of backcourt men Mike Pagliara and John Betancourt kept the Redmen on top for the entire first half.

At the half UMass led 30-26 and everyone waited for the second half Redmen explosion.

As the second half began the Redmen went to a tight man to man defense and hit for the first five points of the stanza and a 35-26 bulge. But UNH was not ready to let the visitors open it up. Led by the shooting of Pemberton, Cormier, and Peters, and Wildcats hung close and applied constant pressure to the Redmen attack both on offense and defense.

With the score 49-46, UMass on top, Erving went to work and scored seven straight points, but while he was doing this, the home team hit for two hoops of its own, and it was 56-50 with six minutes to go.

UNH went to a deliberate offense, waited for the good shot and Pemberton threw home two buckets to close the margin to 56-54 with about four minutes to play.

Then Betancourt hit a bucket. Peters hit one for UNH. Mathias hit one of two from the line. Erving converted Mathias' missed free-throw into a hoop, and UMass was on top 61-56 with just over two minutes to go.

Now shades of Springfield moved in as UNH slowed the ball down even more and held for the good, open shot. Peters and Pemberton did this to perfection as both hit good percentage shots from the floor, and the score was 61-60, UMass on top with a half-minute to go.

UNH went into a scrambling press but some slick Redmen passing broke the press and resulted in a Betancourt layup to ice the game with 23 seconds to go.

HOOP NOTES: UMass hit 44% from the floor and a good 85% from the foul-line...UNH converted 35%

John Betancourt

from the floor and a whopping 92% from the line... Erving led the Redmen in scoring with 19 points and had only 23 rebounds..Betancourt hit for 13 points...Pagliara scored 10... Peters led all scorers with 23 points, hitting a better than 50% clip...Pemberton had 19 points and Cormier hit for seven, with most of them coming in the big second-half effort.

Trackmen Place Fifth In NE Indoor Meet

By ROBERT MEDEIROS
MDC Staff

Boston University scored an impressive victory last Saturday in the New England Indoor Championships as they were able to upset the heavy favorites, Northeastern and UConn. The UMass track team managed to finish a strong fifth in a field of 27 teams.

BU finished on top with a total of 33 1/2 points, while Northeastern and UConn tied for second place with 32 points. Boston College finished in fourth place with a total of 28 points, while UMass rounded out the top five with 17 points.

This year's championship was marked as being the most exciting and closely contested meet in the short history of the New Englands. With only the two relays remaining it appeared as if BU, Northeastern, UConn, and BC each had a chance of winning the meet. BU finally secured its victory with a fifth place finish in the mile relay.

BU was able to pull off an upset due to the superb individual performance of Ford Dennis. Dennis accounted for 12 of BU's 33 1/2 points as he gained an upset win in the long jump, and came back later to win the 60 yard dash in a record breaking performance of 6.2. Ron Evans of UConn set another New England record in the high jump with a jump of 6'8.

The strongest event of the meet for the Redmen was the high hurdles as Jim Graves was edged out of first by Pete Bykowsky of BC. Bykowsky and Graves both ran 7.4 which is a new New England record for the hurdles. Gerry Spellman backed up Graves in the hurdles with a fourthplace finish.

Eddie Arcaro was the first Redman to put points on the scoreboard for the UMass cause as he finished second in the shotput. Arcaro achieved his second place finish on his next to last throw which took him from fourth to his final finish of second place.

Ron Wayne managed a second place in the two mile as he posted his fastest time of the season. Dave Evans was nipped for second place in the 1000 by Jack McDonald of BC as both men were timed in 2:14.8. Larry Paulson ran the best double of his career with a 4:19.8 mile, and a 1:57.7 half mile in the 2 mile relay.

Steve Levine, who just missed qualifying for the finals in the 600, ran his best time of 1:14.3 which is two seconds better than his previous best time. Ed Shaughnessy and Cal Carpenter finished sixth and seventh respectively in the high jump.

The mile relay team of Ron Harris, Gerry Spellman, Steve Levine, and Gene Costello recorded their seasonal best time of 3:26 with a seventh place finish in the mile relay. The two mile relay team also finished seventh behind the efforts of John Maloney, Arnie Morse, Al Mangan, and Larry Paulson.

HAND IT OVER: UMass trackman Al Mangan (521) hands off the baton to teammate Larry Paulson in the two-mile relay of the New England Indoor Championship meet. The Redmen finished fifth in the event behind BU, Northeastern, UConn, and Boston. (MDC photo by Ed Mangiaratti)

Matmen Take Two More

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

The UMass wrestling team continued its red hot pace over the weekend as the Redmen won their tenth straight meet Saturday with a 22-11 decision over MIT. The win upped the Redmen's record to 15-3-1, including a forfeit victory over Boston College on Friday when the Eagles failed to field a team. The loss dropped MIT to 6-6 for the season and may have knocked them out of the top ten in New England.

Once again, veterans Sheldon Goldberg and George Zguris led the Redmen to victory. Goldberg upped his record to 15-0-1 for the season and has not lost a match in New England during his varsity career. He lost twice in Pennsylvania last season but has won everything else in compiling a two year record of 27-2-4. The junior from Valley Stream N.Y. swept to the New England title as a sophomore and figures to make it two in a row this year. Goldberg isn't an overwhelmingly strong wrestler and scores very few pins, but he is a smart, control type wrestler and usually dominates a bout from the opening whistle. Indicative of this is the fact that he has shut out his last four opponents and he has been averaging about five minutes riding time each match.

Zguris, New England champ two years ago and runnerup last season, is having his best year as a Redman. George was always a strong tournament wrestler, saving his best effortts for the tourneys, and this is shown through his two year record. As a sophomore, he compiled a 4-5 dual meet record and was the dark horse of the tourney as he came out of nowhere to win the championship. His record improved to 10-5-1 last season, but no one expected the outstanding performance he has come up with this year. His third period pin in Saturday's meet upped his record to 14-0 and makes him New England's top 190 lb. wrestler. Unlike Goldberg, Zguris is anything but a graceful wrestler. He comes onto the mat like a hungry lion looking for raw meat and proceeds to attack his opponent. He is very aggressive and has won many bouts by pins in piling up a three year record of 28-10-1.

However, these are just two of UMass' outstanding wrestlers and the others did their job in Saturday's victory. Dave Amato upped his personal record to 12-1 with an 8-4 win in the 118 lb. match to give the Redmen a quick lead. Dave Reynolds followed with a 4-2 win at 126 and raised his record to 10-1. After Goldberg's 8-0 win at 134, Clay Jester upped the Redmen lead to 12-0 with an easy 7-1 victory over Hartman of the Engineers. Clay is now 11-4 on the year and seems to have recovered from a mid season slump and should be one of the top seeds in the tourney.

Sheldon Goldberg

Brian Urquhart came from behind to earn a tie in the 150 lb. bout. Trailing 1-0 after two periods, Brian wrestled his opponent to a 2-2 tie in the third period and picked up a minute of riding time to make the final 3-3. Jim Godkin made the score 17-2 with a hard earned 6-5 win at 158 and then MIT started to make a comeback. Mitchell won the 167 lb. bout, shutting out Mike Brauner 6-0. Ed Carlson suffered one of his few losses with a 5-2 setback and the score was 17-8. Zguris put the match out of reach with his pin and Davies of MIT won the unlimited bout over Carl Dambman, 12-3. Davies is one of the best heavyweights in New England and Dambman made it close for two periods before running out of gas.

Tonight the Redmen close out their dual meet season when they travel to Central Connecticut for a 7:00 meet. Central is one of the toughest teams on the UMass schedule and could pull an upset.

Sport Notices

Co-Rec Bowling Entries are due at the IM office on Thursday, March 4.

Intramural wrestling quarter finals--semi-finals--finals will be held at Boyden Auxilliary Gym Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Starting time each night is 7 p.m.

SPECIAL: Boyden Gym will NOT be available Monday-Friday 4:30-6:30 p.m. for recreational activity starting March 8-March 20.

UMass Rugby Club will hold practice today at 4:30 p.m. Anyone interested in rugby is invited. Meet in front of Boyden. A film will be shown at 8 p.m. in Goessman 259, featuring the Triple Crown Championship of the Welsh National Side. Any and all are invited.

Tonight's Intramurals

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:30	SAM vs. PMD
2		SN vs. PSK
3		LCA vs. ASP
4		PLP vs. SAE
5		SAE vs. ATG
6		PSD vs. APO
		POSITION TROJAN
7		1 vs. 2
8		4 vs. 5
9		Cans vs. Flaming A's
10		Eagles vs. Maroons
1	7:30	Conglos vs. Burners
2		Inter. Ed. vs. Gunners
3		Bombers vs. Education
4		TKB vs. Crushers
5		Fleas vs. PP
6		SAE vs. Prince
7		TT vs. Sextets
8		Ids vs. LT
9		Cans vs. Lovers
1	8:30	Boys vs. Dildoughs
2		Heads vs. Jacks
3		Pranksters vs. Erudites
4		Hurts vs. Sutts
5		Tubes vs. Oxfords
6		Bucks vs. Hackers
7		Aries vs. Gwimps
8		Friends vs. Gapos
9		Turkeys vs. Erudites
1	9:30	Pipers vs. Hemlocks
2		Lemons vs. Redwoods
3		Oaks vs. Hi-Lo's
		"WOMEN'S IM"
Court	Time
7:15		Kangaroos vs. Gorman Pines
		Dickinson vs. Mary's Lions
7:45		The Foul Balls vs. The Sleazebags
		The Gammies vs. Puffton
8:15		Melville Troupe vs. Gorman Pines
		Lotta's Girls vs. Mary's Lions
8:45		Patterson vs. The Sleazebags
		Dwight vs. Puffton

IM Results

Volleyball Co-Rec

Bouncers 2 Jacks 1
Kopela 2 Stouties 0

Banditos 2 JG 0

Volleyball

Monuments 2 Senators 0
Colts WBF Crushers
Academics WBF Leopards
Bruisers 2 Chipmunks 0
Panthers 2 Seagrams 0
Jacks 2 Beta Chi 1
Smithies WBF Eagles
Deacons 2 Stouts 0
Browns 2 Munchkin 1
Team 2 Eighteen 0
Jacks 2 Smokers 0
Vlooms 2 X 0
Misfits 2 Flats 1
Leven 2 Volleys 0
3 M's 2 2nd Team 0
Busters 2 EMS 1

Flies WBF Beadledoms
Bodies 2 Zeroes 0
Civil 2 Selohssa 0

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
Look for snow. Don't be surprised if you find rain.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 98 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1971

WHICH WAY WHITMORE?-The Fort seems to be a bit awry as it climbs up instead of out. Dean Field's window looks out on a crooked 1 lot. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

Student Group Budgets Before Senate Tonight

By BETH GOODELL
MDC Staff

The budgeting of student organizations will be the main topic of business at tonight's Student Senate meeting. According to various Senators, floor fights are virtually certain over at least four of the ten budgets scheduled to be heard tonight.

The budgets to be considered are the Budgets Committee's recommendations for: Area Governments, Community Action Foundation, the Daily Collegian, Precisionettes, RSO, Rugby, Yahoo, television station WTOY, the Black Mass Communications Project, and the Student Senate.

Senators spoken to by this reporter say there are definite plans to ask for changes in the Senate, Area Governments, Collegian, and Black Mass Communications budgets; and requests for changes in other organizations are very possible. The Budgets Committee will consider the requested amendments at another hearing. The Senate as a whole will be able to make amendments only when all of the budgets are given final consideration as part of the total budget act.

Debate on the Senate budget of over $170,000 is expected (over whether CCEBS should be funded). In past years, the Senate has provided the program with $30,000, and the Budgets Committee has again included this figure.

CCEBS is also funded by the Administration and outside grants, and reportedly has sufficient funds for student aid for next year. This is the area in which Senate funds have formerly been used, and the argument is that the Senate appropriation is not necessary this year.

The Area Governments budget for approximately $60,000 will also probably cause considerable debate. The Budgets Committee has set a $4 allotment per resident to be given each Area. There is strong sentiment among some Senators that this rate should be raised to strengthen Area Government.

The possibility of two cuts in the Collegian budget has been expressed by Senators. They plan to request amendments to decrease the salary and printing categories in the $100,000 budget.

The Black Mass Communicatons Project is a new group being funded for the first time by the Senate. Requests to greatly reduce or strike the $13,500 budget are expected from Senate members.

The other budgets to be considered include the Community Action Foundation, made up of several groups, including NES, the Committee on Poverty, Northampton Volunteers, etc. A budget of approximately $40,000 is recommended for RSO, $8,000 for Yahoo, and nearly $17,000 for WTOY. Budgets Committee is recommending that the budgets of the Precisionettes and Rugby be eliminated. Senators will be able to request amendments to any of these budgets this evening.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BRIDGE-There's a famous song about this bridge which connects New Jersey to Manhattan. But we won't go into that here. (MDC photo by David Bernstein)

On The Inside:

- Dean McGuirk Retiring See Page 2
- Mills House Closed Indefinitely See Page 3
- Pucksters Get Playoff Berth See Page 12

Served 22 Years

Dean McGuirk To Retire

Warren P. McGuirk, Dean of the School of Physical Education and Director of Athletics at the University of Massachusetts, announced today (March 2) that he will retire from the University on January 2, 1972.

During the 22 years in which he headed both physical education and athletic programs at UMass, a number of new facilities were added. The Women's Physical Education Building was completed in 1959, the Boyden Gymnasium in 1963, and the Football Stadium in 1966. Playing fields were moved from the center of campus to the west side and expanded considerably. Tennis courts were built, three new baseball fields were constructed, and a new eight-lane, all-weather track was added. It will be used for the first time this spring. Golf, skiing, gymnastics, lacrosse, and wrestling were added to the intercollegiate athletic program under his leadership.

He gave strong support to intramural athletics, so that the UMass intramural program now involves more students than any institution in New England, and every student has the opportunity to participate in some sport.

Upon receiving the retirement letter, Dr Oswald Tippo, Chancellor of the UMass-Amherst campus, said, "Warren McGuirk has been a major force in the development of his University during its most dynamic period of growth. Under his leadership the physical education program has become one of the best in the nation.

"A man of vision, he planned years ago for the crush of students who are here today. More important, he is a gentleman and a man of integrity. He is dedicated to the University of Massachusetts and has been an articulate spokesman for it wherever he goes. It has been a privilege to have had him as a colleague."

George R. Richason, Jr., Chairman of the Athletic Council and professor of chemistry, said, "Dean Warren McGuirk's contribution to our athletic program can accurately be described as a quest for excellence. His expertise and untiring efforts have promoted outstanding facilities, produced breadth and depth in athletics and intramural activities and provided an outstanding group of coaches–all this resulting in an intercollegiate program that has to be considered one of the best in the East. His dedication to the University of Massachusetts cannot be measured in words."

Born in Dorchester, Jan. 2, 1906, Dean McGuirk is a graduate of Dorchester High School, where he compiled an outstanding record as a three-sport star. After attending St. Anselm's Preparatory School, he entered Boston College, performing as a standout tackle on the 1926 and 1928 undefeated squads. He was captain of the football team in his senior year, and graduated in 1929.

After graduation he was a teacher-coach at Malden High School, and later Director of Physical Education and Athletics. From 1942-46, he was in the U.S. Navy, serving as athletic director at Quonset Point Naval Air Station and at the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville, Fla. He was discharged from the Navy with the rank of Commander. He entered Boston University Graduate School and received his Master's Degree in 1948.

He was the first President of the Boston College Varsity Club, is a member of the Gridiron Club of Boston and is a part President of the Massachusetts State Coaches Association.

Dean McGuirk is a former President of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, and was a member of the executive committee for several years. A former vice-president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, he has served on a number of its committees during his distinguished career. He is currently a member of the 10-man Honors Court of the National Football Foundation, which selects collegiate football players for the Hall of Fame.

Nine UMass Students Busted in Hadley

A police raid at 257 Russell St. resulted in the arrest of nine UMass students two days ago. Arriving at 6:15 p.m., state and Hadley police confiscated LSD, a variety of pills, and a large quantity of marijuana, both cut and growing.

Anne S. McCarthy, 19 of Patterson House, and Mark S. Haley 19, of East Longmeadow, neither of whom lived at the house, were both charged with possession of marijuana and growing marijuana.

Also arrested in the bust on charges of possession of marijuana and being present were Paul W. Webber, 20, of Amesbury, Peter J. Righi, 21 of Hampden, Walter S. Batchelder, 21 of Wakefield, Phillip A. Rohr, 20, of Lynn and Gerald A. Assad, 22 of Westport. James P. McLaughlin, 20, of Worcester was charged with intent to sell and growing of marijuana plants. Charged only of being present was Richard K. Jordan, 21 of Worcester.

Credit Sought For Frosh Orientation

By JIM MITCHELL
MDC Staff

The SWAP committee on freshman orientation and security met last night to further discuss the proposals initiated last December. The main topic discussed was the means available to induce, or require, freshman to attend a more comprehensive orientation period where they could learn more about the services that the University has to offer.

The major problem now seems to be that it is taken for granted by University administrators that freshman have access to academic, psychological, and financial guidance. Stressing this point, Mark Brenner, the group leader said, "We expect people to be automatically aware of where they can seek out information".

Reviewing the proposal that would require freshmen to take a one credit comprehensive orientation course, Brenner felt that this may be the only viable solution to ensure a fuller understanding of the University for all. Many students consider their time too valuable to attend an extended orientation period, so the credit allowance would compensate for this, said Brenner.

The group was somewhat disappointed and concerned about the small showing at the meeting; four people to be exact were there. Brenner said that student apathy was a great problem. Students should not be afraid to attend meetings such as these because no proposal or comment would be conceived as foolish. It is surprising what a small group, or even one vocal person can accomplish in terms of change as long as he is willing to speak out, said Brenner.

In case you missed this meeting, the group will be getting together regularly on Tuesday evenings at about 7 in the back of the Hatch.

Kindahl Explains Resignation

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

Professor James K. Kindahl, Head of the Economics Department, gave as the reason for his resignation from the post of Head the fact that he thought the improvement of the department, which he had striven for in his three years as Head, could no longer be accomplished with himself guiding the reins. The announcement of his resignation was given earlier this week.

"I feel that I've made a lot of progress in the past three years," he said. "My goal has been to build a good Economics department at this University, one in which teaching and scholarship could be combined and rewarded."

When questioned about the apparent leaning in the department at present towards micro rather than macro-economics, Kindahl attributed the unbalance to "historical accident-it was not part of any overall plan or design on my part."

Kindahl emphasized the fact that his resignation had no connection with the Best-Hinckley controversy in the Economics department, but was rather a coincidence.

Kindahl said that he had no idea of how the Economics department would progress when he stepped down as Head. "The future depends entirely upon my successor and his goals," he said. "Another important factor will be the inclination of the administration, which has undergone changes recently with the appointments of Dean Alfange and Provost Glucksten."

He also said that he had no intentions of resigning his post as a regular professor in the department, but intended to remain and teach at both the graduate and undergrad levels. His comment was, "I look forward to becoming a scholar again."

On the 'Publish or Prish' issue, Kindahl said that he thought a good teacher was necessarily a good scholar. "The statement 'good teacher, poor scholar' is of necessity a contradiction in terms, at least in Economics. Successful teaching must be the development of skills of analysis," he commented.

"The totality of a man's work must be considered in judging his potential contribution. His publically available research output constitutes the prime source of information about his abilities and industry. Careful study and evaluation of such material will usually be an important source of information for the overall judgement. Also," he continued, "while I'm still talking about publishing, let me make it clear that in this department, a new teacher in his first year of teaching is neither required or expected to do research."

Kindahl pointed out in conclusion that he had no final say in faculty appointments or tenure cases. "My decisions are recommendations, not final statements, which are based on evidence which will not be available until an appropriate time. The final decision rests with the administration."

Ed. Note: See page 7 for Kindahl's letter of resignaton.

Organic Food For Southwest

Plans are now being made for an organic food line in a Southwest dining commons. 40 students met last night with Arthur Warren, asst. director of food services, who approved their request for the option of a meatless and organic diet.

Susan Carran, representing the group which gathered 800 signatures for the proposed line in Southwest, gave Warren a list of organic foods which might be obtained through Yellow Sun, a food co-op based in the Student Union, or from local farmers.

The list emphasized foods made from grains, vegetables, nuts, fruits, and fish-but not meat. Warren said that some items, like nuts, were expensive, the total menu was not. A vote showed the meeting favored including fish on the otherwise vegetarian menu-but no one present favored adding meat.

Students who did cooking for the Noodle will meet with the dining commons cooks to advise them on the food preparation, it was agreed.

Bob Johnston, of Yellow Sun, explained that the word "organic" refers to the way the food is grown. But preparing the food involves "a completely different approach," he added.

One student made the point that cooking food in Buddhist monasteries, is often the highest position given the most advanced monks. "It's one of the lowest at the University," Warren said. Concluding, he added "Unless it is some ritualistic way to cook, I think we can set this up."

The organic line would occupy one side of a dining commons in Southwest, like the diet-line in Hamden Commons. Though "crossing over" for seconds in a different line at any one meal will not be allowed, students will be free to eat in either of the lines as often as they like. The line is planned to serve two meals, lunch and supper, daily.

Draft Talk on WMUA Tonight

Tonight on "Viewpoint" on WMUA at 6:30 PM, Ken Mosakowski, ordinarily host of "Focus" on WMUA, former Chairman of the Western Mass. Committee to Repeal the Draft, and also a lobbyist for the National Council to Repeal the Draft, will be the guest on "Viewpoint". The subject for tonight's discussion Draft Repeal: National and Local. That's WMUA-FM 91.1.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

News Hotline 545-2550

MOBE To March April 24

By JEFF THOMPSON
MDC Staff

The Student Mobilization Committee (MOBE) met last night in the Campus Center to discuss the April 24 march on Washington which is sponsored by the National Peace Action Coalition. Committees were formed, and the projects leading up to the April 24 march were explained by Claire Moriarty, who chaired the meeting.

Other business included giving support to the UMass Veterans for Peace, a newly formed student organization, discussion of the Connecticut Valley Anti-War Convention that was held last Saturday, and supporting a possible Dining Commons boycott for the Lettuce Boycott Committee.

Committees formed for the march on Washington were a High School Committee, whose function it will be to inform the local high schools of the march and to get support, a Fund Raising Committee, whose basic tactic will be "to hit up the faculty members, the faculty, grad, and student senates," revealed Miss Moriarty.

Other committees will be a Publicity Committee, a Campus Committee, a Women's Lib Committee, a Speakers Committee which will try to get Noam Chomsky fro MIT, an Art Committee for posters, a Bus Committee, a Labor Unions Committee, and a Medic/Marshalls Committee.

All these committes will coordinate their efforts to get as many people as possible to Washington.

Projects leading up to the march will include a possible Black and Third World Moratorium on April 3, a teach-in about the war on April 15, a demonstration in the Springfield Induction Center to end the draft on April 21, and finally the big march.

A motion was passed to give MOBE's support to the UMass Veterans for Peace. The Vets will stage a demonstration for peace at Westover Air Force Base. This motion was presented by Bernie Lougee.

Alwin Schmidt and Jack Clark, members of the Lettuce Boycott Committee also asked for MOBE support. They said that the Food Services Department has been totally uncooperative in the boycott. The boycott committee's platform is that only United Farm Workers Lettuce should be bought. The result would improve living conditions of migrant workers and give them the opportunity to choose the union they would like to join as opposed to the union that the growers would like to have them join.

"Since most of the Dining Commons workers belong to a union, that supports the UFW plight," remarked Schmidt, "we can potentially set up a picket line in front of one of the dining commons (they declined to say which), that most of the employees wouldn't cross. And we will do it early next week unless we get cooperation from Joel Stoneham (Director of Food Services)".

MOBE voted to give its support to any future boycotts. The meeting then dispersed by breaking up into the various committees.

About thirty people attended the MOBE meeting held in the Campus Center last night. (MDC Photo by Al. Jagoda.)

Mills Closed Indefinitely Emergency Meeting Tonite

By RICHARD C. HANSON
MDC Staff

Mills House, the UMass Black Cultural Center, will be closed starting today for an "indefinite" length of time because of what the Steering Committee for the Center reported to be "emergency conditions" in the Black Community.

Spokesman, Stan Kinard informed the Collegian late last night that the 12 member governing, Steering Committee had voted the closing at 10:43 p.m., and had called for a meeting of the entire Black community at UMass tonight at 7:00 P.M. in Mills House.

The Steering Committee's decision is reportedly based on some conflicts within the black community concerning a "number of things". Kinard asserted that the difficulties were "serious."

"The Cultural Center may be closed permanently", said Kinard, emphasizing that all of the facilities in the Mills House will be closed tomorrow, including the offices of the W.E.B. Dubois Black Studies department.

Neither the Vice-Chancellor for student affairs nor the Dean of Students were aware of the closing when contacted last night. According to Vice Chancellor Bromery, there had been some buildup of tension within the Black community in recent weeks.

The Steering Committee of the Black Cultural Center, chaired by Carl Thomas, took charge of running Mills House last Fall, when elections were held to form the body which would have responsibility for all of the functions in the former dormitory.

The spokesman would not go into further detail about the reasons for the closing.

Malcolm X Memorial Thursday

"Our people were outright slaves–outright slaves. We pulled plows like horses. We were bought and sold from one plantation to another like you sell chickens or like you sell a bag of potatoes. I read in one book where George Washington exchanged a black man for a keg of molasses. Why, that black man could have been my grandfather. You know what I think of George Washington."

That's a quote of Malcolm X, assassinated six years ago. This Thursday night, in Room 174 of the Campus Center at 8:00, the Militant Forum will present a memorial to Malcolm X.

Several tapes of his speeches will be played, and comments on his life and ideas given by Playthal Benjamin of the UMass Black Studies Department, and Keith Dunn, a Black high-school activist from Boston.

Five Students from UMass Woodrow Wilson Finalists

The University of Massaachusetts has announced the names of five students chosen as Woodrow Wilson Finalists for 1971 by the Woodrow Wilson National Scholarship Foundation.

The finalists, all seniors, are Daniel P. Brown of New Bedford, Elaine M. Fitzback of Webster, and Christine I. Miller of Upton, all from the UMass Amherst campus; and Mrs. Kathleen A. Steinfeld of Cambridge and Richard E. Frankfurt of Boston, both UMass Boston students.

The foundation encourages students to pursue careers in college teaching by awarding fellowships and recommendations for fellowships. This year, out of 10,000 nominations from throughout the U.S., 305 students were awarded fellowships and 741 were named finalists. The latter receive no direct support but are recommended for fellowships and assistantships awarded by graduate schools.

Chemists Stress Bad Acid Around

Tests run on samples of LSD currently on campus show it to be highly dangerous and tainted with poisonous drugs.

It is being sold under the name of "buff gray acid flats" and has gold or black specks.

Chemists stress that this acid is extremely dangerous, and urge people who have any to get rid of it.

Spectrum is having an open house. Anyone who is interested in Spectrum and what goes into it, stop by the Spectrum office, room 409 of the Student Union, sometime between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. this Thursday, March 4. We need new ideas and new people and would be happy to discuss any comments you have about the magazine

Author-Activist To Speak Here

On March 4 at 1:30 in the Student Union Ballroom, Michael Harrington will speak concerning the question; why do we need socialism in America? Mr. Harrington is best known for his The Other America: Poverty in the United States, which shocked the nationwith its revelation that perhaps as much as one-fifth of the American population was living in poverty. In The Other America Harrington forcefully challenged the notion of the United States as an affluent society and boldly criticized the American social system for perpetuating poverty by pushing it aside as an "invisible" problem. The Other America has been credited with bringing the issue of poverty to national attention and for providing the spirit for the War on Poverty.

Besides The Other America, Harrington has written The Accidental Century, a sweeping survey of the decay of western post-industrial society, and of the positive alternatives which democratic socialism offers to such a "one-dimensional society." Finally, through such periodicals as Commentary and Dissent, as well as in a recent book Toward A Democratic Left, Harrington has treated such issues as: the relationship between education and social inequality, the reform of and the transcendence from the Welfare State, and the social problem represented by the "New Industrial State." In the face of scepticism, Mr. Harrington has proposed a political coalition of working people, the poor, and the student democratic left into a party of leftist sentiment.

Mr. Harrington has been a social worker at the Catholic Worker House in New York, in labor camps in the Mid-West, and in Appalachia. He has been and is a political activist as chairman of the Socialist Party of the United States and of the League for Industrial Democracy, and as a member of the American Civil Liberties Union, A. Philip Randolph Institute, and the Workers' Defense League.

As a social thinker, Mr. Harrington is concerned with the application of the egalitarian principles inherent to a democratic socialism, to meet and transcend the socio-economic plight of the "New Industrial State". Hence, such matters as the distinction between "private interests" (for example, those of the American corporation) and "the public interest," the relationship between poverty and public policy, and the human problem that automation represents, are concerns central to Harrington's writing.

Achtung! Summer German Students

Students who had planned to take German 120 this summer should immediately contact the German office in Herter Hall since this course can be given only if there is enough of a demand. The Department wishes to point out at the same time that it may not be able to offer German 120 in the fall if the State does not provide enough funds to retain the present number of teaching assistants.

IT'S GOING TO BE JAMMED

so don't wait until the last day. Have your Senior portrait taken today — Council Chamber, Student Union. Bring $3.50

Five College Charter Flights

1. Boston-Paris-Milan June 17-August 26 $250
2. Boston-London June 15-August 25 $216.50
3. Boston-London June 15-August 12 $248
4. Boston-N.Y.-Madrid June 16-August 26 $250

Contact Director, International Programs, 229 Whitmore for information. 545-2710.

THE ONLY OFFICIALLY AUTHORIZED FIVE COLLEGE FLIGHTS.

Flights #1-3 Pam Am, #4 Iberia.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742

10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

In The Nation And The World

FBI To Investigate Bombing of Capitol

BLAST DAMAGES SENATE WING OF CAPITOL - Map locates the Senate wing of the Capitol in Washington, D.C., which was hit by a powerful bomb early this morning. Police reported that the bomb caused extensive structural damager, but no injuries.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The FBI Tuesday investigated the Capitol bombing in official silence while an anonymous radical letter writer claimed responsibility and theories sprouted like mushrooms.

The Capitol returned to near normal activities, and a Senate Public Works subcommittee began inquiry to find a way to bombproof the historic building while still leaving it open to visitors.

In one of the few concrete developments, something or someone called "The Weather Underground" claimed to have set off Monday's early morning explosion in radical letters postmarked after the event.

"We have attacked the Capitol because it is . . . a monument to U.S. domination over the planet," said identical letters received by The Associated Press and the New York Post. The AP letter was turned over to FBI investigators who requested it.

FBI spokesmen, meanwhile, refused to comment on the investigation. However, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell remarked tersely at a White House ceremony that evidence points to "something less than a conspiracy."

A theory that the bombing was the result of a conspiracy centers on remarks attributed to Capitol Police Capt. Leonard H. Ballard.

He has been quoted in news reports as saying the Capitol switchboard received two calls, one from Spokane, Wash., and one from Chicago, after the blast at 11:32 a.m. but before major news agencies spread word of it. This would indicate someone outside Washington knew about the bombing in advance.

Capitol Police Chief James M. Powell said, however, that he had no knowledge of such calls.

One theory is that the bombing was an inside job, the work of someone who would know about the out-of-the-way men's washroom where the bomb exploded. Even Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.,) said he didn't know the room was there.

Visitors were barred from the bombed Senate wing of the Capitol Monday, but were admitted almost as usual Tuesday. Capitol police had orders to inspect packages and briefcases and were keeping visitors and unauthorized Capitol workers away from the immediate bomb site where buckled walls created a hazard.

During the day Powell testified before the Senate Public Works subcommittee and suggested that security could be tightened by expanding and upgrading his patronage-laden police force, by inspecting packages and briefcases and by possibly making some more areas of the Capitol off limits to visitors.

UMW Chief Charged With Embezzling

WASHINGTON (AP) - W. A. "Tony" Boyle, 66-year-old United Mine Workers president, was indicted Tuesday on 13 counts charging him with embezzling UMW funds and funneling $49,250 illegally to 11 political campaign committees.

Also indicted for activities carried out between 1966 and 1969 were two other top UMW officials, secretary-treasurer John Owens and John Kmstz, director of the Labor's Non-Partisan League, the UMW's political arm.

The biggest recipient listed was the Salute to Humphrey Dinner Committee, which the indictments said received $30,000 in October 1968. That was the year Hubert H. Humphrey was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president.

However, the indictments charged no wrongdoing by the groups that allegedly received the illegal contributions, both Democratic and Republican.

This latest attack on Boyle's stewardship of the union and its funds was in indictments handed down by a special federal grand jury here, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell announced.

The UMW issued a statement saying "we completely deny all allegations contained in the indictment" and "we are confident that our innocence will be demonstrated.

"We are confident that the courts will not sustain the government's attempt to abridge the First Amendment rights of our members.

Any money expended by the league, it said, was to secure passage of health, safety and related laws beneficial to the union's 200,000 coal miners, and no UMW official secured any personal benefit.

"Chip" Yablonski, son of slain insurgent mine leader Joseph A. Yablonski Sr. who has carried on his father's battle against the UMW leadership, welcomed the indictment. And he said it is time for Boyle to resign his $50,000 a-year job and for Owens to step down too.

Yablonski's statement urged the Labor and Justice Departments to place a monitorship over the independent union and "freeze its assets to assure the propriety of its expenditures."

The maximum penalty, on conviction, could put the UMW leaders behind bars for five years on each count and cost them a $10,000 fine on each count.

One count charges Boyle with embezzling $5,000. Another count accuses him with conspiring to embezzle and to make illegal political contributions totaling $49,250, including the $5,000. Eleven counts charge Boyle with actually making such contributions.

Kmetz was charged with the same conspiracy and embezzlement counts and with two counts of making illegal political contributions.

Owens also was charged in the conspiracy count and on one count of making an illegal political contribution.

Poverty Bill Approved-Setback For Nixon

WASHINGTON AP—President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan suffered Tuesday its first major legislative setback when a Senate committee approved a bill to save the $1 billion Appalachian antipoverty program.

Sent to the Senate with the blessings of the Public Works Committee was a bill to extend the life of the 13-state Appalachian Regional Commission four years and the Appalachian highway project five years.

The administration has proposed eliminating the regional commission in favor of its revenue-sharing program on the ground that the commission's work would duplicate that which states could carry out under revenue-sharing.

The Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 has pumped millions of dollars into a mountainous ridge of poverty from New York to Mississippi to bolster the area's economy.

In the past, Congress has authorized the work of the Appalachian Regional Commission anew every two years but the proposed Senate legislation would authorize it for four years, thus flying squarely in the face of Nixon's plan to phase out the commission.

"The ARC has never been visualized as a permanent program," Sen. Jennings Randolph, D—W.VA., said after the committee meeting, "but we feel that while the work could not be done in two years it could be done in four."

The administration, which wants only a one-year extension, proposed a $273-million dollar budget for the commission in 1972. This, the administration reasons, would give Congress time to pass Nixon's revenue-sharing plan without financial interruption to the regional commission's programs.

The bill now before the Senate was introduced by Sens. Randolph, the Public Works Committee chairman, and John Sherman Cooper, R—KY., and it has the cosponsorship of about 55 other senators.

Similar legislaton has been introduced in the House.

In addition to extending the Appalachian act the new bill would provide for 90 per cent federal grants to existing airports for general improvements. It would also set up 100 per cent federal grants for aerial navigational aids, such as takeoff and landing equipment.

Prayers Banned In Leyden Schools

BOSTON (AP)—Voluntary prayers in the public elementary schools in the town of Leyden were banned Tuesday by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

The state high court overturned a lower court ruling, saying the prayer sessions had been ruled unconstitutional in broad decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court in the early 1960's.

Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn had appealed the decision of Judge Paul Rutledge in Suffolk Superior Court, who said the voluntary prayers would be legal so long as no teacher takes part or is present.

Pupils in the four-room school in Leyden have been participating in the prayer sessions since September, 1970. Under the Leyden plan a school bell marked the beginning and end of the prayer or Bible reading session before classes began.

In a decision written by Justice R. Ami Cutter, the state Supreme Court ruled that, "Until there is a change in the U.S. Supreme Court language...it would serve no useful purpose to attempt to draw any fine distinction between those observances which have hitherto been proscribed by the U.S. Supreme Court and the Leyden practice now presented for our scrutiny.

"We think that under the applicable First Amendment decisions neither students nor teachers may be allowed to participate in the well-intended observance on school property authorized by the Leyden resolution," the ruling said.

Attorneys for the town school committee had argued that the Leyden system did not violate the prohibitions set down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

MDC Classifieds PAY

IT'S WEDNESDAY

and TODAY is the last day to make an appointment for your Senior pictures. Beat the rush and sign up now.

INDEX OFFICE

2nd floor, S.U

Student Tours Presents
ACAPULCO ADVENTURE
during College Week
March 20 - 28 from $208
plus tax and service

includes:
- Round trip jet transportation to Acapulco, Mexico
- Meals and bar service aloft.
- Stay at Holiday Inn or Hotel Acapulco Imperial
- All taxes and tips for baggage and transportation.
- Discounts on many clubs, dicotheques, tours, skin diving, and water skiing.

Spring Skiing — Sugarbush, Vt.
during College Week
from $112 March 21 - 26

includes:
- Lodging at Alpen Inn
- Meals
- Lifts
- Lessons

For more information call Joan or Louise 549-0818

YOU'RE AN INDIVIDUAL, DAMN IT!

Everyone's needs, attitudes, and objectives are different. A good life insurance policy should reflect your individuality.

You'll always be an individual, but will you always be able to buy insurance? Not at this year's rates and maybe not at all.

If you want your financial plans to reflect your individuality, I would like to meet you. In order to discuss your goals at your convenience, please call for an appointment. Call 546-7366 on Wednesday, March 3rd, between 7:00 and 10:00 p.m. Ask for

Mike Duhamel Special Representative
Robert E. Evans & Associates
Office phone number 617 757-5675

Selective Service Snafu Raised By American Legion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Legion called Tuesday for a four-year extension of draft authority as a message "that we have the courage to face up to our responsibilities as leader of the free world."

However, continuation of Selective Service was opposed by spokesmen for various youth and church groups as the House Armed Services Committee continued hearings on the issue.

"The unstable condition of world affairs, which has continued since World War II, is not likely to inuprove even if we succeed in withdrawing completely from Vietnam," Charles E. Mattingly, assistant legislative director of the veterans' organization, told the committee.

"I believe we must face up to the fact that without the draft, our regular forces and reserves will be hard pressed to maintain force levels and composition consistent with our treaty obligations and retain a creditable defense posture," he said.

Mattingly said reserve and officer training programs would suffer if young men were not motivated to join them because of the draft.

In addition to extension of induction authority, he said, the legion supports increased pay and benefits for the military, elimination of student deferments and strengthening of ROTC programs.

John R. Kernodle Jr. told the committee in prepared testimony that "It is a strange paradox of history that our nation, which was once a haven from conscription, now generates exiles because of its own policies of conscription."

Kernodle represented the Council for Christian Social Action of the United Church of Christ.

He said continuation of the draft is contrary to the national heritage and "legitimizes military power."

"The Pentagon has become a keystone of our society," he said.

Peter Knutson of Everett, Wash., an 18-year-old freshman at Stanford University, said in prepared testimony, "A thousand young men in prison, 60,000 in exile and millions alienated. Induction centers fire-bombed, sit-ins, mill-ins, draft card burnings, resistance, fear, hatred, anger...Whether they will continue to multiply is entirely in your hands."

Off-Campus Housing Seen To Be Scarce

Warning has been issued by the UMass Housing Office that off-campus housing for students is in short supply.

Director Donald Pelkey reminded students planning to move off-campus next semester to start looking for rooms early. He said apartments are "usually at a premium" towards the end of the summer so students should start looking before May 1st.

"Waiting any longer usually limits the number of apartments to choose from," Pelkey said. He added that because owners begin advising the office of rooms and flats available for the end of the semester around mid-April, the best of these are usually taken before the end of August.

Students returning to the area during the summer usually find the left-overs as too expensive or "not fit for habitation", he said.

Pelkey cautioned that students who are unmarried and under 21 and plan to move, must have both parental and area coordinator permission before the office can assist them in their move.

Seniors and students who will reach 21 during the coming academic year need only request a move to their area coordinator prior to room choosing.

Students who find $125 average monthly rental for a one bedroom apartment too costly can check the "roommate wanted file" in the office, Pelkey said. Both renters looking for a roommate and students looking for a room to share are listed, he explained. Pelkey said this file has become "much more active" during the last few years as students discover that "two can live as cheaply as one."

"1960-1970,A Dynamic Decade"

Amherst, Mass.--The story of a critical decade in the development of the University of Massachusetts is told in this year's annual report of the President.

"1960-1970, A Dynamic Decade," is the final report to the UMass Board of Trustees by former President John W. Lederle. The President's Report customarily covers the previous academic year; this year's report has been expanded to cover the 1960-1970 decade.

In the words of the report, "From the fall of 1960, when John W. Lederle took over the presidency from Jean Paul Mather, until the summer of 1970, when he relinquished it to Robert C. Wood, the University of Massachusetts passed through what might be termed an institutional adolescence. It was altered in many vital ways, passing from small to large, from one campus to three, from its first to its second century and from adequacy to excellence."

The report includes a chronology of the 1960-1970 decade, excerpts from speeches during the decade by Dr. Lederle, and charts and pictures that graphically illustrate the decade of growth.

In the 1959-60 semester, for example, total enrollment was 5873. A decade later it was 19,367, a 230 per cent increase.

In the same decade, number of faculty at the Amherst campus rose from 315 to 1031 and the average faculty salary went from $7528 to $15,152. In the period, the net amount from the state for operating funds for all campuses went from $6,058,715 to $55,004,473.

Under planned construction, the report lists approximately $66 million at the Amherst campus, $138 million at the Medical School in Worcester and $355 million for the permanent UMass-Boston campus at Columbia Point. The roster of architects associated with UMass during the decade of growth includes some of the leading names in the country--Hideo Sasaki, Pietro Belluschi, Breuer and Beckhard, Roche and Dinkeloo, Edward Durell Stone, J.C. Warnecke, Skidmore Owings and Merrill and others.

A chronology of the decade lists these highlights:

--As the decade opened, new entrance requirements became effective, an honors program began, programs in nursing and physical education were established as schools, and the Four-College Ph.D. was begun with Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges.

--The fiscal autonomy bill, as passed in 1962, gave authorization to the Board of Trustees to set professional salary ranges within state salary schedules, to modernize purchasing and printing procedures, to establish rules for tenure, to transfer funds within state subsidiary accounts and to set up internal trust funds.

--In 1964 the University of Massachusetts at Boston was authorized and opened its doors to 1200 freshmen a year later. The same year the University began its Agency for International Development project in Malawi, its Labor Relations and Research Center, and its Water Resources Research Center.

--In 1968, federal fund applications totalling more than $35 million were approved for the Medical School in Worcester, along with sufficient state funds to go ahead with construction of the medical sciences building and planning of the teaching hospital. In Boston, Columbia Point was designated as the site for the permanent UMass-Boston campus. In Amherst, the first 125 students enrolled under the CCEBS (Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students) program.

--In October of 1969 the Board of Trustees approved a plan for statewide reorganization, Provost Oswald Tippo was named chancellor of the Amherst campus and Dr. Wood was appointed system-wide president.

Cance House Funds Almost Depleted

Cance House enters its 17th month as a self-run dorm with only $750 left from a $2700 cultural fund savings.

Cance does not have a Residence Director or a surplus of counselors; the dorm is free to use the $2700 as it wishes.

Cance is governed by Tenants' Associates (TA), who are members of the dorm elected by the other Canconians. The 9 TAs, chairman, and 3 grad assistants, are paid $7,400 a year, in contrast to the $10,700 required by the counselors, Resident Director and grad assistants of an average dorm.

According to Gary Whitney, Cance's TA chairman, the dorm has sponsored movies, dinners, and honors courses. Subjects ranged from art, film, sex education, and Krishna Consciousness, to many types of literature.

A great part of the money was spent on the darkroom and film for the course. Art supplies and many of the books for the reading courses were given to the students by the dorm.

Pollution 'Fingerprints' Sampled By Scientists

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP)- Scientists are using an atmospheric sampling program to build a library of pollution "fingerprints" that eventually may be used to tell where a offending particle comes from, where it goes and how long it remains in the air.

The project is carried out jointly by scientists from the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory and the Air Force under the readiness program originally used to track down debris from atmospheric nuclear debris from atmospheric nuclear testing.

B57 aircraft from the 58th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque fly air sampling missions within a 500-to 600-mile radius of Albyquerque once or twice a week, a Kirtland spokesman said.

They collect particles from clearly identifiable pollution sources such as the coal-fired power plants in northwest New Mexico and sawmill waste burners, isolated from other pollution sources by areas of relatively clean air.

Such isolation in a relatively clean area makes it possible to develop techniques for characterizing chemical composition and size changes in particles from various sources at distances up to hundreds of miles from a source," a laboratory spokesman said.

"This not only can be used as a tool to predict the movement of pollutants, bur can be used as an important meteorological aid for relatively long-range forecasting," the lab's test division associate lader, George Cowan, said.

Self-Employed Must File Tax Returns

BOSTON.....Persons with net earnings of $400 or more from self-employment must file Federal income tax returns and pay a self-employment tax, Elmer H. Klinsman, IRS Acting District Director for Massachusetts, said today.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 liberalized filing requirements for many taxpayers so that, for example, a single person without self-employment income is not required to file a tax return unless he had income of $1,700 or more in 1970. However, an individual must file a return if his self-employment income was $400 or more, even if a return would not have been required based on his total income.

By filing a return and paying a self-employment tax on part or all of his income, each self-employed person helps finance Social Security benefits that are payable to self-employed persons as well as wage earners.

Besides filing an individual income tax return, a self-employed individual must complete Schedule SE (Form 1040), Computation of Social Security Self-Employment Tax. Copies of Schedule SE (Form 1040) are available at IRS offices, Mr. Klinsman said.

Hotline 5-2550

LIFE IN A PRISON —
WHAT IS IT LIKE?
"THE CAGE"
Bowker Auditorium March 7, 2:00 and 7:00 p.m
Tickets now on sale — Student Union Ticket Office
Sponsored by C. C. Program Council

TONIGHT
Wednesday Night Coffee House
moved to
The Blue Wall Cafeteria
2nd floor, Campus Center
Same Menu and Prices
Same entertainment
MORE ROOM!

Ed is still looking for new talent
Contact him at 549-1418 between 4 and 7 pm

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Ann Gurnett, Bob Nesti, Cindy Swindell, Ken Littman
SPORTS — Dave Bernstein, Ed Fenwick
PHOTO — Barry Rubenstein
EDITORIAL — Tony Moore
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

They Have You

The Department of Defense disclosed yesterday that over 25 million U.S. citizens, not connected with the department, are listed in intelligence files gathered over the past several years as part of the never ending battle which the Armed forces of our nation seem determined to wage against the American citizenry.

That means that about one out of every eight of you citizens out there appear in a secret dossier, available to 668 government officials. Since much of the "sub-versive" activity in American today is carried on at the Universities we at UMass can assume that a large percentage of the files concern us.

Remember how many of us signed petitions, and wrote letters last year?)

So here we are huddled in the countryside, with full knowledge that a lot of us are marked as potentially dangerous personnages.

We recommend that each and everyone of you harass the hell out of your reps and senators until Congress restores the right to privacy for American citizens once again.

Be careful, though, excersising your rights is dangerous these days.

The Right Man

Warren P. McGuirk, Dean of the School of Physical Education and Director of Athletics here at UMass has resigned his post after a fine 22-year career. This action will have profound effect on the athletic set up at the University.

Dean McGuirk was a man in the right place at the right time. With the University undergoing the greatest growth period in its history, the energetic administrator put the athletic department in the forefront of this expansion. Most of the athletic facilities now standing at UMass are a result of the time and effort of Dean McGuirk. We thank him for his contribution and wish him well in the future.

In choosing a man to take McGuirk's place, the administration should acknowledge the changing role of the University and the hoped for slowdown in its expansion. What is needed now is someone who can strengthen the already developed programs rather than attempting to erect new ones. It is simply a matter of finding another right man.

"Nonsense — Our Programs Have Taken Care Of All That"

Art Buchwald

TheNewAntiwar Demonstrators

WASHINGTON--What happened to all the antiwar protestors of yesteryear? Well, in spite of what you read in the newspapers, they're still around. Only they're a new breed and in many ways much tougher.

I went to an antiwar rally at the Washington Monument the other day with my friend Dumbarton who works on demonstrations for the Secret Service. Dumbarton was dressed in dungarees, had long hair and was carrying a guitar which was really a very senstive tape recorder.

When we arrived at the Mall we saw five beared students carrying a Viet Cong flag.

"Hey, Dumbarton," I said, "they look like anarchists."

"Nah," said Dumbarton in disgust, "they're FBI undercover agents. I saw them last week at Harvard."

We walked around. There were six students, all with peace symbols painted on their navels, sitting in a circle smoking what surely smelt like grass.

"Look, Dumbarton," I said excitedly, "Communists."

Dumbarton shook his head in disgust. "They're from the Naval Civilian Intelligence unit. The guy waving the photograph of Ho Chi Minh is really a lieutenant commander in the Seabees."

We walked away. Suddenly I said, "Dumbarton, we're being followed by those four girls in dungarees."

Dumbarton looked around. "It's okay. They're from the Air Force Intelligence squadron at Andrews Field."

"But they're girls," I said.

"The Air Force always dresses their agents in drag," Dumbarton said. "They don't want their people to be mistaken for Naval Intelligence agents."

A fight broke out among 50 demonstrators standing near the speaker's platform. They were going at it thick and heavy.

"My God," I said. "That looks like real trouble."

"Don't get upset. Half the guys are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at Fort Holibird and the other half are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at the Pentagon."

"Each outfit claims they have jurisdiction in Washington. You should have seen the brawl they had at draft headquarters a few weeks ago. After it was over, both sides issued body counts."

"Why don't the police break it up?"

"Most of the cops here are from the Washington, D.C., undercover squad and they don't want to let on to anyone who they are."

The speeches began. One bearded student shouted, "The blankety blank blanks are not going to push us around. We'll put them up against the wall."

"Have you got your tape machine going?" I asked Dumbarton.

"What for?" Dumbarton said. "He's from the Internal Revenue Service Intelligence unit. I wish he'd get a new speech."

The next speaker was introduced as a Swede who had just come back from Hanoi.

"That's the CIA man," Dumbarton said in disgust. "They have to get in the act all the time."

As we were listening, Dumbarton suddenly froze. "You see those four kids over there with the "Free Father Berrigan' signs? I've never seen them before. This could be the real thing." He turned on the tape recorder in his guitar and we went over behind them.

One of the students turned around, "Hey, Dumbarton," he said in surprise, "what the hell are you doing here?"

"Collins," Dumbarton said. "What are you doing here?"

"I'm with the National Park Service Antisubversive Corps."

"You're the last person I expected to see here," Dumbarton said.

"Well, it's better than fighting forest fires."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Let Reason Prevail

Yesterday I got into a little argument with a friend of mine concerning the recent referendum on the compensation of Student Senate officers. Quite frankly, it is more than a little difficult to support paying them in the light of a possible skyrocketing tuition increase and the exorbitant fees one has to pay for Campus Center, Student Activities tax, and the Athletic programs. Also there are a great many people active in significant Student activities that receive no remuneration whatsoever. Why should Senate officers be paid when other deserving people are not?

After my initial gut response against paying students, I began to write a letter to the editor of the MDC opposing the referendum. In the process of composing this epistle against the local Philistines, my mind was changed. The reasons for this sudden reversal are simple.

Ideally we should not have to pay officers to an elected body of students. However these same leaders over the years when they have executed their offices well have usually encountered academic difficulty. (This same thing is true of Publication editors.) If they are intelligent, they have been hired by or through the administration in order to make end meet. While this does not always imply conflict of interest there are certain dangers which are frequently inherent here.

The main reason for my reversal in opinion is purely selfish however. The Senate officers and Comittee chairman have generally been the individuals who have effectively spearheaded drives to minimize rent increases, decrease academic requirements, fight the tuition increase and begin the open house policy. It is rather doubtful that the generally apathetic student body would have ever accomplished these things by themselves.

The economic and social situation here would probably be more unbearable without their consistent forceful action. It might be better still if they had been paid as professionals in the past-i.e. Campus Center (possible $50 fee next year). False economy and bitter healousy should not prevail over reason in the referendum next Tuesday.

Don Trageser

President Nixon's Psalm

Nixon is my shepard, I am in want.
He maketh me to lie on park benches.
He leadeth me beside still factories.
He restoreth my doubt in the Republican Party.
He guideth me in the path of unemployment for his party's sake.
Yes, though I walk through the valley of soup kitchens, I am hungry.
He annointeth my income with taxes.
My expenses over runneth my income.
Surely, poverty and hard living shall follow me all the days of the Republican Administration.
And I shall dwell in a rented house forever.
Five thousand years ago, Moses said "Pick up your shovels, Mount your camel or ass and I will lead you to the promised land."
Twenty-five years ago, Franklin Roosevelt said "Lay down Twenty-five years ago, Franklin Roosevelt said "Lay down your shovels, light up a Camel and sit on your ass, for this is the Promised Land."
Now people be careful. Nixon will take your shovel, shove it up your ass, sell your camel and then tell you there is no Promised Land."

Letter Of Resignation

(Editor's note - The following is the letter of resignation tendered by Professor Kindahl as Head of the Economics Dept. The letter was submitted to Dean Alfange and the members of the Economics Dept. and was dated February 25, 1971.)

Gentlemen:

In 1968 I agreed to become Head of the Department of Economics. At that time I was convinced that the University Administration could and would provide the resources and the support necessary to build a first-rate Department. I am no longer convinced that this will be done while I am Head.

The change in my perception could be due to any or a combination of the following: a change in the constraints felt by the Administration; a change in objectives and priorities on their part; a change in their confidence in me; or a different interpretation of available evidence on my part. Any analysis of the cause is complicated by the fact that the administrative personnel involved changed during the period. Regardless of what such analysis might show, the implications for action on my part are clear. I am not convinced that we can build a first-rate Department under present circumstances. Hence I cannot in good conscience urge prospective faculty members to spurn alternative opportunities to come here; nor can I ask my personal friends in the field to provide aid in recruiting first-rate people. It follows that my usefulness as Department Head is at an end. I therefore submit my resignation from the position of Head of the Department of Economics, to be effective as soon as feasible, and in any case not later than August 31, 1971, the date of expiration of my current appointment.

I urge strongly that a vigorous attempt to find a Head (not an Acting Head) to take office this September be instituted. The appointment of a successor who has the confidence of the Administration, and who has confidence in the Administration, may allow the Department to continue its development. I sincerely hope that it can be done.

I submit this resignation with regret, and without rancor. I hope that it is accepted by all concerned in that spirit.

I have no plans at present to resign my position as Professor of Economics.

With sincere regrets,
James K. Kindahl, Head
Department of Economics

Letters To The Editor

A Lack of Understanding

To the Editor:

First I will address myself to an article that appeared in the Letters To The Editor section of the Daily Collegian Monday, March 1, 1971 concerning Black students at basketball games.

The person who wrote the article was not bold enough to include a signature so I will address my comments to unsigned.

Last year an article appeared in the Daily Collegian denouncing the Black student's behavior at basketball games because of their supposingly unpatriotic stance towards the playing of the National Anthem as well as their lauding the Black players only in the course of a game. At that time I felt it my duty as a concerned Black person to respond to the obvious racist attacks (not exaggerated in regards to both articles) on the Black community.

We as a people have the same inalienable rights that everyone else does. If people do not want to stand up during the playing of the national anthem whether it be for unpatriotic or personal reasons, it is their prerogative. Unfortunately, there always is a supposingly sport's enthusiast who becomes upset at the antics of the Black students. What they seem to overlook is that what turns one on may turn another person off. It is obvious that Erving or Skinner's performance is such that just their being Black would cause the Black community to applaud them, for we can indeed completely identify with both players.

You claim that "it is truly pathetic that our integrated student body must be so obnoxiously divided by this emphatic minority." What is pathetic is apparently your ineptitude in understanding Black people. Since we do not act the way you would like us to, it seems as if you would like to group us and reprimand us strongly for our indifference to the national anthem. It reminds me of the typical case of a Black person being told that: boy, you should not act as a nigger but rather like us nice white folks.

Your use of the term "integrated student body" is a matter of opinion, for most Black students on this campus are not seeking to become integrated but rather to continue to maintain their own life styles in spite of the overwhelming white populace that surrounds us.

It is indeed a misnomer to call the Black people "close-minded", because most if not all Black students on this campus are openminded (it is necessary for survival) and are quite cognizant of the all pervasive attitudes that people like you have toward us: the brazen audacity to become inebriated with your diarrheic jargon when attempting to analyze Black people on this campus.

Those who throw stones should beware of throwing them in any direction because that same stone may ricochet and cause injury to the thrower.

Another case in point is the photo that appeared on the front page of the Daily Collegian that same day depicting a Black man who had a questionable expression about himself. Why may I ask did the person have to be Black? All of the other characters you used did not look like a typical stereotype of an ethnic group that you seemed so hard to portray by picturing a Black person resembling a Step and Fetch. This irks the hell out of me as well as other Black students when your crazed photographers get their thrills out of picturing Black people in traditional stereotyping roles. What may seem ludicrous to you and your friends, does by no means bring laughter to me in your blatant abuse of photography for prejudicial purposes.

Robert J. Padgett

Tuition Talk

To the Editor:

The State Legislature is seriously debating tuition increases for state colleges, and, recently, Representatives refused a modest salary increase. These actions appear directly related.

A pay hike now seems unlikely this year. According to experienced observers, the constituents' financial plight was a basic motivation for the unexpected rejection.

Proponents of a tuition increase should reaffirm this timely concern. Anticipated revenues could not be significant enough to justify a change in direction.

Constituents can no more afford higher tuition costs than increased legislators' salaries. In these times, most everyone's paycheck is suffering.

Staff Sheehan

Wrongly Maligned

To the Editor:

Concerning the article in Tuesday's edition of the Collegian, entitled "R.S.O. To Be Examined", I wish to take issue with a few of the insinuations made by David Poisson and Pat Beharry.

First, a distinction should be drawn between R.S.O. personnel and Student Activities personnel. R.S.O. refers simply to the bookkeeping office within the Student Activities Area of the Campus Center. Since this office is made up of simply secretaries and one bookkeeper, it would appear that Mr. Poisson and Miss Beharry are maligning the wrong people. From the context of the article, it would seem that they are referring to the Program Advisors, who are members of the Student Activities Office as a whole.

Secondly, the implication that personnel are "fluffing off" on their jobs by attending the Bernadette Devlin lecture is even more misleading, and is in fact malicious. As both Miss Beharry and Mr. Poisson know only too well, Student Activities personnel are always present at major events in case that anything should happen to which they would have to respond. (The Homecoming Concert of November is a stunning example of a situation in which the quick decisions of Student Activities people helped to avoid a situation which might have become disasterous).

In brief summation, let me say that Mr. Poisson and Miss Beharry should re-examine the facts which they have not seemed to examine in any depth. Their insinuations and charges as embodied in Tuesday's article are totally and completely incorrect, and would appear to be merely a selfish, vindictive campaign to attack some of the few people who are working hard to help students.

Richard Verrochi, Treasurer
Student Senate

No Sunday Morning Vigil

To The Editor:

Dear invigorating fan.

You seem to have the misconception that studies, sports, and politics are separate from your life. You sound very much like the voice of middle America and the silent majority crying out. The American people frown upon protesting on campuses at cultural and civic events when protesting interferes with their so called normal life. But it seems to me that it is the normal life that you people live, that moves concerned people to include into their value system and life style the act of protest. Activism is not a Sunday morning vigil to be ignored for so called invigorating, and enthusiastic events.

In reference to the so called ceremony of remaining standing at the National Anthem it is my belief that people like you place more value on proper usage, reverence and tradition regarding the country. It is behavior like this that detracts from the betterment and involvement in removing and eliminating the existing shit in American society. Oh ya, dig it, the butterflies and good patriotic feeling that we all get when we are subjugated to hearing the fowl meaningless song of bullshit at all our cultural and elitist events.

A mortar strikes in the heart of the moratorium
the president is watching the super bowl
the great colosium
bring out the christians
the pigs must be entertained

Oh the American way of sport and competition so synonomous with exploitation and intervention, not forgetting apathy and neglect. Man, we can draw a crowd of four thousand for a basketball game at the Cage. But did you see the empty room at the meeting for poverty or the meeting to preserve the environment or to stop the war?

But the Romans march on?

Ya, dig it, the shit goes on.

Regarding your remark of our so called integrated student body, have you ever eaten at Hampden dining commons? Or when was the last time you heard the word NIGGER?

Furthermore, it's very foreign to me to refer to American society as an open society. Ya, it's open all right, a society so god damned closed-minded that our people elect a president and an administration that has a policy of repression. Students are murdered for protesting, blacks are genocided in the ghettos, and the poor whites and lower class STARVE.

It is my belief, that if we are to institute our "Democratic" principles and rights; we must be FREE to include in our life styles and actions behavior that at times alienates others. THERE'S JUST SOME SHIT THAT WE CAN'T EAT!

R. A. HARVEY

Editorial Points

There are too many people out to reform the world.

*****

The State Police have not quit, yet. It must be terrible to worry about getting arrested for thngs that feel so damn good.

*****

Dean McGuirk was a man before his times, comments one of his acquaintances. "He always knew that UMass would grow to its present size."

*****

The "Future University Committee," established last November by President Wood, will be on campus March 12 to hold open hearings on the present state and future of UMass.

*****

"It is impossible for us to take sides" - Joel Stoneham concerning the lettuce boycott. What about those marachino cherry-flavored dyed grapes during last year's grape boycott.

*****

The similarities between the 1850's and the 1960's are staggering, to say the least.

*****

Greek Judge Christos Sartzetakis, the real life hero of the movie "Z" has been taken prisoner in Athens, according to the Christian Science Moniter. Well, that's better than he made out in the movie anyway.

*****

Charlie Chaplin, who has not been in the U.S. in almost 20 years, will accept an award at Brandeis University sometime in May. I wonder if he'll even recognize the place.

Mushroomless Wonderland

To the Editor:

The letter, "Emphatic Minority", has prompted me to air my views on love, brotherhood, and the American way. I shall refer to Mr. Name Withheld Upon Request as simply "name" in this article. I should hope he doesn't take offense, but for some unforseeable reason name's identity isn't known. First of all, it seems rather unusual to see this article after all the home games have been played. It was obviously written to bring our "integrated" campus together yet he hasn't provided our student body with an opportunity to show him how much they respect his opinion. It appears to me that the rest of the campus, but maybe I'm wrong, accepts this protest. And furthermore if people sitting down bothers, invigorated, distracted, upset, and thrilled you, I suggest maybe you should look at the flag and if that doesn't hold your interest maybe even singing along with the UMass band would help.

It's my personal conviction that sports, arts, and protests are to be enjoyed as a deviation from studies. I may be wrong again but as I see it, these "contagious sensations" take place after the National Anthem and I refuse to believe that these "militants" are not caught up in the fever of the game to the extent that they care who wins, besides of course cheering their heroes.

And one last thought I think I should point out, if name had not mentioned the issue it certainly would not have gotten worse. But I'm willing to bet that name alienated at least one more black. And you can be sure that it is actions like these which keep our campus "integrated". Also might I ask, what should they do? From name's letter it seems apparent that they should forget about their lives in general, make the campus appear more integrated, and make name's sense of belonging more fulfilling. What, I guess name is looking for, is a wonderland without the hazards of the mushroom.

Name Withheld Upon Request

Michelle Faith, Peter Ryan, and Judith Freeman (left-to-right) discuss communicable diseases in a scene from THE COUNTRY WIFE. This Restoration comedy by William Wycherley opens tonight in Bartlett Auditorium at 8:30 and will continue through Saturday. For ticket information call the Bartlett Auditorium Box Office, 545-2579.

Bravo Giovanni!

The Fine Arts Council office announces that both performances of "Don Giovanni" are near sell-outs. As of Tuesday, March 2, only a few scattered tickets were available to either performance. Council Manager, Terry Charles Schwarz said he was "absolutely delighted with this response and hoped that we would be able to bring this, or other opera companies to the campus in future years."

Under the auspices of the University's Fine Arts Council, the ensemble will present performances Friday and Saturday, March 5 and 6, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre has been hailed for its performances throughout its 25-year history. Boris Goldovsky, who will direct the performances at UMass, founded the group in 1946 as the New England Opera Theatre. From that time to the present, the ensemble's main purpose has been to present authentic operatic performances in English.

Under Goldovsky's leadership, the company has made 19 national tours and has provided the American public the unique opportunity of seeing, hearing and being able to understand many of the staples of the operatic repertoire such as "Don Giovanni," "Rigoletto," "Carmen," and "La Boheme;" as well as unusual works such as Rossini's "The Turk in Italy," which received its American premiere by this company.

Principal roles in "Don Giovanni" will be sung by Ronald Holgate as the "Don," Jeanette Dagger as "Donna Anna," Brenda Sinka as "Donna Elvira," Barbara Hocher as "Zerlina," William Powers as "Leporello," George Allan Reid as "Don Ottavio," and Norman Keigwin, as "Statue of Commendatore."

This is the fourth in the 1970-71 Celebrity Series. Reserved tickets for both performances are available from the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Box Office one hour befor each performance. A telephone reaching both ticket offices is 545-0202. Ticket prices for this engagement are $1 for University undergraduates; $1.50 for all other students; $2.50 for University faculty and staff and $3 for the general public.

The Fine Arts Council will host a late-afternoon reception for the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre on Friday, March 5th between 3:30 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. in the University Art Gallery, 125 Herter Hall. This reception will serve to provide an opportunity for opera buffs on campus to come in and chat informally with members of the visiting opera company and their director, Boris Goldovsky. The reception is open to all those interested without charge.

It's Alway's Fair Weather

UMass Theatre has won a bid to the American College Theatre Festival in Washington, D.C., with its first entry in the three-year history of the Festival.

A panel of judges viewed the UMass Theatre production of Aristophanes' "The Clouds" during its Dec. 16-19 run on the Amherst campus, and this led to selection of UMass as one of the 10 finalists from 240 college and university entrants.

"The Clouds" will be presented Saturday and Sunday, April 3 and 4, at Ford's Theatre, with two evening performances and a matinee. It is a low-comedy attack on higher education from the year 423 B.C., but Director GaryStewart, assistant professor of speech at UMass, brought the concepts up to date in an attempt to illustrate a statement of Martha Mitchell (wife of the Attorney General) theat "The academic society is responsible for all of our troubles in this country. They are totally responsible for the sins of our children."

Director Stewart said he "attempted to catch the Greek view" and to "stage a classic." The student cast wore modified Greek costumes. Prof. Stewart has B.S. and M.S. degrees from Brigham Young University and a Ph. D. from University of Iowa.

The Festival is presented by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Smithsonian Institutions.

ARMENIAN
GUERILLA
MOVEMENT
Jimi Tash;—
Machmer West 22
9:00 Thursday
(Noah - Japhet - Ovaness)

MISS YOUR APPOINTMENT
FOR YOUR SENIOR PORTRAIT?
Come anytime 9-12 and 1-5
DON'T BE LEFT OUT.

MINUTES AWAY VIA NEW 91
Expressway
GOLDEN AGER DISCOUNTS
SCHOOL GROUP RATES
Education thru Entertainment
WE HONOR master charge
8 ACRES FREE PARKING
Showcase Cinemas #213
RT 5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD. 733-5131
March 10 Cromwell
DOCTORS' WIVES
R
SAT. SUN: 1:30, 3:25, 5:20, 7:20, 9:20
MON-FRI: 2:00 7:20 9:20
7 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS:
Best Picture Actor - Actress
2:00 3:45 5:30 7:30 9:40
GP
ALI MACGRAW RYAN O'NEAL
LOVE STORY
WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY
G
PLUS COUNTRY
Bongo
AT 2, 4:30, 7, 9:30
BONGO AT 1:30, 4, 6:30, 9:00
March 10: Little Big Man
COMFORTABLE ROCKER LOUNGES

Records: short takes

Half-Baked Extractions

By ED JANUSZ
MDC Staff

Gary Wright's Extraction (A&M)

Gary Wright used to play keyboards for the O.D.-rock band Spooky Tooth. His new group plays more refreshing, happy music, still heavy but with a gospel influence in places. The best thing about it is the general feeling of togetherness and involvement on the part of everyone, headed by Wright's clear, strong singing. The record gets repetitious after a while, but if you like this type of music, you will enjoy the spirit and tightness of this band.

American Beauty--the Grateful Dead (Warner Bros.)

The Dead have moved farther into a pure country sound on record, and they're still improving. The near-perfectharmony on Workingman's Dead is now perfect harmony, and the mature, warm lyrics are among the best this side of Dylan. Try to hear this one, because you won't hear a better one by anybody.

Randy Burns and the Sky Dog Band (Mercury)

The band is mediocre, lead singer Burns is worse, and the material consists mostly of flaccid ballads that might have been saved by Peter Paul and Mary, but these performances have neither tone nor power.

The J. Geils Band (Atlantic)

After years of playing around the state, the Cambridge grubbies finally got their record out, and it's great. They got their bluesy raunch-rock down on this record so well that listening to it is almost like being at one of their concerts. A great in the tradition of "Chuck Berry's Golden Decade" and the early Stones platters, and try to catch one of their live shows.

Search and Nearness--the Rascals (Atlantic)

They still sound the same as they did when they were doing "People Gotta be Free" and all that, but they're still improving. The new one sounds slightly anachronistic but it has a lot of nice experiments with 50's and 60's R&B and the Rascals, as usual, enjoy their work thoroughly. It's a strong record from one of the good forgotten groups around.

Half-Baked--Jimmy Campbell (Vertigo)

There's a lot of really interesting stuff on this record. The music is from all over, from reject Iron Butterfly to electric Stravinsky, and the lyrics are deep and completely neurotic. Jimmy has a tendency to sound like Melanie with the flu, but this is definitely a unique record and an artist with potential.

BRYN MAWR
BOOK SALE
IN CAMBRIDGE
Permanently located at 375 Huron Avenue Cambridge, Mass. 02138
THOUSANDS OF GOOD BOOKS
BARGAIN PRICES
Open every Thurs. & Sat. (except holidays) 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

HITCHCOCK'S
SUSPICION 8:00
Foreign Correspondent 10:00
TONITE – THOMPSON 104 75c

Nomination Papers
for STUDENT SENATE
are available for
the following Dorm vacancies

Butterfield	Washington Middle
Lewis	Brett
Hills North	Pierpont
Washington Lower	Leach

DUE MARCH 5
Elections March 11

TAKE TWO

MUSIC

music is what we move to side our cells

cause no matter who
the sister or the brother

yr soul and u will

if u are listenin

if u are u will do more than dance.

ward out

they will smoke turn to burn
Black people
Black people
S.A.T.

Black People, Awake!

The only time that Niggers move is during a crisis situation. I am sure everyone has heard that statement many times. Unfortunately for us, that statement holds a lot of truth, at least, until recently. Now it seems that not even a crisis can move our Black populous into action. There was a time when problems arose in the community that we would at least make a consorted effort to unite as one to confront these problems. We would forget our differences and remember the common bonds which make us Brothers and Sisters.

Recently, our Black community has witnessed several crisis situations. I should have been able to say "faced" several crisis, but the truth of the matter being, we have done nothing to eliminate, or alleviate, or even begin to deal with the immediate problems facing our community. A large portion of Black students are not even cognizant of these problems.

The factors which forced the Coordinator of the UMass Black Cultural Center, Amus Moore, to resign went unnoticed by many Black students. Earlier in the year, the arrest and conviction of a Brother at Amherst College, Victor Richardson, did not shake the community into action. Again, when four Brothers were busted at Amherst College, the community still didn't see fit to take any action. Can't you see what is happening? What must it take for our Black Community to initiate some action, to take a stand, to wake up?

On the morning of March 10th, a week from this Wednesday, the four Brothers who were busted at Amherst College, Shelton Joyner, Albert Ryan, William Wooten, and Ronald Young will have their hearing at Northampton Court House. We continuously talk about building a Nation, yet we don't even give support to our people in the community. Things have got to change and only we can initiate that change. Your support is needed. Be there at the hearing and find out what is happening and why its happening. How many more Brothers and Sisters will be victims of an inactive, non-political, apathetic Black Community?

Thelma Bolling

For further information you may contact Thelma Bolling at 511 Eugene Field or Brothers Bill Wooten, Al Ryan Shelton Joyner, or Ronald Young at Amherst College 256-6857.

WANTED
EDITORS
PHOTOGRAPHERS
REPORTERS
REVIEWERS
FROM THE FIVE COLLEGE BLACK STUDENT COMMUNITY

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: We want strong minded strong willed, dedicated (and not so dedicated) black students who desire to take a part in forming the destiny of their black student community. We want people who are ready to seize this time.
PLEASE CALL "TAKE TWO"
545-2002 during daytime
549-0417 mornings

IT'S SPRING!!
FOR YOUR SOFT BALLS
and
SOFT BALL BATS
SEE
A. J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 South Pleasant St.
Amherst

'Behold, Gentlemen, The River!'

Fiction, someone once said, is form in search of interpretation. Think of how many ways you can interpret the beautiful piece of fiction which is a triangle. Take your time. Medieval scholars used it to describe the mystery of divine trinity. The sensational tabloid often used it to suggest how neatly three lovers can get along in spite of the law. In addressing the condition which might be called black reality, King saw a new chosen people. Malcolm's metaphor was closer to the gut: "I'm not going to sit at your table and watch you eat, with nothing on my plate and call myself a diner. Sitting at the table doesn't make you a diner."

One of the brothers on 145th and St. Nicholas who couldn't quite cope those two sides of the morsel of manna, took the matter in hand thusly. About ten-thirty one drizzly morning in May he led a handful of the boys on the block, who would have otherwise wasted another hour for the US Mail to come with their relief checks, and he spaced them confortably along a few benches on Riverside park: "I got it all figured out," he said, after the deep breath that adjusted his lungs to something far more intoxicating than shit or sloe gin. "The only thing that they got that we ain't got is the Riveria--Behold, gentlemen, the river! You're the new leisure class."

"Pretend you are addressing a group of welfare mothers in the ghetto," a teacher says, "and they are irate about the absence of legal aid. Write a composition, in three hundred words...," and so goes a fiction, and in three days in come seventeen more pieces of fiction, each about three hundred words, and we sit around and interpret each other's remarks as if we were ghetto parents. Business as usual.

You don't have to do that any more. Melvin Smith, a new addition to the Black Studies faculty, says you don't have to do that any more. I really got uptight when I got the drift of his program which he introduced at Ivanhoe Donaldson's politics lecture; there is a plain contradiction in asking people hung up in rhetorical dilemmas to go all the way down to Springfield for three credits--and maybe not even an A. I always thought there was a natural bond between me and the brothers and sisters in the community, and I got the idea that brother Melvin agreed with me, even though he pointed out that a lot of the folks in the ghetto didn't. In a day of crisis they see a lot of students, but on the other three-hundred and sixty-four days--no. So a big part of the course is just to go down and look at each/other--for just that you get the median grade. Those supporting high cums might have to do some more. But you don't have to wait until next semester, when the course will be offered, to find out. The course is actually being designed this term. You can contact brother Mel Smith through the Black Studies office and build the course with him. Then you'll know what you're missing.

Richard Hardie

PACK YOUR KNAPSACK for ADVENTURE

BICYCLE and CAMP in ENGLAND
30 day tours $566 from Boston
COMPETENTLY EQUIPPED
Write: Bicycle Campers Int'nal'l.
Box 13927, Gainesville, Fla. 32601

Spend your SPRING VACATION in the BAHAMAS on PARADISE ISLAND at the FLAGLER INN!

Nassau, Bahamas $99
ROUND TRIP JET AIRFARE

Hotel accommodations available for 8 days and 7 nights from $190 (tax included). Complete range of entertainment and recreation offered at reduced rates for Students International's guests.

Sponsored by
STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL
LIMITED NUMBER OF SEATS STILL AVAILABLE
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns
Boston/Nassau/Boston	3/19	3/26

FOR INFORMATION CALL:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve, 549-1357; or Brian, 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7863

WHAT IS DVP?

The Distinguished Visitors Program brings speakers on a variety of topics to UMass. If you have ideas on which speakers students would like to hear, pick up an application in the RSO office. Deadline for applications is March 5.

Because we believe it, watching the film is very much like taking part in some encounter group— there's no way to escape the image on the screen, nor to deny its truth. —Michael Sandmeier, Rolling Stone

A WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS PREMIERE

The Rolling Stones
GIMME SHELTER
NOW PLAYING 7:00 & 9:00
Campus Cinemas
Amherst Hadley Line
Route 9
256-6411

Culturnatives

Peaceful Humanism, Not Political Violence

By GILBERT J. SALK
MDC Staff

Many people are talking about violence, but, like the weather, nobody is doing anything about it.

The conservative to liberal segment of the political spectrum deplores the violence of the Weathermen, the Panthers, and other subgroups of the Left, but they either acclaim or at best ignore the constant obvious violence of the U.S. Armed Forces in Vietnam and the police in urban ghettoes, as well as the less obvious but equally damaging violence of racism and poverty.

The radical and pseudo-revolutionary segment of the political spectrum screams about the immorality of the Establishment's violence while defending or participating in the violence of the Viet Cong, the "liberation" forces of the Middle East, the Panthers and Weathermen, the bombing of the Capitol, and the murder of policemen.

I would suggest that all of these groups are equally complicit in counterrevolutionary activities. The actions of the police do in fact justify the actions of the Panthers which do in fact justify the actions of the police which justify the actions of the Panthers which justify...--provided, that is, that you are willing to assume that violence is ever justified.

The Weatherman action in Chicago is justified by the war against Vietnam is justified by the need to protect the American soldiers there is justified by Khe Sanh is justified by My Lai is justified by...--provided, that is, that you are willing to assume that violence is ever justified.

My feeling is that the only thing ever produced by violence is the supposed justification for retaliatory violence. I also feel that there has never been a truly succesful revolution produced by violence. There have been many violent revolutions which have produced a change in the men who held the seats of power, but their cause has invariably been subverted by the means they used to achieve their power. Whenever it is necessary to gain a position by force, it is also necessary to retain it either by force or by the threat of force. In either case the majority of people are not really free.

Castro "secured" the Cuban revolution by executing those who formally held power, and their allies. At the very least, this caused the rest of the people to fear to protest because the possibility existed that they would be the next victim. The American revolution (the first one) was achieved through a violent struggle, during which period the Monarchists were disenfranchised, thus immediately betraying the ideals of freedom for all.

The examples can go on and on. Suffice it to say that I believe that any cultural alternative in which I would feel comfortable would have to be predicated on nonviolent humanism, where regard for the individual humanity of each man, woman, and child takes precedence over any political theory or expedience.

I submit for your consideration the thesis that violence invariably sows the seeds for more violence, and that the only way in which peace, be it global, national, or personal, can be achieved is for each of its proponents to commit themselves to peace. This is not a plea for passiveism. The pacifist can, and, if he is a pacifist by conscience, must be active in his nonviolent opposition to things which he perceives as being wrong, regardless of the personal consequences. It is incumbent upon him, however, to find ways to act which are consistent with his ultimate goals. The end does not justify the means as much as the wrong means can condemn the end. Would Hitler have been a saint if he had produced a Utopia?

The last line of a poem used to introduce a book called Conquest of Violence by Joan V. Bondurant reads, "Conceive the means as end in embryo." I believe that, as an ideal, this should be the ultimate test for all our actions, and that when our means are not consistent with our desired ends they should be discarded and new means sought.

How to do it? That's what the cultural revolution is all about. Find your way, share it with others, grow from the feedback, and maybe someday we'll find a way. The only sure thing is that the old way of violence does not work. PEACE.

Book Review. I Seem to be a Verb by R. Buckminster Fuller with Jerome Agel & Quentin Fiore ($1.65, Bantam Books, NYC.) Typical of Fuller's absolutely amazing mind, this book utilizes the essence of McLuhanism to a highly refined degree. It is a juxtaposition of pictures, quotations, excerpts, and observations which in sum manages to totally demolish any comfortable illusions about the state of our society, the nation, or the world. It dissects our foibles in a way which is alternately humorous, shocking, disturbing and, always, thought-provoking. Read it, then try to put your head back together.

CULTURNATIVES will deal with many different aspects of cultural alternatives. If you're into it and want to rap, or if you want Mother Earth News, stop by the Draft Counseling Office in 418E SU 2nd floor. You'll have to take your chances because draft counseling comes first, but if we're free, we'd enjoy sharing ideas.

MDC NEWS HOTLINE 5-2550

Practice Teachers Must Sign-Up

Students who plan to practice teach either semester next year should have their name on file with Prof. Raymond in Bartlett Hall, Room 480. These students should try to attend one of the meetings to be held this week when Miss Sue Brady will explain the procedures for field experience. These meetings Will be Wednesday, March 3, 9:00-10:00 in Bartlett 203 and on Thursday, March 4, from 4:00-5:00 in Herter 205.

The following people should sign up with Prof. Raymond by March 5:

Adams, Ruthanne
Bergin, Kathleen
Blossom, Martha
Brain, John L., Jr.
Broderick, Corinne
Bronstein, Howard
Brown, Donna Marie
Caruso, Thomas M.
Colburn, Kate
Colella, Geraldine
Connolly, Peggy
Cook, Lorna J.
Daley, Marcia A.
Danielson, Norman G., Jr.
Donaldson, Susan
Donohue, Joan E.
Drake, Pamela
Duban, James
Duval, Michele
Goetzit, Hedy
Gordon, Mary Lou
Gravina, Paul R.
Gross, Marvin J.
Harris, Leonard E.
Hart, Gary J.
Herlihy, Faith A.
Hughes, Diane
Johnston, Joy N.
Kerman, Linda G.
Kilgore, Susan Jane
Knowlton, Virginia A.
Kurtzman, Ronald D.
Ladd, Mary Ellen
Lawson, Russell M.
Leamy, Mark
MacDonald, Kathleen M.
Mammone, Nancy
Mancini, Jane
Mayock, Catherine
Nealon, Mary Kathleen
Nourse, Jennifer
Paul, Catherine M.
Poulton, Howard K.
Politakis, Jean
Pound, E. Jeanne
Quatrale, Donald
Richards, Sharyn
Schultz, Diane
Shepard, Lynn S.
Shockley, Janet
Simeno, Christine
Strelezsky, Rosalyn
Sullivan, Joanne M.
Tracy, Maureen T.
Vachula, Carol
Vigneault, Anne M.
Wade, James W.
Walsh, William
Waterfall, Diane
Wilson, Carol
Zuccone, Louise

Notices

ANIMAL SCIENCE CLUB:
Meeting tonight slides to be shown on Finland. All welcome to come.

BIRTH CONTROL LAWS REFERENDUM:
All with petitions contact Elliot immediately 256-6702

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
Meeting tonight. Elections will be held for the next year in Rm 805 809 of the C.C.

FREE UNIVERSITY:
A loose process through which you can organize your own fantasy & learning experiences. 545 0066.

GIRLS' TRACK CLUB:
General meeting - newcomers welcome 4:30 p.m. today in Thoreau Basement Study Lounge (S.W.) 67415 if in doubt.

HILLEL:
Old fashion Purim Carnival, March 14th in S.U. 420 Noon to 4 p.m. Homentashen.

INTERRELIGIOUS ROOM:
The interreligious Rm is now open for study. Your group is welcome to participate. Rm 328A SU (next to Craftsmen Guild) 10-3 daily.

MAROON KEYS:
There will be a meeting in Rm 433 James at 6:45 p.m. tonight. Please contact Richard Simmons if there is any conflict (67604)

MILITANT BOOKSTORE:
Marx, Malcolm, Trotsky and books by other revolutionaries on sale today from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. in the YSA office, 3rd floor, SW corner of the SU.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS:
Buses leave tonight at 6:30 p.m. from Hasbrouck & Patterson. We need you!

OUTING CLUB:
Quabbin day hike Saturday, 2 days caving trips next weekend. See the bulletin board (2nd floor S.U. opposite Student Mobe offices) for details.

PSYCH 101-SOC 101:
"Born Yesterday" 4:40, 8, 10 p.m. in Mahar Aud.

RAFI:
Israeli folk dancing in the Cape Cod lounge SU Thurs. at 8 p.m. Beginners welcome.
Important RAFI meeting with Ze'er Reger Thurs. at 2:30 Rm 171-3 1-2:30 Mr. Reger will be available in Rm 171-2 of the C.C. to provide information for any UMass student interested in traveling to Israel.

SCROLLS:
Meeting tonight at 6:15 p.m. in Rm 917 of the C.C. There is a conflict please call 549 0095 Wanda.

SENIORS:
Open class meeting for all Seniors. Discussion of recent changes in class government, activities for the rest of the semester, and commencement. Meeting will be held Monday, March 8th, at 8 p.m. in Mahar Aud.

SKI CLUB:
Okemo trip rescheduled for Sat., March 6th. Rainouts & new signups come to R.S.O. Office today from 11.30-3 p.m. or contact Chris Graham, 401 Hamlin 545 0792.

LOST:
A library book on creative dance movements lost in C.C. Coffee Shop area Call Gene 6 9346.

Men's light brown suede jacket lost in the parking lot behind Hampden Dining Commons Friday. Please call 6 8515.

Brown rimmed glasses lost in 19th floor of John Adams Friday night, Feb. 26th. Please call Tom at 546-5392.

Brown suede fringed pocketbook probably around Hampshire D.C. area. Contains I.D.s & contact lenses. Desparately needed. Please call 546-7371.

1 dog, his name is Gabriel. He is part collie, part terrier, and has a red tag with his name on it. Call Jim 253-3452.

A silver bracelet Thursday night or Friday anywhere between S.W. & Mem. Hall or Goodell Lib. If found please call Linda 6 8444. It has great personal value.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of a brown suede purse lost in Bartlett Monday, the 1st, would they please return it to the SU Main Desk. I'm flat broke & need my IDs.

Sunglassess - clear frame, dark tint at or near computer science bldg. If found please call Paul Flagg 223 Wheeler.

Beaded change purse of great sentimental value lost. Several colors, chiefly white, plastic lining. Please turn in to ticket office SU.

Crocheted change purse lost. Call Dale 253-9357.

Old fashioned Bulova watch with the initials D.M.P. on the back of great sentimental value. Please call Linda 546-9841.

FOUND:
Man's watch found near North Commons. Call Roberta 201 Mary Lyon 5-2516 or 52517.

Found near Van Meter, 1 man's high school ring class of '70. Call Ruth at 6-1131 & identify.

One of our Paulists calls it "home"...

Home is where the heart is.

Home is also wherever a Paulist is needed.

Whether the Paulist works in a ghetto, a college campus, a city parish or a remote corner of the United States, he is serving.

The Paulist is ministering with words, deeds and sacrament . . . and zealous care to the needs of God's People everywhere. He is meeting today's problems with thoughts of those that will arise tomorow.

That is the Paulist way. It isn't easy but the worthwhile things of life seldom are.

If you are interested in learning more about the Paulist priesthood, write to:

Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P.
Vocation Director

Paulist Fathers
Room 113
415 West 59th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Tear, Garrard, PE, Astg, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, I.F's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Water beds for $55 at Sundance Water Beds, 187 Main St., North Hampton. tf3-3

Need to sell 1 year old Delmonico refr. for $60 or best offer. It is in excel. rondition. Call Carole 549-0415. tf3-3

Yellow kitchen table, 30 sq. in. Formica top, leaf and four chairs, $12.00. Call 549-6382. tf3-3

Water beds x 6' now $55.00. With frame and liner $80.00. Guaranteed workmanship. Come to 8-4 German work hours 11:00 to 3:30 or Thursday nights 7 to 9 or call 546-9531. tf3-8

Smith-Corona portable electric typewriter, like new, 202 Garman, 6-6412 or rail Al, room 467, Chadbourne. tf3-4

2.5 ft. Hong Kong Gonz with hammer and Japanese Kimono $20; 2 ft. high, 2 ft. stem brass Hooka Water Pipe $30. Call Rich 549-0040. 3-3

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf3-18

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Panel, good rondition $395. Telephone 253-3946. tf3-9

1962 Karmann Ghia, new engine in 1969. Colors in the style of Peter Max. Only $700. Call 253-8566. tf3-4

Have another car — must sell 63 Corvair conv., 4 speed, rebuilt engine, 3,000 miles, new battery, runs well but needs starter. $160, will hazzle. Call 877-9956 after 6 p.m. tf3-4

Fosche speedster, 1958, 1000 normal, new top and interior. Best offer. Call 736-4534 (Sp'fld) after 7 p.m. tf3-4

'68 Cortina (Eng. Ford) automatic, disc brakes only 15,000 mi. Good mech. cond. Best offer. Call 546-9778. tf3-8

1967 Buirk LeSabre, P.S., P.B., brand new brakes. $1900. Jeff 546-7933. tf3-8

2 VW engines 36 and 40 hp, recently rebuilt, will take trade, $125 and $175 a piece. Call 584-6288 nights. tf3-9

1968 MG Midget blue, with wire wheels, 15,000 miles and many extras, $1150. Call 253-9085 and ask for Steve after 6 p.m. tf3-8

'63 Buirk Special, power steering, am. V-8 automatic, radio, very good rond., snow tires, with cleats, new brakes, new exhaust system, $250. Call 549-6315 anytime. tf3-5

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8123. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3148. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Amherst, 01501. tf3-22

TYPING - Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-14

WANTED

Black sincere male student near Amherst. Please write white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible riose summer relationship. Confidential. Box 723, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

Bread Truck or Lge. Van, 14' min, rear, susp. pref. alum. body. Will haggle. Call 545-2705, Gene. tf3-10

HELP WANTED

Girls needed immediately for full or part-time work. Free training. 549-6016. tf3-5

FOR RENT

Room for rent to sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo., Cliffside Apt., Sunderland. Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9112 anytime after 6:30. tf3-4

One bedroom, four room apt. for rent Cliffside Apts., 665-3616. $130 month with or without furniture. Open in March. tf3-4

Two bedroom apt. for rent $140 a month including utilities. Available April 1. Call 545-2500 days and 549-3087 evenings. tf3-5

Quiet, pleasant single room for female, ½ mile from Univ., near center of town. Kitchen privileges. Rate to be decided after personal interview. Call Louisa Sheldon 253-9129. tf3-4

Available immediately, small single room, quiet, one mile University, low rent. Tel. 253-5208. tf3-5

PERSONAL

Dog in heat? Call Howie's Hot Foot, 416 Hamlin 8-0792. tf3-3

H. King and Backpacking Equipment. Free catalog. Timberline Trails, 215 Teller, Moorestown, N.J. 08057. tf3-4

Debbie's easy. Call 546-9658. Let her bring her two pillows. 3-3

New eff. apt. for rent. Exc. for 1 or 2 persons. Incl. all utilities, dishwasher, garbage disposal, wall to wall carp., only $145 mo/wo from Campus. Incl. is $180 per mo. Call Ray at 253-7843. If no answer, try again. tf3-4

Efficiency apt., Quabbin Vlg., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fee paid. Call 253-7039 after 7 p.m. tf3-4

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted to share 7 room house in Easthampton, single room $50 mo. Contact Neil between 10-12, 9th floor, Campus Center office of Cond. Ed. 3-3

Redmen Skiers Complete Championship Season

Throughout the season, the UMass ski team has trained exceptionally hard and long to condition their bodies and perfect their skills. Even before the actual competition began, the skiers devoted their entire Christmas vacation and semester break to strenuous practice and training at Killington, Vermont. Once second semester classes started, the team utilized every spare day and every weekend for practice at the Haystack ski area. This not only required a great deal of time and patience but also the desire and devotion to build a championship team.

The team effort alone was phenominal. Each individual skis for the benefit of the team instead of his own personal glory. The lowest four out of six times for the team are used in determining the team standings and when one teammate has difficulty in the course, the others know they must make up for it.

This season the odds have been against UMass. All other teams were out to knock UMass off of the top position acquired last year and put a scar on the UMass reputation. Another factor hurting the team was that the continuously poor weather conditions. This past Saturday at Wildcat, N.H. for example, the second run of the slalom had to be cancelled because of the terrible visability and sleeting rain. At the previous meet at Mittersill, the entire race Sunday was cancelled because of the same conditions. This race however, was held on Sunday at Wildcat.

Saturday's slalom was hosted by Northeastern University and the undefeated UMass team thus far, won easily by a 20 second margin over second place Northeastern.

Gordi Speed put in an exceptionally good time to capture the first place league standing and a first for the team.

The co-captains, John Gray and Jim Latimer also had excellent runs and placed seventh and eighth for the league and second and third for the team consecutive.

Ted Martin, Chuck Walker, and Jerry Curran finished their three year college skiing career with tremendous times to once again boost UMass to the top position.

Sunday, because the race at Mittersill was cancelled two weeks previously, two eighty meter slalom courses were set up and hosted by Babson and Bentley.

After the first race, the scoreboard again proclaimed the excellence of UMass Speed, for the second day in a row, secured a first for the league and a first for the team.

His fantastic performance was immediately followed up with one of equal rating by Gray who was only six tenths of a second behind Speed. He placed second for the league and second for the team.

Jerry Curran, one of the strongest skiers on the team and one of the only members to finish the season with a clean record of no falls and no missed gates, clinched the fifth place position in the league and a third for the team.

Ted Martin, last years co-captain as a junior, put out a fine performance and finished fourth for the team and sixth in the league.

Latimer had difficulty manipulating a rutted section of the course, and finished close behind his teammates.

This left Walker who skied hard and strong on the fast, icy course and captured an eighth in the league and a fifth for the team.

The pressure was now apparent in that this next and final race was the skiers' last chance to have an undefeated, championship team. With all the confidence and skill needed in just such a situation, UMass won over the closest competitor, Northeastern, by ten seconds.

Latimer captured second in the league, Gray third, Curran ninth, and Martin eleventh. Walker once again strengthened the win and Speed wasn't able to finish in his usual winning time because of difficulties encountered.

Considering the practice, training, and natural born ability of the skiers, UMass should be proud that the 1970-71 ski team finished as a championship team, undefeated in the league. This is the first time in the history of the team that this has happened. Coach MacConnell will be losing five of the greatest skiers that UMass has ever seen and the reputations of his boys will be difficult to surpass.

Notices

Notices

INTRAMURAL SOFTBALL—Anyone interested in officiating intramural softball please sign up in 215 Boyden. Softball begins on April 5th.

* * * *

WMUA COVERS HOCKEY—This Saturday the UMass pucksters host Division II rival Merrimack at Orr Rink. If you can't make the game tune in to WMUA, 91.1 FM, for all the action beginning at 1:45 p.m.

The PIZZA INN
(At the old Amherst Creamery)
173 Sunset Ave.

Second Week
SPECIAL
Our Fantastic Large
MEATBALL GRINDER
plus
Large PEPSI only 80c
with coupon below.

STORE HOURS:
Monday thru Thursday
4 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Friday thru Sunday
11 a.m. - 2 a.m.

SPECIAL
MONDAY TO THURSDAY ONLY
Large Meatball Grinder & Large Pepsi 80c with this coupon
PIZZA INN

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Moccasin
4 Facial expression
9 Remuneration
12 Guido's high note
13 Artist's stand
14 Exist
15 Goal
17 Crowns
19 Sheets of glass
21 In music, high
22 Playing card
24 Ocean
26 For fear that
29 Badgerlike mammal
31 Emerge victorious
33 Click beetle
34 Symbol for silver
35 Bone of body
37 Label
39 Note of scale
40 Condensed moisture
42 Scottish cap
44 Openings in fence
46 Prepare for print
48 Hit lightly
50 Army meal
51 Also
53 Domesticates
55 Stick to
58 Pretentious home
61 Regret
62 Ire
64 Lamprey
65 Rocky hill
66 Rent
67 Obstruct

DOWN
1 Fondle
2 A stale (abbr.)
3 Floor covering
4 Observed
5 Partners
6 Exists
7 Permit
8 Lamb's pen name
9 Separated
10 Macaw
11 Affirmative
16 Merrier
18 Everyone
20 Stitch
22 Barter
23 Ranked
25 River island
27 Painful spots
28 Lock of hair
30 Illuminated
32 Scold
36 Flying mammal
38 Contests
41 Lose freshness
43 Small rug
45 Tried
47 Pedal digit
49 Walks with measured tread
52 Spoken
54 Female horse
55 Man's nickname
56 Pair
57 Compass point
59 Meadow
60 Shade tree
63 A stale (abbr.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

L	E	T		S	P	A	R	E		S	L	Y
A	G	A		E	A	S	E	L		L	E	E
P	O	R	T	E	R		P	L	E	A	D	S
			T	I	N		E	A	R	N
S	L	A	P		N	I	L		A	T	E	S
H	E	R		T	A	P		A	S	S	E	T
A	G		F	O	P		E	R	E		R	E
R	A	D	I	O		H	A	T		R	I	A
E	L	A	N		T	A	R		G	A	E	L
		N	E	A	S		T	A	G
P	A	D	D	L	E		F	O	L	L	O	W
O	D	E		T	A	L	O	N		A	R	A
T	O	R		O	D	O	R	S		N	E	D

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 3

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Cancer-born persons are more conscious of financial security--or lack of it--than are natives of other zodiacal signs. Research indicates there are more persons born under Cancer in "Who's Who in Commerce and Industry" than any other sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Restlessness could result in wild goose chase. Avoid wasted motion. Check schedules, reservations. Some ideas conceived now may lack practical base. Relatives can be obstacles. Go slow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friends and money may not mix well. Fulfill past obligations. Trusting others with essentials now would be an error. Know this and strive to be thorough. Written messages can be misinterpreted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hold off on partnership, legal commitments. Finish what has already been started. New venture now--personal or professional--could be premature. Double check any agreements.

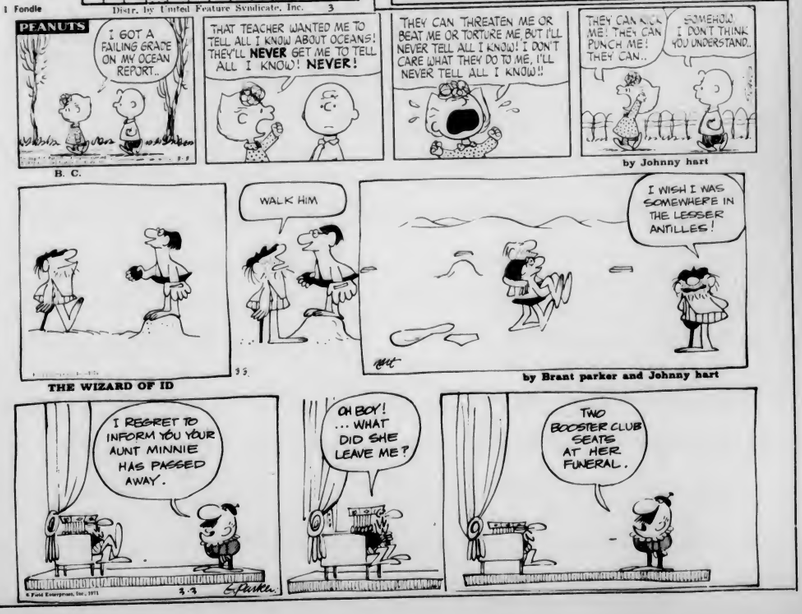
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Health matters dominate. New approach to persistent problem will be beneficial. Key now is moderation. Avoid excess. Regulate diet. Follow instructions given by competent individual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Moods rise and fall; you tend now to be ultra-sensitive. Lover's quarrel is much in the picture. Try to control impulsive actions. One dear to you deserves patience, understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress versatility. Your objectives may be subject to change. Move with the times. Don't hang on to outmoded concepts. Professional, domestic aspirations could be in conflict.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain hint from Aries message. Some plans change due to lack of communication. Be prepared for red tape. Then you won't be caught off balance. Stress development of basic ideas.

SCORPIO (oct. 23-Nov. 21): Grandiose financial arrangements tend to fall apart at seams. Key is to keep things relatively simple. Then you avoid extravagance. Deal with vital issues. Forego the superficial.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low; don't attempt to expand too quickly. Accent is on partnership, marriage, legal ties. Someone may be trying to delay property transfer. Protect your interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some secrets are revealed. You now must be discreet. What began as perhaps simple deception is apt to wind, labyrinth-like, in various directions. Stop fooling yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Leo message. Don't permit emotions to run gamut. Exercise intelligent degree of control. Stress is on speculative ventures, romance. Keep resolutions. Display responsibility.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain hint from Virgo message. Real estate matters could soar to forefront. Home, environment, domestic situation these now require special consideration. Accent practical approach.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY your sense of humor is tremendous asset. You are sensitive, artistic, should have creative outlet. Self expression is a necessity. Change of residence, form of domestic adjustment is emphasized. Key month will be September

Skaters Receive Division II Nod

UMass Hockey Breaks Playoff Ice
Redmen Host Holy Cross Tonight

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

While everyone was waiting for news of UMass' basketball post-seasonal tournament future, the UMass hockey team had already received its nomination to the ECAC Division II playoffs. Presently in third place with a 10-3-1 division record, the Redmen will be boosted in their last two scheduled season games this week at home by the thought of their first showing in the playoffs.

Vermont and Bowdoin, in first and second places in Division II respectively, are the other playoff berth holders, with the fourth team yet to be named. The first round of play will take place Wednesday, March 10, with the first place team facing the fourth, and the second against the third. So, as the standings now show, UMass might play Bowdoin, but only the final results of placing will tell of competition definitely. Which locale the games are to be played at is decided by the teams with the higher final percentage getting the rights of home ice.

March 13 is the date of the contest between those who won on March 10th.

Tonight Holy Cross comes to Orr Rink to face-off against the Redmen at 8 p.m. This will be Holy Cross' last game of the year, currently carrying 12 wins and five losses, and fourth place in Division II. Tonight's game may help the Tournament Committee in deciding a fourth playoff contender from possibilities Merrimack, Hamilton, Norwich, Oswego State, Salem State, or Holy Cross. Merrimack, which had started high in the standings, but has dropped down considerably, faces Bowdoin this Thursday, and UMass this Saturday, two games that will tell of its future also.

In tonight's game, the Crusaders will be showing a fine football-playing forward, sophomore Richard Pelletier, whose good scoring potential has been an asset to the team. Wing Chip Hoar, a senior, also will be a main man on the ice, as well as center Tom Carey.

"Because the playoffs will be tough with the probability of playing on away ice, we have to pay close attention to these last two seasonal games. The season is far from being over," emphasized coach Jack Canniff. "We have to play extra hard and extra tough to get ready to fight next week."

Last year's encounter at Holy Cross is seen in the record books as UMass 9 H.C. 0.

MDC
SPORTS HOTLINE
5-0344

Red Sox Back In Action Hitters Far Ahead Of Pitchers

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)—The hitters were far ahead of the pitchers Tuesday in the Boston Red Sox' first intra-squad game of the spring training season, banging out 23 hits including four home runs in the six-inning contest.

Don Pavletich hit a two-run homer and Billy Conigliaro slugged a solo shot for coach Don Lenhardt's team, which defeated the one coached by Eddie Popowski, 7-5. Jarvis Tatum homered with a man on and Carlton Fisk hit one with the bases empty for the losers.

Tatum and Conigliaro each hit a double in addition to his homer and Fisk added a single, while Mike Fiore had two doubles, one of them just missing being a home run.

George Thomas was the only player with three hits, all singles. Other players getting two hits each were Carl Yastrzemski, George Scott and Ben Oglivie.

The Popowskis built an early 3-0 lead, but the Lenhardts erupted for six runs in the fourth inning to take the decision.

Veteran reliever Sparky Lyle was easily the most impressive of the six pitchers who worked two innings each. He shut out the Popowskis on only two hits, one of them a Texas Leaguer, struck out one and did not walk anybody.

Hit hardest were Cal Koonce, who was in for the Lenhardts' entire six-run inning and took the loss, and Bob Bolin, who was bombed for seven hits and four runs even though he was credited with the victory.

Erving Named Tops

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Julius Erving was named along with Ed Molloy of Rhode Island and Dave Pemberton of New Hampshire as the Yankee Conferences top performers for last week, was also selected to head the final weekly all-East Division I basketball team of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference.

The 6'6 junior made 28 of 52 field goals, 15 of 16 free throws, scored 71 points, grabbed 49 rebounds and blocked eight shots as UMass made its record 21-3 by beating Syracuse 86-71 and George Washington at Madison Square Garden, 70-65. In his memorable performance against the Orangemen he also set a new UMass rebound record 32 to go along with his 36 points and against the Colonials he hit for another 35 points.

Molloy, 5'6 senior guard, scored 31 points, had 10 assists, nine steals and five rebounds as URI clinched second place in the Yankee Conference by defeating UNH, 86-78 in overtime and UConn, 96-78.

Pemberton, a 6'5 junior forward, made 18 of 27 field goals, seven of 11 free throws, scored 43 points, grabbed 34 rebounds and blocked five shots as UNH lost in overtime at URI and then beat Boston University in overtime. He scored 28 points with 16 rebounds at URI.

Other nominations went to Paul Bessey (Maine), Bob Boyd (UConn), John Betancourt (UMass), Ray Ortis (Vermont), John Sterking (Maine), Bob Staak (UConn), Nate Adger (URI) and Tom Clay (Vermont).

Joining Erving on the all-East weekly team were Stan Grayson (Holy Cross), Bill Bill Smith (Syracuse), Pemberton (UNH), Jim O'Brien (B.C.), Ken Wein (Cornell), Jay Vaughn (NYU), Brian Taylor (Princeton), Brian Mahoney (Manhattan), Mike McDermott (St. Francis) and Ken Charles (Fordham) who was named sophomore of the week.

• • • •

Post season tournament fever has set in. Everyone is now waiting impatiently for the UMass N.I.T. bid to come out of New York. This morning the N.C.A.A. tournament committee wiped out all speculation of a possible N.C.A.A. bid for UMass as it named the top three contenders, Fordham, Duquesne and Villanova to at-large births in the Eastern Regionals. UMass had been slated as the fourth team in line for a bid late last week.

The N.I.T. committee went to work after the N.C.A.A. committee had named its ten at-large births and selected St. Bonaventure (18-4), Dayton (18-7) and Tennessee (20-5) as three of its 16 team field.

All indications from the news media, officials and the like point to the Redmen as shoeins for the N.I.T. Word of the bid will probably be short coming. As soon as the story breaks the Collegian will have all the details.

• • • •

Tomorrow night the Redmen close out their regular season schedule up in Black Bear country when they take on the University of Maine in a 7:30 encounter.

Varsity M Club Luncheon

Today
12:15 p.m.
At The Newman
Center

Head Redman basketball coach Jack Leaman and Redman hoop stars Chris Coffin, Bob Dempsey and Bill Greeley are the featured guests at today's UMass Varsity M Club Luncheon. Leaman and his players will make remarks on the Syracuse and George Washington games with a question and answer period to follow. There will also be a door prize and excellent food. Charge is $1.50 and everyone is welcome.

Tonight's Intramurals

Volleyball

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:30	Smokers vs. Team "18" vs. Munchkins
2
3		Browns vs. Baggers
4		Bruisers vs. Panthers
5		Chipmonks vs. Academics
6		Leopards vs. Cougars
		POSITION SOUTH TOWER 1 vs. 2
7		4 vs. 5
8		POSITION NATIONAL 1 vs. 2
9		4 vs. 5
10
1	7:30	J.Jacks vs. Eagles
2		Stouts vs. BX
3		Deacons vs. Smittys
4		Leven vs. Vlooms
5		Flats vs. Vollies
6		Misfits vs. X plus 2
7		Zeroes vs. Civil Eng.
8		Flies vs. Bodies
9		Beadledoms vs. Selohssa
1	8:30	Funnies vs. Triaps
2		K 9's vs. LCO
3		Superstars vs. KSCO
4		Rigatonis vs. ACS
5		B & B vs. Lemons
6		Deacons vs. Limes
1	9:30	Bouncers vs. Banditos
2		Shots vs. J.G.
3		Jacks vs. Stoutees

The semi-final round of the intramural wrestling championship will be held tonight in the wrestling room. Tomorrow night the finals will be held. Boyden gym will NOT be available Monday-Friday 4:30-6:30 for recreational activity. Co-rec Bowling entries are due at the IM office tomorrow.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
Should have stopped raining by now. Partly cloudy, high in the 30's. Clear tonight, high in the 20's.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 99 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1971

Senate Debates Budget Requests

By BETH GOODELL
MDC Staff

Following prolonged and heated debate, the Student Senate voted last night not to fund the Precisionettes women's drill team for next year. The 31-29-3 roll call vote supported the Budget Committee's recommendation not to budget the organization for the second year in a row.

Before getting to the business of budgets, the Senate spent the first hour of its meeting busy at work affixing address stickers to 16,000 envelopes. The 100 Senators and non-members present performed this task in the cause of opposition to a proposed tuition hike. The envelopes contain letters to be mailed to parents to gain support for the campaign.

The atmosphere of gaiety and strong sense of accomplishment evident during the performance of this task dissolved as the Senate got down to regular business. Before getting to budgets, the Senate resolved to go on record as supporting efforts to create a day care center for the UMass community and to help publicize the need for a center in the form of a demonstration Monday, March 8.

The budget of the Precisionettes was stricken by the Senate on a reconsideration vote taken after the first vote of the Senate was a tie. The tie vote actually defeated the motion to strike but was overturned after considerable debate on the reconsideration.

The Budgets Committee opposed funding of the group because it felt that the Precisionettes do not fill the function of public relations for the University which it claims to fulfill. In refusing to fund the group, the Senate limits them to performing only within the state. The Precisionettes raise their own money to pay for these performances.

The $2,250 which the drill team was requesting from the Senate would have been used largely to provide transportation to four competitions out of state. Budgets Committee Chairman Kevin Kulakowski argued that even if the Precisionettes do contribute to public relations within the state, they do not need to go outside it to compete.

Cheryl Perkins represented the organization at the meeting. She defended the group as making a significant contribution to the University and announced that 2000 students have signed petitions in the past three days in support of funding the Precisionettes for competition outside the state. She also announced that there are plans to petition the Senate for a student referendum to overrule elimination of the budget.

The proposed budget for the Collegian was also considered last evening and individual Senators requested amendments to it which will now be considered by the Budgets Committee. The decreases in the budget requested in these amendments deal largely with salaries for the editors.

The budget recommended by the Budgets Committee included the payment of the following salaries: Editor-in-Chief $40/week; Managing Editor and Business Editor $30/week; News, Sports, Executive and Photography Editors $25/week; Issue Editor $10/issue; four Assistant Editors $15/week; Advertising lay-out $3/issue. Issue Editors, Assistant Editors, and Ad Layout people are not currently paid.

One of the amendments requested would strike the payment of salaries to those three positions not now salaried. Another proposed amendment would pay the currently salaried positions each $125/month, the Issue Editor $10/issue, and the Assistant Editors $50/month.

Editor-in-Chief Richard Hanson and Business Manager John Mullen represented the Collegian before the Senate. They explained that the addition of the necessity for adding more salaried positions to the paper is necessary for the expanded coverage planned for next year as the average length of each issue increases four pages and as advertising income increases.

Hanson stressed that salaries are needed to stabilize and professionalize the staff as the paper grows. He also pointed out that the proposed budget of $92,000 in student funds is $2,000 lower than this year's. He also pointed out that advertising income is increased $11,000, indicating that the Collegian is yearly becoming less dependent upon student tax funds.

The Rugby budget was also considered last evening but committed to the Ways and Means Committee to investigate before being entered into the Budget Act. There is some questiin concerning activities of the club last year.

Television station WTOY's budget was also brought before the Senate. A Senator's motion to strike the budget was defeated, but requests for amendments were made which would decrease the budget if passed by the Budgets Committee.

Budgets Committee will hold a hearing this evening to consider amendments requested last evening in the Collegian and WTOY budgets. These budgets will come before the Senate as a whole for final consideration later this month.

SENATE NOTES...Services Committee Chairman Ed Voci announced that anyone interested in establishing a cooperative bookstore should attend the Services meeting tonight at 7:30 in Room 803 of the Campus Center... Student Government Affairs Committee Chairman Larry Ladd clarified one point concerning the Senate officers' salaries referendum next Tuesday. He explained that Stockbridge School students are not eligible to vote in the referendum...Public Relations Chairman Susan Spatrick announced that that committee has compiled a booklet containing the opposing views of a number of Senators comcerning the salaries referendum. It will be handed out in dorms Sunday or Monday.

Senator Robert Waters (left) affixes address labels early in the Senate meeting. Later in the evening he was one of the leaders in the futile attempt to obtain funds for the Precisionettes.

Senator Philip Cohen (above) pairs up with another Senator to speed up the operation of sticking on 16,000 address labels. Senators were heard to say that this is a major accomplishment of the Senate this year.

The student in the foreground (upper left) is not a Senator but even she cannot escape the onslaught of envelopes and gummy stickers at the Senate meeting.

On The Inside:

● Blacks Resolve Differences
See Page Three

● SWAP Continues Action
See Page Three

● Security Guards Hampered
See Page Two

Scholar To Speak On River Basin

Dr. Lincoln P. Bower

Dr. Lincoln P. Brower, professor of biology at Amherst College, will deliver an illustrated lecture on the topic, "The Ecologist's Case for a Living Connecticut River Basin" in Room 20, Hasbrouck Hall, U. of M., on Thursday, March 4, at 8:00 p.m.

Dr. Brower's talk is the second in the second semester series of Distinguished Ecologists Lecture Series at the University to be sponsored by the Coalition for Environmental Quality and other cooperating organizations. This lecture is open to the public free of charge.

During the past year Dr. Brower has emerged as the leading activist in the ranks of college and university ecologists in the Conn. River Basin. He has made numerous lecture appearances discussing the ecology of the Connecticut River Basin (CRB) before college, club, radio, TV and high school audiences.

A graduate of Princeton University with Magna Cum Laude in Biology and a recipient of a doctorate from Yale University in 1957, he has had a teaching experience ranging from that of a Fullbright Scholar at Oxford University in 1957, thru a teaching cycle at Amherst College in which he went through the ranks from an instructor to a full professorship and chairman of the Biology Department. He also served as a research associate with the N.Y. Zoological Society and is currently serving as a member of the Advisory Panel on Environmental Biology, National Science Foundation, and as an associate editor of the bi-monthly "Ecology".

His most recent interest as an environmental activist has centered in his service on the Citizens Advisory Committee, Proposed Mr. Holyoke Unit of the Connecticut River National Recreation Area and his protest over the failure of the Corps of Engineers to recognize environmental priorities in its plan for the mutilation of the CRB.

His research activity has been both extensive and intensive. Collaborating with his wife Jane V. Z. Brower, Ph. D., at times, he has published forty-six (46) scientific papers which have appeared national and international journals. He has been the recipient of six NSF grants for research projects extending from 1959 thru 1972.

His wide range of ecological, activist interests is reflected in his membership in seventeen scientific and conservation organization organizations. Some of these are: AABI, AIBS, State and national Audubon, Ecological Society of America, Wilderness Society, Sierra Club and the Connecticut River Ecology Action Corp. of which he is a member of the Board.

His many awards and citations include a Fellowship with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a Guggenheim Fellowship for study at Oxford and leadership posts with various scientific and environmentally concerned organizations.

His greatest effectiveness as an activist has been shown in his work developing a palatable proposal for the Mt. Holyoke Unit of the Conn. River National Park. He was the leader of the effort to bring to bear upon the New England River Basins Commission the ecological values which were ignored in the Comprehensive Report of the Corps of Engineers.

Security Guards Hampered By Multi-Definitive Role

By JIM GOLD
MDC Staff

Ed. Note. Because of a state regulation which says that state employees are not allowed to release statements without first submitting them to the News Office, the names of the people involved in the following story must remain anonymous or they will be subject to dismissal from their jobs by the state.)

Differences in state and University job specifications, lack of structure, and upgrading of pay are the latest causes of controversy with the UMass Security Guards according to several spokesmen.

The state hires guards by one set of specifications and the University expects the guards to follow a different set, one spokesman said.

According to state job specifications, a security guard "Guards and protects state institutions and adjacent structures and property against possible loss or damage from theft, fire, vandalism or other causes; perform related work as required."

The specifications go on to say that the Security Guard is to inspect, and test all fire equipment and alarm systems, extinguish fires when small, "provides assistance to attendants on watch duty", makes minor repairs on fire equipment.

The qualifications according to the specifications are knowledge and ability of operating fire equipment of guarding procedures, of following instructions, of fighting fires, of first aid procedures, and possession of a Massachusetts drivers License.

The University has drawn up its own specifications, said the spokesmen, which look more like regular police work than guard work.

These say that the general duties of a guard in addition to fire protection are enforcement of rules and regulations, and preparation of reports. The specifications call for supervision from a person of higher grade.

The duties according to the University specifications call for the guards to patrol residence halls, buildings, and grounds; supervise security assistants; interpret rules for students; maintain and enforce order; reports emergencies and operate emergency equipment; helps visitors; regulates traffic and parking; reports, helps control, and fight fires; makes reports; and makes "immediate decisions concerning the referral of special problems to appropriate University security" officials.

The qualifications listed in the job specifications includes ability in dealing with people, in supervising, and in fire fighting and security techniques.

To go along with their request of change in pay, from grade 7 to grade 9 and because their job is not well defined, said the spokesmen, the Security Guards drew up job specifications based on what they actually feel they do.

"Patrol on foot assigned student residential areas from 11 P.M. to 7 A.M. nightly." they feel that patrolling consists of the following as stated in their version of job specifications: Report fires and direct trucks to the fire; assist counselors and heads of residence in policing disturbances in dorms, "act as liason between police and students, opening doors for students after hours;" patrol parking areas for stolen cars, carry out duties as assigned by head campus police officer; assist police in duties such as bomb scares, demonstrations, apprehension of law violators, and others; secure dormatories; aid visitors and students, receive power of arrest for emergency use, and issue parking tickets.

The guards feel that a double standard has been placed on them by the use of the different job specifications. They also claim that they would like to take part in formal job training programs but that efforts in the past have been squelched by those in authority, said the spokesman. "They are afraid of letting us have a legitimate excuse for a raise," so they dropped the training program at Topsfield (a training school), they said.

"We have no protective gear", said the spokesmen. Some security guards have been on since October and they still don't have uniforms, he said. Police officers get their uniforms right away, he added.

A certain rivalry between the police and the guards seems to exist. The guards charge that the security administration sometimes don't inform them of what's going on to make themselves look better, said one spokesman. "There is a lack of communication between security departments."

The Security Guards want a chain of command so, they will be more directly responsible to someone. Now, according to a spokesman, they are responsible to Sgt. Don Zitick of the Police The Security Guards feel that Sgt. Zitick has been a very good liasion between themselves and the administration. They said he is highly overworked, though. Also, they said, there are no promotions available although sometimes members get absorbed into the police force.

The Night Guards work five days per week but are required to work every weekend, taking weekday nights their days off.

'Alternative Schooling' Chosen Modular Credit Week Theme

By DON GLICKSTEIN
MDC Staff

"Alternative Schooling in an Urban Society" has been chosen the theme of the School of Education's spring Modular Credit Week. The Marathon, to be held April 12-16, will see the cancellation of all Education classes so that students and the public will be able to attend special events, lectures and demonstrations. Highlighting the week will be Urban Education Day on April 14.

Groups from Louisville, Montreal and Washington are expected to participate in the Spring Marathon, as well as the University of Massachusetts' Brooklyn, New York campus. The Brooklyn students are paraprofessionals in the Career Opportunities Program who are taught by UMass-Amherst faculty for University credit toward eventual degrees and teacher certification.

As has been the case with past Marathons, UMass undergraduates will be able to receive modular credit for attending each learning event. Fifteen modular credits are required for one University credit.

Armenian To Speak On Guerrillas

Tonight The Armenian Club of UMass will sponsor James Tashjian, who will speak in Machmer W22 at 9:00.

The Armenian Club of UMass will sponsor James Tashjian, who will speak in Machmer W11 at 9:00. Mr. Tashjian's topic will be "The Armenian Guerilla Movement."

A graduate of Harvard, Tashjian has been the editor of the Armenian Weekly of Boston for 20 years. During that time he has traveled extensively over the U.S. revealing the Armenian situation in the United States and the world.

Area Group Plans Day Care Center

Several people in the Amherst area are planning to initiate a Day Care Center for the University community and other area residents. Present plans are to begin the service in September, possibly sooner.

Children from the age of one month to kindergarten will be cared for by the center. It will operate on a year long basis. The cost to children's parents will be 50¢ per hour. Plans are to operate from 7:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. on a five-day schedule.

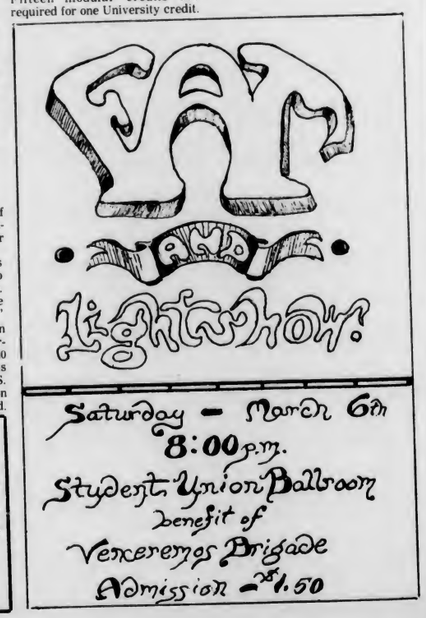
In order to operate, the center will need to care for a minimum of twenty children. A much larger response is expected, however, and the group plans to accommodate the needs of all interested parents.

The location of the center, whether on campus or off, is undecided. The response and projected space requirements will be a determining factor. Whether or not government subsidy under VISTA or another program is available will be investigated.

Those people with an interest in the day care center are encouraged to call any of the following people: Louise Pringle, 253-7057; Jerry Burrel, 256-8175; or Harriet, 253-3798.

HOTLINE
5-2550

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian



Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002 Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods: three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

SAVE YOURSELF

We research - write - type Term Papers. We are the quickest, the cheapest, the most professional.

Call 321-1388

SWAP Groups Continue

Results Student Affairs: Transcripts, Vending

By IRWIN LEFMAN
MDC Staff

The SWAP meeting on student affairs held in the Campus Center last night, was supposed to discuss some very important and pertinent topics to the students. However, no students were present.

Pam Pepper, the leader of the discussion, seemed disturbed at the overwhelming student apathy.

Despite all the negative factors, including the weather, the meeting still went on. Of the subjects discussed were profits of the vending machines going to the students instead of the 50% going to the athletic scholarships and activities. It was felt that the $50,000 that is allotted to the athletic department be used for student funds and activities. The proposal is presently appearing before the Senate.

Another major topic proposed was that the student have the power to formulate his own transcript. Under this proposal, the record of the student's extracurricular activities becomes a part of the permanent record if he so desires.

Some other aspects of this proposal were that the students should be able to receive credit for activities performed outside the academic community, and department requirements.

This provision would enable students who put in a considerable amount of work in extracurricular activities becomes a part of the permanent record if he so desires.

Some other aspects of this proposal were that the students should be able to receive credit for activities performed outside the academic community, and department requirements.

This provision would enable students who put in a considerable amount of work in extracurricular activities to receive academic recognition upon sufficient furnishment of proof.

An example of this would be the treasurer. He accomplishes a considerable amount of work in budgets and budget control. Under this proposal he would be able to receive credit from the economics or business department, because of his work in accounting.

The other topics discussed were the role and the necessity of counselors and area coordinators. It was felt that the counselor should fit the particular area that he is serving, as well as fit the University role. The role of the area coordinator is a major topic on its own. Many students are not aware of who the area coordinator and the services offered it was mentioned.

Student Governance: Finances, Trustees

By JIM MITCHELL
MDC Staff

"As you can see, student apathy is one of our biggest problems now". Thus began Bob Harrington, group leader of the SWAP subcommittee on Student Governence in an interview held last night after no one appeared for the scheduled meeting.

Despite obstacles such as this, most of the proposals formulated by the group last December, and further discussed last night in the interview are being supported by the administration and in one instance the State legislature.

Harrington, related that John Olver, State Representative of Amherst, has filed a bill that will give the University representation at the Joint committee on education at the State House.

Mike Daley, State Representative of Allston and Brighton who is chairman of this committee attended the SWAP meeting in December and also gave his support to the bill. Presently, the Amherst and Boston campus share one student representative. This bill, if passed will give both campuses equal representation.

Another proposal dealing with student financial responsibility for furniture in public areas of dorms and the campus center also is making considerable headway. This bill, which will give students the right to decide what furniture shall remain in lounges has the support of Vice Chancellor Randolph Bromery, and will be voted on in the Student Senate within two weeks, said Harrington.

The only problem that Harrington felt might arise with this proposal is the matter of logistics. If students decide that they don't want to take the financial responsibility of the furniture and vote it out of their dorms, warehouse space and funds for moving must be secured.

The most promising proposal deals with the seating of students on the board of trustees. As it is now, students are occasionally called in before the board for sub-committee meetings, but there is no one student who attends consistently said Harrington. By creating a permanent position on this board, students would be able to be more effective and influencial in University affairs.

Harrington said that, "Chancellor Oswald Tippo expressed interest and a positive nature of having students on the board."

The proposal to have the University and State legislature develop a two or three year budget is the only one that seems hopeless right now said Harrington. Originally, this proposal would have created a cost/factor system which would show that for every student in attendance here, the University would receive a certain amount of money; Harrington said that this might not be feasible because it would be difficult to set a figure that would reflect continually changing costs. Even if a figure could be worked out, the legislature could not be depended on to come through with the money, he concluded.

Barnard Sees Need For His Role

By BARBARA ANN CLEARY
MDC Staff

"My experience so far has confirmed my previous impression that there is a real need for an office of this kind". This was the major point which Ellsworth Barnard stressed in discussing his role as the new University ombudsman in an interview yesterday.

At the same time, he felt that "it's too early to make a judgement on the overall effectiveness of the office". Since he was held the post he has seen a large number of students, both graduate and undergraduate, plus faculty and professional staff members.

A number of students have come with problems concerning grades. Dr. Barnard said that this is a "very delicate matter to get involved in. Most faculty members are very sensitive of what they regard as an invasion of their perrogative".

However, he said that if a student has "legitimate ground for complaint, I am willing to follow it up." In addition, he has handled some personal problems, and has helped to get information for people who could not cut through red tape on their own.

Dr. Barnard feels that his main concern is "that old business of lack of communication". Administrators do things which involve students, but students are not notified of it, he continued. In addition, he said, people lower down in the administrative structure have trouble getting through to those people who can really get things done.

Dr. Barnard cited lack of money, the rapidity with which the University is growing, and large areas of responsibility as factors making breakdowns in communication almost inevitable.

Dr. Barnard also said that how much he can do with regard to really serious problems will depend on "how much support I, get and what effect my recommendations have".

He feels that the administration has been receptive to him, and he has not encountered opposition in his efforts to cut through red tape.

However, he quipped, "As I often say with a little exaggeration, 'students are never in their rooms, faculty are never in their offices and administrators are always at a meeting, usually in Boston.'"

Dr. Barnard expressed a genuine concern for helping fulfill the students' needs.

Ellsworth Barnard, the new University Ombudsman, feels that there is definitely a need at the University for his newly defined position.

Student Tours Presents
ACAPULCO ADVENTURE
during College Week
March 20 - 28
from $208
plus tax and service
includes:
● Round trip jet transportation to Acapulco, Mexico
● Meals and bar service aloft.
● Stay at Holiday Inn or Hotel Acapulco Imperial
● All taxes and tips for baggage and transportation.
● Discounts on many clubs, dicotheques, tours, skin diving, and water skiing.

Spring Skiing — Sugarbush, Vt.
during College Week
from $112
March 21 - 26
includes:
● Lodging at Alpen Inn
● Meals
● Lifts
● Lessons
For more information call Joan or Louise 546-9816

Blacks' Meeting Resolves Discord

A meeting of the Black community in Mills House last night resulted in the formation of a new Cultural Center Steering Committee and the addition of 5 students to an advisory board of the CCEBS program.

The new Steering Committee is composed of fourteen students and will be responsible for the setting of a "new direction" for the whole Cultural Center.

According to students attending the meeting, which had been called by the old Steering Committee, a feeling of "solidarity" had emerged, at the end of the 3 hour session.

One spokesman explained that the impromptu gathering had been called "for the purposes of solidarity," in the Black community.

Now, "The entire Black community will have to decide" on the "future direction" of the Cultural Center, commented the spokesman.

The five students on the CCEBS program advisory board will assist in the formulation of "policies" said one student named to the Board.

Olympic Academy Applications Avail.

Applications for the 11th International Olympic Academy at Athens and Olympia, Greece, July 2 to August 2 are available here at the University.

Students and faculty members of the Five-College Area (Smith, Mount Holyoke, Amherst, and Hampshire Colleges, and the University) are eligible for the Academy which will have world-renowned experts lecturing on special subjects concerning philosophy and ideology of the Olympic Movement. Sponsors of the Academy are the International Olympic Committees from countries which participate in Olympic competition.

One purpose of the Academy is to foster better understanding to the Olympic Movement, preserving such aspects as good sportsmanship.

Five scholarships are available for American students, physical education teachers, coaches, and athletes. UMass is offering six academic credits to UMass physical education undergraduates who attend the Academy.

Applications and further information about the Academy or the scholarship grants may be obtained from Dr. Barbara Burn, director of International Programs, 229 Whitmore.

WMUA Awaits Space Decision

By CYNTHIA SWINDELL
MDC Staff

Radio Station WMUA awaits the final desicions of the SUG Board Allocation Committee before initiating its plans to move to the Student Union.

According to Ray Ballard, chief engineer at WMUA, the plans to move to the old bookstore have met with complications and thus the third floor of the Campus Center has become the probable new location of the radio station.

When WMUA began plans to move to the Student Union, the radio station chose the old bookstore as its site because the ground level is best in transmitting solid radio vibrations. An added advantage was the existing air conditioning system in the bookstore, which suits the radio station's needs.

Problems arose when WMUA was notified that additional interests, including an arts and crafts center, would also occupy the bookstore space. This would give WMUA only 2800 square feet of space, making the move for WMUA unprofitable since moving of all the radio equipment will be an expensive process and moving to an overcrowded location would not be to the davantage of the station.

An alternative location of the third floor of the Campus Center has been suggested. At this location WMUA would have 6000 square feet of space in which to set up its radio equipment. Ballard stated that WMUA would purchase additional equipment and begin broadcasting from the Campus Center and then begin moving existing equipment.

In other business WMUA is awaiting the go ahead from the Building Authority to establish its transmitting tower atop Dickenson Dormitory. The station has presented the cost and formal specifications of the project, and requires only the B. A.'s approval.

Over 450 people attended the meeting, which was originally deemed "emergency" when the Steering committee "closed" Mills House for what was described as potentially "indefinite" period of time, the night before last.

Mills House is expected to be open as usual today.

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES
events
BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

FRI., MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 8 P.M.
GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE
Presents Mozart's "Don Giovanni" in fully-staged production sung in English.

TUES., MARCH 16 & WED., MARCH 17 8 P.M.
ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE
Direct from a triumphant tour of Africa, Soviet Union and Great Britain. Two different evening programs plus a master class and lecture/demonstration.

For complete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall
(Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.)
Tel. 545-0202

In The Nation And The World

Seven Severe Fighting In Laos;
Thieu Warns of North Vietnam Invasion

SAIGON (AP)-Heavy fighting erupted again Wednesday in southern Laos and enemy gunners shot down seven U.S. helicopters flying in support of South Vietnamese troops, the U.S. Command announced Thursday.

In South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese slammed 1,000 rounds of shells into a South Vietnamese fire base along the demilitarized zone-the heaviest such shelling since 1968-allied headquarters said.

The seven downed choppers represented the largest helicopter loss in a single day since Saigon's troops movied into Laos Feb. 8 to cut parts of the Ho Chi Minh Trail. American casualties were given as one dead, 10 wounded and six missing.

The command revised an earlier report that eight helicopters were lost Wednesday.

In other developments:

-The U.S. Command said North Vietnamese surface to air missiles-SAMs-were fired into South Vietnamese skies Tuesday for the first time in the war, aiming at two American planes. Neither was damaged. The North Vietnamese have been moving SAMs closer to their southern border.

-President Nguyen Van Thieu said he hoped the North Vietnamese "would soon awaken to the reality and not put us in a situation which forces us to attack them right on their own territory."

The heaviest fighting in Laos was reported at Hill 30, a government position eight miles northwest of the border. South Vietnamese troops attacked, but lost 98 men killed in 10 hours of fighting.

South Vietnamese losses were announced as one killed and three wounded. Sixty enemy were said to have been killed by artillery and air strikes.

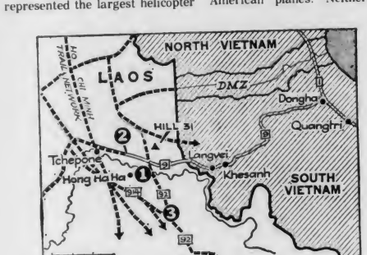
Fierce fighting also broke out in the central highlands 28 miles west of Kontum City where the borders of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos meet at the southern terminus of the Ho Chi Minh trail. Allied forces claimed killing 332 North Vietnamese troops in a battle with elements of three enemy regiments.

The new fighting indicated North Vietnamese may be applying pressure along the DMZ and in the central highlands to divert South Vietnamese forces from parallel operations against North Vietnamese supply routes and base camps in Laos and Cambodia.

Enemy gunners also shelled the big Da Nang air base early Thursday with seven 100-pound rockets. The U.S. Command said one rocket triggered a fire on the base. Casualties and damage were described as light. U.S. fighter-bombers, helicopters and cargo planes supporting the South Vietnamese drive into Laos fly out of Da Nang.

It was not known whether some of the helicopter losses were around Hill 30 or whether they were involved in an assault landing that has not yet been reported.

In another revised report, the U.S.Command said a total of 31 helicopters and two fighter-bombers have been lost over Laos and 12 choppers have been lost on the Vietnamese side of the border



A spokesman listed total U.S. casualties as 41 killed, 24 missing and 45 wounded.

Field reports say, however, that scores more have been shot down but have not been reported by the command because they have been recovered.

A command spokesman said he had no details on the new losses other than that the seven UH1 Huey helicopters were hit by enemy ground fire, crashed and were destroyed in the lower panhandle of Laos while supporting South Vietnamese forces.

Field reports, however, said it was believed there was a helicopter combat assault by South Vietnamese forces into Laos during the day.

About 2,000 Vietnamese marines have been moved into Laos in the past two days, raising the number of South Vietnamese troops in that country to 18,000.

South Vietnamese said they abandoned Laotian base at Hong HaHa (1) for tactical reasons. With main force still 16 miles from border (2), Saigon units appeared to be preparing for new thrust westward. They were harassing foe's supply routes (3) numbered 914 and 92.

Army Major Threatened For Exposing Military Graft

WASHINGTON (AP)-An Army major told senators Wednesday he was menaced by the Army's top enlisted man after his "snooping" threatened to implicate a general and stop systematic looting of GI clubs at military posts in Vietnam.

Maj. Clement E. St. Martin said he was removed as club officer and transferred after a three-month duty tour in a strange world where he said lawbreakers were protected by a general. A civilian vendor boasted he ran the clubs and an oriental "dragon lady" pulled strings to open a brothel disguised as a steam bath.

The major told the Senate investigations subcommittee he could have made at least $10,000 monthly had he "cooperated" with Brig. Gen. Earl Cole and his civilian friend, super salesman William J. Crum.

Because he did not, St. Martin said, he once heard a price was put on his head.

It was all but impossible to conduct an honest investigation of club activities at Long Binh post in 1967, the major said, because the name of Gen. Cole, then a deputy chief of staff, "struck the fear of God into them."

Last summer the Army removed Gen. Cole from command of the European PX system, reduced him to colonel, stripped him of a Distinguished Service Medal and ordered him retired-all for conduct not consistent with "the integrity expected of a general officer."

Cole is tentatively scheduled to be called before the panel next week.

Testifying under oath, St. Martin said he was initiated into life as a club officer when he was put up at a Saigon Hotel, given his favorite drinks and provided with a lovely Vietnam go-go dancer for the night. He said he didn't sleep with her.

He said the favors were provided by Sgt. William Higdon, a man he said was tapped by Cole to run the 30-club system at Long Binh.

St. Martin and subcommittee investigator LaVern Duffy gave these allegations as indications of the accuracy of Crum's boast:

-The club system at Long Binh was used to order cars and trucks and to import them, free of customs, for use of Crum's Sarl Electronics Co.

-Large quantities of club equipment-beer coolers, freezers, and so on-were ordered for Crum and illegally stored in Army warehouses at Long Binh.

-Vendors like Crum were illegally paid cash by Higdon which in turn was subject to manipulation on the currency black market, a transaction which could have added hundreds of thousands of dollars to their profits.

-Cole "adjusted" contracts at the request of Crum.

-The club system bought four turkeys and gave them to Cole at a cost of $117.

-Cole quashed investigations and covered up all evidence of wrong doing as best he could.

Failure To Pay Fines May Result In Jail Term

Revision of laws to provide jail sentences instead of fines could result from the Supreme Court's ruling that no man can be jailed because he can't afford a fine, judges and other legal officials said Wednesday.

"It's going to cause a lot of trouble," said Judge Andrew Doyle of Nashville Metropolitan Court when asked about the Tuesday ruling. "Who's going to decide if a man has the money? What kind of criterion do you have to go by?"

Alex Bickley, Dallas city attorney, said the decision "would mean there would be no effective means of enforcement in certain situations. I think this is going to require us to take a real careful look at our laws and see if we do need some remedial legislation."

The unanimous ruling came in the case of Preston A. Tate, a Houston laborer who accumulated fines of $425 on traffic convictions and was sentenced to the municipal prison farm.

An offense normally punishable only by a fine is discrimination in violation of the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection of the laws.

The court did not rule out imprisonment of a defendant who has the means to pay a fine but refuses to do so.

An Associated Press survey showed that although some officials favored the decision as a means of eliminating discrimination against the poor, many were concerned over:

-The chance that the decision could encourage violations of laws like traffic statutes by persons who felt they could avoid fines and knew they wouldn't be jailed.

Robert Deehl, senior judge of the Dade County, Fla. Metropolitan Court, said the ruling "can be a real problem." Under the present system, he said, "if a person can't pay the fine, he gets $15 credit on it for each day in jail."

He said some offenders complain they can't afford the fine but pay up at the last minute. Deehl also said the ruling "can encourage irresponsible driving on the part of someone who says, 'I'm poor and they can't put me in jail'."

In Richmond, Va., Municipal Court Judge William E. Spain said he was "shocked" by the ruling. "It's amazing that the current Supreme Court can discover that a system of fines that has existed in common law both here and in England for more than 300 years suddenly is unconstitutional. Who's going to decide who has the money to pay and who hasn't? It certainly takes away a valuable source of punishment in a proper case and the irresponsible are largely the ones who benefit."

Richardson Explains Fed. Aid To Families

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson labeled as untrue Wednesday charges that the administration's higher education bill ignores the need for help to middle income families in sending children to college.

Richardson told the Senate Education Subcommittee that a family with $12,000 income and three children in college would be eligible for basic grants and loans.

Children from large families with incomes over $15,000 could get up to $1,500 per student in subsidized loans, he said.

"If these are not 'middle-income families,' I have to ask what kind of families we mean when we use this phrase," he commented. "Median family income in the United States is about $9,800."

The charges about the middle income families were raised by Democrats on a House Subcommittee at a hearing on the administration's proposals.

At Wednesday's session, members of the Senate panel made different objections.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R—N.Y.), said the administration was holding out a worthy goal in seeking to aid a million additional college students in the next year.

But he said he was not clear as to whether the money actually would be available to carry out the commitment.

Chairman Claiborne Pell, (D—R.I.), noted that the examples of aid available to students from various income levels under the administration bill were not actually spelled out in the language of the measure itself.

Congress was being asked to pass a broad grant of authority and leave it up to HEW to spell out the details, he said.

Special Friday Nite Flick!
"CURSE OF THE WEREWOLF"
Hampden Commons 25¢
11:30 Friday, March 5
Southwest Patriots

YOU ARE INVITED TO DROP IN AND BROWSE
studio 79
"On The Common"
79 S. Pleasant St.
Town & Country Bldg.
Amherst, Mass
• PRINTS
• POSTERS • MOVIE ART
• ORIGINALS
• PHOTOGRAPHY
• CUSTOM FRAMING SVC.
Town and Country Bldg.
2nd Floor-Over RAPPS Delicatessen

No Kill Order Given To Medina

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—No orders ever were issued from a high-level conference that women and children were to be killed at My Lai, prosecution witnesses testified Wednesday at Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s court-martial.

One of the witnesses, William C. Riggs of Midland, Tex., commander of Alpha Company, said he attended a briefing on the eve of My Lai, conducted by Lt. Col. Frank Barker, head of the task force which made the March 16, 1968 assault.

"It was pretty much a standard briefing," added Riggs, a former infantry captain. "There was nothing much out of the ordinary that I recall."

Another witness who was present at the briefing, which Calley did not attend, was Lt. Col. Frederic W. Watke, who was asked:

Q. Do you recall any specific mention of women and children?
A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Was there an order given to kill every man, woman and child in the area?
A. Not at - no.

Q. Was there an order given not to take prisoners?
A. No.

Calley, 27, is accused of premeditated murder of 102 unresisting Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai while leading the 1st Platoon of Charlie Company on a search and destroy mission through the hamlet.

On the witness stand, Calley said he was obeying orders from his company commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, to wipe out every living thing in the hamlet near the South China Sea.

U.S. Army First Lt. William Calley gives peace sign from helicopter last fall at Quang Ngai. Prosecution witnesses at his trial said today no orders were issued from a conference to kill women and children at My Lai.

Medina attended the Barker briefing and the prosecution aim in its rebuttal testimony was to convince the six-man court-martial jury that no such orders were passed down from the high-level conference.

Further rebuttal testimony is expected to deal with a subsequent briefing Medina gave the men of his company, including Calley.

Delegates From New England Leave For Paris Peace Talks

BOSTON (AP)-A delegation of 20 persons from throughout New England, each representing a local community group, was part of a nationwide group scheduled to leave Wednesday for the Paris peace talks on Vietnam.

The delegates said they intend to meet with Xuan Thuy of the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks, Madame Binh of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, Viet Cong, representatives of the Saigon government and the U.S. delegation to the peace talks and others.

The project, sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam and the Fellowship of Reconciliation, is designed to give American citizens first hand knowledge of the issues involved in the Indochinese war, a statement said.

Railway Strike Hovers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The imminent threat of a nationwide railroad strike or a settlement that would avert it reportedly hung in delicate balance in negotiations Wednesday night.

"It's either going to go or blow," said one inside source of prospects for either a settlement of the wage and work rules dispute or a breakoff of talks that could lead to a coast-to-coast trainmen's walkout at any time.

Earlier, Asst. Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery, the government's chief troubleshooter, said, "I'm not too hopeful" of a settlement. Talks continued into the night amid reports of hard, crucial bargaining in the dispute between the AFL—CIO United Transportation Union and the railroad industry.

As negotiations continued, Usery said the government was considering what action it might take in the event of a walkout.

All existing provisions of federal labor law have been exhausted in the dispute, and a special act of Congress that halted a one-day nationwide strike Dec. 10 expired at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

Only another special act of Congress could block a renewed strike.

"The railroads have been on notice since Sunday that the union is free to strike," said chief industry negotiator John P. Hiltz.

"There's not much we can do about it," he said in asserting there were no further plans to warn railroads of an impending strike.

"If you're hit, you're hit," Hiltz said of the strike possibility.

The union represents a variously estimated 135,000 to 180,000 trainmen. It was one of four unions involved in the brief Dec. 10 walkout. The other three came to settlements in recent weeks for wage packages estimated at 43 per cent over 42 months above their previous average pay of about $3.50 per hour.

But since all railroad men generally respect picket lines, a strike by one union would almost certainly shut down the nation's rail system.

The United Transportation Union and the railroads were reportedly in near tentative agreement on a wage package, but stalled over industry demands for work rule changes the union said would eliminate jobs and reduce over-all income of workers.

These include railroad demands to enlarge interdivisional train runs now limited to 100 miles without extra pay or a crew change, reduce expenses for trips away from home and to combine separate road and yard crews.

Cutbacks Made In Nike Sites

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army and Air Force announced Wednesday massive cutbacks and realignments of their already sharply scaled-down defense against bombers attacks on the United States.

The Army said that by June 30 it will close 27 Nike-Hercules batteries and 11 Nike-Hercules headquarters in 15 states at an annual savings of about $31 million starting in 1972.

For the Air Force, the realignment will mean elimination of three fighter-interceptor bases, the reduction of six others and the closing of one radar station along with a loss of 3,555 military and 359 civilian jobs at 18 bases in 13 states.

The Air Force gave no estimate of expected savings.

The Army said its steps with the Nike-Hercules program were designed to cut costs and focus on more sophisticated weapons.

An Air Force spokesman explained that the concept of Air Defense Command forces "has been changed during the past several years from one of broad coverage of the United States to one of predominantly perimeter coverage along the northern border and eastern and western coastal regions."

Both the Nike-Hercules is an antiaircraft ground-to-air missile which has been deployed around the United States since the mid-1950s. It can carry either nuclear or conventional warheads.

Guerrillas Release Fly After His Heart Attack

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Tupamaro guerrillas claimed Wednesday that they freed American soils expert Claude L. Fly under an amnesty, but diplomatic sources said the kidnappers obviously panicked when Fly suffered a heart attack.

Fly, 65, held captive for nearly seven months, was reported in "delicate condition and resting" at British Hospital.

U.S. Ambassador Charles Adair called on Fly twice and said the Fort Collins, Colo., grandfather probably will remain in the hospital three to four weeks. "We are very worried about his health," Adair added.

Fly was found Tuesday night on a stretcher outside the hospital. With him was Dr. Jorge Dighiero, 58, one of Uruguay's leading heart specialists whom the Tupamaros kidnaped for several hours to treat Fly.

The Tupamaros, a leftist group which kidnaped U.S. police adviser Dan Mitrone last July and killed him two weeks later, said in a statement that Fly had been informed on Feb. 18 that he had been given an amnesty and would be released soon.

On Feb. 23, however, Fly suffered a heart attack, the Tupamaros said He was at first treated by the guerrillas' own doctors but apparently failed to respond adequately.

Then on Tuesday night they seized Dr. Dighiero, chief of cardiology at Montevideo's Hospital de Clinicas. Police had raided the hospital in January in the search for Fly and two other hostages.

Dighiero has declined to comment on the kidnaping, but sources reported that a young couple lured him outside with a plea to attend to an emergency at an undisclosed location.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Braad St. Westfield 562-3604

MDC
Classifieds
PAY

Spectrum is having an open house. Anyone who is interested in Spectrum and what goes into it, stop by the Spectrum office, room 409 of the Student Union, sometime between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. this Thursday, March 4. We need new ideas and new people and would be happy to discuss any comments you have about the magazine

THE SHOE-IN

THE BEST IN MEN AND WOMEN'S SHOES
"IN THE ALLEY"
1 COOK PLACE
AMHERST, MASS.
"BACK HOME BARGAINS"

Atomic Energy Commission:

Vermont Plant Effects Not Significant

WASHINGTON (AP) — A preliminary report by the Atomic Energy Commission's regulatory staff says that while there are "certain potentially detrimental environmental effects" connected with building and operating a Vermont nuclear power plant, "none of these effects is expected to be significant."

The 47-page draft statement on environmental considerations by the AEC's Division of Reactor Licensing is accompanied by sharply critical comments from Vermont's Attorney General James M. Jeffords.

But the staff document, distributed for a new round of reaction and joined by statements from several federal agencies, says the operating license applicant, Vermont Yankee Power Corp., has indicated that it will comply with all federal and state regulations applicable to the unit which are designed to protect the environment."

"Furthermore, the applicant has stated that if any adverse effects attributable to the operation of the station were to become evident through the environmental monitoring programs during plant operation, appropriate steps would be taken by the applicant to correct the situation," the AEC report added.

Jeffords attacked several phases of the environmental report which was advanced by Vermont Yankee in the company's efforts to avoid harming the area around the $135 million atomic power plant. It is nearing completion at Vernon, Vt., on the banks of the Connecticut River across from New Hampshire and north of Massachusetts.

He complained the company's environmental proposals are deficient in several regards including atmospheric impact, chemical releases, radiological effects and control systems.

New Hampshire officials including that state's Fish and Game Agency and Water Supply and Pollution Control Commission, contended the company must apply to their state since New Hampshire has jurisdiction over the Connecticut River.

The AEC report said "the local short-term effects on the environment are those associated with the thermal and radiation discharges from the Vermont Yankee nuclear power station.

"The discharge of condenser cooling water will be kept within the applicable water quality standards and the plant's liquid and gaseous radwaste effluents are maintained in the within required limits.

"In addition the applicant is conducting radiological and ecological environmental monitoring programs which will include the sampling and analysis of surface and ground waters, bottom sediments, soil, fish, air and river water.

"These programs will be used to provide basis for detecting and evaluating any radiological impact which might lead to long-term effects or any other adverse effects on the aquatic environment in order that timely corrective action can be taken if required."

The Federal Power Commission (FPC) said there is no question about the need of the Vermont Yankee's capacity for use in the area's power system.

"Nuclear fuels are currently best suited to those requirements. In view of the contribution which the Vermont Yankee Nuclear plant will make to the generating capability of its shareholders and to the generating capability of its shareholders and to the generating resources of all of New England under the coming New England power pool arrangement," FPC said, "it appears that the decision to construct the plant was both sound and timely."

Vermont Yankee said in its environmental report that its plant will "enhance long-term productivity with minimum environmental impact."

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

The Campus Cinema Complex is located right on Rt. 9 in Hadley, three minutes from Route 91. An Esquire Theatre Of Course.

"The Confession" from the makers of "Z"

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!" —Stewart Klein, WNEW TV —William Wolf, Cue —Joseph Gelmis, Newsday

" 'THE CONFESSION' is not for those who are merely looking for a non-challenging, pleasant evening. It is highly articulate and complex. A sober and powerful recounting of one man's unflinching refusal to surrender his dignity as a man, and as a human being. MONTAND HAS DRAWN AN EXQUISITE PORTRAYAL, BRIMMING WITH EMOTION!" —Bob Salmaggi, Group W Network

Academy Nominee Best Actor 1970 Cannes Film Festival ... Yves Montand Simone Signoret "The Confession" ... Gabriele Ferzetti ... Michel Vitold

CINEMA I 7:00 9:15 GP

"A DEVASTATING FILM! GRIPPING! TERRIFYING! It is Montand's film. He gives a stupendous bravura performance. The film is, in a humanistic sense, more successful than Costa-Gavras' 'Z'!" —Gail Rock, Women's Wear Daily

The Rolling Stones GIMME SHELTER

7:15 9:15 CINEMA II

A great rock-'n-roll movie about the best band in the world.

Rated R

SPECIAL SHOWINGS SATURDAY ONLY 7:00 8:30 10:00

BREWSTER McCLOUD

7:00 9:00 CINEMA III

the director of M*A*S*H is back again cutting up people for the third sensational week.

RATED— R—

FRI & SAT LATE SHOW

11 p.m. till 2 A.M.

— This Weekend — "FREAKS 1932" (Tod Brownings) — AND — "WHITE ZOMBIES" (Bela Lugosi)

Draft Counselor's Corner

Urge Congressmen To End Draft

By GILBERT J. SALK

jottings...

Draft Counseling Services has counseled three people to I-O classifications. The first came in two weeks ago from the State Appeal Board, the second on a personal appearance from the Northampton board, and the third from Board #83 in Springfield (believed to be only the second I-O classification from Board 83.) Getting results on appeals at this time of year on medical and CO claims is slow because most students still have II-S deferments so their claims don't come up. So far, DCS has helped get three I-Os on three appeals. Still sure you don't want to try for one?

Some people still seem unaware of the fact that there is a draft counseling group on campus. It is supported by the student body, not by Uncle Sam, and it is here to help you confront your problem with the draft in the most informed, honest, and effective way. The service is free, unless you care to contribute something to help your brothers. The Draft Counseling Services have an office on the second floor of the Student Union in room 418E. It's around the corridor behind the Cashier's cage. There's usually someone there from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., and no appointments are needed.

It looks as if the draft will be kept for another two years at the least. The opposition needed to keep it from being renewed has not materialized. My guess is that it will be renewed in late June until June of 1973. There's also a strong possibility that student deferments will be ended then, at least for those who do not already have them. In other words, your kid brother who's going to college next year will not be able to get a deferment. If you think that we've had enough of the chains of the SSS to carry on our backs, this is the time to start working. Contact your Senators and Congressmen and let them know that you are opposed to the draft and will not vote for him (or her) unless he votes to end it this year. Write letters to your local newspaper urging people to get in tough with their representatives. Start your own anti-draft movement. Write to the National Committee to Repeal the Draft in Washington, D.C., and tell them what you're doing or would like to do or that you want them to tell you what to do.

People are curious about what number will be reached this year. My best guess is that it will probably reach between 275 and 300, considerably higher than last year's limit. (To be fair, U.S. News & World Report ran a report a few weeks ago saying that the top lottery number would be about 150. You can believe them if you wish.) It is true that the total number of men drafted this year will be fewer than it was last year, but this does not affect the lottery because the manpower pool is considerably smaller this year. You also have to take a grain of salt with Nixon's claim that he will lower this year. Dick is a used-war dealer, after all. The call has been for 17,000 brothers for each of the first three months this year, higher than the first three months last year. This, coinciding with the invasion and rape of Laos and the rumors of similar face-saving stunts aimed at North Vietnam being planned, could lead one to some uncomfortable speculation.

The draft is still messing your brothers over. Do your thing to get yourself free and help your brothers free.

PEACE.

Questions to this column should be addressed to: Gilbert J. Salk, c/o Draft Counseling Services RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002.

Free personal draft counseling available. Draft Counseling Services, 418E Student Union 2nd. floor.

Recycling—Newspaper recycling cartons have been placed around the campus to dispose of newspapers there instead of receptacles like the one above.

Used Paper To Be Recycled

Boxes labeled "Newspaper Recycling" are now located in the Campus Center, the Student Union, the five main dining commons, and some of the dorms. Used newspapers, collected in these boxes are sent back to local paper mills to be reprocessed.

This will not only cut down on the number of trees required to make paper products, but also will help the University's waste problem. The Collegian alone creates more than three tons of waste paper a week.

This project was initiated in October by C.O.R.E.S. (Committee On Recycling Excess Stuff), a group which sprang up from a C.E.Q. workshop. Money received for the newspapers is used to pay for transporting the paper. The rest is put into a fund to help finance future projects to recycle or reuse aluminum cans and glass bottles.

Pending the realization of a more comprehensive community action now being studied by the Western Massachusetts Group of the Sierra Club, residents of Amherst and vicinity may take papers for recycling to P. Allen and Son, Route 10, Easthampton Road, just south of Northampton near the railroad tracks, or to the Salvation Army receptacles in and near Amherst, or call for pickup in Holyoke.

Current prices paid: For unmixed computer products: printouts $20/ton, computer cards, boxed $26/ton, computer cards, boxed (all white) $30/ton and up, $8/ton or 40¢/100 lbs. for newspapers only. (A stack of newspapers about 3 ft. high is about 100 lbs.) Mixed paper (such as cardboard cartons, paper bags, junk mail, magazines, office paper, memos, envelopes, soiled tissues, napkins, picture postcards, old exams, catalogs, telephone books, and food packaging if not waxes), $7/ton or 35¢/100 lbs.

Not recyclable: carbon paper, waxed paper products, scotch tape, plastics, photographs (prints or slides), styrofoam, cellophane, aluminum foil, and cigarette butts. If in doubt about what is recyclable, call Mr. Allen at 584-3040 or discard. Before discarding substantial amounts of paper for lack of transportation, call Mark Segal at 253-2662.

For more information, call Mark Segal at 253-2662 or Eva Schiffer at 5-0324 or 256-6057.

April 1 is last day to drop a course with a grade of W

BEFORE YOU FLY...

... take a Peter Pan to Bradley International Airport.

Peter Pan The Lobby Shop, Student Union Bldg. Univ. of Mass. Tel. 545-2006 or 545-2328

WATER BEDS dealers wanted write or call noah's waterbed co. Hartford 56 Arbor Street Hartford, Conn. 06106 1 (203) 523-8360

AMHERST Cinema Eves. 7:00 & 9:00 Mat. Sat. - Sun. at 1:30

ON PERFECT FRIDAY Mr Graham the Earl and Lady Dorset request the pleasure of your company for cocktails (let them early before the police do)

URSULA ANDRESS • STANLEY BAKER and DAVID WARNER in PERFECT FRIDAY

LATE SHOW FRIDAY AT 11.30 P.M.

"SWITCHEROO" ON THE HIGH SEAS! Not part of regular Friday program Adults only — All Seats $2.00

Thursday Nights Cricket Hill

The new group in the area featuring

HELEN

2nd Floor Cafeteria

SHOW STARTS AT 9 p.m.

Everyone Welcome

(only club members and their guests over 21 may drink alcoholic beverages.)

50c cover charge

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO EMERGENCY REPAIRS — CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS — MATCHLESS SELECTION OF FASHION EYEGLASS FRAMES — WIRE FRAMES LOTS!

Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 North Pleasant St., Amherst Tel. 256-6161

Did you see

Bernadette Devlin

or

Bill Russell

or

Mrs. W. E. B. DuBois

when they spoke at UMass?

If you did, you saw DVP at work.

DVP is looking for new people with new ideas. Now.

Applications available at the RSO office.

Deadline for applications is March 5.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts · Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — James Gold
NEWS STAFF — Ethel Harris, Dick Destoches, Doug Dearborn, Jeanette Martineau, Jonathan Weiner, Sharman Anderson, Fred Rosenthal
SPORTS — Gary Alpaugh, Tim Fagan
DARKROOM — Ann Gurnett
EDITORIAL — Tony Moore
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

That Time Again

Senate President Glen Elters mentioned in passing at last night's Senate meeting that it is the time of year when people in the Administration are figuring out how much to raise room rents.

Last year the students were informed of the proposed increase, inadvertently, in a news article not related to the rent increase. The issue then became volatile, as those involving money tend to become. There were any number of irate students willing to march, sign petitions and otherwise display their disgust for the idea of paying outrageous sums of money for lousy facilities.

With newly appointed Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas Campion, the students can expect less of the deception of which many accused Treasurer Kenneth Johnson. Campion has promised to work in the open and is now organizing his own figures.

The task now is to get away from the old-style of dealing with increasing costs and inflation, which meant in the past that anytime expenses went up, the student rents were hiked. Although this method is superficially sound, it ignores the possibility that the whole operation could be made more efficient, and that some of the services students now pay for through their room rents could be eliminated.

The physical plant, with its foreboding size and expense, might be a good place to start being more efficient. The stories and rumors which circulate about the gross inefficiency to be found in physical plant operations can't all be false. (Particularly if you happen to be a witness.) More effective use of allocated funds might mean savings for the student.

A better administrative structure might tend to save money.

Anyway, we can assure Vice-Chancellor Campion that students would rather see a better run dormitory system, than pay more rent.

All Letters To The Editor must be typed, double spaced at sixty spaces per line. They should not exceed one page in length and should be submitted by 5 p.m. prior to the day of publication. The same rules apply for Editorial Points.

The Editors reserve the right to edit all letters. Also, all letters must contain the name and address of the writer which will be withheld upon request.

Offensive

Barry Rubenstein

In The Nation-or State?

After a long and arduous struggle, the Voting Rights Act of 1970 was passed by the United States Congress thereby permitting 18-year-olds throughout the nation to participate in federal elections. This legislation received a favorable ruling from the Supreme Court.

Although this bill was acclaimed as a great step forward in our liberal society, as it should have been, it still fell short of the expectations and desires of many of its supporters. While providing suffrage for 18-year-olds in all federal elections, the legislation was mute on the point of lowering the voting age in State elections. This appears inherently unfair.

It is manifestly obvious that if a person can vote for a Congressman or Senator, then he should also have the privilege, no right, of choosing his sheriff or alderman. By this ruling, many 18-year-olds are full-fledged members of a national society while at the same time, they rate as underlings in their own states.

Not only is this setup grossly unfair, it is also, in the words of Senator Birch Bayh, "confusing, costly, chaotic" By it, a dual-system of voting has resulted in 47 states. As of now, nine states have voting ages under 21 while only three of these have reduced the voting age to 18. In a federal system where the states are usually the incubators for progressive legislation, the United States Congress has beaten them at their own game.

With an election year approaching, action must be taken on this federal contradiction soon. If the responsibility for legislation is left to the states, it is unlikely, and in many cases impossible, that laws allowing 18-year-olds the right to vote will have been passed by November of 1972.

In Massachusetts, constitutional amendments, which the legislation must be, requires a majority of the legislators elected, and voting in joint session, in two different legislatures for approval before these amendments can be sent to the voters for ratification. An 18-year-old proposal was approved last year and if it were to be approved again, it would be submitted to the voters on the 1972 ballot.

Without such legislation, almost 100,000 citizens of Massachusetts will be unable to vote in state and local elections in 1972 although they will be permitted to vote for national candidates. This situation, however, is not beyond alteration.

Presently, a proposed amendment to the Constitution which would lower the voting age to 18 for all elections is the pending business before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments, chaired by Senator Bayh. The amendment is sponsored by 86 members of the Senate, Senate Joint Resolution 7, which it is entitled, is expected to receive favorable action if it ever reaches the floor.

The difficulty arises over the fact that in the past, legislation of this type has not been reported out of committee. Since this proposal is the only means by which the voting age can be lowered for all state elections in 1972 it is crucially important that this action reach the floor of the Senate.

The Senate Committee on the Judiciary is the body which has jurisdiction in this matter. Chaired by Senator Eastland (Miss.), the committee includes Senators McClellan (Ark.), Ervin (N.C.), Hart (Mich.), Kennedy (Mass.), Bayh (Ind.), Burdick (N.D.), Tydings (Md.), Byrd (W. Va.), Hruska (Nebr.), Fong (Hawaii), Scott (Penn.), Thurmond (S.C.), Cook (Ky.), Mathias (Md.), and Griffin (Mich.). These men hold the key to the passage of Senate Joint Resolution 7. A letter to any of these Senators would probably aid in the passage of this vitally necessary legislation.

With all the inequities and contradictions that already exist in this country, we might as well try to get rid of as many of them as we can.

Art Buchwald

Win This One For Nixon

WASHINGTON--President Nixon has given all of us assurances that the American GIs will not do any fighting in Laos, Cambodia, or even North Vietnam--on the ground, that is. Therefore, the burden of all the fighting will be on the South Vietnamese, which seems to be a fine idea with President Thieu and Marshal Ky. But nobody seems to have asked the average South Vietnamese soldier how he feels about all this.

Three South Vietnamese soldiers were dug in along the Ho Chi Minh Trail the other day discussing the situation.

"Hey look, did you hear that after this incursion they want us to invade North Vietnam?"

"The generals must be out of their rice-picking minds," Cpl. Lok said. "What in the monsoon do they want us to invade North Vietnam for?"

"So the American GIs can pull out of our country faster," Pfc. No Dem replied. "You see, every time we go into another country, it makes it easier for Nixon to pull out Americans."

"That's fine for the Americans," Pfc. Nhu Nhu said. "But what happens to us?"

"According to the American generals in Saigon we're as good fighters as any army in the world, providing we have aerial support and the enemy has none," Pfc. No Dem said.

"That's a crock of yak butter," Cpl. Lok said. "They're just saying that so they can pull out without losing face."

"That's no way to talk about our ally, Lok. If it hadn't been for the U.S., we wouldn't be on the Ho Chi Minh Trail today," Pfc. No Dem said.

"Getting our butts shot off," Cpl. Lok grunted.

"You always think of yourselves," Pfc. No Dem said. "Do you realize there is a lot more at stake than just getting your butt shot off?"

"Like what?" Cpl. Lok demanded.

"Well, if President Nixon doesn't get enough American troops out of Vietnam he could lose the election in 1972."

"I hadn't thought of that," Pfc. Nhu Nhu said.

"You mean we're dug in here getting our butts shot off just so we won't make a liar out of Nixon?" Cpl. Lok said.

"Not just Nixon, but Henry Kissinger and Mel Laird and Ambassador Bunker and Gen. Abrams and Joseph Alsop. There are a lot of careers that could go down the drain if we don't interdict the enemy's supply lines before the rainy season starts," Pfc. No Dem warned.

"We're carrying a big burden on our shoulders," Pfc. Nhu Nhu agreed.

"And let's not forget," said Pfc. No Dem, "our own President Thieu's election could depend on the outcome of this incursion."

"Who's he running against?" Cpl. Lok asked.

"Nobody," Pfc. No Dem said. "But we still want him to look good, don't we?"

Neither Nhu Nhu nor Lok replied.

Cpl. Lok finally said, "Okay, let's, for argument's sake, say we cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail, secure Cambodia and invade North Vietnam and all the American troops pull out. Where does that leave us?"

Pfc. No Dem replied, "We'll be part of the free world, dummy."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Free The People

A lot has happened on campus lately concerning Women's Lib. Jim LaMacchia's running for Winter Carni Queen sort of started it all, then Linda Jenesse spoke Wednesday night, then there was Jim Mitchell's editorial in last Friday's Collegian and the mail received disagreeing with the editorial, then Mr. LaMacchia's rebuttal, then...well, it really hasn't ended.

I don't wish to end the discussion but only to bring up another point of view; something that Jim LaMacchia touched on as one of his reasons for entering the contest.

From the amount of mail received concerning Jim Mitchell and Jim LaMacchia it's obvious that many people feel women areforced to play certain roles (most of the letters were from women) But to believe that women are the only ones forced into roles is ridiculous.

As a man in this society I'm supposed to be strong and proud; I have to control my emotions.

Don't cry when you see Love Story'

Upon graduation it'll be taken for granted that I'll get married within 3.4 years, produce 2.7 children, and get a nice "nine to five" job.

Here at UMass., simply because I'm "one of the guys", I'm expected to fo to the beer bash Friday night and the basketball game Tuesday night (I supposedly love all sports).

It's obvious that men are also forced to play certain social roles. There is no biological reason why men should hide their emotions (I cried like a baby at Love Story). There is no biological reason why guys should like beer bashes more than girls do, or than men, simply because they're men, should be enthused by all sports. Why couldn't relationships be on an equal basis?

It's absurd to believe that women are any more enslaved by society than are men. Neither Women's Lib nor Men's Lib, individually, are very meaningful. Whatever happened to People's Lib?

Dick Desroches

Letters To The Editor

Modular Credit Confusion

To the Editor:

Don Glickstein's article in the Daily Collegian (February 26) on the completely modular curriculum at the School of Education gave a good summary of an innovation which the School is currently pursuing. It may also, however, have given members of the University community some incorrect impressions.

First, the thrust of the decision by the School Council was to commit the School of Education to a completely modular curriculum if, and only if, two conditions are met. The change would be made if:

(1) appropriate administrative procedures, policies, and controls are developed no later than seven months before the proposed date of implemenation, and

(2) the University administration and faculty give the necessary approval for the plan.

Second, the completely modular curriculum would not abolish courses. Indeed, it is assumed that many instructors would continue to use the course format (one to three class meetings per week for one semester). No professor would be forced to alter his teaching style or course structure. What the CMC would do is to allow alternative structures, too. Instructors who want to offer learning experiences which last less than one semester or are otherwise stypically scheduled, would be able to do so easily. In other words, this concept offers greatly increased flexibility to those who wish to take advantage of it.

In brief then, the School of Education has committed itself to developing a completely modular system and to implementing it, if possible. Such a system would increase the School's flexibility without infringing on those who wish to continue teaching in a more traditional manner. The advantages of the proposal were well stated in Mr. Glickstein's original article.

Philip R. Christenson
Director, Modular Credit Program

A Safe Course

To the editor.

In a time of increased social concern over the recent of venereal diseases, almost to the epidemic stage, we propose the following suggestion as a mature and responsible effort to curb the affliction and rid this campus of unwanted pregnancies that alter or shatter the careers of some of our most talented youth. As a possible course of action, prophylactic vending machines may be installed in the men's room of the Campus Center, Student Union, or both. An experimental effort of a similar nature is currently being carried on in Springfield. At a few selected bars in the city the vending machines have been introduced.

We believe the suggested course of action is definately necessary and a long awaited positive effort against this real problem. It is about time the burden of contraception was taken off the female. The infirmary issues birth control pills to coeds but let's face it girls don't make each other pregnant. There is no reason that the infirmary should not issue prophylactics to men as in some southern universities.

It is about time we throw off the shackles of Massachusetts' Puritanism and make a positive effort to combat a real problem. If any students have some thoughts on this issue, we would appreciate hearing them eigher through the Collegian or through personal contact.

Name Withheld By Request

Power Until Dignity

To the Editor:

In response to the editorial entitled "Emphatic-Minority", we wish to thank the writer for voicing his opinion when all the home games are over. If the exhibition as you so call it is distracting to you, then why don't the few white students who sit behind the coaches bench with the airhorn disturb you? For you to say that my Brothers and Sisters only applaud for Mr. Irving and Mr. Skinner, shows that you are blind to all around you except the obvious, or you refuse to see we applaud white athletes also.

Yes, the applause is louder and we stand up, because these two brothers are being appreciated and appraised for more than the mere fact they play ball and are black. Black people realized a long time ago to recognize a man not for his color, but for his qualities and assets and we of the Black Community have a great deal of pride in this.

As for your national anthem, you can take and keep it, until this country can prove and justify to every black man, woman and child that we are first class citizens and not second class.

IT IS TRULY PATHETIC THAT OUR INTEGRATED STUDENTS MUST BE SO OBNOXIOUSLY DIVIDED BY THIS EMPHATIC MINORITY.

True, the student body is integrated physically but not psychologically, but if my people have to take YOUR problem everywhere that you enjoy yourself, then that's where you'll find it until you start to change the system from within. Incidently, when you call some of us the enphatic minority you indicate all Black students. Power until dignity, understanding and respect, are ours, then peace.

Eugene Niles
Wayne Williams

Let-tuce Stone-ham

To the editor:

Mr. Joel Stoneham's comments (Collegian, March 2, p. 5) on the lettuce boycott display either his gross ignorance of the lettuce strike or a deliberate attempt to misrepresent the facts. He informs us that the lettuce strike is unlike the grape strike in that it is merely a jurisdictional dispute between unions. While I'm sure that the California Growers Association would enthusiastically agree, that statement would come as news to James Fitzpatrick (International Teamsters Present), Cesar Chavez (Director, United Farm Workers Organizing Committee) and George Meany. These gentlemen reached an agreement several months ago that the Teamsters would respect the organizing territory of the UFWOC, and vice versa. Following that agreement the International Brotherhood of Teamsters asked for recisions agreements from the companies which had signed with California locals.

It is worth noting that these contracts were signed secretly, without the knowledge or consent of the lettuce pickers themselves or of the International Teamsters. Several local Teamster officials were involved, but they were called in by the growers in order to blur the issue. When the International Teamsters Union asked for the recisions agreements, some growers complied, but most did not. They also denied the UFW's request for elections among the field workers themselves to determine which union, if any would represent them.

The UFWOC then turned to a strike against the recalcitrant growers. The call for the strike was heeded by virtually all the farmworkers in the Salinas Valley, and very few lettuce workers crossed the non-obstructive picket lines. Even the imported scab laborers began refusing to cross UFWOC picket lines, and the growers' brownshirt style of terrorism wasn't driving the pickets away. So the growers turned to their local friendly Nixon-Reagan appointee justices (?), and an old friend of the strikebreaking employer: the court injunction. The UFWOC has neigher the time nor the money to fight this injunction through the courts, so they are once again turning to the American public, asking us to support a nation wide boycott of non-union (non-real union, UFW, as opposed to Company union) lettuce.

All of which brings us back to the UM campus, to Joes Stoneham and to whether we as students wish to see University Food Services continue using our money to exploit migrant farmworkers by buying scab lettuce. Mr. Stoneham seems to believe that students do want to continue buying scab lettuce, or at most, may oppose his purchasing it but will passively accept it. We, of the Lettuce Boycott Committee think that students are concerned about this issue, and will actively express their support. Complain to your Dining Commons manager about scab lettuce, complain to Joel Stoneham himself (North Commons), sign the petition demanding that the Food Services buy only union lettuce. Talk to membersof the Lettuce Boycott Committee when they come to your Dining Commons. We need your support.

Jack Clark

Getting Straight

To the Editor:

Even though I am not an advocate of Jim Mitchell's philosophy, I feel people such as Adrienne Gross should get their own argument straight. Her argument is based largely on emotion rather than logic. It is obvious that she demands equal pay for women. Does she also demand that women be eligible for the military draft as men are? If not, she is twisting the quality policy to suit her own desires. Her statistics on women's salaries, though true, are deceiving. Many women work for a smaller salary than men because they regard their jobs as hobbies rather than as family supporting occupations. To the male workers she is a scab or union violator damaging the labor pool with her cheap labor. It is a fact of life that women must be absent from work for long periods when they become pregnant, and often quit work to get married. The idea of the male superiority theory came about at the dawn of time when man's superior muscular strength made him the unquestioned master. It is only through the division of labor that the female has been able to challenge the "male role." Perhaps this is a good example of Homo Sapien upsetting nature's law of "survival of the fittest." I am glad all women do not feel as does Miss Gross, but I suppose every species must have its Gross gynandromorph.

Mark Dlugosz

Editorial Points

Yogurt at the Coffee Shop costs $.45. At the local supermarkets it only costs about $.30. Guess it costs more to sour things on Campus than off.

* * * *

The tank traps on the north side of the Campus Center, which seem to be randomly placed for designs' sake, are really supposed to mark the way for cars driving right up to the Hotel lobby. The only catch is that the slate slabs on the plaza aren't strong enough to support the weight of a car, according to one rumor.

* * * *

Now that the Campus Center garage rates have been lowered people are beginning to complain that its difficult to find a parking space. One patron suggested that if the rates went back up there would be more room. (How's that for an idea?)

* * * *

While we are on the subject of prices, how come a can of soda costs $.20 in the Union, while in an identical machine in Whitmore, the cost is $.15? Maybe the administrators can't afford the extra nickel..

* * * *

To Tony Granite: Josephine Schluck traded in her nylons for a pair of bobby socks and a month's supply of clear nail polish, 3/3/71

Stretching the Point

To the Editor:

Let's have a big hand for Carl Beatty who seems to be a pretty good kid after all. Still picky, perhaps, but he answered our letter well. Nevertheless, Carl, we can't understand why you say we failed to stick to the point. We merely endeavored to shift the blame for each of the fourteen criticisms away from the dining common to the rightful source, if there was one.

As for the terms we used against you; these terms were not inteded to be taken personally. The adjectives were intended only to imply our image of the type of person each individual criticism seemed to typify. For example, the term hypochondriac was used because we have known hypochondriacs who would wipe tables before sitting at them, wipe doorhandles before touching them, etc. There are other characteristics of hypochondria that you probably don't have. We were exagerating for emphasis. By the way, we don't remember calling you glory-seeking. You sound like someone with a persecution complex (Sorry, I just had to throw that in).

Your accusal of being off the point is better aimed at Mark Kalish.

Mark, thank you for the title of "galloping gourmet". That happens to be one of my favorite programs. The exact purpose of your letter is heavily clouded by your levity. The past six paragraphs are as effective and as pointless as a comedy monologue. Ninety percent of your letter has nothing to do with what Carl and we were writing about. Our comment had little to do with the taste of the food. Now and then, the potatoes taste lousy so I just don't eat them. On the whole, however, it is good. My meatball grinder today was darn good. The chicken was really good last night. I've tasted lots worse food in restaurants.

Roast beef that "lights up like a neon sign" is natural It is a reaction to cooling after being cooked. It does not mean the food is going bad.

Your bathroom smells after breakfast? Ours doesn't. Maybe there is something wrong with your bathroom. What you say about the dogs is irrelevant. Don never said he liked the taste of the silverware. He said it tastes the same. And, to us, as should be obvious by now, the food does not all taste the same. What you said about the lines has nothing to do with what we were writing about. Our letters concerned the service, not the food.

Regarding hair in the food. What you said, again, is irrelavant, but I wish to take this opportunity to expand upon something I said in my last letter, even though the subject has pretty much blown over by now. Although I rarely come in contact with hair in my food, I have recently been talking to some people who have had more experience with it. I have notices, however, that hair is less likely to fall in the food while in preparation, since most of the workers' wear hair-nets, than is while the tray is resting at the silverware table. While it sits there, people are leaning over it getting silverware, ketchup, mustard, etc. without hairnets. I think most of the food hair is added there.

What you implied about the food in Worcester being better than that in Southwest may be true. Don says he knows one person who lives in Southwest and has come to eat in Worcester now and then. It was, indeed, her opinion that the food in Worcester was better. I, don't care to find out personally for the sake of argument.

Wayne Shepard
Don Wolfe

Presidents Tell Nixon Campuses Still Angry

WASHINGTON—AP— Student body presidents from 15 universities said they told the White House and Congress members in a week of talks that the calm on campuses is due more to suppressed anger about the Indochina war than to apathy.

"We cleared up misconceptions in the minds of Finch and Kissinger that the students no longer care," said Ric Schumacher of the University of New Hampshire.

Adam Levin of Stanford University said thousands of students volunteered their time last spring to work for antiwar causes and candidates and to try to persuade the Nixon administration to accept their views.

"It is not apathy but suppressed rage, rage that could be tripped off any time," Levin said.

Rogelio Fernandez-Rojo of Vassar College, one of three veterans in the group, said there are signs this year that the Nixon administration is more receptive to their ideas than last year. At least, he said, Finch and Kissinger and others asked them to come back.

Other schools represented by spokesmen at the news conference were Harvard, Pennsylvania State, Tulane, Georgetown, Temple, University of California at Berkeley, Duke, University of Chicago, Depaul, University of Minnesota and Rutgers.

ONE YEAR AGO-Last Spring students and slogan outside Herter Hall protested the Cambodian invasion. The present Laos conflict has not engendered such a response on the campus. (MDC photo by Jim Gold)

NJ Legalizes Lottery, $1-Million First Prize

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The state of New Jersey is reaping unexpected millions from its first venture in legalized gambling, a weekly lottery geared to small wagers and frequent winners.

The success of the lottery has been so great that officials were required by law to schedule additional prize drawings to give away surplus money.

The first special drawing will be held on March 17, St. Patrick's Day, and the lucky winner of the first prize will become an instant millionaire.

If proceeds keep rolling in at the present rate, the million-dollar drawings may be held as often as every five weeks in addition to the current weekly drawings in which first prize is $50,000.

When the first tickets were sold in January, Gov. William T. Cahill and state treasury officials estimated the net proceeds from the first six months would be $5 million.

But last month in his annual budget message, Cahill buoyantly predicted that profits from the lottery would be $15 million for the first half of 1971. He said that was a conservative estimate.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1, Cahill is hoping for $30 million after prize winnings and administrative costs are deducted.

The governor, an Irishman, beamed when he announced that the first million dollar prize would be awarded on, "of all days," St. Patrick's Day.

Cahill, who proposed an austere $1.8 billion budget for next fiscal year, said the windfall from the lottery would pay for a projected increase in enrollment at state colleges of 17,000 students without the need for new taxes.

Lottery tickets, which bear a four-leaf clover emblem have been selling lately at the rate of nearly six million each week. In the first weeks, the sale was about one million less.

The tickets are priced at 50 cents apiece and are available at more than 2,600 outlets ranging from newsstands to supermarkets.

The success contrasts sharply with other states. In New York, with more than double the population of New Jersey, the lottery has earned only $110.9 million for education in 44 months and in New Hampshire the take has been a disappointing $10.7 million in seven years.

Backers of the New Jersey lottery attribute its popularity to the low cost of tickets, their easy availability and the frequency of the prize drawings.

Under a complex system of determining winners based on a six-digit number, as many as six first prizes of $50,000 each are awarded each week.

English Dept. Offers Amer. Civilization Concentrations

English majors at UMass may now concentrate in American civilization. The concentration will offer an interdisciplinary approach. It will relate American literature and culture through an historical perspective.

The study of American culture necessarily crosses traditional departmental course offerings, since culture has historical, literary, and sociological aspects, among others. For example, the Depression of the 1930's may be approached as an historical disaster. It has also inspired literary and artistic achievements such as John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath and the paintings of Ben Shahn. This concentration is designed for those students who would like to engage in the historical study of American culture through more than one discipline. The foundation of this concentration is the historical approach to American literature.

Presently, the English Department requires a minimum of ten courses or thirty hours for its majors. Usually, the American Civilization student may fulfill this requirement by taking two of these ten courses from an approved group in related fields such as Black Studies, History, Sociology, Art, Economics, and Religion. In addition, he will be advised to take two more courses in these related areas, for a total of twelve, three-hour courses.

The student will receive individual advising from members of the English department who are interested in American Civilization including Professors Richard Powers, Frederick Turner, William Plumstead, and Mason Lowance.

The American Civilization student would take up to four cognate courses outside the English Department from other University departments offering work in American culture, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Hampshire, or Amherst College courses that are not offered at the University; or he may take additional work in American literature in the English Department to complete his twelve course program.

A student in the American Civilization Concentration could thus fulfill the four basic English Department requirements (A Period Course, a Shakespeare Course, a Major Writer course, and a Literary Genre course); he would take additional work in English or American literature, and, with the assistance of the American Civilization advisers, he would cognate up to four courses outside the Department of English. This design is flexible, however, and may be altered to suit the needs of individual students.

A full list of available cognates in the Five-College area is available from the American Civilization advisers. The combinations of these courses are legion, and only one example of a typical American Civilization concentration is outlined below. It is representative, however, of the kind of interdisciplinary training that would be available under the new English Department option.

Interdisciplinary study has been increasingly attractive to undergraduates recently, and students interested in the American Civilization concentration are asked to see the advisers about establishing credit for work they have already done that might apply toward fulfillment of the requirements.

Normally, a student would enroll in American Civilization at the end of his sophomore year or beginning of his junior year. The advisers will assist students in planning a course of study in American civilization that will satisfy individual interests.

The American Civilization advisors will be available during their regularly scheduled office hours, and in addition, Mr. Powers and Mr. Lowance will be in their offices in Bartlett Hall (378) every Monday from 9 until 1.

Free University Menaced; Day Care Center Planned

The Women's Liberation Movement met at the Free University last night to discuss raising support for a Day Care Center and available space for the Free University.

The group, consisting of about fifteen women, discussed plans for a demonstration on March 8th in support of a Day Care center. Plans for the demonstration include "encouraging all of the wives to go to classes". The rally will take place at Whitmore at two o'clock.

Concerning available space for the Free University, a spokesman for the Woman's Liberation Center stated that the SUG Board is trying to take the present Free University space away for a "poolroom".

She further stated, "It is time for people to stand up strongly to the SUG Board's removal of space which is being constructively used. The Women's Center and children's play area, Clearing House, Gay Liberation and the Food Co-op provide information and services for a large segment of the student population. It is apparent to some of us that the SUG Board is not concerned that the space is not being used enough, but with how it is being used."

A meeting to determine a "plan of action" will be held 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Free University.

Lee Thibodeau

WATER BEDS
dealers wanted
write or call
noah's waterbed co.
A Higher Lie
56 Arbor Street
Hartford, Conn. 06106
1 (203) 523-8360

TOMMY
A NEW MULTI-MEDIA ROCK PRODUCTION

PRESENTED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF DRAMATIC ARTS SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS THE UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT
MARCH 5 & 6 ONLY
PERFORMANCES AT 9:15 P.M. EACH EVENING
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 429-3311, EXT. 1807
ALBERT N. JORGENSEN AUDITORIUM
TICKETS: $3.00, $2.00 & $1.00

MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5
Showcase Cinemas, #213
RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.
ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING
3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY G
Daily: 1:30-4:00-8:30
Mat. 10: CROMWELL
2 Academy Award Nominations!
"A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." -Sam Hoffman Spfld. Daily News
LOVE STORY GP
TODAY 2:00, 3:45 5:30, 7:30 9:40
Ali MacGraw Ryan O'Neal
WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS
GROUP RATES AVAILABLE
Mat. 10: Big Little Man
1 DOCTORS' WIVES R
DYAN CANNON RICHARD CRENNA
Mon. - Fri. 2:00 - 7:30 - 9:20
Sat. & Sun. 1:30 - 3:35 - 7:30 - 9:20
413-736-3731

The Sterile Cuckoo
March 4, 5 & 7
Hampden Dining Commons
Showings 7:15 & 9:30
Admission 50¢
(pay 25¢ more and stay for "Curse of the Werewolf 11:30)
Southwest Cinema Sponsored by Southwest Patriots

Campus Carousel

Peace, Death, And Ecology

By TONY GRANITE
MDC Staff

WOMEN'S LIB, WHERE ARE YOU?...at Northeastern University, according to their NEWS paper, the gals in the Nursing program are raising money for their annual Intercollegiate Nursing Conference by offering massages for money.

They call it "Fondling for Funds."

The Health Center was never like this!

****

MEANWHILE, speaking of put-upons, the Vermont Technical College PIONEER reports that the current use of the peace symbol is one of the biggest in recent years.

Their source is an article in the student newspaper of McLennan Community College of Waco, Texas.

The "chicken foot-in-a-circle," suggested as a peace symbol in 1958 by the late Bertrand Russell, the philosopher- pacifist, really symbolizes war, evil and death, the NEWS noted.

Use of the symbol dates to 60 A.D., when the Roman Emperor Nero designed a broken cross inverted in a circle (with broken arms) to indicate disrespect for the early Christians. The cross, incidentally, was the capital punishment device of the day.

Further evidence was cited as de Concressault's book on "Symbol of the Anti-God." He says that the same symbol was painted on the doors of churches closed by the Bolsheviks in Russia and branded on the bodies of Gypsies and Jews during the Spanish Civil War, 1936-39.

The branding was also done during the days of the Spanish Inquisition, he says.

Adolf Hitler revived the symbol by ordering its use on all death notices during his Third Reich. It was also part of the official gravestone inscriptions of Nazi SS officers.

So, THE PIONEER says, if you believe what you have read, "Bertrand Russell must still bé chuckling."

****

REPUB CHARGES INEPTNESS on the part of college administrators who "often fail to halt campus disorders because they are more accustomed to dealing with state legislators than university students."

Morton Blackwell said it to the Young Republications at Louisiana State U. And it was reported on page one of LSU's DAILY REVEILLE. He is a national youth consultant for the Republican Party.

Time for a change?

****

NEXUS PRACTICES ITS PREACHING...out California way, the newspaper of UCal-Santa Barbara started printing on recycled newsprint, in honor of The Great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln.

Their Feb. 12 issue consisted of 100 per cent recycled paper, as an experiment. By now, every edition will use the stock, raising their claim that they are the first university newspaper to begin exclusive use of recycled newsprint.

The editors point out that there's no saving in cost, and regular newsprint has a slightly harder finish and provides sharper pictures.

"But this is a small price to pay for ecology," Editor Larry Boggs says.

****

AND OUT IN ILLINOIS, the gap between town and gown may be closing. Proposed legislation would give each college community a $25 stipend for each student it has enrolled at a state institution.

Total cost would be about $325,500, which would help local communities to bear costs of additional expenses, like traffic control, resulting from increased transient populations.

end.

Internship Applications Due March 22

Students applying for the forty paid internships in Economic Development available for the summer of 1971 must file applications before Monday, March 22, 1971, it was announced today by the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE).

Twenty-five graduate students and 15 undergraduates from the New England region will be appointed by NEBHE to 12 week internships with regional, state, and local economic development organizations.

Graduate students will receive a net educational allowance of eighty eight dollars ($88) per week; undergraduates will receive a net educational allowance of seventy-eight dollars ($78) per week. Up to two hundred dollars ($200) will be allowed for travel and miscellaneous expenses.

Application forms and further information can be obtained from the offices of Dean of Students, Department Chairmen in the Social Sciences, Business, Mathematics, or by writing to the attention of Normal Stein, Project Director, New England Board of Higher Education, 20 Walnut Street, Wellesley, Mass. 02181.

CEQ States Plans For Tour, Speaker

At a recent meeting of the Coalition for Environmental Quality (CEQ), the Steering Committee discussed plans for the future and management matters.

The Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Corporation has agreed to allow CEQ to tour its Vernon, Vt. Nuclear Power Plant. The corporation plans to display the plant's safety to the group. Although final plans have not been made, the tour will be open to the public.

On March 17 CEQ will sponsor Marion Edey, founder of the League of Conservation Voters, speaking on "How to turn the Environment from a Campaign Slogan to a Political Issue."

Plans for a loan library were discussed. The library would be run with the Technical Center for Environment Control. To educate students about the Vernon, Vt. power plant, a table will be set up in the Union.

Tonight Dr. Lincoln Brower of Amherst College will be CEQ's feature speaker in Hasbrouck 20 at 8 P.M. His topic will be "The Ecologist's Case for a Living Connecticut River Basin."

Geology Dept. To Sponsor Audio-Visual Concert

The Geology Department announces the showing of an audio-visual concert entitled "Suzanne's Lament". Combining photography and music to describe the scenery, geology and environmental setting of the southeastern coast of Alaska, this unusual program includes some of a geological field party's reactions to a remote and beautiful place, to the people who live there, and to the imminent destruction and alteration of the natural surroundings.

"Suzanne's Lament" is open to the public without charge, and will be shown tonight and tomorrow evening, in Room 106, Thompson Hall and on Monday evening, March 8 at 8 in Science I of the Chemistry-Physics Building at Amherst College.

Mercury Paints Banned On Boats

BOSTON (AP)-The Massachusetts Pesticide Board Wednesday ordered a ban on the use of marine anti-fouling paints that contain mercury substances.

A spokesman said the ban applies to paints on any vessel to be used in fresh or salt water, and includes barring mercury paints on docks or wharves.

The spokesman said the regulation requires boat owners who presently have mercury antifouling paint on their vessels to collect the scrapings and dispose of them away from the water.

A spokesman for Harry Miller Co. Inc., distributor of International Paints, said the regulation gives no indication of what distributors are to do with present stocks of mercury paints.

Ed Owens said anti-fouling paint with mercury compounds costs more than $40 per gallon, but is the best substance to keep marine organisms from fouling the hull of a vessel, especially in southern waters.

Owens said his firm has about $5,000 worth of mercury-compound paint in stock now. He said under a New York law banning mercury paints, dealers were allowed to exhaust their stocks.

James Abbot, president of Gloucester Paints Inc., Gloucester, said his firm has not used mercury compounds in anti-fouling paint for a quarter-century.

"It may be five times as effective as copper," he said, "but it costs 10 times as much. Very little mercury is used today; it isn't economical.

Abbot said tin compounds are occasionally used in anti-fouling paints but they are also costly.

Anti-fouling paints are prepared so they do not harden completely, but "leach" or give off small amounts of the metal compounds to keep marine organisms from growing on the hull's surface.

Room To Move LSD Analysis Announced

This is to give the results of an analysis which came in today of some LSD that is in the area. This may or may not be the same acid as that which was reported in yesterday's Collegian.

This acid is a tiny saccarin-shaped barrel, gray-tan in color. It contains no contaminants, but has a dosage of 300 plus mics. The average dose around here is 50-100 mics.

If you run into any of this acid be prepared for the possibility of spending a couple of intense days. Good or bad, it's just not the usual trip.

FOR A GRAND SELECTION OF Beautiful Diamonds
AT MODERATE PRICES
SEE
Winn Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant St. Amherst

SUMMER in EUROPE from $195
sponsored by
STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns	Wks.	Price
Boston/London/Boston	6/22	8/29	10	$269
Boston/London/Boston	6/11	9/5	12	$290
N.Y./London/N.Y.	6/29	7/30	4	$219
Boston/Frankfurt/Boston	6/11	8/10	8	$200
Boston/London/Boston	6/3	7/3	4	$195

Also available Eurail, Britrail, and Student Rail passes, International Student I.D. Cards, Inter-European Student Charter Flight Bookings, Car Leases and Rentals, plus many more helpful services.
For Information call:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7663

THE AMHERST COLLEGE MASQUERS

SHAKESPEARE'S RICHARD II
KIRBY THEATER, AMHERST COLLEGE
MARCH 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, 14, 15. 8:30 P.M.
All seats reserved $2.00. For reservations phone (Amherst) 542-2278 or visit box office 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

MAKE YOUR MOTHER HAPPY
HAVE YOUR INDEX PORTRAIT TAKEN TODAY
NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY
COUNCIL CHAMBERS — STUDENT UNION
BRING $3.50
TOMORROW IS THE LAST DAY

Lawyer Claims

Parochial Schools Foster Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP)-A Philadelphia lawyer asked the Supreme Court Wednesday to strike down state aid to parochial schools on the grounds they siphon off white children leaving the public schools mostly black.

Henry W. Sawyer III said parochial schools are basically a white school system. The $17.5 million in state aid going to the parochial schools in the state is tax money being used to foster discrimination, he said.

The net result, the attorney said at a hearing is that the public schools are becoming predominantly urban, custodial and black.

Sawyer argued the court's rulings barring racial discrimination in public schools require invalidation of the Pennsylvania aid system. He spoke for three taxpayers, including a Negro parent, and six organizations that contend the 1968 state law involved violates the Constitution in several respects.

The program was defended by William B. Ball of Harrisburg, a lawyer for a group of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish schools. He said parochial schools do not discriminate racially and, by way of example, said there are Catholic schools in Philadelphia that have great numbers of black protestants as students.

In Pennsylvania, one of every four children attends a parochial school, 97 per cent of which are Catholic. The state aid, supported by a 14-cent tax on each pack of cigarettes, helps support the teaching of mathematics, modern languages, physical sciences and physical education.

Ball argued these subjects are secular. "There is no Catholic calculus, Lutheran logarithms or Jewish gymnastics," he said.

The court also heard Edward Bennett Williams, a Washington lawyer, defend the construction grants that are made to church-related colleges and universities under a 1963 federal law. He said the "primary effect" is not the advancement of religion since the funds are used for buildings in which religion is not taught.

The lawyer said the maximum a church college could receive for the cost of a building was 33 per cent. "It is not as though the government is giving a whole building to a school," he said.

Williams said that if Congress had "gerrymandered" church schools out of the law, it would have manifested a hostility to religion that is unconstitutional.

Some $1.5 billion in federal funds have been granted for college construction under the law. About 15 per cent of this total has gone to religiously affiliated universities.

Unions Demand More Trade Protection

WASHINGTON (AP)-A union official directing a campaign to protect America's heavy electrical equipment industry from foreign competition told congressmen Wednesday to either support the drive or face the consequences.

"If you are with us, we'll support you," said William Bywater of New York, vice president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, AFL—CIO, "but if you are against us, we'll either sit on our hands or go out to beat you."

"We're taking the offensive on this. We mean business. We want to protect the jobs of American workers and we're going to do anything we can," added Bywater, chairman of IUE's FITE-Fair International Trade and Employment Committee.

At a meeting arranged by Reps. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., and John H. Dent, D-Pa., Bywater said his union is "in the midst of a nationwide drive to bring about stricter enforcement of antidumping laws and laws outlawing export subsidies by foreign governments to their domestic manufacturers."

Forty IUE representatives from nine states, attended the session, which was part of a two-day round of meetings with member so of Congress and Nixon administration officials.

IUE President Paul Jennings of New York said that "as trade unionists, we feel we have a responsibility to the people in the shops and also to the rest of the country."

By coming to Washington, he added, the union members want to "see that something dramatic is done. We want a moratorium on the part of government."

"We don't want to lose another industry, and if the people around the world can protect their home base, we should be able to protect ours," he said.

Boston Students Rally For Demands

BOSTON (AP)-Some 400 Boston high school students rallied inside the main entrance to city hall Wednesday to press demands presented to the school committee and to seek student support for a citywide student strike.

Following the rally, which lasted about half an hour, most of the students marched three blocks to the offices of the school committee and demanded to meet with school representatives.

The doors of the building were locked. Students milled around outside for an hour until officials allowed about 16 students to enter. They met with Robert V. McCabe, an assistant deputy superintendent, the school department said later.

By the time the student representatives--supposedly one from each of the city high schools--had been chosen the crowd had thinned to less than 75 persons. Rising winds and the beginnings of a snowstorm hastened the dispersal of the crowd.

There were scattered incidents during the day at various high schools, including several walkouts and false alarms.

The rally was called the night after the school committee met with 700 students at Faneuil Hall to discuss student demands and simmering racial tensions in the city's schools. The meeting abruptly ended late in the evening when some students began chanting "strike".

Speakers at the rally included Leon Rock, representing the Black Students Federation, spokesman for the High School Student Mobilization Committee, and random spokesmen for the various high schools.

The Black Student Federation initiated a boycott of classes several weeks ago to back its demands for more black counselors and faculty, more sources for black students, an end to alleged "harrassment" of blacks by white students. Some white students supporting the blacks and making their own demands have supported the strike. Both groups called for a complete boycott at the rally Wednesday.

The school department said 26.5 per cent of the city's 25,000 high school students were absent Wednesday, about the same as in previous days. Normal absenteeism at this time of year is about 13 per cent, the department said.

Absenteeism ranged as high as 40 per cent at South Boston High School. At Hyde Park the figure was 32 per cent, and at Dorchester High, 37 per cent.

The rally was planned for the plaza outside the city hall, but the city's building commissioner allowed the chilled youngsters to enter the large foyer of the hall on condition that there be no placard waving or leafletting, and that only high school students be allowed to speak.

However, the speakers included Mark L. Friedman, a Tufts University student who is a member of the college Student Mobilization Committee and a professed candidate for school committee under the Socialist Workers Party banner.

One student spokesman, James W. Allen, 20, of South Boston High, called for another demonstration Saturday afternoon at City Hall Plaza. He said some white students were "miffed" because they were denied a chance to speak at the School Committee meeting Tuesday.

A three day record sale with unusually low prices (Thurs., Fri., & Sat.)

All Labels On Sale!

~~$4.98~~ list — $2.99

~~$5.98~~ list — $3.49

~~$6.98~~ list — $4.49

A VERY LIMITED SPECIAL

Different Strokes — Sale Price 79¢

MCA Sound Conspiracy — Sale Price 79¢

Plus these SUPER SPECIALS . . .

Chicago III	$9.98 list	$6.29	ALL Grand Funk	$2.79 each
Jesus Christ Super Star	$11.98 list	$7.49	Archie's Greatest Hits	$1.99 each
Woodstock	$14.98 list	$7.49
George Harrison	$11.98 list	$7.49

Correspondingly

Low prices on all stereo systems too!

AMHERST AUDIO

197 No. Pleasant St.

Malcolm X

Militant Forum To Present

Memorial To Malcolm X

The Militant Forum will present a memorial to Malcolm X, tonight at 8 in Room 174 of the Campus Center. Several tapes of his speeches will be played, and comments on Malcolm's life and ideas given by Keith Dunn, a black high school activist from Boston; Playthal Benjamin of the UMass Black Studies Department; and Linda Myers, from Clark University's Black Student Union; and John Childs, former co-director of the CCEBS program.

It was just six years ago that Malcolm X was assassinated while giving a speech in New York City. He was 39 years old, and the hard years of his youth ended in his tragic and violent premature death.

Malcolm Little's mother was born as the result of her mother's rape by a white man in the West Indies. When he was four, the house where he and his family lived was burned down by Ku Kluxers. When he was six, his father died suddenly, and he and his family always believed he had been lynched. When the family broke up, Malcolm lived in state institutions and boarding homes till he dropped out of school at 15.

In 1946, when he was 21, he was arrested for burglary and sentenced to ten years in prison. During the six years spent in jail he went through an almost-total reevaluation of his life and outlook, became a follower of Islam, and taught himself to read well.

After working several years with the Black Muslims, Malcolm split with Elijah Muhammad over differences as to how the Muslims should respond to the growth of militancy and mass action within black communities. As a Muslim leader he had rejected the corruption of American society; he now passed from this rejection to rebelling against the corruption and organizing to change it.

He favored blacks organizing politically and running and electing their own candidates. Unfortunately a lot of people are confused about alot of his ideas, in large part due to distortions by the mass media in this country. As a result there is little understanding of his ideas, especially concerning black alliances with white people and organizations.

As he said during a press conference shortly before his death, "Whites can help us but they can't join us. There can be no black-white unity until there is first some black unity. There can be no workers solidarity until there is first some racial solicarity. We cannot think of uniting with other until we have first united among ourselves."

The forum on Thursday night hopes to help people understand better this man, destroyed in the process of learning and finding ways to help people free themselves.

In a tribute to him, George Breitman, a journalist, wrote, Men like Malsolm do not appear often, or in great numbers. The enemies of human progress benefit from his death, the fighters for human progress are weakened and hurt by it.

"But a stunning blow to the struggle does not destroy the struggle. Malcolm will not easily be replaced. But he will be replaced. The system breeds not only racism, but rebels against racism, especially among the youth. Malcolm cannot be replaced overnight, but meanwhile we all can and should strive harder, work harder, fight harder, unite more closely to try to fill the gap left by the death of this man we loved, and give help and encouragment to those detined to replace him."

Prof. Gibson Cites Reasons For More Rhetoric Sections

By BARBARA BELSETH
MDC Staff

More than 100 sections of Rhetoric 100, will be needed next semester to accomodate a large Freshman class, according to Prof. Walker Gibson, director of the Freshman Rhetoric Program.

Freshmen are required to take either Rhetoric 100, or Rhetoric 110, Language and Speaking, and one other Rhetoric course to fulfill University requirements. This semester there are 73 sections of Rhetoric 140, Voices of Imaginative Writing. Seven other courses in the program offer freshmen such choices as Criticism and the Theatrical Arts, the Rhetoric of Film and Black Rhetoric.

According to Prof. Gibson, the program began this Fall Semester to "repackage" the two-credit Freshman English courses and Speech course requirements. Rhetoric courses are taught by teaching assistants and professors from the Speech and English departments.

Prof. Gibson said that the Rhetoric Program is an improvement because students will be more serious about three-credit courses. Freshmen also have options of up-to-date studies of media.

"The Freshman Rhetoric Program is devoted to getting students sensitized to the language of their own lives," he said.

Rockefeller Grant Committee Consolidates

The planning committee established to deal with the grant from the John D. Rockefeller 3rd Fund has formally consolidated itself into the Connecticut Valley Committee (CVC). This grant was given to formulate a project to contribute to the solution of a major social and environmental problem of the Connecticut River Valley.

The consolidating action was taken at a meeting on Sunday, February 21, where standing committees were set up and preliminary functions defined. Consisting of Finance, Proposals, Executive, Community and Publicity Committees, the CVC hopes to begin to move out into the Connecticut River Valley and investigate possibilities for projects. Besides its own investigations, the CVC will encourage participation by the community at its meetings. The next meeting will be held on March 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Porter Room, Converse Hall, Amherst College. Anyone will be welcome to attend. Questions, ideas, or proposals would be sent to Chairman Craig Fitzsimmons, Box 291, Hampshire College, Amherst, Massachusetts 01002.

"The CVC is discussing proposals for work in the human and physical environment of the River Valley," Chairman Fitzsimmons said. "We intend to interpret environment in the broad sense of the word and hope that the entire community will participate in the formation of any suggested projects," he concluded.

MDC Classifieds
New Rates
75¢ First Day
50¢ per day afterwards

University Theatre

presents

THE COUNTRY WIFE

by William Wycherley

March 3, 4, 5, 6 — $1.75

8:30 p.m. — Bartlett Aud.

Barbwire Theatre presents

"THE CAGE"

Sunday, March 7, 1971

2 and 7 p.m.

BOWKER AUDITORIUM

Tickets now on sale in Student Union Ticket Office

Sponsored by Campus Center Program Council

SENIORS

Monday March 8

An open meeting for all Seniors to let you know what's going on with class government, activities for the rest of the semester, and commencement.

Monday March 8, 8 p.m., Mahar Aud.

Faculty Members Publish Two Books

Two books on plant growth for general readership have been published by faculty at UMass. They are "Plant Growth" by Arthur C. Gentile, professor of botany and associate dean of the Graduate School; and "The Growing Tree" by B.F. Wilson, professor of forestry.

Professor Gentile's book is a description of the growth process in plants from seed germination to the primary and secondary growth phases which culminate in the mature plant. He emphasizes the many discoveries made by research botanists in the last century that have attempted to improve the quality and quantity of man's food supply and discusses the importance of plant growth regulators that control seed germination, plant size and fruit ripening. "Plant Growth" is published by the Natural History Press.

Professor Gentile is a specialist in plant physiology. He served as a Public Health Service Research Fellow of the National Cancer Institute at Duke University, and as a research biologist with the United States Forest Service. He is the author of over thirty research papers.

"The Growing Tree" is a study for owners, observers, and professional students, who are interested in the phenomena involved in tree growth. Prof. Wilson describes the structural characteristics that differentiate trees from other plant forms, the basic systems of tree growth and their regulation, and the interaction of various parts of the tree in their competition for photosynthetic products.

Prof. Wilson was a forest botanist for the Cabot Foundation at Harvard Forest in Petersham, and has traveled in the forests of Malaya, Burma, India, Scandinavia, and the United States. His book is a culmination of more than ten years of research and classroom work. The book is a publication of the UMass Press.

Adult Education Conference Aids 'Teacher Awareness'

Fifty-seven teachers and counselors in statewide adult education programs attended a two-day session this past week designed to help them meet the special needs of adults seeking basic education.

Last Thursday, and Friday, conference at the new Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst was sponsored by the Massachusetts Department of Education, Bureau of Adult Education, Adult Basic Education Unit. Kevin Grennan, University conference coordinator, made arrangements for the meeting.

For two full days, teachers from the state's 46 adult education programs attended sessions on "teacher awareness," and counselors attended sessions on "counselor orientation." Four consultants from the University of Texas at Austin conducted the program. The University of Texas also provided special materials it has developed to enhance the adult student's confidence in his ability to learn and succeed.

With the materials, the adult education teachers who attended the conference at UMass will go back to their schools and help train other adult education teachers to work better with their adult pupils.

The State Department of Education set up the special conference in recognition of the differences teachers face in dealing with adults instead of with the children in their regular daytime classes. Robert F. Sinicrope, senior supervisor, Adult Basic Education, noted that school superintendents graciously allowed teachers to miss two days of classes to attend the special program.

Other state officials with the program: Harold F. McNulty, director, Bureau of Adult Education and Extended Services; Mary G. Bodanza, project director, Adult Basic/Civic Education; John Pietrowski, senior supervisor, Adult Basic Education; Arthur Murray, supervisor, Adult Basic Education; and Margery Flowers, supervisor, Adult Basic Education.

European Auto Tours Offered At Student Rate

NEW YORK - A new, "freedom-to-travel" in Europe vacation program with lodgings as low as $3.50 a night for students, faculty and their families has been introduced by FACETS - Franco American Committee for Educational Travel and Studies, and CTE - Car-Tours in Europe, Inc.

The two organizations have joined to offer special-priced independent car travel throughout Europe this summer plus optional, low-cost lodgings at over 30 European lycees and universities. The car rates for students are as low as $1 a day for each person in a party of four. Faculty rates are a little higher. Lodgings are priced at $3.50 and $4.50 a night per person including Continental breakfast. No advance reservations for accomodations are needed before leaving for Europe.

Under the CTE-FACETS program, students and teachers can drive around Europe at their own pace and inclination yet are assured accommodations at lycees and universities in Paris, Nice, London, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Geneva, Rome, Madrid, Brussels and 21 university towns throughout France.

The FACETS program provides U.S. students and faculty the opportunity to meet, get to know, and live with students and educators from all over Europe. In addition, free entrance to many museums and libraries is offered and English-speaking hosts and hostesses are available at all residences to provide guidance on local history and culture.

FACETS is affiliated with the Comite d' Accueil - a foundation of the French Ministry of Education. CTE is the large international organization arranging for travel by automobile in Europe.

Applications for the CTE-FACETS summer vacation program for students and teachers are available from CTE campus representatives and college student activity and university travel centers. Forms also can be obtained by writing to: Director, Student-Faculty Programs, Car-Tours in Europe, 555 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

New Catalogue Available On Foreign Summer Study

The Institute of International Education announces publication of the 22nd annual edition of Summer Study Abroad, its popular guide to summer programs overseas based on a survey of American and foreign institutions.

For the first time, the guide includes U.S. college sponsored programs abroad in addition to its listing of programs sponsored by foreign universities and private organizations. Almost 600 different academic offerings in countries around the world are cited. Each entry includes location, dates, course titles, and, in many cases, tuition, living costs, and scholarship assistance available.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, FE, Astro, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, I.P's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Water beds — 7' x 6' now $55.00. With frame and liner $90.00. Guaranteed workmanship. Come to it-I Gorman week days 11:00 to 3:30 or Thursday nights 7 to 9 or call 546-9334. tf2-5

Smith-Corona portable electric typewriter, like new, 203 German, 6-6482 or call Al, room 407, Chadbourne. tf3-4

Portable 12" Sears TV, new, $60; 8 track sierra tape deck, Rauss Shark, also $60; pair 6 ft. skis $10. Must sell all. Call BILL 549-6821 tf3-8

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley). No texts! tf5-13

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $395. Telephone 253-2946. tf3-9

1962 Karmann Ghia, new engine in 1969. Colors in the style of Peter Max. Only $700. Call 253-5240. tf3-4

Have another car — must sell 63 Corvair rouv., 4 speed, rebuilt engine, 2,000 miles, new battery, runs well but needs starter. $100, will haggle. Call 867-2006 after 6 p.m. tf3-4

59 Opel, 1.9 engine, 4 new radial tires, 2 radial snow tires, new clutch, new brakes, car retails for $1625, wholesale $1225, will sell for $1195 because of debts. Nothing wrong, just must sell. 549-1191 tf3-5

KLH model 11-w autoturntable, aux inputs, mode control, 2 spindles, 50 watt, dust cover, excellent cond., $150 with seakers, w/o speakers $100 Call Tom 323 Dwight after 7, leave mess. 3-1

Sunbeam GT 6l HT Conv., very clean, R & H, excellent body and tires. Runs good. $575 (neg.) 545-2928

Fiache speedster, 1958, 1600 normal, new top and interior. Best offer. Call 739-4534 (Sp'fld) after 7 p.m. tf3-3

68 Cortina (Eng. Ford) automatic, disc brakes only 15,000 mi. Good mech. cond. Best offer. Call 586-9758 tf3-6

1962 Buick LeSabre, P.S., P.B., brand new brakes. $1500. Jeff 546-7033. tf3-8

VW engines 36 and 40 hp, recently rebuilt, will take trade, $125 and $175 a piece. Call 584-1670 nights. tf3-9

1968 Mir Midget blue, with wire wheels, 13,000 miles and many extras, $1150. Call 253-9085 and ask for Steve after 6 p.m. tf3-5

'63 Buick Special, power steering, sm. V-8 automatic, radio, very good cond., snow tires, with cleats, new brakes, new exhaust system, $250 Call 549-6315 anytime tf3-5

1968 VW Bug, white with black interior, faithfully maintained, radio and snow tires. Reasonable. Call 549-6011 tf3-8

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133.

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-7148. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 185, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-12

WANTED

Black sincere male student near Amherst. Please write to white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible close summer relationship. Confidential. Box 725, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

Bread Truck or Lge. Van, 14' min. reas. shape, pref. alum. body. Will haggle. Call 545-8705, Gene. tf3-10

Want to buy girl's 26" bicycle. Call Louise 546-7407. 3-1

HELP WANTED

Girls needed immediately for full or part-time work. Free training 549-0016. tf3-5

QUALIFIED TYPISTS, STENOGRAPHERS
Need some extra money? Call Mrs. Ethel Hetrell, Campus Center Printing Shop. 545-0371. tf3-8

FOR RENT

Room for rent to sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo., Cliffside Apt., Sunderland. Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9212 anytime after 6:30. tf3-4

One bedroom, four room apt. for rent Cliffside Apts., $130 month with or without furniture. Open in March. tf3-4

Two bedroom apt. for rent $140 a month including utilities. Available April 1. Call 545-2506 days and 549-2867 evenings. tf3-8

Quiet, pleasant single room for female, ½ mile from Univ., near center of town. Kitchen privileges. Rate to be decided after personal interview. Call Louisa Sheldon 253-9720. tf3-4

PERFECT FOR SUMMER SCHOOL: furn. 1 bdrm. apt. for July and Aug. No lease req. $161 mo. Near Campus, pool, tennis courts, air cond. Married couple or girls preferred. Call 549-2016 after 5. tf3-31

Ware — ½ hr. drive from Amherst, lg. 1 rm. all electric apt., stove, refrig., disposal, laclenrator furnished. Also washer and dryer hookup. Ample pkg. and storage, $130 mo. 1-413-413-6609. tf3-10

PERSONAL

H. King and Backpacking Equipment — Free catalog. Colorado Trails, 215 Zelley, Moorestown, N.J. 08057 tf3-4

Denise and Lisa — much thanks for the feed and the talk — Glen. 3-1

People want to meet people. Once again, great chance for NJG to meet NJH. Don't be a shy. Call Carl 665-2969. 3-4

Fred! Sorry about phone calls. Kris took blame to protect me, but he'll deny it. I really am sorry Dan 3-4

TO SUBLET

New eff. apt. for rent. Ele. for 1 or 2 persons. Incl. all utilities, dishwasher, garbage disposal, wall to wall carp., only 15½ miles from Campus. Rent is $150 per mo. Call Ray at 253-7543. If no answer, try again. tf3-8

Efficiency apt., Quabbin Vlg., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fee paid. Call 323-7639 after 7 p.m. tf3-4

Cozy furnished apt., right on campus, for 3 girls. Call Dana or Shari at 546-8581. tf3-5

Summer sublet from June 1 - Aug. 30, 100 Celestial Village, furnished 2 bedroom, swim. pool. Call 256-6032. tf 6-th

TRAVEL

OVERLAND EXPEDITION TO INDIA. Leaves London mid-June $190. Also return CHARTERS to London $190 approx. Encounter Overland, 1114 E. 55th St., Chicago, Ill. 60637.
3- 2 4 8 10 12 16 18 30 4- 6 8

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Florida for two girls for spring vacation. If you can help please call Jona or Bev 545-6611. Desperate. 3-4

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted in So. Deer field on 116. $53.00 covers rent and utilities. Own room, furnished. No dogs, but cats are OK. Immediate occupancy if possible. tf3-5

Notices

ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in Machmer E 17, to decide what to do now that the snow is melting & make final arrangements for the gathering of Tribes Sat. night.

ARMENIAN CLUB
Mr. James Tashjian will speak on the Armenian Guerilla movement, an over view, tonight in Machmer W 22 at 9 p.m.

C.E.Q.
CEQ's Distinguished Ecologist Lecture (DELS) presents a lecture by Amherst Prof. Lincoln Brower on "Connecticut River Ecology" tonight at 7 p.m. in Rm 20 Hasbrouck.

CHESS CLUB
Fourth round starts at 7 p.m. sharp. Everyone is welcome to come down and play in the New Hatch tonight.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
No gnd. school tonight. See you Tuesday, March 9th at 7 p.m. in C.C.

DVP APPLICATIONS
Tomorrow is the deadline for DVP applications. If you have one, turn it in. If you don't, pick one up at the R.S.O. Office.

EDUCATION MAJORS:
Ed. Majors interested in spending a semester abroad at the New University of Ulster, Northern Ireland. Contact Dr. George Urch, School of Ed. 50945 or Center for International Education 50465.

FINNISH LANGUAGE COURSE:
Will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the C.C. Rm 811. Anyone interested is welcome.

FOOD SCIENCE SEMINAR
Dr. Sanford A. Miller, M.I.T. will speak on "The Role of Dietary Protein in the Regulation of Neonatal Development", Friday, March 5th at 3:30 p.m. in Rm 227 Chenoweth Lab. Coffee at 3:15 p.m. The campus community is invited.

FRENCH CORRIDORS:
Movie: That Cold Day in the Park starring Sandy Dennis will be shown March 5th at 7, 9, & 11 p.m. in the C.C. Aud.

HILLEL:
Folk sing March 9th in Washington Tower Lower house lounge, from 8 til 12 with refreshments. Bring your guitar.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB:
Election & recruiting meeting in Prince House Main Lounge Thurs. night at 7:30 p.m. All welcome.

INTRODUCTION TO MARXISM:
18th Brumaire available in University Store in the Orchard Hill book section.

NAIADS:
Free tickets available for Thurs., Fri., Sat. March 11-13. Performances in the SU or WOPE from 1-4 p.m.

NEW HAVEN:
Anyone interested in going to Bobby Seale's and Erika Huggins' trial March 9th. Call 253-3261 after 5 p.m. weekdays or anytime this weekend. We need cars.

UMOC:
Quabbin Eagle Quest, Sat. meet in the Hatch at 8:30. Another But Hatfield party, 4th floor Sat night.

SKI PATROL:
Meeting in Room 172 of the C.C. at 6:30 p.m. Need people for Berkshire East Sat. & Sund. 4 people each day.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE:
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in C.C. Meet other Gay people. All welcome for more info call 665-2853.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIALIST LEAGUE:
All YPSL'S attend Harrington lectures at UMass. (SU Ballroom I, 101 and Smith (Sage Hall at 8 p.m.) Also bring friends, anyone interested in democratic socialism.

LOST:
While hitchhiking I lost a history book entitled Anarchism. Please call 253-3087 if found.

A jackknife, "Buck", black, 3" long, in Morr Aud. Tues. about 2:30. Has great sentimental value. Please leave word with Jennifer at 549-3659.

Male tiger cat with gray & black stripes. Has 4 toes on each front paw and a curly ear. If seen, please call 549-6440.

FOUND:
Found in bus C. Pantel's bandbag. Pick up at SU Lost & Found.

The pocketbook lost in Bartlett on Friday and returned it to speech office 3rd Floor of Bartlett. So get it there.

— SALE —
½ OFF
ON ALL ANTIQUE CLOTHING
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
Next to Amherst Tower

Sports Notices

INTRAMURAL SOFTBALL - Anyone interested in officiating intramural softball please sign up in 215 Boyden. Softball begins on April 5th.

* * * * *

INTRAMURAL WRESTLING - Intramural wrestling finals will be held in the Boyden wrestling room.

* * * * *

CO-REC BOWLING - Entries are due at the IM office on Thursday, March 4.

* * * * *

SPECIAL - Boyden Gym will NOT be available Monday-Friday 4:30-6:30 p.m. for recreational activity starting March 8-March 22.

Naiads In Art Show

Are four strong young men and 43 graceful females really water nymphs?

The water nymphs, known as Naiads, will be giving their annual aquatic show this month.

The Aquatic Art Group at the University of Massachusetts will give its annual performance at the Women's Physical Education Building Pool during the week of March 7-13.

Compositions this year are using a variety of themes, music, and props. Appropriate movements, music and special effects through lighting help to convey the theme.

The four scheduled show timesfor the campus community will be Mar. 11 at 8 P.M., Mar. 12 at 6:30 and 8 P.M., and Mar. 13 at 8 P.M. Additional shows will be given Mar. 7 for high school students and Mar. 8 for University children.

As is stressed by Miss Esther Wallace of the Physical Education Department, aquatic art uses theme whereas synchronized swimming does not. Miss Wallace, being the group's coach and advisor, emphasizes the maintenance of a specific theme through a composition.

Utilization of the abilities of both sexes will be shown in an 'encounter' number this year. Interested?

Tickets will be available free at WOPE and the Student Union, Mar. 3-10.

Lacrosse Team Works Out

The U. Mass. lacrosse team has started practice in preparation for a difficult season.

According to Coach Dick Garber, 80 men have been attending practices with hope of securing a positon on either the Varsity or Junior Varsity team.

Although a functional team consists of approximately 30 players, no one will be eliminated, he said.

Practices are held Monday thru Friday, rain or shine. The candidates will be working until mid-March on conditioning, breaking in the new sticks, and stick work.

The team schedule will be printed in the near future.

Women's Intramurals

Basketball
6:00 Coolidge 10th floor-BYE
Dickinson Independents vs. Johnson
Leach vs. Lambda Delta Phi

6:30 Chi Omega vs. Coolidge 10th floor
Van Meter South BYE
Johnson vs. Lambda Delta Phi

7:00 Dickinson Independents vs. Coolidge 10th floor
Leach vs. Van Meter South

7:30 Chi Omega BYE
Lambda Delta Phi vs. Coolidge 10th floor
Johnson vs. Van Meter South

8:00 Dickinson Independents vs. Chi Omega
Leach BYE
Dickinson House vs. Gammies

8:30 Foul Balls vs. Kangaroos
Dickinson House vs. Puffton

Sox Sign Romo

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) - Vincente Romo, an ace right-handed reliever and sometimes starter for the Boston Red Sox, signed his contract Wednesday, thus bringing all players into the fold.

Romo signed one day after the deadline, having arrived in training camp here Tuesday night with an unsigned contract and declaring himself a holdout.

But the Red Sox general manager, Dick O'Connell, said Wednesday "I know nothing about him being a holdout. He agreed to the same terms that were on the original contract which called for a raise from 1970."

Romo, who started and relieved last season and woundup with a 7-3 mark and a 4.08 ERA, was given a standing ovation by his teammates when he arrived in the clubhouse.

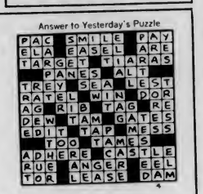
Girl Gymnasts Defeated

Lose To Silhouettes Of Montreal

UMass Girls Gymnastics Team went down to their first defeat at the hands of the Vandrenil Silhouettes from Montreal, Canada. The loss of Lynn Lamarche due to a back injury two days prior to the meet had weakened UMass line-up on uneven bars where the team was already comparatively weak due to the loss of two top performers earlier in the year. Regardless of some very good performances by other team members, it was an uphill battle almost all the way.

Lise Arsenault, member of Canadian National Team, won the floor exercise event, scoring 8.5. Anne Burmeister from UMass came second and Linda Walker from Canada third. At the end of the event, UMass had a very slim lead - 23.80 to 23.75.

In vaulting, small and slim Canadians seemed to be soaring through the air, while UMass competitors, except for Margie Combs, were much more earthbound. The event was won again by Lise Arsenault with a score of 8.95. Margie Combs from UMass and Lise Ouelette from Canuda tied for second. At the end of vaulting, Canadians were ahead by 3 points.



Since balance beam is UMass girls strongest event, hopes for winning had not been abandoned. Anne Burmeister won the event with 8.3. Margie Combs came second with 8.0 and Marina Rodriguez third, scoring 7.45. With a 1-2-3 placing on the beam, the score was reversed once again, UMass leading the Canadians 70.60 to 70.00. It was all up to the uneven bar girls. In their weakened line-up, UMass was not quite a match for the Silhouettes. Lise Arsenault and Lise Ouelette placed first and second, scoring 8.75 and 8.5 respectively. Margie Combs came third, scoring 8.2, followed by Anne Burmeister, who earned 8.0. This was not enough to hang onto the lead. The final score of the meet was: Canadians 95.00, UMass 94.10.

This Saturday, UMass girls will face the two toughest opponents of the year - Springfield College and Towson College.

The UMass basketball team plays at Main tonight. For details see page 16.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Agreement
5 Land measure
9 Ocean
12 Winglike
13 God of thunder
14 Sunburn
15 Ascends
17 Serious
19 Idle chatter
21 Dines
22 Part of fireplace
24 Teutonic deity
25 School of whales
26 Chinese pagoda
27 Aquesece
29 Paid notice
31 Possess
32 Army officer (abbr.)
33 Sun god
34 Prefix: before
35 Conjunction
36 Declare
38 Malure
39 Fuss
40 French article
41 Urge on
42 Vedic fire god
44 Walk like a duck
46 Lamp
48 Rockfish (pl.)
51 French for "friend"
52 Musical instrument
54 Husband of Gudrun
55 Born
56 One opposed
57 Former Russian ruler

DOWN
1 Equality
2 Mohammedan name
3 Sea in Asia
4 Handle
5 Near
6 Raises the spirits of
7 Bellow
8 Be mistaken
9 Vapor
10 Direction
11 Emmets
16 Saint (abbr.)
18 Tidy
20 Trials
22 Portico
23 Animal's feet
25 Insect
27 Too
28 Was mistaken
29 Jason's ship
30 Act
34 Father and mother
36 Mine entrance
37 Kite
39 Girl's name
41 Fold
42 Wolfhound
43 Contest
44 Singing bird
45 Physician (abbr.)
47 Period of time
49 A slate (abbr.)
50 Title of respect
53 Roman gods

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Where Libra is concerned, the outlook is often brighter toward the latter part of life. These natives are sensitive; early knocks leave emotional bruises. As maturity asserts itself, life becomes a pleasure. The older Libra person is more apt to be happier than his younger counterpart.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will be responsible for ideas. Means you are given chance or challenge to express yourself. Thus, not wise to ask for anything you do not really desire. Valuable lessons are learned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): By finishing a task, you profit. By leaving it or going on to something else, you lose. Realize this and be persistent. An associate is aggressive. Maintain aplomb, poise. Don't be shaken.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high; you get where you want to go. Take initiative. Exercise independence of thought, action. Highlight appearance. Brighten surroundings. Add color, dash. No false modesty.

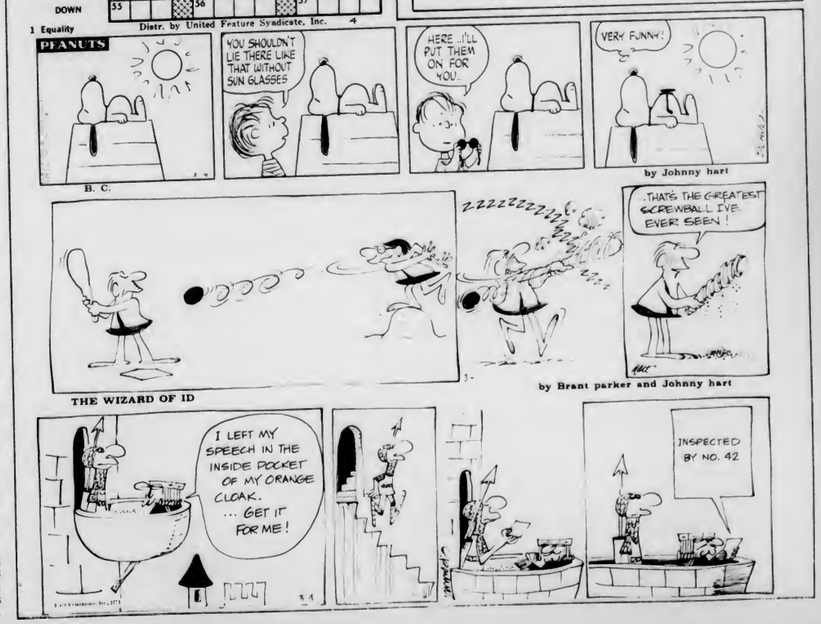
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Secrets are exposed. Much occurs behind the scenes. Work in conjunction with hospitals, institutions, special clubs, group. The more cooperative you are now, the better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent willingness to mingle, make new contacts. Time to socialize. Don't take yourself or others too seriously. Key is humor, versatility. A friend makes valid suggestion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Solid gain indicated. Some express hostility. Envy runs rampant, but you should strive to keep on course. Otherwise, nothing will be gained. Career matters spotlighted. Promotion is indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Develop what appears now to be an abstract concept. Don't be dismayed by apparent lack of immediate reward. Efforts aimed at long range results will pay dividends. Act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Joint effort enables you to get most for money. Family should be involved. Mate, partner controls expenditure. Know this, and be cautious, diplomatic. Soft approach wins way.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Try to perceive what mate, partner is trying to tell you. Delay any legal procedure. Play waiting game. Time is on your side. Refuse to be rushed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on work, special service, medical dental appointments. What occurs may not be pleasant, but is necessary. Quiet approach accomplishes goal. Don't rock boat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides with romantic interests. Your feelings are intensified. A special realtionship is tested. Maintain self esteem. Refuse to be discouraged by a bully.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on older family member. New approach to this relationship is advocated. Be independent, not arrogant. You are due for surprise which affects basic security.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of the imaginative and practical. You often puzzle yourself. Some who think they know you surely are mistaken. You know what adversity is; happiness has come during quiet periods. Wait until October for heavy emotion financial investments.

Pucksters Bomb Holy Cross, 17-0

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

It was another home blitz last night, as UMass bombed the Holy Cross hockey team, 17-0, with a barrage of 11 goals scored in the second period.

The number one and two stars named for the game were the hat trick connectors, Jack Edwards and Eric Scrafield, both of whom had four goals apiece, in an overwhelming UMass scoring spree. Bob Bartholomew received third star for four assists as well as hustling defense playing.

When the game started, it was obvious the Redmen were determined to score, but could not only penetrate the Crusader defense three times in the first 20 minutes. Edwards tipped the puck off H.C. goalie Pat Norton's glove at 2:53, then scored again at 9:47 from right in front of the net. Two minutes later, Scrafield took hold of a semi-wild pass to hit for a point on the right side of a falling Norton.

The Redmen had far more scoring opportunities, but the puck seemed to be anti-magnetic to the net, and Crusader defenders were playing tight.

In the meantime, Holy Cross' best attempt to reach the scoreboard failed on their power play with Fran Mulcahy in the penalty box, when the Crusaders got picky for a perfect setup and wasted precious time.

In the second period, the Redmen found all the holes around Norton, and gained a momentum that ended with the score 14-0.

It all started with visitor Pat Thornton going off at 1:50 for elbowing. Eight seconds later Al Nickerson totally fooled Norton with a beauty. Scrafield took eleven seconds to find his position with assists from Don Riley and Bartholomew.

The Holy Cross defense had died, while the scoring sticks of UMass came very much alive.

One of the best shots of the night was Bob Shilalie's screamer from just over the blue line to the upper left corner of the net at 5:05 of the second period.

Further scoring came twice from Edwards, twice from Dennis Grabowski, once from Scrafield, Don Riley, Paul Riley, and finally Pat Keenan, his only goal of the match.

The 9:59 Grabowski-er came unassisted from in back of the net to swing around and squeeze through Norton's protecting side, whereas the one at 16:20 found Grabowski all alone on the much-worked goalie, on a play that began with a steal in the other zone.

When the weary Crusaders took the ice in the third period, with a replacement in goal, Fred McCready, they looked about the same as in the first period. In fact, UMass scored the same amount of goals, three. Chico Shea, unassisted at 8:13, Scrafield again, at 8:44, and Lonnie Avery from Edwards at 9:27 bunched up on McCready.

PLAYOFF-MINDED PUCKSTERS-The UMass hockey team recently received their first playoff berth ever for the Division II post-season playoffs. Shown here in action against Vermont, the Redmen pucksters crushed Holy Cross at Orr Rink last night. Pictured above for UMass is Mike Waldron (5). (MDC Photo by Ned Diffendale)

The UMass goaltending situation had a different man in for every period. Crusaders' threats went something like this: (1.) against P.J. Flaherty, two; (2.) against Peter Erikson, five; (3.) against John Kiah, seven. Kiah received the most applause from the crowd for standing off the Holy Cross attack.

Hoopmen At Maine For Regular Season Finale

By EARLE BARROLL
MDCStaff

The UMass basketball team ends regular season play tonight when it takes on the Black Bears of Maine in a 7:30 p.m. encounter in Orono. The Redmen will be going after their first perfect record ever in the Yankee Conference and also their 23rd win of the season.

This will be a game of attitude. Travelling all the way to Orono, the Redmen feel that if they can't beat Maine at Maine then they certainly don't want to go to Madison Square Garden to play N.I.T. calibre of competition. But after Monday night's fiasco at New Hampshire, they should be ready to put it to the Black Bears.

Maine is a funny team. They've been an in and out ball club this season and come into this game with a record of eight wins and 13 losses.

The Black Bears like to run and gun and if the ball starts going in the basket for them the game could turn out to be very interesting. On defense they'll probably throw various combinations at UMass trying to create turnovers. This was tried at UMass in the first encounter but was unsuccessful.

Maine has four starters 6'6 with a 5'11 field general to control the tempo for this group of timber. They'll be tough on the boards due to their size and with Nick Susi ready to play they will give a better indication of their type of play tonight. In the first meeting Susi sat out most of the contest due to an early injury.

For UMass this will be hopefully the end of one season and the beginning of another as word on the N.I.T. will probably be coming out of New York sometime tomorrow.

So far this year the Redmen have had a tough time on the road in Yankee Conference play. They won in overtime at Rhode Island and Vermont, beat UConn by six and just got by UNH by three Monday night. With the psych of playing the Redmen working for the opposition, road games have been tough and if tonight's holds true to form this could be an interesting contest.

As for the starting lineup Tom McLaughlin will not be in there and may not see any action as he has a back ailment. In his place will be either Chris Coffin, Rich Vogeley or Tom Austin, who will join Julius Erving, Ken Mathias, John Betancourt and Mike Pagliara.

Notices

IM WRESTLING—All wrestlers involved in the intramural finals tonight please report to the intramural office, Room 215 Boyden, at 6:30 to pick up uniforms for tonight's matches.

* * *

The UMass varsity wrestling team defeated Central Connecticut 20-14 last night. Details on this match and the upcoming New England tournament will appear in the Collegian tomorrow.

BBall At Varsity M

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

Head basketball coach Jack Leaman and Redman stars Chris Coffin and Bill Greeley were the featured guests of the UMass Varsity M Club luncheon at the Newman Center yesterday.

Greeley was introduced first by his coach and was called "a defensive specialist whose main contribution to the team has been his working his butt off in practice since he came to UMass. He's probably the toughest defensive guard that John Betancourt and Mike Pagliara have faced this season."

Greely, who will help coach the freshman team next year said that his days at UMass under coaches Broaca and Leaman will be very beneficial when he begins coaching. He felt he learned an awful lot playing in a Redman uniform.

Coffin was lauded by his coach as a player "who hasn't reached his potential, an excellent rebounder, and a player who can shoot, but doesn't realize it."

Coffin had a few words on the "long season" that he and the rest of the team hope will be a little longer. Leaman, in introducing Coffin used as an example of Coffin's rebounding ability the Holy Cross game in which Coffin had 10 offensive rebounds which is an outstanding effort against the size of the Crusader's front line.

Coffin came back with "After the Holy Cross game coach told me to get a haircut as my hair was getting a little long. Well the next day I did and since that time I haven't put together a good game."

The rest of the luncheon was the Jack Leaman show. He said "the last time we were here was after the loss to Springfield. But since that time we've won five in a row and it's the great team that can come back from a lesson like we learned at Springfield."

On the Syracuse game he commented, "Next to Boston College the Syracuse game had to be the biggest game of the year. In the past it was said that UMass had a tough time winning the hard games. This has finally ended."

"As far as the N.I.T. is concerned next bids will probably be coming on Friday."

Next week basketball will be featured again with the previously scheduled skiing program being moved up one week. Leaman will be back with more of his Redmen stars and a film of a recent Redman game.

The time is 12:15 at the Newman Center on Wednesday.

Intramurals
Wrestling Semi-Finals Completed

By MICHAEL FOX
MDC Staff

Last night in the auxiliary gymnasium in Boyden the semifinals of intramural wrestling were held. The night started with three straight pins. The first was Marchando over Zajac in 2:20, followed by Lefler over James in 1:49, and Parent over Pratt in 56 seconds. These were in the unlimited and 128 pound categories.

The rest of the night went as follows: In the 137 pound Rice earned a decision over Crossman, 4-2, and Chouinard over Towne, 4-2. In the 147 pound grouping Dalquist vanquished Kohler, 7-0, and Day came from behind to win a decision over Searles, 5-3. In the 157 pounders Schneid scored first and held on over Perrault 2-1, and Plunkett over Schwartz by forfeit. The 167 pounders demonstrated the best wrestling of the night. Souza's ability to role out of Keedy's holds prevailed, as Souza gained a pin at 4:26. Showing the best technique Kanter came from behind to get his decision over Kaplan 3-2. In the 177 pound classification the clock saved Stewart from being pinned by Keith, but Keith got the decision anyway 5-1. Castricone piled up the points, 13-2, over Guglietti before getting a strongly resisted pin at 4:00. The toughest battle of the night was in the 187 pound category as Pikkaranian pinned Rendle at 3:48. This was followed by the quickest pin as McDowell threw down Skowers in eight seconds. In the 197 Brown evaded a last minute pin to gain the decision over Righi, 6-4. But the most remembered contest of the night was between Marino and Hale. Both wrestlers are from the same fraternity. They demonstrated some fine slapstick wrestling before Marino fell on his back for Hale. With his pin at 1:45 in the unlimited category Hale faces Marchando tonight in the finals.

INTRAMURAL INKLINGS: There was a good crowd on hand for the wrestling. Tonight the finals at at 7:00. A volleyball game to watch tonight is the one between Sigma Kappa and Delta Chi. Both are fighting it out for first place.

Results

Volleyball
Monuments 2, Terrors 0
Senators over Crushers, WBF
Panthers 2, Bruisers 0
Academics 2, Chipmunks 0
Cougars over Leopards, WBF
Jacks over Eagles, WBF
Beta Chi 2, Stouts 0
Smitty's 2, Deacons 1
Team 2, Smokers 0
Munchkins 2, 13. 1
Browns 2, Baggers 1
Lemons 2, Vlooms 0
Flats 2, Volleys 0
3 M's 2, Busters 0
Civil 2, Zero's 1
Bodies 2, Flies 1

Co-Rec
Bandito's 2, Bouncers 1
Shorts 2, JG 1
Stouties over Jacks, WBF
Funnies over Triaps, WBF
LCO 2, Canines 1
Superstars 2, KFCO 0
ACS 2, Rigatonis 0
Lemons 2, BMB 0
Limes 2, Deacons 1

Tonight's

Volleyball

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
		POSITION ATHENIAN
1	6:30	1 vs. 2
2		3 vs. 4
3		5 vs. 6
		POSITION SPARTAN
4		1 vs. 2
5		3 vs. 4
6		5 vs. 6
7		BKP vs. TC
8		KS vs. DC
		POSITION CENTRAL
9		1 vs. 2
10		3 vs. 4
		POSITION PIONEER
1	7:30	1 vs. 2
2		3 vs. 4
3		5 vs. 6
4		Gwimps vs. Turkeys
5		Erudites vs. Gapos
6		Aries vs. Friends
1	8:30	Heads vs. Sigmas
2		Pranksters vs. Dildoughs
3		Erudites vs. Jacks
4		Tubes vs. Canaille
5		Bucks vs. Sutts
6		Hockers vs. Oxfords
7		3 M's vs. Bekap
8		JOATG vs. Strangers
9		DCD vs. CO Boys
1	9:30	Lemons vs. Brigade
2		Oaks vs. Hemlocks
3		Hi-Lo's vs. Redwoods.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Melting rapidly, freezing slowly. Rain expected, sun forecasted. Redmen by 4.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 100 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1971

One little, two little, three little Indians, four little Indian joys (?)...the tribes invade Free U every day while their mothers are at work. The chairman of the board (above) presides over the whole show. He and a friend (below) seem to enjoy one of life's prohibited pleasures but a careful examination shows they are playing a modified version of patty-cake. The young lady to the right is nobody's fool. She's mulling over a question that someone put to her. Some nonsense about who she wants in '72. See page two for related story. (MDC photos by Gib Fullerton)

NIT!

By DAN KAMAL
MDC Staff

"There is no doubt in my mind that we'll approach it much differently. Last year we were delighted they even thought of us, but this year we feel we belong there."

This quote by assistant basketball coach Raymond Wilson reflects the confident atmosphere permeating this campus in the face of the expected National Invitational Tournament bid which was extended to the UMass basketball team yesterday afternoon.

In an extreme contrast to last year when the Redmen were quite unsure right up to the last minute whether they would get a bid, this year the bid was offered surprisingly early.

Admitting his surprise at the early date of the offer, assistant coach Peter Broaca cited the UMass excellent season record as the primary factor, "Our record of 23-3 is the one of the best in the country." He went on to mention that although there was some disappointment at being shunned by the NCAA, the honor of being chosen so early for the NIT is a great tribute to the great job done by Coach Leaman and the players.

It is quite interesting to note that New England rival Providence College also received the NIT nod yesterday. This brings up the thoughts of a first round meeting between the Redmen and the Friars. However, both Wilson and Broaca expressed doubt that the two teams would be seeded against each other so early.

Wilson felt that Providence's rout of St. Bonaventure, which had accepted an NIT bid on Tuesday, was also a major factor in the early choosing of the two New England teams. "PC approached the game with the thought of making the NIT Committee realize what kind of team it is and what the caliber of New England basketball is."

As of yesterday, there were only five teams chosen for the New York tournament. Thus it is very difficult to attempt to project the Redmen chances in the post-season play. One thing is sure, however. The attitude of the team, the coaches, and the fans is a lot different than it was about a year ago. There is a distinct air of confidence this season. This is a team that has shown that it can go with any team around on a good night like the one it had against Syracuse last week.

With their second straight NIT bid under their belts, the Redmen are looking to make a great ending of the 1970-71 UMass basketball story. The early season scares at Vermont and Rhode Island, the frustrating defeats at the hands of Providence and Fordham University, the crucial wins over Holy Cross, Boston College, and Syracuse University, and the humiliation at Springfield College are just history, just memories.

But if things go right in New York City's Madison Square Garden starting in about two weeks, these memories will go down as the Saga of 1970-71, the year of the Redmen.

On The Inside:

● Fac Sen Debates Ed Grades See page three
● Nixon Says S.Viets Can Do It See page four
● Brower Hits Army Engineers See page two

SWAP Stresses Reciprocal Benefits

By JEANETTE MARTINEAU
MDC Staff

The SWAP Committees on Community Service met with a disappointing turnout last night. Its hope had been to involve students, and especially faculty members and department heads in projections of community- oriented services for academic credits.

Judy Gill and Tom Merrigan, both SWAP members, explained that the proposal developed from individual needs for UMass "expertise" within the area, and from existing anti-University sentiments within the State Legislature. One legislator described UMass as "a parasite on the community."

As yet, the Committee has received no financial or administrative support. "The Administration is unsure, unwilling to recognize its obligations to the community," said Tom Merrigan. "The faculty members are too conservative, reluctant to initiate programs within their own departments." The Committee will welcome any suggestions and support from the faculty, for these "non-classroom courses".

The SWAP report, submitted for publication on December 13th, 1970, proposes the following projects, which, for the previously-mentioned reasons, are still in limbo:

"A pilot program should be implemented in two specific areas; one to help those communities which lack resources for the teaching of English as a foreign language (i.e., teaching Puerto Rican students in Holyoke and Springfield), two: that assistance be given for specific special education (Engineering Department cooperation with Belchertown to develop special toys for handicapped children). Another step should be contacting department heads for guidance in setting of such programs, and that ACADEMIC CREDITS be given for these programs.

Also, attention should be now given to obtaining financial commitment which would allow further development in this area of community service. Specifically, budget allocations for new faculty positions should be allocated. Contact could also be made with local communities in order to determine how we might best assist their efforts for community improvement."

Judy Gill stressed that the benefits of this kind of involvement would be clearly reciprocal. She summarized her comments by saying: "There's more to building a good university than building a good library."

Brower Calls Corps Threat

By JAMES GOLDMAN
MDC Staff

Labeling the Army Corps of Engineers as a "huge bureaucracy which must justify its existence," last night, Dr. Lincoln P. Brower of Amherst College lectured on the effects of the Corps' plans to harness the Connecticut River. Dr. Brower also spoke on the diversion of water from river to Quabbin Reservoir during the second of this semester's Distinguished Ecologists Lecture Series sponsored by the Coalition for Environment Equality.

Before a small audience, Dr. Brower emphasized the necessity not to control the river and the "ecological chaos" that would result if the Army Corps of Engineers' plans were enacted.

Brower stated that the Connecticut River only shows moderate variation in flow which are easily predictable. He cautioned the Corps' plans for flood control includes prevention of floods which would only occur once every three hundred years. As an alternative to building dams, Brower recommends the building of dikes and the government subsidation of flood insurance premiums.

Relieving the power industry of promoting their own interest in the 200 dam project, he stated that lowering river's the rate of flow during flood season would adversely affect the efficiency of hydroelectric generators presently in operation.

Dr. Lincoln P. Brower

Dr. Brower rejected the constant flow rate as a boon to the river's sewerage capacity as a "solution for pollution through dilution."

The primary focus of the lecture was on the project's effects on the river's eco-system. The major dams in the Corps' plans would lower the river's velocity thus lowering the river's oxygen content. Brower went on to state that lower ozygen levels would not be able to absorb the same amounts of pollutants.

Brower sighted the change in thermal and floor surface properties in the river as a result of the "slower river." Many forms of aquatic life dependent on the present state would be affected.

Brower added that the elimination of the annual spring flood would harm the crops in the valley and the shellfish in the Long Island Sound. The river annually flushes the farms along the river of salts that result from the usage of agricultural chemicals. Also the influx of fresh water into the sound each spring kills shellfish pests.

Beyond the economic considerations, Dr. Brower added the elimination of the spring flood would destroy the whole ecosystem of the flood plain.

The diversion of the water flow from the Connecticut River to the Quabbin Reservoir was also discussed. Brower stated that the introduction of polluted water from the river would have serious effects on the reservoir.

Dr. Brower also commented that instead of altering the Connecticut River," the Army Corps of Engineers should return the river to its natural state." He concluded,"We have to get back to nature... because we are ultimately dependent on nature."

Protest To Be Held Requesting Play Center

By ANN GURNETT
MDC Staff

A children's party in the main lobby of Whitmore at 2:00 Monday afternoon, at which petitions urging the opening of a day-care center will be presented to Chancellor Tippo, will be the climax of a day of protest planned by advocates of a Play Center for children.

Eileen Wilkensen, spokeswoman for the group, thinks the administration should consider the matter as a top priority issue

"I feel the refusal of the administration to give us a day care center discriminates both scholastically and economically against women," she said. "It is usually the woman who must remain at home, caring for the children. This prevents her from attending classes or holding a full-time job."

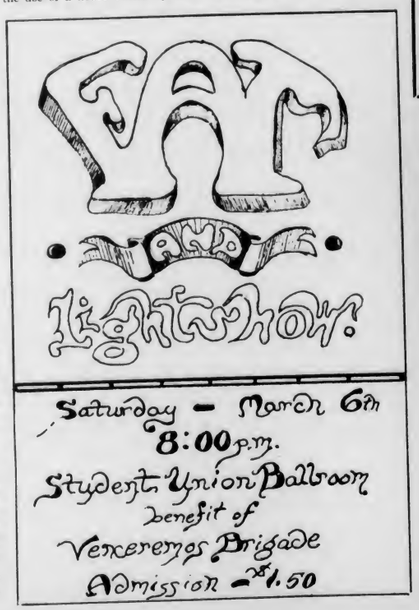
"At the moment," she continued, "we have established a temporary center in Free U. However, this is merely a stopgap measure. In our present location, we have neither the space nor facilities to continue the program for any length of time."

Miss Wilkensen said that attempts had been made to secure the use of the two 4H lodges, located near the Alumnae Stadium, for the center. The proposal, which was presented to the Grad Student Senate, was turned down Wednesday. However, the group has obtained the use of a house owned by the University, located on North Pleasant Street.

"The most pressing problem is money," she said. Both the Grad Student Senate and the Undergrad Student Senate have voted us funds. However, we're going to need some financial assistance from the Administration if this thing's going to work."

The center, manned by fifteen volunteers who take care of approximately twenty children throughout the week, is open in two shifts, the first extending from about 9 a.m. to twelve noon, the second from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

It is open to anybody in the University community, whether they want to help out or just have their kids cared for.



Future Univ. Com.Featured

President Wood's committee on the Future University will hold a two-day meeting at the Campus Center Thursday and Friday, March 11 and 12.

The Committee, announced by Pres. Wood at his installation, is in the early stages of a seven month study on what the University can and should be doing over the next 10 years. The chairman is Dr. Vernon Alden, former president of Ohio University.

On Fri., March 12 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. the full committee will divide into six small groups in the Campus Center in order to hear from as many members of the University of Massachusetts Amherst Community as possible. These informal sessions will be open to all and the broadest possible participation by students, faculty and administration is welcomed and encouraged by the committee.

Though the agenda for next week's meeting pertains specifically to the content and organization of curriculum, the directive of the committees from the President is a broad one, ranging from questions of curriculum and life style to problems of admissions and finance.

Mitchell Takes On Drug Culture See Page 8

Student Tours Presents
ACAPULCO ADVENTURE
during College Week
March 20 - 28 from $208
plus tax and service
includes:
- Round trip jet transportation to Acapulco, Mexico
- Meals and bar service aloft.
- Stay at Holiday Inn or Hotel Acapulco Imperial
- All taxes and tips for baggage and transportation.
- Discounts on many clubs, dicotheques, tours, skin diving, and water skiing.

Spring Skiing — Sugarbush, Vt.
during College Week
from $112 March 21 - 26
includes:
- Lodging at Alpen Inn
- Meals
- Lifts
- Lessons

For more information call Joan or Louise 546-9846

TEST POWER!
Cowles
TEST PREPARATION BOOKS

WHEN there's so much riding on the results, go into that exam in complete control. Plan ahead with the only study guides that accurately simulate the test you'll soon face — in both format and level of difficulty. No clutter. No frills. Just the facts you need to pass. Confidence gives a big edge.

Insist on Quality
Insist on Cowles

- Dental Aptitude Test
- Grad. Business School Admission
- Law School Admission*
- Medical College Admission
- Miller Analogies Test
- G.R.E. Aptitude Test
- NTE Common Exam
- Reg./Grad. Nursing School Admission

8½"x11" • Paper • *$4.95 $4.45, all others $3.95 each
See these and many others at your local bookstore
COWLES BOOK COMPANY, INC.

Fac-Senate Debates Grades In School Of Ed.

By LEE THIBODEAU
MDC Staff

No decision was made on a motion to require the School of Education to return to the regular grading system of the University after much lengthy debate at yesterday's Faculty Senate meeting.

Other issues discussed at the meeting were the tight financial state of the University, which may result in possible reductions in the CEEB and Teaching Assistant programs, and some opposition expressed against the proposed tuition hike.

Debate centering around a motion that questions the present pass-fail system of the School of Ed was the focal point.

Faculty were concerned with student motivation in a pass-fail system and the possibilities of a student's admittance to graduate school after earning sixty pass-fail credits.

One senator, opposed to the system, stated that in two and one half years he has not found one student who has felt that he has had a challenging academic experience in the School of Ed.

Dwight W. Allen, Dean of the School of Education, replied that he is willing to submit the pass-fail system to the same evaluable criteria of a grading system, but since the present University grading system has not been evaluated, it cannot now be termed a "better" system.

Earlier in the academic year, a committee was formed to study the present innovative program of the School of Ed, which grades entirely on a pass-fail system. The committee consisted of five University faculty members, five members of the School of Ed and five members outside of the University.

In response to the report, Dean Allen sited the problems involved. He explained that the report didn't indicate a direction in which the school is going and didn't compare the school with other systems.

He stated that the basic concern of the report was "whether the school deviates from tradition."

Dean Allen emphasized that the report would have been more useful had there beem empirical data.

"Although the Committee did indicate that it chose to focus on weaknesses...it seems necessary to see weaknesses in the context of total school performances," he said.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo mentioned at the meeting that the entire Univesity of California at Santa Cruz uses the pass-fail system. He also noted that the School of Ed graduate school enrolls more Harvard graduate students than any other graduate school at the University.

In other business the problem of tuition increase was also discussed. Chancellor Tippo stated that the University was opposed to a tuition increase. He pointed out that the University is 19th of 90 state institutions from a standpoint of total expenses.

"If we were to have an elaborate scholarship system, we would need an involved bureaucracy system," Tippo said. "We are all in favor of low tuition."

Presenting the financial state of the University the Chancellor said that the University may be forced to cut the number of teaching assistants by half because of the reduction in funds. No decision will be made until late April, it is expected.

Elimination or reduction of CEEB freshman is a possibility, Tippo said. He explained this is due to the fact that the University is $400,00 short of a needed $1,200,000 to continue the program. He said that the deficit arises from the fact that the Governor appropriated scholarship fund remains the same each year regardless of inflation.

The Chancellor also reported that the library increases this year is $480,000, to be shared by three Universities. He also said there will be no Ford Foundation Grant this year.

SWAP Discusses Curric. And Tenure

Expertise group 8 of SWAP met last night in the Campus Center to discuss teacher and course evaluation. Ross Benjamin, group leader, chaired the meeting of four.

Topics discussed were: establishing an Associate Provost, revitalizing the curriculum, tenure and the personnel committee.

The job of a newly created Associate Provost would be solely to provide professional supervision and professional recognition for faculty engaged in experimental learning devices outside departmental sponsorship.

The proposal for tenure is to replace the present system with a system of three-year appointments, with review at the end of each three-year period.

Revitalizing the curriculum consists of every course taught for three years being defended and substantiated by a professor before a student/grad/faculty committee. Also, experimental research into new areas would be encouraged.

For the Personnel Committee, the SWAP proposal is to encourage diversity in the composition of the Departmental Faculty Personnel Committees.

The Militant Forum apologizes: due to bad weather the out-of-town speakers for the Malcolm X Memorial were unable to make it to Amherst. The Memorial will be rescheduled.

FOLK NIGHT
An Informal Get-together
People and Music
SATURDAY, MARCH 6
Hamlin Basement
8:30 P.M.
If you wish to perform
contact THE OPEN DOOR
5-0296
7 - 11 P.M.

— SALE —
½ OFF
ON ALL ANTIQUE CLOTHING
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
Next to Amherst Tower

NOTICE!
It is not necessary to deprive yourself of the unspeakable benefits of wearing a Q—TAG, just because you don't groove on your own birthday. Send three bucks (plus 3% tax) to QUEEQUEG anyway. He'll send you his infamous Aquarius Sign in a plain brown wrapper. QUEEQUEG, Box 695, Falmouth, Mass. 02541 (You'll have a lot better chance of getting your Q—TAG if you also send your name and address.)

"BACK HOME BARGAINS"
MEN'S SPECIAL — irregular
HARNESS BOOTS Reg. $40 $25
TAN BOOTS Reg. $33 $22
the Shoe-In behind Aubuchons
IN THE ALLEY
WOMEN'S PRACTICAL & FUN SHOES
DISCOUNT PRICES
We have: Bart Carleton Sandals Clogs Loafers
Sneakers Frye Boots Poor Boys Mocs Workshoes
Desert Boots Granny Boots Verde Fun Shoes Charlie Browns Herman Hikers

WATER BEDS
$55.00
AT Sundance Water Beds
187 Main St. Northampton

TODAY IS YOUR LAST CHANCE
TO HAVE YOUR SENIOR PORTRAIT TAKEN
No appointments necessary
9 - 12 and 1 - 5
IN THE COUNCIL CHAMBERS, S.U.
Bring $3.50

NEW CLASSIFIED RATES

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY

75c — First insertion
50c — each subsequent consecutive insertion

In The Nation And The World

Nixon Claims South Viets "Can Hack It"

WASHINGTON AP—President Nixon said Thursday night South Vietnamese forces have demonstrated they "can hack it" against the Communists, and that insures the continuing withdrawal of American forces from Southeast Asia.

The President told a White House news conference carried live via radio and television that assessment of South Vietnamese fighting ability came from Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam.

"...What has already been accomplished in Laos at this time has insured even more the plan for withdrawal of American troops," Nixon said.

He said he will have another troop withdrawal announcement in April.

Nixon said Abrams advised him earlier Thursday that the South Vietnamese "by themselves can hack it and they can give a better account of themselves even than the North Vietnamese."

Nixon said South Vietnamese forces fighting in Laos and in Cambodia "are taking on the very best units that the North Vietnamese can put in the field."

Nixon said allied disruption of enemy supply lines has very seriously damaged North Vietnam's ability to wage war.

Asked about the support of American support for the South Vietnamese invasion of North Vietnam, Nixon reiterated past U.S. policy.

He said further there is no plan to use airpower to support the South Vietnamese if they should go into North Vietnam.

Nixon also said South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu may feel it necessary to take some action directly against North Vietnam, but there is no plan to use U.S. airpower to support such a move.

"No such plan has ever been suggested by President Thieu to us," Nixon said.

He said the test of what happens in North Vietnam will be whether he considers North Vietnamese activities to be endangering American forces as they are withdrawn from South Vietnam.

Only then, Nixon said, would he order the use of airpower against border areas of North Vietnam.

Asked about reported rivalry among his top foreign policy advisors Nixon said there was a "game" of trying to divide the President and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, mentioning Sen. Stuart Symington calling the Missouri Democrat's criticism a "cheap shot."

"He knows Secretary Rogers is my oldest and closest friend" and that he values his advice and ability, Nixon said.

The role of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger is different, as the White House adviser covering national security policy and foreign policy, Nixon said.

Nixon said Rogers is always the chief foreign policy advisor in this nation, and that Kissinger's job also is to advise the President and that "I value his advice." Nixon said any debate over whether Rogers or Kissinger is pre-eminent is an argument over "who's on first."

Asked if he is trying to prepare the American people for the presence of about 200,000 troops in Vietnam by election time next year, Nixon replied:

"As long as there are American POWs, we will have to keep some troops in Vietnam.

"As to when we will have them out, we will make the announcements in due time. We will make one in April."

Nixon said a U.S. proposal for a Southeast Asia settlement is "a one-package situation" covering Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam on the withdrawal of troops of both sides.

Asked to clarify statements about problems in the rest of Southeast Asia if agreement should be reached on South Vietnam, Nixon said:

"Our aim is complete withdrawal," adding the proposal was made on a mutual basis, with the North Vietnamese to withdraw at the same time.

"After we withdraw we cannot guarantee that there will not continue to be fighting in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia," he said.

A reporter noted that North Vietnam is reportedly using more missiles and asked, Does this alarm you?

Nixon: "It is not unusually alarming." He expects the enemy to improve its capabilities just as we will improve ours, the President said, and we will continue to take protective reaction. "But it will not be tit for tat. I can assure you of that," he said.

Asked if he is moving toward a two-China policy, Nixon said such a feeling in Formosa is not justified.

"As far as our attitude toward Communist China is concerned it is to be determined by Communist China's toward us," he said, adding that the United States would not favor Red China's inclusion in the United Nations if that means the expulsion of "Taiway from the family of nations."

Back on Indochina, Nixon said casualties are one-half of what they were before the drive into Cambodia and the U.S. withdrawal has been stepped up.

He said he has analyzed the situation in Laos "and there will be some hard fighting ahead."

Nixon said, "I hope my view of this is right." He said the purpose of the incursion into Laos is to reduce American casualties.

As for the Middle East, specifically an offer of a peace settlement by the Arabs and whether Israel should respond, Nixon said "the question here is whether the United States will impose a settlement in the Mideast and the answer is no."

"We hope that the Israelis and the Egyptians, and for that matter the Jordanians, will continue discussions...," he said. But he added, "We are going to have to depend on the parties themselves" to bring about an agreement.

He said the U.S. role in the Middle East is to "maintain a balance of power."

Asked if he still is optimistic about the strategic arms limitation talks as he was several months ago, Nixon said, "I am just as optimistic now as I was then about the eventual success."

Mother Takes To Hills

CORONADO, Calif (AP) - A 29-year-old mother of two described Thursday her 26 days alone in snow-covered mountains of Mexico as "a beautiful experience."

But, Susan Keeney admitted, she was lost, out of feed and desperate to be found when a search pilot alerted by her husband located her in an abandoned cabin 7,000 feet above sea level.

The pilot spotted her waving from the cabin roof and a ground party reached her Tuesday.

Returned to the home of friends here, she said she "was so happy I cried for hours."

"It was a beautiful experience," she said in an interview. "I had to make that trip. I had to get away from the daily hassles, the anguish and frustration and just listen to the quietness."

The adventure was planned for a month. She read books on back packing and put together organic foods including daily rations, one ounce each, of dried apricots, oatmeal, sunflower seeds and walnuts in addition to two ounces of peanut butter and home-baked bread.

Her husband notified authorities when she didn't arrive

Hotline 5-2550

Got A Gripe?

Air It!

SATURDAYS

11:00 A.M. - 12 NOON

"Just Talk" with Sheldon Katzman.
Talk about anything on your mind.
Where else . . . but on WMUA 91.1 FM

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods: three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

A summer at Southampton College is also a summer at Southampton.

A summer at Southampton College is to your academic credit, with small, informal classes taught by Southampton's bright young faculty and by renowned scientists, artists and educators.

And after class... the beaches, boating, golf, theatres, art colonies and more, much more.

All you could want from summer is at Southampton.

Two 5-Week Sessions
June 21-July 23
July 26-August 27

Two 4-Week Art Workshops
July 6-July 30
August 2-August 27

Director of the Summer Program,
SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE
Southampton, N.Y. 11968 • (516) 283-4000

Please send me Summer Program bulletin.
I am especially interested in:
- UNDERGRADUATE COURSES Social Science, Humanities, Natural Science, Teacher Education, Business Administration
- GRADUATE COURSES Professional Education, Social and Behavioral Science, Liberal Arts
- GRADUATE AND UNDERGRADUATE COURSE IN HUMAN ECOLOGY
- SUMMER ART WORKSHOPS Painting, Sculpture, Ceramics, Graphics, Film
- COLLEGE LEARNING INSTITUTE FOR COLLEGE-BOUND STUDENTS
- SUMMER SPORTS CAMP in Basketball, Tennis, Wrestling, and COURSES in Sailing, Swimming, Water Skiing

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

STARTS THIS WEEKEND!
WHISKEY POINT
featuring
Eddie Peterson
at the
Top of the Campus
Friday and Saturday Nights
starting at 9:00 P.M.

Retired Colonel Exposes Corruption in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) - A retired colonel testified Thursday he was forced to forget about the Viet Cong and do battle with perfumed dragon ladies, nude statues, slot machines, whisky, prostitutes and hordes of camp followers infesting U.S. Army headquarters in Vietnam.

Col. Edmund Castle, former commander of the Long Binh compound housing Army headquarters, said his efforts at reform brought him offers of money and Cadillacs first, and finally a death threat.

"I think we've run this morale thing into the ground," Castle said as he told Senate investigators on trying to "put the screws on" a club and recreation system he said as riddled with corruption, greased with bribes and pungent with the scent of money and perfume.

Most of the perfume emanated from the voluptuous person of Mademe Phoung, an Oriental woman who always wore diamonds and was known to the GI's as the "dragon lady," the colonel said.

Amid gales of laughter from his audience, Castle told of trying to prevent Madame Phoung from carrying out plans to turn her steam bath and massage parlor on the base into a house of prostitution staffed by 400 Vietnamese girls.

Amid gales of laughter from his audience, Castle told of trying to prevent Madame Phoung from carrying out plans to turn her steam bath and massage parlor on the base into a house of prostitution staffed by 400 Vietnamese girls. Two hundred of the girls were ordered off the post, the colonel said, when he discovered the dragon lady intended them to serve as drinking companions for soldiers in another part of her $200,000 bathhouse.

He said he ordered doors to individual massage booths removed and commented:

"There those boys lay, naked as jaybirds, and those pretty girls massaging them, but they couldn't do anything else because we had the doors."

Then there was the matter of the four nude statues. The colonel said the first time he spotted them at the dragon lady's bath house, "my reaction was, 'Oh my God' not on a military base, not in a combat zone."

"It didn't leave any doubt what she intended," he said. Castle, now retired from the Army, living in El Paso and recovering from wounds received during the Tet offensive, said he never could learn how Madame Phoung got Army permission to build the bathhouse in the first place.

In previous testimony she has been identified as a friend of former Brig. Gen. Earl Cole. Witnesses said Cole used his position as assistant chief of staff in Fietnam to intercede for her.

Agents of the Senate's permanent investigations subcommittee, which is probing corruption in the military's PXs and clubs, said that at last word the steam bath was still operating at Long Binh under a contract with the PX.

Railroad Strike Still Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Negotiators agreed after a brief breakdown Thursday to resume fragile talks to avert a nationwide rail crewmen's strike that otherwise only Congress could stop.

Meanwhile, United Transportation Union President Charles A. Luna headed for his Cleveland headquarters where any strike preparations would be centered.

Luna did not set any strike deadline. Both he and Asst. Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery, the government's chief mediator in the drawn-out dispute, said they were hopeful of a settlement with the nation's rail industry.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson commented at a morning White House ceremony that "we can be exceedingly hopeful" of a settlement, but Senate Republican Whip Robert Griffin of Michigan said "I'm pessimistic."

President Nixon used his emergency powers to head off a threatened strike Friday by another rail union, the 10,000-member Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, when separate negotiations involving this union broke down.

The President issued an executive order creating an emergency board to investigate this dispute, a move that forestalls a walkout for 60 days.

The board, still to be named, will study the dispute for 30 days and the parties then will have an additional 30 days in which to consider the board's findings.

The President has exhausted his emergency powers to deal with Luna's union, however. Union negotiators walked out of the Labor Department after an all-night session marked by frazzled nerves on both sides. Luna sent his negotiators back after talking with Usery.

Tax Cut Seen Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon's chief economic adviser said Thursday a speedup in scheduled tax cuts is a possibility if the administration's present fiscal policies fail to put enough steam in the economy.

Paul McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told newsmen the proposal for scheduling earlier effective dates for the cuts is one of several options open if changes have to be made in Nixon's economic game plan.

But for now, McCracken said, the idea is out of the question since the administration feels its policies will expand the economy fast enough to reduce unemployment and inflation.

He said the tax-cut speedup and deferral of a proposed increase in the Social Security tax base would be reasonable ways to add more stimulus to the economy if it is needed later in the year. "They are on the list" of options, he said.

McCracken referred to deferred tax cuts voted by Congress under the Tax Reform Act of 1969.

And he was responding to newsmen's questions on ideas put forward at a seminar by two former government economists, Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors under former President Lydon B. Johnson, and Maurice Mann, former assistant budget director under Nixon.

Mann said he favors the tax-cut speedup because Nixon's economic policies rely too heavily on monetary policies and not enough on fiscal policies as set forth in the 1972 fiscal year budget.

He proposed moving up the personal tax cuts now scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, 1972.

The impact of a speedup in tax-cuts would be a bigger deficit than the $11.6 billion Nixon has proposed, since revenues would be smaller, but it would not increase spending

NEW SHIPMENT ARRIVED!!!
WEAR-HOUSE
201 N. Pleasant St.
HAS BIG BELL JEANS
by Landlubber ®

THAT COLD DAY IN THE PARK

starring
Sandy Dennis
Michael Burns

Campus Center Auditorium

SAT., MARCH 6
7, 9, 11 P.M.

50c

JOIN THOSE WHO ARE TIRED OF BEING TREATED LIKE DIRT and BEING SOLD POOR QUALITY CLOTHING!

BOYCOTT!!

THE
WEAR HOUSE
CLOTHING STORE

SENIORS

Monday March 8

An open meeting for all Seniors to let you know what's going on with class government, activities for the rest of the semester, and commencement.

Monday March 8, 8 p.m., Mahar Aud.

Youth Voter Drive Launched

Youth Voter Participation of Massachusetts, a coalition of organizations and individuals, has launched a statewide youth voter registration drive, its goal to seek out register, and educate every eligable young voter in Massachusetts. Endorsements and support of the program have been received by the Massachusetts Council of Churches, Massachusetts Teachers Association, National Educational Association, 18x72, Boston NAACP, Massachusetts Intercollegiate Government, and Dr. Neil Sullivan, Commissioner, Massachusetts Department of Education.

YVP's goal is to register and educate as many young people as possible in the state. Offices will be set up in Springfield, Worcester, New Bedford and still another in Boston. The groups effort has already begun, and the target for actual registration is mid-April. The drive will be divided into categories of, high schools, colleges, minority and working youth. A co-coordinator will be appointed in each town, and will be responsible for all the youth in his area. An attempt will be made to have registrars at each high school college, office building, factory, and other locations where youth are assembled in large numbers.

YVP's aim is not only to register potential young voters, but to educate them about the election system, and to arouse their interest so that they will become well informed enough about the issues so they will be able to vote intelligently. Even though YVP is entirely non-partisan it is hoped that the young people of our state will become so involved with the political and legislative process, that they will work for the candidate of there choice in the coming years. It is with this in mind that YVP is hoping to have as many qualified speakers as possible speak at many high schools during the coming weeks.

Director of YVP is William M. Burke, 24, of Brighton. Mr. Burke is a 1969 graduate of American International College in Springfield, Massachusetts. He is the founder of the Massachusetts Intercollegiate Government, and in 1969 was nominated for a White House Fellowship. He was nominated by the Springfield Jayceesas,OutstandingYoungMan, and in 1970 was included in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Miss Susan Cohen, 20, a student at Boston University has been appointed public relations director. Miss Cohen has worked on a number of political campaigns, both local and statewide. Sue is a resident of Malden, Massachusetts where she has worked on numerous volunteer programs. Mr. Robert Benson will work as coordinator of high schools throughout the state. Mr. Benson received his BA Degree from the University of Minnesota, and his MAT from Harvard University. Mr. Benson a former teacher in Lexington, was also the Director of 18x72.

YVP will be trying to raise financial assistance from business, foundations, colleges and private contributions. Thus far The Codman Realty Co., A.B. Dick Co., Massachusetts Teachers Association, General Envelope, Carter Rice Storrs and Bement Co. John W. Murray Co. Bertz Corp. and many other local businesses have contributed to the registration drive. However a tremendous amount of voluntary assistance, financial backing and services are still needed.

Education, Narcotic Among Bills To Be Heard

Following is a list of bills which may be of interest to the University community and which will be heard in committees of the state Legislature within the next two weeks. An explanation of the committee process was included in a previous University and State Communications Council (USCC) release.

If there are any further questions, or if you desire information pertaining to these bills, legislative process, or how to contact your legislator, contact USCC at 545-0217 or by memo to RSO box #667, Campus Center.

Natural Resources and Agriculture Committee Legislation to: Establish noise standards for aircraft using airports under the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth (Mar. 15) Provide for the protection of endangered species of wild animals (Mar. 10) Establish certain standards to be used as levels of acceptable noise generated from any source (Mar. 15)

Public Safety Committee Legislation to: Require treatment and the furnishing of services to drug dependant persons and drug addicts (Mar. 11) Provide that cannabis shall not be considered a narcotic drug and providing different punishment for its sale or possession (Mar. 9)

Repeal the law regulating the use of contraceptives and family planning (Mar. 18) Repeal the law making it a crime to be present where a narcotic drug is found (Mar. 9)

Education Committee Legislation to: Establish the Commonwealth school of nursing (Mar. 8) Provide free tuition for members of the families of faculty members at public institutions of higher learning (Mar. 16) Authorize the Commissioner of Administration for the state to purchase supplies for state colleges and UMass. (Mar. 15) Prohibit sex discrimination in educational institutions (Mar 22) Establish University centers in the Commonwealth (Mar 15) Establish a commission to study the feasibility of an evening school at the University of Mass. (Mar. 8) Provide representation of employees on the UMass Board of Trustees (Mar. 8)

Allow Vietnam veterans to attend summer and evening classes at community colleges without tuition charge (Mar. 16) Establish a graduate school of public affairs at the University of Mass. (Mar. 8)

Establish a special commission to investigate possible construction of a new field house at UMass, Amherst (Mar. 8)

In addition, The Education Committee will hear testimony of several UMass students on March 8, relative to providing an additional student trustee so that both the Amherst and the Boston campuses will have student representation on the Board of Trustees. On March 16, several bills regarding tuition increases at all public institutions of higher education will be heard in Education Committee. Special Collegian coverage will be given on the progress of these issues.

Anti-Zombie Film Series Starts

Free University begins its Anti-zombie Film Series tonight in the student union ballroom. Featured will be Fredricko Fellini's color film "Juliet of the Spirit."

The film series originated to counteract the summer orientation program's showing the "Plague of the zombies" to this year's freshmen. Fellini's film is said to be based on his own wife, Juliet. Shown in a university setting it raises some pointed questions about zombie educational lifestyles.

"Juliet of the Spirit" begins at 8 p.m. Anyone interested in film showing and production can stop in or call the Free University.

In the article on the SWAP Student Governance group, the bill filed by Rep. John Olver (Amherst) will give UMass an additional student trustee, so that there will be one from each of the Amherst and Boston campuses. The bill will be heard before the Joint Education Committee at the State House, it will not give UMass representation on this committee.

No man is free until all men are free.

Helping people build a better life

THE EQUITABLE

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, New York, N.Y. An Equal Opportunity Employer, M F

For a free 18" x 24" poster of this advertisement, write: The Equitable, Dept. K, G.P.O. Box 1170, New York, N.Y. 10001

Pool Hustler Becomes Billiard Champ

Sophomore Paul Brouillette (left) of Lowell, Mass. became the winner of the 1970 Pocket Billiard Championships here at UMass-by edging out runner up Charlie Vidoli in the final match which was played recently at the Amherst campus. He later went on to capture third place in the New England Championships among a field of over twenty colleges and universities.

In the three cushion billiard tournament junior Bill McDonough (center) of Belmont, Mass. defeated Bud Symmes (right) to take first place. McDonough also went on to capture a third place for UMass in the Region 1 championships held at the University of Connecticut in February.

Room To Move

Flats Poison?' Barrels Potent

We still need to do some more talking about the gray acid that has been discussed in the Collegian Wednesday and Thursday. First, we still aren't sure who called the report on the gray flats in to the paper, but as best we can tell he was reporting the pills as poison on the basis of his experience with them rather than on the basis of any sort of chemical analysis. He still may be right.

We have analyzed a gray pill shaped like a saccharine tablet, a gray barrel. We have no reason as yet to believe that the two different shapes of gray pills have any similarity in chemical content. In other words, we know that the gray barrels are high dosage acid tabs (300plus y mikes), but we still don't know what the gray flats are. We hope to have an analysis of one by early next week. As we asked for with PCP, we would like any information that anyone has on the gray flats (or any other pill that is fairly new on campus and that people aren't very knowledgeable about).

If in the future anyone has a report on what he thinks are bad drugs on campus, we would really appreciate it if you give us a call before you call the Collegian. If the drugs really are bad, we need the information as soon as we can get it. Also, we may already know somthing about the reaction the drug is causing which might make it unnecessary to alert the whole community. We are anxious to assure that when a warning of bad drugs is given, it is true, so that people will trust the warnings they read and save themselves the pain of getting poisoned. If you have a reaction to a drug, you call us and we don't know anything that would prove that the drug itself isn't poison, and you then want to alert the community, we'll join you. We'll do everything we can to see that the danger is known as widely as possible as fast as possible, and then we'll try to follow the warnings up with accurate explanations of what the drug really is and what it does. We'll be able to help in situations of this kind only in as much as people want to use us as a resource.

OPEN HOUSE

8:00 –

FRIDAY MARCH 5

BAND IGUANA

THETA CHI

TONIGHT!!

Folk — Traditional — Soft Rock — Ballad — Humorous — Country Folk

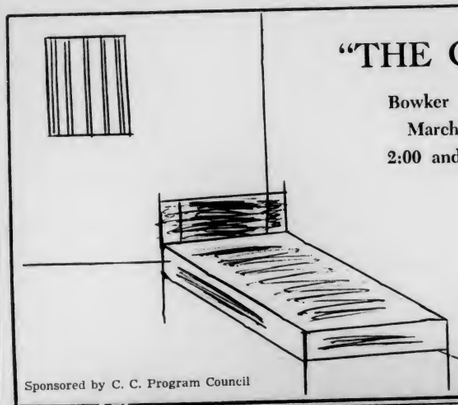
PREMIER SHOWING
DIRECT FROM MT. SNOW
THE FINAST IN CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

SWORREN & PYKE

at

The English Pub

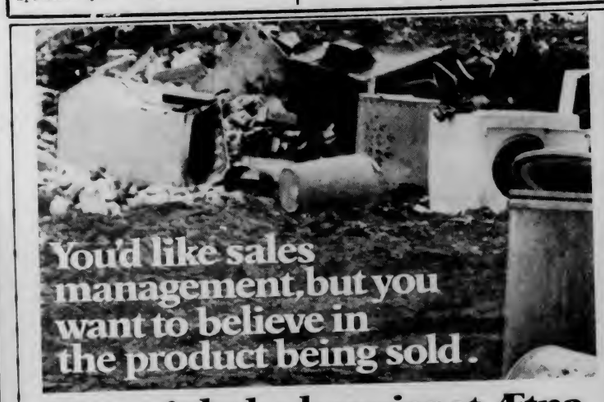
FRIDAY 9:30 til 12:30 TONITE



Cover Fifty Cents

"THE CAGE"

Bowker Auditorium



March 7, 1971

2:00 and 7:00 p.m.

A play about life in San Quentin Prison

Sponsored by C. C. Program Council

You might be happier at Ætna.

We think we might have what you're looking for. Something 27 million people depend on for security and a better life.

We'd like you to consider taking a sales management position with Ætna Life and Casualty. We have hundreds of broad-gauge management positions, both in the field and in the home office, that pay substantial salaries right from the start. They all take creativity and hard work. But the rewards can be very high. To yourself. To others.

If the insurance business is still the Overlooked Profession to you, it's probably because you haven't heard the whole truth about it yet. How fast-changing it has become. Or how sophisticated. Or that it is where the greatest variety of job opportunities are—today, insurance probably takes more college graduates than any other profession.

We have jobs in all divisions of our company. If you'd like face-to-face contact with people we have many positions that will give you immediate contact with the public. If you'd rather deal with your co-workers and other professionals, we have those, too. Tell us your preference, and we can work it out between us.

A brochure called "The Whole Truth" goes into the specifics on sales management as well as other opportunities. It'll tell you how Ætna works, what it does, and how you can become part of it. It's an honest picture of an honest business. Why not stop in at your placement office and read it.

Today, one out of six Americans looks to Ætna for insurance protection. You might build a successful career helping us help many more.

We are an Equal Opportunity Employer and a JOBS participating company.

Ætna LIFE & CASUALTY OUR CONCERN IS PEOPLE

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts -- Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Nathan Gronstein
NEWS STAFF — Ann Gurnett, Jim Mitchell
SPORTS — Fred Rosenthal
EDITORIAL — Jim Barrus
PHOTO — Gib Fullerton
AD LAYOUT — Kris Domian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"We've Got All The Time In The World —— However Much Time The World Still Has"

David Williams

No Big Deal

If in his new role as Jimmy Breslin-Norman Mailer reincarnated, Mark Silverman lays the blame for the Student Strike on those who were apparently responsible for it, I shall be very disappointed, for I think I know Mark better than that.

Everyone believes that the Strike was an offshoot of that weekend in New Haven. The Strike was called for there and people brought the word back to campus. How naive can you be to believe that the rag-tag motley band of radicals that inhabits UMass could pull off something as massive and widespread, at least for this campus, as the Strike?

Now Mr. Silverman is no stranger to those of you who consistently read this page. You should be well aware by now that he is extremely hard to fool and it saddens me to think that he is laboring under the delusion that the Strike was some sort of wondrous occurrence. Of course, I know that he feels that the Strike was used by a lot of people to gain acceptance into the "hip-radical" underground of UMass. Hell, I was on good terms with Eric the Rat and enjoyed many conversations with him in the office way before I got the idea for the Strike. I didn't need that two weeks of ridiculousness to cement a tenuous relatonship with anybody I wanted to lay on top of.

But I suppose for the sake of Mr. Silverman's mental health, I should reveal the real beginnings of the Strike before he gets too engrossed in writing it up for Spectrum. And before I do, a little aside for Mr. Silverman: If I do wreck all your plans for making a literary name by writing about the Strike, we can use a good feature on an emergency ward in a hospital next week. See me about it.

The Strike was my fault. Or rather, two of my friends and I dreamed the whole show up a year ago. As you all remember, a year ago Sunday was a Saturday and there was an eclipse that day. We began the celebration of the glorious event the night before by consuming 47 times our own weight in draft beer at a party. Then the next day we prepared for the eclipse by donning our sacrificial robes. We chose a normally inaccesible place for the ceremony, the island in the middle of the pond.

THE CAUCUS ON THE ISLAND

The signs we read from the eclipse were not good. They indicated that some sort of sacrifice would have to be made or the world would end. So we thought of the Strike.

No one can deny that the Strike was a sacrifice. It sapped the life out of all those who participated in it, left people drained of the overwhelming feelings they had when it began, people just sort of lost interest in protesting.

We planned it that way. My two friends and I, we're known in higher circles as the "doctors", sat on the island which was later symbolically liberated by Eric and his bunch from the Universal Life Church, we sat on that island and planned the whole thing out. From the first rumblings when Eric was clapped into jail for trespassing, which again, we were mixed up in since I faked sick and spent three days in the Infirmary, to the grand finale, when the Strike petered out under its own weight, we three were involved somehow.

This may take some of the wind out of Mr. Silverman's literary sails. Far be it from me to dash all his ambitions to pieces in one blow, but, sorry to say, the Strike was no big deal.

Mr. Silverman will certainly reply to this in his Spectrum piece but I'm afraid that by the time Spectrum comes out again, the Strike will be a dead issue, not that it isn't already.

As for the good doctors, I can only say that we've given a lot of careful thought to what we will plan this year to make everyone pay his debt to society. We're still working on it. Watch out.

Jim Mitchell

Don't Point That Finger

American's in some ways have a very wreckless nature about themselves. We will often dive into the unknown without considering the consequences of our actions until after severe harm takes place. Pollutants have been dumped in the water, earth and air for quite some time, but it is only now that we realize that it is harmfull to do this. We are on the verge of commiting ourselves to the production of the SST with insufficient research to see what effect it will have on our environment.

The ones who have been most responsible for urging a more thorough examination of our actions are, quite commendably, students. But many of these same people are also the ones who are partaking in a much more dangerous escapade without understanding the possible outcomes. I'm speaking of kids who smoke pot, shoot smack, and pop pills.

Let me go on record as considering these drugs as one category and against all of them, not for what they are or what they do, but for what harmfull things they might do.

For quite a few years no one even suspected that lead in gasoline, or phosphates in detergent was harmful. Yet after a comprehensive study both proved to be malevolent. Drugs, of any type should have the same close scrutiny, only before people consider their use.

Marijuana is not a very dangerous drug many say. You can get turned on at a party, and then wake up the next morning feeling even better than if you had drank a bottle of Southern Comfort. That's about all that can be said about it with any surety. As far as the mind or body go, no one has been able to show conclusively one way or the other what is happening.

The other point is that there are what appear to be many harmful social effects that are caused either directly or indirectly by drugs showing up already.

Crime is the most obvious result. It is no secret that some drug habits are just too expensive to support with a straight job. Result? A lot of innocent people suffer.

More importantly, pot has the possible effect of making some desires, or solutions to problems seem more urgent than they really are. Rational thought is abridged and it is very easy to take a one-sided view of things. Think back to when grass started gaining wide popularity among college students. It was about 1965. Now think back again to when the current wave of violent and destructive campus disorders began. It was about that same time.

Before this time, students with a gripe would go through orderly and admitedly time consuming procedures. Things didn't change quite as rapidly, but then again no one got hurt.

I'm not saying that this is definitely a cause-effect relationship. What I am saying that the inference is interesting and is worthy of consideration.

Until all drugs are scientifically examined, no one can really do more than speculate on the good or bad consequences of their use. Let's not be so hypocritical and point the finger at people over thirty for making some pretty bad mistakes without thinking about what we're doing ourselves.

On Student Evaluation

Since education began, teachers have been judging students. That's a traditional part of the job. And now comes John R. Silber, new president of Boston University, with the reasonable announcement that he means to institute "systematic student evaluation of teachers."

It may be that, in reality, students have always been the best judges of teachers, and, in practice, often the only ones.

Judging the performance of a professor, in the academic jungle, is a difficult business. Prexy, with a background in science, isn't going to sit in the back of the room and evaluate a lecture on Chaucer or economics. The trustees won't do it, because they're too busy and likewise unqualified. Nor is a committee of faculty members likely to move into a classroom to check on a colleague, to the latter's embarrassment.

The old rule of teaching, "Publish or perish," doesn't do much for the students, either. The professor may have six volumes published, and yet have neither the ability nor the zeal to impart knowledge to the young.

But the students are there every day, and they're not stupid or they'd be somewhere else. They know who's deadly dull and they know who's alive. They have a grapevine of their own. Word quickly gets around that Professor Zip has much to give and does give it, and his courses draw crowds.

Within limits, students are and must be judges of their instructors, and the later, when they are what they should be, welcome the arrangement. Evaluation is a two-way street.

Reprinted from Boston Globe 2/22/71)

The Hangman's Knot

A knot deep, deep inside twisting and turning loosening and tightening, reminding me
I'm wrong again.
For there is no answer
no longer wonder why
the facts are absolute and meaningless
To live is to die a thousand deaths
to die is to be free to stay caged in life's menagerie is to become encased in glass.
Wasting away lifetimes
with searching and crying
postponing living
to look for life.
Know that as the rose
imbibes its short-lived dew at morn
so too does man life.
So look inside
deep, deep inside,
beyond the frozen subterranean cover
beyond the cold steel insulation
beyond the sheath of stove that shelters the sleeping Ex-caliber.
Feel inside and be reminded;
feel the know tightning.

Lee E. Bishoff

ROTC Receives Thanks

(Editor's note-The student's of UMass Army and Air Sciences ROTC earlier in the year donated $1,165.75 from faculty and student contributions to the people of East Pakistan after that area suffered a tidal wave disaster. The following telegram was received by this group.)

February 23, 1971

U.S. Army and Air Force ROTC
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts

Gentlemen:
On behalf of the disaster victims of East Pakistan, bless you and thank you for the great help you have made available through Senator Ted Kennedy. He, in turn, has shared it with Catholic Relief Serivce and Church World Service.
In our expenditure we are pledged to assist the World Council of Churches to rebuild three villages totally destroyed by the cyclone and tidal wave, of 400 families each. The new villages will be of cyclone-resistant materials. Each village will have a tidal wave-proof community center, which will provide sanctuary if another tidal wave threatens.
Many thanks again for your help.

Sincerely,
James MacCracken
Executive Director

Editorial Points

Although making the NIT is a big thing, no one seems as excited about it as they were last year. What is it they say about complacency and success?

*****

Many people are beginning to wonder if all those hard hats who had so much trouble with college students last spring wish they had a few more allies right now. What a difference a year makes.

*****

The Senate Budgets Committee is busily whittling away the budgets of groups under its control. Presently, the SATF would be $48 for next year, a $12 increase over last year. However, rumor has it that Chancellor Tippo will veto any proposal calling for over $40. When was the last time you said a good word about dear old Oz?

*****

What was it that some one said about an arctic blast?

*****

The new edition of Spectrum is one of the finest yet. Our compliments to the staff.

*****

Only two more weeks until Spring vacation.

Letters To The Editor

Facts Of Life

To the Editor:

It seems to me that continuous debate over a subject such as that centering around Women's Liberation should at least progress beyond the initial disagreement if not approach a solution. But judging from the letter by Mark Dlugosz in yesterday's Collegian and many others like his, there is still an overabundance of people who are yet functioning on a level of conditioned response to most stimuli, intellectual as well as physical.

Although Mr. Dlugosz sets himself apart from Mr Mitchell's "philosophy", there is somethig disturbingly similar in both their arguments; lack of thought. Who is using emotion rather than logic? In Miss Gloss's argument I saw no sweeping generalizations regarding the "facts of life" or confident statements of what people are really like. Her thoughts were not based on the questionable thing some prefer to call "reality", but on that which appeared to be a deep, personal need. She showed what all of us should; careful scrutiny of those traditions and concepts which Mr. Dlugosz feels we should accept on the basis of blind rationalization such as his.

It is the existence of ignorant and biased attitudes toward women's mental and physical capabilities which perpetuates those conditions he uses to justify women's treatment as inferior beings. And these attitudes are not deliberately chosen at a given moment. They are the result of years of conditioning. How much chance does a girl have to think or behave individually when all her life she has been led to believe that she is inferior in mind and body, and has been brought up to fulfill the role of child-bearer, housewife, bed-mate and nothing more? How many potential geniuses, artists and leaders have been lost to the world because, simply due to the fact that they were female, they were never let to discover their own powers? Think about that sometime, Mark, if you ever have the future of a daughter in your hands.

I am also tired of hearing women as well as men concede to the belief that women are physically inferior. This centers around conditioning too. What woman would risk the embarrassment of displaying physical strength when firmly planted in her mind is the idea that she must be a weak, muscleless blob in order to attract anyone of the opposite sex? How about the amount of exercise allotted to females throughout their lives? How many fathers take their daughters out to hunt or fish with them? Consider the kind of toys with which little girls are provided before they even come to realize what sex they are. Look at the difference in phys. ed. courses for males and females from grade school all the way through college. Is it any wonder that most women are weaker than men?

Another question, Mark...you mentioned survival of the fittest...In the first place that theory applies to individuals and not to sex, and in the second place, if women were really less fit than men, they would have disappeared from the earth long ago. And still another point; you assumed that Miss Gloss would object to being drafted. Male or female, who wouldn't?

Do not conclude from all this that I consider male to be deliberately discriminating against females. As was pointed out in another letter by Dick Desroches, males as well as females are labeled and molded into the prescribed image of their sex. If it were not for this fact, they would probably have realized a long time ago the stupidity of their actions and beliefs. Neither sex will come out on top if this ridiculous battle continues. It is not up to men to grant women their freedom; women must take it for themselves. And men, in turn, should work on freeing themselves from their own sexual restriction. Both sexes should direct their attacks not against each other, but against a social order which suppresses individual creativity and expression of feeling.

SUSAN WHITE

What About It?

To The Editor:

I am sympathetic to Robert Greenberg's letter in Tuesday, March 2, Collegian about Campus aesthetics.

While we are on the subject about aesthetics of this Campus, what about the aesthetics of the student body on this Campus?

If you walked on this Campus twenty years ago you would see one out of ten students that look like the majority look today, long haired, unshaven, dirty, ragged clothes and just plain "crummy" you might say. The one student that stood out above the others was called a "bum" because he looked like one.

Today, you walk around campus and you see only one out of ten students that is clean shaven, hair cut, neat and well groomed. And I think it is a disgrace to this university, the community, and our state, not to mention the whole country, that we have a University filled with such lazy, unkempt, poor specimens of students cluttering our state supported institution.

If students want a better looking university, why don't they start with the students themselves. Why don't you have a demonstration, drive, strike or whatever you call it for a better looking student body. Wouldn't our University on the whole look better? Wouldn't it show our community that we do have a good looking University? And, finally wouldn't our state and country look better "aesthetically" as you say, Mr. Greenberg.

It starts somewhere and if the students showed some initiative and a little ambition they could do something about it.

Name withheld upon request.

They're Human Too

To the Editor:

We've seen it, heard it and read it.
It goes something like; "No matter what your political philosophy..."No matter where your head is on the war...
And the clincher.."What if he were your brother?...
"WELL HE IS!"
Write: President, Democratic People's Republic of Vietnam Hanoi, North Vietnam
"It will only take a minute and twenty cents air postage."

OH! What a humanitarian act we solicit... getting those dirty gook commies to release OUR BOYS (aircraft bomber and helicopter pilots and crews, highly trained at great expense to the war machine...That's human campital gang!)

Those cruel bastards in Hanoi! Have they no sense of decency? These boys, OUR BOYS have a mom and a girl and maybe a wife and kids back home...and besides it's almost Easter forchristsake.

Write: President, Republic of Vietnam Saigon, South Vietnam
and President, United Stats of Amerika Washington, D.C. Amerika
It will only take a minute and a couple of stamps
(We've got thousands of THEIR BOYS. Our enemies...of course?
Maybe even not so highly trained in technological warfare, just dirty commie gooks.)
From one personal experience, turning over one, blind, very old "suspect" to the authorities in 1967. I witnessed OUR kind humanistic treatment of one of THEM. See Ramparts Magazine February '71 for a more in depth account of our prisoner handling.

W.P. Byrnes

Community Responsibility?

To The Editor:

Day Care is an important service for the working woman. The Day Care Center is a place where children can be watched by reliable people at little or no cost. More space is required by law for the children than most working class families can give in their own homes. The idea of a service for child care shifts the responsibility for children from the parents to the whole community. The children have more children and adults from different backgrounds to share with and the parents have more freedom to do what they want to for their own growth and happiness. Being away from each other at times makes time spent together more enjoyable for parent and child.

For working women, low cost day care means they will no longer have to spend 2/3 of their salaries for baby-sitters. And since many women work because they are the sole parent, their children would have the benefit of being close to more adults than they might otherwise.

Day Care is expecially important in this culture where so much of the burden of raising a family is placed on the mother. Because Women are trained to be wives and mothers it is easy for universities and industries to discriminate against admitting as many women as men to the same positions for the same wages. Most women don't have the energy to try to force changes in present policies and are usually unable to do things alone even if they have the courage. And a large number of men and women who cannot accept people who try to change the things they have been used to all these years (women just aren't supposed to be engineers or plumbers or academic deans. Secretaries just aren't supposed to be paid the same as their bosses even though they know twice as much about the work as he does.) As women begin to be freed from some of their duties with the children they will be able to share their ideas and talents with the society as they were never permitted to before.

Developing a day care center can do a lot for bringing people closer together. They learn how to cooperate to meet their needs. Women learn to advise and direct activities while men learn to share some of the responsibility for things they never considered their job. It helps to make each person an individual with things to share, rather than forcing everyone into a role they cannot fit.

Dale LaBonte
Deborah Jacobs

Rip-off Not Worth It

To The Editor:

I recently experienced a most humiliating and embarrassing situation. Unlike so many other people who "shoplift" and get away with it, it was my misfortune to be apprehended. I am writing this letter in hopes that my experience will help to open peoples' eyes to the severity of the repercussions which may follow.

The most severe penalty which may be inflicted in the state of Massachusetts is one to five years. Although this is unlikely to be carried out, there are a number of other ramifications which I feel should be pointed out. Included in these, is the record of your arrest. Not only does this deprive you of certain priveleges such as acquiring a Passport, but also it prohibits you from ever holding a Federal job. With a "Shoplifting" offense on your record, your chances of securing any job are greatly reduced, and impaired. Now, think about that thing which you are about to "rip off". Is it really worth the risk of these severe repercussions? I had to learn the hard way, but for you there is still time. I implore you to think of your future.

Name Withheld Upon Request

Forgivemenss Offered

To The Editor:

To the person who ripped-off my air force jacket in Boyden, Wednesday night, I just want to say it's not the keys in my pocket, which are no good to you but which I have to pay six dollars for, and its not the fact that I had to walk back from Boyden in just a borrowed sweater during the snow storm, it's just the idea that you wouldn't give two shits for your fellow man that hurts me.

IS THIS OUR BETTER WAY?

If possible to return my badly needed and very loved jacket, please contact the MDC office for my forwarding address, no questions asked.

Name Withheld Upon Request

Pay To Help Others?

To The Editor:

I was totally amazed at the action taken by the Dept. of Public Utilities, involving the Student Senate Bus Service. In Tuesday's Collegian I read that the transportation provided for the Belchertown and Northampton volunteers was declared illegal. It seems that the Peter Pan and Western Mass. bus lines complained that the "shutties were in direct competition with them and took away potential customers."

Why do the bus companies consider a non stop shuttle to Belchertown State Hospital to be in "direct competition with them"? Why do they feel that they have the "legal" right to transport volunteers to Northampton? Do they expect students to pay for transportation to volunteer their time at a State institution?

William Perkins, head of the campus shuttle, is pleased with the decision. He said, "it could have been more restrictive." He and the bus companies may be pleased, but the volunteers are not. President Wood, where are you?

Ben Visnick

Weekend

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Music

DON GIOVANNI
The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre production, in English, of Mozart's classic opera. Tonight's performance is sold out, to be performed again tomorrow night at 8 in Bowker Auditorium, seats are scarce. ($)

FAT
Some good rock, Saturday SU Ballroom, 8 p.m. ($)

Films

BREWSTER MCCLOUD (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Robert Altman directed this black comedy about a young man who lives in the Astrodome and wants to fly. Sally Kellerman is featured in a large cast that includes some of Altman's MASH crew. Probably the best black comedy since Dr. Strangelove.

CANDY (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9)
Remember the book you use to read with baited breath in your room on Saturday afternoon while you Mother was out shopping? Well now its a respectable film, but alas, not a very good one. Ringo Starr, Peter Sellers, and Marlon Brando star in this tale of a girl who hops from bed-to-bed (and star-to-star).

THE CONFESSION (Campus cinemas, Hadley)
Costa-Graves first film since Z. Yves Montand and Simone Signoret star in this political thriller.

DOCTOR'S WIVES (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfield)
Dyan Cannon, Janice Rule, Diana Sands, Cara Williams, and Rachel Roberts are among the whole sick crew in this sugary soap opera of dubious dramatic worth.

FREAKS (Friday, Campus Cinemas, 11)
Tod Browning ("Dracula") last film. It was banned for thirty years for being far too shocking for public viewing. It's a melodrama set in a carnival side-show and is, for curiosity value, one of the most interesting films to be shown in some time.

GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER? (Thursday, SU, 7 and 9)
The title alone has the condescending liberalism which makes this Stanley Kramer film as obnoxious as it possibly can be. Then again it is depressing to watch Spencer Tracy in his final role filmed with months of his death. Sidney Poitier stars as a Nobel Prize Winner engaged to Katherine Houghton, daughter of liberal newspaper editor Tracy and Katherine Hepburn. Tracy has an identity crisis, of sorts, over the entire issue and it's quite boring to watch.

GIMME SHELTER (Campus Cinemas, S, Hadley)
The Rolling Stones, Hells Angels, and Altamont are brought to you in living color in this documentary by the Maysels Brothers. Besides seeing and hearing Jagger and the Stones, the film makes a strong statement about the seamier side of the Woodstock generation

HELLZAPOPPIN' (Saturday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst 8)
The Olson and Johnson Broadway revue in film form. Satire and slapstick from the late Thirties featuring the master duo from vaudeville.

JULIET OF THE SPIRITS
Fellini's feminist 8 1/2. Giuletta Massina stars as a bored housewife who escapes into her fantastic dreams. His first film using color and it's used to all conceivable possibilities.

KINETICS II, part two (Tuesday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9)
The second portion of this series of experimental films.

LOVE STORY (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfield)
"We were young lovers strolling near the fountain of love, the fountain of love, the fountain of love, the fountain of love. F Zappa

PERFECT FRIDAY (Amherst Cinema, Amherst)
A witty and wild comedy-thriller about a trio of unlikely crooks played with great fun by Ursulla Andress, Stanley Baker, and David Warner.

QUE VIVA MEXICO and BEZHIN MEADOW (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)
Two of Sergiei Eisenstein's most controversial and perhaps most creative films: Que Viva Mexico was shot on Eisenstein's visit to the United States, and financed by the Upton Sinclair family. This film was to be a grand epic on Mexican thought and history. It was never finished, but film critics and historians have said that the compositions, feelings and organization of the film were among his greatest achievments.

Bezhin Meadow dealt with the contributions of the Russian youth to the growth of the nation, both during the period of the Czar and during the post-Revolution years. Part of the film is based on the writings of Turgenev. Production was halted in 1937 because the heirarchy thought the film foo "formalist" or technically complex for the Russian masses.

THAT COLD DAY IN THE PARK (Saturday, Campus Center Aud., 7, 9, 11)
Sandy Dennis plays a lonely, thirty-two year old spinster who, one dey, picks up a strange nineteen year old boy in the park. Robert Altman's first film is rather strange yet cheap and sensational.

THE STERILE CUCKOO (Friday and Sunday, DC 6, 5, SW, 7:15 and 9:30)
Liza Minelli gives a truly fine performance as Holden Caulfield-like character, Pookie Adams. She calls everyone "weirdos" and falls in love with quite a drip who eventually sends her away.

VIVA MAX (Friday, Mahar, 6:45 and 9)
An absurd look at the Alamo in which it is recaptured. An insane Mexican general, Peter Ustinov, recaptures the Alamo and the Americans, led by Jonathan Winters, can't get him out. A political satire on the hopeless bureaucracy of the American military.

THE CAGE
Atouring company of this interesting theater piece, see extended article elsewhere on page. ($)

THE COUNTRY WIFE
UT's first play of the semester. See review elsewhere on page. ($)

THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE
A Broadway and London success of some seasons past. It tells of an unconventional school teacher at a British private school and how her involvement with her students leads finally to her dismissal.

At the Laboratory Theatre, Mt. Holyoke College, March 5, 6, and 7 at 8:15. ($)

Theater

RICHARD II
Shakespear's history play, performed by the Amherst Masquers this weekend at Kirby Theatre, Amherst College, 8:30 PM.

Tryouts will begin March 9 for the University Theatre's final production, Does A Tiger Wear a Necktie by Don Petersen. This contemporary drama, directed by James Young, confronts life in a drug rehabilitation center. The addicts are urban teenagers. Trying to understand them is their English teacher, Mr. Winters. The beat is now, as hopelessness and hope mingle when the kids try to realistacally consider living "out there."

All students interested in being cast must attend one of the general meetings.

The schedule is as follows: 3:30 Tuesday, March 9; 7:00 Tuesday, March 9; 7:00 Wednesday, March 10.

At the time of the general meetings, individual readings will be scheduled. Meetings are in Bartlett 109. Scripts are on reserve in Goodell Library. There will be limited rehearsal and one "marathon" before April 5, but concentrated rehearsals will begin April 5. For further information see Dr. Young, South College.

Play Explores Inmates' Existence

In 1957 a new, most unique, theatre group was formed - the Barbwire Theatre. The members of this Theatre are all former prison inmates. The Barbwire Theatre was initiated by an inmate of San Quentin Prison, Rick Cluchey, who was sentenced to life imprisonment of a charge of kidnapping, and doing bodily harm to his victim. "I was hit by the absurdity of my situation," says Cluchey. "If I was going to spend my life behind walls, I had to find something to do." Cluchey's career in drama proceeded from acting to directing, and finally, to writing his own play - "The Cage."

Due to wide publicity of this new play, a play about life in a prison cell, Cluchey's sentence was commuted by Governor Pat Brown in 1966, and he was released on life parole. Together with another convict interested in drama, Ken Whelan, director of "The Cage," Cluchey founded the Barbwire Theatre.

The Barbwire Theatre has a twofold purpose: to rehabilitate former prisoners and to influence public opinion concerning the penal system of America. The company accepts only former prisoners. It helps these men develop their acting or stagecraft abilities and become accomplished professionals.

The play itself deals with life in a prison cell, the cage with is implied in the title. The cage is the home of three prisoners: a demented multiple-murderer named Hatchet, a self-pitying cripple named Al, and a smooth-talking conman called Doc. For the monotonous timelessness that characterizes prison life they have been locked in the cage. The action begins when Jive, a student convicted of the murder of his 17-year-old girlfriend, is made a fourth inmate. The play draws the audience into the perverted interaction of men confined to barren surroundings and reduced to animal existence.

Following the play is a ten-minute intermission, following which the actors return to the stage for a "Confrontation" with the audience - a discussion and question-and-answer period.

"The Cage" will be presented on Sunday, March 7, 1971, at 2:00 and 7:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Admission price is $1.50 (Orchestra seats) and $1.00 (Balcony). Tickets are now on sale at the Student Union Ticket Office, and will be available at the door one-half hour prior to each performance. This program is being sponsored by the Campus Center Program Council.

Follies

Stunning Musical

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Throughout FOLLIES, the new musical which opened a pre-Broadway tryout in Boston last week, esquisitely dressed showgirls from the Ziegfeld era stalk a huge, empty backstage set. They walk, then stand motionless, detached yet part of the stage action about them, as perhaps a ghost may haunt or a dream may linger. They stand cold, starkly beautiful in costumes of black and white with plumed or feathered headpieces, to be stared at and not touched.

These showgirls are an apt metaphor for the musical, a technically stunning, spectacular production yet very cold, unmoving, and, at times, even static.

The problem is with the book. William Goldman (who's previous major successes have been THE LION IN WINTER and the screenplay for BUTCH CASSIDY) has attempted to tell a story about people afraid of middle age and who long for the past. It is this relationship, between past and present--reality and dreams, about which this innovative musical is built.

The story tells of a reunion of two couples who were once part of the Follies some thirty years before. One couple has become internationally known, the other has settled down in suburbia somewhere, both are unhappy. They meet at a reunion of old Follies performers being held backstage at the theater where the shows once ran. Everyone at this party is imbedded in nostalgia and they joke, sing, and dance as they had decades before. The thrust of the plot deals with the two couples and how they attempt to relive now what might have been years before. It becomes ever involved and the characters are not very well drawn for the center of the play to work. Instead of relating to the characters, we only watch them and their unhappiness isn't quite real.

Technically the production is brilliant. Producer Hal Prince and choreographer Michael Bennett have co-directed this long musical with some very inventive staging. They use Boris Aronson's multi-platformed backstage set to nearly all its possible advantages and are able to make the play both understandable and interesting, which considering the complexities of the book, is quite an achievement.

Few Broadway composers are as good as Stephen Sondheim and he's at his best with FOLLIES. His specialty and period piece numbers reflect the Thirties reverently and delightfully. Especially nice is his daft use of counterpoint and his urbane, witty lyrics. Sondheim is able to captive in song what the book so sorely needs for the score is concise and fits both characters and times.

Both aging matrons and young dancers tap dance and tango in some fine musical staging by Michael Bennett. The best is a Busby Berkley--type chorus number which highlights the first act. Here the older women line the front of the stage while on a platform behind their counterparts from previous days tap dance as it was in the original Follies. Along with being a show-stopping number, the song deftly brings the show's themes into the musical entertainment.

The performances are uniformally good. As the rich bitch Alexis Smith is radiant and Dorothy Collins proves she again can sing as the scatter-brained housewife. John McMartin does his best with the poorly-written part of the famous diplomat who is unable to love anyone and Gene Nelson, of old Warner Bros. musicals fame, makes an excellent cad. Yvonne DeCarlo rounds out the leading roles as an aging movie star and does a very funny "tango" number.

FOLLIES is long and complicated; it's brilliant execution, yet falls a bit short in content, at least with its book. [illegible] theater with the [illegible] being an inventive, bru[illegible]

The Country Wife

Enchanting and Hilarious

By ED JANUSZ
MDC Staff

UMass Theatre is presenting an excellent production of "The Country Wife", through Saturday night in Bartlett Theater. The unwieldy Restoration comedy, which could have been a stifling slice of pure tedium, was whipped into an enchanting, obscene, and genuinely hilarious period play.

"The Country Wife" worked over a very simple story line--the myriad loves of a Don Juan-like character named Horner and the men whose wives he spoiled--and to keep track of the trysts and deceits was a mighty task. The play was simply too long, lasting nearly three hours, but was still effective.

There was no obvious plays to make it modern or relevant, thankfully; the play's web of deceit spoke for itself and any attempts to alter or emphasize this aspect of an essentially light-spirited piece would probably have sunk the whole thing into pompous much. Much more importantly, however, the production's emphasis on period authentically gave the company a chance to play up the most appealing aspects of "The Country Wife": The bombastic manerisms, mindboggling emphasis on social honor, and the absolutely gorgeous rococo costumes that together with flawless acting turn this play into life.

The cast was even stronger than the production; everybody performed flawlessly. P.N. Ryan as Pinchwife, whose country wife falls for Horner, had perhaps the hardest part as an unbelievably gullible and pompous old fruit, but he made this tough role perfectly believable; and the entire cast was faultless in a performance that was especially marked by meticulous attention to details. Everyone on the stage at any time was busy responding to the central action thru their mannerisms and expecially their facial expressions, thereby adding needed depth to the characters and a feeling of warmth and spontanaiety to a UT production that it would be hard to praise too much.

Ghana And Nigeria Host African Study Programs

Dr. C. Eric Lincoln, president of the American Forum for International Study, announced today that universities in Ghana and Nigeria would be the sites for the fourth consecutive African Studies programs sponsored by the American Forum.

The African Studies program will begin July 3 and conclude August 5, and will carry six academic credits from the University of Massachusetts. The faculty for the programs will be drawn exclusively from the African Studies specialists of the Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, and the University of Ibadan (Nigeria).

Dr. Lincoln said that the Ghana program, in addition to 60-75 hours of lectures, would include field study trips to Kumasi, Elmina, Tema, and other historical sites. Special programs of dance, music and the arts will be included as part of the program. The National Dance Company of Ghana led by Mr. A.M. Opoku will perform for the participants.

Prof. A.M. Opoku

The program in Nigeria will be centered in Ibadan and have as its theme Comparative African Cultures. Lectures will be provided by leading scholars from the University of Ibadan and field trips will be made to Lagos, Ife, Abeokuta, and the Muslim North. American teachers will be given the opportunity to collect and develop materials for use in their U.S. Classrooms.

As in all American Forum programs, Ghanaian and Nigerian students will participate in the programs.

In addition to university based programs, Dr. Lincoln also announced that the Forum would sponsor a six country West African cultural tour. Nations to be visited are Senegal, Liberia, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Dahomey, and Nigeria. Participants in the three-week program will meet with leading figures in the fields of government, education, and the arts of each nation.

Information about the Forum's 1971 programs may be obtained by writing Dr. Melvin Drimmer at 86 Forsyth Street, N.W., Atlanta, Georgia.

French In France

Professor Frederick Busi of the Romance language department has announced that the University will sponsor three different programs of study in France open to qualified students, both French and non French majors.

One program advocates a semester spent at the University of Caen, and another arranges for a summer school course at Pau. Those wishing to spend the entire academic year in Paris, living with a French family and taking courses along with UMass professors, may enroll in the year abroad program directed by the Boston Campus.

For further information please contact Professor Busi in Herter 321. Applications should be submitted as soon as possible for acceptance in next year's program.

Dog Menaces Guard; Master Key Used

The following are selected entries from the logs of the Campus Police, the Security Guards, and the Residence Hall Assistants compiled by MDC Staff Reporter John Fitzgerald for the period Tuesday, March 1, 1971.

March 1, 1971.

5:30 a.m. Report of vending machines broken into in Northeast Area.

7:50 a.m. Report of a larceny at a construction site.

11:20 a.m. Investigation of a breaking and entering in the Southwest Area.

1:20 p.m. Investigation of a fraud by check.

3:55 p.m. Report of a stolen motor vehicle from Zayres Parking Lot.

7:40 p.m. Request for an ambulance from Southwest Area.

10:15 p.m. Report of vandalism to a motor vehicle in South Central Area.

March 2, 1971.

-- -- -- A Northeast Area Security Guard was menaced by a large brown and black dog. Residents of one of the area dorms claimed that this dog and another belonged to a non-student resident of the dorm. All persons are warned to watch where they are walking.

7:50 a.m. Investigation of a larceny from an Academic Building.

9:45 a.m. Report of a larceny from motor vehicle in Southwest.

2:20 p.m. Report of a larceny from motor vehicle in Central Area.

6:05 p.m. Complaint of firecrackers in Southwest Area.

10:00 p.m. Complaint of firecrackers in Northeast Area.

10:00 p.m. A Southwest Residence Hall Assistant coming on duty discovered a tunnel door unlocked that had previously been locked at 7 p.m. This door could only have been unlocked by a master key. Work Control was notified and the lock changed.

TOMORROW NIGHT
SEE
George Anderson
playing the guitar
at
The English Pub
9:30 til Close
that is
SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE PUB

FINE ARTS COUNCIL 1970/71 SERIES
events
BOWKER AUDITORIUM/UNIVERSITY OF MASS.
FRI., MARCH 5 & SAT., MARCH 6 8 P.M.
GOLDOVSKY GRAND OPERA THEATRE
Presents Mozart's "Don Giovanni" in fully-staged production sung in English.
TUES, MARCH 16 & WED, MARCH 17 8 P.M.
ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATRE
Direct from a triumphant tour of Africa, Soviet Union and Great Britain. Two different evening programs plus a master class and lecture demonstration.
For complete program and ticket information please contact the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall
(Remaining tickets at Bowker one hour before event.)
Tel. 545-0202

Look Jane,
See
ORT
Play
FRIDAY
8 - 11 p.m
in the
HATCH
FREE
P.C.

Have confidence
It'll help you through oral reports, speeches, class recitations and even just being with your friends. It's something every girl needs. One way to be confident is with Tampax tampons.
Internally worn Tampax tampons can keep you cool and calm even when you're the center of attention. They can't show or chafe or cause odor like sanitary napkins. They're softly compressed and highly absorbent for protection you can depend on.
And one more important fact: Tampax tampons were developed by a doctor so you know you can trust them. Even if you've just begun to menstruate.
Confidence has made Tampax tampons the best-selling tampons in the world. And that confidence can make things easier for you.
NO BELTS NO PINS NO PADS NO ODOR
Right from the start . . .
TAMPAX
10 Regular
10 Regular
DEVELOPED BY A DOCTOR NOW USED BY MILLIONS OF WOMEN
TAMPAX TAMPONS ARE MADE ONLY BY TAMPAX INCORPORATED PALMER, MASS.

Counseling Center Issues Guidelines For T-Groups

Dr. Southworth, Miss Bossi, and Mr. Kelly of the Student Counseling Center in Whitmore have prepared the accompanying set of guidelines for students interested in sensitivity training. Sensitivity - groups can be personally satisfying and often provide the kind of significant personal experience that attract people to them, but this does not always happen. On a sterner note, group experiences can turn out to be extremely unpleasant and occasionally harmful.

Our own experiences with sensitivity groups has been quite rewarding. We would like for yours to be also. We hope that the guidelines laid out here will lead students to choices that are likely to be satisfying and growth-producing - not disillusioning or destructive.

Guidelines

1) Does the person offering a - group experience evidence concern about your emotional stability prior to your entering a group? Is he also fully concerned that you understand in advance what it is you are contracting to experience?

2) If a proposed group offers very intense emotional experiences, is professional follow-up assured by competent members of one of the mental health professions? Or does the trainer or leader have that competence?

3) Credentials are difficult to assess and good credentials do not always assure competence - but: does the person offering a group experience aseribe to the code of ethics of the American Psychological Association, or the American Personnel and Guidance Association, the American Medical Association or the standards of the National Training Laboratories or some other responsible recognized organization? If he is unfamiliar with these, are his qualifications certified by a knowledgeable and responsible member of such an organization? You should not hesitate to satisfy yourself on this point before contracting to enter a group. It is probably your best assurance of competence. Responsible professionals will not ordinarily undertake anything they are not trained or fully prepared to do.

4) During or immediately after a group experience, do not make major or important irreversible decisions. Wait until you have "come down" from a group "high" or other intense group experience before making significant decisions. One needs time to evaluate new learning from a group and to apply it sensibly to one's own life.

Ethical problems surrounding the human potential movement are difficult to sort out. People can genuinely and with good intentions feel free to offer all sorts of experiences to students placing the full responsibility for what happen on the student, who, after all, entered into it of his own free choice. But lack of clinical training and clinical awareness occasionally leads to unforeseen blunders that can affect a group member in an unfortunate way.

We so not wish to come off unnecessarily as alarmists. If you are a strong person emotionally, the worst thing likely to happen will be that you become turned off by a bad group experience or go through a period of temporary upheaval. If you are more vulnerable emotionally, then you personal risk is greater in a group that is led or ficilitated by someone with limited training. This is especially true if intense emotions are generated in the group.

If you have questions or would like to talk with someone about group or other sensitizing experiences, please feel free to call one of the following:

Counseling Center	545-0333
Community Center	545-0864
Human Relations Center	545-0915
Mental Health Service	545-2337

Notices

B TOWN VOLUNTEERS:
Bus leaves Whitmore 12:45 on Sat. for the State School. Help someone.

COUNSELING CENTER:
Sensitivity groups will be offered this semester at the following times: Mon. afternoons 4 p.m.; Tues. evenings 7 p.m. Wed. afternoons 3 p.m.; Fri. afternoons 1:30 p.m. Interested students may sign up through next week in Rm 243 Whit more.

FELLINI:
"Juliet of the Spirit" will be shown in the SU Ballrm at 8 p.m. Fri. night. A Free University Production.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP:
Paul Mar Vittie will be speaking on prayer, the need for prayer groups, prayer cells, how to pray, etc. All are welcome. Memorial Hall 8 p.m. Friday.

MARINE SCIENCES SEMINAR:
Monday, March 8th at 3:30 p.m. in Rm 312 Holdsworth Mr. Lawrence A. Klapow, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, will speak on "The Ecology and Behavior of a San Beach Isopod, Excirolana. Coffee at 3:15.

MASSAGE WORKSHOP:
All Folk interested in Massage Workshop come to Rm 169 of the C.C. Bring a towel and your body. Rub your neighbor.

NAIADS:
Come together this weekend and get in the swim. Time marches ON.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA
Get it together. Join the Friday night at Phi Sigma Club. Open House at 8:30 p.m. Phi Sigma Kappa. 510 No. Pleasant St. All welcome.

PEOPLE'S CHURCH SERVICE
Focus this week is on "Jesus Christ Superstar" All are welcome C.C. Rm 162, Sun. from 6-7:30 p.m.

PROGRAM COUNCIL
Hatch people. Free band Friday night. See ORT 8:11 p.m.

UNIVERSAL LIFE FESTIVAL
The ULC will hold premature festivities for the spring. Bring yourself to share. Bring anything to share.

WHIST PARTY
There will be ANOTHER great WHIST PARTY in the back of the Hatch, Sunday, March 7th at 6:30 p.m. All welcome.

LOST
My favorite hat. It's rust and beige with a pom pom. Lost in Hill area. If found please call Susan, 435 Van Meter 6-1194.

Gold rimmed glasses, betw. Hasbrouck & SU. If found please return to Maryanne, 130 Van Meter, or call 6-1118.

A small brown puppy lost in Pufton Village. Call 549-6564.

Man's U of M gold class ring with Frat AOU on the stone. Believed to be lost Wed. night in S.B.A. restroom. Call 545-2251 & ask for George or return to Campus Police.

2 dorm keys on a green leather braid lost Wed. night somewhere betw. SW & the infirmary. Call 6-7302.

1 set of keys on chain with pen knife. Please return to SU Lost & Found.

A sterling silver pendant from a choker lost. Modernistic shape like an anchor. Great sentimental value. Call 546-6806.

Prescription glasses with round brown tortoise shelled frame. Please call Karen at 546-1136 if found.

Tortoise shell eyeglasses in black case lost. Name on rims. Todd P. 6-4073.

1 pair of round gold rimmed glasses in hard brown case. Desparate! Call 1-534-7790.

1 new fisherman knit sweater lost Wed. night 3/3 behind DC 7 inside my locked car. Call D at 665-3276 after 5 p.m.

FOUND
Room key betw. Boyden & Bartlett. Call 66506 after 6.

ENGAGEMENT
Deboran D. Melnick, '71, of Iota Gamma Upsilon to Hank Vernell of Colorado.

THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE
A play by Jay Presson Allen
Directed by Fontaine Syer
"Give me a girl at an impressionable age, and she's mine for life."
OPENING TONIGHT at the LABORATORY THEATRE Mount Holyoke College South Hadley
Students $1.00 all others $2.00
For reservations call 536-4000, ext. 596
from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily
Performances March 5-6-7 and 11-12-13-14
Curtain is at 8:15 p.m. for all performances.

MIXER
CLEAR SKY
in Pierpont Lounge
Fri., March 5 9-1
Guys 50¢ Girls 25¢

University Theatre
presents
THE COUNTRY WIFE
by William Wycherley
March 3, 4, 5, 6 $1.75
8:30 p.m. Bartlett Aud.

Program Council Presents
CANDY
S. U. BALLROOM
Sunday, March 7 7 & 9:30 P.M.

FELLINI
A very good color movie. Called "Juliet of the Spirit" based on Fellini's own wife. Free U. shows you at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. Cheaper than the talkie.
TONIGHT

Because we believe it, watching the film is very much like taking part in some encounter group— there's no way to escape the image on the screen, nor to deny its truth. —Richard Goodwin, Rolling Stone
A WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS PREMIERE

The Rolling Stones
GIMME SHELTER
NOW PLAYING 7:00 & 9:00
Campus Cinemas
Amherst-Hadley Line: Route 9 256-6411

FELLINI
Free University presents "Juliet of the Spirit" at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. Cheap and surrealistic.
TONIGHT

Striking Postmen Urged Back In Britain

LONDON (AP)-Union leader Tom Jackson urged striking postmen, Thursday to return to their jobs Monday and end the longest national work stoppage in Britain since World War II.

Jeering militants accused him of selling out to government pressure.

Jackson warned that the only way to keep the strike going was to borrow more money. Union strike funds, he said, had run out.

Jackson announced the 200,000 union members would be voting Friday and Saturday on whether to accept an interim settlement worked out with the Post Office early Thursday.

The voting result will be known Sunday, the 47th day of the postal strike that began Jan. 19. The 1966 seaman's strike, which lasted 45 days, had been Britain's longest national work stoppage since the war.

The Post Office predicted that even if mailmen agreed to return to work Monday, it will be another six weeks before service is normal. The Post Office appealed to the public not to mail any letters until the voting result is known.

The union expects the rank and file to accept the settlement.

The 5,000 workers who shouted down Jackson in Hyde Park apparently were incensed because the interim settlement would gain the postman practically nothing beyond the original Post Office offer.

Instead of the 15 per cent raise the union originally had demanded on wages of $36 to $65 a week, the union now recommended a deal guaranteeing only 8 to 9 per cent raises-all the Post Office says it can afford.

These were the offers the union had been rejecting all along. It is now urging the men to return to work while a three-member board of inquiry studies how Post Office costs can be cut and how big a raise can be offered.

Both the union leadership and the Post Office have agreed to accept whatever the inquiry recommends.

Special Friday Nite Flick!
"CURSE OF THE WEREWOLF"
Hampden Commons 25¢
11:30 Friday, March 5
Southwest Patriots

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
The Campus Cinema Complex is located right on Rt. 9 in Hadley, three minutes from Route 91.
An Esquire Theatre Of Course.
"The Confession" from the makers of "Z"
"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!" —Stewart Klein, WNEW-TV —William Wolf, Cue —Joseph Gelmis, Newsday
" 'THE CONFESSION' is not for those who are merely looking for a non-challenging, pleasant evening. It is highly articulate and complex. A sober and powerful recounting of one man's unflinching refusal to surrender his dignity as a man, and as a human being. MONTAND HAS DRAWN AN EXQUISITE PORTRAYAL, BRIMMING WITH EMOTION!" —Bob Salmaggi, Group W Network
"A DEVASTATING FILM! GRIPPING! TERRIFYING! It is Montand's film. He gives a stupendous bravura performance. The film is, in a humanistic sense, more successful than Costa-Gavras' 'Z'!" —Gail Rock, Women's Wear Daily
A Robert Dorfmann - Dorfmann Joval Production
Yves Montand Simone Signoret
"The Confession"
Gabriele Ferzetti
Michel Vitold
CINEMA I 7:00 9:15 GP

MINUTES AWAY VIA I-91 TO RT. 5
Showcase Cinemas, 7213 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.
ACRES and ACRES OF YOUR OWN FREE PARKING
3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS
THE WILD COUNTRY G
Daily: 1:30-4-6:30-9 Mar. 10: CROMWELL
2 Academy Award Nominations!
"A BEAUTIFUL AND REWARDING FILM." —Sam Hoffman, Spfld. Daily News
LOVE STORY GP
TODAY 2:00, 3:45, 5:30, 7:30, 9:40
Ali MacGraw Ryan O'Neal
WIDE SPACE COMFORT LOUNGE ROCKERS
GROUP RATES AVAILABLE
Mar. 10: Big Little Man
1
DOCTORS' WIVES R
DYAN CANNON RICHARD CRENNA
Mon. - Fri. 7:30 - 9:30 - 11:30
Sat. & Sun. 1:30 - 3:30 - 5:30 - 7:30 - 9:30
WE HONOR master charge
CALL 413-733-5131

The Rolling Stones
GIMME SHELTER
7:15 9:15
CINEMA II
A great rock-'n-roll movie about the best band in the world.
Rated R
SPECIAL SHOWINGS SATURDAY ONLY
7:00
8:30
10:00
7:00 9:00 CINEMA III
BREWSTER McCLOUD
the director of M*A*S*H is back again cutting up people for the third sensational week.
RATED— R—
FRI & SAT LATE SHOW
11 p.m. till 2 A.M.
— This Weekend —
"FREAKS 1932" (Tod Brownings)
— AND —
"WHITE ZOMBIES" (Bella Lugosi)

Matmen Challenge SC In NE Tourney

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

Ten determined wrestlers left Amherst yesterday bound for Lowell with hopes of ending Springfield's twenty year domination of the New England wrestling tournament which will be held today and tomorrow at Lowell Technological Institute. The UMass wrestlers finished third two years ago and second last year and hope to continue their improvement by advancing one more place this year.

In this type of tourney, team records can be ignored because it is individual against individual and that is all that counts. Nearly every school in New England is sending wrestlers to the tourney, with the exception of Harvard and Yale, and one hot wrestler from an Emerson College or a Lowell State can do a lot in determining which team eventually wins the championship.

The meet is scored with a team getting one point for every match one of its members wins and another point for every pin. Thus there is the extra pressure for a wrestler who is coasting along with a 12-0 lead to keep digging and try to pin his man to earn his team more points. A first place finish is worth ten points, second place seven points, third place four and fourth place two.

As far as the Redmen go, each of the wrestlers must perform to or above his potential if they are to upset the Chiefs. Defending champions Sheldon Goldberg and Tom Young, are once again seeded number one at the 134 and 167 pound classes. Goldberg enters the tourney with a 17-0-1 record while Young is a surprise entry and a surprise favorite after sitting out most of the winter and compiling a 4-1-1 record.

After these two in the seedings come another five who will do a lot in determining the outcome of the tourney 118 pounder, Dave Amato, is seeded second with a 14-2 record and must do at least that well. Dave Reynolds a second place finisher a 126 last year, is fourth seeded this year in that classs, and Redmen Coach Homer Barr is hoping for Dave to repeat his outstanding effort of a year ago. Clay Jester came on strong at 142 over the last part of the season to finish with an 11-4 record and a number three seed in his weight class. Coach Barr and Jester himself both feel he can win the class if he comes up with the necessary effort.

Ed Carlsson is seeded second at 177 with an 11-4-2 mark as is George Zguris at 190 with a 14-0 record. Both have done well in previous tourneys, with Carlsson winning the freshman New Englands last year and Zguris winning the tourney two years ago and finishing second last year, but both have their work cut out for them in order to finish better than second.

The other Redmen wrestlers are being counted on by Coach Barr to surprise people and get UMass some extra points. Brian Urquhart is seeded tenth at 150, Jim Godkin sixth at 158 and Carl Dambman sixth at unlimited, but Coach Barr feels that each is better than the seedings and looks for two out of the three to place in the top four of their class.

But the road to victory will not be an easy one for the Redmen since Sprinfield has four number one seeds and two defending champs and demolished the Redmen in head to head competition earlier in the year.

Here is a look at the tourney class by class:

118-Bill Metts of Springfield is seeded number one ahead of Dave Amato. He beat Amato 9-1 this season for Dave's only loss. Other seeds are Adhams of URI and Perna of Brown. Amato should finish second and has a shot at first.

George Zguris

126-The only reason Springfield's defending champ Bob Meyer isn't in the tourney is that he got beat by his teammate, first seeded Ray Ferrari. Hamilton of Central is second followed by Reynolds and Brunner of Brown. Hamilton beat Reynolds 9-2 and he didn't meet Ferrari. Barr is hoping for at least a second here.

134-Goldberg should win the class easily since he hasn't lost in New England in two years. Tom Pollard of Springfield is seeded second and won the title two years ago. The two didn't meet this year but the Redmen are counting on a Goldberg victory.

142-It's Springfield again with Steve Gaydosh seeded first followed by Catania of URI, Jester and Saia of UConn. Gaydosh is the defending champ and has beaten Jester this year, 7-0. Catania is a strong man and tied Goldberg earlier in the year for the only blemish on Shelley's record. Barr feels that Jester is at his peak and may win.

150-Stan Sothenden of the Chiefs leads this class followed by Dietrich of Central, Gamon of URI and Rynick of Wesleyan. Urquhart is better than a tenth seed and should find his way into the top four.

158-Wickwire of Central is seeded ahead of Springfield's Mickey Lint, the defending 150 champ. Godkin has only a 5-3-3 record and must do better to place.

167-Young will be hard pressed to defend his title by Davis of Coast Guard. Doug Leroy of Springfield is seeded third and McInnerney of Williams fourth.

177-Thompson of Dartmouth is undefeated and seated first. He beat Carlsson 6-0 and Coach Barr isn't too optimistic about Carlsson's chances of winning. However, he feels Carlsson can finish second ahead of Gavin of Wesleyan.

190-It should be a rematch of last year's final between first seeded Gary Sklaver of Amherst and Zguris. Sklaver won that one and will be favored again.

UNL-Walsh of Brown finished second a year ago and is out to get all the marbles this year. This is the evenest of the classes and the hardest to figure. Dambman is ranked fifth but pinned second seeded Geetersloh of WPI and was pinned by sixth seeded Davies of MIT. Barr feels Davies may be the dark horse winner.

Barr feels the Redmen must poace in nine out of the ten classes and must win three of them. He hopes Amato may be the third winner and is looking for second place finishes from Reynolds, Jester, Zguris and Carlsson.

Spend your SPRING VACATION in the BAHAMAS on PARADISE ISLAND at the FLAGLER INN!

Nassau, Bahamas $99

ROUND TRIP JET AIRFARE

Hotel accommodations available for 8 days and 7 nights from $80 (plus $10 tax). Complete range of entertainment and recreation offered at reduced rates for Students International's guests.

Sponsored by
STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL

LIMITED NUMBER OF SEATS STILL AVAILABLE

— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Routing	Departs	Returns
Boston/Nassau/Boston	3/19	3/26

FOR INFORMATION CALL:
5 - 10 p.m. Steve, 549-1357; or Brian, 549-3963
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Students International (617) 536-7863

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Braod St. Westfield 562-3604

SATURDAY 8-2
OPEN HOUSE AT ZETA NU
BUDWEISER BEER 25¢
SAT. SAT.

At Northampton Volkswagen

68 Pontiac, White	3395.00
68 Opel, Blue	1995.00
68 Mustang, Blue	1795.00
68 Austin Healey, Yellow	1995.00
68 Renault, White	1295.00
68 Chevy Belaire, Blue	2995.00
68 Ford T-Bird, White	3795.00
67 Pontiac, Green	2995.00
67 Fiat 850, Red	1495.00
67 Ford Wagon, Yellow	1795.00
67 Ford Wagon, Blue	1595.00
66 Rambler Marlin, White	995.00
66 Chrysler, Green	995.00
65 Pontiac, Green	795.00
65 Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65 Ford LTD, White	795.00
64 Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
64 Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63 Mercury Comet, Blue	395.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From

Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.
334-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5) Northampton
Open Eves till 9

MDC CLASSIFIED

NEW RATES

The MDC has lowered its classified advertising rates! 75c for the first insertion, 50c for each subsequent consecutive insertion. Take advantage of this money-saving bargain NOW! tf3-8

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, FR, Astro, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers LF's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Water beds — 7' x 6' now $55.00 With frame and liner $90.00. Guaranteed workmanship. Come to B-I-German week days 11:00 to 2:30 or Thursday nights 7 to 9 or call 546-9534. tf3-5

Portable 12" Sears TV, new, $60; 8 track stereo tape deck, Radio Shack, also $60; pair 6 ft. skis $10. Must sell all. Call BILL 549-6871. tf3-8

Man size cribbage boards, solid oak, 40" x 8½ x 2", hand-rubbed Call 546-6633. tf3-8

4 Bruins tickets for March 18, also 2 tickets for Grand Funk concert March 11 at Boston Garden. Best offer. Call 6-7349. 3-5

Avocado gas range and refrigerator (Sears), used 1 mos., less than half price, $90 - $110 respectively 549-6573. tf3-9

1970 BMW R75 never dropped, best offer, 9000 miles. Call 549-3971 tf3-9

Realistic 909 stereo tape recorder, 2 speakers, wires, 2 preamp, 2 aux inp., head, jack, dir. counter, 2¼ meters. New lost fall for $170, now $130. Call Carl 324 Dwight. Leave message. tf3-8

32 H&R Revolver and ammo, fired 10 times. Call 6-3971. tf3-9

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf3-12

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1964 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $395. Telephone 253-3046 tf3-9

1968 Fiat 850, 2 dr. Asking $1100 Call 549-0786. tf3-8

69 Opel, 1.9 engine, 4 new radial tires, 2 radial snow tires, new clutch, new brakes, car retails for $1675, wholesale $1275, will sell for $1195 because of debts. Nothing wrong, just must sell. 549-1191. tf3-5

Nunbeam GT 64 HT Conv., very clean, R & H, excellent body and tires. Runs good. $575 (neg.) 545-2976. tf3-8

'68 Cortina (Eng. Ford) automatic, disc brakes only 15,000 mi. Good mech. cond. Best offer. Call 546-9728. tf3-5

1967 Buick LeSabre, P.S., P.B., brand new brakes. $1000. Jeff 546-7033. tf3-5

2 VW engines 36 and 40 hp, recently rebuilt will take trade, $125 and $175 a piece. Call 584-4870 nights. tf3-9

1968 MG Midget blue, with wire wheels, 15,000 miles and many extras, $1150. Call 253-9685 and ask for Steve after 5 p.m. tf3-5

'63 Buick Special, power steering, am., V-8 automatic, radio, very good cond., snow tires, with chrains, new brakes, new exhanst system, $250. Call 549-6315 anytime. tf3-5

1968 VW Bug, white with black interior, fastidously maintained, radio and snow tires. Reasonable. Call Ed 549-0411. tf3-9

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 127 Ne. Pleasant St., 256-6133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lanz's Photo, Bt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3140. tf3-10

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-22

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 8-14

WANTED

Black sincere male student near Amherst. Please write to white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible close summer relationship. Confidential. Box 723, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

Bread Truck or Lge. Van, 14' min. reas. shape, pref. alum. body. Will hazzle. Call 545-2705, Gene. tf3-10

HELP WANTED

QUALIFIED TYPISTS, STENOGRAPHERS
Need some extra money? Call Mrs. Ethel Britell, Campus Center Printing Shop. 545-0371. tf3-8

Cash girls? As much as $30.00 an hour for go-getters. Call 367-2590. tf3-12

Homeworkers — envelope addressers and mailers. Send stamped envelope and 25c to GWL Enterprises, 640 Cobb St., Athens, Ga., 30601 (5-2 t-'05 - p) 3-5

FOR RENT

Two bedroom apt. for rent $140 a month including utilities. Available April 1. Call 548-2200 days and 549-3087 evenings. tf3-8

PERFECT FOR SUMMER SCHOOL: furn. 1 bdrm. apt. for July and Aug. No lease req. $161 mo. Near Campus, pool, tennis courts, air cond. Married couple or girls preferred. Call 549-3916 after 5. tf3-31

Ware — ½ hr. drive from Amherst, lg. 4 rm. all electric apt., stove, refrig., disposal, incinerator interior, fastidously maintained, radio and snow tires. Reasonable. Call Ed 549-0411. tf3-9

Own room in 3 br. apt.; 4 mi. on Rt. 9. $59 mo. 253-5062, Pete. tf3-8

House available June 16 to Aug. '72 — 3 bdrm., basement fully finished, completely furnished, $275 mo. 549-6573. tf3-9

Available immediately, small single room, garage, included, 1 mile from University, low rent, call 253-9708. tf5-8

TO SUBLET

New eff. apt. for rent. Except for 1 or 2 persons incl. all utilities, dishwasher, garbage disposal, wall to wall carp., only 1½ miles from Campus. Rent is $150 per mo. Call Ray at 253-7543. If no answer, try again. tf3-5

Cozy furnished apt., right on campus, for 3 girls. Call Donna or Shari at 546-8581. tf3-5

Efficiency apt, Quabbin Vlg., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fee paid. Call 253-7620 after 7 p.m. Available immediately. tf3-12

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NASSAU in spring and EUROPE in summer. For details call Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963 3 1,2,5,8,9,12,15,16

Trip! Spring vacation on March 20-27. $60 a head round trip to Atlantis, hotel accommodations and scuba equipment included. Continental Travel Agency. Call 545-2411 tf3-8

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted in So. Deerfield on 116. $55.00 covers rent and utilities. Own room, furnished. No dogs, but cats are OK. Immediate occupancy if possible. tf3-5

Female roommate wanted to share 1 bedroom Mt. Range townhouse completely furnished. Disposal, dishwasher air cond. available, immed Call 8eth days 548-0327, nights 253-3171. 3-5

RIDE WANTED

Wanted ride from Campus to Lonmeadow or Springfield area, Mon., Wed., and Fri. about 3:30-4:00. Will pay. 367-8317. tf3-9

Riders wanted to Fort Lauderdale over Spring break. $45.00 round trip. No driving. Call 549-3971 tf3-9

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

I'm looking for a girl's dorm single. Want to move out of yours? If so, I'll take room and pay you rest of rest of semester. Now approx. $385. Call 584-8530. tf3-8

PERSONAL

Happy Birthday, Bunny Rabbit. Love, Your Rat 3-5

Mario Snave has the bug. 3-5

If you have had an abortion or vasectomy, and are willing to talk about your experience, please call ASPIRE at 545-0386, 9-5. tf3-9

Karen and Anne are easier they share the pillow. Call 6-9652. 3-5

Mod Rapist, who are you? Pantiedy yours Jane. 3-5

Happy Birthday Jonale, Love, The Roaring Twenties. 3-5

CONSIDERING ALASKA? Accurate, comprehensive brochure about opportunities in construction, oil, fishing and canneries, others! Send $2.00 cash or money order. JOB IN ALASKA P.O. Box 1568 Anchorage, Alaska 99501 3-5

Runners In IC4A's

By ROBERT MEDEIROS
MDC Staff

The UMass track team will be competing today in the IC4A Indoor Track and Field Championships. The IC4A's which are usually held at Madison Square Garden, are being held this year at the new Princeton University Jadwig Gymnasium. The 220 yard, six-lane tartan track is considered one of the fastest indoor tracks in the country.

The IC4A's is the largest indoor meet in the East as 967 individuals representing UMass including three Yankee Conference championships. Villanova is the favorite in the meet due to the fact it has long been considered the track power of the East, and has captured the team title four consecutive years.

Dave Evans, the Yankee Conferance champion in the 1000, will be competing in the 880 yard run. Evans is familiar with IC4A competition as he finished fourth in the 100 last year. Dave has dominated many of his races this season, and is considered a definite factor in the 880.

Eddie Arcaro is another Yankee Conference champ, and will be competing in the shotput. Eddie has been coming on extremly strong in the past few weeks, and will be out to break his own school record in the hope of placing high in the standings.

Jim Graves and Gerry Spellman who for two years have represented the best "one-two punch" in New England will be competing in the 60 yard high hurdles. Spellman is another veteran of IC4A competition as he qualified for the finals in the 120 yard high hurdles last spring. Graves is coming off his best race of his career as he finished second in the New Englands last week, but was timed in a new New England record for the 60 yard high hurdles. Both Spellman and Graves will be aiming for a place in the finals.

Steve Levine will be competing in the 600. Levine has improved each week out, and last week in the New Englands he turned in his best performance of the season as he knocked two seconds off his previous best time with a 1:14.3 clocking.

Ron Wayne and Larry Paulson will be competing in the most prestigious of all track events the mile run. Wayne is a Yankee Conference champion as well as being the New England Cross-Country champ. Wayne will be out to improve upon his previous best mile of 4:09.4 with the hope of qualifying for the finals.

Girls Hoop

By SHARON MILES
MDC Staff

UMass girls' varsity basketball team defeated UNH on Tuesday, only the second loss of the season for the Wildkittens.

The first half featured an offensive battle. UMass edged ahead on an early two point lead and never lost it, but UNH stayed close on their heels throughout the half which ended with the score 29-27.

UMass took control in the second half, finishing on top by a score of 53-45.

UMass season high scorer Nancy Lindbergh, who has an average of 13 points per game, had to sit this one out with a sprained ankle. Taking up the slack were Joyce Knappe and Leslie Barselaar who netted 14 points each. Miss Barselaar also pulled down 15 rebounds. Statistically, UNH hit on 44% of shots from the floor. UMass had 37%.

The J.V. team finally broke into the win column by trouncing their UNH counterparts 38-20.

UMass jumped into an early lead, 14-6 at one point, and continued to increase the margin. The score at Orange Break was 26-10. By the beginning of the fourth quarter everyone on the UMass bench except the coach and been in on the action.

Alice Cool with 14 and Beth Fay at 10 led the UM scorers. Kathy Crowley was high rebounder with 10 grabs.

The next games are Friday at home against Southern Connecticut State College beginning at 4:00 p.m.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Actor John Forsythe, an Aquarian, tells me that many of the most intelligent persons he knows, including Marlene Dietrich, are astrology buffs. This famed "bachelor father" is knowledgeable about astrology and has an unusual horoscope.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spotlight now on chance to brighten conditions at home. You entertain and are entertained. One who appeared inflexible will make concession. Be gracious. Accept invitation. Show good will.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could put some valuable concepts together in conjunction with Aries individual. Be open to ideas. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Don't be afraid to ask questions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hunch pays off; you seem able to perceive what new people will do. You receive meaningful compliment from one who was an adversary. Spotlight is on paying, collecting of debts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New starts, added independence are featured. Timing improves. You are able to be at right place at correct moment. Take initiative. Set pace. Welcome unusual contacts, experiences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasize ability to entertain under unusual circumstances. Visit friend who is incapacitated. Accent is on group activity, including charity drive. Some secrets are exposed. Be prepared.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good lunar aspect encourages friendships, promotes fulfillment of desires. Leo individual could play important role. Be ready for change, opportunity for travel and plenty of variety.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Career efforts get boost. Prestige rises. Standing in community is enhanced. Professional associates pay respects. Don't forget promise made to family members. Entertain at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Journey may be on agenda. You multiply contacts. Good for publishing, advertising. Perceive hidden meanings. Take care where confidential proposals are concerned. Wait and observe.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some factual information concerning estates, partnership responsibilities is due. Accept added responsibility. But also be sure you are getting your fair share. Money is featured.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on public relations, legal activity. Time to finish special phase of action. Refuse to be held back by burden which is not your own. Be a quiet but shrewd observer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One who means much to you makes valid suggestion. This is associated with health, work, special task. Maintain steady pace. Avoid extremes. Steer clear of senseless argument.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Creative urges find outlet. Trust intuition. Adhere to your own unique style. Establish your own traditions. Young persons, including children, play paramount roles. Welcome change.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attracted to adventure. You often create your own risks. If anything becomes too easy, you are likely to lose interest. You are especially attractive to opposite sex. This year, if single, the odds are that you will marry. If married, there could be an addition to family. In professional area, there are promotions you could go into business for yourself. In April, opportunities multiply. Be selective.

Matmen Win

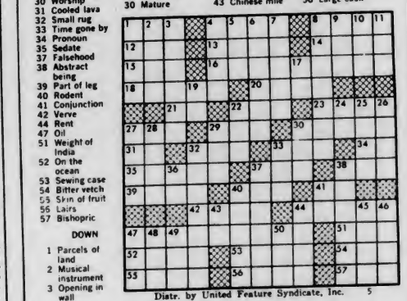
By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

Heavyweight Carl Dambman won his biggest match of the season with a pin in the second period to give the UMass wrestling team a come from behind 20-14 win over Central Conn. on Wednesday. The win was the tenth straight for the Redmen and gave them a final dual meet record of 15-3-1.

Central also had nine wins in a row going into the meet and it was ready for the Redmen. In what UMass Coach, Homer Barr, called "the best dual meet of the year," the Redmen broke in front early, but were caught and passed by Central and trailed 14-12 with only two matches remaining. But 190 pounder George Zguris broke away in the third period of his bout for a 7-2 victory and then Dambman, having to win to preserve the victory, built up a 5-0 lead before winning at 4:47.

But there may have been no chance for Dambman to pull his heroics if it hadn't been for Clay Jester. With the Redmen leading 6-3, on the strength of wins by Dave Amato and Shelly Goldberg, Jester found himself down 5-0 in the third period of his 142 lb. bout. Earlier in the year Jester might have lost, but the revitalized Redman scored two escapes, a takedown and a near fall to win the match 7-5. A loss here would have put the final score at 17-17 and Jester deservingly won the outstanding wrestler award.

WMUA Covers Hockey Tomorrow At 2:00 p.m. UMass Vs. Merrimack



Crossword Puzzle

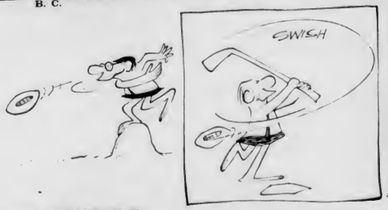
ACROSS
1 Base
4 Entreaty
8 Roman garment
12 Japanese sash
13 Lampreys
14 Spoken
15 Measure of weight
16 Dry up
18 Hebrew festival
20 Gull-like bird
21 Preposition
22 Writing implement
23 Arabian seaport
27 Cut
29 Pronoun
30 Worship
31 Cooled lava
32 Small rug
33 Time gone by
34 Pronoun
35 Sedate
37 Falsehood
38 Abstract being
39 Part of leg
40 Rodent
41 Conjunction
42 Verve
44 Rent
47 Oil
51 Weight of India
52 On the ocean
53 Sewing case
54 Bitter vetch
55 Skin of fruit
56 Lairs
57 Bishopric

DOWN
1 Parcels of land
2 Musical instrument
3 Opening in wall
4 Look intently
5 Unit of Bulgarian currency
6 Puffs up
7 Tremulous
8 Violent windstorm
9 Anglo-Saxon money
10 Ship channel
11 Beverage
17 Conjunction
19 Printer's measure
22 Hole
24 Note of scale
25 Ireland
26 Seines
27 Church service
28 Solemn vow
29 Possessed
30 Mature
32 Substance
33 River island
36 Three-toed sloth
37 Woolly
38 Wipes out
40 Went swiftly
41 Faroe Islands whirlwind
43 Chinese mile
44 Hawaiian wreaths
45 Withered
46 Gaelic
47 Once around track
48 Employ
49 Insect
50 Large cask

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

F	A	C	T	■	A	C	R	E	■	S	E	A
A	L	A	R	■	T	H	O	R	■	T	A	N
R	I	S	E	S	■	E	A	R	N	E	S	T
■	■	■	P	A	T	T	E	R	■	E	A	T	S
S	P	I	T	■	E	R	■	G	A	M	■	■	■
T	A	A	■	A	S	S	E	N	T	■	A	D
O	W	N	■	L	T	■	R	A	■	P	R	E
A	S	■	A	S	S	E	R	T	■	A	G	E
■	■	■	A	D	O	L	E	■	P	R	O	D
A	G	N	I	■	W	A	D	D	L	E	■	■
L	A	N	T	E	R	N	■	R	E	N	A	S
A	M	I	■	R	E	E	D	■	A	T	L	I
N	E	E	■	A	N	T	I	■	T	S	A	R

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.



B. C.

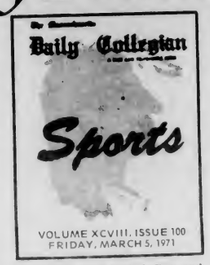
by Johnny hart

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID

Tourney Bound Redmen Win at Maine

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff



ORONO, ME.—Pulling away quickly in the second half, the UMass hoopsters defeated an inspired and stubborn University of Maine basketball team, 84-71, here last night, before a packed house of Black Bear fans. The win for the NIT-bound Redmen was their 23rd of the year against only three defeats and tenth in a row in YanCon play for the first undefeated conference season under Coach Jack Leaman. Maine's record is now 8-14.

Ahead by only two at the half, 41-39, the Redmen opened quickly in the second stanza on baskets by Mike Pagliara and Julius Erving to open up a six point lead the Black Bears were never able to close.

In this last twenty minutes of play both teams matched hot streaks for hot streaks after the sudden Redman burst. Tom McLaughlin in his first action of the evening got things rolling with two quick hoops from the corner for a ten point Redmen lead, 60-50. The spunky Bears came right back to close to within six again behind the sharp shooting of Nick Susi.

Julius Erving came back with two hoops and Betancourt hit one of his own and the Redmen were up by twelve, 68-56. Maine came back again to within seven and the remainder of the contest was run and gun with the sloppiness of Maine resulting in the final thirteen point spread.

In the first half Maine was as predictable as expected. Run and gun, wide open offense, crashing in on both boards. And to the delight of the home town fans, it worked. Playing against the Redmen once again inspired a YanCon foe to its best effort of the season on its home court.

Top guns for the Black Bears on the first half were Susi, Peter Gavitt and Paul Bessey who between them scored ?? points and controlled the wide open play tactics for the Black Bears.

Susi, who was injured in the first meeting between these two teams and did not see much action, was the dominating figure for the Black Bears throughout the game. And he scored 20 points, hauled down 15 rebounds and played tough defense in the middle for Maine. Gavitt, a 6'6 sophomore guard used his height to his advantage as he took the Redmen guards into the low post and shot over them for 20 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for the entire game.

UMass opened the contest quickly with a 10-5 lead but this was the largest margin the Redmen enjoyed all half. Betancourt and Chris Coffin were the Redmen offensive punch in the opening moments, both hitting well from the outside.

As the tempo picked up and after being slapped with his second foul of the game Erving gave the Maine fans what they came to see-good shooting, tough rebounding, and intimidating defense. For the half he ended with 11 points and 6 rebounds the entire contest stats read 25 and 14.

Tom Austin came in for the Redmen with 8 minutes to go in the first half to spell Ken Mathias and give UMass some added speed up front. He filled in well playing his best ball of the year, hitting for 6 points and playing well off the boards.

Mathias and Mike Pagliara, who got off to a slow first half, came to life in the big Redmen second half with Mathias knocking in three key hoops on offensive rebounds and Pagliara once again controlling the tempo of the Redmen offense.

Coffin had one of his finest shooting nights of the season hitting on 6 of 10 shots from the floor for 13 points and also added 10 rebounds.

Maine played itself a fine ballgame keeping within striking range for the entire first half, only trailing by two in the fast paced first stanza. They played tough ball and the Redmen had to likewise just to stay ahead. But in the second half the Redmen were too much for the Black Bears to handle.

HOOP NOTES: Both teams shot well from the floor with UMass shooting 52% and the Black Bears 43%...From the foul line the Redmen shot an atrocious 48% while Maine hit 77%...Dave Collette, a Redman cheerleader, was the only UMass fan to make the game and delighted the Black Bear fans with a series of time-out cheers - a tip of the hat to Dave...The Mathias family made the long haul from Lodi, New Jersey to Maine for the third straight year...And now off to Pat's Pizzaria.

Gymnasts At Boston
To Compete In NE Meet

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

After having compiled a 6-2 record in dual meet competition this season, the UMass varsity gymnastic team will compete in the Fourth Annual New England College Invitational Gymnastic Championships, to be held at Boston State College, on Sat., March 6. Preliminary competition will get underway at 11:00 a.m.

Coach Erik Kjeldsen's Redmen, in third place in the Eastern League, will compete in the University Division against Southern Connecticut State College and Springfield College. Teams entering the meet will compete in one of two divisions. The University Division consists of teams having scored 125 points or more in a dual meet this season, while all other New England teams will compete in the College Division.

The meet will include both team and individual competition. The top five performers in the University Division and the top three in the College Division in each event will compete in the finals, which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

During Dec. of the regular season, UMass defeated So. Conn., 156.55-149.00, but the Owls are expected to be stronger now. They are led by sophomore superstar Johnny Crosby, who was sensational in the all-around event against the Redmen this year.

UMass' biggest rival will be Springfield College, as the Chiefs are the only New England team to have defeated the Redmen this year. In a meet held in the Cage on Fri., Feb. 12, the Chiefs downed the Redmen, 159.30-156.75. The Redmen have the potential to avenge the loss, but must compete as a team to do so.

UMass will enter Norm Vexler, Tony Vacca, and Rich Seikunas in the all-around event. Vacca, who has been working well recently, will be counted upon to come up with important scores in floor exercise, rings, vaulting, parallel bars, and high bar. Vexler will pace the Redmen on sidehorse and rings, while Seikunas will add good depth to this grueling event.

Other Redmen standouts will include John Calabria and Jack Berner on floor exercise, Rick Riley and John Walsh on sidehorse, Jay Aronstein and Phil Aubrey on rings, Steve Cary and Jay Thomsen in vaulting, Dave Genest on parallel bars, and Tom Myslicki and Scott Stover on high bar.

The Redmen squad will be seeking to improve their second place finish of last year, as Springfield College edged them for top honors.

The competitive season will come to a close next week when the Redmen will compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League Championships, to be held in Curry Hicks Cage March 11, 12, and 13. For further details watch next week's Collegian.

VAULTING REDMAN-Norm Vexler, pictured above is one of several UMass gymnasts who will compete in the New England Championships this Saturday. The Redmen gymnasts will be hosting the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League Championships in the Cage next week.

Puckmen End Season Vs. Merrimack

By STEVE MOSHER
MDC Staff

The UMass hockey team closes out their most successful season ever this Saturday afternoon at Orr Rink when the Redmen face Merrimack at 2:00 PM.

This game is a very important one for both teams. For Merrmack it is a do-or die situation for they must win the game in order to maintain their hopes for the last Division II playoff spot. For UMass it will be a game that will either make or break their momentum for next Wednesday's playoff game.

After the fiascoes of the past few weeks (the Hamilton game was the only one of the past five to be decided by less than six goals) the Redmen will welcome a stiff challenge. And since this is such a crucial game for both teams it promises to be one of the best of the season.

The two teams have met once before this year and that game resulted in a 2-2 tie. The Redmen were at a great disadvantage for that game, yet they still managed a standoff. UMass was playing on foreign ice and just coming off that incredibly long layoff. UMass' idleness proved to be the deciding factor of that game. The Redmen raced to a two goal lead on scores by Dan Reidy and Pat Keenan, but their staleness caught up with them and they were hard pressed to just hang on for the tie.

While UMass is already in the playoffs, this game will still mean a lot to them. First, they will be shooting for a perfect record at home. So far UMass has a 10-0 record and they would love to make it 11 straight. Second, the game will be the first "potentially" close game since December 18 when the Redmen eked by Norwich 6-5 in overtime. Since that date, the Redmen have had four straight laughers in which they have outscored their opposition 47-4, capped off by their 17-0 crucifixtion of Holy Cross Wednesday night. The fans are hungry for a close game.

Finally the Redmen can up their record to 14-5-1 which will bypass by far the best seasonal record ever by a UMass hockey team.

While this season has been one of many firsts for UMass, this game will also mark the last time two Redmen will play at Orr Rink. For Paul Riley of Gloucester and Fran Mulcahy of Arlington a victory over Merrimack will be the perfect way to close out a record breaking year for them and the Redmen.

Intramurals Cancelled

New Schedule
Volleyball

March 8

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
3	7:30	BKP vs. TC
4	8:30	Gwimps vs. Turkeys
5		Erudites vs. Gapos
6		Aries vs. Friends
7		3 M's vs. Bekap
8		Joatg vs. Strangers
9		DCD vs. CO plus Boys
10		KS vs. DC
1	9:30	Lemons vs. Brigade
2		Oaks vs. Hemlocks
3		Hi-Lo's vs. Redwoods
4		Heads vs. Sigmas
5		Pranksters vs. Dildos
6		Erudites vs. Jacks
7		Tubes vs. Canaille
8		Bucks vs. Sutts
9		Hockers vs. Oxfords

March 9

1	6:30	PFK vs. LCA
2		PMD vs. ZN
3		SAM vs. ASP
4		PSD vs. SAE
5		PLP vs. SPE
6		APO vs. ATG
9		Maroons vs. Eagles
10		Cans vs. Flaming A's
4	9:30	Bombers vs. Education
5		Gunners vs. Conglos
6		Inter Ed vs. Burners

Notices

Intramural wrestling championships have been rescheduled for Monday at 7:00 p.m., Boyden Auxiliary Gym.

* * * *

Intramural volleyball team managers of teams whose games were cancelled last night are asked to contact the IM office as soon as possible to confirm rescheduled games.

* * * *

SPECIAL-Boyden Gym will not be available Monday-Friday 4:30-6:30 p.m. for recreational activity during [illegible] week.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Snow, hail, mud. Dead pelicans dropping over the Quad.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 101 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1971

NO COWS IN THERE—Vermont is full of old barns. They fall victim to highways, termites, and homemakers from Suburbia who have a passion for weathered boards. This relic fell victim to Al Jagoda's camera as he flew by on Rt. 91.

On The Inside:

- Educational Lollipop — See Page Two
- Strip Mining — See Page Four
- Harvard Building Seized — Also Page Four

Quad Drop-In Center Provides Something Residents Can Enjoy

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

"Our goal is to provide something for the residents of the Quad which they will feel is their own; something which is not being forced upon them, but rather something which they can enjoy." In this way Craig Wischhusen described one of the effects which "Open Door," the Northeast Area drop-in center, is seeking to provide.

Located in Hamlin House basement, the Open Door is staffed by fifteen students in cooperation with the Counseling Center, Mental Health and Health Services and is open every night from 7-11 p.m. in order to provide area residents with a wide variety of services and programs.

One of those programs was in action Saturday night when over 200 area residents relaxed and enjoyed themselves in a coffeehouse type atmosphere as Open Door sponsored a folk night for area residents. Entertainment was provided by Ed Varda, MC of the Wednesday night Campus Center coffeehouse and some fifteen of his performers, as well as performers from around the area. Refreshments were provided by "Sons and Daughters" a small non-profit coffeehouse which is now being formed in another area of the Hamlim House basement.

Originating during the Strike, Open Door seeks to serve the area community in another way by pursuing two major goals. It first attempts to act as an information and referral service for such problems as drugs, the draft, abortion referral and academic counseling. The center does this by providing concerned students with printed material, staff members from whom they can get advice and catalogs and directories from which they can obtain information concerning referral agancies.

In pursuing its second goal of community action, Open Door seeks to provide the area residents with programs which will be informative as well as effective in stimulating students to become interested and involved. To this end it has sponsored two films entitled "Birth" in conjunction with Public Health and "Raised In the Sun". It has also sponsored an art show and future plans call for an art class to be run by one of the exhibitors, Steve Smith.

The center also is hoping to institute an Arts and Crafts Swap Shop so that residents of the area will have a central place where they can exchange sess and exhibit their wares. In conjunction with this, the Center is also attempting to establish an Arts and Crafts course which may carry the possibility of academic credit.

Other programs include a Human Sexuality Honors Colloquium, a course on "Zen Budhism and Beyond" and another "The Ubiquity of Politics" which is run in conjunction with Don Chamberlain, the head of Residence of Hamlin.

Future plans include a program which will seek to bring area resedents in closer contact with their Student Senate representatives through an analysis of their voting records. Informal gatherings in which representatives will be able to explain their voting positions and clarigy questions which students may have concerning issues before the Senate will also be held.

(Continued on Page 2)

Lollipop Gives Kids Cameras

The biggest problem encountered by the LOLLIPOP program, a School of Education art workshop, has been that of financing a visual arts workshop which utilizes materials uncommon to the regular school program, it was announced yesterday by organizers of the project.

Larry Frates, a graduate student in the Center for the study of Aesthetics in Education, said that the program is now entering its twentieth week, but its budget was planned for only five weeks of implementation.

Materials for the workshop range from much needed plastic, acetate, slidemounts, pipes, cardboard sheets to marshmallows, toothpicks and inks, Frates said.

He is soliciting materials from local construction sites, industries, and residents, but as he put it, "the youngsters are coming up with more complex ideas at a rapid rate, and their numbers may in the near future may have to be cut in half because of these restrictions."

He has been very concerned with the amount of time which usually expires between the writing of proposals for funding and the actuality of the program.

It is for this reason that implementation of the program was immediate even though funds were not within immediate reach after the initial five weeks.

Last semester the Parent

Studying film-making at the School of Ed's Lollipop project includes studying how to edit what you've shot.

Counsel contributed to the operation of the program, but things have gotten bigger, Frates said. Luckily University students in some of his workshops have volunteered their services in teaching with the program, and even volunteered some of their resources, but, the material situation is depleting, he went on.

It can safely be stated that the program has been successful in terms of the objectives which it set out to achieve, he said. These were to develop art as a vital means of communication, to understand art as an organizing experience, to view art as a response to materials, and utilizing art in the total scope of learning, he explained. Specifically, the program can be viewed as a tremendous step in the direction of group cohesiveness and understanding," Frate said.

The site for this experimental art program has been the Marks Meadow Elementary School here in Amherst, it was explained.

Over the past few months an average of forty youngsters per session have traveled through the more than thirty art activities made available to them in LOLLIPOP as part of the Learning Fair held on Tuesday mornings at the school, Frates said.

"This "fair" replaces the normally scheduled classes for the students, and they are given the opportunity to select activities which they feel would be of interest" Frates said. Since the youngsters have made the selection, many of the opportunities available to them are student centered and developed. LOLLIPOP is no exception to the concern of making learning fun."

Some educators have developed the attitude that unless

Students prepare to show the finished product of their work with films and learning.

the student is serious, quiet, and disciplined constantly learning will not occur, according to Frates. He feels that the child's artistic journey should neither be tailor-made success nor a frustrating failure, moreover, it should be evocative rather than prescriptive.

Frates has expressed concern for the program being evocative rather than prescriptive, and these aesthetic experiences are usually the result of the child's working, sensing, feeling, and assimilating his media; not through ephemeral experiences in the arts.

He further states, "The media used for expression by these inquisitive little people should have residual force of personality and strong kinesthetic potential."

Frates said this does not mean that paper and crayons no longer have a place in the art room, but rather what untapped qualities of those materials are being neglected in the total learning process.

"Art must gain its overdue place in the total school environment rather than remaining as the frill subject which it now is", he said

Mt. Holyoke Starts Winter Study Session

Mount Holyoke College will institute a winter term in its academic year beginning in 1970-1971.

The term will be between the two full semesters and will comprise most of the month of January, according to Miss Irma L. Raggino, college public information director.

The decision to institute the 4-1-4 semester plan, already in operation at Hampshire College, came with the affirmative vote of the faculty on the proposal this week.

Under the new plan, the fall semester, which began Sept. 13 last year, will begin a few days sooner and final exams will come before Christmas vacation. The winter term will begin at the end of Christmas vacation and will end Feb. 1. The second semester will then begin and school will close at approximately the same date it has in the past.

There will be no grades given for winter term studies and a student will receive no credit toward graduation for taking the course, however each student will be expected to complete at least two of the winter terms prior to graduation.

The purpose of the new term will be to encourage experiment on the part of professors and students in their approach to education. Some courses will pinpoint a problem and delve into it while others will take a broader view and attempt to correlate disciplines not usually allied.

"Our hope is that professors will try out things that they always wanted to try but never could. Students will be encouraged to do the same thing," Academic Dean William McFealy said Saturday.

Professors will now formulate courses they would like to teach during this term and nonclassroom situations will evolve where students will work on an individual project with the aid of a professor.

"Although all students and faculty will not be engaged in the winter term at once, it is hoped that the new format will bring a heightened sense of excitement to the campus as a whole and to the individual member of the faculty and student body as well," a spokesman said.

Muskie Beaten ByAfrican King

(Continued from Page 1)

Wichhusen noted that eight members of the staff are aided in their attempts to run the center by training which they are receiving as part of a course entitled "Group Dynamics and Community Action. Sponsored by the Center for Human Development and Community Relations, Wichhusen stated that the course has proved to be significant in helping the members of the group determine what their individual functions and responsibilities are and to aid their work together as a group for the betterment of the entire Northeast Area community.

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Sen. and Mrs. Edmund Muskie of Maine compared family sizes Sunday with the traditional kind of Lagos and came out the losers.

King Adeyinka Oyekan II, who has five wives, has 25 children.

"That beats us," Jane Muskie said. "We only have five children."

"But I'm not an Oba, " the senator added. Oba means king.

The Maine Democrat arrived Saturday for closed door meetings between prominent Americans and Africans.

Muskie, now on an African tour, will deliver a speech Monday.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

WorkshopsHeldAtNUCMeet

By DAVID CASTALDI
MDC Staff

A regional meeting of New England chapters of the "New University Conference" (NUC) was held over the past weekend in the Campus Center.

NUC is a nation-wide organization composed of faculty members and graduate students concerned with the direction of the radical movement on college campuses.

Workshops were held throughout the three-day conference, including informal discussion of "The People's Peace Treaty", Radical Teaching, and Women's Liberation.

On Saturday afternoon about 60 people met in a campus center meeting room for a panel discussion of the state of the movement in the U.S. today. Four speakers, including Dick Freeman of Wesleyan, and a member of the women's caucus of NUC who had worked with the Women's Liberation group "Bread and Roses" around the Boston area, gave reports.

Freeman discussed different currents of the cultural revolution such as youth stules, rock culture, films, etc. and what their relation was to the political left, or what he termed "head changes" as opposed to social revolution, and how the two could be brought together.

"Not in a hundred, not in a thousand years could cultural changes be an effective substitute for political revolution.. ..those who control the means of production have the ability to manipulate, have money, and guns and tanks if it is necessary to come to that," he said.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Senior Meeting Planned

The officers of the newly-organized Senior Committee have planned an open class meeting for all Seniors tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. The Senior Committee, one of the results of the Student Senate action changing the concept of class government, is comprised of the Senior Class officers elected last Spring.

The officers hope that all interested Seniors will attend not only to find out what is going on with their class this semester, but also to ask any questions they may have about any activites that the Senior Class is sponsoring or otherwise concerned with.

MDC Writer's Meeting 6:30 Tonite All Must Attend

NEW CLASSIFIED RATES

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY

75c — First insertion
50c — each subsequent consecutive insertion

RSO's Job-Money And Advice For Students

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

Of all the student activities and services on campus Recognized Student Organizations (RSO) suffers the distinction of being perhaps the busiest as well as the most misunderstood of all in both purpose and responsibility.

Serving primarily as the financial arm of the Student Activities Office, RSO has come to be the designation for the entire operation without any distinction being made between its purely financial responsibilities and the altogether different advising and planning functions of the Student Activities staff.

Established in 1954 as a result of investigations conducted by a joint administration-staff-student RSO Committee, RSO was originally designated as a body charged with constituting, recognizing and recommending for University recognition the formation of any new student organization which applied for recognition. These duties were in addition to those of financial advising and were later given over to the Student Senate in 1966 which still maintains this responsibility.

As the financial arm of the Student Activities Office, RSO headed by Armand Demers and located in the Student Activities Office has the responsibility of serving as a central banking and business transaction center for all of the 114 active student organizations and the 470 accounts which these organizations maintain. As such they serve to handle and advise the financial dealings of all the organizations and to facilitate those dealings.

In explaining the functions of RSO Demers stated that the establishment of the office rose out of student need for a convenient central and efficient way to handle their organization's transactions. "Students need to have a central place where they can see the status of their accounts, where they can obtain checks and invoices as well as conduct Inter-Activity transfers and bidding for equipment and entertainment. This eliminates many of the problems associated with maintaining accounts in outside Commercial banks."

In addition RSO also serves a central mailing and receiving area, provides postage needs and also helps implement the purchasing of furniture and equipment for various group offices. Demers also noted that as a result of the recent widespread request on the part of many of the student organizations for individual office space RSO has become involved in the supplying of keys and locks for all of the student organization offices in the Student Union and Campus Center as they become appropriated and assigned by the Student Union Governing Board.

In the matter of advising student groups, Demers noted that he and his staff of four full time secretaries and one full time financial advisor attempt to explain to students the procedures and techniques involved in bidding budgeting and planning their activities so as to assure complete satisfaction on the part of the students as well as compliance with University and state laws and financial policies.

He also noted that RSO as a part of Student Activities was also in part controled by the Student Senate and therefore conducted its own affairs as well as the advisement of students in accordance with Student Senate Financial Policy. He also stated that all of RSO's accounts were subject to both University and state auditing.

In indicating the scope of RSO functions, Demers indicated that apart from the $40,000 appropriated to it by the Student Senate for operating expenses RSO also receives income from the Student Activities tax as well as from all activities which take place within the Student Union and Campus Center complex. Also included in its income are the revenues received by various organizations from their activities.

In all RSO handles two and a half million dollars in transactions between and for groups as opposed to the $191,000 which it dealt with when it first began operations.

When questioned as to possible inefficiencies, Demers, as well as Shiela McRevey, Assistant Coordinator for Student Affairs, indicated that one draw back which students might indicate was the amount of time which it takes for checks and other forms to be issued. Demers indicated that as the Treasurer is the only person on campus who is officially authorized to issue checks, checks must be sent to him in Whitmore after it has been ascertained whether or not the request being made is legal and in accordance with University, state and Senate policies.

He also mentioned the size of purchase orders which groups are allowed to issue on their own rather than through the group as a possible drawback to the system but said that attempts were being made to determine the true student needs in this area.

"It is important that we get some type of feedback from the students as to the types of services they desire. When it is realized that there is more student involvement and input in this operation than there is in any other financial organization on campus, it will become clear that we need student help in determining the exact nature of the services which they want us to provide."

RT. 116-Pelham Rd. Link Considered By Amherst

At a public meeting last week attended by approximately 45 citizens, the traffic circulation committee presented its rationale for a road under consideration to connect Rte. 116 with Pelham Rd.

The traffic committee has submitted two articles for the town warrant pending the report of their consultant, Paul Roberts.

The road which Roberts proposed and was presented to the public last night is similar to the corridor outlined in Article 17 of the warrant.

The differences exist in the southeast section of the road. Roberts said that after connecting Rte. 116 with East Pleasant St. the road crosses over the Central Vermont Railroad bed and follows the bed south and curving east toward North East St. then south again toward Pelham Rd.

The original road proposed went straight across the railroad and into North East St., north of Strong St.

After presenting the proposed corridor, which the committee hopes will not only provide a bypass for the university in North Amherst, but will also disperse university traffic and avoid the concentration of traffic in the center of town, the board outlined its reasons in asking for delay.

"It is a very reluctant request for delay," Mrs. Nancy Eddy, chairman of the Traffic Committee told the gathering.

"We don't know 'exactly' where this road will go," on the south east portion, she said. The consultant did not physically have time to lay out the exact placement, Mrs. Eddy explained.

"We felt it was a mistake to come to town meeting without knowing exactly where the road was to be," she said.

Also, this portion of the road makes the entire corridor longer than the original DPW East Pleasant St. bypass or the straighter, more northerly route across Tilson Farm which could cause a problem in state funding, it was noted.

A third question which they said must be deliberated is, will the longer and more extensive road effect enough traffic dispersal to make it worth while. Roberts said it would.

The whole plan, he said, is hinged to a great extent on the construction of Commonwealth Ave. further north and a connector from Commonwealth Ave. to Eastman Lane. How soon the university will complete these roads would be another question for the committee to deal with, it was noted.

Further study, Mrs. Eddy added, would concentrate on comparing the cost to the benefit of the road and the financing available to the DPW.

Ecological concerns of the community would also be considered, she said. The committee will not attempt to do a computer traffic simulation and their further study will not take anywhere near six months, Mrs. Eddy said.

The final plan would probably be brought to the town at a spring town meeting, she said. No real change in the timetable of engineering and construction would take place, Mrs. Eddy continued.

The interchange with East Pleasant St., Eastman Lane and the new road was questioned and declared a problem area. The new bypass would have right-of-way over all intersecting roads and there will be no driveways exiting onto this road, it was noted.

One citizen expressed the feeling that it should connect more directly to Rte. 9 from Worcester and Boston, in order to route traffic up to the university.

M.I.T. Group Presents S.W. Suggestions

Southwest is constantly changing but now even the outward appearance of the Residential College may start looking different, and it all revolves around an advanced class in architecture at M.I.T.

This special study group has been investigating how students in Southwest can affect their environment - in their rooms, in their corridors and floors, in public areas such as lobbies, basements and Dining Commons, and outdoors along the Mall and across University Drive.

Possibilities include finding new and different uses for Dining Commons lobbies, the Little Hatch area and any other place students would like to see changed.

The Study Group has put together a presentation for the residents of Southwest and any other interested people for Monday, March 8, at 4:30 PM in the Berkshire Clubroom in Southwest, and again at 7:30 PM upstairs in the Dining Commons.

73 Held After Bike Gang Fight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)-Police held 73 persons after five persons were killed and 22 injured in a fight between motorcycle gangs at a trade show to raise money for crippled children.

Lt. Ralph Joyce, head of the homicide unit, said the cause of the fight between gang members carrying chains, knives, clubs and guns was unknown.

"We have 73 persons here for questioning to try to find that out," he said.

Joyce said about 150 members of the Breed, an Akron motorcycle gang, and 80 members of the Violators, a New York City chapter of Hell's Angels, were involved in the fight.

The trouble broke out at the fourth annual Motorcycle Custom and Trade Show, held at the Polish Women's Hall to raise money to buy wheelchairs for crippled children.

Police said they had heard earlier in the evening that there might be trouble at the show and were on the lookout for weapons. A police spokesman said police had received reports that the Akron gang had beaten a member of the Violators and the New York group was seeking revenge.

Police Chief Lewis Coffey made a radio appeal Sunday afternoon asking anyone who was at the show and knew how the Saturday night fight started to contact police.

Police said some motorcycle gang members arrived at the hall carrying weapons and were disarmed by two officers stationed at the door. Suddenly, however, Joyce said, about 100 cyclists rushed past the policemen, overpowering them.

He said the fighting started soon after that.

Patrolman Robert Baugham, one of the five policemen in the hall said members of the gang walked in "in military style, two by two."

Another policeman, Patrolman Thomas Burton, said he heard several shots when fighting erupted and many of the people began swinging clubs and knives.

Police identified the dead as Bruce Enerick, 31, of Vermilion, Ohio; Andrew Demeter, late 20's, Sayreville, N.J.; Emilio Gardull, 32, Bristol, Pa.; Thomas A. Terry, 22 of Broadview Heights, a Cleveland suburb, and Jeffrey Coffey, 22, of New York City.

Two policemen were injured: Patrolman Lawrence Davis, who was treated for a stab wound in his back, and Patrolman Charles McNeely, who suffered a broken hand.

Smith Presents Addiction Play

An inmate of the Hampshire County House of Correction and a sociology major from Smith College have produced a play about drug addiction, "Point of No Return," which will be presented in the Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre 8 p.m. tonight. There is no charge for the play, however contributions to improve conditions in the jail will be accepted that evening. Free passes may be obtained at the Theatre Box Office.

Work on "Point of No Return" began when Cathy Spear, a senior sociology major interested in criminology, met with members of a rehabilitation program for drug addicts at the jail. One of the members, Frank Marcelli, had written the play, and Miss Spear helped him organize the cast and found Smith students to play the female roles.

There are twelve inmates involved in the play, and four Smith girls: Cathy Spear, Phyllis Dornbrand, Sue Robinson, and Andrea Graham. They rehearsed in the warden, Murton Burt's, office, and received permission from him to present the play in public performance.

The experience of working on the production is part of a progressive program initiated at the Hampshire County jail intended to help rehabilitate the drug addicts in the group.

Delta Chi

We're trying to break the unfounded myths about fraternal living. Come and meet with us. Give us your viewpoints. Find out for yourself how a Greek organization can benefit you, although you might have been told otherwise. The brothers are no different than you are. We hope to see you.

MONDAY
8:30 - 10:00 p.m.
314 Lincoln Avenue

Call for rides at 5 0195 or 5 0156

"REFERENDUM"
On Student Senate Officers Pay Bill

On February 10, 1971, the Student Senate passed 71-S137, a bill providing salaries for the three Senate officers, retroactive to November 1970, at the following rate: President $150 per month, Vice President $125 per month, Treasurer $125 per month.

VOTE WHETHER OR NOT YOU APPROVE

Commonwealth Room
Student Union

Tuesday, March 9
9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Lollipop Gives Kids Cameras

The biggest problem encountered by the LOLLIPOP program, a School of Education art workshop, has been that of financing a visual arts workshop which utilizes materials uncommon to the regular school program, it was announced yesterday by organizers of the project.

Larry Frates, a graduate student in the Center for the study of Aesthetics in Education, said that the program is now entering its twentieth week, but its budget was planned for only five weeks of implementation.

Materials for the workshop range from much needed plastic, acetate, slidemounts, pipes, cardboard sheets to marshmallows, toothpicks and inks, Frates said.

He is soliciting materials from local construction sites, industries, and residents, but as he put it, "the youngsters are coming up with more complex ideas at a rapid rate, and their numbers may in the near future may have to be cut in half because of these restrictions."

He has been very concerned with the amount of time which usually expires between the writing of proposals for funding and the actuality of the program.

It is for this reason that implementation of the program was immediate even though funds were not within immediate reach after the initial five weeks.

Last semester the Parent

Studying film-making at the School of Ed's Lollipop project includes studying how to edit what you've shot.

Counsel contributed to the operation of the program, but things have gotten bigger, Frates said. Luckily, University students in some of his workshops have volunteered their services in teaching with the program, and even volunteered some of their resources, but, the material situation is depleting, he went on.

It can safely be stated that the program has been successful in terms of the objectives which it set out to achieve, he said. These were to develop art as a vital means of communication, to understand art as an organizing experience, to view art as a response to materials, and utilizing art in the total scope of learning, he explained. Specifically, the program can be viewed as a tremendous step in the direction of group cohesiveness and understanding," Frate said.

The site for this experimental art program has been the Marks Meadow Elementary School here in Amherst, it was explained.

Over the past few months an average of forty youngsters per session have traveled through the more than thirty art activities made available to them in LOLLIPOP as part of the Learning Fair held on Tuesday mornings at the school, Frates said.

"This "fair" replaces the normally scheduled classes for the students, and they are given the opportunity to select activities which they feel would be of interest" Frates said. Since the youngsters have made the selection, many of the opportunities available to them are student centered and developed. LOLLIPOP is no exception to the concern of making learning fun."

Some educators have developed the attitude that unless

Students prepare to show the finished product of their work with films and learning.

the student is serious, quiet, and disciplined constantly learning will not occur, according to Frates. He feels that the child's artistic journey should neither be tailor-made success nor a frustrating failure, moreover, it should be evocative rather than prescriptive.

Frates has expressed concern for the program being evocative rather than prescriptive, and these aesthetic experiences are usually the result of the child's working, sensing, feeling, and assimilating his media; not through ephemeral experiences in the arts.

He further states, "The media used for expression by these inquisitive little people should have residual force of personality and strong kinesthetic potential."

Frates said this does not mean that paper and crayons no longer have a place in the art room, but rather what untapped qualities of those materials are being neglected in the total learning process.

"Art must gain its overdue place in the total school environment rather than remaining as the trill subject which it now is", he said.

Mt. Holyoke Starts Winter Study Session

Mount Holyoke College will institute a winter term in its academic year beginning in 1970-1971.

The term will be between the two full semesters and will comprise most of the month of January, according to Miss Irma L. Raggino, college public information director.

The decision to institute the 4-1-4 semester plan, already in operation at Hampshire College, came with the affirmative vote of the faculty on the proposal this week.

Under the new plan, the fall semester, which began Sept. 13 last year, will begin a few days sooner and final exams will come before Christmas vacation. The winter term will begin at the end of Christmas vacation and will end Feb. 1. The second semester will then begin and school will close at approximately the same date it has in the past.

There will be no grades given for winter term studies and a student will receive no credit toward graduation for taking the course, however each student will be expected to complete at least two of the winter terms prior to graduation.

The purpose of the new term will be to encourage experiment on the part of professors and students in their approach to education. Some courses will pinpoint a problem and delve into it while others will take a broader view and attempt to correlate disciplines not usually allied.

"Our hope is that professors will try out things that they always wanted to try but never could. Students will be encouraged to do the same thing," Academic Dean William McFealy said Saturday.

Professors will now formulate courses they would like to teach during this term and nonclassroom situations will evolve where students will work on an individual project with the aid of a professor.

"Although all students and faculty will not be engaged in the winter term at once, it is hoped that the new format will bring a heightened sense of excitement to the campus as a whole and to the individual member of the faculty and student body as well," a spokesman said.

(Continued from Page 1)

Wichhusen noted that eight members of the staff are aided in their attempts to run the center by training which they are receiving as part of a course entitled "Group Dynamics and Community Action. Sponsored by the Center for Human Development and Community Relations, Wichhusen stated that the course has proved to be significant in helping the members of the group determine what their individual functions and responsibilities are and to aid their work together as a group for the betterment of the entire Northeast Area community.

Muskie Beaten By African King

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Sen. and Mrs. Edmund Muskie of Maine compared family sizes Sunday with the traditional kind of Lagos and came out the losers.

King Adeyinka Oyekan II, who has five wives, has 25 children.

"That beats us," Jane Muskie said. "We only have five children."

"But I'm not an Oba, " the senator added. Oba means king.

The Maine Democrat arrived Saturday for closed door meetings between prominent Americans and Africans.

Muskie, now on an African tour, will deliver a speech Monday.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

WorkshopsHeldAtNUCMeet

By DAVID CASTALDI
MDC Staff

A regional meeting of New England chapters of the "New University Conference" (NUC) was held over the past weekend in the Campus Center.

NUC is a nation-wide organization composed of faculty members and graduate students concerned with the direction of the radical movement on college campuses.

Workshops were held throughout the three-day conference, including informal discussion of "The People's Peace Treaty", Radical Teaching, and Women's Liberation.

On Saturday afternoon about 60 people met in a campus center meeting room for a panel discussion of the state of the movement in the U.S. today. Four speakers, including Dick Freeman of Wesleyan, and a member of the women's caucus of NUC who had worked with the Women's Liberation group "Bread and Roses" around the Boston area, gave reports.

Freeman discussed different currents of the cultural revolution such as youth stules, rock culture, films, etc. and what their relation was to the political left, or what he termed "head changes" as opposed to social revolution, and how the two could be brought together.

"Not in a hundred, not in a thousand years could cultural changes be an effective substitute for political revolution.. ..those who control the means of production have the ability to manipulate, have money, and guns and tanks if it is necessary to come to that," he said.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Senior Meeting Planned

The officers of the newly-organized Senior Committee have planned an open class meeting for all Seniors tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. The Senior Committee, one of the results of the Student Senate action changing the concept of class government, is comprised of the Senior Class officers elected last Spring.

The officers hope that all interested Seniors will attend not only to find out what is going on with their class this semester, but also to ask any questions they may have about any activities that the Senior Class is sponsoring or otherwise concerned with

MDC Writer's Meeting 6:30 Tonite All Must Attend

NEW CLASSIFIED RATES
EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY
75c — First insertion
50c — each subsequent consecutive insertion

RSO's Job-Money And Advice For Students

By LINDA A. BALICKI
MDC Staff

Of all the student activities and services on campus Recognized Student Organizations (RSO) suffers the distinction of being perhaps the busiest as well as the most misunderstood of all in both purpose and responsibility.

Serving primarily as the financial arm of the Student Activities Office, RSO has come to be the designation for the entire operation without any distinction being made between its purely financial responsibilities and the altogether different advising and planning functions of the Student Activities staff.

Established in 1954 as a result of investigations conducted by a joint administration-staff-student RSO Committee, RSO was originally designated as a body charged with constituting, recognizing and recommending for University recognition the formation of any new student organization which applied for recognition. These duties were in addition to those of financial advising and were later given over to the Student Senate in 1966 which still maintains this responsibility.

As the financial arm of the Student Activities Office, RSO headed by Armand Demers and located in the Student Activities Office has the responsibility of serving as a central banking and business transaction center for all of the 114 active student organizations and the 470 accounts which these organizations maintain. As such they serve to handle and advise the financial dealings of all the organizations and to facilitate those dealings.

In explaining the functions of RSO Demers stated that the establishment of the office rose out of student need for a convenient central and efficient way to handle their organization's transactions. "Students need to have a central place where they can see the status of their accounts, where they can obtain checks and invoices as well as conduct Inter-Activity transfers and bidding for equipment and entertainment. This eliminates many of the problems associated with maintaining accounts in outside Commercial banks."

In addition RSO also serves a central mailing and receiving area, provides postage needs and also helps implement the purchasing of furniture and equipment for various group offices. Demers also noted that as a result of the recent widespread request on the part of many of the student organizations for individual office space RSO has become involved in the supplying of keys and locks for all of the student organization offices in the Student Union and Campus Center as they become appropriated and assigned by the Student Union Governing Board.

In the matter of advising student groups, Demers noted that he and his staff of four full time secretaries and one full time financial advisor attempt to explain to students the procedures and techniques involved in bidding budgeting and planning their activities so as to assure complete satisfaction on the part of the students as well as compliance with University and state laws and financial policies.

He also noted that RSO as a part of Student Activities was also in part controled by the Student Senate and therefore conducted its own affairs as well as the advisement of students in accordance with Student Senate Financial Policy. He also stated that all of RSO's accounts were subject to both University and state auditing.

In indicating the scope of RSO functions, Demers indicated that apart from the $40,000 appropriated to it by the Student Senate for operating expenses RSO also receives income from the Student Activities tax as well as from all activities which take place within the Student Union and Campus Center complex. Also included in its income are the revenues received by various organizations from their activities.

In all RSO handles two and a half million dollars in transactions between and for groups as opposed to the $191,000 which it dealt with when it first began operations.

When questioned as to possible inefficiencies, Demers, as well as Shiela McRevey, Assistant Coordinator for Student Affairs, indicated that one draw back which students might indicate was the amount of time which it takes for checks and other forms to be issued. Demers indicated that as the Treasurer is the only person on campus who is officially authorized to issue checks, checks must be sent to him in Whitmore after it has been ascertained whether or not the request being made is legal and in accordance with University, state and Senate policies.

He also mentioned the size of purchase orders which groups are allowed to issue on their own rather than through the group as a possible drawback to the system but said that attempts were being made to determine the true student needs in this area.

"It is important that we get some type of feedback from the students as to the types of services they desire. When it is realized that there is more student involvement and input in this operation than there is in any other financial organization on campus, it will become clear that we need student help in determining the exact nature of the services which they want us to provide."

RT. 116-Pelham Rd. Link Considered By Amherst

At a public meeting last week attended by approximately 45 citizens, the traffic circulation committee presented its rationale for a road under consideration to connect Rte. 116 with Pelham Rd.

The traffic committee has submitted two articles for the town warrant pending the report of their consultant, Paul Roberts.

The road which Roberts proposed and was presented to the public last night is similar to the corridor outlined in Article 17 of the warrant.

The differences exist in the southeast section of the road. Roberts said that after connecting Rte. 116 with East Pleasant St. the road crosses over the Central Vermont Railroad bed and follows the bed south and curving east toward North East St. then south again toward Pelham Rd.

The original road proposed went straight across the railroad and into North East St., north of Strong St.

After presenting the proposed corridor, which the committee hopes will not only provide a bypass for the university in North Amherst, but will also disperse university traffic and avoid the concentration of traffic in the center of town, the board outlined its reasons in asking for delay.

"It is a very reluctant request for delay," Mrs. Nancy Eddy, chairman of the Traffic Committee told the gathering.

"We don't know 'exactly' where this road will go," on the south east portion, she said. The consultant did not physically have time to lay out the exact placement, Mrs. Eddy explained.

"We felt it was a mistake to come to town meeting without knowing exactly where the road was to be," she said.

Also, this portion of the road makes the entire corridor longer than the original DPW East Pleasant St. bypass or the straighter, more northerly route across Tilson Farm which could cause a problem in state funding, it was noted.

A third question which they said must be deliberated is, will the longer and more extensive road effect enough traffic dispersal to make it worth while. Roberts said it would.

The whole plan, he said, is hinged to a great extent on the construction of Commonwealth Ave. further north and a connector from Commonwealth Ave. to Eastman Lane. Hov soon the university will complete these roads would be another question for the committee to deal with, it was noted.

Further study, Mrs. Eddy added, would concentrate on comparing the cost to the benefit of the road and the financing available to the DPW.

Ecological concerns of the community would also be considered, she said. The committee will not attempt to do a computer traffic simulation and their further study will not take anywhere near six months, Mrs. Eddy said.

The final plan would probably be brought to the town at a spring town meeting, she said. No real change in the timetable of engineering and construction would take place, Mrs. Eddy continued.

The interchange with East Pleasant St., Eastman Lane and the new road was questioned and declared a problem area. The new bypass would have right-of-way over all intersecting roads and there will be no driveways exiting onto this road, it was noted.

One citizen expressed the feeling that it should connect more directly to Rte. 9 from Worcester and Boston, in order to route traffic up to the university.

M.I.T. Group Presents S.W. Suggestions

Southwest is constantly changing but now even the outward appearance of the Residential College may start looking different, and it all revolves around an advanced class in architecture at M.I.T.

This special study group has been investigating how students in Southwest can affect their environment - in their rooms, in their corridors and floors, in public areas such as lobbies, basements and Dining Commons, and outdoors along the Mall and across University Drive.

Possibilities include finding new and different uses for Dining Commons lobbies, the Little Hatch area and any other place students would like to see changed.

The Study Group has put together a presentation for the residents of Southwest and any other interested people for Monday, March 8, at 4:30 PM in the Berkshire Clubroom in Southwest, and again at 7:30 PM upstairs in the Dining Commons.

73 Held After Bike Gang Fight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)-Police held 73 persons after five persons were killed and 22 injured in a fight between motorcycle gangs at a trade show to raise money for crippled children.

Lt. Ralph Joyce, head of the homicide unit, said the cause of the fight between gang members carrying chains, knives, clubs and guns was unknown.

"We have 73 persons here for questioning to try to find that out," he said.

Joyce said about 150 members of the Breed, an Akron motorcycle gang, and 80 members of the Violators, a New York City chapter of Hell's Angels, were involved in the fight.

The trouble broke out at the fourth annual Motorcycle Custom and Trade Show, held at the Polish Women's Hall to raise money to buy wheelchairs for crippled children.

Police said they had heard earlier in the evening that there might be trouble at the show and were on the lookout for weapons. A police spokesman said police had received reports that the Akron gang had beaten a member of the Violators and the New York group was seeking revenge.

Police Chief Lewis Coffey made a radio appeal Sunday afternoon asking anyone who was at the show and knew how the Saturday night fight started to contact police.

Police said some motorcycle gang members arrived at the hall carrying weapons and were disarmed by two officers stationed at the door. Suddenly, however, Joyce said, about 100 cyclists rushed past the policemen, overpowering them.

He said the fighting started soon after that.

Patrolman Robert Baugham, one of the five policemen in the hall said members of the gang walked in "in military style, two by two."

Another policeman, Patrolman Thomas Burton, said he heard several shots when fighting erupted and many of the people began swinging clubs and knives.

Police identified the dead as Bruce Enerick, 31, of Vermilion, Ohio; Andrew Demeter, late 20's, Sayreville, N.J.; Emilio Gardull, 32, Bristol, Pa.; Thomas A. Terry, 22 of Broadview Heights, a Cleveland suburb, and Jeffrey Coffey, 22, of New York City.

Two policemen were injured: Patrolman Lawrence Davis, who was treated for a stab wound in his back, and Patrolman Charles McNeely, who suffered a broken hand.

Smith Presents Addiction Play

An inmate of the Hampshire County House of Correction and a sociology major from Smith College have produced a play about drug addiction, "Point of No Return," which will be presented in the Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre 8 p.m. tonight. There is no charge for the play, however contributions to improve conditions in the jail will be accepted that evening. Free passes may be obtained at the Theatre Box Office.

Work on "Point of No Return" began when Cathy Spear, a senior sociology major interested in criminology, met with members of a rehabilitation program for drug addicts at the jail. One of the members, Frank Marcelli, had written the play, and Miss Spear helped him organize the cast and found Smith students to play the female roles.

There are twelve inmates involved in the play, and four Smith girls: Cathy Spear, Phyllis Dornbrand, Sue Robinson, and Andrea Graham. They rehearsed in the warden, Murton Burt's, office, and received permission from him to present the play in public performance.

The experience of working on the production is part of a progressive program initiated at the Hampshire County jail intended to help rehabilitate the drug addicts in the group.

Delta Chi

We're trying to break the unfounded myths about fraternal living. Come and meet with us. Give us your viewpoints. Find out for yourself how a Greek organization can benefit you, although you might have been told otherwise. The brothers are no different than you are. We hope to see you.

MONDAY
8:30 - 10:00 p.m.
314 Lincoln Avenue

Call for rides at 5-0195 or 5-0156

"REFERENDUM"
On Student Senate Officers Pay Bill

On February 10, 1971, the Student Senate passed 71-S137, a bill providing salaries for the three Senate officers, retroactive to November 1970, at the following rate: President $150 per month, Vice President $125 per month, Treasurer $125 per month.

VOTE WHETHER OR NOT YOU APPROVE

Commonwealth Room
Student Union

Tuesday, March 9
9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

In The Nation And The World

Turkey Searches For U.S. Airmen

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)-Reconnaissance planes and rugged jeep-type vehicles provided by the United States for opium control joined in the search Sunday for four kidnaped U.S. airmen.

But the gang of leftist extremists who seized the four radar technicians Thursday continued to elude thousands of police and troops in Ankara. An American spokesman said the kidnapers, who demanded $400,000 ransom by Saturday morning as the price for not shooting the airmen, had not contacted the U.S. Embassy.

Turkish officials said there had been no word from the kidnap gang, which called itself the Turkish People's Liberation Army.

Planes and vehicles searched the rolling countryside around Ankara, concentrating on the area adjoining the campus of Middle East Technical University-METU.

In Ankara, police continued to check out dozens of reports that the kidnapers or their victims had been sighted.

Several new pleas were made by Turkish leeaders to spare the American lives. Former President and Premier Ismet Inonu, chairman of the chief opposition Republican People's party, asked the kidnapers not to "stain their hand with blood."

Inonu said the safety of the airmen was the responsibility of the nation. "The honor of the nation has sustained a severe blow," he said.

Muammer Aksoy, president of the Turkish Law Association and a leading leftist professor, said "true revolutionaries, Socialists and humanists, do not spill innocent blood-even to attain their dearest goals."

"Getting angry with the master and killing his slave is not an act befitting a revolutionary," he said.

Abdi Ipekci, Turkey's best-known columnist, wrote Sunday in the daily Milliyet that if the kidnapers kill the Americans they will be no better than "those" who shot innocent people whose hands were tied in Vietnam.

"It is necessary to halt this anarchy which is pushing our country to a dark and bloody future," Ipekci said.

Opposition politicians launched attacks on the pro-West Justice party government of Premier Suleyman Demirel for its inability to catch the kidnapers and halt student disorders and anti-American violence.

Inonu, whose party is Democratic Socialist, said the "present crisis" was the result of the Justice party's failure to make basic reforms.

Ferruh Bozbeyli, chairman of the conservative Democratic party, set up by right-wing defectors from the Justice party, said, "not a day passes without an incident, without wounding or murder."

Turhan Feyzioglu, head of the centrist Reliance Party, said Demirel "has lost his prestige and authority." These three parties control 200 seats in the 450-seat National Assembly. Justice has 225 seats, down from 260 after the 1969 general elections.

Demirel, who has made no statement on the kidnaping, maintained his silence.

"I Am The Devil" Charles Manson

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "He used to say he was a man of a thousand faces," a witness recalled during the Sharon Tate murder trial, speaking of defendent Charles Manson.

Since the trial, now in its penalty phase, began nearly nine months ago, Manson's appearance has varied as drastically as his moods.

He could turn a warm smile upon his three women co-defendants, then later leap screaming at the judge.

He could come to court one day with a curly mop of hair hanging in his eyes, then show up the next day with his head shorn nearly bald.

He seemed to change his appearance the way an actor changes makeup-with purpose and symbolism.

Lately, his angular face has mirrowed a change in status-from accused hippie-style clan leader to convicted murderer.

Pale and emaciated, he stares about the courtroom, his blazing dark eyes sunk in the hollows of his face. His once luxuriant dark hair is less than an eighth of an inch long. The once fluffy beard is bristly, short and pointed.

He changed faces as the trial progressed. An "X" carved with a razor blade in his forehead the first day of trial symbolized he was "Xed" out of society, he said. Later he shaved off his beard, then cut his hair in a ducktail style favored by prisoners. In recent weeks he seemed to let the hair go wild. Then, Thursday, he had most of it cut off.

The jury is hearing testimony before recommending the sentence for Manson and three others convicted with him-death or life imprisonment.

On the witness stand, followers have called Manson by many names-Jesus, Satan and God. The prosecutor has called him an evil Svengali and the Devil.

With his latest switch of appearance, Manson explained: "I am the devil and the devil always has a bald head."

Women's Lib Occupies Building at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)-Harvard University said Sunday it has re-scheduled two classes that were to have been held Monday in the Architectural Technology Workshop occupied by approximately 100 women liberationists.

"Even if the occupation ended, classes could not be held in the building on Monday because inspection and cleanup activities could not be completed in time," the university said in a prepared statement.

The women, who called themselves the Committee to Defend the Right to Live, entered the building Saturday after about 500 women liberationists marched from Boston Common.

The women said they intended to remain in the building "forever" and use it to offer services such as child care, legal aid, and health referals.

In its statement Sunday, the university warned of "the unfitness on the building for occupancy by a large number of women and children."

"The Workshop building is totally unfit and unsafe for the uses to which the occupiers are putting it," the university said. "Use for child care would violate several city ordinances and state laws."

The university said legal action was being considered to clear the building, but none was announced.

University police said the building, part of Harvard's Graduate School of Design, was being occupied peacefully.

"There is no state of siege," a police spokesman said. "The women are going in and out freely. Nobody was making any speeches and there was no trouble."

Strip Mining Subject Of W. Va. Controversy

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)-A dispute over strip mining has split West Virginia residents, placing conservationists against miners in a controversy of the practice, not only here but in other coal-producing states as well.

Opponents of strip mining claim the method of bulldozing earth from the surface of the ground to reach the fuel is devastating the mountains, clogging streams with boulders and sediment and hurting the state's tourism industry.

Supporters claim strip mining generates $232 million in revenue within the state each year and employs 22,000 persons-7,000 directly and 15,000 more in peripheral service and supply jobs.

Strip miners at a recent rally carried signs reading: "We hear a lot about ecology. If you're hungry do you bake, boil or fry it?" and "What do you want: scarred hillsides or starving children?"

The state Senate passed legislation Saturday in an effort to require more restoration of strip mined lands and to regulate the industry. The measure doubles the state's reclamation staff, raises from $100 to $500 an acre the bond which must be posted to get a stripping permit and raises from $30 to $60 an acre the fee charged for permits which goes to a special fund to reclaim "orphaned lands."

Some strippers have preferred to forfeit their bond in the past because that has been cheaper than reclamation. Supporters of the Senate bill say an increase to $500 an acre will force the strippers to reclaim land.

Among other provisions was an amendment imposing a one-year ban on the issuance of any new strip mining or coal prospecting permits in the 36 counties where there now is little or no strip mining, and allowing only a 25 per cent increase in strip mining in the remaining 19 counties. The amendment was deleted by the House Judiciary Committee, but the controversy remains, in West Virginia and elsewhere.

Three environmental groups have filed suit in U.S. District Court in New York, accusing the Tennessee Valley Authority of failing to file "environmental impact" statements when contracting to purchase coal to fire their many electric generators in the south.

The suit asked that the T.V.A. be enjoined from buying strip mining-produced coal under a $78 million contract signed last fall.

A T.V.A. spokesman at Knoxville, Tenn., said the authority had no comment on the suit "until we have a chance to study the bill in particulars."

Legislation that would ban strip mining throughout the country is pending in the House of Representatives. The measure is sponsored by Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., and 27 other congressmen.

Strip mining-a more effecient, quicker and cheaper method of removing coal than deep mining-now accounts for more than 35 per cent of the nation's annual production of about 560 million tons.

There were 616 strip mining permits issued in West Virginia in 1970 covering more than 31,000 acres. Preliminary 1971 figures indicate the trend is accelerating by at least 50 per cent.

Strip mining accounted for about 30 million tons of coal in West Virginia in 1970, just over 20 per cent of the state's total production.

This is an advertisement which appeared Fri., March 5.

JOIN THOSE WHO ARE TIRED
OF BEING TREATED
LIKE DIRT and BEING SOLD POOR QUALITY
CLOTHING!

BOYCOTT!!

THE
WEAR HOUSE
CLOTHING STORE

Paid for By: Beau Grosscup

Rail Bargaining Talks Stalled; But No National Strike Seen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)-A United Transportation Union official said Sunday that resumption of stalled rail bargaining talks depends on revision by rail carriers of their stand on contract moratorium provisions. The talks in Washington were recessed indefinitely on Saturday. Asst. Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery, Jr. said "We have an understanding there will be no nationwide rail strike, but that does not eliminate the possibility of selective strikes."

Among the issues still in dispute are work rules that can affect the number of jobs open to the UTU's 150,000 train operating crewmen.

As of Sunday afternoon there was no indication of any job action.

UTU public relations official Lou Corsi said in Cleveland the carriers and the union failed to agree on the range of subjects on which the union would be prohibited from filing protests while the contract was in effect.

"Under the language the carriers are insisting on now," Corsi said, "we couldn't file notice or grievances or anything on any subject having to do with railroads. We can't live with that."

Corsi also said rules requiring extra payment for railroad employes who must use radios in their work remained unsettled, but "we're not that far apart on the radio rule."

Corsi added, "If we see there might be some gain" in going back to the bargaining table, "then we'll go back."

He said, "today and tomorrow will be the critical days," and if the talks remained recessed much longer there might be selective strikes against some carriers.

Vice-Chancellor Bromery To Speak in CCEBS Course

Dr. Hodges Glenn, Director of CCEBS and Assistant Professor in the School of Education, is offering seminars on Organizational Behavior in Methods in Counseling and Tutoring students of Equal Opportunity Programs. This course is being offered to the staff of CCEBS and other interested persons.

In Dr. Glenn's course, such subjects as the following are being offered: Organization-Rationale, purpose evaluation & requirements; Early Background and Contributors in Administration & Management. Types of Organizational Behavior in various institutions which affect students, teachers, etc.; Racial Types-Minority Administrators- Black-White Administrators-Racism in SEOP Programs. What is administration?

On March 4, Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, Randolph W. Bromery, was the first in a series of resource persons who will be appearing throughout the Spring Semester. Other invited resource speakers and guests will be:

March 18-Dr. Gluckstern, Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs (Provost)

Dr. Randolph W. Bromery

April 8-Dr. Gloria Joseph, Associate Professor of Educ. (former Assistant Dean of Students at Cornell & Director of SEPC)

April 15-Dr. Norma Jean Anderson, Assistant Dean of Academic Affairs, School of Education

April 22-Mr. Robert Morrissey, Director of Placement & Financial Aid.

April 29-Dr. Lawrence Johnson, Assistant Dean, School of Business Administration

May 13-Mr. Donald Henson, Ara Coordinator and Dr. Leonard Spearman, Director of Division of Special Services Bureau of Higher Educ., Washington, D.C.

While the class has been primarily designed to familiarize the staff and students with organizational behavior and basic responsibilities of persons working with Black and other minority students in federally funded programs, much of the time will be devoted to dealing with day-to-day problems confronted by employees working in the program. The plan is to focus upon humanistic, administrative and sensitivity in-service training of personnel.

Finally, while the course for this semester is being offered for credit for personnel only, it is hoped to expand the experience to include other persons in the academic community who plan to work in programs which serve minorities.

New Handbook Format Released

Describing the format for the new student handbook of which he is the editor, Peter Pascarelli, former editor of the Daily Collegian, solicited writings for the publication.

Pascarelli said that the new handbook would try to avoid the pitfalls encoutered in the publication of the old-style booklet. He asserted that the old handbook was useful in that it assimilated all University regulations in one publication, was a failure in that it lacked "practical information gained through personal experience."

He went on to say, "This book will have the rules and regulations, but it will also tell the incoming student where to get a drink if he's under 21."

The proposal for the book was discussed at SWAP, according to Pascarelli. It was thought then that an informal booklet describing campus life would be desirable.

"The publication is being backed by the Dean of Students office," said Pascarelli. "Funding will come from that office's budget and the Summer Counseling Trust Fund," he added.

"We're trying to make available to incoming freshmen or transfers, information about the different life-styles existing in the University," Pascarelli commented. "This book will frankly present the drug, alcohol, and dining commons situations as they exist."

"The booklet will also contain regulations, but in non-regulation format," said Pascarelli.

Pascarelli said he hopes to get approximately $10,000 dollars for the production of the handbook, which will be presented to freshmen and transfers during the summer orientation period. Close to 10,000 of the magazines will be printed.

"The publication will resemble SPECTRUM in appearance," said Pascarelli. Decisions on what kind of paper, what style type and whether or not to use color have not been made as yet.

The deadline for articles will be mid-March, according to Pascarelli. The projected publication date is June 1st.

State Gives $2-Million For New Book Purchases

In an effort to upgrade the quality and quantity of library holdings in the 28 state-supported institutions of higher learning, the University is in the second phase of cataloging books for these institutions. The second phase is basically the same as the first except that the books are selected from a different source.

The project consists of purchasing books from selected lists, buying labels and catalogue cards, and shipping them to the designated schools.

According to George Wright, project director, the Massachusetts State Board of Higher Education has appropriated $2 million dollars for the book purchases. By purchasing and processing books in a large quantity, cost is minimum. A discount of up to 30% was given on books purchased during the first phase.

Computerized techniques utilizing Whitmore's computers have been used throughout the project. According to Wright, "Only a high volume operation such as this could afford to use the computer system."

The books for the second phase of the project will be selected from a list of books catalogued by the Library of Congress within the last four years. This list can be purchased on a computerized tape which will facilitate cataloging.

Initiated in the summer of 1970, the project is based on the third floor of Goodell Library.

Administrative Support Of Precisionettes Urged

By JEANETTE MARTINEAU
MDC Staff

Petitions are currently being circulated throughout the campus by supporters of the University's female drill team, the Precisionettes.

Students who sign these petitions are, in effect, advocating a student vote concerning the Administrative support of the Precisionettes. The Administration voted last week to exclude them from the University budget. The signatures, however, are not exclusively votes of confidence for the girls.

The petitions will be submitted to President Elters on Tuesday. A committee, headed by Larry Ladds, will then review the case and decide whether or not to call for a student referendum.

Cheryl Perkins, one of the Precisionettes, feels that the team has "strong student backing." She described the Precisionettes as "an outlet for students", and "one facet of University life". She concluded her comments by saying that "too many small-interest groups have been overlooked by the University Administration."

Jewish View of Women's Lib Topic of Lecture Tonight

"Women's Liberation: A Jewish View," will be the topic of a lecture at Smith College by Dr. Trude Weiss-Rosmarin, noted editor and scholar.

The lecture will be the fourth in an "Alternatives for the 70's: Varieties of Jewish Experience and Belief," series. To be held at 8 p.m. tonight in Wright Hall Auditorium on the Smith campus, the event is sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations at Smith and at Amherst College, and is open to the public.

As editor of "The Jewish Spectator," Dr. Weiss-Rosmarin has influenced and shaped American thought and life. Ideas which seemed radical when first advanced in her "Editor's Pages" in the "Spectator" have been accepted by the Jewish community. She was an early exponent of Jewish Day Schools, and offered new priorities for Jewish federations, and the priorities for Jewish youth.

She also expressed caution about social action programs of American Jewish organizations which were paternalistic and not rooted in Jewish values. On Jewish-Christian dialogue where these were not conversations of equals conducted in an atmosphere of mutual acceptances and respect, Dr. Weiss-Rosmarin indicated reservations.

Born and educated in Frankfurt, Germany, she received her Ph.D. at 22 in semitics. She currently teaches Jewish philosophy and history at New York University's graduate school of arts and sciences.

Read Jim on Page 6

At
Northampton
Volkswagen

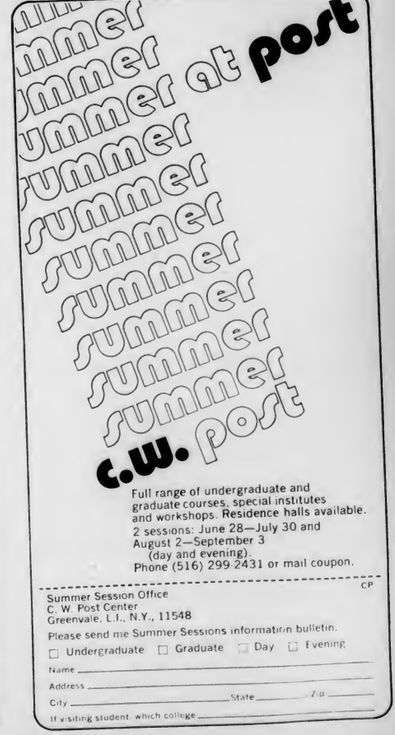
68 Pontiac, White	1595.00
68 Opel, Blue	1695.00
68 Mustang, Blue	1295.00
68 Austin Healey, Yellow	1695.00
68 Renault, White	1695.00
68 Chevy Belaire, Blue	1295.00
68 Ford T-Bird, White	2995.00
67 Pontiac, Green	1795.00
67 Fiat 850, Red	995.00
67 Ford Wagon, Yellow	1495.00
67 Ford Wagon, Blue	1295.00
66 Rambler Marlin, White	895.00
66 Chrysler, Green	995.00
65 Pontiac, Green	795.00
65 Ford Galaxie, Red	1095.00
65 Ford LTD, White	795.00
61 Dodge Dart, Black	595.00
64 Ford Falcon, Red	595.00
63 Mercury Comet, Blue	395.00

Many Other Late Model VW's To Choose From

Northampton Volkswagen, Inc.

584-0660 584-8620
246 King St. (Rte. 5)
Northampton
Open Eves till 9

Professor Michele Russell To Conduct Informal Session



The W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies announces the visit of Michele Russell on tomorrow.

Professor Russell is coming as a possible appointee in the Black Studies Department for fall of 1971.

An informal session has been planned for 8 p.m. in the Coffee Shop of the Black Cultural Center at which time the general black community is invited to come and speak with Professor Russell. Students are especially encouraged to take this opportunity to help select new faculty for the department.

Originally of Chicago, Professor Russell has taught in many places including Brown University and Goucher College in the field of Black Studies. More specifically, she specializes in English and Black Literature.

Some of her related experiences include her membership in 1969 on the Afro-American Resources group attending the Pan-African Conference in Algiers and her directorship of Project CHANCE: recreational program for black youngsters in West Los Angeles in 1965-66.

Full range of undergraduate and graduate courses, special institutes and workshops. Residence halls available.
2 sessions: June 28—July 30 and August 2—September 3
(day and evening)
Phone (516) 299-2431 or mail coupon.

Summer Session Office CP
C.W. Post Center
Greenvale, L.I., N.Y., 11548
Please send me Summer Sessions information bulletin.
☐ Undergraduate ☐ Graduate ☐ Day ☐ Evening
Name
Address
City State Zip
If visiting student, which college

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Robert Scheier, Janet Hughes
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
DARKROOM — Al Jagoda, Gib Fullerton
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein
AD LAYOUT — Kris Domian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

It's Party Time

This afternoon at 2 p.m., the advocates of a Play Center for children will be holding a party in the main lobby of Whitmore. The purpose of this event is less to present a gala affair than to convince the administration that the Play Center should be funded by the University.

As of now, a temporary center exists in the Student Union building in the space assigned to Free University. However, this facility simply inadequate for a permanent Play Center, if for no other reason than for space. Another area is desperately needed.

Already, the Grad Student Senate and the Undergrad Student Senate have voted funds for the day care center. Yet the administration has not followed this precedent and has refused to make funds available for what is an important service for the University community.

It has been alleged that this funding failure discriminates against women both economically and scholastically. Not only are married female students prevented from remaining as full time University students, they also are unable to obtain employment which might supplement the meager income of their student-worker-husbands.

However one feels about the Women's Lib movement, it seems inherently obvious that female students should not be prohibited from the achievements available to others in society simply because they have brought a child into the world. What is usually thought of as a blessing is rapidly being transformed into a financial and scolastic curse.

To relieve the burden, a day care center for children would seem the best answer. However, a plan of this type is not workable on a long range basis without some type of financial assistance from the administration. This body seems to be dragging its heels on a matter which holds tremendous importance to all the married students on this campus.

It seems now, that the Play Center group has obtained a house on North Pleasant Street which will serve as the physical structure for the center. The battle though, is far from over and the second stage, the war for funds, continues today. Whether a day care center can work is now, it would seem, a decision that lies somewhere within the cavernous halls of Whitmore. We hope that today's party is successful.

David Williams

The Great Acid War

The lobby of Pierpont was jammed full of grinning drunks and idiots Friday night. Silverman and I stood next to the bar and poured down freebies given to us by Al Jagoda and Peter Massa, one of the Phillips St. Revolutionaries. The crowd was happy. Everyone was messed up or one thing or another, not unusual for Pierpont anyway, and just what you'd expect when they put on one of their obnoxious home-style Woodstocks.

Out of the sweating throng moved a blimp who approached me and began, "You people ought to write an editorial about the lettuce boycott and will you please explain what your editorial was all about last week." I started to say something about the usually jumbled and garbled policy editorials of the MDC when I realized she was talking about one of my columns. I politely told her what to do with her head of lettuce. She went off in a self-righteous huff.

People began to whisper "the Collegian's here" and Silverman and I and Bob Nesti began to catch glimpses of these eyeballs staring at us. Remember, this is Pierpont, the freak dorm where love, justice and brotherhood prevail.

Then a burly guy dressed in a lumber-jack shirt strode up and in this booming voice demanded to know which of us was with the MDC. Silverman sort of shrank back a little and looked into his beer. I trembled a bit and said I was. The lumberjack shook his fist at me and told me to follow him. I did.

He led Silverman and me down through the basement of the dorm to the Mechanical Room. There he stopped and with a bent paper clip, opened the door, stepped in and turned the light on.

Mark and I looked in and gasped. The Mechanical Room was full of glittering glass tubes and bottles, scales, mortars, pestles, chrome faucets, Bunsen burners, ring stands and a hump-backed dwarf who wore a black rubber apron.

The lumber-jack beckoned us in and slammed the door behind us. I felt like I was in a gingerbread house. Silverman began looking for an ashtray. The lumberjack ordered us to sit down and pointed to two dining commons chairs next to a big valve that stuck out of the floor.

"Now look, you two," he began, "What in hell is the idea of printing that notice about the bad acid going around? Don't you lunkheads realize what you can do to business? The whole economy of Western Mass. depends on UMass drug traffic. I ought to dump you clowns in the Connecticut River for that move."

Silverman began to squirm.

"I had nothing to do with it," he protested, "I'm only a student."

"That has nothing to do with this case, pal, "drawled the lumber-jack. "You know you're as guilty as he is." He jerked his thumb at me. I flinched.

Just then the dwarf let out a loud whistle. The lumber-jack leapt up nimbly and pranced over to where the dwarf was looking up the end of a long, glass tube. The lumber-jack pushed the dwarf out of the way impatiently and looked up the tube himself. Whatever it was that he saw evidently pleased him because he began to dance around the room clapping and singing to himself.

Mark nudged me and we dashed out the door. As we ran down the corridor the lumber-jack jumped out the door and threw a large flask which caught me just over the ear and I fell.

When I came to I didn't know where I was. The room was dark and I could smell grass. Good grass. Slowly my eyes adjusted to the dark and I could make out dim figures passing a huge joint.

"Where am I?", I asked.

"OOOOOh, he's awake," squealed a female voice and immediately she began to kiss me.

I pushed her off and demanded again to know where I was. Someone told me "Fourth floor Pierpont" and kicked me and told me to be quiet. They continued passing the joint back and forth and finally did a big roach and passed out.

I started creeping on my hands and knees towards the door, opened it and stood up and ran right into a smelly freak with stringy hair and acne under a scraggly beard who grabbed me in his arms like a bear and dumped me on the floor. Two skiny girls who were with him tied me up and they took me down the elevator and pitched me into a car.

They took me up Fearing St., turned left onto Sunset Ave., parked in front of MacKimmie and carried me upstairs. We had to pass through several checkpoints on the way. The smelly one gave the pass-word and someone on the other side of the door would let us in. They carried me into a room and untied me. Then they began to question me while I sat under harsh lights.

"What's your name?"

I told them.

"Where do you live?"

I told them that, too.

"What's the big idea of printing that notice about all the bad acid going around?"

I told them why.

"Don't you realize what you did? We had 50,000 tabs due in and now we can't find buyers"

I shrugged. "I don't much care. It's not good anyway."

"Come on man," one of them wailed. "How can you think like that. I mean, are you some kind of pig?"

All of a sudden I felt very tired, as if I had gone through this kind of thing before. But before I could say anything to the guy, the door burst open and the lumber-jack stood there, ready to draw.

"OK, you goddam skunks," he shouted, "Come out and fight like men."

My kidnapers swaggered out into the hall but before the lumber-jack could pull his gun, he bolted for the doorway and took off down the stairs. I hid under the bed and the lumber-jack lit back to Pierpont to get up a posse.

As I walked past the Little Hatch on my way back to Moore House, I saw the lumber-jack catch up to the kidnaper while he was waiting for a hot dog. The lumber-jack shot him down in cold blood and left him there.

I stood with my nose pressed up against the window, watching. Someone tapped me on the shoulder and I turned around. It was Silverman licking away on a soft ice cream cone.

"Where did you go?" he asked.

Home Front

Jim Mitchell

Power To The People?

What do you do these days if you're an average radical student who has gotten uptight over something or other, and get no redress from university or governmental administrators? Why blow up a building, of course (or at least threaten to).

I've never been able to figure out why some people do these things. Obviously they are intelligent. In such a short period of time they have discovered and pointed out problems and alternatives that have escaped the rest of us for quite some time. And many of these protests are more than valid. Ideas that cannot be implemented today or tomorrow, but in time.

A picture may be worth a thousand words, expecially of a bombed building on television. We are however a literate society. People can really get a much better idea of the issues by reading a little mimeographed propaganda sheet than by witnessing wanton destruction on the tube. They are also able to keep their cool better.

Sometimes when people loose their cool, they react, just like the radicals, only in a less violent way. Attorney General Quinn is beginning to react. He is urging the support of an anti-crime bill that would give life imprisonment to anyone convicted of a bombing offense that resulted in a death. There is also another bill that if passed will increase the sentence for sending false bombing threats to schools and churches to 20 to 25 years.

Both of these bills are mild. They are bound to have some effect though, on making people think twice before seeking attention in such an insane way.

Some will argue that our country was formed as the result of a group of insurgents acting in violence. Indeed they were. Violence was necessary at that time to demonstrate to unlistening ears that change was needed. As a result of this, our constitution was written so as to provide everyone with a channel to air his grievances without violence. Our constitution hasn't been altered, nor have the channels of communication; and we have undergone a slow period of peaceful evolution.

But if those who are unwilling to work within the bounds of legality continue their actions, we can expect very severe and major changes that will result in repression for all.

Why not quit while you're ahead, while you still can get up and speak out against the government without fear, while you still can come and go as you please. If your ideas are valid and the majority supports them, then there is really nothing to worry about except impatience.

Power to the people? Absolutely. Power to all the people, not just the self-chosen few.

Letters to the Editor

Winsome Winning Busses

To the Editor:

I fear that I have been somewhat errant by allowing the inaccuracies of the March 2nd article entitled, "Student Senate Bus; Win Some, Lose Some", to stand uncorrected. These inaccuracies are purely the result of a reporter's zeal to complete a story before he had completely digested the pertinent information. I apologize to Ben Visnick (Collegian 3/5/71) and to others who may have been apprehensive about the future status of the Transit Service and will attempt to set the record straight.

First of all, to my knowledge Peter Pan Bus lines, Inc. have neither filed not voiced any official complaint regarding the operations of the Student Senate Transit Service to the University or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. There have been no visable efforts by that company to thwart out efforts and,therefore, their name must be removed from all future discussion of this matter.

Since this past summer, Western Massachusetts Bus Lines, Inc. of Northhampton has filed several complaints with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, Bus & Railway Division, alledging that certain portions of our service were being operated illegally. As a result of these written and numerous oral complaints to local political figures, we have twice talked with inspectors from the D.P.U. about our operations. The most recent conference produced an administrative opinion from the director of the Bus and Railway Division, D.P.U. which reads, "The on-campus operation and the free service rendered to volunteer student organizations...provided through the student activities tax fund is not questionable."

The remaining text of the letter and personal conversations with personnel of the Bus & Railway Division, D.P.U., lead us to believe that we may provide service on the campus of the University, being private property, to any qualified organization and may provide off-campus service to all SATF supported student organizations as well as all other official University departments. The only portion of our operations which have been deemed questionable under the General Laws is that service provided to non-SATF supported student organizations. As you can well see, I have reason to say that, "it (the decision) could have been more restrictive."

I am pleased that our operating position has been defined. We are now in a position to know what portions of our operations appear to be questionable and to take whatever steps are necessary to clear up those questions. We and the officers of the Student Senate will endeavor to resolve this matter in the favor of the university community as soon as possible. If anyone still has a question regarding this matter, please feel free to call me at the office of the Student Senate Transit Service, 549-6184.

William A. Perkins, Jr.
Student Manager

Human Kind

To The Members of The University Community:

Today, despite all of the miracles of modern medicine and space exploration, a Black child inflicted with Sickle Cell Anemia faces a sentence of death. These children, our most precious asset, have little hope of a mistrial or stay of execution.

Finally, a research center is being established at Howard University to begin waging a medical research war on this insidious enemy. This type of warfare depends heavily upon support from a large volunteer army of contributors. So join up today.

As President of The Committee For The Collegiate Education of Black Students, Incorporated, I am offering my office as a collection center for funds solicited here at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in support of The Sickle Cell Center at Howard University. Campus units and dormitories are encouraged to combine individual efforts and then to convert these contributions into checks or money orders made payable to The Sickle Cell Center.

All contributions should be sent to my office by March 19, 1971. I will then forward all contributions to the center at Howard University with a cover letter indicating that it is a combined University of Massachusetts at Amherst effort. Soon after March 19, 1971 I will publish a copy of my cover letter and the total amount collected in The Daily Collegian.

Thank you

Randolph W. Bromery, President
Room 375 Whitmore Building

Mr. Cynicism

To the Editor:

Competent but cocky, Dave Williams squatted over his typewriter last Thursday night and committed the greatest sin possible in our realm of make-believe journalism, and then he languished in bed Friday morning, allowing his pert young secretary to take the brunt of the wrath which poured into his office that morning.

Ah Dave, funny, bright, young Dave, you have tunneled under. I will not climb into your gutter; and I certainly will not ruin my piece by letting your name creep into it.

Your justice will come later, no doubt. But, what of your readers-those semi-lucid zombies who all paid their $6.50 without realizing your cut was $30 a week? Your prose, dear Dave, probably got them so excited (it was a thrilling piece you wrote) that they missed the best story in all of Friday's MDC. Overcome by your sentence fragments Dave, they probably all missed the column about drugs on page eight, written by senile Jim Mitchell, whose work I enjoy more than any other MDC staffer (is that the right phrase?)

Go in peace,
Mark Silverman

Aesthetics

I would like to reply to the person who in his "sensitive" appraisal of the aesthetics of the student body on this campus in Friday's Collegian withheld his name upon request.

The superficiality of your comments is distressing. It is an affront to any thinking being that you feel the university would be improved if students shaved, neatened themselves, and turned into wholesome, American specimens of which our state would be proud. It is appalling that you call for a massive drive to improve students' appearances, (conforming to the "clean and well-groomed" standards of twenty years ago, which you nostalgicly recall) in a time of incomprehensibly massive problems: pollution, genocide, and starvation, to mention a few. Your priorities are in desperate need of rearrangement.

It is a shame that the "long-haired, unshaven, lazy, poor specimens of students cluttering our state supported institution" distress you. Does anything beyond this distress you? Does it distress you that our well-groomed President is creating one hell of an unaesthetic mess all over the globe? Do you ever look beyond outward appearances?

Your remarkable intolerance and disregard of character content shows a deep lack of something within. Please, try scratching the surface-of all the people you see around you. Your pernicious frame of mind is only too indicative of the surface, material-obsessed society in which we're raised. Before it's too late, we'd all better re-assess many of the nauseating values prevalent in our culture. How about it?

Nancy Hart

Mocking Misery

To the Editor:

Concerning the photo on the front page of the Monday, March 2 Collegian: the caption read, "They say he is crazy--the DT's or acid?" Whose side are you on? The poor have been exploited in too many ways. Your invasion of this man's privacy and blantant mockery of his misery are inexcusable examples, especially in a paper that reflects the views of the University community.

Richard J. Kozlowski

Changes in Federal Law over the past year allow people 18 years of age to vote for Congressmen, United States Senator, and President. Similarly, changes in the Massachusetts constitution allow people 19 years and older to vote in all elections in the Commonwealth.

During the month of March when students are on vacation, they have an opportunity to register to vote. The process is simple in that they merely have to present themselves in the office of City Clerk in their city or town. The process is not long, only a few minutes.

I hope those between the ages of 18 and 21 who to date have not had the opportunity to express their views through the ballot box will take this opportunity to begin to impress their positions and ideas upon the society we live in.

Francis C. Lapointe
Vice Chairman
Committee on Election Laws
MASS. GENERAL COURT

Editorial Points

It was discovered by the Spanish finance ministry that chief of state Gen. Francisco Franco received less taxable income last year than 37 other Spaniards. That must not include fringe benefits.

*****

John Philip Sousa wrote some fantastic marches. When the U.S. Marines parade to his "Semper Fidelis", one almost wants to jump out and march with them. Then you know it must be the music.

*****

Tonight's fight (you know, the one between the two champions) is being labeled the "fight of the century" and should be a great battle to watch. Of course, the only way you can see or hear it is to spend $10-$15 of a closed circuit showing ticket or upwards of $100 on a Madison Square Garden seat. It was easier to get a look at the moon landings.

*****

Only one hundred people showed up Saturday for a rally at City Hall plaza in Boston to protest condition's in that city's high schools. Looks like a lot of potential UMies in that area.

*****

The Ripon Society, a policy group of Republican liberals, stated recently that unless Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew changes drastically, he will be a liability to his party and should be dumped from the ticket in 1972. Right on, Ripon!

*****

CORRECTION: There is another way to find out about tonights Frazier-Ali battle. It will be broadcast blow-by-blow to US servicemen in South Vietnam. I guess that makes being there twice the fun.

On Money and Men

On February 10, 1971, the Student Senate passed 71-S137, a bill providing salaries for the three Senate officers, retroactive to November, 1970, at the following rate: President $150 per month; Vice-President $125 per month; Treasurer $125 per month.

Shall this legislation stand as passed?

Con...

As an opponent of the Student Senate officers pay bill, I would like to thank, belatedly, the many students who took the time to pass the petition, and the more than five thousand who signed it.

I opposed the bill for several reasons. I felt that it should not be retroactive, and that $150 & $125 a month was too much. I also think that since the officers introduced the bill, it should have been to pay next years officers rather than themselves.

More importantly, this bill broaches the whole question of representative government. The Senate seems to have adopted an elitist attitude, saying in effect "We know what's best for the students, despite what they want." I know that a large majority of my dorm opposed the bill, and I think that many of the Senators who voted for the bill sacrificed representation for cronyism reminiscent of the general court. A student referendum is the only check on the spending power of the Senate. Right now there is a bill on the agenda to pay the ten committee chairmen $75 a month retroactive to November. If you vote to pass this pay bill on Tuesday, you are signing a blank check for the Senate. If you are not concerned enough to vote at all, they have the battle half won.

Robert A. Hall
Senator

Pro...

The question of compensation for students in various positions in not new to this campus. We have debated at length whether or not to pay Collegian editors and WMUA staff and the Senate decided that enough time and effort was required by these positions to compensate those who held them. Essentially the same arguments were raised when the Senate voted by 33-18 with 4 abstentions to compensate Senate officers.

The amount of compensation is not exorbitant, nor is the individual contribution of each student (less then $0.25 per year) a staggering sum. The real issue is apparently a philosophic one of whether Senate officers, elected by the Senate, should receive student funds and also the question of when this payment should begin. A problem in communication arises here. Obviously the Student Senate did not arbitrarily and without thought vote to pay its officers. The Senate is a representative legislative body whose members are elected democratically by students and not some elitist club removed from student concerns. The Senate, after much debate, decided that the arguments that the Senate needs committed full-time leadership, and that those giving as much of themselves as the job requires should be compensated, were sufficient to merit the passage of the legislation initiating the payment of Senate officers.

If the Senate deems that full-time leadership is necessary for the efficient functioning of that organization, I believe that they are expert enough in the functioning of the Senate to make that type of judgement. So, what students are not asked to decide is whether or not the efficient functioning of the Senate is sufficiently important to them, individually and collectively, to warrant the expenditure of twenty-five cents per student per year for Senate officers. Students would do well to keep in mind that many of the conflicts we find outselves in as students require strong, effective leadership. Students cannot take for granted things like the Alcoholic Beverages Policy (which allows alcohol on campus), 24 hour open house, Co-Ed dorms, which the Student Senate fought long and hard to have enacted.

These fights spearheaded by the Senate were waged on an ad-hoc basis and, as seen with the rent increase issue last year (and another one up-coming), there has to be much coordination of effort. The reason for the payments beginning in November is that it was in November that the bill was originally written in incorrect form. Had it been written correctly, payments should have begun at the beginning of the academic year which is certainly the rational point at which the salary should have begun.

We are a dynamic and growing institution and occasionally we must accept some changes. The job of a Senate officer cannot be performed any longer an an ad-hoc basis, we need this type of full-time leadership. The Senate and Senate officers can and have saved students hundreds of dollars over the course of their college careers. For these reasons, and for many others that, while of less import, are nevertheless compelling, I urge you to vote in favor of the legislation as passed by the Student Senate.

Glen Elters
President
Student Government Association
Senate

Chunga's Prog-rex

Cool, calm, and collected Frank Zappa relaxes on the set of his new movie 200 MOTELS. His latest album is reviewed quite nicely at the right. (Photo courtesy of C. Sullivan.)

By ED JANUSZ
MDC Staff

Chunga's Revenge--Frank Zappa (Bizarre)
Zappa's second solo album spotlights his guitar work more than any of his other involvements do. Chunga's Revenge is not great Zappa; the music is limited in scope compared to, say, Uncle Meat, and his social satire becomes less effective with every outing. Still, any record with Frank's touch has a lot going for it, and Chunga's Revenge shows another facet of his peerless gall; competing with the heavy rock guitarists on their own ground. A really fine album for the grunge king.

Werwolf --The Fourth Way (Harvest)
Behind a garish cover and the label of "free-form individual Collectivism" lies a less than inspiring record. The most intriguing aspect of the whole thing is the blending of electric violin and electronic keyboards, but the music seems to build solely around sound effects; once the efect of the new sound wears off, there is a dearth of inventiveness. King Progress--Jackson Heights (Mercury)
The remains of the English group, Nice, seem to have ended up here. Given the talent, this record could have been considerably better. Group leader Lee Jackson comes on like a archetype angry cynical young rebel; but when he stops trying to be Mickey Spillance, as on the title track, the group creates a memorable irony.

T-Rex (Reprise)
Pre- and post-Beatlemania, acid-rock, tin pan alley, science fiction, Incredible String Band, "Ride a White Swan," a group poster, "Wear your hair long babe, you can't go wrong," wizards, and even an OM; everybody in the world will like two minutes from it. The presentation is like a psychedelic vaudeville set, strangling its occasional good ideas in cute little freakouts and pseudo-profundity.

Richard II
An Artist, Not A King

By PETER L. CAMERON
MDC Staff

Weighed and considered, my feelings happily are to give this performance the critical thumbs-up. Read on, though, and value my reasoning yourself. I have never liked the idea of reviewing a play on its opening night, and let me tell you why. In this play there are literally hundreds of lines for the actor to commit to memory, in addition to the exhausting flights and slumps he must squeeze out. All the while he must tune to the precise key,-for, a degree of dissonance on either side of the truth of a feeling will lose him his audience. With this in mind I begin to write of the first night of Richard II, a weak but dramatic king, portrayed last Friday night at Amherst College. (The performance will also be given March 12, 13, 14, and 15.) On one hand more than one of the bit-part actors read in a singsong dribble which could only have set the major characters momentarily out of joint. On the other hand, one entire scene and several of the important speeches had just the timing and emotion to bring to my neck hairs that old electric rush.

Performer-of-the-evening was clearly Geoffrey Keller as the Duke of York, uncle to Richard. Despite the demands of this role,-York loving both his nephews, Richard and his enemy Bolingbroke,-Keller always suffers York to love England first. In the scene I referred to above, York grabs a letter which Aumerle, his son, wishes to hide from him, reads it, and suddenly finds out that his son is involved in yet another sordid plot. It is to murder the new king Bolingbroke. He rages and smacks Aumerle across the chest. Then he turns to curse the heavens for this newfound snake, raised with such love under his example of dignity and love of England. Aumerle cringes in shame and bewilderment, while the Duchess flies about father and son hoping to out-feel and thus neutralize their passions. I literally grabbed my chair during this scene.

It is evident that Director Walter Broughton, in the normal rush to the wire, gave the bulk of his attention to working on the scenes which tradition and lovers of beauty have sanctified. Broughton wants you to know what it meant and felt like to be born a king with an artistic temperment, cruelly unsuited to the throne. Though Richard's pathetic joy upon his return from Ireland is not convincing, the pity he draws at his desposition is; also, weighty with the ancient fear of tampering with the divine succession is the Bishop of Carlisle's warning to Bolingbroke. About the play as a whole it must be mentioned under Broughton's credits that nearly all of the actors were suited to their parts, with lines menorized and movements fluid.

There is one flaw, a telling one, which Shakespeare himself wrote into the play,-there is not one comic moment in the entire evening's entertainment. Just after the scene I got such a thrill out of, in which the audience, alike, had seemingly had their emotions stretched enough, came another trying scene at which they laughed outright. I couldn't blame them, but it must have been painful to Broughton. I hope he will change his emphasis here and there to give the audience a legitimate release.

Broughton and designer Larry King must have decided that if the whole play were to be presented, time would have to be saved somewhere. So they used a very impressive castle-concourse construction for the entirety of the show. My girlfriend felt that some bright-colored velvet might have been draped across the balcony rail in some scenes, and, for the eyes, I think she is right,-despite the authentic costumes.

Limited space prohibits me from giving full tribute to Johnathan Alper as an over-sensitive Richard, Robert Murphy as sly and immaculate Aumerle, Kenneth Hoxsie as fatal Northumberland, and Deborah Kelly as the elegant queen. All of these intermittantly showed their talent, and need but repetition to loosen their instruments.

Primas And Encores

Don Giovanni

By DON GLICKSTEIN
MDC Staff

Opera is the majesty of the civilizations, the Caesar, the prophet, the Shakespeare. It is the marble busts of dead Romans, dusty and motionless and all-knowing; it is Picasso and Moore and Wright, modern and moving, shapely and massive. Opera is not one art, but many. It demands perfection not only in voice, but in orchestras, set design, acting, dancing. No other genre requires the mastery of so many skills. No other skills are mixed in such a way to form such a genre.

Don Giovanni by Mozart and Lorenzo LaPonte, is the story of Giovanni Jacopo Casanova, a 17th Century stud. Giovanni travels from conquest to conquest, killing a father here, establishing motherhood there, sheltering and protecting defenseless young girls. The Don is true to himself through the end, when he is doomed to eternal damnation in fiery Hell.

Giovanni is a melodrams coming across like a children's theatre, playing to the audience with everyone acting just a bit ridiculous. The Boris Goldovsky production at Bowker Auditorium over the weekend was an English translation, which served to highlight the humor. The English also lessoned the mystery and aura of opera that a novice American dilettante feels. Giovanni is a difficult opera to sing, especially the female roles, and a few times, the singers could not project above the orchestra. Mr. Goldovsky, the director and conductor, is a classicist. His production was opera in the traditional sense--other than the translation, there was nothing unique.

But an opera such as Don Giovanni does not need new gimmicks to make it great, and the cursory comments in the preceding paragraph are not indicative of the performance.

The Don Giovanni production proved that the University community is capable of and willing to support opera. One would hope that the University theater and the Music Department would be able to stage one, perhaps not as extensive as a Giovanni, but at least on the scale of Menotti's madrigal fable, performed two weeks ago at Amherst, Smith and Holyoke. Of course, it should be realized that Bowker Auditorium is woefully inadequate, as evidenced by the cramped staging and dancing of Giovanni.

The enthusiastic acceptance of Don Giovanni should encourage the Fine Arts Council to continue to explore different art styles and to bring them to the University. Perhaps the Boston Opera could be brought to campus next season. Don Giovanni was another worthwhile enterprise of the exciting Fine Arts Council.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie

It's a disturbing play, this The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie.

It teases the audience with a clandestine moral that takes a viewer by surprise and leaves him hanging with his own thin rope over a precipitous world. Jean Brodie is a Scottish teacher, an eccentric in a conservative world, a progressive more enamoured to her delusions than to reality, an artist who destroys herself and others in a salute to the humanities. "Give me a girl at an impressionable age and she is mine forever", Miss Brodie says, and she is right. In the end, Miss Brodie is destroyed by her own mirror creations: Mary MacGregor, an inspired fascist, and Sandy, an unconscious fascist.

"Sartinly", Miss Brodie might have brogued. "Sartinly, the Marcia Blaine School is a conservative and boonie institution. But does that mean that there is no place for innovation?" Well we might have asked the Mt. Holyoke Laboratory Theater, for although its production of The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie this past weekend was enjoyable, perfected and satisfying, it seemed to follow too closely in the fine tradition of Maggie Smith's award winning movie.

To talk about the faults of a truly good production is picky and dangerous, for in the process of doing so, all relativity and comparison with lesser plays is lost. Holyoke's Brodie was a good production. However, other than an ingenius and lavish rotating set, the play was complacent to emulate the movie of Jean Brodie. Vicki Casarett, as Miss Brodie, gave the audience no new insights or interpretations, the costumes appeared sterile in their uniform magnificence, many of the scenes were seemingly borrowed directly from the movie.

But who is to say that a good, proven play should innovate at all? Both the movie and Holyoke's play were, to borrow a phrase of Jean Brodie's, "creme de la creme". Miss Casarett was professional and Miss Brodie's "special girls" were exquisite as their faces rubberized and contorted delightfully in rhythm with the action.

The Prime of Miss Jean Bordie will continue at Mr. Holyoke next weekend. For those who missed the movie, the play is a superb substitute.

Psychedelic Camp

Tonight there will be a celebration in the S. U. ballroom at 8:00. Providing a direct source of sound energy (besides you) will be Fat, Cricket Hill, Flight, and, from the Boom-Boom Room in the center of downtown Poughkeepsie, the Rattlesnake Gutter Strutters. The Moon Farm will also be around providing some light energy. It's a people-produced, Program Council--sponsored festival.

Admission is $1.00, but donations are needed. This article should have been a helluva lot longer, but what else can we say? Except if you come late you'll find the entire Ballroom floating high above the Berkshires.

Films, Movies, The Cinema
Defining His Role

By RUSSELL C. MUNDY
MDC Staff

Do you see, Demian, that you have raised THE issue of our times? Never mind Viet Nam, racism, or even David Susskind; are feelings valid or not? When you write, "Film must move you...brush your shoulder, your inner thigh,...tickle your fancy...hit your guts" you mean they are to be felt, not thought about--none of that bourgeoise analytical crap, right? Goodness and badness, relative at best, are meaningless in our absurdist world, right? A good stroke today, tomorrow will take care of itself--hell, what tomorrow? It sounds like the rhetoric of self-indulgence to me--do your own thing, et al. Christ, I'm so sick of it' let there be some order in this world.

Order has produced "King Lear", Rudolph Nureyev, and "Kitizen Kane." All three grew out of their limitations (blank verse-the Elizabethan tragedy, classical balletic movement, and and the montage and plastics of film). We are moved by them all, but stimulated too. We cry over them, but talk about them as well.

Art, and that includes the movies, has always enlightened even as it entertained. I ask that a movie meet both standards and be described thereby. That is not to say that a movie must be the best of both or even the best of one, but be described for what it is, for it is something. It exists in itself quite apart from the moods or the tensions or the preconceptions that we bring to it. A rose is a rose.

There is no need to apologize for the undiluted fascism of a James Bond flick, or the sentiment of "Love Story", or the cool intellectuality of "My Night at Maud's". They are what they are both today and tomorrow and that is no coincidence. Sweat and thought and a little bit of inspiration made them such as they are. That bit of inspiration is what moves us and is difficult to talk about, but we can see the sweat and talk about the thought.

A film reviewer does not presume to tell you what to feel, but tells you what he sees and then what he thinks. Mind expansion not withstanding, thinking is orderly if communications is its purpose. Premises are checked; observations are made; a hypothesis is advanced. So-called form no less than content is considered. Historical context and the background of production are relevant and of interest.

All of this is not to say that you cannot walk in upon "Maud" in wide-irised innocence and be moved, for plainly you can. It is to say however that those who understand something of seventeenth-century French rationalism or better still the intentions of Eric Rohmer can not only wonder with Maud but understand with her as well.

Senate Wages Forum Topic

Tonight at 10 P.M., WMUA's "Focus" program highlights a debate on the granting of salaries to officers of the UMass Student Senate.

The debate is timed to raise pertinent facts and viewpoints on the salary grant immediately preceding a referendum on the issue, which will be held tomorrow in the Student Union. The salary grant, favored by the Student Senate in a vote last month, would provide $150 per month for the President of the Senate and $125 per month for both the Vice-President and the Treasurer. The Secretary of the Senate is presently a paid employee.

Debating in favor of Senate officers' salaries on tonight's program will be Senate President Glenn Elters and Commuter Senator William Abbott. Debating in opposition will be Senator Karen MacNutt of Melville House and Commuter Senator Albert Olmstead. The live, 60-minute forum will be moderated by "Focus" host Ken Mosakowski.

Workshop Announced

Three administrators from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will participate this week in the 11th biennial workshop of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers.

Gerald J. Grady, business manager, will be on a panel concerning policies and procedures involving recruitment, wage scales, and training. William C. Starkweather, coordinator for systems development in student personnel, will speak on teleprocessing and the use of "faster" as a language; and Thaddeus J. Los, director of electronic data processing and systems, will be moderator for the session.

The workshop, which will be in New York March 7-9, will cover these topics: personnel administration and staff relations, legal affairs, accounting and budgeting, computers, cost saving techniques, new trends, and institutional services.

Notices

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
All brothers and pledges come to tonight's meeting in jacket and tie for fraternity photo. Memorial Hall, 7 p.m.

A.S.M.E.
Annual Dinner Meeting with Western Mass. A.S.M.E., Wed., March 10th at 6 p.m. on the 11th floor of the C.C. Speaker Mr. Thomas LeFeuvre-A Cycle Power Plant for the family car 8:30 p.m. in Rm 174 of the C.C.

B.F.A. PAINTERS
Meeting Monday, March 8th, Clark 202, 12:15 p.m. Something is happening.

CHEMISTRY
David Boyland, Associate Scientist Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution will speak on "Organic Chemistry in the ocean today at 4:30 p.m. in Engineering East Aud.

COUNSELING CENTER
Sensitivity groups will be offered this semester at the following times: Mon. afternoons 4 p.m.; Tues. evenings 7 p.m.; Wed. afternoons 3 p.m.; Fri. afternoons 1:30 p.m. Interested students may sign up through next week at Rm 243 Whitmore.

E.D.U.C.
English Majors, the English Dept. Undergrad. Council will meet tonight, Memorial Hall. New members are welcome.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Important meeting concerning the decorating of the hall for the Open dance on Sat. Will all members who have sold tickets for the raffle please return stubs Tues. night for the drawing.

I.Y.I.
What happens when you put: Krishnamurti, Teilhard de Chardin, Zen, Einstein, Buddhism, Jesus, the Urantia Book and others in the same room? We don't know but we're willing to find out. Come help us. C.C. Rm 904 tonight at 7:30 p.m.

MATHEMATICS MAJORS
This week's talk is "How Figures Lie and Liars Figure" by Charley Randall, March 9th at 4 p.m. in the Colloquium Room, Arnold House. Coffee at 3:30 p.m.

NEW HAVEN
Anyone interested in going to Bobby Seale's & Erika Huggins' Trial, March 9th call 253-3261 after 5 p.m. weekdays or anytime this weekend. We need cars.

PSYCHOLOGY COLLOQUIUM
Dr. Murray Glanzer, Prof. of Psychology at N.Y.U. will speak today at 4:30 p.m. in 231 Herter Hall on "Storage Mechanisms in Recall". Coffee at 4 p.m. Bart. 35.

SENIOR COMMITTEE
Open class meeting for all Seniors. Discussion of recent changes in class government, activities for the rest of the semester, and Commencement. Meeting will be held in Mahar Aud. tonight at 8 p.m.

STUDENT SENATE SERVICES
Co-op Bookstore Committee will hold an open meeting on the ninth floor of J.Q.A. tonight at 7:30 p.m.

UNDERGRADUATE AFFAIRS OFFICE
School of Education Majors/interning, placement requirement, modular credit? tonight at 7 p.m. in Collidge 12th Floor everyone welcome.

VETERANS FOR PEACE
A meeting will be held on March 9 in Rm 174-176 at 7 p.m. in the C.C. March 13 demonstration at Westover-AFB will be planned. All veterans are urged to attend.

LOST
1 pair brown framed glasses, possibly lost in Green Maverick which picked me up Thurs. night. If found please return to 208 Cashin or call 6-5962.
Helbros watch, green leather band (broken) sentimental value, lost in S.W. If found please call Wendy 6-8265.

If you need
TYPEWRITER RIBBONS or CARBON PAPER
See
A. J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 South Pleasant St.
Amherst

Civil Service Test For UMass Announced

The Student Senate Services Committee announces to seniors and graduate students that if you are interested in getting a government job this year, you must take the Federal Service Entrance examination. The exam will be given on Saturday, March 20, 1971 at 8:30 A.M. in Thompson Hall. You must pick up an application for this test at the Placement Office and bring the completed form to the exam.

Those students with a 3.5 grade average or over or those in the top ten percent of their class are exempted from this exam. Also, those majoring in engineering or accounting need not take it. Others can be exempted from this exam if they have taken the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test. They should get an application also to see if their rating disqualifies them from taking it.

There are many different Federal Service jobs available. Positions from bank and savings & loan examiner to computer specialist to personnel specialist to social service representative. More specific information on these and other jobs in addition to some sample questions are included on the Federal Service Entrance Examination Application.

For more federal job ideas the Placement Office has a Federal Career Directory available to university students. It explains what various federal agencies do and how to acquire jobs with them. A wealth of information is waiting in the Placement Office to help students find jobs. Again, the first step is to take the Federal Service exam on March 20. Drop in at the Placement Office Room 239 Whitmore for more information.

S.W. Restaurant Serves 300 Per Weekend

More than 300 students a weekend have been served since the Southwest Restaurant open January 30th, according to manager Richard Ellis.

Located in Southwest Dining Commons #7 (Hampden), the restaurant offers full course meals ranging in price from $1.50 to $3.50. They are prepared and served by regular dining commons help and student waitresses.

Richard Ellis started the restaurant to feed students on weekends. It is located in the back dining rooms of Hampden Commons in Southwest. Hours are Saturday from 11:30 to 2:30 and 5 to 8 and Sunday, from 12 to 3 and 5 to 8.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Students International
GIVES YOU
NASSAU IN THE SPRING FROM $99
EUROPE IN THE SUMMER FROM $195
For information concerning these chartered jet flights call:
5-10 p.m. Steve 549-1357, Brian 549-3963
Students International
10 a.m. - 5 p.m. (617) 536-7863
— Open only to 5 College Students, Faculty, Staff and members of their immediate families —

Get It In!

Campus Center Program Council

Calendar notices are due

Friday, March 12.

Deliver to R.S.O. Room 101, or Mailbox #316 R.S.O.
Any organization wishing a notice for April's Calender please comply.

SENIORS

Monday March 8

An open meeting for all Seniors to let you know what's going on with class government, activities for the rest of the semester, and commencement.

Monday March 8, 8 p.m., Mahar Aud.

Redmen Seek Third Goal At N.I.T. Maine Trip For The Birds

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

It didn't take long this year. Only a couple of days after the first bids went out to St. Bonnies, Dayton and Tennessee, the word came to UMass (and later to Orono, Maine) that the Redmen had received a bid to the N.I.T. Just a few moments later the Friars from Providence College received a bid and if the pollsters in New England have any smarts they'll wait until after the tournament to make judgement on the final ranking of the two New England powers.

With a record of 23-3, which is one of the best in the nation, an undefeated Yankee Conference slate and the drawing power in the City of the Redmen it appears that it came as no surprise to anyone.

On returning from the long awaited journey to Orono, head coach Jack Leaman took a few moments to speak on the N.I.T. bid. "We feel we're a better team than last year. We've had the experience of playing in this tournament last year and have already played once this year at the Gardens and should be ready to put on a good performance down there again.

Last year we felt it was a novelty just to be picked, but this time we fully expect to win this year. The players are happy with the bid. It relieved a lot of pressure on the team. Last year we had to wait. The pressure built up even more when the New England writers said it was between UMass and P.C., but the only realistic thing to do was to pick both teams and they did."

Before the season began Leaman and his hoopsters set three goals for themselves in an effort to better the accomplishments of last year's squad. These were in order to win 20 games, win the Yankee Conference Championship and win a game at the N.I.T.

With the first two goals not only reached, but bettered, there is no reason to suspect that the Redmen will not keep this trend going in the N.I.T. With the class and the pride that these ball players have shown this season, they should fit in quite well with the classy setting of Madison Square Garden and the National Invitational Tournament.

*****

After the trip to Orono, coach Leaman came up with the best solution to bring any form of action on the breaking up of the YanCon or just the complete withdrawal of UMass from the league. "The first duty of the new Athletic Director next year should be to take a trip with the basketball team to an away game at Maine."

Being one of those present on the trip, I think Leaman might just have the solution. Through a nor'easter we travelled on a Peter Pan Bus for four and a half hours to our first destination, Portland, Maine.

The next morning was more of the same with more snow and more wind and a wild three hour bus trip to Orono. With the sliding of the bus from side to side one felt the team that was being driven had a record of 3-23 and not the one that Redman fans are proud to announce.

As for the game, the contest went pretty much as was expected. The Black Bears played their best game of the year, running and gunning and shooting the eyes out of the basket in the opening stanza giving the Redmen all they could handle.

Throughout the season in away games in Yankee Conference action UMass has been faced with the same situation game after game. On paper it just seems impossible that they can be beaten by a YanCon foe.

But as it has turned out the Redmen have brought out the best in the opposition. Leaman said at a Varsity M luncheon after the loss to Springfield, "It's very hard to convince the team that they can be beaten by an inferior product."

As we at UMass are accustomed to wild displays at the Cage so are the fans on the road when the Redmen come to town. At UNH just last week the crowd went bezerk as the Wildcats played probably their finest game of the year. At Maine the fans also went out of their minds in support for their team.

The heck with Dunkel. Games aren't won on paper. They're won on the floor. The Redman season has proven this to be so.

*****

For any of you who expect to travel to Orono in the near future, the definite "in place" is the Shamrock across from the already reknown Pat's Pizzaria. Just ask the people in the streets for the directions to "the Rock."

RESERVE DUTY—Three Redmen who the fans have not seen much of during the season have been Chuck Olsen (being mauled), Tom Austin (defending against shot) and Sam Provo (34). These three have played an important role in the Redman success with their efforts in practice sessions. (MDC photo by Bob Mangiaratti)

Notices

NIT TICKETS-Tickets for the first UMass NIT game will be available sometime after the pairings are announced for the first round. Student price will be $2.50 with adult prices set at $7.50 and $8.50.

*****

IM WRESTLING-The finals of the intramural wrestling championships will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym.

*****

IM VOLLEYBALL-Volleyball team managers of teams that had their games cancelled on Thursday night are asked to contact the intramural office as soon as possible to confirm rescheduled games

Tomorrow's sports pages will feature year end wrap-ups of two freshman teams, the exciting basketball team with an 18-1 record and the hockey team which has played a tough schedule this season and promises to graduate good prospects to the varsity next season. Also the gymnasts came within a whisker of winning the New Englands and all the details will be in tomorrow's MDC.

I am a TRINITARIAN

I sought my Soul,
but my soul I couldn't see.

I sought my God
but my God eluded me.

I sought my Brother
and I found ALL THREE.

Our youngest seminarian helps the prisoner, the addict, the alcoholic, the retarded, the migrant — the left out. We don't all directly touch the poor. Some teach, staff parishes, preach, do research work. Come live the generous love of the Trinitarian way.

Father Joseph
Grey Rock, Garrison, Maryland 21055

Dear Father Joseph,
Tell me about your way of life.

Name _____ age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
(check preference) Priest _____ Brother _____

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

MDC CLASSIFIED

NEW RATES

The MDC has lowered its classified advertising rates! 75c for the first insertion, 50c for each subsequent consecutive insertion. Take advantage of this money-saving bargain NOW!

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Trac, Garrard, FE, Autog, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers, LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Portable 12" Sears TV, new, $90; 8 track stereo tape deck, Radio Shack, also $60; pair 6 ft. skis $10. Must sell all. Call BILL 549-6821 tf23-8

Man size rribbagr boards, solid oak, 40" x 8½ x 2", hand-rubbed. Call 546-6633. tf5-8

Avocado gas ranger and refrigerrator (Sears), used 2 mos., less than half price, $90 - $140 respectively 549-6573. tf3-9

1970 BMW R75 never dropped, best offer, 9000 miles. Call 549-3071. tf3-9

Realistic 900 stereo tape recorder, 2 speakers, wires, 2 preamp, 2 auxiliary head, jack, dix. counter, VU meters. New last fall for $170, now $130. Call Carl 201 Dwight. Leave message. tf3-8

32 H&R Revolver and ammo, fired 10 times. Call 549-3071. tf3-5

USED FURS — jackets capes, and stoles for spring. New shipments of coats, some raccoon. All sizes, $15 and up. Call 253-5905. tf23-12

Speaker boxes, excellent sound, 8" driver, mid high end, natural hard wood cabinet, tweeter crossover. must be heard. Call 545-6300 days. tf23-12

Specially designed health furniture, comfy couch, comfy chair, comfy rocker, 2 lamps, 2 end tables. Best offer. Call Lori 665-4067. tf23-10

Turn livingroom into bedroom! Loveseat with hideaway bed, great for apartment, excellent condition. $100 or best offer. Call 648-9161 tf23-10

BOOKS

We buy used books and records - Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts!

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1964 Chevy Van Panri, good condition $395. 1961 Dodge Van Panri, good condition $395. Telephone 253-3046. tf-9-9

1968 Fiat 850, 2 dr. Asking $1100. Call 549-0786. tf3-8

Sunbeam GT 61 HT Conv., very clean, R & H, excellent body and tires. Runs good. $375 (neg.) 545-3029 tf3-8

2 VW engines 36 and 40 hp, rrecently rebuilt, will take trade, $125 and $175 a piece. Call 584-4820 nights. tf3-9

1968 VW Bug, white with black interior, fastidously maintained, radio and snow tires. Reasonable. Call Ed 549-0814. tf3-8

1968 Corvette S.P.C.P., power steer., brakes, window, 350 hp, 4 spd., AM-FM stereo and tape, reas. offer. Mike at 549-6199. tf3-12

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-3118. tf3-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service, John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501 tf2-22

TYPING — Thesis, Manuscripts, Dissertations, Masters, in fact all typing requirements can be handled through SANDY'S SECRETARIAL SERVICE, dial 584-8005. tf-mwf 5-11

Enjoy more free time and vacations. English BA will type and/or revise anything. Theses, too. Campus pick-up/delivery center. Professional, reasonable. 584-6573 eves tf3-10

WANTED

Black sinerre male student near Amherst. Please write to white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible close summer relationship. Confidential. Box 723, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

Bread Truck or Lrr. Van, 14' min. reas. shape, pref. alum. body. Will haggle. Call 545-2705, Gene. tf3-10

7 bedroom apt. for March, April or May. Call 253-3087 anytime. tf3-9

HELP WANTED

QUALIFIED TYPISTS, STENOGRAPHERS
Need some extra money? Call Mrs. Ethel Britell, Campus Center Printing Shop, 545-0371. tf3-8

Cash girls? As much as $30.00 an hour for go-getters. Call 367-2350. tf3-12

FOR RENT

PERFECT FOR SUMMER SCHOOL! furn 1 bdrm. apt. for July and Aug. No lease req. $161 mo. Near Campus, pool, tennis courts, air cond. Married couple or girls preferred. Call 549-3916 after 5. tf3-31

Share — 2b hr. drive from Amherst, lg. 4 rm. all electric apt., stove, refrig., disposal, incinerator furnished. Also washer and dryer hookup. Ample pkg and storage, $130 mo. 1-413-477-6060. tf3-10

Own room in 3 br. apt., 4 mi. on Rt. 9. $50 mo. 253-5662, Pete tf3-8

House available June 16 to Aug. 28 — 3 bdrm., basement fully finished, completely furnished, $275 mo. 549-6573. tf3-9

Available immediately, small single room, garage, included, 1 mile from University, low rent, call 253-5308. tf3-8

Two large bedroom apt. (redone kitchen and bathroom) Fearing St., near campus, $150 per month, all utilities incl. Call Mr. Mulcahy, 12 a.m. - 7 a.m. 549-0611. tf3-11

TO SUBLET

Efficiency apt, Quabbin Vlg., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fee paid. Call 253-7039 after 7 p.m. Available immediately. tf3-12

To sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo. Cliffside Apt., Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9212 after 6:30. tf3-12

RIDE WANTED

Wanted ride from Campus to Longmeadow or Springfield area, Mon., Wed., and Fri. about 3:30-4:00. Will pay. 567-8317. tf5-

Riders wanted to Fort Lauderdale over Spring break. $45.00 round trip. No driving. Call 549-3974. tf3-

UNIV. ROOM WANTED

I'm looking for a girl's dorm single. Want to move out of yours? If so, I'll take room and pay you rest of rent of semester. Now approx $585. Call 584-8530. tf3-8

PERSONAL

If you have had an abortion or vasectomy, and are willing to talk about your experience, please call ASPIRE at 545-0366. 9-5. tf3-9

Hot lips Jennir is very, very surprised. tf3-9

Last 3/3 behind DC7, one homknit fisherman knit sweater. Reward, no questions asked. Great sentimental value. Call D after 5:00 p.m. at 665-3576. tf3-12

REWARD

FINANCE

Needed Bonnie or Clyde willing to risk $2000 in a summer theater community. Contact RSO 332. tf3-9

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NASSAU in spring and EUROPE in summer. For details call Steve 549-1357 or Brian 549-3963 3 1,2,5,8,9,12,15,16

Trip: Spring vacation on March 26-27. $69 a head round trip to Atlantis, hotel accomodations and scuba equipment included. Continental Travel Agency. Call 545-2411. tf3-8

OVERLAND EXPEDITION TO INDIA. Leaves London mid-June $190. Also return CHARTERS to London $190 approx. Encounter Overland, 1414 E. 80th St., Chicago, Ill. 60637. 3- 2 4 8 10 12 16 18 30 4- 6 8

Eastern Gym Finals At UM This Weekend

The top college gymnasts in the East will be in action March 11-13 in Curry Hicks Cage as UMass hosts the 44th Annual Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League Championships. This competition will decide individual champions, finalize League standings, and determine the League's representative to the Nationals, as well as selecting the qualifiers from the East for the NCAA Championships.

Participating teams include UMass, Springfield, Syracuse, Pittsburg, Army, Navy, Temple, and Penn State. Presently, Penn State is undefeated in their bid to regain the EIGL title, while Springfield College, last year's League winner, has completed its dual meet season in League competition with a 6-1 slate. Temple University, last year's League representative to the Nationals, and the powerful UMass squad both have a number of outstanding performers who are capable of making them contenders for top honors.

Competition will begin at 1:00 p.m. on Thurs., March 11, with compulsory exercises being conducted in all events. Two sessions on Fri., on beginning at 1:00 p.m. and the other at 7:00 p.m., will feature optional routines, as team and all-around totals will be decided. The final session, starting at 2:00 p.m. on Sat., will highlight the individual finals in all events, as well as the presentation of the various trophies that have been won.

General admission will be $2.00 for the Thurs. session, $2.00 for the Fri. session (includes both performances), and $3.00 for the finals on Sat. High school and college admission will be $1.00 for each day.

The Easterns will provide a chance for all interested to see outstanding performances of some of the top gymnasts in the nation. Watch the Collegian for further information.

This was a big weekend for UMass sports teams. In hockey the UMass pucksters destroyed Merrimack, 10-1 on Saturday and now ready for Vermont on Wed. In wrestling the UMass matmen won the first New England title ever stopping the SC streak. See page 12.

BE PATIENT!

If you sent your three bucks (plus 3% tax), name, address, and birthdate to QUEEQUEG and have not yet received your handsome, individually crafted, personal medallion with your own ancient Zodiac symbol—don't blame Zoroaster or the P. O. Department. QUEEQUEG doesn't charge extra for postage, but your Q-TAG will arrive. Be patient. (Also be kind to pidgeons with packs on their backs. A few bread crumbs on your windowsill may help.) QUEEQUEG, Box 695, Falmouth, Mass. 02541.

NIT Buses

The Student Senate Transit Service will offer a charter bus transportation to the National Invitational Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The first round of the NIT will be held March 20th and 21st. Because many students will have left campus by the time of the game, we have arranged for special charter busses to originate in Amherst, Springfield, Boston and Worcester.

Tickets on these busses will be sold on the first come first serve basis. We reserve the right to cancel any bus which is not filled by noon Thursday, March 18th. Announcement of any cancellation will be made on WMUA and in the Collegian on Friday, March 19th.

MDC Staffers Pick Pick "THE Fight"

The UMass sports department has put their massive minds together and have come up with a verdict that eight writers are for Ali and one is for Frazier. The lone Frazier man is Steve Ferber who says that Frazier will KO Ali at 1:42 of the 10th round.

The Ali supporters are Earle Barroll (KO in 6), Dan Kamal (TKO in 12), Fred Rosenthal (KO in 10), Bob Medieros (decision) Bob Ganley (KO 12), Steve Mosher (KO in 15th), Barry Rubenstein (KO in 7) and Anne Satdnicki, news editor (KO in 9).

With the odds for this fight ranging from even to a little advantage for Frazier these writers are seemingly of the opinion that Ali has not lost any of the zip that he once had four years ago as the champ.

So tonight if "The Fight" of the century and tomorrow's Collegian will give all the details and the outcome of the bout.

At this time those mentioned above will also be able to glow at their predictions or fall to pieces in defeat.

Pick it as you may the MDC is going out on the line: Ali 8, Frazier 1.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Leo is more sensitive than most persons might imagine. The showmanship, the color and glamor often are covers to protect, shade and keep delicate areas from being exposed. Leo is persistent, not tough. Leo is creative, dynamic, wanting to give and receive affection. Some famous persons born under this zodiacal sign include Robert Mitchum, Mae West, and Dustin Hoffman.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can have fun meeting, overcoming challenge. Strive for versatility. Express willingness to laugh at your own foibles. Forgive those who seem possessed of foolish notions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Block attempts of family members, others, to restrict you, to demean ambitions and efforts. Be your own person. Stand tall. You possess something of value. Don't sell it or yourself short.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Trips, dealings with relatives and neighbors are likely to be featured. You are given messages. You relay thoughts, feelings. This is no time for games. Stakes are high and for keeps.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Purchase of luxury items is favored. Improve safety measures at home. Take nothing for granted. Feelings of family member apt to be delicate. Stress diplomacy. Accent mature approach.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on greater independence, original concepts and methods. Don't hide your light. Speak up; let people know what you think and desire. Results are favorable and could startle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Behind-the-scenes activities, nuances are important. One who is usually outspoken may now be subtle. Don't be caught off balance. Realize you do have powerful allies, backing.

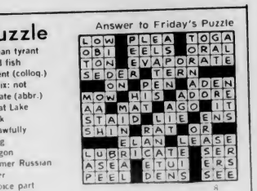
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stress on understanding friends and your own inclinations. This is testing period for special relationship. Aries individual could play prominent role. Maintain give and take attitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get opportunity to prove some theories. One in position to advance cause is receptive. Express your own views. Leave hackneyed phrases, notions to others. Highlight originality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect continues to highlight journeys, publications, special advertising. Trust hunch. Share knowledge. Learn by teaching. Aquarius individual could provide some key answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on money as it affects joint efforts, partnership, marriage. One who is extravagant should not be permitted to upset plans, budget. Maintain humor, but know how to draw line.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on marriage, permanent relationships. Sagittarius person deserves special consideration. Tell what you know without betraying a confidence. Some look to you for guidance. Provide it.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be tempted to skip essentials. Best to keep vital appointments, to complete basic chores. One who depends on you may come up with pleasant surprise. Be gracious, fair but firm.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an enigma to many associates. You appear unworldly. But, during times of crisis, you can take command. Those who think you are weak learn otherwise. You feel deeply. You are the opposite of superficial. You now are in situation where cooperation is a must. If recently married, period of adjustment may be difficult but odds are in your favor; you will overcome adversity.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Friday's Puzzle

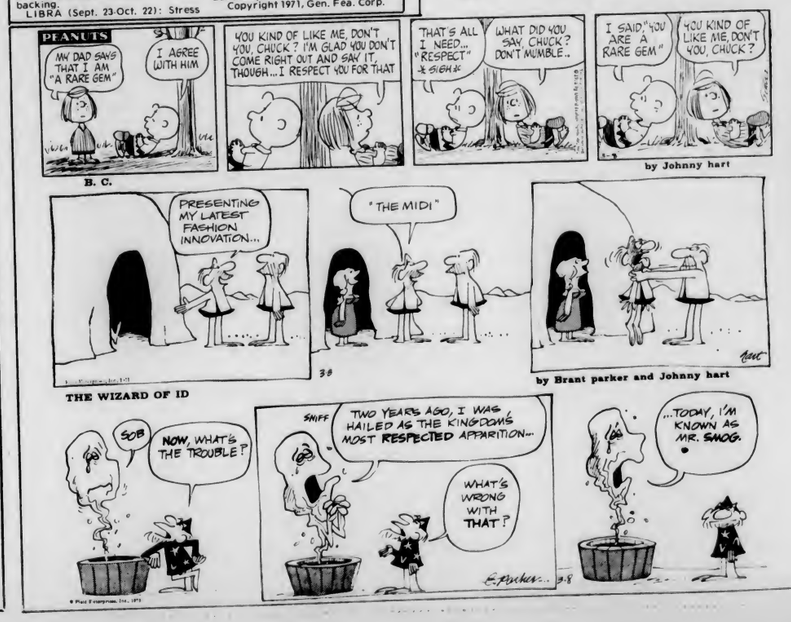
ACROSS

1 Intended
6 Underground excavations
11 Bread spread
12 Put on one's guard
14 Bone
15 Jog
17 Musical instrument
18 Devoured
20 Expels
23 Guido's high note
24 Of the same material
26 Blemish
28 Printer's measure
29 Attempts
31 Raising
33 South African Dutch
35 Reach across
36 Reached its highest point
39 Locations
42 French article
43 Doctrine
45 Gull-like bird
46 Man's nickname
48 Sword
50 Fish eggs
51 Cripple
53 Allowance for waste
55 Prefix: down
56 Strips of leather
59 N.Y. Mets pitcher
61 Weird
62 Man's name

DOWN

1 Summon
2 Latin conjunction
3 Unit of Siamese currency
4 Roman tyrant
5 Food fish
6 Parent (colloq.)
7 Prefix: not
8 A state (abbr.)
9 Great Lake
10 Took unlawfully
11 Brag
13 Jargon
16 Former Russian ruler
19 Choice part
21 Cravats
22 Breaks suddenly
25 Sumptuous meal
27 Characteristic
30 Satiates
32 Bury
34 Girl's name
36 Bivalve mollusks
37 Refund
38 Amount owed
40 Wears away
41 Scoff
44 Brief
47 Ireland
49 Walk unsteadily
52 Dictate
54 Siamese native
57 Greek letter
58 Compass point
60 A state (abbr.)

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 8



HAMBURGERS
19¢

CHEESEBURGERS
24¢

introducing:

2 pieces Chicken
French Fries
Cole Slaw
Roll
Honey
79¢

DRUMMER BOY
55 University Drive

Pucksters Romp; Matmen Win NE's

Bomb Merrimack, 10-1 In Prep For Playoffs

By STEVE MOSHER
MDC Staff

The Redmen saved their best for last. Saturday afternoon at Orr Rink the UMass hockey team tuned up for its playoff season by destroying Merrimaek College 10-1.

Eric Scrafield led the UMass juggernaut with four goals for the second straight game as UMass ended the Warrior's slim playoff hopes. Pat Keenan scored two to run his record breaking total to 28. And single tallies were added by Bob Bartholomew (his first of the season), Jack Edwards, Dan Reidy, and Don Riley.

The Redmen now must wait until Wednesday when they will play Vermont in the first round of the ECAC Division II playoffs at a still undetermined site. Both teams have identical 12-3 records in Division II games (disregarding ties) and who gets home ice is an important question.

It is obvious that UMass will have the momentum on their side. They [illegible] won their last three [illegible] a combined 10-1 score. [illegible] Catamounts ten [illegible] place tie with [illegible] they lost to Norwich by a [illegible] struck.

For all intents and purposes the hockey season is over. The second the puck is dropped to start the game. This is to be the Red-

CHICO BEARS IN: Chico Shea moves in on Merrimack College goalie Jack Busalacchi in Saturday's 10-1 romp over the visiting Warriors at Orr Rink. The Redmen begin Division II playoff action Wednesday. (MDC photo by DAN KAMAL) more Central Conn. finished third with 51 points, followed by a strong URI team with 44 and Brown with 44. The Coast Guard Academy won the freshman tourney with 71 points ahead of Springfield with 49. UMass finished sixth with 25 points. Next weekend is the university division tournament but as Coach Barr said after the weekend's win, "everything after this is anti-climatic."

This first goal came at 2:21. The eventual game winner. Keenan's second of the day and 28th of the season, was scored at 7:41. On this play Don Lowe fed the puck from the right point up the boards to Edwards. Edwards eluded a defenseman and fed Keenan who was sitting on the doorstep and Pat rammed the disc into the net.

Less than a minute later Bartholomew sent the Scrafield line away on a 3 on 1 break and the three Redmen worked the play to perfection. With Chico Shea on his left and Riley on his right, Scrafield moved over the blue line. He waited until the defenseman committed himself to stopping Shea and then slid the puck to Riley who fired a 15 foot slap shot past Busalacchi. It was 3-0 and UMass was just warming up.

At 11:08 Scrafield notched his first of the game as he backhanded Shea's rebound into the net. Lowe had set up Shea with a good pass from his point position.

Sixty-six seconds later Lowe got his third assist when Edwards tipped his drive from the point into the near corner of the net. Edwards made a truly fine play in his deflection as he had about six inches of empty net to work with. And it was 5-0.

Merrimack up to this point had been playing poor hockey, but when Jim Colburn took a holding penalty rather than let Avery score a goal the Warriors came slightly alive. They killed the penalty rather well. In fact Steve O'Neil managed a break away on P. J. Flaherty. But P.J. refused to give an inch and made a great glove save.

Penalties set up UMass' sixth goal of the period. Fran Johnson and Mark Petit went to the sin bin fifty seconds apart and the Redmen had a two man advantage for seventy seconds. UMass was buzzing all around the Merrimack net peppering Busalacchi with close-range shots. And at 17:53 Scrafield connected for the second time with assists being awarded to Al Nickerson and Shea.

In the first period, UMass outshot Merrimack 20-10. Any time a team scores six goals on 20 shots one knows that that team must have been passing extremely well. And UMass had been doing just that. It was probably the finest 20 minutes UMass had played all year. While Flaherts had to stop 10 shots himself, most of them were drives from outside the blue line and he handled them easily.

The Redmen had to wait a long time between periods because the Zamboni machine was rendered inoperative and the ice had to be relimshed by hand. But even an extra long wait could not cool off UMass.

Just 1:32 into the second frame, Mark Petit was sent off the ice for interference and the Redmen had another power play. At 2:43 UMass and Bartholomew were rewarded for their persistence. Nickerson grabbed a lose puck and passed it to Keenan who bore in on the Merrimack goal. But instead of shooting, Keenan passed back to Bartholomew, and the junior defenseman from Arlington sent the puck flying into the net for his first goal of the season.

Merrimack finally got untracked and started playing the hockey it was capable of playing, but they happened to catch Flaherty at his flamboyant best. For the next four minutes the Warriors fired several vicious slap shots at P.J., but Flaherty was skating all over the ice blocking shots here and gloving them there. In short, he was everywhere.

And then the Redmen struck home again. This time it was Scrafield adding his hat trick. At 6:27 he deflected Bartholomew's drive from the point into the net and it was 8-0. This was also Bartholomew's third assist of the contest.

Merrimack then spoiled P.J.'s shutout on a fluke play. Charlie Donovan had picked up the puck in his own end and was trying to clear the zone. But in eluding on Merrimack attacker he ran into Jim Colburn who stole the puck from Donovan just a few feet in front of the UMass net and lifted the rubber past a helpless Flaherty. This goal came at 8:20. But by that time the game was already in the bag.

UMass finished the second period scoring at 10:07 when Scrafield lit the lamp for the fourth time. The referee was about to call a tripping penalty on Dennis Goryl of Merrimack, but the Redmen controlled the puck long enough for the sixth skater to come on the ice. And the extra man was one too many for the Warriors as Scrafield managed to ram home a rebound off Shea's shot.

Things got a little hairy near the end of the period when Merrimack found themselves in a 4 on 3 power play situation.

Daily Collegian

Sports

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 101
MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1971

men's game. Their passing and skating on offense was incredible and their daring on defense was just as effective. The first period was UMass' finest hour as it roared to a 6-0 lead.

Keenan scored the first two UMass goals. The opening score was somewhat like a basketball play. Keenan took the face off to the left of the Merrimack net, whipped the puck to the right point to Bartholomew who took a slap shot. Keenan, working on the give-and-go, seemingly stopped Bartholomew's shot in mid air and threw a hook shot into the net by a startled Merrimack goaltender, Jack Busalacchi.

Reynolds and Godkin also finished third at 126 and 158 respectively to seal Springfield's doom. Godkin lost to Lint in the quarter finals but proved his worth to his team by beating Dave Case of Amherst, 3-2 in the colsolation finals for third place. Reynolds lost to Serge Brunner of Brown in the semis and found himself in a head to head battle with Springfield's Ferrari for third place. At the time the two point difference between third and fourth was crucial and Reynolds beat the number one seeded Chief 3-1.

Although neither Urquhart or Carlsson placed, both provided their team with points.

Tourney tidbits....The other champions were Wesleyans Mike Hurd at 126 and Dartmouth's Ted Thompson at 177....Six of the winners were seeded number one, two were seeded second, one third and one fifth...The happiest man in Lowell had to be coach Barr, with Asst. coach Tunner Brosky a close second...Barr won the coach of the year award and no one deserves it

Wrestlers End Springfield Skein

By BOB GANLEY
MDC Staff

Lowell, Mass-The Boston and Lowell papers called it an upset. The people at the tourney called it an upset. Springfield, who came in second place and was highly favored, felt it was an upset. But for the UMass wrestlers and their two coaches who pulled it off, it was a highly emotional victory, but not an upset because they knew all along they could do it.

What "it" was was an 87-77 victory over Springfield and the 28 other schools which make up the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Association at the twenty fifth annual tourney held over the weekend at the Lowell Technological Institute.

Williams College won the tournament in 1950 with Springfield finishing second, but until Saturday night, that was the last time the New England championship had left the campus of Springfield. What the Redmen did was wrestle almost to perfection right down the line and keep the pressure on the Chiefs until one of the teams faltered. And it wasn't the Redmen.

Trying to put into words the emotion and pressures which were prevalent on both the wrestlers and their coaches during the two day affair is impossible, but an attempt must be made. For the Redmen, there was not one hero or two heroes but ten and it would be an injustice to leave anyone out of the limelight each deserves so very much to be the center of.

First there was heavyweight Carl Dambman, sixth seeded in the tourney and sometimes during the season not even the best on his team. What Carl did was not only prove himself the best heavyweight at the University of Mass, but also win the New England championship and pull off the biggest upset of the tournament.

However, it wasn't easy. After an opening round bye, he had to face top seeded Frank Walsh of Brown and after the smoke had cleared, he had scored two takedowns, an escape and two minutes riding time for a 7-1 win. Exit Mr. Walsh,. Next was Dick Pritchard of Dartmouth and the two wrestled as evenly as possible for 7:59 of the bout with no score and no riding time. However the tournament's cinderella wrestler scored an escape in the last second for a 1-0 win and put himself in the final. Meanwhile, URI's Mike McKenna knocked off Pollard of Springfield in advancing to the finals and shut out the Chiefs in that weight class. The final was anticlimatic as Dambman demolished McKenna en-route to a 15-3 win. Carl's contribution to the Redmen was a neat 13 points while Springfield was collecting a goose egg.

Next was Tommy Young, the defending 167 lb. champ who had sat out most of the winter due to various personal and weight problems. Young was originally to wrestle at 158 but had difficulty in getting down and persuaded Coach Homer Barr to let him defend his 167 title. So with only a weeks practice and one dual meet match under his belt, Young wrestled as hard as he had to in reaching the finals. He scored 7-5 and 8-6 wins in the quarter and semi-finals and had to go up against tough Mark David of the Coast Guard for all the marbles. The match was a typical Young effort. Neither could get the first period takedown. Davis scored a quick escape in the second and Young was warned for stalling. Young evened the score with an escape in the third and the two battled on their feet down to the wire. But his teammates knew all along he would score the winning takedown and with ten seconds left he made his move and it was all over for Davis. The final was 3-1 and it gave UMass a 12-2 edge over Springfield in that weight class.

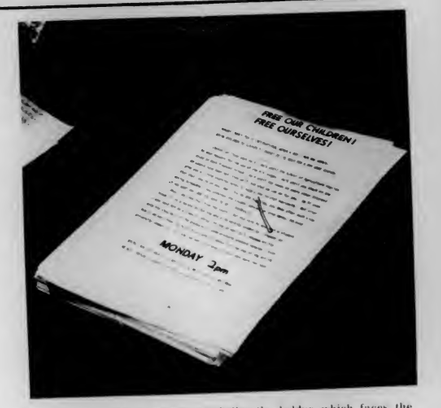
The third champion, and probably the surest bet ever to appear in any Redmen uniform, was Sheldon Goldberg. The 134-pounder swept to the defense of his title he had won just as easily last year. It isn't that 134 is a weak class, it's just that Goldberg is so good. He won four victories during the tourney, one by pin, in compiling 14 points and he clinched the championship for his team by knocking off Tom Pollard of Springfield in the finals, 5-1. After his victory he threw his helmet in the air in elation and it was fitting that he had the honor of clinching the victory. He is the team cheerleader, its captain and a sure bet of a victory every time he walks on the mat. He looks like a windup toy the way he dances around before a mat and should be a psych major the way he stares down an opponent during the introductions. He is also, in his coaches words, the teams most valuable wrestler and maybe next year will win the outstanding wrestler award.

This year the award went to Amherst - fine 190 pounder, Gary Sklaver. Sklaver defended his title against the same person he defeated last year, UMass' George Zguris. Both advanced to the semi-finals by pins and both won by decisions in the semi-finals. Zguris, who was undefeated this season and the only person of the tourney who had gone to the finals three years in a row, gave Sklaver a rough and tumble match, but the crosstown rival prevailed in the final, 17-10. However, George picked up a valuable ten points for the Redmen while Springfield was being shut out and can take some consolation in the fact that Sklaver will now go on to the nationals, where he finished third last year.

The other second place winner was 118 pounder Dave Amato. Amato was being counted on by coach Barr to pick up important points and he did just that. He won 15-6 and 7-3 decisions en route to the final, but for once, Springfield came out ahead. Billy Metts, who had beaten Amato in a dual meet, 9-1, was by far the best wrestler in the class and beat Dave in the final, 7-0. But Amato did all that was asked of him as he picked up nine points for the Redmen and almost negated Metts' point total.

If there was any one reason why the Redmen won, it had to be depth. Each team had three champions, Springfield's being Metts and defenders Steve Gaydosh at 142 and Mickey Lint at 150, and each had two runner ups, Zguris, Amato, Pollard and 150 pounder Stan Sothenden. But after Springfield's Ray Ferrari came in fourth at 126, the Chiefs were shut out of the scoring. On the other hand, the Redmen had three thirds and ended up with eight place winners. It was this depth that made the difference. In the record books, it won't mention the contribution of Clay Jester, Dave Reynolds, Jim Godkin, Brian Urquhart and Ed Carlsson, but without the efforts of these five, Springfield would be champ for the 21st consecutive year.

Jester lost a last second decision in the semi-finals and should have been demoralized, but went on to win the consolations and finish third. Clay almost didn't place anywhere, as he found himself down 2-1 in the consolation semi-finals with time running out. However, the junior out of Dover, Delaware, tied the score with a last second escape and went on to win in overtime to advance to the finals and a 9-3 come from behind victory over Saia of UConn.



New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Fair and Cooler. Highs in 40's. Chance of snow squalls.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 102 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1971

These stacks of leaflets symbolize the holdup which faces the supporters of the day care center in getting funds from the administration.

Mothers Lobby In Whitmore For Child Day-Care Center

By MICHAEL BOUVIER
MDC Staff

University student mothers held a party yesterday in the lobby of Whitmore Administration building to protest University priorities concerning a children's day care center. The celebration was a party for the kids, and also a demonstration to emphasize the need for a day care center.

"This is an effort to get the University to take responsibility," a spokesman for the group said.

It is the contention of the group that a day care center for children is a community responsibility, not merely a student issue. Last semester was a time of education, the spring term is one of action, one mother said.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo attended the party, where he was presented with a petition demanding that the University do its part in providing for adequate day care.

The Chancellor agreed that the burden of child care should be shared by the community and stated that the problem was "how to use available funds in the best possible way."

If a day care center were to be set up, one petitioner stated, law requires that there be paid professional staff. There must be a director, a nurse and one adult for every ten children, she explained.

Student organizations have pledged some financial assistance, but far more will be required for operation. It is hoped that the administration can help provide these funds.

Last Tuesday, the administration proposed a building on the corner of North Pleasant Street and Eastman Lane for future use as a day care center. The mothers fear that activities will stop at this point.

According to Dr. Robert Gage, Director of Student Health Services, the facility offered at present will be suitable for only twenty-five children. The mothers contend that community needs require more space.

Although the proposed center has little means to finance operations once underway, the issue is not merely one of money, but also one of time and space, one petitioner said.

The administration has said that the present residents of the North Pleasant Street building can be out by May and the building renovated for use by September. The day care center advocates state that the building has little potential for expansion.

"A difference exists between the two groups as to the rate of speed of implimentation of a large child care center, "one representative of the administration said, but he forsees interaction of goals in the future.

The mother's group says the next step is uncertain but they await new developments.

Having been turned down once by the School of Agriculture for the use of the 4-H lodges, the group will probably approach the school again on the basis that 4-H is purportedly child oriented, a spokesman for the group said.

The lodges could contain approximately one-hundred fifty children and thus would be a viable alternative to the North Pleasant Street building the group estimates.

The administration is at present projecting the cost of the project and determining how much money it can allot to the day care center.

"We will be looking for more space, thoroughly investigating all possibilities" one woman at the gathering said. She added that petitions will probably continue to circulate in offices and amongst faculty and students.

Having a ball-this youngster seems to be enjoying herself at the party held in Whitmore yesterday by the advocates for a play center for the children.

On The Inside:

● Frazier Beats Ali
See page ten

● SATF May Hit $50
See page two

● UMass Lettuce Problem May Be Solved
See page two

Tippo: "I Don't Even Like Lettuce"

By JEFF THOMPSON
MDC Staff

The UMass lettuce boycott problems were cleared up, at least temporarily, yesterday afternoon in Whitmore.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo at last had a chance to make his feeling about lettuce, and salads in general, known publicly as he harummpphed, "I don't even like lettuce."

Tippo, who is known campus wide for his fetish for tomatoes, did not let his feelings stand in front of the way of his job as he agreed to contact State Attorney General Robert Quinn to determine whether UMass has the right to purchase only United Farm Worker's lettuce.

The UMass lettuce boycott committee met with Tippo at 3:30 P.M. in his office to explain its position. At 4:00 a meeting had been already scheduled with the directors of the Food Service Department, and Tippo invited the committee to take part in that meeting also.

At the first meeting the boycott committee made it clear that they wished that the university not purchase non-UFW lettuce and asked that UMass support the boycott.

Paul Scheinkopf, a spokesman for the committee, mentioned that the students have no control over whose lettuce they eat. Jack Clark, another spokesman, said that neither he nor the committee had met any opposition to their purpose.

The Chancellor then revealed that there is another group of students on campus who are supporting the Teamsters' lettuce (antiant UFW group) He also said that he is bou id by the law to accept competitive bidding.

Mr Richard Howland, Student Senate General Counsel, proposed buying only lettuce substitutes.

Tippo replied, "This could establish a dangerous precedent. What would happen next year if citrus fruit pickers decide to strike? I can't very well starve everyone." He also added that marijuana was produced in slave conditions in Mexico and Turkey. "Would you agree that marijuana shouldn't be used until the pickers unionized?" he joked.

Tippo then announced that he would go to the Attorney General for law clarification if they desired, and then he invited them to the next meeting.

The 4:00 meeting started with Syd Meyers', the University lawyer quoting Chp. 17 sec. 13 of Massachusetts law by saying that "to make purchases they are bound 'to follow modern methods of purchasing...competitive bidding,' after starting with a reasonable standard of quality."

Nelson Jaeger, Unit 3 Chapter Chairman of Local 1776, asked whether the different types of lettuce have been compared.

"For the past week the quality and the price has been absolutely the same for UFW lettuce and non-UFW lettuce," explained Joel Stoneham, Director of Food Services. However he continued by saying that he didn't feel that there is enough UFW lettuce shipped up here for the entire university.

"The reason the quality of the lettuce changes," clarified Warren T Grinnan, Manager of the Campus Center," is that lettuce starts to be picked in California, and then later in the season, it shifts to Arizona, then to Texas and finally to New Jersey."

The reason for this is that lettuce is grown where there are the correct number of growing days and the right temperature for working, he said. In the summer, the lettuce is not grown down south because it is so hot it is consequently raised in New Jersey, he added.

Grinnan asked the committee whether the pickers in all four states were unionized.

Alwin Schmidt, the third committee spokesman, said that they are organized in California and Arizona, but they are just starting in Texas, and that there are none in New Jersey. However, he said, in New Jersey the work isn't being done by exploited migrant workers.

Grinnan said that he knew of no union lettuce coming out of Arizona right now where the current growing place is.

Stoneham said that the students themselves could boycott the lettuce themselves by simply not eating it. He said that if no one eats lettuce, it would be legitimate cause for not buying any more. He said that they provide three different salads each day, only one of which has lettuce. The others are fruit and cottage cheese.

Tippo asked whether any innocent people would be hurt if they stopped buying lettuce altogether. The boycott committee said "no" but Mrs. Carol Drew, President of Local 1776 said "yes."

This caused some confusion, but it was soon resolved that it would actually hurt the UFW but that it would be better than buying Teamster lettuce.

Stoneham suggested a policy of buying union lettuce on that particular day." The quality would be determined by the wholesale experts who do the university buying.

Attorney Meyers said that he didn't feel a policy of this nature would be illegal, but it would definitely be discriminatory and could be challenged.

Tippo then said that he would send a letter to the Attorney General and ask to be counseled. The students and Howland asked whether they could see the letter and approve of the wording before it was sent. This was agreed to.

The student committee agreed to meet Vice-Chancellor Campion next Monday morning at 10:00 to discuss Quinn's answer.

The committee also mentioned after the meeting that the picket line in front of a Dining Commons (they declined to say which) that had originally been scheduled for today would be cancelled due to the settlement.

HUMPH, PROPOSTEROUS-Chancellor Oswald Tippo, while relieved over a proposed settlement in the campus lettuce crisis, was aghast yesterday when someone linked him to the settlement. Tippo, who said, "I never was fond of lettuce," is a devout tomato lover, and has been known to shun the leaf when it is not accompanied by a rosey red one. (MDC photo by Chiquita banana.)

SATF of $50 Looming Next Year

By BETH GOODELL
MDC Staff

A Student Activities Tax (SATF) of $50 per student is looming on the horizon for next year, according to Kevin Kulakowski, chairman of the Student Senate Budgets Committee. This is an increase of up to $14 over this year's SATF of $36 per year.

The Senate is in the process of determining the budgets of each of the student organizations funded by the SATF. The Budgets Committee is recommending budgets for the 25 organizations which altogether total about $785,000, an increase of $230,000.

According to Senator Kulakowski, "The Budgets Committee has become very concerned with what is happending this year. Every group that comes before the committee thinks that it deserves the money it wants. We're not opposed to any group, but what do we do when the requests mean an increase of $14 in student taxes next year?"

When the Budgets Committee presents the entire Budget Act of all the groups to the Senate at the end of March, Kulakowski plans to present a set of recommendations which the Senate might follow to keep the SATF at the current $36.

Kulakowski cites two reasons for opposing an increase in the tax. First of all, he says that students want to defeat the proposed tuition hike in the State Legislature, but that if they increase their own tax, they may be defeating that purpose. He predicts that the Legislature will be watching what students do with their tax, and fears that "if we raise our own tax, they'll feel justified in raising our tuition."

The Chairman of Budgets further points out that "There is some talk that the Administration will take a very dim view of a tax of over $40 for next year. The Senate would be running the risk that the Administration will refuse to collect the tax if it does not approve of the amount. This would mean that all organizations budgeted under SATF will lose their money. There is no alternative way for the Senate to collect the SATF other than the current system of a mandatory fee approved by the Administration."

For these two reasons, Kulakowski plans to ask the Senate to make some rough decisions on how to decrease the total budget. He says that a set of guidelines will have to be formulated for the Senate to use in making a decrease. He leaves it up to the Senate to decide whether the cuts will be made by the cutting of categories or the striking of the entire budgets of certain organizations.

Each budget is heard by the Senate three times. After the Senate's first consideration of each, the Budgets Committee makes its final recommendations for the budgets. When all of them are combined in the entire budget act, they are read before the Senate two more times. By a majority vote, the Senate can consider any proposed amendment to the budget and then, also by a simple majority, vote on whether to make the amendment. These two readings of the Budget Act are scheduled in the Senate after spring vacation. The entire budget must be presented to the Chancellor's office by April 15 for his approval.

Silverman and Pascarelli
Return To The MDC, See page 6

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports) and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst. The DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or during a holiday falling five times a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $5.00 per semester, $9.00 per year.

It's the Real Thing!
Tuesday, March 9 at 7:30
WMUA station meeting.
It's up to YOU how the voting goes. So come and make YOUR vote count. It's your station – help it along.

CCEBS Director Explains Services

By ANNE STADNICKI
MDC Staff

"More than just a program for disadvantaged students, CCEBS must offer more supportive services to its students to keep them in school," Dr. Hodges Glenn, director of the CCEBS program explained in an MDC interview yesterday.

Prompted by what he called "lack of knowledge about what the program is, what it is doing, and what it is supposed to do" Glenn outlined the problems and attitudes towards the program in an attempt to "bring the facts to the University community."

"The basic problem is that CCEBS students come in need of supportive services," Glenn said. "They need money for mere subsistence."

He said over three-fourths of the 1.2 million dollars allotted to the CCEBS goes to financial aid for students in the program.

Intensive tutoring and counselling are other needs of the program, Glenn said. He explained that personel that are not properly trained are insensitive to the problems CCEBS students face and how the job should be done.

Commenting on the "coldness" of the University community toward CCEBS students, Glenn said that no one outside of the staff welcomes them to UMass. Acceptance by peer groups is very important to any student, he added.

"Here at CCEBS we want them (the students) to feel this is their program," Glenn said. "Knowing there is someone there to help at anytime is essential to the CCEBS student who is often greatly misunderstood."

In addition to overt racism, the Black or minority student faces a subtle association and different attitude with professional people, Glenn said. He explained that once a CCEBS student is admitted he is governed by University policies.

Misunderstanding often results concerning grades, Glenn also informed the MDC. He said that his disadvantaged students are often tagged "unmotivated".

"The point is that grades mean something different to the low income student," Glenn explained. "Conventionally prepared students can approach courses with a different attitude."

He continued, saying that the disadvantaged student often comes from a disadvantaged high school and does not have the necessary know how to even drop a course or understand the mechanics of the pass/fail system.

A different rationale, or mode for learning, is expressed by the minority student, Glenn said. He added that they use evaluation as a learning experience.

The black student (of which CCEBS is mainly comprised, though not completely) progresses toward a goal and his education is an indication of strengths and weaknesses to him, he explained.

"This institution is not really geared for serving these students," Glenn said. "It is operating at turnpike speed grinding students out while the disadvantaged operate at moderate speeds."

Dr. Hodges Glenn

He suggested that a more flexible grading system be instituted for students like his.

Glenn was concerned with the inconsistencies of the University system. He said contrary to what the community at large believes, CCEBS students are in no more academic trouble than the average student. He added that the attrition rate is not much greater than 20%.

"It's not fair," Glenn said in reference to the retention policy concerning CCEBS students. He questioned the dropping of students in the program if after two semesters they do not achieve the same grade point average as students in other UMass programs. He based his argument on the fact that CCEBS students come in "deficient."

The selection process for the University is another problem Glenn discussed. He said selection through college boards and other criteria screen out disadvantaged students early.

"We don't know enough about motivation to exclude students who don't achieve on these exams," Glenn said. The CCEBS program accepts students on the basis of desire to come to the University, he said. He added that personal interviews, recommendations are often important to the admission process.

Glenn fears that CCEBS may be in danger of becoming another "white bureaucracy". According to an editorial by Phillip Pettijohn, "a segment of the community feel the (CCEBS) program and Dr. Glenn sacrificed too much to obtain this level of bureaucracy, aggressiveness, and efficiency. The Program because of the sacrifices has taken on characteristics similar to those of a white bureaucratic institution (Whitmore)."

Glenn said the program should not take this turn.

Three evaluation teams have studied the CCEBS program this year, Glenn said. The committees commended the class meetings where students explain themselves. The opportunities for students to respond to the "family warmth" of CCEBS operations was lauded also.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare noted "a refreshing conciousness regarding the small every day needs of minority students."

"It's wrong to compare other programs at this University with the CCEBS program," Glenn said. He explained that there are no parallels in the University to make valid comparisons.

Of the 103 similar programs in universities across the country Glenn said the UMass program compares favorably, except that many have budgets almost double his 1.2 million.

Coming to the conclusion that the biggest problem in CCEBS counseling and in racial relation is in general, comes from within the individual, Glenn said that "we all must know ourselves better."

Since CCEBS is presently in a transitional state, the director of the program felt that the link established with the Student Affairs office in Whitmore is an important step. He said that people will finally "find out what the facts are".

"People from two different cultures are coming together in the same community," Glenn said. It was his opinion that CCEBS is attempting interaction of the minority culture in this UMass community.

School Seeks Teachers

Bob Zelman, a grad student in philosophy, has decided to form an alternate school in Sept. 1971. He is looking for people to help him organize it and to teach there.

The school would be for people from 13 to 18 years old who are drop-outs, or people who have been kicked out of school or people whose parents don't want to send them to high school.

Zelman has organized a meeting on Wed. Night, March 10 at 8 p.m. in Rm. 902 in the Campus Center to talk about the forming of the school.

He was quoted as saying, "I want to discover new ways of learning and relating to people. I am sadly aware of how destructive the traditional high school can be. Even the very roles of teacher and student are meaningless", he said. "Throughout our whole lives we are always teaching and learning from each other."

"I am not sure of what kinds of "subject matter" the school would be concerned with. I want to talk with anyone who's interested in this kind of thing-people who are into music, art, English, history, science, perhaps even organic farming. I would like people to be into interdisciplinary things, if possible. Traditional self-limiting "subject matters" are outdated."

He is not concerned with the kind of degree people have, instead he is looking for people who have a deep love of their field (s) and an ability to get along well with other people."

A group, once it gets together, can organically define its purposes and educational philosophy, Zelman said.

"We would hopefully be able to get money from the parents or from some kind of grant or foundation," he went on. Teachers would get subsistence wages of $5000-6000, he estimated.

He invited all those who "just want to share their ideas or experiences with this kind of school, to please come to talk."

"I want to add that it would be especially good to find women to teach, who by the style of a commitment of their lives can turn people on to what the Women's liberation Movement is about," Zelman said. He added that men won't be discriminated against.

If unable to attend the meeting, Zelman suggested interested persons contact him by telephone.

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

Vets for Peace Plan Demonstration

The Veterans for Peace have called for a demonstration on March 13, which will be in the form of a march to the gates of Westover Air Force Base.

The purpose of this action is twofold: to make clear Veterans' opposition to the war while establishing GI contacts within the base.

A further value of the march lies in the fact that GI political expression is often frowned upon, and the action will explain that it is the civil right of GI's to actively oppose the war.

In this endeavor, the Veterans for Peace have received assistance from the Connecticut Valley Anti-War Coalition and the Student Mobilization Committee. The peaceful and legal demonstration will generate the necessary publicity for the advocation of the spring anti-war offensive.

The Veterans for Peace have also been working with the National Peace Action Coalition in connection with the April 24 march in Washington. Other plans include a petition to be signed and presented to Senator Kennedy and other members of the Massachusetts delegation.

For anyone interested in the march or any other phase of this group of dedicated GI's, the Veterans for Peace will hold a meeting tonight at 7:00 in Room 174 of the Campus Center.

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO EMERGENCY REPAIRS
CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS
MATCHLESS SELECTION OF FASHION-RIGHT FRAMES
WIRE FRAMES LOTS!
Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 North Pleasant St., Amherst
Tel. 256-6193

D. J.
IS BACK! TONITE!!
Ladies' Night
at
The English Pub
9:30 til close

"DESERTATIONS"
Dancing and Listening
Music by Chicago
Marvin Gay
Starting at 9:00 p.m.
CAMPUS CENTER
2nd Floor Cafeteria
50c Cover

In The Nation And The World

MOVING UP--South Vietnamese paratroopers walk ahead of armored vehicles on Route Nine in Laos as they move up to reinforce a hard press unit further inside Laos. In center of troops in foreground, a soldier operates a minesweeper. (AP Wirephoto)

Medina Court-Martialed

FT. MCPHERSON, GA. (AP) - Capt. Ernest L. Medina, the man Lt. William Calley claims ordered him to kill Vietnamese civilians at My Lai three years ago, has himself been ordered court-martialed on charges of premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese villagers.

Medina, 34, could receive the death penalty, the Army said Monday, in announcing that the charges will be referred as a capital case.

No trial date was set.

The stocky, dark-haired Medina, of Montrose, Colo., commanded a company from the American Division which swept through the tiny Vietnamese hamlet during an infantry assault operation March 16, 1968. One of Medina's platoon leaders, Lt. Calley, is on trial at Ft. Benning, Ga., charged with the murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians.

"I am innocent of the charges against me and the Army itself has a special reason to know that this is true," Medina said in a statement issued here after the announcement of his court-martial. "I am surprised and dismayed that the Army has taken this action."

Medina is charged with three specifications of premeditated murder, one with killing not less than 100 Vietnamese persons "with machine guns, rifles and other weapons."

He also is charged with shooting to death two other persons, one a male and the other a female.

The Army specified, however, that the unidentified Vietnamese male and female were not the same two that Calley is charged with murdering.

Asked if the figure of 100 Vietnamese involves the same villagers Calley is accused of killing, an Army spokesman said:

"The figure of 100 involves the inhabitants of the village whose deaths were caused by members of Company C, the company commanded by Capt. Medina."

At the time of the My Lai assault, Medina commanded Company C, 1st Battalion, 20th Infantry, 11th Light Infantry Brigade, American Division.

The captain, a father of three children and the holder of both the Silver and Bronze Star medals, also is charged with two specifications of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Two other specifications of murder, one of maiming and another of assault with a dangerous weapon, were dismissed by Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general of the Third Army here, where Medina is assigned.

The two charges of assault with a dangerous weapon allege that Medina on March 17 at My Khe shot two other persons during interrogation of "suspected enemy personnel..."

During Calley's court-martial, he testified that he directed a mass execution of unresisting Vietnamese men, women and children at the irrigation ditch east of My Lai.

Calley said:

"That was my order, sir, that was the order of the day."

"And who gave you the order?" he was asked.

"My company commander, sir, Capt. Medina," Calley replied.

Kidnappers Free Airmen

ANKARA, Turkey AP—Four U.S. airmen were freed unharmed Monday night after nearly six days in the hands of leftist kidnappers.

The airmen were released blindfolded on a road outside Ankara near the spot where they were seized Thursday. They made their way to the nearby U.S. Air Force radar communications base and were driven into Ankara shortly before midnight.

The kidnappers, members of the extremist Turkish People's Liberation Army, had demanded $400,000 ransom and had threatened to put the Americans in front of a revolutionary firing squad if it was not paid by Saturday morning.

In Washington, Secretary of State William P. Rogers thanked the Turkish government for its "rigorous and extraordinary efforts" since the abduction.

The airmen were closeted immediately after their release with American officials and Turkish police. The semiofficial Anatolian news agency quoted them as saying they were fed and treated well during their captivity.

They were blindfolded all the time and were moved from one hiding place to another, the agency reported.

A Turkish security source said the kidnappers telephoned acquaintances numerous times Monday attempting to find a way to get the captives off their hands.

Five armed Turks snatched the airmen Thursday as they left the radar-communications base, where they worked. The four are S. Sgt. Jimmie J. Sexton of San Angelo, Tex., and Airmen 1.C. Larry J. Heavner of Denver, Colo., Richard Caraszi of Stamford, Conn., and James M. Gholson of Alexandria, Va.

High Court Bars Draft Exemptions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court barred Monday draft exemptions for men who claim conscientious objections to the Indochina war but not to all wars.

The 8-1 ruling, based on what Justice Thurgood Marshall called a straightforward reading of Selective Service law, closes the door on Roman Catholics who subscribe to the "just war" doctrine as well as to other selective objectors.

Marshall said they are subject to the draft, however sincere or religious they may be. He said Congress intended to exempt only persons who oppose participating in all war.

Justice William O. Douglas dissented. He said the exemption provision is unconstitutional in that it discriminates in favor of religious persons and against humanists and atheists with similar scruples against war.

The decision upheld the conviction of Guy P. Gillette, 26, of Yonkers, N.Y., a self-described humanist who said he would help defend the country or fight in a United Nations peace-keeping effort but not in Vietnam.

At the same time, the court ruled against Louis A. Negre, 23, of Bakersfield, Calif., a Roman Catholic who was refused a discharge from the Army. After completing infantry training Negre declared his participation in the Vietnam war would contradict "all that I have been taught in my religious training."

Marshall, delivering the court's opinion in both cases, said "We hold that Congress intended to exempt persons who oppose participating in all war...and that persons who object solely to participation in a particular war not within the purview of the exempting secion..."

Feelsgood Shot Down For Bad Scag Scamper

PETERSEN'S Head Nev (AP) Reporter C. Curd, a local wine dealer yesterday told police that his 16-year-old son Willie had stolen a case of Chianti, a very rare wine. Later when the police found Willie he was lying in a gutter, dying from an overdose of heroin.

Marty Feelsgood, Willie's dealer, was later arrested in Pelican's Head district court on charges of selling the drug to young Curd. Feelsgood, a student from the University of Massachusetts on vacation here, is being held in $20,000 bail.

Police Captain Ian Kumbrealer told the press that two additional persons are also wanted in connection with the crime. They are Robert Upcink, 18, also from U Mass, and Oswald Jackson, a Pelican's Bluff Bugle copy boy.

Police are also investigating Feelsgood's girl friend, Holly Sharp, a local belly dancer, in connection with an unrelated crime, a prostitution ring operating out of the University of Massachusetts.

TONIGHT
BRANDO and SALOME

The Comparative Literature Film Series
presents
Marlon Brando in Elia Kazan's
"ON THE WATERFRONT"
and
OSCAR WILDE'S SALOME
with music by Richard Strauss, entire production based on the drawings of Aubrey Beardsley, titles by Vyvyan Holland, the son of Oscar Wilde, starring Nazimova — the ultimate in Camp "decadence" —
MAHAR — 8 — Only One Showing

Get It In!
Campus Center Program Council
Calendar notices are due
Friday, March 12.
Deliver to R.S.O. Room 101, or Mailbox #316 R.S.O.
Any organization wishing a notice for April's Calender please comply.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Why Pay The Senate Officers?

Because

On February 10, 1971, the Student Senate passed 71-S137, a bill providing salaries for the three Senate offices, retroactive to November 1970, at the following rate: President $150. per month, Vice President $125. per month, Treasurer $125. per month.

Shall this legislation stand as passed?
YES _____ NO _____

71-S137 was passed by a vote of 33 aye, 18 nay, and 4 abstentions. A petition calling for a referendum on the issue was signed by 5,027 students.

The Public Relations Committee of the Senate feels that all students should be well-informed on the issues before voting on the referendum. Therefore, we are publishing this leaflet with opinions from proponents and opponents of the bill, plus information on the duties of Senate officers and a list of universities and colleges replying to a Senate letter indicating their present policies concerning officer remuneration.

The election will be held on Tuesday, March 9 from 9-5 in the Commonwealth room.

****

71-S137 Whereas, Student Senate officers should be expected to devote an exceptional amount of time to the duties of their elected offices; and
Whereas, Student Senate officers should not be expected to be any more affluent than the average student; be it therefore Resolved that Student Senate officers be compensated according to the following schedule:

President	$150. per month
Vice-President	$125. per month
Treasurer	$125. per month

This compensation shall be in the form of cash or check and shall be retroactive to November 1, 1970. The funds shall be disbursed bi-weekly. The officers elected in Spring 1970 shall collect compensation (if serving in office) for the months of November and December 1970, January, February, March and April 1971. Officers elected in Spring 1971 shall collect compensation for May 1971. If an officer leaves office for any reason before the end of a given month he loses compensation for that month and succeeding months, except in the case of officers whose terms have expired who shall collect compensation through April 1971 inclusive. There will be no compensation for the month of June 1971. Be it further
Resolved that $2,100. be appropriated from account 802X for the purpose of paying Student Senate officers. (Resolved: Elters)

The idea of compensation for Student Senate Officers is not original to the UMass Campus. Before S-137 was presented to the Student Senate last month, the Activities Committee of the Senate sent out questionnaires to over fifty randomly chosen colleges and universities. Of those that answered, two-thirds either pay their Student government officers, or give them scholarships. The highest was Florida State which pays it $3600 per year. The lowest was Purdue at $250. With other officers varying accordingly, the UMass Senate wants to pay its president less than halfway between the two.

The UMass Student Senate has broader powers and more responsibilities than most of its counterparts. Not the least of these is the unusually high amount of money with which they deal. This is not to say students are not as heavily taxed at other institutions. Rather the Student Activity Tax money is controlled by forces (generally administrative) other than Student elected representatives.

Vote "Yes" On The Referendum Commonwealth Room, Student Union

Paid for by Student Senate Public Relations Committee

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — David Williams
NEWS STAFF — Michael Boucier
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
PHOTO — Larry Goldberg, Ken Emery
AD LAYOUT — Kris Domian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

A Real Saving

We would like to live in a world where money did not mean time and time did not mean that things will be run properly. Unfortunately, the world we do live in is founded on certain principles of economic necessity and a never ending need to have things run well.

That is why the Collegian endorsed the concept of paying the top officers of the undergraduate Student Government Association. We feel that the compensation allotted to the Student Senate's officers through bill #71-8137 represents a positive growth towards realistically administering over $500,000,000 in student tax money every year and also represents the interests of the largest and least effective segment of the campus community, the students.

The assumption we make is simple: that the University now enrolls some 16,000 undergraduate students who have vital interests and services to protect and foster; the manner in which these interests and services are administered depends wholly, whether you like it or not, on the quality and stregth of the Student Senate.

Over the past ten years the student population has steadily increased. This year we grew and next year the place will expand again. It is true that in the past Student Government could be left to those pure-hearted souls who would run recreational activities and meet once or twice a week. The most memorable experiences of student goverament in the past centered around things like giving a speech on "Student Leader Night". Now, the Student Senate and its officers have to assume the responsibilities, on a daily basis, of the rights and monies of an undergraduate student population which soon will grow to 20,000.

The choice which students must make is whether or not to accept the fact of its own needs. In order to fulfill the ever-growing undergraduate needs of the Amherst Campus there must be a strong and efficient leadership. Students will have to weigh whether or not it is realistic to expect anyone to do a good job of administering large sums of money, spending the equivalent of a full weeks work doing it, and still be able to maintain themselves as students in the University, without a minimal amount of compensation.

Effective leadership is a combination of ability, dedication and a hell of a lot of hard work. No one is going to become a Student Senate officer unless he or she can demonstrate these qualities. No one can be expected to do the amount of work, spend the time required, and live as a student unless he or she is compensated.

Perhaps the best way of looking at the paying of officers is to estimate the amount of money which will in the long run be saved by simply administering funds more professionally, rather than the somewhat haphazard approach to allocating money which has plagued the Student Senate in the past.

We hate to use a cliche, but for better student government we urge that you vote "yes" on today's Referendum to approve the providing of salaries for the officers of the Student Senate.

Yesterday's policy editorial incorrectly said that the Student Senate had "voted funds" for a day care center. The Student Senate did vote support for the idea of establishing a day care center. The Administration's role in the search for a suitable location was also slightly misrepresented. At present the administration has selected a house on East Pleasant St. and is formulating plans to renovate it into a day care center. The administration is not able, however, to fund the center.

Endless Cycles

The transient character will no longer allude me. Ghost, I will seek you out! I will intrude upon your solitude. I will keep after you until you want me.
I will stop this alienation-this insanity. Night after sleepless night I walk the floor and want to know...why am I so alone? Why are you so alone?
Skulk through the wall with your coat half flung over your shoulder.
I see you. Fingering that scruffy lace connot hide the wretchedness behind it.

Eyes rolling, hands ruhbing together under the chin, insidious laughter, he he he hoo hoo ha ha.
You're mad! Obviously demented!
Flaunt your masochism. I take relish in it as well. Push yourself to the limits physically, mentally, and then crack. Know disease.
Know what it is to vomit until dry heaves choke you uncontrollably.
Follow your passions and become obsessed.
I saw you from across the room
and just had to know you.

Judy Epstein

Mark Silverman

The Great American Spectacle

(Dave-If Ali happens to lose, please do not run this column, since it will make me look like a fool.-Silverman)

For the last year or so it appeared as though the Great American Spectacle for years to come would be the Super Bowl, but, obviously, this is not so. For, during the past three months, the hearts and minds of America have trained themselves on one event with an intensity, with a devotion and with a fanaticism that is unequaled by any other American sporting event in memory.

The event, the Ali-Frazier fight, transends the definition of sport itself and, if anything, most resembles the Roman Gladiator shows: on the line is not the won-lost record of an individual, but what is at stake is the honor and glory of the Empire itself.

And the Empire lost last night. Lost, crumbled, humiliated beneath the welts and gouges burning on Frazier's body, lost under the barage of punches thrown by Ali. Ali, the nigger, Frazier, the Uncle Tom. They fought not for the Heavyweight Championship, but for the legions rooting behind them; good against evil, Ali vs. Frazier, America aginst the People.

But the people fighting the Empire in the Fight of the Champions were not the Environmental Radicals or the Lettuce /Grape Boycotters or the Cultural Revolutionaries or the Students for Muskie. No, they were not the fattened sons of Middle Class society, the spiled brats striking out at their parents and their fourth grade teachers by chewing peyote and sleeping on water beds and shouting Right On as they are fed organic food.

No, Ali's legions are the true American radicals, the niggers in Harlem and the black private in Viet Nam, ordered to Kill by a White second lieutenant who went to Princeton and who tells the blacks in his platoons that they must hate the Viet Cong who never called any of them Nigger or Spade or Boon.

Ali's victory is the victory for the people in this country who know they are treated like sub-humans and are so de-humanized that they no longer have the will to fight back. Ali, the man who wouldn't go to Viet Nam and therefore had his title taken away by the Irish drunks who run boxing in this country, is the hero to the real Americans.

Frazier, a black who likes the whites and works with them and fights within their system, is no more a friend to Ali's people than the semi-concerned radicals who calls Blacks their Brothers because it looks good.

The victory was overdue but will be played down by the millions who hate Ali. They will begrudge the nigger his crown but will be blind to the symbolism behind his victory. Crushed and beaten in an insignificant but symbolic battle, they will march forward in their own dreams, waiting for the next Superbowl, waiting for the next of their own manufactured war games in which they can root for one of two teams made up of men of their own perverted society.

And next January, they will sit in the bars, the Wallace drunks and the freaked out masses hip to football, watching their own sport. But they will be the losers, because Ali won the only battle that counted; he beat his enemy, not a mirrored image of himself.

Peter Pascarelli

Assent And Ascent

The traditional UMie has surfaced, his pocketbook threatened by something that could lift him from the rinky-kink setup he knows and loves, and is so afraid to give up for quality. When the Student Senate approved pay for her officers, it did so overwhelmingly. Those defeated put it on referendum and now you vote today. You should vote yes in favor of pay.

Yes, UMie, you should spend a bit of money, and it is really a minute sum. It is the senate officers that must go through the interminable amount of hassles to get enacted and implemented the legislation the full senate passes. Some recent examples are the alcoholic beverage regulations of the trustees, and coed housing. But the opposition is led mostly by do-nothing senators, who sit on their asses, act important and accomplish shit.

The Student Senate is often mocked by students, and rightfully so, because it deliberates hours on legislation, and never sees its legislation implemented by the university. This is precisely why the officers should be paid; for paid senate officers would be able to afford the time needed to get things the Senate passes moving toward implementation.

Now, the huge majority of schools comparable to UMass size pay their student government officers, and pay them a lot more than what the senate legislation proposes to pay ours. At these schools, the action hasn't led to a windfall of money grabbing opportunists gaining the positions, as the grandmothers getting petitions scream and warn. It has only led to better quality student government, more accessible officers, and a stronger student voice on campus.

Yet the opposition will persist, and you must ask why. It is perhaps not a coincidence that the person who is identified most with the legislation is student senate President Glenn Elters, who happens to stand politically a solid mile left of center. And his opposition stands just as conservatively right.

For it seems to me that unfortunately, but predictable, the issue has become a personal, political one, and the whole true issue is clouded.

And that issue is does UMass want quality, full time, strong, and active student government, or does it want the pompous, self satisfied, ineffectual body that is representing it today.

Vote yes today, and for once show, that UMass has risen a little from the dung of a 1930 cow college.

Progression

War.

War, boom.

War, boom, destruction.

War, boom, destruction, nothing.

boom destruction, nothing destruction, nothing

nothing.....

Doug Loux

"That's Not Exactly The Kind Of Revenue Sharing We Had In Mind"

Letters To The Editor

Distrust, Hatred And Fear

To the Editor:

Since 1965 the anti-war movement in this country has suffered the distrust, hatred, fear, and especially the misunderstanding of most of middle America. The adjective 'student' has alienated many Americans; unjustified, unwarranted - maybe, but true.

One supposedly respectable and acceptable portion of the anti-war movement has not been properly viewed by the general public. That is the veteran and G.I.'s for peace groups throughout the country. From El Paso to Anchorage, from Boston to Saigon, G.I.'s and former G.I.'s are realizing that the U.S. has no place in Indochina.

The outstanding reason in my own mind is that the people do not want us there! Let me quote a close friend of mine (who must remain anonymous, as he is still on active duty); "The people don't want us in Vietnam. Every soldier I've talked to says let's get the hell out while there is still an American alive." "...you don't pull out by putting troops farther in (Laos)."

UMass Veterans For Peace is a group of veterans who feel just this way. As veterans we work for a single, common goal, quick and complete withdrawal from Indochina. V.F.P. is a group formed for group effectiveness. Not a group of followers!

As veterans we can be a respected and authoritative antiwar voice to much of America. I urge all veterans (students and faculty) to support UMass Veterans For Peace; come to the meeting tonight, 7:00 p.m. at the Campus Center Rm. 174-176. A great deal needs to be done, we can do some of it!

Richard J. Duggan

Humanitarianism

To The Editor:

Don't you just love to see those "humanitarian" type letters in the Collegian? You know which ones, like the one by "Humanitarian of the Year" W.P. Byrnes in the Friday, March 5 edition.

Yes, the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are human too, and yes, Mr. Byrnes, I was there too. But I wonder how many people know that we offered to swap 35,000 of their men for 3,000 of ours?

So, for the sake of those who missed it, it just takes a few minutes of your time, one envelope, one sheet of paper and twenty cents postage to write: President, Democratic People's Republic of Vietnam, Hanoi, North Vietnam, to write a P.O.W. letter. You can also write: President, Washington D.C., for the release and/or fair and humane treatment of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese prisoners. Or if you aren't sure which would be in the best interests of humanitarianism, why not write both?

And by the way, Byrnes, you spell United States of America correctly, the way I have it here. Maybe you can think of a better place to live? Well then, GO! Yeah, love it or leave it. Sound too corny? Okay then, CHANGE IT, but don't preach your crummy revolution through a one-sided humamitarianism.

A. Michael Aroian

Bowels Of Whitmore

To The Editor:

To anyone who has experienced having an interview in Whitmore, perhaps this scene is familiar to you. Hidden deep in the bowels of Whitmore is a suite of small, uniform cubicles off two corridors that open onto a waiting room of easy chairs (to put those edge-of-the-seaters at ease?). Strewn on the small tables are reports and digests of different mother companies for one's reading pleasure. Outside of each cubicle is a marquee in spaghetti script telling what feature is behind each door. Other than these visual stimulants there is not much else of interest to the eye except to study the trails of the neatly dressed, the showered and shaved, the rehearsed, the anxious enter, sit, flip through the readings, and stare at the arrival of other interviewers.

This is an efficient way to handle the produce of such a large university, I suppose. But is this atmosphere the best we can do? Does this sterile place give a sterile quality to the whole process? Would meeting people in their own setting, or in a setting similar to the one they would be working in (such as a gym or a classroom) improve the whole interview scene? Inefficient? Time-consuming? Unstructured? Human.

Lois Aron

It's About Time

To The Editor:

I was very pleased to learn Saturday afternoon that in this capitalistic town of Amherst there is an honest merchant in the lot: Fowler Jewelers.

I took my watch in last September to be cleaned and repaired. A few weeks ago, the watch began to run about 15 minutes a day fast. I took it back to them, not expecting to be remembered. But Mr. Fowler did remember, and charged me absolutely nothing for fixing the watch.

It's a pity more merchants don't stand by their work like Mr. Fowler.

Mrs. Carolyn D. Hertz

Achtung!

To The Editor:

I had just finished polishing my knee boots when my roommate read aloud the "What About It?" letter in the M.D.C. How refreshing to find a person who thinks as we do. The disgrace that the "Great Unwashed" have visited upon this campus, community, and state, not to mention our nation, should not be borne longer. If we may, comrade, we drink you salute-Prost!

For too long a time so-called peer group pressure has made us weat a double face. Are we ragged, aspiring intellectuals forced by hard times or mode to appear the armpit of the universe? No! Rather we are studenten! As such we owe it to ourselves and our glorious fatherland to, like so many stage flats, look like students at university.

Thanks to you, "Name-withheld-by-request," we at last stand redeemed, Gott gesengen Sie! I thrill to think I can again wear my proud brown shirt and shorts which I thought for certain were to be no more than bittersweet memories of Sommer Lager in Marienbad. Once more to march lock step between classes, to walk with blazing blonde heads erect, meeting sweet comrades' brave steel-blue eyes, nodding the knowing greeting of a student at university!

Let us rid this campus of these unkempt, inferior, surrogate students! These creatures with dubious names like Greenberg, who fail to see the "aesthetics", the privilege of attending university in a pre-stressed concrete bunker.

There is something singing in my heart tonight as I finish this letter; it is the sound of the breeze through the lindens beside the canal. The stars, like so many fire flies play across the muzzle and clip of my stenn. Today a blow has been struck for our cherished "ingot theory." If I may be so bold as to paraphrase, students shall show initiative, they shall show ambition, something will be done.

David Glassburn Gabriel

Urge To Regurge

To The Editor:

In regard to David Williams' article on "The Great Acid War," I only want to say, "Bullshit." The article in question was, in my opinion, the worst editorial that the Collegian has ever published.

I has always been my impression that the editorial page of any paper was supposed to be used to present facts and opinions on certain subjects. Mr. Williams' article did neither of those. I must praise him on one thing, his fantastic imagination.

I wish I could give some concrete facts to dispute Mr. Williams' story but alas I could not find any lumberjacks or hump-backed dwarfs who could be of any assistance.

I am totally amazed that anyone with any kind of intelligence, even on Mr. Williams' level, could make such generalizations as saying that everyone down here is usually messed up on something.

It is my opinion that Mr. Williams' should write another article publicly apologizing to the food people of Pierpont whom he so rudely insulted.

David Philips

Qualifications

To The Editor:

I would like to quote from the article by Jim Gold in yesterday's Collegian (3/4/71) regarding the qualifications needed to become a security guard in the evergrowing staff. "The qualifications according to the specifications are knowledge and ability of operating fire equipment, of guarding procedures, of following instructions, of fighting fires, of first aid procedures, and possession of a Massachusetts drivers license." Now, if these are actually the only qualifications needed to become a security guard than anybody can assume that the people working security do not have to be able to read, write, talk, or have any education whatsoever (except maybe driving school).

Also, let me quote one more passage from Jim's story. "The duties, according to the University specifications, call for...interpreting rules for students..." and other duties. Now, if a security guard does not have to have any sort of education or intelligence, which what I presume after reading the qualifications, then why should they be allowed to interpret rules for students?

Al Jagoda

Editorial Points

Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, when speaking on the tasks facing the Administration, responded, "Most importantly, we have to keep Bella Abzug from showing up in Congress in Hot Pants". What's that they say about ordering our priorities?

*****

Well, the fight is over and I wonder if all those people who paid $900 for a ring side seat feel that they got their money's worth.

*****

David Eisenhower just happened to be lucky enough to be among the group of newly-commissioned naval officers to be addressed by President Richard Nixon. At least his four years at Amherst didn't go down the drain.

*****

Robert Welsh, founder and president of the John Birch Society, has stated that My Lai was a "Communist nest". That's another one for the birds.

*****

If you have friends in the British Isles, you no longer have an excuse for not writing to them. The strike, after 47 days, is over. The English, who think they can do anything better than the Americans, have proved it once again by beating our Postal strike of a few years back.

*****

As a point of interest, journalists have the highest mortality rate of any profession. So rest in peace,reader, we'll get ours.

Rally Round The Flag, Boys

To The Editor:

It really amazes and amuses me to see how people react under reversed roles. I am referring to the letter concerning the behavior of the black basketball fans at Curry Hicks Cage. It was entitled "Emphatic Minority" in the March 1st issue of the MDC.

By the overtones of the letter, I must assume that the author is white. This would explain the author's lack of knowledge pertaining to the underlying cause of this minority's actions. My advice to the author and others sympathetic to him is that you must pay for wounds inflicted by your contemporaries. I am referring to the facade that America chooses so carefully to manifest to the world. She prtends to encompass all men including her black brethren within her vast riches of opportunities for equal inalienable rights. This action is like a gold frame on a piece of toilet tissue, instead of a glossy photograph.

So, my friend, why should you get uptight when my black brothers and sisters prefer not to honor the flag under which they live? Just because we receive the right to speak openly and other so-called inalienable rights, this doesn't mean that we have to how and be thankful for "what Mr. Charlie has given us". If you want us to acknowledge the flag and what it represents, then give us the incentive and motivation to do so. Encourage your white peers to stop acting as bigots and as ones who assume superior attitudes in every respect.

As far as honoring Julius Erving and Al Skinner -- I say "Right on!" to by black brothers and sisters. The white fans, for your information, should do the same thing. The next time you attend a game at Curry Hicks Cage, notice the banners and listen to the chants from the majority of the fans. They all refer to Julius Erving. However, you missed one very significant detail in noticing people's actions. My sisters and brothers express one little thing that your white, sophisticated mind has no concept of-and that is - black pride. To see our brothers excel in a profession or sport is a joy and we have no inhibitions about the way we express it.

If it is any consolation to you, you are typical of most whites whose liberalism is being attacked. When a minority group acknowledges shortcomings of the white majority, then the liberals start justifying their politics. My one suggestion to you and your sympathizers is to overcome your paranoid behavior by becoming more sensitive to the minorities and by treating them as human beings. I am sorry, but I cannot, as a black person, rally to your obvious insensitive dismay.

Name Withheld by Request

Army Changes Ads, Tries To Boost Image

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The finger-pointing Uncle Sam who told generations of Americans "I want you" has been retired, replaced by a long-haired youth in the Army's new $10.6 million advertising effort to attract enlistments.

Superimposed over a picture of the young man is the slogan "Today's Army Wants to Join You." The slogan is keynote of a radio and television promotional package worked up for the Army by N.W. Ayer & Son, an advertising agency.

An Ayer spokesman said the Army also ordered references to Vietnam deleted in its advertising pitch. There will be no mention of recent reports that the Army has relaxed discipline and the haircut regulation.

"They were afraid a recruit would see an up-to-date command on TV and then be assigned to a base where the innovations weren't followed," a spokesman said.

The old "new" Army ads appealed to masculinity and patriotism. The now soft sell stresses what Ayer Vice President Theodore M. Regan Jr. calls "a new concern for individual expression and changing lifestyles."

Potential enlistees will be exposed to television commercials that the Army plans to run during prime time beginning this month.

The Ayer company, which has handled the Army's account since World War II, characterizes the Army as "the world's largest school" in its new ads. Reference to "the now action Army" have been replaced with offers of job training in specialized fields.

The current campaign is to last until June, when the Selective Service law comes up for renewal in Congress. The draft is expected to be extended two more years and followed by the raising of an all-volunteer force.

WMUA Expands Classics Programming

WMUA's director of Classical Music, Tom Parker, has announced the expansion of the station's classics programming. Beginning Tuesday evening, March 16th, 9 p.m. will be the time for a weekly two hours of music dealing with light classics and works from the standard repertoire.

The station will also be continuing its highly successful series of live broadcasts of university music department events. Begun late last year, this series has shown itself to be an exciting addition to WMUA's programming. These two series are, of course, in addition to the regular Sunday programming which includes Roy Robertson's Music For Small Ensemble at 10 a.m. and Classics Till Two with Tom Parker at noon. At 2:15 Mike Kavanagh follows the 2 o'clock news report with Concert Hall and Mike Strauss rounds off the day of classics with Afternoon Concert at 4.

Parker commented "It has been an exciting year for the WMUA classics department and we hope, for student and area listeners as well. As usual, we always welcome comments and suggestions from listeners concerning our classics programming."

MDC
Classifieds
Pay. Buy
Some

Draft Counselor's Corner

Don't Wait Till May To Panic

This is an urgent plea to all of you who will be graduating or getting out of school for some other reason this June. The time to start worrying about the draft is now. If you know what you're going to do and can handle it all yourself, that's cool, but lay the word on your brothers to get on the stick. If you wait until May to start panicing, you will probably have reason to panic. Every draft counselor in the area will be up to his ears in people needing help, and will not have time to help everyone.

There are very few people who can come into a draft counselor, talk to him for 15 minutes, and leave knowing that he has a definite deferment and how to go about getting it. In most cases it takes time to cover all possibilities, decide on the best course of action, obtain documentation, and plan the moves after that. In other words, plan to take a little time. Start NOW.

If you are thinking about working on a CO, come to the group CO counseling sessions on Monday and Thursday afternoons in 805 C.C. The group starts at about 1:00 and breaks up at about 4:00. Come when you can, leave when you must.

If you don't know what you want to do, or if you want some advice or information, visit the Draft Counseling Services office in 418E SU second floor. The office is usually staffed from 9:00 a.m. until 4:30 or so, Mondays through Fridays. Appointments can be made for other times if absolutely necessary.

If you just have a fast question, there will be a table set up outside the Hatch on Wednesday with draft literature, Mother Earth News, and counselors. Stop by to rap.

The most important point is to move now. The longer you wait to start acting, the harder it will be for you to obtain effective counseling. If DCS is too busy to help you in May, you're going to have to do it all yourself, and there are a lot of tricks you should know about.

Think about it. Stop procrastinating. There ain't a thing to be gained by waiting. Do it now.

Peace.

Conference To Take On Impossible

"How to Accomplish the Impossible in the Administration of Adult Education" is the subtitle of the Conference on the Administration of Adult Education here April 2 and 3.

Sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education, the conference will be a combination of general sessions, small groups, clinic specialists and media presentations of some of the newest and most effective developments in the administration of adult education.

The conference is designed for present and future adult education administrators from public schools, colleges and universities, museums, hospitals, community agencies, volunteer organizations, business and industry, labor, libraries, jails and prisons, armed services, cooperative extension and the mass media. The programs will be held in the Campus Center.

Conference director is Dr. Anita L. Martin, consultant in adult education, author of numerous studies and articles, and a widely-known activist in the field. Also on the program will be Dr. Paul E. Marsh, senior education consultant of the Massachusetts Department of Administration and Finance, and Dr. John A. Seiler, former head of the MBA program at the Harvard School of Business.

Also taking part will be a panel of 20 specialists. The specialists will conduct small group sessions Saturday morning. The final event will be a wrapup session Saturday afternoon with Dr. Seiler in charge.

The specialists come from education, government, business and other areas. Included are such people as James F. Baker, assistant commissioner and director, Division of Research Development, Massachusetts Department of Education; John Buckley, Sheriff of Middlesex County; Albert Fredette, manager of radio station WAMC; Paul Healy, director of extended services of the Amherst Public Schools; Mrs. Lois Harris, Director of Morville House, and others.

Every Monday night at 10:00 p.m.
"FOCUS"
with Ken Mosekowski
Hear the masterful man at the mike and his guests discuss the important issues of the day.
Where else?
WMUA 91.1 FM

Kinetics II
Program B
S.U. Ballroom Tonight
7 and 9:00 $1.00

"The Lickerish Quartet"

RATED X
Mr. Metzger has never quite attained Joseph von Sternberg's feeling for dazzling decadence, but he has the master's humorlessness, and though his production of spectacle has been limited by his budgets, he is every bit as morally uplifting...preoccupied by the way nude bodies and sexual acts look when photographed sideways, in zoomy long shots, in roving close-ups...ripe with incredible color and decor and movement."
—Vincent Canby, N.Y. Times
No one under 18 yrs.
"OUTRAGEOUSLY KINKY MASTERPIECE. GO!" Andy Warhol
THE NEW RADLEY METZGER MOVIE
WITH SILVANA VENTURELLI FRANK WOLFF, ERIKA REMBERG, PAOLO TURCO
IN EASTMAN COLOR
STARTS TOMORROW 7 & 9 P.M.
Campus Cinemas 256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

Playboy Playmate Chase

Staple-Navel Hunt Is On

In search of future Playmates, Playboy magazine photographers are roaming beaches, watching high school graduations, and even attending weddings, where they scan, with something approaching X-ray vision, not only bridesmaids but also brides themselves.

This network of professional peepers is generally looking for "virginal quality," buxom types no younger than 18 and no older than 21, according to Thomas Meehan, who offers a rare inside study of "The Playmate Process" in the premier issue of Audience, a new hard-cover magazine published in Boston.

Finding girls who are willing to be Playmates isn't at all difficult, Meehan writes. Those chosen are paid $5,000, and a Playboy photographer is quoted as saying, "You have to fight them off with a baseball bat." Photo submissions from amateurs, in fact, have proliferated since the advent of the color Polaroid camera. Boy friends and husbands are now flooding the Playboy offices with nude photos of their lady loves that for some quirky reason they wish to have the whole nation view.

The actual process of producing a Playmate gatefold--"The girl with the staple in her navel," as Meehan puts it--costs upwards of $20,000, the Audience article notes. A time-consuming procedure comprising thousands of studio shots as well as rather extensive and tricky lithographic work is involved. Hugh Hefner, Playboy's publisher, is also heavily involved, issuing such instructions to the reproducing technicians as "Take off the hair on her upper lip," or "Clean up the shadows around her underarms." The article quotes the lithographer on Hefner: "When it comes to the gatefold, he's a perfectionist."

"Most of the Playmates," Meehan writes, "seem to have done little of public interest in their entire lives," a fact that can drive the writers of the accompanying stories about them "to climbing walls." Playboy's managing editor told Meehan that he rotates the writing assignments to save wear and tear on his staff.

As to the Playmates themselves, Meehan's interview with last year's Miss December, Carol Imhof, who's also a Playboy Bunny in Chicago, turned up the point that she "never looks at a newspaper....too depressing." Neither her boy friend nor her mother went for the idea of her posing nude, and she didn't tell her father beforehand.

Unlike most Playmates, however, Miss Imhof used her real name, the article states. Moreover, with very few exceptions, most Playmates of the Month drop swiftly back into their former obscurity. "Many of them today are plump housewives with children, Excedrin headaches, and worries about whether their wash is getting white enough," Meehan asserts. And he adds that many of them are relieved that, like most Playmates, they didn't use their real names in Playboy.

Notices

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS:
Next meeting is Tonight at 6 p.m. in Rm. 169 of the C.C. All members please attend.

CDHR
Discussion group meeting at 9 p.m. tonight in Head of Residence Apt. Wheeler House. Please come and bring a friend.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE:
Hear Students share experiences of their use of Christian Science. Everyone welcome to attend tonight at 6:45 p.m. in Rm. 911-915 of the C.C.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
Grnd. Schl. Rev. Completion tonight. New Grnd. Schl. starts Thurs. in C.C. at 7 p.m.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB:
Come to the C.C. Rm. 172 Thursday, March 11 at 7:30 p.m. There will be a talk and movie by a feed company rep.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA:
There will be a meeting tonight in Rm.
There will be a meeting tonight in Rm. 168-170 of the C.C. Exec. board will meet at 6 p.m.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB:
The regular square dance will be held in the C.C. Aud. from 7:30-10:30 tonight. Review 7:30-8:30, continuing beginner's lessons 8:30-9:30 and club level 9:30-10:30 p.m.

HILLEL:
Folksing for all. Geo. Washington 5th Floor Lounge tonight from 8-11 p.m. with free refreshments. Bring your guitars, sing.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI:
All University women are invited to 389 N. Pleasant St. at 7:30 p.m. tonight to hear the Musigals in concert.

N.E.S.:
Co ordinating committee meeting tonight at 5:45 in Rm. 177 of the C.C. All interested should attend.

PROGRAM COUNCIL:
Program Council meeting for new and old members tonight at 7 p.m. in Rm. 171-173 of the C.C. New members welcome.

RECREATION SOCIETY:
Come to Rm 804-808, all Rec. Majors tonight for a creative, interesting session with the Rec. Society Time 7 p.m. Bring pencil & brain.

SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS:
The study committee has finished its preliminary report Student Reps. will be in Skinner Conference Rm. Tues. & Wed. from 1-4 p.m. to discuss the report. Stop by and give us your suggestions and comments.

SPANISH TABLE:
Come speak Spanish over dinner. Tonight from 5-6 p.m. in Hampshire Commons.

STUDENTS FOR MC GOVERN:
Meeting tonight at 9:30 p.m. in Rm. 917 of the C.C. Bring cookies.

STUDENT MOBILIZATION COMMITTEE:
The student Mobilization Committee will meet Wed., March 10 at 7:30 p.m. in rm 817 of the C.C. Everyone welcome.

WMUA:
WMUA station meeting tonight. Voting on by-laws. Everyone welcome. Members this is a must meeting at 7:30.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION:
Open to all women, a discussion of women and the war. Tonight at 7 p.m. in the Women's Centre, in the old bookstore.

LOST:
Doberman Pinscher black, female, 1 yr. old lost. If you know whereabouts call 549-6269 or Theta Chi Frat.

A Smith Corona Portable Electric Typewriter with black case was lost at 7:20 p.m. Thurs., March 4th in front of Hamlin House. Please call Baba at Rm. 213, 253-9207.

Glasses lost in brown case and school I.D. — Sandra Adamczyk lost possibly in VW Van that picked me up hitching to Wope Sun., March 7th. Please call 549-6385.

Green zipper carrying case lost in back of Berkshire Dining Commons. Please return very important papers. Call 545-2397 or 253-7484.

PHI MU DELTA
COMPUTER DANCE
and
OPEN HOUSE
FRIDAY, MARCH 12th 8:00
Data Sheets for Computer Dance may be filled out Tuesday - Friday 9:00 - 5:00 in S.U. Lobby.
25c per application.

Franz Joseph Speiker's
Hilarious Social Satire
Wilder Reiter GMBH
(with English subtitles)
March 9 — 8:30 p.m.
Thompson 104

UM Prof Studying Changing History

A changing history is being studied by a UMass professor of sociology. Not history as in Orwell's "1984," where historical facts are made to conform to latest government policy, but history changing in its methods of study.

Associate Prof. Gerald M. Platt feels the study of history is moving away from art and toward science-- social science. Historians throughout the country are discussing the move these days and many feel that the invasion of history by economists, political scientists, demographers, and natural scientists is a threat to history as a discipline.

But Prof. Platt disagrees. In a paper delivered to the American Historical Association meeting in Boston recently, Prof. Platt said, "Some historians believe the inclusion of the social sciences will improve the field of history. It will add fresh insights, new approaches, and even give more general, but in the end better, explanations of the historical process."

He sees the move of history from art of science as a positive one because it means historical research will be more easily related to modern times. History as an art involves the studying of events by themselves; history as a science involves tracing social phenomena through several events and forming generalizations about historical and contemporary institutions, based upon social scientific theories.

A strong trend toward history as a science began sometime after the end of World War II to the early 1950's when the younger generation became increasingly interested in social sciences, according to Prof. Platt.

In many elementary schools today, children study "social science"-- not geography and history. And in the universities, especially with younger historians, history and the social Association, he explained the reason for inclusion of social science to history. "For years, historians assumed the unity of the past bound together by chronological time. If enough traditional narratives were compiled, a picture of the past would eventually emerge. But historians have come to realize that this could never happen because the variety of the past is, for all practical purposes, infinite, and because the variety of interpretations of these aspects is as great as the number of individuals willing to construe them." So, he added, "historians turned to social scientific theories."

Vote To Pay
Senate Officers

SENATE OFFICERS HAVE THE DUTY TO IMPLEMENT POLICY PASSED BY THE STUDENT SENATE. We have fought for the Senate and for STUDENTS. We have implemented policies which affect all students such as:

The policy which allows alcohol on campus
The policy which allows 24 Hour Open House
The policy which allows Co-Ed Dormitories
The elimination of many curriculum requirements
The changing of the language requirement
AND MANY OTHER MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

We depend upon you for support. We never forget one basic fact and we hope you won't forget it either:
Students are the basis of our power -

WE WORK FOR YOU!

Help us help you. Vote for effective student government
Paid for by:
GLENN ELTERS President - Student Senate
PATRICIA A. BEHARRY Vice-President - Student Senate
RICHARD VERROCHI Treasurer - Student Senate

Frazier Decisions Ali For Undisputed Title

NEW YORK (AP)- Machine-like Joe Frazier put on relentless pressure, knocked Muhammed Ali down in the 15th round and pounded out a unanimous 15-round decision to retain his world heavyweight championship Monday night.

Frazier, who took control of the fight in the 10th round, sent Ali crashing to the canvas with a thunderous left hook in the 15th that ballooned Ali's right cheek to a grotesque shape.

It was all Ali could do to last the round as his remarkable comeback bid ended and Frzier gained universal recognition as the world's premier fighter.

Ali, going down to the first defeat of his professional career, had come back to take the 14th round with a flurry of head punches and charged out in the 15th with a bid to end it.

Then sudddenly Frazier's hook flashed and the sellout Madison Square Garden crowd of more than 19,500 on hand for the worldwide televised fight went into a frenzy.

ROUND ONE

Frazier moved right in and missed with a left to the body, Ali connected with a long left and right to the head and then with a left to the body. Ali was short with two lefts. Ali sent over a left hook that was blocked. Frazier moved in and was hit again by a short left and right to the head. Frazier dug a solid left to the body. Frazier drove a left and right to the head.

Frazier, moving in close, dug two hard rights to Ali's body as Ali moved back to the ropes. Frazier landed a hard left hook to the jaw and Ali shook his head. Ali moved back as Frazier kept moving.

Frazier drove another hard left to the body as Ali tied him up. Ali shot over two still left jabs to the head but took a short left to the jaw in return. The AP gave Frazier the round by a shade.

ROUND TWO

Frazier drove after Ali at the start of the 2nd round.

Frazier scored with a left hook to the head but took a left-right and two lefts to the head in exchange. Ali then tied up Frazier. Ali shot over a hard left and right to the head but Frazier came back with a sharp right and a stunning right to the jaw.

Frazier bobbed under two left hand leads and shot a right to the body. Ali came back with two short rights and tied up Frazier. Ali again scored with two rights and a left as Frazier came in.

Ali connected with two lefts and two rights to the head at long range. Ali popped over another left jab to the head but took a short left to the head in return.

Ali tied up Frazier. Frazier shook loose and dug a left and right to the body as he sent Clay back to the ropes. They each scored with hard rights to the jaw.

The AP gave this round to Ali.

ROUND THREE

Ali met Frazier with a hard left hook to the head but took a left to the body in exchange.

Frazier scored with a left to the body as Ali moved back to the ropes and tied him up. Ali pumped over a left and right and then another left and right to the head but Frazier kept on coming. Ali shot over three left jabs to the head while Frazier missed with a left hook aimed for the head.

Ali peppered two more jabs to the head and then blocked Frazier's left hook to the head.

Ali pumped over two lefts and two rights to the head. Frazier came right back with a hard right hook to the head and a searing left hook to the ribs.

Ali again met Frazier's rush with a left-right to the head. Frazier landed a hard left hook to the jaw and then a left and right to the jaw as Ali backed to the ropes.

The AP gave the round to Ali.

ROUND SIX

Frazier walked in on Ali, took a left and right to the head but drove a left to the ribs.

Ali scored with a left to the head but Frazier threw a smashing left hook to the jaw as he pinned Ali in a corner.

Frazier drove another left hook and a smashing right to the body as he pinned Ali against the ropes.

From a corner Ali snapped over two left jabs to the laughing Frazier. Frazier sent over two left hooks to the jaw as Ali moved away.

Ali again landed two light punches to the head but took another hard left to the body.

Ali landed a short left but Frazier dug a left and right to Ali's body as he pinned him against the ropes. Frazier again sent another smashing right to the body and a hard left to the jaw.

Frazier again sent Ali over to the ropes as the bell sounded. It was a big round for Frazier.

ROUND TEN

Frazier drove a left hook to Ali's jaw and a right to the ribs.

Frazier, shooting at the body, had an edge in an exchange with head hunting Ali.

Both missed lefts. Then Ali drove over two snapping jabs to the jaw.

Ali met Frazier with two short lefts as he tried to keep Joe off. Ali again met Frazier with two hard left jabs and two chopping rights to the head.

Ali was sharp with a left and right to the head but Frazier came back with a good left hook to the head and body.

Frazier took two light punches and followed with a right hook to the jaw. Frazier drove a hard left to Ali's jaw as the bell sounded.

The AP gave Frazier the edge on his harder punching.

ROUND 11

Ali slipped to the canvas but it was no knockdown.

This came after a short opening flurry in which no damage was inflicted.

Ali shot over two left jabs to the head as Frazier drove in. Ali connected with a left and right to the jaw but Frazier came back with a right on the head.

Frazier got Ali on a corner and sent over a hard left to the head and a short left and right to the head as Ali stood in the corner with his hands over his face.

They traded punches as Ali stood in the neutral corner. A left hook staggered Ali. His knees buckled.

The crowd roared as Frazier threw another smashing right to the head. Frazier drove over another as Ali staggered against the ropes. Frazier sent a smashing left hook to his head as Ali staggered all over the ring.

The bell sounded as Ali staggered to his corner.

It was a big round for Frazier.

ROUND 12

Frazier came right after Ali and shot over a left hook to the jaw before he was tied up.

Ali held on as Frazier came after him. Two lefts to the jaw again staggered Ali and he then held on to Frazier.

Another left hook to the head and hard left to the ribs sent Ali to the ropes.

Ali sent in a light left and right to the head as he came out of his corner.

Frazier smashed Ali's body with two lefts and a right. Frazier moved Ali to the ropes and dug with both hands to the body.

Ali came back with a long left-right-left to the head.

Frazier moved Ali to the ropes again but couldn't do much as Ali held on.

Ali got in a short left and right to the head before tying Frazier up.

Frazier dug in another good left and right to the body just before the bell.

The AP gave the round to Frazier.

ROUND 13

Frazier drove over a left and took a left to the head and sent a good left and right to the body.

Ali shot over a good right to the head as he danced around and followed with two lefts to the head as he tied up Frazier.

Ali shot over two more jabs to the head but Frazier came back with a sharp right to the body. Ali again got in a good left and right but took two solid left hooks to the jaw.

Frazier dug in another as he moved Ali to the corner. Ali held on as Frazier kept him in a neutral corner.

Ali came in with some light lefts to the head as Frazier drove a right to the head and body.

Ali cuffed Frazier with a left and right to the head but the punches had no steam.

Frazier seemed tired but he was digging in with hard rights to the body. Most of the action was in a corner with Ali against the ropes. Frazier drove a hard left to the head at the bell.

The AP gave the round to Frazier.

ROUND 14

Frazier moved in and walked into two light lefts and rights from Ali.

Ali again cuffed Frazier with a left and right to the head but took a hard left hook to the body in exchange.

Frazier bobbing and weaving, kept after Ali but both seemed weary and no good punches were landed for a short period.

Ali shot over a series of lefts and rights to the head that carried more steam. Frazier got in a good hook to the head.

Ali got over a left to the head but Frazier came back with a good left to the body.

Ali opened up with another of four punches to the head and then repeated it before tying up the swollen-face of Frazier.

The AP gave the round to Ali.

ROUND 15

Ali opened up with two fast lefts and a right to the head.

Ali then tied up Frazier. Frazier dropped Ali with a left hook to the jaw.

Ali was up at four and given the mandatory eight count.

Frazier sent over a smashing left hook and right to the jaw and followed with a smashing right and left to the body.

Another series of hard blows sent the wobbling Ali to the ropes.

Another left hook to the jaw shook Ali, he held on desperately.

Ali sent over two light lefts to the head as he looked on with glazed eyes.

Ali's right side of his face has ballooned. His jaw may have been broken.

They held as the crowd roared. Frazier drove over two hard shots to the body and then another hard left to the swollen right side of Ali's face.

Ali staggered to his corner as the fight ended.

It was a big round for Frazier.

Muse Productions of Boston Presents

IN CONCERT AT BUSHNELL AUDITORIUM FRIDAY, MARCH 12, 9:30 P.M.

Quicksilver

With Special Appearance By

Brewer & Shipley

Tickets 3.50, 4.50, 5.50

Also appearing at

THE MUSIC HALL/BOSTON

March 11, 7:00 P.M.

Tickets:
MUSIC CITY/SPRINGFIELD
Information:
617-262-0781

The Amherst Tower Delivers!

CALL 549-1115 or 549-1116

Sun. - Thurs. 6 - 11 p.m.

PIZZAS ● COLD SUBS

Sandwiches, Canned Soda

BE PATIENT!

If you sent your three bucks (plus 3% tax), name, address, and birthdate to QUEEQUEG and have not yet received your handsome, individually crafted, personal medallion with your own ancient Zodiac symbol–don't blame Zoroaster or the P. O. Department. QUEEQUEG doesn't charge extra for postage, but your Q–TAG will arrive. Be patient. (Also be kind to pidgeons with packs on their backs. A few bread crumbs on your windowsill may help.) QUEEQUEG, Box 695, Falmouth, Mass. 02541.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Pioneer, Teac, Garrard, PE, Astog, Fisher, TDK, cassette and open reel tape, Standard radio, Utah speakers. LP's, 8 tracks and other necessities. See Amherst Audio. tf

Avocado gas range and refrigerator (Sears), used 2 mos., less than half price, $90 - $140 respectively. 549-6573. tf2-9

1970 BMW R75 never dropped, best offer, 9000 miles. Call 549-3974. tf3-9

32 H&R Revolver and ammo, fired 10 times. Call 549-3974. tf3-9

USED FURS — jackets capes, and stoles for spring. New shipments of coats, some raccoon. All sizes, $15 and up. Call 253-5995. tf3-12

Speaker boxes, excellent sound, 8" driver, mid high end, natural hard wood cabinet, tweeter crossover, must be heard. Call 545-2380 days. tf2-12

Specially designed health furniture, comfy couch, comfy chair, comfy rocker, 2 lamps, 2 end tables. Best offer. Call Litt 665-4007. tf3-10

Turn livingroom into bedroom. Loveseat with hideaway bed, great for apartment, excellent condition, $100 or best offer. Call 648-9161. tf3-10

Save! Head 320 Skis with Soloman Bidings, purchased this season, used 3 times. $100 (or more if you feel guilty.) Don't believe me? Call 546-7155 after 12 p.m. and see for 2 people need ride to Lawrence — yourself. 3-9

BOOKS

We buy used books and records — Whitelight Books (in the Alley) No texts! tf5-15

FOR SALE — AUTOS

1961 Chevy Van Panel, good condition $395. 1961 Dodge Van Panel, good condition $395. Telephone 253-3916. tf3-9

2 VW engines 36 and 40 hp, recently rebuilt, will take trade, $125 and $175 a piece. Call 584-5820 nights. tf3-9

1968 Corvette S.F.C.P., power steer, brakes, window, 350 hp, 4 spd., AM-FM stereo and tape, reas. offer. Mike at 549-0495. t.f3-12

1965 Chevelle conv. Call 253-3194 nights, 545-0815 days. Ask for Tib. tf3-10

1962 Mercury (Comet) station wagon, radio, snow tires. Good running condition. Call 584-0915. tf3-12

'61 VW Bug, new gen., batt. and starter. Must sell. Call 253-2833. tf3-11

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services stereo components, tape decks for home or car, 197 No. Pleasant St., 256-8133. tf

PASSPORTS — JOB APPLICATIONS. Special vacation packages on film and processing everything photographic. You'll save $ at Lane's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst, 253-2449. tf2-18

Free nationwide out-of-print book search service. John Hardy - Books, Box 183, Auburn, Mass. 01501. tf3-22

Enjoy more free time and vacations. English Ms. will type and/or revise anything. Theses, too. Campus pick-up/delivery center. Professional, reasonable. 584-6073 eves. tf3-10

WANTED

Black sincere male student near Amherst. Please write to white male (temporarily in Ohio) interested in possible close summer relationship. Confidential. Box 725, Amherst, Mass. tf3-12

Bread Truck or Lee, Van, 14' min., rear, side, pref., alum. body. Will haggle. Call 545-2706, Gene. tf3-16

12-volt battery for American car. Call Mike after 6 p.m. 586-2950. tf3-10

HELP WANTED

Cash girls? As much as $30.00 an hour for ex-getters. Call 367-2366. tf3-12

Now hiring women, full or part-time, $100 to $400 monthly. Call 367-2350. tf3-12

FOR RENT

PERFECT FOR SUMMER SCHOOL: furn. 1 bdrm. apt. for July and Aug. No lease req. $161 mo. Near campus, pool, tennis courts, air cond. Married couple or girls preferred. Call 549-3016 after 5. tf3-31

Ware — ½ hr. drive from Amherst, ls. 4 rm. all electric apt., stove, refrig., disposal, incinerator furnished. Also washer and dryer hookup. Ample pkg and storage, $130 mo. 1-413-477-6650. tf3-10

House available June 16 to Aug. 28 — 3 bdrm., basement fully finished, completely furnished, $275 mo., 549-6573. tf3-9

Two large bedroom apt. (redone kitchen and bathroom) Fearing St., near campus, $150 per month, all utilities incl. Call Mr. Mulcahy, 12 a.m. - 7 a.m. 549-0641. tf3-11

TO SUBLET

Efficiency apt, Quabbin Vlg., furnished, all utilities but phone, deposit fee paid. Call 253-7039 after 7 p.m. Available immediately. tf3-12

To sublet, one bedroom apt., kitchen, bath, $130 mo. Cliffside Apt., Immediate occupancy. Call Richie 253-9212 after 6:30. tf3-12

Summer sublet from June 1 - Aug. 30, 100 Colonial Village, furnished 2 bedroom, swim. pool. Call 256-6632. tf tu-th

RIDE WANTED

Wanted ride from Campus to Longmeadow or Springfield area, Mon., Wed., and Fri. about 3:30-4:00. Will pay. 567-8317. tf5-9

Riders wanted to Fort Lauderdale over Spring break. $45.00 round trip. No driving. Call 549-3974. tf3-9 and over Haverhill area on Friday, March 12 at 4:30 or 5 p.m. Please help. Call Kathy 549-1311 9 - 4 or 549-3916 after 5 p.m. tf3-12

PERSONAL

If you have had an abortion or vasectomy, and are willing to talk about your experience, please call ASPIRE at 545-0386, 9-5. tf3-9

Hot lips Jennie is very, very surprised. tf3-9

Kissy: We know something they don't know — Huzzy. 3-9

Sandy — Have a Happy Birthday! — Guess who? 3-9

REWARD

Lost 3/3 behind DC7, one homknit fisherman knit sweater. Reward, no questions asked. Great sentimental value. Call D after 5:00 p.m. at 665-3276. tf3-12

FINANCE

Needed Bonnie or Clyde willing to risk $2000 in a summer theater community. Contact R580 232. tf3-9

TRAVEL

STUDENTS INTERNATIONAL offers chartered flights to NASSAU in spring and EUROPE in summer. For details call Steve 549-1307 or Brian 549-3063 3 1,2,5,8,9,12,15,16

Trip! Spring vacation on March 26-27. $69 a head round trip to Atlantis, hotel accommodations and scuba equipment included. Continental Travel Agency. Call 545-2417. tf3-9

GRAND OPENING SPECIAL

Colonial Radio & TV

35 N. Pleasant Amherst offers

5% Discount

ON SALES & SERVICE to all students with this ad

SERVICING All Makes and Models

Free Estimates

Open 9 - 9

Phone 256-8341

Rt. 9 Hadley

THE JOLLY BULL RESTAURANT

LUNCHEON COCKTAILS - DINNER

LUNCH Mon. - Fri. 11:30 - 2:30

DINNER Mon. - Sat. 5 - 10 Sun. 12 - 8

NEVER ON TUESDAYS

Reservations Recommended 584-2769

LIVE MUSIC & SONG IN THE OYSTER BAR WED. & THURS. Bob Ackermann singing ragtime FRI. & SAT. Norrine Jacobus & Cliff Simmons singing variety & requests

Frosh Pucksters Win Finale Coach Lauds Season's Play

By BRONA SIMON
MDC Staff

Putting together one of its best displays of talent of the season, the UMass freshman hockey team beat Cardinal Cushing Academy Saturday, 2-1, in the finale of their schedule.

Because the Zamboni machine had broken down at Orr Rink, the game was moved to the rink at Deerfield Academy, depriving the UMass of viewing an exciting and close contest.

Cardinal Cushing took the lead, 1-0, in a first period that offered many scoring opportunities to the Little Redmen as well as to CC, but alert goaltending and defense by both teams thwarted offensive rewards.

Rightwing Geoffrey Gill tied the score for UMass with a stinging 40-foot slapshot on a powerplay from Jim Lynch and Jim Connors in the second period of play.

The winning goal came from Chuck Londraville, his first of the season, with assists being appointed to the men involved in the first scoring, Lynch and Gill. It took Londraville until the last period of the last game of the year to connect, but it couldn't have happened at a better time.

Undoubtedly the most valuable man on the ice was UMass goalie Charles Rheault, who played what frosh coach Russ Kidd termed, "a whale of a game." His blockade kept CC scoreless after its first goal.

In the final 40 seconds, Cardinal Cushing skated six offensively in a desperation to keep the game going. Things got exciting when the Little Redmen gained possession of the puck, but failed to pass it into the open net.

Although the frosh ended with a record of three wins and ten losses, the season was not a total disappointment. What must be noted is that they were scheduled against mostly stiff Division I teams.

On the bright side, Coach Kidd lauded his players. "The team really hung together and worked well against these very tough, much-talented clubs. I think we should have won more games, specifically the over-times against the Harvard Freshmen and Deerfield. The won and loss columns do not express the actual capabilities of the team. In many games we outshot the opposition, but one of the faults of the team was the trouble had in shooting from in close. Not very many of our players are very big, and consequently had trouble staying in near the crease."

With only two seniors leaving the varsity team this year, there will be much competition among freshmen to make the team next season. People to look at closely are Jim Coleman, whose good stickhandling and speed were evident in the game this Saturday when he was consistently setting up his wings; Gill, for his hardshot, tough play; Lynch, who perserverently "worked like a dog," according to Kidd; a goalie with potential, Rheault; Connors, Bob Edwards, Peter Hanifan, Charles Nickerson, and Tom Carey.

Recruiting currently in progress, things look good for a fine freshman team next year.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrology buff clubs are springing up around the country. One of the leading groups conducts regular meetings in Los Angeles, featuring guest speakers who relate latest findings in astrology. Surprising to many, numerous prominent businessmen attend these confabs, along with college students and a dazzling array of bright, attractive career women. ***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Original ideas pay off. By being inventive, you turn a profit. Don't be afraid to break through to new, fertile territory. Utilize natural pioneering qualities. Make a mark.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accept responsibility. Pace may be slow; goal, however, is worthwhile. Stress is on how you handle home, property, domestic situations. Aim for future. Realize potential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't attempt to be everywhere at once. Avoid scattering your forces. Exchange ideas with neighbors, relatives. Avoid arguing over minor matters. Plenty of fun now if you are flexible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't spend merely to impress others. Get what you need. Obtain money's worth. Insist on quality. One who makes many promises could come up empty-handed. Anticipate–act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You find way of fulfilling some obligations, ambitions. Utilize experience. Impress professional superior by polishing techniques. Special relationship is cemented. You learn where you stand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cooperative efforts should be advocated. Heed one who has aided you in past. Philosophical concepts are emphasized. Look beyond the immediate. Be concerned with potential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Funds you took for granted could be held up in litigation. Plan accordingly. New view is essential. Highlight different methods. Leo individual could prove to be valuable ally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Contractual obligations surge to forefront. You get nothing for nothing. Know this–share knowledge. Obtain cooperation of one who can aid your cause. Aim high–stick to principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some persons perform extraordinary well for you. Give them credit. Extend social invitations. Time to show appreciation. Change of pace is beneficial. Relax–have fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, past commitments mingle. Keep guard up; protect yourself. Some are envious, even spiteful. Don't compound error. Maintain balance. Dispatch tasks with aplomb.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lie low; do plenty of listening, observing. Practical issues dominate. Home, property areas demand attention. Do some investigating. Write; communicate. Ask plenty of questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Relative may make unreasonable demands. Seek adjustment in domestic area. But refuse to be intimidated. Be diplomatic. Make intelligent concessions. But know when to draw line.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are capable of perceiving trends. You can provide what others need before they become aware of actual requirements. Social life improves. An emotional handicap is due to be removed.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Five More For N.I.T.

Five teams were given berths yesterday by the N.I.T. committees to bring the number of teams already set for the tournament to ten.

Named to join St. Bonaventure, Dayton, Tennessee, Providence and UMass were St. Johns, Hawaii, Georgia Tech, LaSalle and Syracuse.

St. Johns came as no surprise as it is a perenial entry being the top New York City team remaining after Fordham was picked for the N.C.A.A. After its big victory over P.C. on Saturday the Redmen (yes, they are also Redmen) have a record of 17-8.

Hawaii has been the surprise of the west this season finishing the regular season, 22-4 and number 20 in the national rankings.

Georgia Tech will be led by its All-American center Rich Yunkas who has averaged 26 points a game this year. The Rambling Wrecks as they are called have a season record of 20-7 and will be making their second straight visit to the N.I.T.

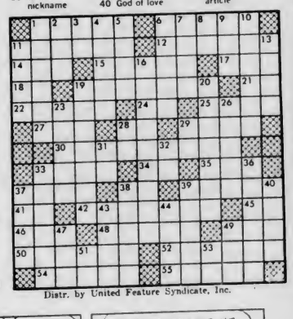
LaSalle was eliminated from N.C.A.A. tournament play by losing the Middle Atlantic Conference playoff to St. Josephs. The Owls are led by 6'7 consensus All-American Ken Durrett who has been selected to every first team along with Sidney Wicks of U.C.L.A. at the forwards.

And finally the Orangemen from Syracuse who have a season record of 19-6. They are led by 6'11 center Bill Smith and guard Greg Kohls. They defeated LaSalle earlier in the season, but were crushed by UMass at Curry Hicks Cage.

Six more berths remain to be filled with two going to the Atlantic Coast Conference, one or two to the Big Ten and the remaining berths to either league runnerups or an independent.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS



1 Young tree
6 Singing voice
11 Loud shouting
12 Peaceful
14 Corded cloth
15 Trials
17 Greek letter
18 Babylonian deity
19 Colonizes
21 Guido's low note
22 Ancient chariot
24 Note of scale
25 Meadows
27 Dine
28 Faroe Islands whirlwind
29 South African Dutch
30 Repeating
33 Escaped
34 Knockout (abbr.)
35 Afternoon party
37 Crate
38 Spanish for "yes"
39 Wait on
41 Bone
42 Stupefied
45 Teutonic deity
46 Unit of Siamese currency
48 Royal
49 In favor of
50 Rented
52 Folds
54 Hindu queen
55 Slaves

DOWN

1 Gratify
2 Once around track
3 Part of "to be"
4 Famed
5 Allowance for waste
6 Name
7 Gaelic
8 Compass point
9 Number
10 Ceremony
11 Algonquian Indian
13 Household pets
16 Marking with stripes
19 Couches
20 Inclined
23 Goes by water
26 Ardent
28 Conjunction
29 Note of scale
31 Man's nickname
32 Preposition
33 Swifter
36 Avoids
37 Fuel
38 Kind of tanned skin
39 Trades for money
40 God of love
43 Woody plant
44 Back of neck
47 Chinese pagoda
49 Baker's product
51 Symbol for tin
53 Indefinite article

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

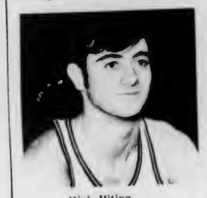
MEANT MINES
BUTTER ALERTS
OSTROT VIOL
ATE OUSTS TIA
SELF TAINT TEN
TRIES REARING
TAU SPAN
CRESTS SITES
TENET TERN
ARE SAHEK ROE
MAIM TRET DE
STRAPS SEAVE R
EERIE ELIAS

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Fr. Hoop Reviewed; Gymnasts 2nd

Domination Of Season Play Results In 18-1 Slate

By STEVE FERBER
MDC Staff



UMass basketball fans were treated to not one, but two outstanding basketball teams this year, as the freshmen hoopsters compiled a stunning 18-1 mark. The single blemish on their record was a three point loss to B. U. The defeat on January 28th, wa the second game played by the freshmen after their 35 day layoff.

Their 18-1 mark speaks for itself, and domination was what the freshmen were all about. Game after game the Little Redmen outshot, outrebounded, and outpointed their opponents. Even in the personal foul department the Little Redmen had an edge, as the minimization of fouls toward the latter stages of the season became extremely important.

Smooth, slick and fun to watch, the freshman hoopsters were all of those things. Working the four corner offense, fastbreaking down the court, or shooting their inevitable 50% from the field, the Little Redmen could, and did do it all.

But balance was the key to their success. All five starters ended the season with averages in double figures, and for a freshman team this balance is that much more surprising and commendable.

The freshmen's season was split in two halves, and the six games before intersession all ended victoriously. After opening up against St. Anselm's with a roaring 85-69 win, the Little

Rick Pitino

Redmen traveled to Hanover, New Hampshire, where they played "one of their three best games of the season," as termed by Coach Broaca.

Against Dartmouth, the opening minutes saw the remains of foul trouble and nervousness, something that had plagued them in their home opener vs. St. Anselm's. But conquering a full court press, the freshmen managed a 12 point win. 64-52, with Al Skinner and Peter Trow leading the way.

Traveling back to the Cage, Amherst was victim number three Skinner showed why he was the team's high scorer (19.4) and rebounder (13.0) for the season as he scored 22 points and hauled down 17 rebounds. Rick Pitino again showed more of his crisp passing, and henceforth, fans began to look for Pitino to get 10 plus assists a game, and he did.

Win number four was of the comeback brand, as the Little Redmen played one of their sharper games of the year, beating UConn 78-65, in Huskie country. After falling behind 8-0, the freshmen forged their way into the lead, and toward victory, as 18 point performances by Pitino, Skinner and Trow provided the offensive punch.

AIC visited the Cage next, and probably was sorry that it bothered to come. Losing 98-65, AIC was the victim of a 62 point second half by the home club, as Skinner did it again, this time with 28 points and 22 rebounds.

Ted Hathaway, Bryant and Stratton's sharpshooting guard, nearly made the freshman's sixth game a disaster. Squeezing by 57-56, John Olson and Art Levine were the only bright spots for the Little Redmen. Olson pulled down 14 rebounds (he averaged 11.2 a game), and Levine scored 19 points (he averaged 12.7 a game), as the frosh shot a season low of 41% from the field, which almost cost them the game.

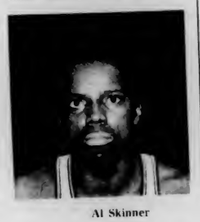
Thirty-five days later the UMass freshmen began the second half of their season. The January 27th game vs. Westfield State resulted in win number seven, but signs of the layoff were evident. Trow led all scorers with 27, as Pitino chalked up his season high in assists with 17, many off to Trow and Olson (the latter scoring 20). Despite a good deal of rustiness in floor play, the frosh had their best shooting night of the year, tossing in 41 of 70 for a rousing 59% from the field.

From the undefeated ranks came the freshmen as the B.U. frosh pressed their way to a 61-58 win. With both Pitino and Skinner on the bench with five personal fouls, B.U.'s press played off in a three point win. Coach Broaca commented, "I don't think that we played well, but B.U. has a great deal of talent. They have three very fine players, one of whom, Kenny Boyd, broke all of the freshmen scoring records."

Bouncing back strongly from their single setback of the season, the freshmen began an 11 game winning streak at the expense of the Dartmouth frosh. Turning the trick against the Little Green for the second time, the 84-74 bulge put the frosh back on the winning track.

Game number ten was a lesson in domination. Playing the role of visitors for the fourth time, the Little Redmen downed the Little Crusaders 83-65, after another one of their slow starts.

With a 9-1 record, the Little Redmen returned to Cage country for their next four encounters. Chamberlayne Junior College entered with an 0-10 mark, and the game went as expected, a farcical runaway. Putting six men in double figures, the UMass frosh scored a 101-56 victory with Levine leading all scorers with 17 points.



St. Thomas More saw the UMass frosh shoot over 50% from the field for the fourth consecutive game. Pipino's 24 points (he averaged 15.5 on the season) paved the way for the 77-59 win, as the Redmen committed a season low of four personal fouls.

Then came the thriller. Preluding the big BC-UMass varsity clash, the Little Redmen faced the BC freshmen, and stuck it to them too. Coach Broaca had sited the BC squad as the toughest that UMass was to face, and after the 87-67 verdict was in, Broaca termed the victory, "the best team performance by a team of mine in 10 years." B.C. had an extremely tall team, and that made the 45-23 rebounding margin for UMass all the more impressive.

UConn came to visit, and did no better at Amherst, than at Storrs. Again falling by 13 points, the Little Huskies saw a tremendous solo performance by Skinner, who hit on 15 of 17 field goals in scoring a season high of 35 points.

Having gone six straight game shooting better than 50%, the Little Redmen went to Springfield, and escaped with their lives. Up by 26 at half, and ho-humming it, they found themselves trailing by one with half a minute to go. But Skinner did the job and scoring three of his 30 points, the Redmen came out on top 74-71.

Breaking a 34 game streak was next in line on the freshmen's agenda. Hosting the Maine freshmen, the Little Redmen faced their only undefeated team of the season, and did away with them most handily. The 76-61 win extended the freshmen's home unbeaten string to 11, as the Little Redmen looked ahead to Northern Essex, whom they were playing the following night.

Al Skinner

Their second game in as many nights was a big success, and while claiming an 86-58 victory, the freshmen sent five men into double figures. Northern Essex was outrebounded by a 74-29 margin, which was just one more reason behind the 28 point shellacking.

Home for the last time, the Little Redmen continued their winning ways, knocking off New Haven 80-70 to bring their Cage record to 13-0. In winning their 17th game, the freshmen were less than impressive, not exhibiting the consistent high quality and slickness that had been their trademark.

Amherst went down to UMass for the second time, though not as easily on their home court. Pulling away in the final 20 minutes, the Little Redmen closed out their memorable season with an 11 game winning streak.

FINAL FRESHMEN FRACAS....Trow averaged 15 points and half that many rebounds.. Olson just made double figures in scoring with a 10.2 average...Coach Broaca said, "Its hard to compare this team with the undefeated team of two years ago, becase they have different styles. But this freshmen team will 'have' to contribute and become the major portion of our varsity in two years, due to the presence of so many junior on this year's squad. As for breaking into the lineup, it is hard to evaluate, or put on the same scale a ballplayer on the varsity level, with all that experience, and a freshmen player; they are really in different worlds. But if any of the varsity players think that they have jobs sewn up, they better think again."

Late Drive Falls Short S.C. Still N.E.'s Best

By MICHAEL CUSACK
MDC Staff

At the Fourth Annual New England Invitational Gymnastic Championships, held at Boston State College on Saturday the UMass varsity gymnasts placed second in the University Division, as Springfield College bested the Redmen by .2 of a point, 157.3-157.1. Southern Connecticut State College was third with a score of 144.0.

The meet was one which saw the Redmen, who were in last place in their Division after floor exercise, continually strive to chip away at Springfield's lead, only to lose by such a narrow margin.

Preliminary competition, which ran from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., was used to determine team standings, all-around winners and qualifiers for the finals, which were held at night.

UMass got off to a poor start with a 25.20 total on floor exercise, one of their lowest totals this season for this event. John Calabria was the sole Redman to qualify for the finals, as his 8.65 tied for fifth after the first round.

Though the Redmen scored 25.20 again on sidehorse, they qualified three men for the finals. Rick Riley led all qualifiers with an 8.75, while Norm Vexler and John Walsh had routines of 8.35 and 8.10 respectively.

In picking up 26.75 points of rings, the UMass team was able to again take three out of the top five spots, to allow them three more performers in the finals. Vexler was leader with a 9.20, while Jay Aronstein had an 8.95. Sophomore Phil Aubrey, in his first appearance with the varsity, turned in an excellent routine of 8.6, which enabled him also to gain entry to the finals.

The Redmen's top two vaulters once again came through with outstanding vaults, and qualified for the finals. Jay Thomsen was high scorer for the Redmen with a 9.5, while Steve Cary had a 9.0.

UMass was able to score 27.20 points on parallel bars in their last dual meet, but couldn't match that total for this meet, as they came up with 26.65 point. However, they were able to qualify two more specialists for the finals. Dave Genest easily led all scorers with a 9.30, and was joined in the finals by Cary, whose 9.05 enabled him to enter the finals on two events.

High bar, the final event, saw UMass accumulate 26.85 points, .2 of a point short of a victory. Tony Vacca's 9.1 and Scott Stover's 9.15 were high scorers for the Redmen, and put them both in the finals.

Final competition saw the Redmen place one or more men in the top five in every event. Calabria placed fifth on floor with a 17.25 total for his preliminary and final routines.

Riley, despite a major break in his routine, placed third overall in the sidehorse competition. Vexler was .1 of a point off of Riley's 16.95 pace as he took fourth. Walsh had a hearbreaking major break near the end of his routing, but managed to take fifth place in the Division.

Vexler turned in another outstanding performance on rings as his 9.0 final routine gave him an 18.20 total, but his effort was .1 of a point less than that of Dartmouth's Pancoe, who placed first. While Vexler finished second, UMass' Aronstein turned in another of his routines to take fifth.

Vaulting finals again saw UMass take two more awards. Thomsen, who has had an outstanding freshman year, continued his winning vaulting by placing second overall in the Division. Cary coupled scores of 8.95 and 9.00 to take fourth in the event.

Parallel bars saw both UMass finalists perform extremely well as Genest and Cary tied for first with totals of 18.25. Genest's double back dismount awed the audience, while Cary's distinctive style earned him another outstanding score.

UMass closed the long day by placing two more men in the top five finalists for high bar. Vacca was high for the Redmen as his 9.0 earned him second place. Stover, who had an 8.4 in the finals, was able to place fourth.

In the all-around event, both Vexler and Vacca were able to place in the top five. Vexler was fifth, while Vacca finished fourth.

Despite the fact that UMass collected fourteen individual medals, their effort wasn't as good as they had hoped it would be. Springfield College has long been considered one of the top teams in New England, and has had the number one rating for quite some time. Coach Erik Kjeldsen's Redmen wanted to topple the Chiefs, but failed to do so by a slim .2 of a point. However, the continual rivalry between the Chiefs and the Redmen isn't over for the season.

Beginning this Thursday, the Redmen will be hosting the EIGL Championships in Curry Hicks Cage. During three days of competition, Springfield, Penn State, Temple, Army, Navy, Pittsburg, Syracuse and UMass will strive for League and individual honors. This competition promises to be the most exciting of the season, and will offer all interested a chance to see the best gymnastics in the East, featuring some of the nation's top competitors.

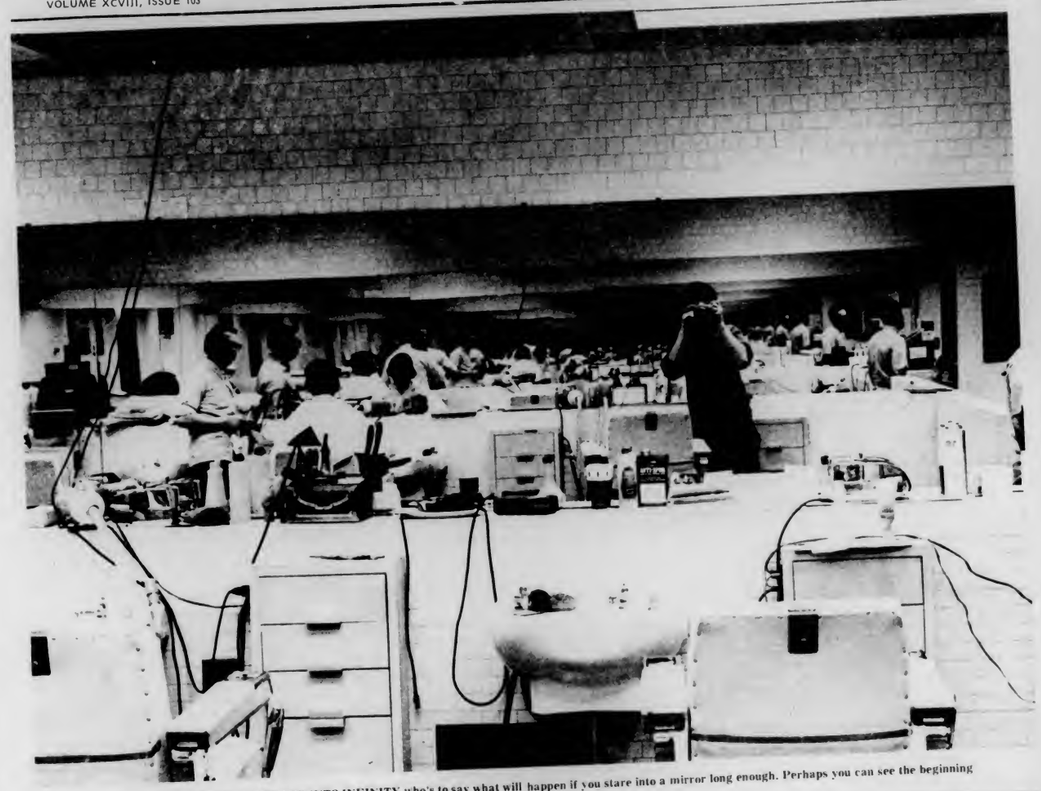
Senate Bus For UVM

By popular request, the Student Senate Transit Service has arranged for a charter bus to the E.C.A.C. Division 11 hockey playoffs at Burlington, Vermont. UMass will play Vermont at 8:00 p.m. tomorrow night.

Tickets are now on sale for transportation ($6.50 each) at the Student Union Ticket Office and at the Boyden Ticket Office for the game ($1.00 each). Ticket deadlines are 10 a.m. tomorrow for transportation and 5 p.m. today for the game tickets.

If the bus is not filled it will be subject to cancellation. In this event, notice will be made over WMUA or by calling the Transit Service Office after 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The bus is scheduled to leave the Campus Center Bus Circle at 3 p.m. tomorrow.



Ali-Frazier
See Page 10

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: It's going to be nice.

VOLUME XCVIII, ISSUE 103 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1971

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS AND INTO INFINITY-who's to say what will happen if you stare into a mirror long enough. Perhaps you can see the beginning of time....(MDC photo by Al Jagoda)

On The Inside:

- Lettuce Policy Outlined See page two
- Allen Defends Pass-Fail See page three
- Viets Continue In Laos See page four
- Puckmen Play Tonight See page sixteen

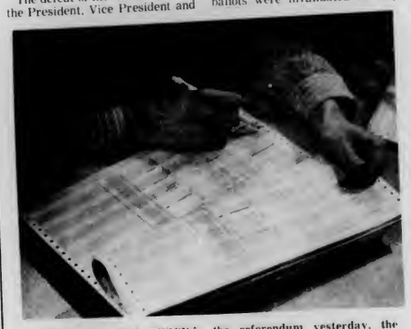
Senate Pay Bill Overturned

By DEBBIE BERNSTEIN
MDC Staff

The referendum to allocate monthly payment to the Student Senate officers was defeated last night by a vote of 1,264 in opposition to and 284 in favor of the bill.

The defeat of the bill means that the President, Vice President and treasurer of the Senate will receive no checks for their duties, according to Student Government Affairs chairman Larry Ladd.

A board of election officials appointed by Ladd counted the ballots in the presence of both proponents and opponents. Seven ballots were invalidated as four were stuck together, two were handwritten and one was unclear.



According to Ladd, the Senate officers will receive payment retroactive to November when bill S137 was passed by the Senate.

This bill states that monthly salary of $150 is to be payed to the Senate President, and $125 is to be payed to the Vice President and the treasurer of the Senate. These payments were to be made on a bi-weekly basis. At the time this bill was passed it was a Senate policy that all financial motions become effective immediately, Ladd said, thus the officers received their retroactive pay.

A by-law is expected to be brought up at next week's Senate meeting which will allow a six day period after a financial motion is passed during which time all funds will be frozen, Ladd continued. Valid referendums will at that time be accepted against the motion, he said. If this ruling goes into effect Ladd explained that it will have no bearing on the payment of Senate officers.

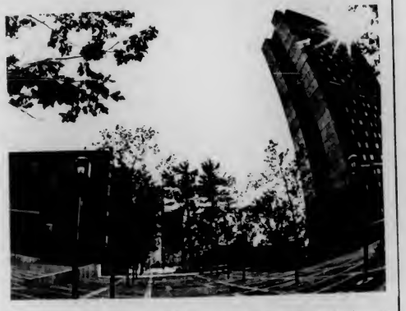
Due to the vast majority of votes in opposition of the referendum, the SGA chairman expects that no recount will be demanded.

The officers of the Senate were not available for comment on the results of the referendum.

CHECKING 'EM TWICE-in the referendum yesterday, the proposal to pay the Senate's officers was overturned dramatically with 1,364 voting against the bill and 284 in favor. (MDC photo by Al Jagoda)

MIT Students Witness "Compartmentalization"

By ROBERT SCHIER
MDC Staff



A group of architectural students from M.I.T. who have been studying the Southwest Residential College presented their suggestions, which included making Hampden Dining Commons a central meeting place, in the dining common Monday night in a slide presentation.

The students, who have been working with John Hunt, the Master of Southwest, see one of the main problems as the "compartmentalization" of students within their dorms. They noted that students rarely go out of their dorms and participate in activities within Southwest.

Saying that "Students rarely get together in any number except the five or six you can jam into a dorm room," Dave Steiner, of Southwest, proposed using the main entrance hall to Hampden Dining Commons as a central meeting place. Coat racks presently occupy this space.

He advocates taking out the coat racks and re-arranging them to make a more flexible environment. Being "student-proof", they could be stacked in almost any imaginable way, he said. The area could be turned into a marketplace, for both goods, such as arts and crafts, or information, for example as a Hot Line office, he suggested.

With the use of cardboard tubing, these racks could be made into a multi-leveled structure, making the area an open mezzanine, Steiner said. The use of free-form furniture, such as pillows, would allow the students who used it to shape it to their needs and make it into anything they wanted, he explained. He added that such a facility has already been built at Wellesley College, in an unused old building.

Here is an architect's vision of Southwest after a seminar at UMass.

On the floor level, Mark Haber, also of M.I.T., said that "All the rooms are built the same, but people are different."

He said that students should be able to initiate changes in their floors, to give people who wanted it either more sleeping space, or room to hold parties or have guests.

The key to both of these plans is fluidity, Haber said. Southwest should be a constantly changing place, ready to be shaped to what it's residents wanted, he continued.

He said that the changes that would be put into effect by next year's residents could be changed later, hopefully with no ill effect on the university's income from the dorms.

Future plans await further study by the M.I.T. students, who will be working on campus for the rest of the semester, as well as UMass students' suggestions.

In the meantime, the students can be reached from four to six p.m. in Coolidge lobby.

There is a Southwest Honors Colloquia working on redesigning the area around the Little Hatch and the patio beside Hampden also. If these plans go through, next year could see some exciting changes in the environment Southwest students live in, Dr. Hunt said.

Stoneham Outlines DC Lettuce Policy

By PAUL M. CURRIE
MDC Staff

Joel Stoneham, Director of the University Food Services, made known his views on the UFW Lettuce boycott in a recent MDC interview.

After reading the letter concerning the inter-union dispute which he had read in the Collegian he responded to a series of questions concerning his views on the boycott, and to the issue of student power over the purchasing policies of the dining commons in which they eat.

"As far as the utilization of lettuce is concerned, I will follow University policies," stated Stoneham.

This means that the policy of purchasing will only take into account the prices of the items involved and the legal rights of students to decide on the economics of their appetites are to be glossed over, he said.

Stoneham considered the Student Food Services committee and the University to be adequate representatives of the general student will.

He further stated that: "...it is not just my personal decision to decide to do one thing or the other, I must go by the University purchasing policy, therefore my being for or against the UFW will not be continued in the decision to buy union lettuce."

Stoneham named a multitude of factors which do influence that purchasing policy, in his opinion.

He cited support for the Teamsters union, the UFW support, progrower support on campus as factors which he saw in the lettuce struggle.

He made plain an unwillingness to change on the basis of rather dubious student politicization of a simple affair.

"I do not like to change accepted norms of those we serve or of those who serve," he said.

His best sounding board on student feelings was the Student Food Services Committee, he claimed. Ed Boci is the student head of the committee.

Commenting directly on the actual UFW dispute, Stoneham said that under the laws of California the quasi-legal Teamster contracts would stand.

"Let's face it, Teamsters is as much a union as the UFW," was his studied reply to the question of how right he considered the purchase of lettuce labeled "scab" by the UFW and sympathizers.

He would consider an adequate show of student strength of support for the UFW to be a Five-thousand signature petition, he said, but did not specifically outline the steps he would follow to implement a new student-governed purchasing policy.

Women Discuss Labor Discrimination Tonite

A panel discussion on the topic: Women and the Labor Market: The Legal Battle Against Discrimination, will be presented tonight, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in Amherst, by the American Association of University Women.

The meeting will be chaired by the Branch President, Mrs. Erma DeBoer. Acting as moderator will be Miss Micheline Dufau, Professor and Associate Head of French and secretary of the UMass Senate. The panelists will include:

Mr. Tim Bornstein, lawyer and Associate Professor of Labor Relations and Law at the School of Business Administration of the University of Massachusetts, will speak on the Equal Pay Amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and the executive orders affecting women employees.

Miss Elizabeth A. Porada, practicing attorney of Northampton, Mass., will speak on inequities in Massachusetts legislation as it affects women, e.g. conflict of interest laws, maternity leave, and inheritance laws.

Mrs. Suzanne Gwiadza of Brookline, Mass., member of the NOW Task Force on Equal Academic Opportunity, will speak on complaints filed by HEW against Harvard and the University of Michigan for sex discrimination.

Miss Arlyn Diamond, Assistant Professor of English and member of the Committee on the Status of Women at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, will speak on the activities of this committee.

There will also be a representative of the UMass Personnel Office present as an observer and a resource person.

Each panelist will give an informal ten minute presentation of his topic, after which the meeting will be open for discussion and questions.

SWAP Committee Meets, Decides On New Chairmen

The 1970 SWAP committee met Monday, in the Campus Center to hold elections and to discuss business. The SWAP committee of twenty-five voted Ross Benjamin and Judith Gill as co-chairmen of next year's SWAP committee.

The meeting discussed past conferences and made suggestions for future meetings. "We hope to profit from our mistakes in the next year," one member said.

After applications for the conference were accepted, the new co-chairmen discussed plans to open up a whole new SWAP committee.

Co-chairman Ross Benjamin stated that he hoped to capitalize on what he learned this year in order to make next year's conference an even better one.

"We will be receptive to all sorts of new suggestions on how SWAP can be run at peak effectiveness," Benjamin said. Judy Gill hopes for even greater support from faculty and administration.

Outgoing co-chairmen Betty Pugh and Dick Palomba "wish to extend thanks to all committee members and participants at SWAP for making it a success."

MDC Regrets Mix-up With Referendum Ad

The ad which appeared on page five of yesterday's MDC was in error. It was not paid for by the Student Senate Public Relations Committee. Representatives from the PR Committee originally intended to buy an ad to give a non-partisan view of the referendum on the pay bill for Senate officers. However, communications between the PR people and the MDC became garbled and the resulting ad was wrong. The Daily Collegian regrets any inconvenience or embarrassment this may have caused.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods: three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Attention Ed Majors

All Elementary Education majors who are planning to intern either semester next year must attend a meeting Wednesday, March 10, at 7:00 p.m. in the Engineering East Auditorium. This will be the only time that all of your program options will be explained and applications distributed.

All students interested in certification in Secondary Education who anticipate a field experience in either the fall or spring semester must attend a meeting on Thursday, March 11, at 7:00 p.m. in Engineering East Auditorium. This will be the only time that program options will be explained and applications distributed.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

NEW CLASSIFIED RATES

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY

75c — First insertion
50c — each subsequent consecutive insertion

Dean Allen Defends Pass-Fail Grading

By SUSAN WHITE
MDC Staff

Dwight Allen, Dean of the School of Education, defined his position on the controversial pass-fail grading system in an MDC interview yesterday.

He indicated delineating three basic reasons for the existence of this system.

The first was that "the present system of grading used in the University is inadequate.

"Many people are dissatisfied with it and find that it doesn't accomplish the things it should," Allen said.

Secondly, the pass-fail system, even with its imperfections, is a means of "testing the students' responsibility," Allen continued.

He said that instead of being prodded into action by competition or averages, the student is left alone for the most part, to determine his own pace of learning.

Allen pointed out, however, that traditional schooling at elementary and high-school levels condition a student in such a manner that this type of freedom is often hard for him to cope with.

On the other hand, he said, if the student is pursuing on his own initiative that which interests him, the education he gains will be much more rewarding.

He added that "As students become more sophisticated, the traditional methods of grading will become more ineffective. Those subject to it will become passive and reject it."

The third reason Allen gave for pass-fail grading was the idea that this would serve as an alternative to the present system. It is a way to give added perspective to the whole picture, and a basis for comparison," he said.

He indicated that the School of Education would like to change from a pass-fail to a "pass-no record" system. In such a system, only the passing grades would be recorded, he said.

According to Allen, this would give a student room for experimentation, finding out by trial and error that area in which he will concentrate, without having his errors held against him.

Allen's further comments were, "Who cares about failures?

Dean Dwight Allen

What is the use of writing them down?"

He also listed three of the many possible ways in which such a system could be carried out.

One plan would be to allot incoming freshmen with a certain number of "voucher" units, or credits, in which they could plan their courses, including a number of extra units which would permit experimentation with courses.

Another way would be the establishment of a set number of "experiences", the completion of which would be necessary for graduation. This would replace required courses, he said.

A third method would be what Allen termed "Carte Blanche", the only restriction here being that the student earns his degree within some time limit, such as six years.

He said that the two systems of grading currently in use conflict with one another, especially at the undergraduate level, where students must spread their courses over Education requirements and those of the university.

In their case, the average does not depend on grades outside the major. But the pass-fail system is still in the experimental stage, he said, and it will take time for its advantages and weaknesses to show.

"I'm not sure of the system yet," he said, "and couldn't recommend it for the whole university." But he asserted later, "I know that the dire results predicted so far will not happen."

Despite the pressure on the School of Education to produce evidence to support the pass-fail system, and despite faculty, the cooperation in doing so, Dean Allen indicated, "I am not willing to produce more evidence in favor of pass-fail than has been produced so far for the present system".

The point of pass-fail, he said, is an attempt to do away with the grading system in use and all the disadvantages it holds for many individuals. He cited this as one of the biggest arguments for pass-fail: "A University is supposed to be an instrument of change, with room for divers ways."

Hearings On Additional Student Trustee Held

Student Senators Ross Benjamin (Umass, Amherst) and Leo Clark (UMass, Boston) testified Monday before the Joint Committee on Education in Boston in favor of adding a UMass, Boston student to the Board of Trustees.

Benjamin stressed the need to open channels of communication between UMass, Boston and the Board of Trustees such as those that have been developed between the Amherst Campus and the trustees.

"UMass, Amherst and UMass, Boston are very different schools with different needs and different requirements" Benjamin stated.

"One is an urban, commuter school, the other more of a suburban, rural school. Only a student attending one of these campuses can get the feel of the issues that exist there and the interests of both campuses must be represented on the Board," he continued.

Leo Clark explained the role of the trustee and the importance of getting input to the various committees which make the decisions prior to the full board meeting. He, like Benjamin, also stressed the necessity for getting equal representation on the Board from both campuses so that the trustees would be aware of the problems of both.

Rep. Gannett from Wayland questioned the feasibility of adding more students to the Board fearing that they would only further define and stress the differences between the two campuses.

This question was adequately answered by Benjamin and Clark and during discussion between students and Rep. Gannett following the hearing. Their response was that with a student trustee from each campus communication would not only be developed with the trustees, but communication between the two campuses themselves would be made that much easier.

Viet North-South Peace Treaty To Be Discussed

By NANCY COSTA
MDC Staff

A meeting of all people interested in working on a joint treaty of peace between the people of the United States and the people of Vietnam: North and South, will be held tonight at 9 P.M. in room 803 of the Campus Center.

The group plans to organize a campus wide referendum on the issue.

The peace treaty contains 9 basic points. One is that the Americans agree to total withdrawal from Vietnam and publicly set the date by which all U.S. military forces will be removed. Another is tha upon this agreement there be a.. immediate cease fire between opposing forces.

The idea of organizing around a treaty of peace between the two peoples is "to dramatize publicly the acceptability of the real conditions to end the war and even more to serve as a vehicle for organizing intensified mass action to force Nixon and the U.S. government to end the war," a spokesman said.

The People's Peace Treaty has been endorsed by organizations representing broad sectors of the American anti-war movement and the Vietnamese independance movement, the spokesman added.

Student Arraigned, Given Suspended Sent.

A student arrested Monday night in the lobby of the Student Union received a 14 month suspended sentence yesterday in Northampton District Court where he was arraigned on three counts.

Roy Pinn, 20, a non-student on the UMass campus, was apprehended by three Campus Police officers in the Union at the entrance to the "Boogie" in progress in the Ballroom.

He was arrested for trespassing by the police, who were on another investigation at the time. One officer said they were searching for a missing person, a minor reported to be in the area. According to police this investigation had no connection with the arrest made.

Adjudged guilty by Judge Luke F. Ryan, Pinn received 6 months in the Northampton House of Correction for unlawful possession of a narcotic drug, 6 months for unlawful possession of a harmful drug, and 2 months for trespassing.

The total 14 month sentence was suspended for two years, according to the Northampton Clerk of Courts.

Palomba Pessimistic For UMass Change

By PAT KING
MDC Staff

"Pessimistic" was the word outgoing SWAP chairman Dick Palomba used to describe his overall feeling about change at UMass.

SWAP group leaders are now in the process of making follow-up proposals as a result of the conference held in December of last year, he said. These proposals will be submitted to the entire university for a preliminary reaction and then to the faculty and student senates and administration for final action.

Hopefully, some needed changes will be effected, he said.

"A lot of people are disatisfied with UMass. Or so it would seem, judging from overheard conversations and nasty letters to the editor. But when it comes to working for change instead of letting off steam, most UMies are nowhere to be found," he continued.

He further stated that SWAP, the Students Workshop on Activities Problems, is a perfect example of this all-too-truism.

Palomba emphasized that SWAP represents an obligation on the part of the group leaders regardless of the apathy of the rest of the campus. SWAP is providing a means of change to those who wish to use it, he said.

However, the SWAP group leaders have met with disappointment, he stated. The average group consists of 4-6 members, and Response has been poor, in his opinion.

"One of the more interesting discoveries, made by SWAP is that apathy is not confined to student body, Palomba stated. Forty-five to fifty positions at the December conference were opened to faculty members, but "we didn't even get that many applications."

Areas in which interest is highest are security Freshman orientation, faculty tenure, and course credits, Palomba said.

There is still hope for reform, with the new co-chairman, Judy Gill and Ross Benjamin, who were elected to help co-ordinate the efforts of the different committees, Palomba said.

Meetings for formulating final proposals were held during the first week of March and will continue to be open to all members of the University community.

Dr. Richard L. Leonard
Optometrist
announces the opening of his office for
VISUAL ANALYSIS AND CONTACT LENSES
BY APPOINTMENT
Town & Country Building
79 S Pleasant St.
Amherst
256-8052

Get It In!

Campus Center Program Council

Calendar notices are due

Friday, March 12.

Deliver to R.S.O. Room 101, or Mailbox #316 R.S.O.
Any organization wishing a notice for April's Calender please comply.

In The Nation And The World

US Flies Air Support

Ho Chi Minh Trail Cut

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnamese troops in their drive into Laos now have cut nine major branches of the Ho Chi Minh trail, Saigon headquarters reported Tuesday. U.S. air blows have rained widespread destruction on enemy war supplies.

The U.S. Air Force said strikes by fighter-bombers Monday set off 1,770 secondary explosions in one area about one mile northeast of Sepone, a trail hub 25 miles inside Laos. Secondary explosions are usually taken to mean stores of ammunition or fuel have been hit.

Intensive air activity continued Tuesday around Sepone, the western tip of the South Vietnamese drive.

A Vietnamese officer said that region was regarded as "the throat" of North Vietnam's infiltration corridor to South Vietnam and Cambodia. Lt. Col. Tran Van An said at least five of the nine severed main supply lines pass through the Sepone area.

Other branches of the Ho Chi Minh trail lie west of Sepone and these have been under U.S. aerial attack.

A U.S. Command assessment of the Laos operation against the supply network was that it already has set North Vietnam's effort against the South back five months. If it continues until the end of April as expected, it could mean another nine months of time gained for the South Vietnamese, the command added.

"Every day they remain in Laos it is advantageous to the Vietnamization process," a high U.S. military official said. "It gives the Vietnamese time to build up their training. Time is on the side of Vietnamese."

The U.S. Command figured a day's full load of war materiels and other supplies moved down the supply trail enables the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to operate 10 days in the field.

"By knocking off half that load," said the officer, "the North Vietnamese can only operate five days in the field. The North Vietnamese troops south of Highway 9 are only getting half a load of five days' supplies."

South Vietnamese headquarters reported Wednesday the destruction of 100 enemy tanks in the month-old drive into Laos that has cut nine major branches of North Vietnam's vital Ho Chi Minh supply trail.

The tanks included 92 fifteen ton amphibious models, six 35 ton medium models and two 40 ton vehicles, the enemy's biggest.

U.S. warplanes supporting the Laotian drive spotted a North Vietnamese column of T34 meduim tanks Tuesday apparently massing to attack Sepone, a trail hub 25 miles inside Laos that is now the western tip of the South Vietnamese push. Pilots reported destroying five of the Soviet-made tanks and leaving at least three others burning 10 miles southeast of Sepone.

American air blows also caused widespread destruction to enemy war supplies. The U.S. Air Force said strikes by fighter-bombers Monday set off 1,770 secondary explosions in one area about a mile northeast of Sepone. Secondary explosions are usually taken to mean that stores of ammunition or fuel have been hit.

The U.S. Command announced in a delayed report that the two Soviet-made T54 tanks, the biggest and most powerful the North Vietnamese have, were destroyed by U.S. strikes late last month. They were the first T54 tanks reported encountered in the Indochina war.

A command spokesman said the tanks had first been identified from aerial photographs as light amphibious PT76 tanks, but later studies showed they were T54's. They were destroyed near Hill 31, north of Highway 9, which was overrun by North Vietnamese forces spearheaded by a tank column.

The 100 tanks reported destroyed were put out of commission in the month since the operation began Feb. 8.

A Vietnamese officer said the Sepone area is regarded as "the throat" of North Vietnam's infiltration corridor to South Vietnam and Cambodia.Lt. Col. Tran Van An said at least five of the nine severed main supply lines pass through the region.

Cancer Research Under HEW

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nixon administration expressed willingness Tuesday to spend millions to help conquer cancer but said it would be a serious scientific and managerial error to set up a new agency to do the job.

"The separation of cancer research from the rest of biomedical research and from health in general, now under the umbrella of the National Institutes of Health and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, would be counter-productive and should not be undertaken," Surgeon General Jesse L.Steinfeld told a Senate Health subcommittee.

Flanked by Assistant HEW Secretary Roger O. Egeberg, NIH Director Robert Marston and Dr. Carl G. Baker, head of National Cancer Institute, Steinfeld opposed a bill that would create a National Cancer Authority independent of NIH.

Instead, they defended the President's cancer-cure search proposal that would call for spending more than $332 million during the next fiscal year. Steinfeld said President Nixon has promised to make available for the enlarged cancer program with NIH "whatever additional resources...can be effectively used."

The officials told the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee's subcommittee on health they agree there is a need for new management techniques. Thus, they said the administration wants to set up the cancer-fighting program with leadership supported by a new management group and by an advisory panel on priority-setting and money-allocation.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, (D-Mass.), subcommittee chairman and a baker of the independent agency bill, pointed to a report by the National Panel of Consultants on the Conquest of Cancer, a group of 13 scientists and 13 laymen, which recommended that management efforts be concentrated under a special agency.

Kennedy said this is not a suggestion that there be a single approach toward meeting the problem. He said it is an attempt to try to get around the bureaucracy and get the job done.

Nixon Plans Ready For 'Generation of Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon's blueprint for building a generation of peace through stiffened free world alliance and "vigorous negotiation from a position of strength" was mapped for Congress Tuesday.

A "Strategy of Realistic Deterrence," Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird called it.

He said the strategy's essential foundation is maintenance of a strong free world military capability to steer America on "a prudent middle course between two policy extremes-world policeman or new isolationism."

The strategy is aimed at expanding present U.S. nuclear deterrence to deterrence of theater war in Europe or Asia and local wars such as Indochina, as well by marshalling free world military power. Laird said, he told newsmen after the closed House Armed ServicesCommittee hearing.

Laird mapped the strategy in his annual defense posture statement on the $76 billion defense budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1971.

He proposed limited expansion of the Safeguard anti-missile system to "enhance the chances" for a U.S.- Soviet arms-control agreement-while maintaining a U.S. option for going to a full 12-site Safeguard system if the arms talks are not successful.

"Until it becomes clear that an agreement adequately constraining the Soviet threat to our retaliatory forces is attainable," he said, "the program will proceed in an orderly and timely manner."

The 1972 minimum program proposes construction of three ABM sites to protect U.S. Minuteman missiles. And Nixon asked for a fourth site either at Washington, D.C., or Warren Air Force Base, Wyo.- which would protect the nuclear command centers in Colorado and Omaha, Neb.-with the President deciding which, on the basis of arms talks progress.

Laird also:

—Disclosed Red China may have test-fired an intercontinental ballistic missile several thousand miles late last year, which could make it a nuclear threat in 1973 although that threat still is not expected before 1974 or 1975.

—Said "there is evidence of a large new Soviet ICBM" but said the Pentagon does not know if it is a new missile or a modification of the Soviets' giant SS9.

—Said the administration's peacetime military forces goal is 2.5 million men and women, one million below Vietnam peaks, that will cost only 7 per cent of the Gross National Product.

Banking Committee Ok's Casey Nomination to SEC

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate Banking and Currency Committee Tuesday stood by its earlier approval of William J. Casey's nomination to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The committee acted behind close doors after a five-hour open hearing in which Casey said some of his earlier testimony before the committee had been based on faulty recollections and in one place was wrong.

Despite this testimony and some political squabbling among members of the committee during the open session, the vote was 9-3 to table a motion by Sen. William Proxmire, (D-Wis.) that would have delayed reporting the nomination to the Senate floor.

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) the committee chairman, said the nomination would be formally reported to the Senate early next week after the hearing transcript and various reports are completed.

Proxmire, who has been highly critical of the nomination, did not indicate whether he would stage a floor fight, but he is expected to speak against Casey.

War Risk in Mid-East; China Won't Enter Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Tuesday the absence of a formal Mideast cease-fire probably raises the risk of war starting there because of a miscalculation by one side or the other.

At the same time Rogers minimized the possibility that Premier Chou En-Lai's visit to North Vietnam means Red China is about to enter the Vietnam war.

"I suppose the real reason he's in Hanoi is to give comfort to the North Vietnamese," Rogers said. He said the North Vietnamese had suffered from the allied operation in Laos.

As for Chou's statement that Peking had "made adequate preparations" against "a serious threat to China" by the United States, Rogers said "I think to some extent that's propaganda."

The secretary gave his views in a television interview for the Public Broadcasting Service.

Rogers said it is clear that the United States is not threatening Communist China and that American troops are withdrawing from Vietnam.

He said also the United States is eager to improve relations with Peking, though he doubts Red China would be given a seat in the United Nations this fall.

LOST
MONDAY, MARCH 8
in rear of Berkshire Commons - an avocado green zippered carrying case containing very important papers. Reward for return or information.
Prof. Jane McCullough
253-7484 or 545-2397

PRINT SALE

original prints ONLY (woodcuts, lithographs, silk screens, etchings) may be sold by grad students and undergraduates

please pick up an application in the art office or in the Program Council office applications must be in by March 16th

sale to be held March 31 - April 2
Cape Cod Lounge 9:30 - 5:00

for further information, contact the Program Council Office

Consumers Protected By Law from Smut Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than 70,000 Americans have asked the Postal Service to shield them from advertisments sent out by smut peddlers.

However, only one firm in the business of sending out what the postal service terms sexually oriented advertisements has purchased the list of names that all smut dealers are supposed to delete from their mailing lists.

A law that took effect Feb. 1 puts the burden on mailers to avoid sending such advertisements to persons who register with the Postal Service. Failure to abide by the law could cost $5,000 fine and 5 years in prison.

Shortly after the law became effective, only about 6,000 persons submitted their names to the Postal Service for compilation of a master list that was to be sold to advertisers for between $5,000 and $10,000.

Over the past few weeks, however, "they've been coming in by the thousands," a postal official said.

The law requires that once a person's name has been on the Postal Service rolls for 30 days, it must be stricken from mailing lists of smut peddlers.

The first 30-day list, containing 6,700 names, was sent to the single purchaser in late February. A second list, containing 31,000 names, goes out Wednesday.

The Postal Service refused to identify the single firm that bought the first list.

The new law is being challenged in two pending court cases. The Postal Service said federal court suits have been filed against the government in Los Angeles and Brooklyn seeking injunctions against enforcement of the act.

"Cole Caper" Under Senate Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP)-Senate investigators were told Tuesday of a brigadier general who vanished in Germany and when found would say only that he had been offered $50,000 to take the Fifth Amendment and "keep his mouth shut."

Describing what one senator called "the lost weekend" of Brig. Gen. Earl Franklin Cole and what he himself called "the Cole Caper," Brig. Gen. Harley Moore, Army provost marshal general in Europe, testified high-level roadblocks were placed in the way of an investigation.

Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, (D-Conn.), of the Senate investigations subcommittee said he will pursue the possibility the case was whitewashed at Army headquarters in Washington.

Testifying that few of the important elements of Cole's version of his weekend disappearance in October 1969 checked out, Moore said he was unable to understand why details of accusations made against Cole in Vietnam, Germany and the United States were never brought together in one criminal investigation.

Any chance of prosecution disappeared last summer, he said, when Cole was allowed to retire on a $1,100 monthly pension.

Before that the Army had removed Cole from command of the huge European post exchange system, demoted him to colonel and stripped him of a Distinguished Service Medal.

Cole is scheduled to testify Wednesday.

In the Senate hearings, witnesses have accused Cole of repeated intervention to protect questionable sales operations in Vietnam and to influence sale of slot machines, whisky and beer to clubs and PX's.

On Oct. 10, 1969, shortly after a witness at Senate hearings in Washington had linked him to a high-rolling sales entrepeneur in Vietnam, Cole told a superior officer he was leaving his post for the weekend.

India To Attempt Census Taking

NEW DELHI, (AP) - India is beginning a massive head count Wednesday to determine how many Indians there really are-in the country's 564,718 villages, in its cities and on the streets.

In a nation where millions live without roofs over their heads, the task won't be easy.

The census will take 21 days and will cost $5.3 million just to pay for the services of a million part-time workers.

There also will be the cost of 3,500 metric tons of paper being used for instructional booklets and census forms that have been printed in 16 different languages.

The preliminary results should be known by mid-April, when India is expected to retain its position as the world's second most populous nation, after China.

The population is estimated to be 560 million-about 16 per cent of the world's population-which is squeezed on to 2 per cent of the total land on earth.

No one-except foreigners living in the country-will be spared during the census, the first since 1961 and the 10th since the first population count on the subcontinent in 1871.

A special night-March 31-has been set aside just to enumerate the "houseless population"- nomads who roam the deserts, persons who live on boats and the pavement dwellers who reside on the sidewalks and streets of India's teeming cities.

Advances Made Towards Harnessing Atomic Energy

LOS ALAMOS, N.M.(AP)-Scientists at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory said Tuesday the newest reserach tool in the effort to harness the energy of the hydrogen bomb has passed a major test.

They said they were able to use a reasearch device, dubbed Scyllac, to produce a stream of hot ionized deuterim gas called plasma. Deuterium, a form of hydrogen, is readily available from sea water.

"This is a very happy occasion. I think the whole CTR community in both this country and abroad will be looking forward with anticipation to the results that will come from this device," said Dr. Fred Ribe, project director. He referred to scientists working with the problem of controlled thermonuclear reaction.

Ribe said that in the experiment conducted at Los Alamos Monday the deuterium plasma was produced in a curved section five yards long of the Scyllac, which is till to be perfected and completed.

Development of the plasma in this medicine is considered a step toward developing a controlled fusion reaction. Fusion, or thermonuclear, reaction, is the kind that provides the energy of the sun and of the hydrogen.

Ribe said if fusion control is achieved, there is enough energy in the world's oceans to supply power at 100 times the current consumption for 10 billion years. Besides that, a fusion reactor would be virtually pollution-free and produce no long-lived radioactive wastes, he said.

In the fusion process, isotopes of hydrogen are heated and their nuclei forced together, fusing, thus giving off tremendous amounts of energy. Nuclear power plants now in use produce energy when atoms of heavy, radioactive metal such as uranium are split, rather than fused. This is the principle of the atomic bomb.

Ribe said scientists now are analyzing data from Monday's experiment and will continue work on the first section of Scyllac to make sure the principles involved are correct, before the full machine construction is completed in the next two years.

Nixon Economic Policy "Flexible, Changeable"

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally declared Tuesday President Nixon's economic policies are flexible and can be changed rapidly if inflation persists during this year's expansion of the economy.

In a news conference with economics reporters, Connally refused to discuss his political plans for the 1972 presidential election. "I think I'll just sit back and listen for a while," he said.

He said Nixon's plan to reorganize the federal government has a good chance of passage in Congress this year, but he cast doubt on the chances for revenue-sharing, Nixon's pet proposal.

Connally, a Democrat and three-time Texas governor, said he will be more of an activist than his predecessor, David M. Kennedy, and said he enjoys a close relationship with Nixon.

He virtually ruled out any chance of administration will propose a major tax increase this year but he said a big tax boost might be possible later.

"Not this year, maybe not next year-it depends on the circumstances," he said.

Connally said he is more optimistic about the economy than he was when Nixon appointed him last December. He said he based his view primarily on talks with businessmen.

He rejects suggestions that Nixon had abandoned his fight to control inflation.

"I think the administration has been in a paradoxical situation for quite some time" with respect to trying to scale down unemployment and inflation at the same time, he said.

"It requires a very delicate balance and the administration gets criticized from both sides. Obviously, the administration is trying to walk the middle ground, the economic tightrope."

At present, Connally said, Nixon's economic policies are "sufficient to slow the pace of inflation.

"Obviously, if it is found to be incorrect, you can assume that the administration will be flexible enough to pursue other measures."

Asked if he plans to participate in the convention, Connally said, "I think I'll make no comment along those lines at all."

Filibuster Reform Bill Suffers Fourth Setback

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backers of a move to ease the Senate's filibuster rules shifted their sights to 1973 Tuesday after suffering their fourth straight defeat this year.

"We are moving toward the day when a prudent modification will be made in this cloture rule," said Sen. Frank Church, (D-Idaho.) "I feel confident that at the opening of the next Congress it may succeed."

The next Congress convenes in January 1973.

Church is one of the chief sponsors of a proposed change in rules which would make it possible for a three-fifths majority of senators voting to break off a filibuster.

The present rule requires a two-thirds majority, and it was this rule that Church and his supporters were unable to overcome in four tries.

Tuesday's vote was 55 to 39, eight short of the required two-thirds.

It was on a motion to end debate in order to vote on a compromise offered by Sen. Jack Miller, (R-Iowa,) who proposed that the two-thirds rule continue in effect unless a majority of senators of both parties favored a change, in which case they would need only a three-fifths majority to prevail.

Although a vote on his motion was at stake, Miller voted against cloture as he has done in the past.

After Tuesday's vote the backers of a change conceded defeat for this session.

Their opponents clinched victory by killing 55 to 37 an effort of Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R-N.Y.) to enable a simple majority to change the rules at the start of a new Congress.

Look For Gib Fullerton Pictures-Pages 1-16

Showcase Cinemas 1213
RT.5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD.
GROUP RATES call 733-5131
SEE THE BEST FIRST!
We're only minutes away via new RT.91
1 Cromwell is a BIG ONE!
Richard Harris Alec Guinness G
Mon. - Thurs. 2-7:15-9:40
Fri. 2-7:15-9:55
Sat. & Sun. 2-4:40-7:20-9:55
2 7 Nominations incl. "BEST PICTURE"
Mon-Fri: 2pm 7:30, 9:30
Sat. Sun. Cont. from 2 P.M.
LOVE STORY
3 LITTLE BIG MAN WAS EITHER THE MOST NEGLECTED HERO IN HISTORY OR A LIAR OF INSANE PROPORTION!
Mon. - Fri. 2-7:10-9:45
Sat. & Sun. 1:30-4-7:10-9:15
DUSTIN HOFFMAN "LITTLE BIG MAN" GP
master charge
ROCKER LOUNGE COMFORT-ACRES FREE PARKING

Radical Fever Breaking?

The release in Turkey of four captive U.S. airmen will arouse speculation whether the fever is breaking after a contagion of political kidnappings around the world.

Like air hijacking, political kidnapping became a popular terrorist weapon against establishments. Now that energetic measures have been taken in many countries, air hijacking seems on the wane. Britain's Scotland Yard says hijacking is now old hat as a revolutionary tactic.

It has appeared that political kidnapping would replace hijacking as the favorite device of urban guerrillas, expecially in Latin America. Since September 1969, there have been a score of abductions. Some were failures, but enough of them were spectacularly successful to inspire imitation elsewhere.

Some terrorists succeeded when governments bowed to their threats to kill the victims. In this way scores of political prisoners were freed and flown out of the countries of their imprisonment. Guerrilla organizations have raked in ransom money. Three victims of political kidnappings have been murdered in cases where governments failed to bow. One victim is still missing.

Some attempts fizzled completely, as was the case in Turkey, where the government refused to consider a demand of $400,000 for the four Americans.

Who, what and why are the political kidnappers? Their politics vary, but they have some things in common. Usually they belong to tiny extremist groups. They are likely to be young, with the recklessness that youth can command. Often they are university students, or allied with them.

On the left they tend to be far-out extremists worshiping at the altar of Mao Tse-tung and constant violence. On the right they may be somewhat older, embittered men remembering dictatorships in which they could hope to share in power and spoils. All seem to claim idealism of sorts. Some are separatists seeking to break away from a central government. Some are far-out radicals seeking complete overturn of political systems.

Men, Helicopters Lost in Laos Action

WASHINGTON AP—Adm. Thomas E. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was quoted Tuesday as telling GOP congressional leaders the United States has lost 47 helicopters in action over Laos and that 25 men have either been killed or are missing.

Moorer was said to have stressed at a White House briefing that the incursion by South Vietnamese troops into Laos has been successful and that the Communist supply line to the South has been disrupted.

An account of the briefing as given newsmen by Sen. Gordon Allott, R—Col., who said 3,000 Russian made four-tons trucks and 93 tanks were reported destroyed in the Laos area since October.

Allott, chairman of the GOP policy conference said Moorer said an estimated 7,000 North Vietnamese troops have been killed in Laos since the incursion by South Vietnamese forces began.

The South Vietnamese have lost 455 soldiers, he said. The loss rate on U.S. helicopters giving air support has been about 5.6 per 1,000 sorties he said.

He quoted Moorer as saying about 15 per cent of the American crews on all sorties have been listed as killed, wounded or missing in action.

Allott said the admiral reported a total 32 U.S. personnel have been reported lost, but he stressed some of these are in the missing category.

OPEN INVITATION

To All Students, Faculty and Members Of The University Community

To Testify Before the President's FUTURE UNIVERSITY COMMITTEE on the theme

"Content and Organization of the Curriculum"

Friday, 12 March, 2:00 to 3:30 p.m.

Rooms 901, 902, 903, 905, 909, 917, Campus Center

Walk-in Basis, No Scheduling or Appointment Necessary

Whether or not you are able to appear on Friday, longer written statements are solicited, on any (or all) of the subjects being considered by the Committee. Statements may be left with the Committee on Friday (or at a later Amherst meeting to be announced soon), or may be mailed to "President's Committee on the Future University, University of Massachusetts, 85 Devonshire Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02109."

The list of subjects and questions being considered by the Committee appears below:

What kinds of academic reform and innovation are called for?
What new subjects should be taught?
Should they be taught differently?
How do we meet emerging interdisciplinary needs and interests?
Should we move towards new departments, divisions, institutes?
Should there be joint faculty appointments?
How do we ensure first class citizenship for faculty engaged in novel or experimental forms of teaching?
What about new look at pre-professional or para-professional and vocational curricula, given the emergence of new kinds of careers?
Should there be changes in graduate education, both PhD and professional?
What changes should be made in the approach to the study of all fields whether old or new: independent study? interdepartmental concentrations? field work in courses? grading changes? changes in the advisory system?
Should academic credit be granted for new kinds of activities and experiences?
Should changes be made in the tenure system?
How can teaching be built into the reward system for purposes of promotion and tenure?
How should teaching be evaluated?
Should new kinds of faculty be recruited?
How do we break down the overpowering size of a large campus?
What kinds of living-learning units provide a human scale?
Should we try to break the traditional four-year lock-step of college, and make it possible for people to move in and out as individually appropriate?
What further changes should be made in admissions criteria and recruiting efforts to open the University to those previously excluded by conventional criteria?
How can we reach down into the high schools to identify and better prepare such students?
How can we help them once they reach the University?
Can we expand the undergraduate population beyond the traditional 18-22 year age group? How might we integrate adult and continuing education with the rest of the University's program?
What is the nature of the University's commitment to public service?
How can the provision of service be related to the learning process of students?
Given the deepending financial crisis of private colleges and universities what new forms of relationships and cooperation can be worked out between public and private institutions?

Campus Carousel

And Yet Another Ride...

PILL UP at NIU...pills will come to the single girls at Northern Illinois University, come Fall, when the University Health Service will make them available, together with the services of a gynecologist.

According to THE NORTHERN STAR in a front page story, birth control prescriptions are already being offered to married women, this semester.

The health center will not supply the pills, but will offer examinations and prescriptions. Pap smears and supplies go for $7.

* * * *

SASQUATCH HUNT IS ON at Washington State U., after reports that "footprints" were found nearby. The prints measured 16-inches long and 8 inches wide.

The hunters made plaster casts which they have added to other evidence collected last year. A color movie of what is believed to be a sasquatch shows it to be "an incredibly big human-like shape with brown or dark brown hair, and heavily developed shoulders and arms." Hands of the reported beast have been measured as about a foot long, with four short, stubby fingers and a thumb.

THE DAILY EVERGREEN put the story on page one, too.

* * * *

UP WITH COPS...a staff writer of THE DAILY CALIFORNIAN took a ride with a Berkeley crime fighter and told his readers that the cops are worried about their image...as the beat goes on.

* * * *

FROSH COMP IS OUT at Hiram College, Ohio, where they've substituted a Freshman Institute on Communications. There, students produce movies they also write, photograph, edit and act in.

This Fall, 419 frosh turned up with 29 two-and three-minute films on such subjects as the draft, war and pollution.

One of the more imaginative films depict the plight of a left-handed student in classrooms and dorms designed for right-handers.

* * * *

McPOTY is due for big prizes at the University of Oregon, where they're having a contest to discover the Male Chauvinist Pig-of-the-Year.

Qualifications include actions which "either belittle women or place men in a position of superiority."

Individual prizes include "public humiliation (whistling, pinching), a broom and dust pan, a bra and girdle, knitting needles, a genuine dirty diaper, a package of birth control pills and a bottle of Midol."

Sounds better than a campus queen contest.

* * * *

OPEN CLASSROOMS at the University of Texas are encouraging students to attend classes without registering and without having to gain the professor's permission.

One music prof told the DAILY TEXAN that the program was "designed to help relax intellectual isolation many people feel who specialize in one field."

Another pointed out that it encourages persons not enrolled in the course to raise questions about the material.

Twenty-three profs are participating with courses in art, architecture, anthropology, drams, classics, English Germanic languages, radio TV-film and Spanish-Portugese.

* * * *

PUBLISHING PROFS are being investigated in Wisconsin by the state's Attorney General who is unhappy with the contract they signed.

Seems that four profs at the Oshkosh campus of UWis agreed to publish with a Berkeley firm on the condition that "your localbookstore purchase one-third of the total number of books produced."

The bruhaha, according to the ADVANCE—TITAN, results from state law which says that it is a misdemeanor for a state employee "in his private capacity (to) negotiate bids or enter into a contract in which he has private pecuniary interest, direct or indirect, or performs in regard to that 'contract some function requiring the exercise of discretion on his part..."

The book was intended to be used as a history textbook.

* * * *

FOOD STAMPS FOR STUDENTS? Apparently they're eligible, in some parts of the country, like Missouri and Illinois.

According to welfare officials in St. Louis, quoted in the Washington University STUDENT LIFE, "A household of one person is eligible for food stamps if the monthly income is below the maximum $165, and liquid assets are below $1,000."

And students are eligible.

What will they think of next to compete with the Dining Commons?

Third Jet Crash

BONN, Germany (AP) - A West German AIR FORCE F104G Starfighter jet crashed into a house near Diebholz in northern Germany on Tuesday, the Defense Ministry announced.

The pilot and a woman in the house were injured, the ministry said. Several other persons in the house escaped injury. The woman suffered burns.

It was the third Starfighter crash in six days.

UM Co-op, Industry Help Teach Sewing

Through the combined efforts of private industry and the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service, by this spring about 80 women from low-income families in Hampden County will have been taught to sew.

A grant of $3,500 from the Celanese Fibers Marketing Company of New York, a division of the Celanese Corporation, has enabled UMass and Hampden County home economists to train accomplished sewers to teach women in low-income neighborhoods. This is the first time private industry has given a grant to the Cooperative Extension Service.

Forty women learned to sew in the five classes conducted in the fall, and about that same number are attending the second series of classes being conducted in Holyoke, Russell, Palmer, Winchester Square, and the South End of Springfield. A third series will begin in the spring.

Mrs. Doris Rogers, Hampden County Extension Home Economist, and Assoc. Prof. Virginia Davis of the UMass Cooperative Extension Service applied for the Celanese grant and began the pilot program of cooperation between private industry and the Extension Service. Mrs. Diana Muller, new Hampden County home economist, and Prof. Davis are directors of the program.

Six accomplished sewers have been trained to teach their sewing talents to others who may sew to satisfy clothing needs at lower prices. Women who have learned to sew have, in the five to six week courses, been making shift dresses which many will model at a fashion show this spring in West Springfield.

Current classes and their teachers: Mrs. Jean Krampits, 430 East St., Chicopee Falls, teaching in Holyoke; Mrs. Alice Britton, Blandford Stage Rd., Russell, teaching in Russell; Mrs. Betty Kafantis, 54 Mercury Court, West Springfield, teaching in Winchester Square; Mrs. Helen Robbins, 37 Converse St., Palmer, teaching in Palmer; and Mrs. Margaret Wray, 92 Marcengo Park, Springfield, teaching in Springfield's South End. In the spring, Mrs. Helen Tower, 20 Homecrest St., Longmeadow, will teach a class.

Tonight

Tonight on "Viewpoint" on WMUA at 6:30 PM, the subject of the discussion will be "The Middle East Ceasefire: After the Truce" Joining the View... staff will be ... Mee... ...rt on Mid... ...point"

50¢ RAFFLE 50¢
Round - Trip Jet
For Two To NASSAU
Collegiate Flying
Club Booth
CAMPUS CENTER
WED. & THURS.

Two Big Hits
AMHERST Cinema
Harper at 7:00
Rabbit at 9:10
3 months ago Rabbit Angstrom ran out to buy his wife cigarettes. He hasn't come home yet.
JOHN UPDIKE'S GREAT NOVEL ON THE SCREEN AT LAST
"Rabbit, Run"
James Caan · Anjanette Comer · Jack Albertson
Carrie Snodgress · Arthur Hill
Plus Paul Newman - ... Bacall
"HARPER"

Johnson to Go Co-ed

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU
MDC Staff

The residents of Johnson House voted 82-29 Thursday in favor of co-ed living. The voting followed a series of corridor meetings and a panel discussion with residents of Lewis and Dwight, both neighbors in the Quad, which have already taken the co-ed plunge.

They have also helped Johnson's Co-ed Committee in drafting its proposal, to be submitted to the Board of Trustees for approval next week. In "A Proposal For A Co-Educational Community In Dwight House", the "motives and projections of a co-ed dormitory are expressed: "...to be valuable in arresting the feeling of individual alienation within the University; personal responsibility and group security are now a very strong part of the Community.

'Wishing to share this with others who find personal responsibility a major concern,

'And believing that the University experience should be relavant to, and carry over to future life.

'And needing the ideas and experiences of the Male population previously excluded..."

The Co-ed Committee now faces the tasks of obtaining parental support, determining the number of vacancies available, and filling this quota.

Any male student interested may leave his name at the Head of Residence's office on Saturday, March 13(1-3), Sunday, March 14(1-9), Tuesday, March 16(1-4), Thursday, March 18(7-10). Should the number of applicants exceed the number of vacancies, a lottery will be used. The Committee, however, is hoping for "a cross-section of the campus".

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Monfil, Johnson's Heads of Residence, said that they were pleased with the girls' decision. Mr. Monfil concluded: "We anticipate problems, but this may also clear up some of the problems that we have been having."

MDC Classifieds Do It!

Europe—All in One Book!
SOFA publishes the only student travel book listing European Student Charter Flights, car plans, student trains, tours, hotels, restaurants, Addresses, discounts, & more. (Over 200 pages)
Dear SOFA, Please send:
☐ The Official Student Travel Guide to Europe (& beyond!). I enclose $2.50.
☐ Free information on individual student travel.
Name — — — — — — — —
Address — — — — — — — —
City — — — State — — Zip —
Mail to: SOFA, European Student Travel Center, 1560 Broadway, New York, NY 10036. (212 586-2080) 39
For tours to Eastern Europe, student hotels, riding & sailing camps, contact NBBS, 576 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10036 (212 765-7422).

"The Lickerish Quartet"

RATED X
Mr. Metzger has never quite attained Joseph von Sternberg's feeling for dazzling decadence, but he has the master's humorlessness, and though his production of spectacle has been limited by his budgets, he is every bit as morally uplifting...preoccupied by the way nude bodies and sexual acts look when photographed sideways, in zoomy long shots, in roving close-ups...ripe with incredible color and decor and movement."
— Vincent Canby, N.Y. Times
No one under 18 yrs.
"OUTRAGEOUSLY KINKY MASTERPIECE. GO!" Andy Warhol
THE NEW RADLEY METZGER MOVIE
WITH SILVANA VENTURELLI, FRANK WOLFF, ERIKA REMBERG, PAOLO TURCO
IN EASTMAN COLOR
STARTS TOMORROW 7 & 9 P.M.
Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Student Union University of Massachusetts - Amherst, Mass

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Ann Gurnett, Bob Nesti, Ed Janusz, Cindy Swindell, Lee Thibodeau, Nancy Costa, Elaine Massery, Fred Rosenthal, Jim Barrus
SPORTS — Ed Fenwick, Dave Bernstein
EDITORIAL — Tony Moore
PHOTO
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

A Costly Error

In yesterday's referendum on the payment of Student Senate Officers, the opponents of the measure won by a healthy margin of 1264-281. For the time being anyway, the Student Senate's officers will receive no compensation for their labors.

We feel, and hope, that this is a temporary situation. It seems inevitable that sooner or later the top officers of the Student Senate Government Association will have to be payed if that body is to remain as a workable unit for student legislation and activism. The offices simply require too much time, work and energy to be handled effectively by anyone without some sort of financial renumeration.

In the long run, we feel that the move will cost the students the money that they seem so eager to protect. If the $500,000.00 in student tax money is to be efficiently allocated it must be done by people who have the opportunity and time to give it their full attention. Without this, oversights and mistakes are no doubt inevitable and the small sum of money saved by the failure of bill #71-S137 now will undoubtedly be lost in time.

Anytime a measure of this sort is presented to the populace at large, it appears doomed to failure. People are simply not willing to dig a little deeper into their own pocketbooks to pay their peers. With the economic situation in the country today, this avaricious mood is even more apparent. The fact remains, however, that what today seems a saving, tomorrow may well appear as a loss.

The only consolation we can offer is that sooner or later this bill, in one form or another, will have to pass. Perhaps when the country is in a better financial situation, people will be a little more willing to give their representatives the compensation they deserve. Or perhaps the people will have to be shocked into this position by some gross oversight or mistake by the Student Government Association due to a lack of expertise and experienced personel. We hope this does not happen if the student body continues to invite trouble, incompetency will eventually accept the invitation.

"You Say, Sir, That This Pipe Came From Laos?"

Richard C. Hanson

Educational Sense

Another commission studied higher education for 18 months and decided that the American system of higher education was in need of "intensive" effort to develop a new system. Hell, a half-witted lunatic could come to that conclusion by just trying to get a college education, nowadays.

The report, commissioned by H.E.W. and funded by the Ford foundation, hacks away at education; being used as the "admission ticket" to a job; the "massive social assumption that to be in college is the most acceptable thing one can do at age 18" and the stigma of not going to college right after you put high school behind; the limitations of a campus based full-time education on people as they get older; and just the singular mode that education takes on at most colleges and Universities, with prime emphasis on classroom lectures, assigned reading, and notes.

"A surprisingly large and growing number of students...voluntarily drop out" of college for these reasons, the report admits, pointing to the fact that two thirds of the students who enter college leave for reasons of "dissatisfaction" with the type of education available.

UMass, believe it or not, probably offers as much diversity in education as any other large State University in the country. Limited special programs such as the "Individual Concentration Major," coupled with the much talked about innovations of the School of Education have given UMass a livable atmosphere for those students lucky enough to be involved. What remains for the majority of students here, though, is the same type of "lock-step" four year education, right after high school, which unwittingly stifles the individual all across the nation.

There are thousands of students at UMass sitting through four years of classes with no more idea of what they want to do or be than when they entered.

What the University can do to break through the subtle stigma of a four-year education are small administrative things like, eliminating the class-year designation on everything from ID's to computer files. Giving a student his number and letting him work towards accumulating 120 credits rather than working towards graduation in "1973" might present a better atmosphere around here.

After one eliminates those highly social labels, make an admissions policy which can actually encourage students not to go directly into college after high school, if he or she has no idea of what they would ever want that the University can offer.

The University is possibly the worst place to be when you aren't sure of what you want out of life. It presents a comfortable hole, where someone can stay and very easily waste four years.

When public officials talk about higher education for everyone, they are making more political rhetoric than educational sense. The University has to recognize its limits, and those include giving direction to students.

In the future those responsible for the UMass's of the nation have to bend over backwards to offer realistic alternatives to the present system, which delays the education of more than it educates.

Art Buchwald

War Trophies Galore

WASHINGTON--I don't mind the Pentagon lying to me on a large scale such a when they flatly stated a few months ago that they were not keeping any files on civilians.

But it's their little lies that get me down. For example, the other day it was revealed that a rusty piece of oil pipe Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird showed to newspapermen and implied had been captured during the Laos offensive turned out to be over a year old and had nothing to do with the recent Laos incursion.

Secretary Laird was trying to use the pipe to prove the South Vietnamese were making great headway and had managed to cut the North Vietnamese oil supplies in Laos.

When the truth was discovered, the Pentagon naturally protested; they never said it was this year's pipe.

Well, it doesn't take much imagination to realize what some future Pentagon briefings are going to be like.

I can just see us all filing into the Pentagon briefing room where Mr. Laird, wearing his usual ebullient smile, welcomes us. Besides the usual maps, a display of weapons and supplies are on the stage.

Mr. Laird says, "Gentlemen, I am happy to report that the South Vietnamese have just captured a large cache of weapons in Laos." He holds up a rifle.

"Is that one of the rifles captured, Mr. Secretary?" a reporter asks.

Mr. Laird smiles and says, "Pardon me. I didn't understand the question."

"I said, is that rifle one of the weapons captured in Laos?"

"Well, yes and no," Mr. Laird replies. "This rifle actually was found after Custer's last stand at Little Big Horn. But our intelligence indicates the weapons discovered look just like it."

Mr. Laird picked up a frozen chicken. "The ARVN found 12,000 chickens just like this one on Route 9."

"Is that a Laotian chicken?"

"Would you please speak louder?"

"Is that a chicken from Laos?"

Mr. Laird confers with a general and then smiles and says, "No, this chicken comes from Belleau Woods. It was captured at the end of World War I. But we wanted to give you some idea of the success of the ARVN mission. Are there any questions?"

"What are those ration cans overthere, sir?"

"Oh, yes, we captured five tons of those two days ago in Cambodia."

"But there is German printing on the labels."

Laird confers with the generals. Then he smiles and says, "I erred. These cans come from the Battle of the Bulge in World War II. But we wanted to give you some idea how sneaky the enemy really can be.

"Mr. Secretary, where did the sandbags come from?"

"These are the types of sandbags the North Vietnamese have placed around their anti-aircraft guns."

"Did you fly the sandbags all the way back to Washington?"

He confers with the general again.

"No, not exactly. These sandbags were captured at the Battle of Iwo Jima. We thought you might be interested to note how far behind the enemy was in sandbag design. Are there any questions?"

"Is that everything that was captured?"

Mr. Laird smiles. "Except for one small surprise." He presses a buzzer. The large doors of the briefing room open and a Chinese tank rumbles into the room.

"What do you think of that, gentlemen?"

"Where did you get it?"

"We captured it at Inchon during the Korean war. Let this be an answer to those who say Vietnamization isn't working."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

. . . Wooden Ships . . .

...A dull yellow newspaper swirled with the quiet breeze, travelling across an empty parking lot to rest against a tall cement lamp post. Grey clouds floated overhead, warning of an impending shower, hovering to give the silent land a dark gloom. There was no noise, save for the soothing sound of the wind...

...The view from the tenth-story was of a landscape long dead, long void of the movements of a million lives, a thousand voices, a few thoughts. In the distance a brown river meandered into an autumn forest, whose greenish-red, bronze trees swayed, bracing for the approaching storm...

...The rain spattered into an ocean of rich black mud, forming pools in the empty lot. The dull yellow newspaper fell into a rising stream, to be washed and cleansed and sent into a world on the opposite side of the lot. The blurred headline warned, congratulated, beckoned, but was incoherent...

...Small whitecaps formed on the lazy river, attacking the steep bank as battering rams against a forbidden castle. A collapsed bridge told of stories long ago, its steel girders rusty, brown; pieces of wood blocked by this dam were ships of old tied to dock. A mist rose from the forest, from the tenth story a vision of shades...

...The dull yellow newspaper drowned in its shallow river, to be rescued by a distant sunlight. The rain smashed against the broken window panes of an ancient Ford, in rhythm to the wind. A broken man of broken bones sat at the wheel silently watching the rain fall through the roof, onto his vinyl metal grave...

...The mist rose, the river flowed on. The storm, worn out by the effort, became a shower, the streams in the parking lot losing themselves into deep drains. The wind retrieved the dull yellow newspaper from death, its blurred headlines quieter still, warning

...Only the land lived dying.

Emory Rounds

Letters To The Editor

With Malice Toward None

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to "Name Withheld by Request" whose letter entitled "Rally Round The Flag, Boys" appeared in the March 9th edition of the MDC.

By the overtones of the letter, I must assume that the author is black. This would explain the author's lack of understanding pertaining to the reaction of the student whose letter he was responding to. My question is simple: Why must I and others pay for the shortcomings and inequalities perpetrated by my parents or the politicians in this nation? I had nothing to do with the bad deal that the blacks got in this country, and I refuse to take any rsponsibility for it. What is probably interpreted as a constantly defensive attitude by the blacks is what had upset the author of the letter that you were responding to.

As far as honoring Julius Erving and Al Skinner, I say fine! They are two outstanding basketball players, but the fact that they are black is irrelevant to the whites. I enjoy watching good basketball players of all colors.

If it is any consolation to you, you come off as typical of angry young blacks today. When a majority group points out shortcomings of the black minority, then the angriest start justifying their resentment. My suggestion to you and your sympathizers is to overcome your resentful attitude toward whites in general by forgiving them for their sins, and by treating them like your brothers too. I bear no malice toward blacks. I am trying to understand them. Maybe if we try to understand each other, instead of harboring resentment, we can overcome the racial tensions that exist on campus. I am sorry, but I cannot, as a white person, rally to your obvious blind rsentment.

Bob Jayes

Vetoed Voter

To the Editor.

I was refused my right to register for the vote Monday and I am thoroughly pissed off. I was fully aware of the controversy concerning this issue when I attempted to do so. Although I never thought the town clerk (Mrs. Dimock) would refuse me. I'm a veteran who lives off-campus, nearly 23 years old and I plan to attend the University for at least three more years. Granted, I will leave during the summers, but for what I consider only vacations. Mrs. Dimock made her position perfectly clear, she will not register any students who will not remain here during the summers. I remember reading something in the Collegian recently about Mrs. Dimock not refusing to register students - but it's garbage. Let's face it, these people are obviously scared, we have the potential to control this town. But let's not become apathetic about this controversy. The right to vote is not going to be given to us in this town, we'll have to fight for it. It can only be to our own advantage to straighten this problem out before we even hear talk about the next local election.

Robert R. Drolet

Fantasy Dissolved

To the Editors:

Dave Willams' acid war fantasy in the March 8 Collegian completely dissolved any respect I had for his journalistic ability. I know the kid can write, now all he has to do is learn to see, and perhaps understand a little. Pierpont dormitory is a place where "love, justice, and brotherhood" cynicized by Mr. Williams, in truth do prevail. Certainly Project 10 has it's share of do-nothings just like the campus as a whole, but what Mr. Williams fails to realize is that it has a far greater number of bright, earnest, young people who are trying to do something a little different within our archaic university structure. I'm sure that those people who stand to the right of center in the university community were most happy to see Mr. Williams perpetuate the stereotype of Pierpont as "The freak dorm".

Peter Massa

Where You're At

To the Editor:

ASA is the American Student Association -- a new, nation-wide, activist, leftist organization.

NEW, because no other organization has had or has the same ideals and means of achieving those ideals.

NATION—WIDE, because the group hopes to develop a viable communications network among all participating colleges and universities in the nation.

ACTIVIST, because, rather than to merely stage rallies and demonstrate the existence of the group by token gestures, ASA wants to be able to look back over a period of time and say: This is what we DID; these are the results of our positive ACHIEVEMENTS. LEFTIST, because most students' ideals can be classified as liberal – left of center – and ASA seeks to be representative of these ideals.

WHY can Mobe meetings formerly held in the Campus Center Auditorium now be held in the Plymouth room -- and still have more empty seats than people?

WHY, if most students intend to neither become members of or avidly support unions, do SMC, YSA, and other such organizations support unions? WHY do they send our money and verbal support to the same people who bludgeoned us on Wall Street last May.

WHY, on this of all campuses, do Friday and Saturday nite activities consist of Moslem Prayer, Hillel Service, Crusade for Christ, Varsity Wrestling, and watching TV in the "STUDENT" Center? ASA seeks to determine the answers to these and other questions and to DO something to correct the situation.

REGARDING intra-university affairs, ASA will seek to expose and recall all unrepresentative student "leaders" and put the Campus Center and all student-related activities in the hands of real students.

REGARDING inter-university affairs, ASA looks forward to the establishment of a communications network among many universities so that students across the nation may unite to effect social and political ideals.

REGARDING outside affairs, ASA will attempt to develop open channels of communication between university

REGARDING outside affairs, ASA will attempt to develop open channels of communication between university and community and between university and government by treading the thin hair-line separating selling out to the system from turning off the community by extremist actions.

If ASA sounds like where you're at, then join others like you at a campus-wide rally-meeting tonite at 7:30 P.M. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Harold Koltin

Editorial Points

Doesn't it seem like an American myth was shattered when the unbeatable Ali was beaten. Is nothing sacred anymore?

* * * *

Nelson Rockefeller stated the other day that if President Nixon decides not to run for re-election, a move he is confident won't happen, he might consider another bid for the presidency. It happens every Spring.

* * * *

NBC has announced that it will cancel Bill Cosby's weekly show. Maybe he'll have a chance to start going to school now.

* * * *

It is getting pretty bad when a 16-year old youth, not even old enough to drive, hijacked a plane with the intention of taking it to, of all places, Canada. He got as far as Tennessee before he was convinced that he was making a mistake. Maybe next time around he'll realize that all hijackers who know anything about it go to Cuba, not Canada.

* * * *

If Chancellor Tippo doesn't like lettuce and he doesn't like tomatoes, then what the hell good is the rest of the salad?

School Days, School Days

To the Editor:

I am a grad student in philosophy. I am attempting to start an alternate school in September. I am looking for 4 or 5 people to teach there and help organize it.

It would be for people from 13 to 18 years old - perhaps drop-outs, or people who have been kicked out of school for breaking the rules, or people whose parents don't want to send them to high school.

Money would come from the parents or from some kind of grant. The teachers would get "subsistence wages", perhaps $5000-6000.

I don't really know about the details. There is a great deal of information that is easily available about the technical aspects of starting such a school such as zoning laws and taxes.

I want to discover new ways of learning and relating to people. I am not sure of what kinds of "subject matter" should be taught. I want to talk with anyone who's interested - people who are into music, art, English, history, science, perhaps even organic farming. I would like people to be into interdisciplinary things, if possible.

I am not concerned with the degree you have. The qualities I am looking for are a deep love of your field(s) and the ability to relate well to other people.

I believe that the group can organically define its purpose and educational philosophy.

If this interests you, please come to a meeting WED. NIGHT IN ROOM 902 - CAMPUS CENTER 8 PM.

If you just want to share your ideas or experiences about this kind of school, please come to the meeting.

I want to add that it would be very good to find teachers, who, by the style and commitment of their lives, can turn people on to what the Women's Liberation Movement is about. (Men will not be discriminated against.)

If you can't come to the meeting, please call me at 253-5061.

BobZelman
C/OTheBleedingRose

Curb Your Senate

To the Editor:

Do you know, that in spite of the Referendum, the Student Senate Officers are going to get their retroactive pay, anyway? Do you know that this amounts to $2100? Do you know also, that the Student Senate is contemplating raising the student "Activities" Tax by $15? If you don't know these things, you are either apathetic, or illiterate, or both - all of these interesting facts were printed in Tuesday's Daily Collegian. I personally don't care for this kind of "honesty". The powers that are implicit in the above actions are not those of a responsible, representative governing body - quite the contrary. These actions are DICTATORIAL! Under present Student Senate Bylaws, the students can be taxed to any amount the Senate sees fit, subject (thank God!) to the administration. Also, if money is allotted (as in the case of the salaries bill) before a referendum, the money is paid, regardless of the referendum results! Under these circumstances, it is clear that the Senate must be curbed! I urge all those who feel as I do, and are interested enough to do a little work, to get in touch with me.

EUGENE KELLY

UMass Campuses Need Separate Board Members

(Editors note - The following was presented to the Education Committee of the Mass. House of Representatives and refers to House bill No. 4778 which would give both campuses of UMass separate members on the Board of Trustees).

In reference to House bill No. 4778, a petition filed by Mr. Oliver of Amherst, we would like to indicate out support for this piece of legislation. House No. 4778 would allow both campuses of the University of Massachusetts (Boston and Amherst) to choose one student representative as a full-time member of the Board of Trustees of the University.

Essentially, there is a problem of communications between the Board and the students. As the present system stands, there is one Trustee member from the Amherst campus and no person represents the interests of the Boston campus. The present student Trustee, Mr. Elters, has realized it is impossible to represent his Boston constituency simply because he does not attend school on that campus; he is unable to speak on a variety of different issues involving the Boston campus because he has not developed a "feel" of the UMass-Boston academic community.

Another problem that has affected both campuses is that of dissent. Dissent, like many other phenomena, can be minimized through communications between the parties involved. It is our view that since the Board sets many regulations concerning students, better communications is a prerequisite to better policies, which in turn results in satisfaction on the part of the students. We feel that two student members of the Board of Trustees, one from each campus, would further help communications between the students and the Board, perhaps resulting in less dissent with University policy.

The overriding reason for our support of House No. 4778 stems from the realization that UMass-Boston and UMass-Amherst are vastly different schools.

At the present time, growth is a factor which differentiates the two campuses. UMass-Boston will be moving to Columbia Point in a few short years-it will grow both quantitatively and qualitatively in its enrollment and programs. Consideration is being given to leveling the numerical growth rate at UMass-Amherst while improving and expanding present programs and policies.

academic programs and requirements; UMass-Boston and UMass-Amherst differ vastly in their social organization; they both have different needs and priorities in submitting the budget to the Commonwealth; they have differing requirements when it becomes time to build new buildings or renovate old ones; and, at the present time, Boston is solely a commuter school, having a totally different environment than Amherst. These differences are important considerations to take into account when reviewing the merits of this bill.

Tokenism, which some people seem to think this bill promotes, is an issue that must not clud the real intent of the bill. The idea of a second student Trustee is that of additional input of a body of knowledge that the Trustees have virtually no expertise on. Only a student from the Boston campus can illustrate at a Board meeting what it is like to attend a school in the center of urban Boston, and only a student form the Amherst campus can relay to the Board his campus' feelings about locating a new building in a grassy area adjacent to the campus pond.

Another argument commonly used against the addition of another student as a Trustee member is that all Trustee meetings are open to the general public, including students. This line of thinking, however, totally disregards the fact that most decisions are made by the Board at their committee meetings and executive sessions, which are closed to the public. Student input must be received at the committee level, if this input is to have any significance at all. The filing of this bill is a quest for the input of both campuses to be taken into account by the Board of Trustees at a "peer" level.

We have illustrated the differences between UMass-Boston and UMass-Amherst and tried to show that a second student Trustee member is desirable. We are looking for communications lines and fighting for input that will help the individual campus communities. We feel that the change is a legitimate one and one that is needed now.

Ross P. Benjamin
USCC

TAKE TWO

A Dream Deferred

Comment On Hampshire College From A Black Perspective

Experimentation...creativity ..personal growth...community of scholars...these are the main elements of the "Hampshire dream." BUT

What happens to a dream deferred?

We've had a year to try and make that dream a reality, and it hasn't happened. The failure of that dream has particular significance when you look at it from a black point of view. We, as black students, wanted to try to find new patterns of racial interaction through that Hampshire dream. The problem before us was trying to build a community on a college campus but at the same time keep our own identities as black people. At our first meeting in September it was felt that we could best help the community by acting as individuals rather than as a group. However, since then we've discovered that success as individuals was attained at the expense of our group identity as black people. This meant that the building of a Hampshire community included black people but not blackness. We were not a cohesive enough group ourselves to fill this gap; we identified with one another but the relationship was loose and undefined.

As a result, blacks, as individuals, went off in several different directions....

Does it dry up
like a raisin in the sun?

Most of us found our own group of friends and forgot about the dream-a community that accepted us both as black individuals and as a black group with its own character and interests-altogether.

Or fester like a sore-
And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat?

Many of us are discontent with the way the community is evolving, we're brooding about it, but no positive action has been taken.

Or crust and sugar over-like a syrupy sweet?

Others don't see a problem and are content to groove in the euphoria of being a Hampshire student.

Maybe it just sags
like a heavy load.

And another group was deeply discontent but suffered from a feeling of helplessness in being able to change the situation.

In the past few weeks we've begun to discuss this splintering off of the black group and realized that something had to be done.

Or does it explode?

We've decided to shake ourselves out of our complacency; we've decided to take action. We recognize the need for something and are now trying to define just what it is we need. One possibility is a formal organization that would allow black culture to develop on campus. Whatever action we choose, we've learned one lesson this year: the Hampshire community and we, as black students, must not deny the cultural backgrounds of minority group students. We must assert our rights to be members of an ethnic group as well as individuals. We must hope that the idea of community at Hampshire is large enough to accomodate both.

Shelley Shaw
Cheryl Anderson

*Langston Hugh's poem A Dream Deferred has been taken from The Panther and the Lash: Poems of our Times, (Alfred A. Knoff, New York, 1969), p. 14.

A Victor Richardson Defense Fund has been started to help free Victor Richardson, an Amherst College junior who is currently serving a seven to ten year sentence in Walpole. We are seeking donations in order to obtain a lawyer for his appeal. We are seeking ten dollar donations (more or less as your heart desires). If you wish to help please make all checks payable to the Victor Richardson Defense Fund. Contributions may be sent to the Amherst Afro-American Society or the Mt. Holyoke Afro-American Society in care of Sheila Smith, box 1800, or ext. 249.

A Difference of Opinion

Reading the article printed yesterday in the Daily Collegian concerning the CCEBS program, we suddenly got the idea that the student ought to respond to those facts--the "disadvantaged" student. We found one glaring inconsistency: The director, Dr. Hodges Glenn, was quoted as saying he feared the program "may be in danger of becoming another 'white bureaucracy'. Glenn said the program should not take this turn." Then we read this: "The Department of Health, Education and Welfare noted 'a refreshing consciousness regarding the small every day needs of minority students.' "

Send a letter to the editor, to the community, and let us know if you see anything wrong there. We also included a kind of Bill of Rights for the students in this program which we, the teaching assistants in the English Department, saw fit to write two months ago: (Our boast is not just originality, but that we did not use the word "disadvantaged" a single time!)

RESOLVED THAT:

1. This program has by its generous influence convinced those students who have accepted it to change their style of life somewhat--to transfer this into the assumption that it has influenced them either to study or obtain degrees in arts and sciences might be erroneous.

2. No student in any age of academic institution could be brought to such a place and be expected to survive if exposed only to the books and lecturers of the academy.

3. If there is a difference between the treatment of the black student in the CCEBS Program and the general student it must be only that those who teach and administer within this program have opened their community to the black student with something less than the traditional restraint practiced by the broad faculty of the University in making its community and fellowship accessible to the general student.

4. It is not the goal of this academic community to establish any necessary correlation between the work and academic success one has at the University and the sorely needed work which must be done in the ghetto from which most of us, the black doctors and the black freshmen have departed.

5. This is a closed community: problems cannot be solved by moving people around or moving them away.

6. Only after the advanced student, teaching assistant or tutor has met the student members of the CCEBS Program and exchanged realities and goals, can the subordinate relationship of teacher to student gain any credibility in the student's mind or, what is equally important, in the teacher's mind.

7. Preference is given to those candidates for this program who have less money and lower grades than their so-called peers. If this is a high price to pay for admission, let's not ask them to pay it again and again, day after day. The program should have a very low silhouette.

8.a. The administration in this Program has the limited task of facilitating the relations between the tutor, the advanced student and the beginning student.

b. It should, within its resources, provide money and space.

c. It should present a favorable image of our working program to the University or the public or to the State of Massachusetts or the Federal Government in as much as such presentation has in the past and can in the future improve our resources.

d. It should work with the University Administration to include Program students under its general task and services.

e. It should keep data on financial and educational needs of the student in order to properly allocate such resources with a minimum of waste when they become available to the student, and restrict such data and information accordingly.

f. It should insure that the records of those students electing to leave the University are in no way biased in favor of those students who leave upon receiving degrees.

g. It should make all such records and data and activity available to the leadership of the advanced students, teaching assistants and tutors of the Program, since such is simply a record and history of their contact with the students so catalogued.

h. It should make available all information coming in from other organizations, powers or resources; and no restriction should be construed as protective or useful as leverage to effect administrative goals.

i. It should maintain a file of programs, plans, outlines, lectures and such written reports of group activities (excluding case histories) whenever such may benefit others in the program.

9. The tutor and the student should realize that they are parties to the assumption that the mixture of their life styles, goals and particular as well as general knowledge will be beneficial and is in some sense vital in the larger struggle of human for humanity. Isolation, small thinking, haste, and the many kinds of dishonesty will frustrate these ideas. We live from day to day and the future is not long-range but tomorrow. The advanced student, the tutor, cannot hibernate until the hour of his validity, his Doctorate; the black student can go back to the city, the inner-city, and report that he did not get a degree, but he ought not report, no contact.

We hope this is a healthy controversy and we hope the students concerned will reply with a healthy voice for the community to hear.

Richard Hardie

The Happy Audience Roar

Applause

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

APPLAUSE is easily one of the best-written, best produced musicals in some time. It is far and away one of the funniest, fastest, craftiest entertainments now in New York and it would be perfect to see (if you can get tickets) over the NIT weekend.

The musical is an adaptation of ALL ABOUT EVE, the great Bette Davis film about theater life which contains one of the bitchiest and funniest screenplays in films. The story's about an aging actress, Margo Channing, her insecurities with her younger director-lover, and the maneuverings of the conniving Eve, a Sammy Glick-type character on the move up.

In changing the film to a stage production, Betty Comden and Adolph Green have been able to capture all its humor and tension. The book is such a strong one that it could easily stand on its own as a straight play and succeed. At one point, when the deceitful Eve attempts to con the director into forming a liason-of-sorts, and is rejected, the audience breaks into an applause usually reserved for a splashy production number. The book is that good.

The musical's emphasis is moved to make it more about Margo than about Eve. This is shrewdly done, as the show is a vehicle for the talents of Lauren Bacall. As Margo she gives a knock-out performance. She dances and sings with ease in a wide variety of musical numbers.

In "But Alive" a song which nicely explains Margo's philosophy on life, the young male dancers are outdistanced by her agile hoofing. When the play needs dramatic tension, Bacall speaks or sings with commanding bite that's appropriate for the sarcastic and cynical Margo. She makes "Welcome to the Theater", her own bitter greeting to Eve at the end of the First Act, something of her own confession to the ironies behind the glamour and spectacle of the theater. The musical has been running for nearly a year now and Bacall is still incandescent. It is as if the whole production is her sideshow and she is the just-a-bit-wicked mistress of ceremonies.

There are many strong performances in the supporting roles. Penny Fuller handles the two-faced Eve with such believability that her final downfall is greeted with applause. Len Cariou has a strong voice and a fine comic style as Bacall's director boyfriend, Lee Roy Reams is very funny as Margo's hairdresser and another astonishing performance is that of Bonnie Franklin.

Charles Strouse has written some fast-moving songs to Lee Adams' witty and inventive lyrics. "Applause", the title number, fits exactly the reasons why these people live this crazy life. It is quite spectacular with Bonnie Franklin leading a vibrant and tireless crew of singers and dancers. They give Bacall some excellent material such as "But Alive" and the funny Forties-film parody, "Who's That Girl".

The staging by Ron Field contains some of the smartest choreography in seasons. The whole play is well paced with always the right comic touches coming at the least expected times. Bacall can turn an ordinary aside into a hilarious joke through her inflection which only adds more humor to an already very funny play.

The sets fit and move on and off the stage with ease adding to the fast-pace of the musical. An especially nice, inventive touches were the flashing colored lights occasionally dropped downstage and the use of televisions in the opening sequence. The costumes, especially Bacall's are stunning.

APPLAUSE is very, very good conventional musical--comedy. It is produced with style and is easily one of the more handsome productions now running in New York. Bacall is magnificent; she sings, dances, and acts with class in the smartest, chicest musical in seasons.

APPLAUSE is enjoying a long run at the Palace Theater, Broadway at 47th St., just beyond Times Square.

This is one of 28 paintings to be on display at the University of Massachusetts Art Gallery in Amherst from March 12 to April 2, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The one-man show will feature the landscapes of Robert Knipschild, director of graduate studies in fine arts at the University of Cincinnati.

UM Art Gallery:
Little Yellowstone in Herter

Paintings of Robert Knipschild will be on display from March 12 to April 2 at the University Art Gallery, Herter Hall. Knipschild is chairman of the division of art and director of graduate studies in fine arts at the University of Cincinnati.

The 28 paintings in the exhibit include 27 oils and one oil and acrylic. All were painted from 1963 to 1970 and have such titles as "Small Dark Landscape," "Little Yellowstone," "Memory of Ruisdael," and "River".

Knipschild's main interests for paintings are landscapes which incorporate monumental constructions, pyramids, terraces, and highways. He is primarily a teacher of graduate painting workshops.

Gallery hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Spend an unforgettable
SEMESTER AT SEA
on the former
QUEEN ELIZABETH

New lower rates; full credit for courses. Write today for details from World Campus Afloat, Chapman College, Box CC16, Orange, CA 92666.

Clear Sky's a-Comin'

By PHIL BROWN
MDC Staff

A really superb group has emerged from the local scene called "Clear Sky". The reason for using the word superb is threefold: first, their lead singer Harry Spring, who 3 years ago worked with a group who went on tour with the Yard Birds. His style is distinct; ranging from "gusty" blues to mellow leads on top of back-up harmony.

The 2nd reason for using the word superb is Bob Henderson and Gary Morris. They are both top-notch guitarists. Bob, who is only 19, has been working in blues groups for 6 years. WATCH OUT for this guy. He's one of the finest and most tasteful blues players I've heard in quite a long while. Gary Morris is on the faculty at Cape Cod Conservatory of music where he teaches classical and folk guitar. He has worked in the south as a professional studio musician on Mercury Records, where he's played for Joe South and Billy Joe Royal, among others. Also he has worked with numerous Rock, Folk, and Country groups through out the south.

Alone these guys could more than hold their own among professional guitarists. However combined they pull off some of the finest Blues and Country Solos that you'll hear. Often they play harmonic leads where they both play simultaneously in harmony which is really out of sight.

The 3rd reason for the word "superb" is their original material. Three out of 5 guys write. Rollo Besaw, their bass player (who will give Jack Bruci a run for his money), Bob Henderson and Gary Morris are the source of their musical creations.

John Baymore works out on the drums for the group. He's in large part responsible for their versatility. His rhythms range from 1959 rock to country flavored beats, to jazz and Latin syncopation. If you hear of "Clear Sky" playing around, do yourself a favor and listen to them.

Wednesday night at 12:40, on WFCR (88.5 FM), Eric Benjamin is having them play on his show.

On Friday, the band will be at Hamlin House; and Saturday night, they will play at the "Coffee House" (formerly the Glass Onion). Take these chances to hear them.

The Amherst Tower Delivers!
CALL 549-1115
or 549-1116
Sun. - Thurs. 6 - 11 p.m.
PIZZAS ● COLD SUBS
Sandwiches, Canned Soda

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742
10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

Mid Semester Sale
COMPLETE WATER BED
includes:
frame
liner
mattress with 10 year guarantee this week only for $59.00
mattress alone only $39.00
Sundance Water Beds
187 Main St. Northampton

TONIGHT
Wednesday Night Coffee House
For people 21 and over
The Blue Wall Cafeteria
2nd floor, Campus Center
Same Menu and Prices
Same entertainment
MORE ROOM!
Ed is still looking for new talent
Contact him at 549-1418
between 4 and 7 p.m.

Seniors Seek Structure

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Thirty seniors attended an open meeting of their class Monday night in the Campus Center at which the Class Activities for the remainder of the year were explained and suggestions for structure of a permanant Class organization were sought out.

Norm Patch, the chairman of the Senior committee, was "disappointed" with the turn-out, which was one percent of the total number of seniors to graduate this June.

The committee explained a major plan for senior class reorganization will be brought before the Student Senate sometime this spring. It will replace the recently abolished class government structure.

Commencement and class activities for the rest of the semester also were discussed. Commencement will be on May 30, 1971 and three subcommittees have been set-up to co-ordinate the event. $10,000 has been alloted for Senior Day, May 29, which will follow the traditional format.

The Class Gift has been incorporated with the Scholarship Fund making the total of $10,000, the largest of any class. This makes it, according to Patch, "a living memorial which will benefit students." It will be named the Martin B. Shapiro Scholarship Fund after the recently deceased Senior Class student leader.

The MLK Lecture Series will consist of a week-long Festival of the Arts, which will feature New England artists.

The amount alloted to the Alumni Tax will be $17,650. This breaks down to $5.00 per senior and goes to the Alumni Association. The money is used for a quarterly magazine which each graduating senior is sent for a period of time and pays for the information services of the Alumni offices.

UMass Profs Honored

The Folger Shakespeare Library of Washington, D.C., has announced that Dr. Everett H. Emerson, professor of English at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, has been named a Fellow of the Library of the academic year 1971-72.

Folger grants are intended to assist mature scholars in completing works of importance. Dr. Emerson will continue his studies of American Puritanism at the Folger where he has twice previously served as a fellow.

Until recently director of the University's Honors Program, Dr. Emerson is author of books on John Cotton (1964), English Puritanism (1968), and Captain John Smith (soon to appear). He is editor of the journal "Early American Literature," which is published at the University of Massachusetts, and in 1969 was first chairman of the Modern Language Association's Early American Literature Group. The Folger Shakespeare Library is administered by the trustees of Amherst College.

* * *

Dr. E. Ernest Lindsey, professor of chemical engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, has been named a Diplomate of the American Academy of Environmental Engineers, after examination by the Environmental Engineering Intersociety Board. The board is the first, and at present the only, engineering organization certifying to the professional qualifications of the practitioners of its specialties. In addition to the examination, the requirements for certification include a degree in engineering from an institution approved by the board; registration as a professional engineer; and at least eight years of engineering experience, four of which must have been in responsible charge of environmental engineering work.

Dr. Lindsey received his B.S. degree from the Georgia Institute of Technology and his engineering doctorate from Yale University, both in chemical engineering. He joined the faculty of the University of Massachusetts in 1949, following teaching posts at the University of Tennessee and at Yale University, and assignments with the Connecticut State Water Commission and Houdry Process Corporation of Linwood, Pa.

* * *

Murray Eisenberg, associate professor of mathematics at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, is the author of "Axiomatic Theory of Sets and Classes," published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc. The book, a text for advanced undergraduate and beginning graduate students, presents basic concepts of set theory and logic used today in all branches of mathematics, with special emphasis on the theory of infinite sets.

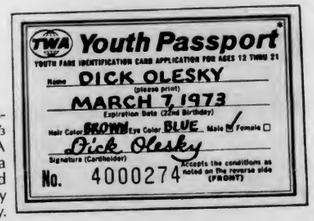
Red China Topic On WFCR Tonight

Featured this week in the University of Massachusetts Great Decisions program is "Communist China and the U.S.: Can we live in peace?" The forum will be broadcast live over radio WFCR (88.5 F.M.) Wednesday, March 10, beginning at 7:30 p.m. from the Noah Webster House Lounge on the Amherst campus.

Luther A. Allen, UMass professor of government, is moderator. Panelists include Steven M. Goldstein of the Smith College history department, Franklin W. Houn of the UMass government department, and Barry C. Keenan of the Mount Holyoke history department.

Pamphlet materials are prepared for these weekly sessions by the Foreign Policy Association, an organization founded in 1918 to inform the public on international efforts. These are available in the Webster House Library weekday evenings.

Apple Corps, a student group from the Orchard Hill residence complex, sponsors the series and invites the public to participate in the weekly discussions.



UM Trustee Writes Book On WW II Experiences

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Oswald Tippo, right, presents UMass Trustee General John J. Maginnis of Worcester with the first copy of his book, "Military Government Journal: Normandy to Berlin," which will be published by then University of Massachusetts Press March 15. Also shown is Trustee Mrs. O. Phillip Snowden of Roxbury. The presentation was made at a recent Board of Trustees meeting in Boston. General Maginnis, a retired major general, writes of personal experiences during World War II when he was assigned to Civil Affairs/Military Government which worked to restore civilian order in newly occupied territories or bring military order in conquered territories.

Chancellor Tippo congratulates John Magginis on his new book.

TWA INTRODUCES 1/3 OFF.

With a Youth Passport card you get 1/3 off on all TWA domestic flights, on a standby basis. And reduced rates at many places you'll stay.

Youth Passport cards cost $3 and are available to students aged 12 thru 21.

AND 2 YEARS TO PAY.

With TWA's Getaway Card, you can charge airfare, hotels, meals, cars, just about anything to just about anywhere. And then take two years to pay.

The Getaway Card is available to most students in the U.S.A. For additional information contact TWA or your local travel agent.

TWA's Getaway Program
U.S.A./Europe/Asia/Pacific/Africa

Culturnatives

Search For An Educational Revolution

By GILBERT J. SALK

Some shorts, and a rap on education...

I plan to run a series of articles in this column on intentional communities, but I don't want to write than all myself, because I don't have the first-hand experience. I feel that these ideas can be best presented in a thought- provoking manner by people who really believe in them. So, if you're into a particular kind of commune, collective, co-operative, or some other form of intentional community, write me about it and I'll put it in. Please try not to go over 500 words, and let me know if you want your name and address used so people can contact you to rap.

Mother Earth News #7 is out. You can pick up your copy at the White Light Bookstore in town, at the Draft Counseling Services office in the SU, or at the DCS table outside of the Hatch Wednesday. If you come to the table, you can get all seven issues for $7 instead of $7.70 as long as they last.

John Medeiros, a former UMie, has started a new antiwar move which fits into my idea of a cultural alternative. I'll pass it on, for what it's worth to you. When bill time comes on his various loans, he sends the banks and loan companies only one dollar and the following note: "Enclosed is my $1.00 payment on acct. #____. This is the maximum amount I am able to pay at present because I must save money in preparation for the war and economic crisis which is being started by our government. The simple wisdom of the common man tells me that a terrible war us soon to come. I recommend to you that you also save money. Slow down your pace of work and take some time to think about how this war can be prevented. When peace is assured, I will probably be able to pay more. PAY FOR PEACE. Respectfully yours," John's leaflet goes on to say that you can expect at least two "warnings" from your creditors. These will be good for a couple of months, after which you could either continue to resist paying until peace is assured, or use the money you have put aside to get up-to-date.

The effectiveness of the action is that it is simple, polite, and may jar the senses of the payment clerk, who will give it to the loan officer, who may show it to the manager. Each of these people may pass the story on to their family and friends. Pass the idea on to your friends, especially those at other schools, and have them get it into their campus or local newspapers. Let John know if you're joining him. Write John Medeiros, 67 Plain St., Rutland, Vt. 05701.

Now, on to education.

It took me nine years to graduate from UMass, because the essential irrelevancies of traditional educational processes forced me to drop out in order to maintain some kind of contact with reality. This was the only way in which any kind of meaning was able to accrue to what came down in the classroom. As a result, I meet a lot of guys face with the same frustrations who can't drop out because of the draft. In a very real sense, they are trapped. The typical educational system meets the needs only of the job-oriented-those who want to enter the fairly rigid, structured, pseudo-secure world of science, business, and teaching. There is practically no need-fulfillment for those who are interested in learning to think, to create, to question, to synthesize, or, for that matter, in learning how to LEARN.

Substituted for this are courses where science majors are taught that scientific reasoning is the only valid means of inquiry, and that speculation and the unprovable are probably irrelevant, where most students are rewarded not for thinking but for anticipating what the professor is thinking, where creativity is usually a poor second to parroting. There is no attempt to teach how to pose questions so that real education can take place. The emphasis, instead, is on providing answers to questions posed by somebody else in an atmosphere which forces the assumption that the answers are "absolutes" known to the question-poser, and that any other answer is "wrong" to the degree in which it differs from the sought-after answer.

As a result, it is nearly impossible to get students to attend programs in which basic assumptions are questioned, primarily because they have been taught to reverse the system to a point where questioning it is tantamount to questioning catechism. There is little coherent discussion of educational channeling, university complicity in the military-industrial complex, the moral implications and obligations adherent to education and research, etc. As an essential adjunct to this, there is little understanding of the effects these factors have on the quality and type of educational experiences available to us.

I'd like to pose some suggestions which may help open some doors to changes. Apply your own thinking to them for additions, deletions, improvements, and ways of implementing them.

Each course should probably have some discussion of how education is job-oriented, and how this fact affects general course availability and content, as well as how it tends to shape what the student will seek from education. Alternative approaches to study and alternative relevancies might also be discussed.

Term papers could be devised to be cross-discipline in focus and content. For example, industrial engineering students could be asked to write a paper on the moral obligation of industry to deal with the problem of environmental pollution, to be read by readers in Philosophy and sociology. Psychology majors could be assigned a paper dealing with the psychological benefits lower-class whites receive from racism. You should get the general idea.

Learning is a two-way proposition, but the standard classroom physical layout prohibits this from taking place. There is a kind of "professor-student: master-slave" relationship in most classrooms. The prof stands in the front, looking down at "his" class, while they are all seated facing him as the focal point of their attention. This has to have a psychological effect on the students. What about the potential of sitting in a circle, with everyone on a first-name basis, so there is some sort of equality at least implied?

It seems to me that for people to learn they must know how to find answers. The prerequisite to this must be that they know how to ask questions, determine what questions are relevant, and to hold in suspicion all "authority" until they are themselves able to justify the conclusions of those "authorities."

